b) in religious terms: Mosaic Theology, whose influence on culture, morals, etc., into cosmopolitan life (in relation to other peoples and nations) in the future fate of the Jewish people – Jewish spirit, etc. – Current position of their sects – About departure from Judaism, pseudo-Christianity etc.

c) in moral terms: National – Character traits that characterize the historical that has bent hopelessly. – In which comparison Judaism in Arfehung of morality with that of other peoples, other nations etc.

| | 2

18

,

d) in physical terms: especially in raising the too easy increase of their population number etc. |

e) in civil terms: sources of their wealth – usury; mercantile commonwealth spirit; commercial maxims considered in particular etc.

f) in civil terms: taking it, what influence it has on morality possibility of having a stake in the state welfare has. – Relationship of Judaism, in bourgeois relationship, to all parts of the state body parts, and, in civil terms, to the state itself etc. and

8) to illuminate in historical terms: in as far as all and every statement made about Judaism and presented observations from historical sources

customers can be confirmed and substantiated. –
What use Jewish writings make of the same
make – requires a detailed see Ges History of Judaism (c.).

) All parts listed above are in the most precise context; they all interlock.
It is therefore impossible to establish a demarcation line to want to move between them. Meanwhile, it remains regardless of where this or that part is to be counted
fe. For example, whether the implementation of the population= number of Judaism belongs there: the same in 1

19

30. Now the following revelation arises
important question:

physical or civil or even
from a civil point of view; whether the morally corrupting circumvention of religious rites writings must be counted there: Jews=
thum in religious, moral or civil:
ological point of view; whether the Jewish
my spirit in moral or merely world citizenship to judge from a practical point of view. Precisely for this reason, fhowever much I try to avoid repetitions
I was looking for; this was the case when editing diverse parts of a whole, which together
have a precise relationship to each other, all with are closely connected to each other, not entirely to avoid.

But the task is more difficult: in which system=
The execution must take place in a matic order.
Each part sheds light on all the others.
But which one should start from – even if the one part holds the torch above all the others –
thus non-systematic order and time requirement.
in Collision? This difficulty was, without to destroy the whole thing without the Jews on Christianity must be rejected
to be able to, absolutely and in no way to over= rise.

Long ago I even thought Judaism in religious point of view, completely
To be able to put it on the page. If only because not to
to the playground of adverse feuds of the back and
To find out what spirit the Jewish Jewish theological writings against non-Judaism breathe; even more so, to avoid the hard,
to avoid the unjust accusation that Christians primarily driven by fanaticism when 20

Where only Sudenthum in regard to the main mo=
elements of the previously mentioned parts

they speak out against Judaism; but Jewish writers for ruthlessly without any reference thought, without any mercy, ever bolder and bolder
have made such violent attacks on Christianity;
fuch are these, even more so the appearances of Scripture
ten of Mr. Friedländer, Cohen and Från=
kel in which the rabbinical dogmas, even if only partly – are presented as they appear to the have served as a reproach to non-Jewishness, the _ Motives to separate Judaism from this

page to view. |
I add the following two comments
once and for all::

Firstly: I stick with the word Jews everywhere
I do not know any Israelites, or after the Etymology of the word: Men over God! Already
As a Christian, I have the respect due to the Deity, not to commit a blasphemy of this kind.
But how could it have been possible that Jews

still have such an honorary name

I don't understand why you want to presume.

Secondly, where Judaism in relation to the
all of humanity must be considered,
I use the term non-Jewishness everywhere
Christianity chosen.

For what the Jews say about the Christian European Nations, in respect of their

such strict religious segregation, and all that
what has emerged from it,
and voh fare, they are the same in respect of all

peoples and all nations on the whole earth
where they had gone after the destruction of their National Government, have set their foot; it must

Now Syrians, Medians, Persians, Greeks, Romans or any other people.

21
can be used to deffelber the indwelling spirit
to be able to represent properly?

31. This question is, as far as Judaism is concerned, been completely overlooked. Precisely because of this, apart
of what is passionate interest, well
even malicious intent contributed to this,
because also preferably the considerable series of Contradictions of the kind that only on one or other side incomprehension instead of pete
can.

32. However, Jewish writers and fifth defender of Judaism right: that it is more than ridiculous to raise the question:
whether Jews form a state within a state?
a few Jewish families at this or that place; or even just where Judaism under eyes, where all other state relations
already in itself the same to certain limits
ftŕnken; fuch as such from the following
will become clear. |

I prefer to refer to the history of the Jew=
thums, however highly incomplete it is, the incomprehensible fincreasing difficulties, so far both partially white, as a whole, of Adams,

Cofmas, Bas nage, Baumgarten, Bũfching, Buxtorf, Enfield, Godwen, Gibbon, v. Mister=
mann, Hollberg, Maurice, Mõfer, Molden=
hawer, Paalzow, Picart, Remo, Selden, Wahner, and many others, pues bear:
been processed.

33. Very serious, however, is the same Question with regard to the large populous trading cities in Germany where the population of Jews
to which the Christians do not belong, as in Frank-rich to = 1: 600 or in England – 1: 800
but where this, in a few decennies already to = 1:8, perhaps even to 1:7, 1:6
has risen, and, after a few decades in insofar as Judaism fits ill-calculated an-claims) could assert, surely and certainly to = 1:3; = 1:2 until complete equality,
and would still go out there.

34. That question therefore requires a very thorough Rough view, which requires further reflection and further consideration, in that not Only one question of state depends on it: whether Ju-form the one state within the state?
since a second, in many and many respects even
far more important, closely related to it:
whether with regard to Judaism a general Standard adopted for all German states could become? –

*) For any price in the world I would like to have the folks have produced the following writing: About the verse attitude of the Jews to the Christians in the German trading cities. » Leipzig, Rostock
and Schwerin 1818, if I were not there (p. 289)
every thinking Jew would have been presented with the sentence:

“That the welfare of the Jewish people is only united with the Christian faith
« Fonte. v

23

35. Judaism appears differently in monarchy
in states, different in federative, again differently in republics, still differently modified in Catholic and Protestant states,
where in addition the main food source
be it agriculture (Poland) or industry, or Trade needs to be taken into account.

36. An even greater distance is found between Judaism and Judaism in small farming and rural towns with factories in one and the other

the same country, and in large, populous
trade is almost exclusively limited to trade= cities.

37. One especially from within Judaism takes on the character that emerges from this,
where the merchant class had a direct share in the government has.

38. Furthermore, Judaism appears in a quite different light, where the legislation many and some well thought-out, experience-based decisions
arrangements have been made so that the relationship between Jews to the rest of the country's inhabitants not from
fine brand could be crazy. |

39. In a completely different light, Judaism in states where the attention=
the government's ability to stimulate the internal Industry, associated with active trade, under Management of a well-thought-out trade policy is directed.

To go through the European states in this, |
would not find any room here; it can

2h u

but it is enough, one and the other
Land here without sight. |

40. In France, for example, you can and wisdom about the spirit of Judaism an end judgment has been made, even less can there be any what is said in Germany about Judaism
can be properly assessed.

Because France is a monarchical,
and not a federal state; – and in this respect
one only has to look at the steering ropes of the government of both
see. How much simpler is interest there, view, plan, intention, will and execution of the whole. But who wants to dig deeper into the trade policy to show which Influence a concentrated force in the trade routes–
deeds whose very different spirit everyone
statesman will have his own eyes on it.
For example, the customs system in * in relation to German= country and in relation to *, which such an important branch of food in Germany,

the most important of all, not for the pious serves.

Furthermore, Catholicism is the only dominant religion there. dominant state religion, whereby we do not, out of fear against all Christian religions, the harsh persecutions against Protestants new want to bring back to mind at some point, when it also served to show how France would act if Jews were to be treated most detrimentally in intervene in the conditions of civil life became.

25

41. Furthermore, France cherishes and cultivates the most glorious way and with all possible strength ten its internal industry. It provides with possible Diligence for the cultivation of its so lucrative nature= products. This is a wide-ranging activity Trade, supported by foreign possessions, connected, in which everything, it concerns the most noble manufacture and factory industry; the possession of the lands, or which are divided into countless predictable business intervening shipbuilding= and Rhederey, Jews very few, actually none at all.

nen, take part).

412. France is connected with all this, ; at for his tireless attention to land= construction, industry and trade, on these three pillars of the state, a customs system, which Stricthness so easily does not yield to anyone else; and therefore also in this regard Jews all and every means cuts off: with foreign machinery goods to pursue a profitable business, and the to kill the country's food supply.

43. To this comes the fo ganz un be=

*) French publicists have therefore done wrong, when they accepted essays shoved down by Jews men, in which Germany is judged so unkindly And if in several cities, then fvery large also was the number of unrest against Judaism had unfortunately happened; so Nevertheless, the German is by no means in rough Wildness degenerated, whoever you go back and bee to fay popular.

significant number of Jews in France in Compared to other countries, there are Germans land, Denmark, Poland, which are so extremely small population in the whole, so to say, completely loses 9th Ä

As is well known, this used to happen in France.
 edict of the eternal expulsion of the Jews
 never withdrawn by the government there Meanwhile, their stay here and there was tacitly tolerated: but this was their stay
 only largely the former papal property area in France (Avignon), as well as those part (Alsace), which formerly belonged to Germany
 has. |

The reason for both speaks for itself
 , especially with regard to the protection of Jews by the Popes elsewhere in previous gender script has been said.

44. Even less can England spirit of Judaism. In the strictest
 In this sense it is not possible to achieve able. |

England maintains on the ocean, and almost on all seas, lakes and rivers more than 25,000 merchant ships with the expanded test Active trade in shipbuilding and shipping connected, (so that it can export up to 60 million
 lion pounds of sterling – 300 million thalers

– ee

*) See below Judaism in historical perspective |
 considered § 20 d. Note.

Banko, or over 400 million thalers of the Reich money, – has been able to bring, and from what a significant part falls on Germany alone), which, literally speaking, are immeasurably countless set business in motion and activity).

45. It has here fine machine art ) almost

*) Just take shipbuilding or shipping, which with wood, iron, copper, canvas, hemp, Pech: and Cheers trade is connected, the fo much and some shipbuilding related trades – Shipbuilders, lumberjacks, ropemakers, small and

Grob Blacksmiths, Block Turners, Pump Makers &c. – into action without affecting the shipping itself look at, through the hundreds of thousands, through the what belongs to the needs of shipping, without to look at the state of trade, namely in An view of the counting shops, the commodity brokerage, exchange brokerage, bookkeeping, notary services –, Assurance, Bodmerei, Discount, Dispatch &c. shops, where the large number of dinghies and insurers, workers and day laborers hear; without giving up every conceivable trade to see which through active trade and ship journey with its own products, fed without affecting the circulation of money, this Soul of the state power, which through countless, never to be calculated, limbs.

No wonder, when Gustav Wafa once fo important attention was paid to: what active shipping, and the founder of the same for Schwe

den was, and even then the Hanseatic cities to considerable disadvantage even more in consequence, but to his fatherland's incalculable advantage brought about. ,

) But this is also precisely why the dead machines

28

~
*

raised to the highest peak, produces all only imaginable art products, which makes it the largest part of the earth alone.

46. Now in all these things Jews take, except for exchange transactions, in which they were the English Bangquiers are far from being on their side, and except for retail, haggling and usury almost no part at all; so that Jews in England currently like a zero in the political creation. j

47. It was different under John, Heinrich III and Edward I as England in respect his trade and his commerce so deeply in the equal to other countries, and Judaism, implicitly because of the nature of how England once conducted his very limited trade, had so much more scope, which the living forces are completely paralyzed; so that Wealth and poverty there more than anywhere else in reversed circumstances.

It has been calculated that to what England Machines can process 20 million Human hands would be required.

First America, and all other countries too= If we progress in this, what will finally become of the humanity if the possibility of expulsion migrations gradually cease when the land= build less and less of a culture to be expanded if pharmacology, in its glorious Inventions progressed, millions of the earth in get white.

9

quality compared to the present
Time cannot endure any compilation. |

48. Judaism is also in our days there to be regarded as nothing. Deun, all lands find owned by Christian residents. The whole immense manufacturing and factory industry (the machinery) as well as the entire sea and world trade including all foreign possessions is there in the hands of the Christians, and the numerous reputable manufactories and factories brikftēdte are preferably only from these inhabited. |

49, And kick their Radical Nene against their own fellow believers, against their own State government fo illegally, what, would

of this class of people when they Collifion, I do not want to say about interventions, the Jews thought they had to file any complaint.

50. Furthermore, in England a far greater lesser play on the part of the Jews with state= papers; even less can they

*) A German must therefore be displeased when
Some of the enormous number of English papers

– and find that, even if Jews of the Lever of the English machine goods are, there Publicists about those excesses, so extremely illegal
the also were those who took part in it
men, with the harsh insulting name: Ruffiars, Germany will defend itself against the far from the rest of the Radical Reformers
use such a common expression.

– 4

30

be able to: form the courses there,
to steer and direct. Export, tipping, rocking and melting of better coin types is unequal less possible in a country where the coin

being, as there, on a very simple

foot is set, and where any incident
Mistake immediately noticed, and just as quickly

Even the export of raw

Silver or gold, the extremely strict
Because of customs laws, there is almost no way

be driven.

51. Nor is there any place for Judaism
In recent times it has become possible to influence
into the lower parliament, even less in the upper parliament, even less so in the state ministers, and the current regent
is a world away from them.

52. To all this, in addition to the relentlessly rigorous laws against banquerotés,

which in the case of fraudulent even more than thief=
steel; that England's customs regulations, combined with the Navigation Act,

such extremely strict and harsh regulations

hold: that, except raw materials of foreign countries, also absolutely nothing that relates to industry

may be imported, although England

on the other hand, all and every industrial goods

) See fifth section below.

31

other nations). Hence,
Here too, Judaism uses all means and ways completely cut off: foreign machinery goods on to all English markets, and through the hopeless peddling of the same very considerable
to withdraw large sums of money from the country.

53. But let us just take a look at one a single state of our fatherland, to which noble House of Oefstreich, in view of its inheritance countries, especially with regard to Bohemia;
also takes place there: that Judaism is by no means fe can be predicated on what is elsewhere (on Poland *) did not even look at it is perceived as being so threatening.

54. Not only is Bohemia an inland, away from all seas, lakes and navigable rivers, where only domestic trade and

*) In one of the above-mentioned English papers it says
written down in dry words: Germany is not suitable for industry. It must simply on agriculture. A directive that is particularly a moment in time when England opened its ports
had completely closed the import of grain.

) There too, the discontent has spread, albeit only in words, often and much, and just as loudly:
"To put an end to the usury business," it was said in a cry= ben of Warsaw not very long ago (corre=
fpondent No. 133, 1817) «To put a stop to it,

«Now the police are taking strict action against them. The :

«The number of Jews in the Kingdom of Poland is increasing «unbelievable. Farming is not their thing. Many «Small towns mostly consist entirely of Jews.»

0

}

32

Sales of the country's products are flat,
where the spirit of Judaism is not that Food for his main means of subsistence, trade,
than can be found elsewhere; but just as numerous loose as unfortunate experiences) caused end=
ly the so praiseworthy government of Mary Therfia, such a wisely thought-out decree
gen, abolishing various previous constraints=
laws, to establish those who could be in a position Judaism to set boundaries that previously so hopeless, accompanied by unfortunate consequences,
had been exceeded. Ä :
55. Your sublime, unforgettable son J o=

Joseph II., the happy consequences of this under eyes

having, walked in fine humane manner
fennungen even further; he lifted all the remaining Coercive laws, gave the Jews, under a
niger exception, the freedom to pursue trade,
to lease lands, as pieceworkers at the Wrz
mee to serve etc., but he not only confirmed

*) As for the many unrests that occurred there,
Regarding deportations etc., read Mr. Joh.
Fr. von Herrmann's History of the Israelites in Bohemia. From the earliest times to the Conclusions of the year 1813. Vienna and Prague 1819.
8. 118 pages.

A small but extremely valuable contribution
on the history of Judaism. Once more other men, such things are undertaken

have; finally, a general critical

History of Judaism can be expected.

33

some of his prescriptions never to be forgotten
mother, but added new strict rules to be observed, such as: sich über=
all, even those of birth and circumcision
books only in the local language
to have a specific gender name
ren; school facilities on a much better footing fet etc.

56. On this glorious path
Leopold II and the current ruler of the countries Austria continued. Franz II paid particular attention to this:
that not even the slightest difference in the Execution of the laws relating to Jews and Christians, as is perfectly right, on non? one White may take place.

With regard to newer and older earths concerning Judaism.

57. But to see what regulations were elected so that Judaism could serve the state will not be detrimental in any way, I want the most important points of the same.

58. The rabbis must be on domestic universities the most necessary sciences studied, so that their generally known raw Ignorance has no detrimental influence on the morality of the Jewish people. – Your Schools must be organized entirely in a Christian manner be directed and careful supervision should be maintained ten. – The birth, marriage and

3

34

Death registers are under the supervision of a Christian Pastor. – Circumcision and burial must be reported to the authorities. – Without Consent of the parents (under Joseph) and then only if the person being baptized has a relevant concept from baptism, no Jewish child should be Baptism is allowed. – The baptism follows openly lich happened. – The test of true spirit nitions, only the grandson of a baptized: ten Jews to eat and dignify get there.

59. Immigration of Jews is due to the strictly prohibited. The person getting married must indicate a branch of food, a fortune of 500 guilders in the capital (Prague); a foreign Jewish woman must pay 5000 guilders into Land, who as a foreign wholesaler wants to settle in the capital, must pay 20,000 Gulden to the fund. – Withdrawal money in the Austrian Prouinzen if 10 and abroad 20 percent).

.*) Can exemption from withholding tax be granted in respect of Jews become a general norm? A very important state issue.

How many examples are there that rural Jews from the lowest class of people turned to the trading cities of Germany,

there appeared as begging Jews; but with Haus-fieren, pawnbroking, usury made the beginning,

in the following period by means of trade

“ have acquired great wealth, and then with 35

60. Furthermore: under severe penalty in the house
fieren; written servants and shop assistants
hold, on Christian Sundays and holidays and boutiques to open, more than 6 percent interest
feen to take, forbidden.

61. Bonds, pledges,
which exceed the statutory interest rates must returned free of charge and delivered
– Forfeited pledges are to be found by the authorities to deposit. – Promissory notes must be issued by the debtor and two Christian witnesses
or with the authority for pre-recognition presented, the reason for the loan must be in expressed in the mortgage deed, and, under threat of the loss of the debt, there must be no Faust-pledge, nor a loan on lying Reasons are given in advance etc.

62. Comparing these regulations
those of the other states of Germany; so it follows
the same: that our glorious ancestors who had a high sense of commitment to their fatherland: that migrated, themselves through religious segregation,
alienated by indelible national prejudice
depend, on the fatherland, what the German prefers

their brought together, from the remaining one residents largely acquired wealth abroad
country, be it Holland, England or France,
have gone to live there less – blushing
to be able to. |

b | 36

weife fine can call it by calling it a found ownerless land, the possession of the

ben with no blood stained, snatching it from others=
Bend, and its climate through its tireless Diligence, praised by all nations, so to speak, completely changed; it also subsequently
often and much with property and blood in the bravest defended, saved; with unspeakable effort –
and countless costs, it grew more and more with many villages, towns, castles and cities populated with arts and sciences
beautified, and many and many monuments pious foundations *) listed therein, not ice
can take a completely equal share.

63. But what about Judaism here and There imposed coercive laws of the former, even

9 In one of the Jewish writings it appears that ches also to the number of increasingly leading Claims include: that Jews who study
dedicate, at universities also equal share
have to take part in the scholarships.

Our glorious ancestors have through the Greens=
dung so much and many pious foundations their Names immortalized, whose shadows we gratefully commemorate must honor. First, Jews may imitate this,

to enjoy equal rights in this regard.

'tft not right, it is written somewhere: that one takes away the bread from the children (the grandchildren).
First of all, they may also be for the benefit and benefit of the

Christians have erected many holy monuments,
so that rights and claims can be balanced
Or is the legacy of the fathers not the inheritance of the Children, which they have to share with strangers?

37

still partly concerns the later times; fo
may they, in many and many respects, become serious
teaching of Judaism, what it has before= what it had become, and how? and whether it is now for his own welfare
can and may proceed, are listed here.

64. Jews should do what our fatherland deserves
meets, only as chamberlains of the German emperors

who are also heirs of their assets. – They should not be located anywhere in settle in the once numerous imperial cities,
who absolutely forbade the admission of Jews
was. – Where they subsequently, apart from the Kaiserstadt, the stay was granted, should them at the border walls, in the suburbs etc.
Apartments and were allowed to
not enter the inner parts of the cities;
Men as well as women had to wear a badge
gen, it be a pointed or flat hat for them,
or a colored rag on the coat or skirt;
for which the hair in such and such a form and
not to wear it any other way.

65. For this they had a personal tax, a Protection =umpire money, moreover a higher tax obligation; were even higher Subjected to court taxes, enjoyed in general, unjustly, no uniform court
legal laws:

66. No one was allowed to own horses for riding serve; if they wanted to carry a sword, they had to it (still under Frederick the Great) at the right side, a rich Jew wanted drive with four; the horses should be

38

m. can be tensioned.
Forbidden contact with a Christian woman
Ih punished with burning at the stake. Criminal were executed under special customs Those sentenced to public works must ten even on their Sabbath perform such.
Diseases they had to be in the hospitals of Christians enjoy food prepared so great whatever their abomination might be before them.

68. Help from Christian midwives and nurses,
Jews were forbidden to practice medicine and surgery;
their own, later, from the medical profession
Qualified doctors and surgeons were only allowed practice with their fellow believers. .

69. The incolate was only allowed to be given to one son. During the lifetime of the father
the son, and even less the grandson, was allowed to marry.
(The groom must not be younger than 22 years and the bride must not be under 18 years old); only the One was allowed to marry; the other sons must

ten move away, the daughters flee the country to marry, to make wills and bequests, was partly forbidden, partly the rules subjected to.

70. On Sunday a number of Jews had to the Christian churches to hear the sermon to listen, whereby it is forbidden under severe penalty was not to chat during the sermon, or even – to fall asleep.

39

71. No Jew was allowed to fight against a Christian Priest, even against a Christian, witness, even from baptized Jews this could only from proven offspring.

72. A criminal led against a Jew a statement whose name and place of residence he did not knew; so all Jews of the place had to be brought to prison; and to the highly strange and ill-considered means perjury, which in all and every state cliff referred to in their regulations guard against which, however, no precautionary measure has been hit at all, heard: that Jews, here and there, in court on a pigs= skin standing, had to take the oath x.

73. Coercive laws of earlier times, it was said earlier. Some would have preferred to see: « Coercive laws of the rough, dark, bar bari-times. Coercive laws that can only be enforced by inhuman could have been dictated. |

74. But as long as the so difficult to solve Problem is not solved, namely: how much the Needs of different ages, according to the degree of development of all human abilities= ity, differs, and whether what is in unjust to some ages, even very unjust can be rightly regarded, also in any other Age is the same, and what degree of intellectual culture really claims to enlightenment can do; ftil then they are extremely ftable=

40

the terms with wide. u; caution and protection

to use.

75. I will come back to this below, |
since the many Jewish writings published so far fsteller just as reckless, immoral and offensive ding our ancestors and their princes everywhere
as fanatics, as barbarians, perhaps even as idiots
this year.

76. I say recklessly, since even among the cited compulsory laws Some still under the Government of the Germans, which will remain forever dear Maria Theresa and Frederick the Great existed, hence the mockery thrown at them
whose precious offspring fall behind.

77. But it is clear from the history of mankind= truth stands out: that the darkness of every time=
old times, how much it is beyond the previous times has gone out. And it is from our so-called enlightened age
ten that if after a few thousand years on the same is seen back, it may also be called;
how far one was back then in much and one= things back; how extremely dark it still looked in most people's minds at that time. Those forced laws, no matter how hateful they may appear to us,
went, the roughest of them excluded, at that time
from the inner feeling of need.

78. They, the Jews, in their former homeland math, as a nation we have one and a half thousand fend year in age ahead of the a nation,

41

In civil relations so much earlier practiced, always through their subsequent fates
slimmer, more rounded, yet more hardened,
even more hostile *) to non-Jewish people
den, what would they be, therefore, the former Ein= fold of a nation not yet worldly educated fen, if they at the beginning in all things the country's inhabitants are placed on equal footing
would have been.

79. A Jewish farmer, for example, would be Christian neighbors said: my field is you, and yours is more convenient for me. In terms of goodness are proven to be completely identical. Your field contains 750 rods long and 600 wide, mine is holds in width 25 feet less = 575, against but in length 25 feet = 775 more, hence also in this respect completely equal. And the neighbor will be 4375 square feet cheated.

80. Or is it not even in the latest times |

the simplicity of some of the lower classes

been extremely deceived. For the Mark, which I lend you, says a Jew to the Rabbi nism sucked usurer, you only pay 3 pennies weekly, and therefore this makes yearly=
81 $\frac{1}{2}$ percent. |

81. Or follow a whole book of the kind still existing frauds? |

*) See below the section: Judaism in moral point of view.

First section.

General overview of the past times
numerous published writings for Judaism, especially with regard to those written by Jewish authors

– have been written. – What spirit reigns in them
– by which highly immoral tone they express themselves=
kichen *) – which the legends presented therein
and some kinds that are related to those of their opponents
are in such a loud contradiction that almost no
a higher degree of contradiction may no longer be conceivable;
Contradictions even in old historical documents,

the entire contents of the yearbooks of the world
opposite find π .

1. From everything in the previous section
It is obvious that the Spirit of Judaism is only there judged, where it allows a freer we= sphere of influence, where it is, therefore, in all the above= relationships are mostly coe

can.

—

*) among all writings published in the 15 times
ten especially on the Jewish side, which the French lid in fine,

43

2. What precautions are also applicable to the person observe, which fate may have placed on a

a) « Marginal notes to an essay in the General Anz Germans' report on the Jews in Germany. »
Dresden 1815.

at first daring, far removed from all morality
Ton more than e have striven for, belong preferably:

b) Illumination of the Lord of ut chnei and many other merchants confirmed applications regarding
of the heap and so-called unjustified=
trade of the Jews from one person=
friend in the name of many peddlers. Munich 1819.

It is worth noting: how and in what way
White applications confirmed by the state authorities ge are illuminated there. Other men, and whose words are in the general arbitrary Tone of Jewish writers: « Bite poisonous snake=
gen» – «Wicked ones who arise; the wicked represent claims » 3c. and this in addition to such a wicked thing as peddling. Where= this indescribably great boldness, whence such impudence, which we will discuss further below in
You will find even worse examples in the text.

It is, by the way, not to be believed that,
as it is said, that illumination the following Ver=
faffer as author:

«Memorandum to the High Stäudever»

a collection of the Kingdom of Bavaria, the

«The Situation of the Israelites and their Civil eImprovement concerning, by Simon

5 Wolf. » Rosenfeld, 1819.

Furthermore: c) The Hep Heps in Franconia and elsewhere=

other places of n v. Da Teutonia 1819,

Uh

such a standpoint, "Don't let yourself be shown better" than if one were to read the writings of such men

A dark, dirty writing, whose legend an=
I could hardly undertake this now and then.

d) Attempt to organize the Israelis
ten in Germany, by LL Hellwitz, Magdeburg 1819.

e) For the Jews by Or. Ludwig Börne,
in the swing of time. 65th piece 1819.

) On the Persecution of Jews in German= land, from Demf. October 1819.

g) Jews Again, by Dr. Wolf, Berlin 1819.

A complete side piece to the vofifc
Writing. That again on the title should mean so much mean: Another word about Jews. A

Backdoor to satisfy those who
to tease others, to attract buyers in general,
which probably only a Jewish writer could enter likes

h) Illuminating the voice of the people about the Jews

den, by Philalethes, Lower Saxony, 1819.

Probably a disguised Jew. Impossible
'te a Christian in the tone of the Frañnckel, the v.
Voß, Wolf, Börne, Hellwitz write, and in which unkind sayings echo and can be copied; so much is the whole thing made up of mere insults put together.

Among all these writings, only that of esteemed Mr. Friedländer an expression take:

i) on the improvement of the Sfraelites

in the Kingdom of Poland, by David Fried= countries. Berlin 1819.

45

which is still far from Judaism less than a highest regard have.

fuch as such from the following writing of the Lord
Professor Lips in Erlangen already understands

k) Heber the future position of the Jews
in the German federal states, Erlangen 1819.

For even the, by the way, worth reading, writing
Mr. Cohen

D) Historical=critical presentation of the law
Christian service of God by the elders times up to our days, Leipzig 1819.

has also not escaped very severe failures
can hold. |

In addition to a large number of essays in flight= writings, where also from the Jewish side so many fati=

ric attacks, caustic remarks occur,
is among others the following writing in the previous Year published:

m) Brief characteristics of the Sfraelites, and their appreciation for Freemasonry, by JL Albanus. Leipzig 1818.

A character of a few Jewish families,
with whom the author had contact,
pulled. /

Is the majority of the above writings their immoral
ual presentation even more than their
to rightly criticize because of its groundless content;
fo it is, on the other hand, unfortunately, too true that a
This procedure is also sometimes accompanied by Christian Page happened as if this should be for the employees
ung so extremely adverse object to the hin= and

\

46

3. These include the above-mentioned note cited paper by Professor Lips in Erlangen. This, by the way, esteemed Man looks at Jews as individuals,
those of small country towns (Fürth, Schwabach)
panting under a heavy burden, tired from the journey,
laboriously searching for their bread, come to Erlangen,
to earn some money through retail trade.

Truly! He must not be a human being, the Jew denthum everywhere preserved, and not the lot wanted to try to alleviate the suffering of such fellow human beings.

4. What adverse counter=distortion would have to but arise when another, although Judaism
in the big world, a number of decades ago=
by having under eyes, instead of all the parts of this= holding together, only the prominent

the turmoil of the heart, the confusion of ideas, the disfigurement
ments of the truth lying in the compressed middle to be given up entirely.

Only with the greatest reluctance will anyone to whichever party he may belong, the following
read the following recently published text:

"In) Judenfspiegel, by Hartwig von Hundt Radowsky, Würzburg 1819.

Even the one under the name Weiß em Becker
published writing:

o) The Christians and the Jews, or Judgement of reason about life, poetry and of the Jews, Frankfurth a. Mayn 1819.

would have been written with unequal au aie

the follen.

47

most stinging part under eyes, only that judging by Judaism, and the following Dar=
position of the same.

5. There is a poor woman with a poor house=
The hut provided for the Jew's dwelling,
Here he owns villas, palaces with every imaginable
adorned with splendor, even with stages
feen *); there the Jew wanders in ragged clothes, food worries on the face, here
He drives in shiny equipages, his face still there more brilliant of well-being, along; there
the Jew with effort and diligence hardly to fine year= get a reasonable living, here, (already in the seat of several million, it will be possible for him to a single trading day through in-depth trading carry 100,000 thalers without any effort or exertion to earn; there the Jew can hardly earn a save tens of Heller annually, here
he earned 50 to 70,000 francs in a single evening.
ken to waste; there the Jew walks laboriously
his path on military roads, even more arduous Seeking bread, here the Jew himself operates in the City in comfortable carriage lease enter= exchange business, quickly from one house to others hurrying; there the Jew shows himself friendly,

seeking, undemanding, here with the greatest Ueß :
bermuth, with the most unbridled N ; NEN

4) One sees this and everything as a fiction.

\ AWAY

as contempt for every poor Christian looking down; there stands the Jew with his bread= acquisition from the Christian, here he intervenes in the food branches of the first two, especially the middle class (the lowest of the very important
the reasons immediately, which, if possible,
one day helots will have to be handed over) to a highly threatening manner; there the Jew is on his own,
on dealing with his Mosaic brothers
limited, here he pushes himself into all the gatherings
youth of the Christians, cheeky, presumptuous, behaving with unparalleled arrogance, as fshould the already aroused displeasure of others
be deliberately inflamed rc.

6. Such a representation would not be Judaism, would at least show where the spirit of Judaism can mislead people.
– For what is left of civil society in Generally speaking, the same applies to Judaism, it would be used by every sect that fowering to become dominant, apply. N
7. Some, for example, do not know how to explain it:
as with the immense world trade Eng=ß
country, with whose exuberant trade
balance sheet, which annually adds wealth to wealth accumulates, as it may still be possible to Complaints about the so bitter, despairing
to lead to increasing poverty.–

8. Every civil society of every nation
but makes the general experience of two truths=

– –
r

observations: that wealth and poverty are increasing in number in progressive course; but that Reichthum and poverty in inverse proportion. The higher the wealth rises, the deeper sinks the poverty down). The more magnificent palaces are performed, the more miserably they crawl never three huts in the earth. f

9. The same applies to indenture. It would therefore be more than ridiculous, under the above highest one-sided view of wanting to say: that Jews (even if Judaism) where they have a freer sphere of influence where they can demonstrate their national character, (and what history has to offer in them) their religious concepts, their moral thinking way of doing business, their trading maxims, their mercantile Jewish community spirit etc. can develop through common in terms of their total number to very large to attain riches.

10. But it is not enough that those men

the extent of the confusion of ideas, their highest limited view, so expand immensely,

) But it does not follow from this that if by time If wealth suddenly declines, poverty increases which raises. The lower class of people is at some Needs have become too accustomed to which they cannot break free; the number of those who who have lived off the rich until then, except for bread; the wealthy want many things, 3. B. high n from the better times > tehalten etc. N

4

50

increase, not enough that they are also the Jewish give the party such a great boost, all on them as the sole legal men which the matter alone only with Knowing how to judge truth and justice when they also suffer the disadvantage: that even the

filmost writings are based on their statements
fin; fin fact, they fail in this,
if they even, despite all ignorance of the matter,
about the future position of the Jews in the Guns
states have a decisive say
to be able to think, since even here there is no general
my standard adopted for all of Germany
can be.

11. But that, besides other men, the have dealt with this subject, Mr.
Lips do not think as if I for his other knowledge and insights do not receive the respect they deserve
fo I request very fere: just the following questions,
before reading this work for
to want to answer, namely:

a, From which numerous and highly Judaism draws its rich sources tower?

Their not even complete answer
feven the following deviate from all truth=
the sentence of Jewish writers into nothingness
lig rejects, namely: |
That the Jews only owe their activity,
their activity, their diligence with authority

51

Thriftiness combined with their advancement which, even Jewish writing=
fetter with laziness, negligence,
laziness and wastefulness of Christians
into complete opposition).

) One of the above-mentioned authors, Wolf,
has gone so far in this that he has a very worthy Image of negligence, debauchery and debauchery waste among the Christians, for which he chosen one of the worst scoundrels; but very fly reminded: that the one he made Description probably no longer quite on the against:
waiting time might be appropriate! –

What commentary do these words contain,
in order to point out Jewish treachery?

His reasoning if; .

Since now no laziness and inertia
of the Christians is to be proven; one
add that the most laborious, arduous work
work rests solely on the shoulders of Christians;

but since Judaism nevertheless led to great wealth
men have reached; N

for must certainly and certainly more than Laziness and indolence found their way among Christians have that.

His faithful friend behaves the same way among all others Assistant Mr. v. Woß, after he also, in order to to access the sources of Jewish wealth, for much of the activity and thrift of the Jews and thereby enraged the Christians recommended: «the Jewish activity has long since
to have to imitate » he gives in again:
«The rich among the Jews certainly show themselves
not as the most frugal of their nation. » f

But in order to make every senseless pretense
To be able to do this, Judaism alone should be transferred 52

b. Furthermore: where does the total impossibility of the Scriptures with regard to the prices of goods, especially of foreign machinery goods with the Jews to be able to keep up with the competition?

To reveal the equally ignorant and hidden intention throw of Jewish writers completely left to fools
men: that Christians also with few pro= cent, and through frugal living their should try to make a living from it.

c. Furthermore: can and is the legislation ever take measures, and which ones?: that the Jewish usury, this hopeless means of survival
Jewish wealth, completely ahead
be bent?

And since in all Jewish writings with very less exception the sentence occurs: that they,

the Christians alone and themselves have been, and
nor are those who, for so many unfair reasons,

gen, contributed so much to the rise of the Jews=
have borne and contribute; so may men, who are so far away from the big world (even if you find teachers of political science,
which in no way in places and from writings
can be studied, where the great final series

| Logic to write. Harshly said! But it is Others might have succeeded better: everywhere master of the Discontent with all falsifications, distortions, Disfigurements of every truth, with the muthwil= accompanied by the most arduous taps, to be and to remain ben, I don't know. a

\

53

the extended chain of civil society,

world trade, is completely missing) and yet about Judaism want to have a decisive say, without respected the extensive commercial activities of this are the primary means of earning a living, including the following Answer question:

d. How is it conceivable if one considers the general has a discontent under his eyes: like England before= plus Germany's industry and trade expresses that German merchants instead of German
to load ships of their compatriots, yet here
and choose English, even where not even Sea danger from the Barbary pirates, and other seas= robbers are to be feared, and by which they opposition considerable advance to trade profit all the more, as soon as one active shipping in its entirety
has under eyes.

12. What can one still do if one knows it?
wise teachers of small rural towns answered
ten? He will, as with Judaism, em poŕre n=
the lack of conscience, perhaps even betrayal of the father=
land in it, and yet the thing goes, ice

according to a general norm that is applicable throughout Nature reigns), as just as anything
what in the world. |

*) Namely: that from a gained power new Forces emerge from themselves; just as the one without makes the other one produced. What therefore rises

54,

13. German shipping is gradually through a very large series of events
been so paralyzed that there was no way out for much and some cases more remained. Not enough that England's flag is on all seas, Lakes, streams and rivers blow untouched;

is, rises ever higher up to its meridian.
What is sinking, sinks unless circumstances intervene
reach down to the bottomless ground.

But nowhere is this general norm mentioned in encountered on a larger scale than would have been the case in the field
civic, moral world,
because here, in addition to the natural course, there are also peculiarities profit, private interests, passions as contributing Causes intervene. In itself, therefore, the Opposition push it so far that you from the an-
the side of itself promotes the rise to power which must be acknowledged and conceded.

A norm, by the way, by which numer-
loose phenomena, under observation of their axiom, find their explanation. Take Martial's Sentence: » The poor alone find themselves poor, » which,
according to that norm, can be generalized,
one likes the intellectual, or the moral life, or the civic or political world before their eyes. The virtuous are only virtuous; only learned, only learned.

For knowledge comes from knowledge.
The increased intellectual power finds its way into

each new object to be viewed always less Difficulty. In general: like active forces increase, decrease in the same proportion relative while the passive ones. A norm that refers to a general axiom of the theory of causality and immovably founded.

j 55

Not enough that England's ship crew, from child practiced from the beginning, the highest possible skill with bolder. Fearlessness connected, a garment² of the kind that English ships with 1/, weener people, whose number is also still more from apprentices than from experienced sailors exists; but England has gradually all Lakes, rivers, in terms of their bays, their shoals, its sandbanks, its cliffs, the Deviation of the magnetic needle, the height the floods of the rivers etc. etc. recorded exactly, has such detailed maps and tabular books designed about it, which is in the hands of all of its sailors, so that English ships even in the most adverse winds from the ports leave if German ships that are with them immediately ready to sail, still lying in the harbors, often even when English ships were already have long since reached the sea; so that this almost have sometimes already reached their destination, if they hardly went to sea, and often to another time, and at another weather will probably flow back into the rivers * have to return. .

14. How soon all this comes to pass
Consideration for the practical merchant, both in terms of time when goods are delivered after the market, as well as in terms of higher and lower levels of freight charges. Here²
But there is also the fact that English ships, full of

56

security of their flag, hardly the Pay half of the security premium;
comes before all and especially: that English Ships have back and forth freight, instead of German ships only on one voyage in general are limited, and the others lead in ballast must. And all this is followed by but finally: that trade policy in. Ans fee of shipping follows the same maxims, which can lead to monopolies in the trade in goods.

Are freight charges on English ships paid by artificial shipping, one hundred to two hundred percent cent lower; German ships of the Left to decay forever, and the fo important freight voyage that once gave Crowuwell the Dutch knew how to belittle, is in a channel into it.

15. But trade, if it creates competition foreign markets, for example if he sells grain, Flax ic. from Riga, Danzig, Archangel on Portugal's markets at competitive prices neither fatherland nor friend, nor enemy; this speaks the rigorous Ge= setting the trade on an unavoidable observable between complete withering away and the enjoyment of some small advantages, is therefore German shipping in some cases no escape away no more left.

16. And just like that, it is the same everywhere= if with Judaism. They, the Jews, have in the German trading cities almost the entire exchange business in hands, the Merchant must turn to them, must see how they force, direct and In their hands lie, furthermore, the low lowest prices of foreign machinery, and the Christian must, if we consider the bourgeois Take people as they are, and not as they according to imaginary theories, to them go. This is because of the lower prices, even more so that through the acquired traffic are much better and more plentifully assorted. Not One always comes from the other, but rather follows gen always follow the consequences, which the stupid sifting eye of mortals, in the present always hanging, unable to overlook, then only becomes frightened when the dangers have occurred. You, the Jews, cleverly calculated mercantile Common spirit, also knows a lower Market price alone only to provide, and the Christian must see that he has absolutely no competition must face ruin definitely look forward to it; however undeniable it may be on the other hand, is that they, the Christians, in many and many respects, from their own contributed to the rise of the Jews

57

have had to contribute, as soon as the different sufficient mentality of people, the pursuit of according to private profit and situation, ; circumstances ac. under eyes. |

58

17. Who answers the following two questions:

a. From which and how many parts consists of the so fomly thought-out, so funiquely clever calculated trade policy?

b. What would happen to world trade in Anse= hung of Germany, if Judaism, connected with trades, in the same fuch could put in; and how would it be so clever use calculated trade policy, and especially in which parts? What dangers would the insurance companies, the land management companies, etc.
ftehn?)

t

*) Is there any shop where the head is covered with fine
subordinates must stand on such a foot,
that both respect and love are to be instilled in them
is that he is a commanding master but also a warm friend

must be at the same time, so that the Cee does not have a horrible story arises through Tiranney, where=
of which not long ago an unfortunate example

had; so it is the business of a sailor.
Only a wooden wall between life and death
is not only for him, but also for the
His in every, even the smallest moment of time.
At every moment they must often have the highest Share the danger of life with him. If the
The pressure of circumstances dictates, until completely exhausted strength beyond themselves
firengen, work, tire, to, where possible, Le:
to save the ship and its cargo, and often, after everything that has happened, far beyond human powers efforts, they still start in the Bloom of their years women and children in widowhood=

and orphanhood.

Jewish ship speakers, however, if you

59

Whoever asks this question, no matter who he is,

can dissolve it properly, the highest price
be awarded any prize task.

18. I also dare to make some acquaintances in commercial studies; I would still like to do not attempt to answer them. ©

19. The most complete Illumination of Judaism is in a period
like when one or the other is must be handled. And only preferably Therefore, I think, the unprecedented
Explain boldness: as Jews do in their writings
can occur, as happened, in the secure Prerequisite without doubt: one will that pays attention to what happens here and there, go, in Regarding the equipment of the ship, the salary (miners, monthly allowance), the provisioner= regulation, the choice of the boatman, which, since the Seemann was introduced to a completely different type of treatment lives, can not always be the best, their intended advantages, because he is from Christ=

lich seamanship, which advantage
blinded by ignorance of the matter through greed,
often causes the greatest disadvantage, which then
but in a different way.
What does a Jew lose when he bets on ships, goods,
even on imaginary gain in Christian Assuradors has insured if the ship's crew
no more than ordinary courage, no zealous strength,
with the best will to save their own lives
life, in the most threatening dangers the ship
He can save them. He can decide about their downfall and laugh on top of that.

One and the other must not touch. Proof of this is: that even among others the request change from them: one should, instead of Jews= thum with fictitious accusations, specify by name: where Jews bribed guilty of trying to gain influence at courts have sought to obtain etc. knowing full well that a considerate writer does not find it easy will pass away.

20. Can the spirit of Judaism alone only there, under the above mentioned conditions) almost in be considered in every respect, where it through his actions and behavior he is observed how fully presents, is, on the other hand, complicated enough previously mentioned, Judaism by so many men= ners even less than highly one-sided and everywhere merely viewed from a passive state den; so let us already remember how statements about it differ widely from each other But there is also, not only the holy interest, this idol before which the humanity kneels down, but also the brutality of the Jewish people, which for a long time still had moral education, which both *) In the text of Jewish writers it says, their chosen ones= according to any language, rather than fictitious ones: lying, lying, malicious, hostile accusations.

) First section 5. 4.

*

united, using all means to achieve their to justify a fair cause, considered permissible ten; therefore, not only contradictions of the kind ftstanden, which hardly others go beyond, but also extend over everything and everything, whatever can be observed in Judaism.

21. For a better overview I will present the most important most propositions and opposites, but only these, here put at each other's side, which will be enough to to perceive them: how far Jewish writing establisher in this case, how much it finally had to become necessary: Judaism, in whatever way it may be viewed, to be subjected to rigorous scientific scrutiny throw. a3

As regards the evidence of the arguments presented here, opposites, it is more limited or unlimited= terweise, as far as is concerned; such come in the further below sections, where Judaism in intellectual, religious, moral etc. x fiht is assessed: ö

Sentences. Blessing sentences.

a. What only Sue Every adversity that denthum any night the first April liges prædicirt werden denthum gehåfig fich dare can, there is nothing wrong with that Judaism (there are the Christians, say the living among Christians=

ft can be made, is from the spirit of Judaism both originally and from the series of this entire history

62

\ sentences.

the Jewish writers ler) solely nage »

b. «Fat in all

Sciences have Ju=
the great, learned men lined up. »

c. They, the Jews,
find as the benefactors
of human nature
to look at it badly,
because of them alone the doctrine of a supreme world fens assumed.

«The Jewish Religion= region is the mighty ft pillar of social and bourgeois activity
ing. »

Against fase.
only hers gone before *).

art and reef creation
ten owe the Jew=
thum absolutely nothing.
It was at the same time impossible
lich that they give them any something to thank for.

They, the Jews, are,
because they are of the Mosaic
According to theocracy, the
of morality – certainly served no purpose
has, all fellow human beings
of the love which
the deity for all mortals, from=

closed, and then,

in all their actions and drift, such a deep
C

founded
be felt and the
all of humanity
of all conceivable times

been a scourge
fen. |

= This I, recently remembered, of a Fri Haupt moments of the present writing to the fo hef= attacks of Jewish writings on Christianity
to send them back to where they belong.
For too long, people have stood by and watched in silence: that Ju= denthum everywhere just in pa e nn ane

wants to be seen.

63

sentences.

d. You, the Jews,
stand on the ladder
ral dignity no
a level lower than anything else
so educated, polished
and cultured people » *).

e. «The Jews have not to participate in the (given)
mentioned) source,
from which their so-called
to create wealth
is. »

You owe a lot= more solely
her rise to her diligence, their activity,
busyness and strictness
household, which
with the properties
of Christians only too contrast.

counter-utility.

In Judaism lies
a much larger one promotion of immorality
than at any other fellow believers
ever took place.

Since the considerable financial situation of the Sus

the one where always big increasing poverty

merging of Christians, the Question fo f much in Anre brought: from which sources Ju denthum his wealth
we create; that is not surprising;
why Jewish writing
it seems so much occasionally let it be the activity of the youth
the one with the negligent

ity of Christians in Op position to set. But That is why this circumstance in the present case

the Scripture above all and excellently lit
been. See below Ju denthum in bürgerli

chern point of view.

*) These words belong to the esteemed gentleman

Friedländer.

Sake.

f. Wp Jews find,
and recorded
den, there is activity,
activity and life,
where they are not, there Everything stagnates, there is Je= of without strength, without activity, without life, everything dies. »

« And where Jews on= taken, and
through fanaticism, through unheard-of barbarism in the consequence repressed
been, then Everything and Everyone in Sto=
life,

activity and operation=

famity then heard
completely, and a fol=
people, such a Nation is hard for it been punished »).

Against fa tze.

Judaism) is with the giant parasite= plant (arbor mortiferus),
which has its branches in very far from trees to trees
drives, envelops, encircles
with the branches

bound by the branches,

crushed; so that they are dry posts between
fine green branches

ftände, and to them
must serve as a support.

*) Regarding location: because with every action

It is not only important to pay attention to this: whoever acts with
to whom it acts; but also the following two Causality conditions: where and when may should never be overlooked.

*E) Some Jewish writers themselves find this gone far: that they enjoyed the unfortunate situation

Niens, as if rejoicing at the former expulsion
vocation of the Jews from there.

It is, truly, not worth the effort to

to allow an investigation of the opposite. What

Sige.

g. « G8 is very funny=
ly only the question to make: whether Judaism
a state within a state
image? even more ridiculous
if from a political tendency

is. » 8

i.e. Jews not men=
grant fic rights
want means all deny humanity,
means to commit something,
what the Nemesis in the posterity punish severely becomes. "

opposites.

It's more than ridiculous

ly this question there

deliver where Jews=
thum almost entirely on itself
is itself limited, where Judaism itself, the

wrestling number because,

in the masses
liert. |
Judaism with Earnest
and dignity, with strict ger impartiality
shine means: The Human Rights

defending humanity,

means: States on the impending dangers=
white, which point to an un= avoidable way
mistakes would arise
den, means: fie before the strictest judgment of the
to preserve for posterity
search. | |

it England without Judaism? What is France
given the small number of Jews there?
By the way, it is obvious that where Ju= denthum in considerable numbers (the ratio of this in Spain = 1:9) in all and every bür= deeply intervened in the legal situation, where there are numerous maintain loose connections, and through a Lan=
of the reference at once set out from the same
will be that then just as after it happened

The remaining large number of less valid
 Contradictions will arise on the spot.
 But how far Jewish writers have gone beyond the contradictions already mentioned, it is made of raw material
 ity, or malicious intent, in their proceedings

usurpations, or other state changes,
 an incredible amount of disruption for the next episode must stand; it is too obvious: that much and some classes will feel it very noticeably,
 who are in such and such relationships with them,
 in such and such circumstances; fo
 It is true that such states have much and one=
 ches have to be taken into account in order to confusion to bring order back to things
 reu; but it is also completely settled and Certainly: that it depends only on the art of government dependent: to establish such a state administration
 meet: that the departure of the Jews is not only not produces harmful things, rather the state to a substantial, incalculable benefit could be.

How? if Spain fine Argumofa, Cam po=
 manes, Herrera, Larenga, Moncada, Navarete, Ulloa, ustariz, Wall, Saenz, Zavala, and fo many other nobles for the good of Spain highly concerned men would have listened. Fun
 No country would be without Jews, the most powerful state in whole of Europe, would be to an even greater extent climbed to where Charles V had brought it.
 Compare Memorias de la sociedad economica de Madrid; and Werflich. a critical overview of the Volker ferechte p. 277. So it is a gan: other historical cause as the basis, which the raw ignorance of Judaism either not knows, or may not know, or wants to know

*

gone, I want, as much as possible, in gedrng= briefly.

22. Studying the languages of foreign nations means: to get closer to their national character make known. There is a physical physiogno= monie, but there is also literary, a logo=

gnomony, which teaches how the personal Karak=

ter can be recognized from the scriptures?

23. Whether it is possible or not, enough, the main features of the Jewish character under have eyes; then read only Jewish writings, Everywhere it emerges from them: crudeness of the sit= ten, unbridled, religious national pride, unrestrained impudence, bitter hatred against non-Jews= thum, and the hostile attacks show how far from that described in the yearbooks of the world limitless thirst for revenge could be capable of going.

24. And what you do and what you do in the burgher= life, the same thing can be found in their Scriptures again: nowhere true, nowhere sincere= to act fairly and justly; to treat everything and everything To reach and secret routes seek, with fimperative boldness, I don't want to say with fhameless impudence, without any mercy, without any With a view to working everywhere 9.

*) What is mentioned in the section on the unbridled boldness of Jewish writers in dissemination destruction of Judaism also includes others with different intentions

68

25. For the following extremely spiteful chief ments are found in all Jewish e with unbe= significant exception.

of the Jews here. Particularly notable among the the same two writings of a certain Ascher:

a) «View of the future fate of the Christian»
thums » 1819. Leipzig 1819.

bp) «The German One» 1819. Leipzig 1819.

In the first episode, Ascher dares, a Jew – to Christianity boldly the future
to prophesy doom! –

Apart from such unprecedented impudence,
what might Jews think of the spirit of Christianity. This, remembering the

. bearing the ft of his immortal founder, dies
never, survive worlds! for if it were possible,
that there ever was a world religion; so the
That man's lecture to her alone as a basis serve.

What the latter just so hateful writing
We will come back to this below.

But not only writings are limited
Jews today. They are in the public eye even further. Some time ago, as is well known,
a public «appeal to the Leipzig Mepfiarans
ten, Israelite faith », the boldest in= halt; and in these days we have again, un=
ter Andern, an example of the kind before us,
where every consideration, every respect, every care for a made-up thing, fo gang
and is completely forgotten.

A rabbi named Wertheimer makes in public papers a call to people=
friends, whose introduction is a horrific Words contain: |

–

a. Apart from the chosen one, which is free from all moral Every distant sound is accompanied by her constant effort
ben, as if it were intentional, there: the procedure=

white others' false, dirty motives |
to foist.

«The distress and misery of my faith= fellow citizens in the Free City of Lübeck have reached the highest level. Help! quick Help is needed! The community is the whole Dissolution is near, and with its dissolution
30 to 40 unhappy families with old people,
Widows, orphans and helpless sick people to the Hu n=
gertode (1) given up.» a

What an unheard-of, indelible disgrace

would be directed against the Christian inhabitants of Lübeck forever, because it is human duty: every needy person, whether Jew, Turk or Gentile= willing to help if that is true – if not the honest, legal, humane Character of the same generally known and would be known, and if not too visible during the day

what secret, hidden intention lies with that unscrupulous hostility.

The Free City of Lübeck also holds itself in this fable and free, in respect of admission and Non-admission of Jews, after careful consideration
State reasons, which in the social contract with us
written down in indelible outlines,
to be able to act. |

Apart from the hidden intention,
that distress and cry of lamentation in public:
leaves, before the eyes of the world, with the Cry: Help! Help! raised, at the same time to a serve as a basis for fine speculation.

Apart from what has so far only been achieved through In= divisions of that city against the above-mentioned highest

70

On the substitution of foreign motifs. |
Sr Before I cite the numerous evidences,
how far, how very offensive they are, Jewish insulting request was claimed in detail

den, namely: far from being a necessary suffering, even less of such a need suffering situation, but rather Funds for the management of a certain public – process can be brought about; apart from this has the hired collection in a short time
the filled coffers of the Jews about 12,000 marks Banko brought in. Of these, according to W.
given subsequent reports a) c a part of the « Money donated to the poor of that community;
ab) another for support to other ashamed families; still c) a « other part to a loan fund for down=
KC come, now, according to outward appearance,
«wealthy members of the community,
«and finally d) the remaining part is for the future= «needs of these three classes
it has become. » –

From all this, by careful comparison
that request and this report
The following dilemma arises: either that Community in Lübeck by no means in the so extremely
in a desperate, extremely miserable state;
or one has committed an act of treachery against them:
so many parts and for such and such a purpose

to have applied.

Forty families would have starved to death
Price has been given, what could not be
can, until you have sacrificed everything, everything
has given up, and is, moreover, completely in debt; 300 marks would be for each such unfortunate family,
has not yet been sufficient.

1

– – – — – – . – – –s © ae – – – t

7¹

Writers who have gone through it, it is in man=
cher respect, about which ever further
widespread immoral practices: the actions |
of people every arbitrary motive under
to lay down a serious, strictly tested word

say.

27. It is true: just as everything and everyone in the history of humanity a progressive (Gang also observes the following:

The more skill, the more agility and

; cunning people acquired, their motives
' (motives for their actions) to hide, in the same relationship also took care, mis= trust and suspicion.

28. The studied hypocrisy, the hidden ftigen art of dissimulation, the secret machina=
tions, the hidden intentions, in short, everyone on evil-seeking vice of this kind the larva
to discover their secret paths, to their
To point out detours, no other than a
be a very useful and profitable undertaking.

20. But the dividing line between the two Untu=

ing, in whose crowded midst the

Virtue is difficult to describe, even more difficult to observe, even in certain cases not at all to indicate; fo belongs above all and especially right=
wise, conscientious acumen for judgment
development of the motifs by presenting in the most compressed
In the middle of unconsidered trust (the blind consent) and the suspicious patient
Suspicion must be kept under control.

72

30. But philosophy, the great
bene scifence, progress as far as it always wants, on the criteria of the motives it must still fail forever. Because motives find ftual ideas that are based on the material, on Words, writings, actions only through many and recognize some induction reasons

let's go. 4 '

31. For this reason, the power of thought is never limited to one motive is, however, limited. It can rather, one still has another at its side lie in such a way that an individual himself is not can be a judge every time: which motive works=

It would have been the dominant one, because it was too deep in hidden in the deepest folds of the human heart where no anatomical knife of the Pfys chology is no longer applicable. \

32. No wonder, therefore, if the above-mentioned – led to the development of intellectual powers ge, the substitution of the motives to an ever greater scourge for humanity; so that the further culture of the human race not paying enough attention to that most immoral procedure.

N 33. For it is incalculable what all comes from this terrible poisonous source. From it alone come the countless interpretations, accusations, hostilities and persecutions tions *) sprung from it alone comes the

There was no way to bring the holy founder to us

73

free play of the Tlemund, the slander of hers that every, even the most innocent act, without the slightest exception, to be denounced can be possible; from it alone is the fear bare word invention, each Call an action by any name to be able to (they are seized by rage, said that man as love of country the bosom the Germans) around the sentence: "Words govern the people » wherever possible to assert chen; from her alone could Sefuitifche Anmah= nitions to carry out the most wicked acts arise by assigning a motif to them= fhoves, whereby the conscience falready in advance be appeased; and just as from her alone the possibility is taken; every just to put the action in a false light, just as can also include any vicious act, e.g. open=

theft committed without a trace, by a foreign

four religion, this so innocent words, and precisely because of innocent actions, to the cross
First, his lecture had to contain motives be foisted. It had to be brought to the God-denier, atheist, a people's enemy
leaders; the so-called revolutionary sentiments
cherish, strive for the crown himself, and so alone
only the shameful cross for the righteous
be established. The sole means,
the poison cups were mixed, the holy shots were lit,
1 . from hell
but.

74

Motive excused, every crime covered, and
be deprived of just punishment.

34. Since this is so contrary to morality
ing procedure but particularly characterized by first is: that there is, as I said, no
only, no matter how pure, no matter how sincere and innocent act that is not a malicious motive could be attributed;
all legal men about the following sentence of Always been in agreement, namely:

As long as there is no apodictic certainty
hand is that a person from another movement
reason than from the one he has with the thing itself unanimously stated, acted; so long and may not legally impose any strange motif can be used as an underlay.

35. One can say even by one's own careful examination fung: what would finally become of the entire humanity, if all and every trust ceased altogether; if the subject even there fame, in every action fine before loved= to arouse suspicion and distrust of the rulers; or when a prince who had previously loved his people from ...
To be able to trust subjects more; would then
the complete dissolution of the social contract
not the inevitable "unavoidable consequence
be of it? ö ;

36. For this reason I know of no greater, more more desirable enemies of humanity, no

SR '

— pe Ne — — — — —ä — — — —
3 .

79

declared enemies of both the princes and the people
ker than the rejected, which always and everywhere
go out there: Mistrayen, suspicion and To arouse suspicion. Could one penetrate the soul
such people look into it, he would be frightened
more fearful than shrinking back from the greatest monster.
38. For, heartfelt, sincere, complete acceptance trust is the only strong, unbreakable bond,
which embraces prince and people forever.

Continuation of the proceedings of Jewish writers

30. And now let each one judge for himself about that, what is currently in the direction of the previous
by Jewish writers.

40. Not enough that they, the Jewish Writers, the general displeasure of the Peoples against Judaism only from Fana=
tism, only from innate hatred, from Envy, resentment, shame=, possessions and robbery=
seeks to deduce; not enough that she does that
The rise of Judaism alone is only their activity, their diligence, their thrift Household, which with the characteristics of the Chris ften fo powerfully contrast, appropriate; not ge= enough that they are against men who are against Jews=
thum led the word, in insults,
fo to say, exhausted, the soon Scrib=
ler, half-wit, phrase-maker, Ku=
ben= Prometheus, soon feather fighter,

7

— -y-y- and nn°— —
,

—

splinter judges, evil-minded people * rc. rc.

are mentioned by them; but they compose

the same by substituting motives, even

the lowest of all, and what more than anything
 lay, even revolutionary intentions
 which is partly direct, partly indirect)

They go even further, they serve fisch thereby – which is the second main moment
 their lectures

b. The just so reprehensible, as heaped Maxime, des divide et impera, as it were the Unwillingness to direct oneself towards others, from the
 to pick up one's own interests from the rubble of others
 can.

41. «See more the Cüdifche) nation, says Cohen), the more serious one is

*) The more annoying than: demagogues, blasphemers, People's seducers, mob souls rc. to ver fild. What? if a Luther saw that Christians are now being treated like this by Jews!

* Indirectly, by taking the blame that is due to the
 so many cities in Germany, and also highly illegal events that occurred in Austria

Mischief with all rights, everywhere in Be= point of contact with the anti-Jewish writings of the know how to bring it into shape that it is not a direct
 should be viewed as an attack. | |

* * In the above mentioned writing. Wins the Jewish people have something to do with it if it is everywhere
 a fraudulent name nation? Or there is, apart from peculiar national language and independent state, another Karak=

= 2.

77th minute

the industry tries to employ, the higher it rises,
unfortunately, hatred and envy. » |

42. « Instead of encouraging the Jews' spirit of reform, enliven, » he says, «seek the spring=
fighters to degrade us at every opportunity
by eliminating all the activities that no longer take place
fulfilling the guilt of individuals Blame it on everyone.»

43. « Don't pay any attention, » says a young man deficient writer, «passion for the voice=
literate writers, they want that old tone.
of hatred and persecution
men who come from their evil hearts,
want to once again end the scourge of intolerance swing).

44. Yes, one Voss even says: "Protestants my (except to fight against Judaism) the dispute
against the Papists had to start anew,
not bad air a new Thirty Years' War
to ignite. » –

45. Can and may such people even indecent words (papists!)
writing, the bitterness in the minds

teristic for the concept of nation? Or form for example, the Jews were a nation in the German North tion? One always sticks to the legal chen; so one will gladly give them every right

liche admittance.

) The author of the above (p. 68 under b) –
font. N

18

rain Finns? How big is the number of ka tho=

Ličian subjects, which the Prussian state in itself? How worthy of respect is the Catholic lish Germany to the Protestant

f side? Can anything be more reckless be thought of? and is it therefore possible to deny

how far the unbridled behavior of Jewish Writers have already gone, and what further
what can still be expected from them.

46. This is also where a witty joke comes in

in the same spirit of divide and conquer

wrote:)

«The whole Ifraelite religion was in the eyes of Christian theologians a heretical,
as it still does today the evangelical fatholifden if.» –

47. «The fight against the Jews, says Bør=ne,
and the dispute against the nobility ends
one and the same source, namely:

to fight a supposed aristocracy that exists in |

Monetary preferences and birth preferences are fol. v

48. And elsewhere He says: “since the producing power everywhere with the consuming
the  is in dispute; fo also had to be a ver=consequences for the Jews. »

*) See the above-cited text.

9 What a mocking attack on those who have the helm of the state in their hands

have. Can these, all, state officials regardless, merely as a consuming force,
and continue to be regarded as nothing?

~

79

49, And a wolf) has with dry words
ten written down: Not the Jew alone was
it, which one was hostile to, no! one was also dissatisfied with the government, hoped and

*) See the above-mentioned text.

) How? in all the many cities and towns
ters, where that extremely hateful uprising in and except Germany with more or less nonsense proceeded? namely: Baireuth, Bühl, Carlsruhe, Copenhagen, Danzig, Darmstadt=
fstadt, Düsseldorf, Frankfurth a. M., Fulda, Hamburg, Heidelberg, man=
heim, Niedergrambach, Nimpat, Oden=
fsee, Pforzheim, Simmerach, Saarge=
münd, Würzburg rx. 3c.

What are the legal ways and
Are Jews allowed to be so many peoples of our fatherland, even nations of foreign countries
to try it once, to dare to claim: with her government to be dissatisfied! :

But I find the machinations all too obvious=
nen, if Jews, the statements of so many fears fts of Germany: «that their subjects
in the machinations about which complaints are made elsewhere
led, took no part» fo gerne infi=
nuiren: that everywhere and everywhere=
dissatisfaction with the government,
and that their cause is so completely and
are one and the same.

If Mr. Cohen therefore speaks of the Be ffe= spirit of the Indians, which even hatred
and work against envy; so shines
the same certainly does not arise from a procedure:
a warning sign for improvement in a completely fictitious motif, and probably to turn any intention into malice.

80

persuaded fih that if it only really got there=
ter and drüber, quite colorful among each other,
it would get better. »

50. Elsewhere it is said by the same:
would have taken that nonsense as something quite serious
should and must consider (how? for example Executions? Does not every authority have the authority measures taken as quickly and forcefully as possible fen?) where a far more important Et=
what lies and lurks! »

51. Here also belongs what a Philaleth says: to

The ferment of the minds, the violence= recent activities do not testify to a degradation of the lower classes, but for a part of the higher, certain half

But what is most important to this unfortunate object
assisting with further investigations here and there,
ift: that even Christian writings out of ignorance,
out of rashness, or merely a rhetorical phrase, to criticize the Jews here and there
give a boost to their claims. |

A well-known publicist says somewhere:

5 «From Germany flew the spark of the Jew= hate in the capital of the Danish state! »

And yet the events there are completely different historical document as a basis! It
It is surprising that not here and there it is said: no less is a spark of the Jew=
hate from Germany to the Moroccan Reich flew there because there were similar rest occurred. N

81 educated, and morally neglected, who Direct and manipulate the mood of the people, »

Our unforgettable Li dh tens was therefore right
berg once spoke out against such seers in detail and bluntly
to prove: that Doctor Bahrdt at the earth=
The earthquake in Calabria was solely to blame.
A reminder that also refers to the scripture:
«the German Griftesariftocracy» is applicable,
which is not far from being in exact sequence bünd=
a correctly and truly presented: that the King's

Berger Philosopher in all evil machinations alone and only guilt for having a Jewish custom

the harder the blow, to where it should be

to be able to. |
But what drives the thinking class among the
taught; their reflection on scientific matters
objects to use? what drives them; life=
to sacrifice pleasure to reflection? which powerful Motive spurs them on to research,
thinking and reflecting to make so many sacrifices?
Is it perhaps a quest for wealth? Book trade does not honor scientific works, these must Honor him, give him the and the percentages Ge= winn alone can help. So it is burning, fiery love to the sciences? Act honestly and ft: that honor to take possession of this after death
mende Befitzgut, the fo secret powerful drive, the fo irresistible spur, the ravishing motive before
Above all, and especially, through tireless effort.

Now Jews may, there may be an Asher
ben: using variants, the learned class the
To want to rob the only one who alone has arts and sciences from time immemorial, among all peoples, among all nations to do so much good
thank you; what will finally come of the situation
a nation? What powerful influence has ben for the sciences in the welfare of the 6

é

82

52. Even a Cohen has such an attitude

handles guilty:

«The feather fighters, he says, will sooner or later, the people to take action against us.» N to give rise to riots! –

53. This could already be enough to to have pointed out: what kind of lawyer Ju= denthum to defend itself legally Voß and Hellwitz put Pro= testaments and Catholics, the Asher Ge= learned and unlearned, the born nobility= and citizenship, the Wolf, Cohen and Phi=

laleth rulers and ruled in Misftim=
mung.

54. Is divide and conquer already hateful,
fo the substitution is more rebellious, revo lu=
tional intentions even more so.
It shakes a person's morality to the core
the innermost, it makes him, no matter how innocent he whatever he may be, to the most wicked villain.

| 55. But where do Jews get the right to
to dare: the so unfortunate sown seed
of mistrust, suspicion, suspicion
in our fatherland to really blossom
If they want to do this, they should take responsibility for themselves.

Peoples? What depends above all and especially on their Honor, your reputation, your dignity before the eyes
other nations? – N

/

83

55. Of course, it would be an immensely great Triumph when you make the impossible possible
could do: to write about Christianity,
what they wanted; but that, on the other hand, due to their fear of light
to the pious, every political science research furvey), is subject to the strictest prohibition,
and will. |

*) State scientific investigation, the

all other reflections on Judaism on But this is precisely what the Jews avoid as a frightening image before your eyes. You know: which,
and how many complaints about suppressed trade
Germany, how much the industry German country has been paralyzed; the consequences of this have arisen, less in view of the unfortunate emigration, more in terms of mood
our so loyal, so honest and lawful nation.

Because if there is really a mischief, it is Scope larger than one might imagine; so it is Above all, and especially in times of poverty. The people busy themselves, the people have bread; they feed themselves

and his family; it is concerned about no political measures, even less about Be comments that are made about it. To him the People are considered to enjoy their property,

personal security, any form of government
equal, everything counts for him, as long as it is lucky lich feels: Himself, his wife, his children legally
to be able to feed, because then the government form praiseworthy, good and just.

But with all this, they, the Jews, know that fie especially the lever of foreign machine goods
find what you like: to engage in industry,
would like to call it, and therefore this is already enough,
every attempt: with the torch of criticism Judaism
to illuminate, to pursue with the utmost zeal.

|

84

56. But if a nation (also to these
In words, the Jews' behavior demands fo emphatically) throughout Europe, where revolutionary sentiments, if such exist in some heads should really take place, only after a few can grow roots towards the sides; so it is the German nation above all others.

57. Their noble national character, their high education, which the gruesome meaning of the word Revolution fully embraced, and the instruction does not need the experiences of others, protect them from that volcano of all conceivable atrocities more than any other nation. Germany is and woe betide if a public teacher makes a true and just judgment about Judaism; for becomes the same what is called the strictest, the finest The most important duty is to teach, to warn, to to improve, to warn is the highest crime Is that true, "the Jews then ask, "with the spirit and the sentiments of your religion of Love together? » However, love is, among many things, praiseworthy= gen predicates, long-suffering, and friendly. But like any other virtue, it lies in the middle two equally common vices. She can and must not go beyond self-preservation; has, according to human and divine laws, to fight every injustice with all our strength where an over-patient love that betrays itself, to your family, to the prince, people and fatherland, bring with them their own intentional destruction, and the opponents, according to their wishes, a deliberate would allow free play, |

9

85

a federal state with a different government= forms, different religious parties, modes enacted legislation where the state interest

of all individuals in a cast of state interest of the whole.

58. From this comes such a change? self-opposing view of things, such a great difference in pronunciation, a such noticeable deviation of the claims, feven such a beneficial friction of the minds,

that no concentration point is so easy possible and conceivable.

59. We have a very memorable example,

I must be mistaken, of this in the writing of the Mr. Gorres. Suppose that thousands really should have noticed what is in it in such a written in a confused language; they all resigned at once; so soon there appeared the extremely reprehensible sentence is stated: «that the Church is independent of the state»

gig fein müffe," from which the corollary

would emerge: that the high clergy would the prince had only to give conditional obedience.

60. The entire Protestant German country, supported by most of the fame venerable Catholic Fatherland of, rejects, among the most important, most compelling

Staatsgrunden that sentence as one of the holy loosest that can ever be thought of. Yes, not in itself, but the human, inevitable weaknesses through which a theocratic hierarchy, or, what is one, a here archaic theocracy can never be that and can become what it could be, what it would like to be, and should be!

*

86

61. And this very phenomenon, a to have brought back the old sentence,

perhaps at the same time the anchorage
why this paper carries the torch of criticism
so close to a hierarchy, namely the
to maintain the Mosaic theocracy,
men has.

62. Those main moments already mentioned Jewish writers could, as mentioned above leads, already enough to perceive: which Spirit reigns in them. But it is necessary, to get to know him even better.

63. For as the third, fvery important head= moment, occurs in Jewish writings:

c. Judaism merely from a passive spirit
point of view, thus outside of all historical context context outside all circumstances of the fociable life, and thereby almost all and every guilt on non-Jewishness, and what concerning the Jews living among the Christians, to roll on Christianity, and thereby especially
the latter make the hardest attacks
A company that does not limited to one or the other, but extends to all and every part.

87

64. For, as far as the moral Attitude of non-Jews towards Sudentum,
Jewish writers do not know enough about Hatred of Jews, even from innate Jews hatred, contempt for Jews and hostility towards Jews=
fciency, and yet they are precisely unique and exclusive, which all peoples
all nations 5 une
have forced themselves upon us!

65. Are we Germans in the Study of higher sciences, through which Germany has acquired such a great name,
declined; or is it just an era that has passed?

>

) Unborn! Is it a cliché or true?

tion? In the former case it is malice, in the latter crude Ignorance. Can the mind know something (concepts, Ideas) are innate, which only through experience, through education, through upbringing in the same must be worn? Only the principle the basic situation of all unchanging natural laws, so like all and every thing, without exception, also its power of thought a priori, is the same alone only innate, inherent *). Every concept without fup, is only success, both of the power of thought (of subject), as of what is given to it (the object), hence Fine's only concept can be the power of thought (the understanding) belong a priori to it, are innate to it.

*) A sentence that not only describes the disputes between the Aristotelians and Plato is fic schools; but on the only a transdental philosophy can be based. Any further discussion here is entirely inappropriate places would stand.

88

which draw attention to much and some other objects that have been brought to the circumstances of the time? Otherwise one would like almost believe that the sciences keep their fashion journal.; or is the reason, what the following indicates, elwa even deeper? Be that as it may, it is difficult to explain, how to describe that nonsense: Judaism is only a passive points of view, so long was able to watch in patient silence.

66. But it is not up to the historian just whether: from cause to cause in an unforeseeable manner row to go up to the source, where possible the root cause, the original approach, to come, as consequences always repeat this and those forces to be applied become means, to produce new successes; so that causes of causes, but he must, what is important ger is to precisely identify the active and puffive forces against each other; must what the felt tätige moral world, to which the latter Pay particular attention to what reaction Those who are encouraged, encouraged, even forced have to do what you want to do

citing the possible causes, judge them properly, and about the value and worthlessness of things to be able to divorce.

67. Everyone should therefore check for themselves where the Mo-fai theocracy continues to be examined: whether from the contempt which Judaism thrown at non-Jewish people so harshly and burdensomely, anything other than counter-contempt, and through whose fault, could have arisen, which Judaism from all conceivable times who has fed, promoted and maintained himself.

1

89

68. Is now already in every discussion of this, what success is, more than just looking at it incorrectly to the active, or just to the passive to attach forces, as much as in discussions, which has such an incredibly deep impact on history fet *), where a countless interaction took place.

) How much of the like, namely such a part-white discussion, the author of the present Scripture must be highly contrary to him, he cannot other way than: in remembrance of that about three decades ago, the most important axiom in the field of philosophy is set up, namely: . | that every action without the slightest taking, on a double, on a active and passive reasons; from which it follows that every Er-consequence can be explained from the same, hence that every Discussion of a simple success a completely pay equal attention to both parts must; all the more so where successes from countless active and passive forces gone, and therefore on the conditions at the, compared with each other and against each other, not exactly can be respected enough. Ä The axiom I first put forward is, besides-said, already in itself of the utmost importance-ity; even more one bie with the nitive and paffi-

Furthermore, it concerns the previous legal Regulations on Judaism in civil Life, so say Jewish writers: Only F az
natifm and a gray-famous hard-hearted pose Litik could impose such inhuman,
barbaric shackles. » |

70. If it concerns usury, then non-Jewishness is solely to blame «They, the Christians, it is said, have the Jews were absolutely compelled to practice usury,
all the more so, since they are in such uncertain possession (where does this uncertain possession come from?) *) of their numerous causalities to be observed conditions, as well as in respect of all observing cautions; without mentioning the large number of conclusions, without looking at the immeasurable area where that action is everywhere and

the torch is carried everywhere.

*) I want to say a word of the future to the Jews:
So far, little attention has been paid to the history of Jewish people are concerned; this makes a very great lacks in the literature of all cultured nations
But it is they, the Jews, who currently, through their rash outbursts, through the shameful denial of all historical facts,
the attention is directed entirely to it have. The more the critical attitude traitor of the Jewish people, so far by no one undertaken, processed-; the more Jews should think seriously about their improvement,
so that what is to come, even from the most faithful historians may be concerned, and inevitably addressed, their current Condition absolutely, and in no way.

property, and it was easy to commit robbery
could become part of the government itself.

71. Does it concern, furthermore, that in Judaism never extinguished sense of honor, so will this

fo completely rolled on non-Jewishness. «The deep Contempt, it is said, the fhameful treatment= kind which Christians have nurtured against Jews and under= taken, extinguished, naturally, in themselves
the last spark of love, » |

72. Is, furthermore, of the countless persecutions, and therefore all the more so from them
to make claims; so can

Jewish writers do not engage enough in declamatory

fic sentences occur, not enough, the front
as highly unjust barbarians and fanatics among Distortion of all historical truths
For too long, it is said, the Jews that of fanaticism, of barbaric politics
so cruel, so very oppressed, so hard and us
a most unfortunate people, persecuted for their guilt
fen, through diligence, integrity and
The wealth accumulated through thrift failed constantly on the cliffs of jealousy, the resentment, envy, possessions and Rau bfuch t. v

73. But there were persecutions, of which hateful motives, against Jews only committed by Christian peoples, only by individual written states; this would allow fuch, however, refers to a former hateful,

—

92
fanatical spirit and an equally outrageous injustice, which causes
also always indicated because of the persecutions;
But since the imposed on all peoples
Contempt, especially among Christians, memorable reasons), un
mine had to be mitigated, since even the Here=
archie often and much Judaism was protected= men ); since, moreover, those persecutions were not only
fo many in number, but also in all peoples and all nations without Exception occurred, it may be Persians,
Greeks, Romans, Eastern and Visigoths,
Arabs, Franks, or it may be Hungarians,

Bohemia, Spain, Portugal, Frank
empire, England and Germany
fe, so that the number of those mentioned in history led rulers is unpredictable, which partly very harsh regulations, partly expulsion from the country
gen, partly even more (which is to be kept silent (to pass over) imposed on Judaism;
therefore it is impossible and in no way merely

*) I will describe them in more detail below.
*) Jews were only allowed to join the former head of the entire Western Christendom and offer him one of their tern documents; he took them with the greatest reverence from their hands, and covered them with kisses. What a powerful influence

this has on the rest of the clergy:

93

fanatical spirit, mere barbaric brutality and Wildness of the spirits of the persecutions to
The reason for this is that the history
ly stated reasons for the same for just
to be regarded as true, as everything that is untrue,
what Jewish writers say against it.

74. In vain do Jews appeal to the sayings of one or another historiographer,
those who have been persecuted
Atrocities, no decisive judgment is given.
What was said above about historical discussion
past acts of violence have been said, especially here: Our moral feeling must be outraged by powerful measures; this fo
lively and powerful feeling must not be taken into account above all, do what is necessary for the violent means caused and produced
are. | | Ä

75. Moreover, history has indeed traced ments, expulsions, confiscation of goods stored, and the possible cause of this generally put forward; but by no means what it was also impossible for her to meet everyone, even causes C that have continued through centuries, such as
e.g. in Spain) from which ends
ly those who have emerged, themselves emerge
had to.

In general, as soon as it appears in the yearbooks of the World depends on specifying: from which Causes that and the successes emerged, so is, said again, the history of that part of the total knowledge, which is incomplete cannot be surpassed by anyone else.

94

All mistakes and errors in the remaining numerous objects of knowledge do not make the thousandth part of the mistakes and errors, that occur in history, and certainly were inevitable), so that every religious and political sect, rejecting all historical examination fend, the most arbitrary dogmas from the legends of prehistoric times.

76. 'And even if Jewish writers fo much their anger against the crusaders in Speeches and writings, a rage which through a requiem mass for those who fell at that time unfortunate people have tried to immortalize; the ftrator is nevertheless, fhowever difficult it may be for him also everywhere may become, in the position, in the circumstances, to the conditions of earlier times

*) Will also remain, because what were the former times, in terms of more mature knowledge, in comparison with the later, when one reads the story, the so much critical of historical untruths to work on, ie on the context of the original things and consequences, started? and yet »Who could, for example, in recent times, ask the question answer: how could N. become what he was he has become? How poor must the world be one day? ftichtfschreiber who incompletely handed down to him Reading facts together to create an even more meager re= to draw a result from it. oo.

a

05

already as a human being in that of religious Concepts enthusiastically moved people still no monsters, no wild beasts of prey, no Cannibals find, as Jews do, everywhere
know how to do it!

77. A hierarchical, misunderstood policy had taught them the unfortunate idea: the holy grave from enemies of their religion,
and at the place where the founder of their religion
suffered such an undeserved, shameful death,
to kneel down, pray and – indulgence of all
to preserve their transgressions.

78. Now I ask everyone before free-thinking man, it was a wonder if the foextremely terrible, but, through the Christians
ft so fmuch mitigated contempt, flum=
ming idea: Jews have your God
crucified! here and there suddenly before the soul entered, clouded mind and spirit, and to every possible act! –

79. I can therefore imagine the Crusade= learn to remember some individuals who also do not could harm the animal, and yet
were able to communicate with so-called pious
hearts to rage against Jews. |

80. Moreover, have the crusaders,
these madmen, driven to act against Jews alone
They did not know about themselves, about their Have you irresponsibly committed a crime against your own person? Is it not worldly knowledge that, besides the sword, numerous=

96

Iofe suffering, tribulation, sorrow and misery
more than six million people were killed,
that even rulers of the first princely houses
Europens have lost their lives in the process 2 –

81. Of course, even then it would have been Jews would have been a very pleasing thing,
if they provide undisturbed spectators,
laugh heartily at the foolishness of other people
and from their madness, from their suffering and Worrying about having riches on top of that ten can obtain.

82. Those were the days,
their offspring often and a lot among themselves
have brought the times of brave, brave far away Crusaders! When may such times ever come again
come! |

83. This is hard, one will say. It is true!
But do Jews and their defenders also have a full right, written princes and peoples, Cum to tap into Christianity everywhere) fie, the Ancestors of present descendants only as Monsters of the most hideous kind, only as sinners, as cannibals everywhere? May they know how to stay within the official limits,
may they use a language like the noble

*) Quiet spectators could not have seen them Because their hatred against the Crusaders began fstill with the idea: that their former conquered land from the hands of one Unglån=
big should fall into the others.

97 |

Friedländer presented to them as an example;
who, with many other men from the number of Jews the current nonsense of Jewish writing=
fsteller certainly looks at it with the greatest displeasure,
fo one will gladly do a thousand hateful things with Remain silent. However, this is not said as if one wanted to lead them away from the path of accusations, insults, untruths
withdraw warningly, they may at least
to advance boldly and daringly on the same,
it will increasingly serve to carry the torch of Criticism even in the most secret corners of Judaism, so that it can also the sentence will one day be proven: Truth owes much more to her enemies than she ever owes to her friends. |

84. And it is just as outrageous,
the procedures for deportation
Confiscations simply as a committed against them Theft, as a robbery committed against explain, and here too Judaism only from a passive point of view.
However, in history there are numerous Examples include: that governments are forced to pay debts bonds, mortgage bonds, arrears of interest for the debts of the Jews were completely canceled;

that even when princes were expelled from their country
have confiscated goods; is that already really an obvious robbery, a real thief= stolen? Or was their wealth

oo 7

98

not by the most outrageous, unlawful acts pressures, not through the most hideous usury
overgrown by the country's inhabitants, these me=
been stolen and robbed? Or have States, governments have absolutely no right
To use reprisals? How does one proceed even Rabbinical Dogmatics, in An= sight of the golden coins borrowed from the Egyptians and silver vessels? What justification= reason is used by the same for an action on= which are difficult to justify pte

85. The less important moments that Jewish writings are everywhere, find the following gender:

a. Nowhere is there a demonstrative discussion of that which in turn is the opposition
interpretation would definitely have to be left to one side.

p. Causes of this and that things to
to lay down principles that are removed from all .
find. N

e. Things that cannot be refuted 1 ,
to reject with the power statement: "that they

ft has long been refuted,» without mentioning,
still be able to ask, by whom and how?

d. Everywhere, therefore, we must resort to mere induction= reasons which, upon due examination, prove just the opposite, and moreover the

f

99

the same excuses of the kind
to put things that cannot be ignored:
whether they really serve for defense, or should no longer be seen as a laughing stock.

86. Where fraud is mentioned, for example,
Voß: As a rule, the Christian is careful to be cheated by a Jew; and as if he is then a fool!» – :

87. Is fraud in goods and Inexperience exercised through outwitting,
not a double crime?

88. What about fraud, bribery
when is concerned, «act in it,» says the same,
in respect of the First Stars, «only according to the Holy Ignatius of Loyola rules;

and with regard to the latter, the naïf
liche in a fine arbitrary tone: “Bribe them,
(the Jews) for are two rogues in the act necessary. One who bribes, and one who allows himself to be bribed. »

89. Not proverbs, but their axiom;
on which they are based are generally applicable.
However, the fence is as good as the thief.
But in the case of bribes, it is conceivable that Jews
to see a man in such a predicament,
that he can only be satisfied with the money offered to him
to save is able; but this would be his departure
do not deviate from the path of righteousness
in something excuse; but he can at the same time that the one that is to be achieved as a completely

100 Ä

innocent cause to support
it only requires his cooperation; therefore, the Attitude of a person to be bribed the more free from rogue, the less he is at the expense
Others, in his opinion, allow themselves to be bribed;
that the above general statement is even more
as having a highly immoral character.

90. «The usury of the Jews,» he says, «is addressed to scoundrels and swindlers who

because of their senseless undertakings in Vere opportunity, practiced. »

How far these words are from everything that true, stand away, will be further down there occur where Judaism is present in business life
is sought.

e. Furthermore: in the historical with the
to act with the greatest disloyalty, relying on the History itself confidently and boldly called. Things
therefore to claim the opposite of which the years=
books of the world speaking and true, and Everything and anything that history has ever has cited negative aspects of Judaism, not only for untruths, but for courage
willing to help
clarify. |

91. «The Israelites were always, for
the history, the governments under which fhe lived, faithfully devoted with body and soul,
even when heavy weights were pressing on them.»
Wolf.

101

92. Would history not be entirely
The opposite can be shown in many examples,
would be the impossibility of the truth of the above
expression already in the spirit of Judaism lie themselves.

93. But history teaches us, how often and how much the Jews fought against the Roman Re=
government an uprising with the most hideous results murders, dared; they, the Ge= layer represents the large number of fraudsters)
who have appeared as Messiahs, their descended directly from David), whose fthe Jews revolted in so many countries
to use mupped a fe the ar

*) The Abennuffer, Eldavid, Hakem, J u=
lian, Moses, Serenus re. do not yet
the tenth part of "the one under that mask
appeared in almost all countries as seducers of the people who are planning a revolt against the law
moderate government and brought disaster upon numerous loose people.

*) Even in the eleventh and even in the twelfth century could and were allowed to those shameless fraudsters have such ancestry.

When studying the history of humanity,

it will always remain a strange phenomenon: how Things that are once in the heads 5, reach far beyond others; among these and those circumstances are used in this and that way. Moses had a genealogy for Abraham from the first People knew how to find directly how easy It did not have to change in the future, a family tree of much younger times,

i
r

/

102

teaches that the Jews are united with the Goths against their rightful leader, Justinian, agreed that they would join forces with the Saracens to conquer Perfia (under the reign of the last Persian Regent, namely the actions taken against them restrictions due to which also applies to Juz ftinian had been the sole cause) fpirirt; that they just found a way to Spain, to France etc.) opened have, etc.

94. And what the myths and legends of the

As far as Judaism is concerned, it is certainly not a single sensible man to be considered true. The story already contains Contradiction of the most absurd superstition, e.g. that a pierced host had bled! If but Jews thereby take the opportunity:

from the partially untrue to the whole
to be concluded as untrue, so that all historical Data of Jewish fanaticism only courageously willing,
malicious, slanderous fabrications
and inventions, but everything and anything that from that which is descended from Judaism, if also tempered fanaticism in Christendom
been practiced, only true and certain

*) This may be the reason why

Charlemagne made such a harsh decree:
that the first of their community three times a year at the Church doors had to be given a slap in the face.

0

103

fol ; fo here too they place the prehistoric world in the most hateful light, namely: with regard to the Judaism only seemed to have been concerned with this;
to spread lies and untruths everywhere,
with which the malicious intent was connected:
against Judaism . consequences
can.

95. But as soon as one understands the spirit of Judaism has in mind what religious concepts
he is inspired; to what fanaticism he leads;
how he presents himself in all his actions,
how much he fid) in the Rabbinical Dogmas has designated, and still designate mag; fo it is impossible the many in the ftory established facts as a whole as ve
to view it as a falsehood. |

96. But history teaches us how they celebrated their Purim festival here and there; with with what bitterness they embraced Christianity men and continued, where one can accept the forced (most unfairly); with which chem mockery, after leisurely intercourse with the public worship of the dominant religion, smelled inside their houses *).

*) One should not just go back to the earlier times back. One of the most respected staff officer in the Portuguese service, during the last War against France, told me at his presence at this place, that he only with us from speaker effort a novo Christao from the

| 104

Even the black crime: fountain
Poisoning, which has caused so many unfortunate people once cleared out of the way, it is of history by no means without historical, Written down evidence based on facts.
" Furthermore, where the intrinsic value of Christianity and Judaism in religiõ= fer. respect, and from the Christian side demonstrated; been: which have disastrous consequences from the Mosaic theocracy, which disastrous influence, especially in the Jewish Fanaticism, it is the Jewish Scripture= fitters are not enough, looking at the Christian= thum, feven now to begin cheekily: on Jews= thum in religious terms a noble high i to lay:

their (the Jews') loyal devotion to the religion of their fathers shows unmistakably that fie the Holy 9) fet to ee 3 räckel. |

. - "th -
a - =
* 2 pe . 5

Number of 8 in ee PP ch ae Neu= a Christians from the anger of the people,
It has become known that he is at every= return from the Christian Church in the rooms of the Catholics and also the image placed near him was deliberately soiled and slandered net have.
*) If the saint were to be worshipped by a only supreme being, creator and father of all people, understood; so it could be with all Woe to bear the name; but. not what the Ceremonial=

.

105

The Mosafism contains the pure fairy customs» teaching. The same.

«The Jewish religion is the most powerful 5
support of the social and ae Rosenfeld.

Even the esteemed Wera who says:
« The legislator is the one appointed by Providence= noble, divine man, whose charitable consequences for countless peoples and for many years
hundreds of them, js

not enough, I say, to such high value
the Jewish religion, they almost together, competing with each other, all and eve=
of what is in Christ
ftenseness of fanaticism has ever been perpetrated; it Heresy, persecution (e.g. the Waldenfers;) Crusaders;=Stacks of wood; Sue quifitions courts; Huffite wars,

Laws, especially the atonement sacrifice, which the low
Terms: a national god, the sole heirs
the earth, God's chosen ones,

*) Does the Jewish religion have such a superrelatively; the others can hardly deal with a
a comparative; and the Jewish religion
is the only one that brings salvation.

Who knows: whether it may not come to that,
that Jews will one day appear loudly and publicly: their Religion against all others, as once the Kimchi, the Levi Cosri, among several Others, in other countries often and much under= have taken; as soon as they are allowed to move for powerful enough. ae

106

the fanatically led conquest of Ames
rifa's; Bartholomai- nights; Aufhe= application of the Edict of Nantes; thirty years
rigger religious war, Jesuit order &c.

97. But could Jewish writers only to a very low level of higher culture of the
If they make a claim on the spirit, they would all cover abominations with eternal night; feel very well
beware of those hideous things that dishonor humanity=
the, actions, not with the slightest touch to touch. "8 6

9. Not that the Jews were entirely no right to make such statements against Christianity to reprimand so loudly and harshly; not even just having to think about which cruel rage and persecution that once brought Tiochien, Alexandria, Caesarea, Jerusalem
falem [under the reign of Cosroes)]

) Cosroes, so the story goes, king of Persia falls in the beginning of the 7th century, from accompanied by a large group of Jews into the former Jewish territory, Jerusalem is mastered. They,
the Jews, plunder the Christian churches there,
They destroy them completely, know how to persuade that the Christians are their prisoners and bring 90,000 in the most cruel way
for life. | | aa

In general, Judaism has benefited from the distance from Egypt, wandering around Arabia, and the horrific conquest of the land of the Cana=
niter, through whose incessant citizens= wars; through the subsequent ones before the

—

107

and in so many other places against Reformed
of Judaism, (against Christians); fon=
but for another, far more important reason.

99. Ideas presented by purified examination gender things are not only similar to the rays of light, they even surpass them in duration and salary. They are completely indestructible, and

Its duration is equal to the duration of the worlds, because no material power can ever destroy. And just as the celestial bodies at their oscillations in every moment
a shadow side to turn away from the sun, just as can also be in the intellectual world momentary Circumstances arise that ideas are carefully verified truths do not appear in their glory
can, but therefore in better times, under better far circumstances unstoppable with the greater Power to spread their light.

100. The future will therefore, no matter an earlier or later, according to which

conquests suffered through total national dissolution;
by the final dissolution of the Jewish Empire; continued through the centuries, so often and much repeated uprising against the Roman power; through the horrific persecutions, perpetrated to the Reformed Jews; through the after= so countless persecutions incited against it almost 30 million of humanity (Jews and non-Jews). Whether this battle= sacrifice to the beneficial effects of the moped's
Theocracy mn / others may judge,

108

the researchers in the history of all religions=
white, the Mosaic theocracy with a very ftrtic criticism; not so gentle and leniently, as the present paper further states=
and then talking
and presented in an irrefutable manner
that all those horrors are solely arose from the fact that, the mind and spirit
the founder of the Christian religion
gen, a graft taken from Judaism,
and unfortunately, in that dark time,
inoculated with Christianity, so that all those atrocities originally belonged to Judaism
and they alone are only a burden").

) They were the first followers of the teachings of the founder and Their religion was of course Jews, namely Reformed Jews, to whom proselytes from gradually joined paganism. Only

After about 400 years they took the Names of Christ.

All noble clubs and associations of all
nor such sincerely designed fraternities,
and societies inevitable fate is: the
The spirit and intent of the founder or founders and gradually lose sight of it; the less
It is therefore strange that the reformed
The spirit of Judaism inherited by Jews is far more powerful than the teachings of the founder, in a subsequent different situation, under completely different circumstances, the high sense that reaches further to the deity
that teacher who is beyond all praise
could, and now refer to the older documents I:
need to find a support point in it: m what for

i
.
\

100 g

101. If Christianity were only of the pure meaning of its immortal founder
the one in whose doctrines, which are above all praise,

the whole of priestly Judaism completely should dissolve), and would at the same time be the one

the then incessant disputes of the ortho= Jews who remained there were declared enemies of our mortal reformer with their opposing party, and the powerful influence of the Firsts also, except

other intervening causes have contributed a lot

mag. a =

) The most meritorious writing will one day be from the lecture of that immortal man:
how much he in every respect the For= wanted to dissolve the whole of Mosaism. The so-called returned the concept of a national god, instead of a father
of all people; the sacrifices, especially the atonement sacrifice, which he turned into a memorial service of the purer doctrine transformed; the dietary laws

etc., this was not the only thing he had to
The idea, for example, that Moses immediately had a televisable revelation, and then his Judaism founded such a pernicious theocracy, stood in the way of his good speech, could easily portray him as a seducer of the people; just as the
all of Judaism, firmly adhere to those, to the Mosafic
theocracy, still respects him for it,
and with the duration of the Mofaism it never changed
can and will look at, He just pointed out that the deity which is developing more and more using reason as a means to ensure that the humanity that through all times
'what is their true need will be sensually fulfilled by him
depicted: «God speaks through the mouth of wise

Men» and through which he became ever higher

never-ending, never-to-be-fully-achieved knowledge of him
will be proclaimed through this throughout all future times.

\

110

what the man surrounded by so many dangers
only in parables, in similes,
had to fully envelop, developed and the understanding placed there, and on this extremely excellent
The foundation would have been further developed;
never, ever, did all those atrocities happen.
102. But it was just that unfortunate fate of humanity that Judaism itself
and so many peoples and nations for thousands of years fend should serve as a scourge. Meanwhile, we have people a firm trust in Providence;
fo the good that comes from that incalculable
disaster arose in the history of mankind
no matter how far away it may be from our eyes, we can certainly count on the fact that many and many healing
consequences were nevertheless associated with it. |
103. I want to make a very noticeable
Hint: All the faculties of humanity follow (as already mentioned above) by throughout the millennia a relatively progressive course; but, it should be noted,
calculated in relation to the whole; because it

1 gives several *) individual phenomena, which

N have not observed any equivalent steps,
could not, nor were allowed to, observe.

*) Which is probably in the opposite proportion have developed. To list them here, their number is a lot, would not be in the proper place. Only that one and the other example: The intellectual powers have expanded at the expense of the physical: language
: ö * 0

414

104. Theo= also belongs to these latter logy. This has with the brighter insights of the

and higher education of the mind are also never walked at the same pace, because those on the shackles of language usage, and was rather than Philosophy; hence also this, like our thoughts=
rich Lichtenberg rightly says that everywhere
to use an unphilosophical language
hat. 3c. 3c. | a

The more cultivated in the field of knowledge, the
the greater the scope of science became, the
The respect for the learned also decreased
Stand. | |

Legislation regarding penalties
with the degree of culture, with the state of Customs completely identical steps. Even if, for example, the Voice of those noble men who the Ben aria here
and finally it became clear that a murder
untainted theft is no longer punishable by death
be punished as the laws of the ancient world
wanted; he will still be punished with executioner's punishment,
although the methodical theft of later times
then deserved an even greater stigma.
Because it is rash to say: when never tho-
In the case of theft, it depends solely on the will ness of each person: to give trust, or Do not! Expose yourself to the risk of being unpaid remain unscrupulous, often to the point of complete ruin
to be cheated, or not! – ©
However, this was previously the case when the Business life was almost exclusively conducted with cash.

But not at present, when everyone is on credit,
after the consistent use of the same has arisen,
absolutely necessary, absolutely forced;
so that this gives the fraudsters a very large path
been opened so that some people, their own 112

sublime attributes of the deity with simultaneous Progress observed. But the follow-up historical, the so difficult to solve Problem everywhere under eyes:

What are the needs of humanity anyway?
What is the need of every age? and in
In what proportion must all the facilities of the Humanity, its physical, intellectual,
moral forces, with and against each other compared, develop; thus, the following important questions:

How? if the formality of theology; so like all other forms of human affairs
then, a constant temporary change availability, which Such an influence would, on the other hand, have on the welfare of the peoples, since a people not bound in religious matters (ligare), (fons
but for such and such a period of time (re-ligare, religio) must be.

Secondly, the age when Christians
thum was woven from Judaism, and in the Era of disruption of the with so many crimes burdened Roman power, really on the season of such moral dignity,

completely wasted, otherwise really the hobby he:
would have grabbed, fic) but now instead of that on the Bes
fraudulent trade, because with this he the rigou escape the severe criminal laws of theft, even can achieve more through it.

113 | |

that a pure, virtuous religion is appropriate to the same meffen fein could be?

105. The children of our time, the educated can be, instead of that of earlier times.
had to be brought up, laugh at the barrel of Danaids, about a Minos, a Tartarus, about hell and the devil, and yet that was all such a beneficial and healing teaching for the still rougher people who do not respect themselves
itself, not by recognition of the inner value
of virtue, not by correct calculation of inevitable consequences of every vice an in= that could avoid; but only through that terror=
pictures of it had to be withheld.

106. Superstition of the uneducated mind=
The antidote had to be irrational
They, the priests, had to Superstition as a disciplinary rod behind the mirror of their deity, and did well! Just there=
She also looks at the history of humanity,
fuch as many other things, including priestly spirit and aber=
believe from a completely different point of view than Unfortunately, this generally happens because intellectual Forces must never prevail over moral ones, and falls
hence a much more lenient judgment on both of them.

107. For in truth a man who trembles at the power of the devil, who therefore who fears evil is infinitely more important to the state worthy than the one who has knowledge of hell, purgatory and Devil laughs and, giving in to all vices, the 9 |

114
bourgeois society a disgrace and a scourge.

g. In addition to all this, there are many Characteristics of the writings of Jewish authors.
I would never end this endless business if I wanted to describe everything and everyone. Only the ver= various tricks still remain to be remembered,
which they use everywhere to, where possible,
to find protection and shelter behind it,
W |

Raising questions that remain unanswered

me dürfen, as: where is present

Jews were able to gain access to the farms
have? although a bright wit from the earlier Times that are not enough for Jews to rely on Christians=
thum hinfshield, can be tapped, pre asks away:

«The princes used them (the Jews)
Money, the subjects their goods, and with the Time also demanded the scholars for their Instruction. ".*)

B. Furthermore: Our most deserving men to lead where they are for Judaism, but only
only in terms of religious tolerance, faithful and have spoken truthfully. For example, what our mortal Herder also said in that regard,
is mentioned diligently by them; however,
and deliberately kept quiet about what He said in

*) In the above-mentioned document.

0

115

his argument about Judaism, such as in the Ge; {prison life considered, . ae
has reprimanded.

But it is with the most deserving men;
among the most intelligent minds of our nation
gends a protective word against the somewhere from
to discover their judgment about Judaism
den, then, in order to blaspheme them in another way
to be able to judge only in a bad mood,
probably only for the sake of the world tone, whose power

He can control even the noblest minds happen fine.

It is so true that common sense between Unverständigkeit, and cleverness the unwavering middle, which both extremes are separated from the

Keep the truth equally far away.

7. Furthermore: from that of which Judaism own conviction that it is not at all to deny, they say: «that
that which is owed to individuals,
is the responsibility of the entire Jewish people.
Knowing full well that it is not possible for anyone to marking line, how far this and that nonsense extends over the whole, or pause here and there.

But what do you find in the still under-spread education of the Jews the few think better=
the men in comparison with the entire measure of Judaism; and how much will one everywhere aware of the resulting 116

The spirit of Judaism (fid) from the Buz
fen even of the best Jews emerge.

d. Furthermore: from their religious documents
To cite words that reflect the religious and moral fic value of Judaism; probably nothing else was done than in the secure Presupposition, or in the delusion, time circumstances
using): that, because of the elective affinity, Christians cannot easily dare to Words from the same source alone created to confront those who are currently demonstrate the opposite.

108. But does anything indicate the fo very uneducated, uncultured spirit of the Jews;
ft is that enterprise, the most useless of all; and here too come more serious tests
against it ever to speak; so Judaism,
through his talking and pulling he takes credit for it alone.

109. They, the Jews, who for the most part in Protestant Germany in writings= have entered, however, should reflect the spirit of the pro= testantism more precisely, whose holy, un= alienable privilege for both, prince and
people, based on the following principles:

110. State religion and positive religion of the Priests only agree on certain points;

cannot be considered one and the same in every respect
be considered.

*) N p. further down in this
nitt. Ä

117

111. The basic truths of every religion,
God and immortality, in connection with the rules of morality, make
that which is called the state religion.

112. The formal) of those basic truths=
ities, however, belong to the positive religion of Priests of different religions,
on the necessary needs ) of the ages

*) This, namely that formal concerns what it
want: the time of baptism; the enjoyment of the memory=
celebration; the positive ideas of the deity: e.g.
The eternal, never-aging supreme being under the Image of an old, serious, friendly man with a long snow-white beard adorned man, from his exalted throne on his children, on all men=
fchisch looking down, as in the Christian ical churches; or in the clouds floating, with thunderbolts in their hands, like the pagans formed their Zeus; or with a mouth,
like a fiery furnace; with which it destroys its enemies
fwallows, as the Jews do in their poetry
grind. |
Or the formality of the disclosure whether it could happen immediately or whether the Deity the revelation of Himself, (like Mora:
'ity, legislation ze.) (chow in the germ of intel= lectual facilities of humanity, so that the development according to the time requirement in respect
the moral forces happen gradually.

> The religion of reason says to the moral man
fchen: the Godhead is as the highest, most perfect Being above any insult. You come therefore, the good for the sake of the good, and not to do the opposite out of fear of punishment.
But she does not speak to the uneducated.

mostly calculated, and fo valid and stand permanent. |

113. The prince is the head of all and every church, both the dominant and all rest of the country; not only for the preservation of those basic truths, and the associated Precepts of morality, not only so that Priesthood in terms of formality
not say: God, or St. Peter ver= long, this and that prince, from the people; this and that belongs to the priesthood; whereby
can all too easily become a state within a state;
but also when the formal aspect of a Reform is definitely needed, as with Seneca, Chri=
ftus, and Luther's times, fuch without object= aspirations of the priesthood, and they, the Innocence itself, not to the cup of poison, cross; and pile of wood. Furthermore, according to this,
what is the state religion is therefore open to all religions
free admission is available to relatives of the region.
enjoy uniform laws, and the undisturbed
exercise of their chosen religious formula
len, since such everywhere only on individual, deliberate views. Because only what the underlying things, is eternal, is indestructible=

|-

It is much better to believe this: he says goodbye to Becoming the enemy of the Supreme Being/ it through Un= deeds insult; so that it nürnen about it, and
must take revenge on him,

bar, but not fo. their forms; for the merely
the type, the n will be retained
can.

114. Finally, every religion
party examined the formalities according to their own style
and yet has been tolerated undisturbed
sneezes; so also the tolerance comes to everyone:

Sentences which merely concern the formal aspects of religion meet, a test for the thinking class subject, since such has nothing to do with the state religion. Having something in common, and popular concepts and be presented with damage; even more will be done to each. This is because Protestantism no renunciation of the opinions of the formal Others, rather than blind faith, the call to everyone: ö everything, and keep the best. »

115. These sentences depend exactly on that if one part of it is lifted out would, all the others would collapse.

116. Then Jews should know: that under the Protestants many men, self-respecting worthy theologians who have given praise= worthy environment gave such important advice have: the historical, religious Jewish documents which the youth only gets into their hands in excerpts to give), in which everything that morality fo very insulted, what against morality so hard anfts), which is related to the holy reverence for Religion is not in harmony, stay away, and that one will with the other, as much as possible to bring into harmony.

9 Until recently, this important subject in the «Årbödigft Skriveffe til det hoitär –

120

117. But there is an even more important Circumstance which Jews should have taken into consideration hen before they draw attention to those Documents. They are, namely, although they are currently brought together in one book lie before us, in very different times ten, and by different men When and how the words of the One and Others are incorporated into the whole, as even the Whole interpolated, glossed, from an oral Tradition to another, from one dialect been transferred to the other, can be absolutely and in no way determine.

118. From the later documents it now becomes clear

However, the spirit of such men stands out, with that of earlier times, which
what the reformer of the speaking, Bible itself in Copenhagen from the Lord

H. Bastholm again inspired without referring to those theologians Zuschau, which follows much from those documents of the subjected to the strictest criticism, which is still in the latest times among others by Hru Bal enlightened in its primeval world.

*) See the last paragraphs of the sixth section.

.

121

Judaism on a much larger scale, the namely to point out: what hopeless Value, at the expense of morality, sacrifice,
on ceremonies of all kinds, on dietary laws,
mainly on religious customs.

But the number of these men included those

gen (enlightened, heterodoxes etc.) of which the reformer says: Jerusalem, you killed
the prophets, and stone those who were sent to you find. » = |

119. But since from such progress religious concepts, undertaken by all and every
the peoples without the slightest exception, sentences
and opposites arise as a result; so come,
in this respect a judgment about a positive religion
should be liked, not the words in the writing
ten of such men into consideration, which more or had less purified concepts of religion;
but it must be looked at that,
which belongs to the spirit of positive religion *).

120. But to what extent in those documents the completely canceling out sentences,
and what of it the spirit of Judaism and

*) Nobody should be allowed to reject the positive religion of the Greeks and Romans according to Aristotle, So= Crates, Plato, Cicero, Caesar and Seneca judge; or about the positive aspects of our religion according to Leffing, Eberhard, Reimarus, Her= der, Spalding, and many other Germans to want. f

422

fine. positive religion, the following grounds for assessment:

Save me, God,
I want you fat brand= sacrifice, from ge= burning rams, I wants to sacrifice cattle with goats.

God remembers you
ner offered to him
offering, and your Burnt offerings must be fat
fein. »

PDestroy my enemies=
de, Lord, without any

Grace, erase them from the Book of the Living.)

God strikes fine
enemies on the cheeks,

"Your sacrifice's hal=
but – as if it were me
not fat enough
fen – fays the Lord,
I will not punish you.
When I was hungry,
I wanted to tell you about it
say nothing, because the

The earth is mine,
and everything inside
is. Do you mean that I eat ox meat
wanted, or goat's blood
drink. Sacrifice to God Thanks 5), and pay
to the Most High your face

@

love. "
Even if
my enemy disgraced,

I wanted to suffer it.

+) Have perhaps, for the sake of these somewhat purified words, Victims then stopped, or at least they are,
limited only to thank offerings? What pious words, if they do not turn into action,
this should not, nor may. – Altar service remained,
all those words regardless of what he had been.

*)). *) In what divine brilliant light he= ft seems, however, the teaching of the founder of our Re= ligion, Christ.

God, a loving Father of all

People, let his suns shine over the righteous and

—

123
he throws them the teeth in his mouth
swallows them in his

Anger, he eats them like a fener oven. »

Unrighteous, over believers and unbelievers shine.

And in what dark light do the above words to the educated mind of the past millennia. Can the highest, most complete,
thus a being above every insult
Have enemies? Enemies, moreover, against whom he will bear anger, anger, to take revenge, and his hand=

lungs in the consequence probably even regret ɾc.? |

They, the Jews, worshiped in their national God is one and only Being. They, the heathens, had gods, but such an anthropo=

morfism does not occur anywhere among them.

So true is everything that is said in the religion=
history of all peoples, all nations,
noteworthy:

The Cha= attributed to the assumed deities rakter was always the imprint of the way of thinking, the external religion. ɾc. f

The more brutal a people, the more brutal its external appearance
ligion, the wilder its deities. |

Judaism, whose former raw wildness Ihom
shines forth from the religious forms, whose altars
from morning to evening, from day to day from Dripping blood from sacrificed animals, could, in truth=
ity, not the deity in the mild, fatherly
see the light.

But the more people know themselves and the world learned; the greater the distance between them, and their deities; the less their claims against

124

«To the stranger Thou shalt at thy

you may proliferate, but brother, do not proliferate,

f neither with money nor
not on your brother." with food, nor with

: everything so that one would
can. »

And as people strive, so they strive fome also their gods. The increasing moral culture of the people kept up with the moral culture.
Gods always take the same steps.

But the cruder the original, religious concepts,
the more it unites with the priestly interests, the
less they were calculated on morality,
and at the same time the more interpretations of the mystical meaning
this and that sentence allowed, the more religious Coercive laws also took place; the greater
The subsequent number of the so-called
so-called apostates, of the greater um=
the rise of sectarianism and the number of its followers,
the multitude of separating believers;
the stronger the rebellion against the accepted
Positive; but also the more powerful the opposition,
the more numerous the persecutions, the heresies,
the more often the stoning to death, the poison cups,
the crosses, the ö , the Inquifitions= dishes.

And the more firmly they retain the original Neltgionsbe-attacks on a high, no matter how imaginary, national nal interests, the more closely they are linked to the woven into the same; the more indelible, the more Such are always more imperishable in the attitude
kind of people remained; such even for a faithful devotion to the faith of the fathers,
as a way of protecting the holy know.

Sr

125

There must be usury
suck out everything that he has."

« Demand of me,
says God, if I will
you (the Jewish people) the
give to the Gentiles as an inheritance,
and the end of the world
to property. »

Blessed is the people who
the ruler a god
is; the people he has chosen as his heir."

Who does not have his money
lends at usury,
stay well, »

Who these unfortunate, men=
anti-scientific idea – chosen ones of the Deity, heir of the entire earth etc.
there is no mention of purified opposite.

We leave this circus most unpleasant
sins and disputes, and illuminate present=
ting in the aforementioned respect the spirit of Judaism itself.

126

Second section.

Judaism viewed from a religious perspective.

Mosaic theocracy.

1. No matter how strict posterity may be about judge the Mosaic theocracy as it
I want to get them out of the best situation points on which the study of history of humanity, this sure measure

all judgments of earlier times, the calm researcher
NN

2. I ignore how Moses confronted the Jews in Egypt. The pious fraud with the highest, most sublime being, with the creator of the infinite universe personally spoken, even if not seen, is him in view of all the circumstances of the time
entirely forgivable.

3. The philosophy of life of Egyptian theologians rejecting: that between the esoteric and exo-teric religion to draw a dividing line
then, as the time demanded,
by intellectual, moral and religious

/

127

handles always in exact balance with each other
must stand, he could not achieve his purpose otherwise achieve, he could not with the moral education that required too much preparation, the
make a proper start. |

4. The sublime idea of a single God
Rather, he embraced with such warmth,
with such fervor that he achieved the highest valued it: to see a people before him,
which stands out from everyone, even the most famous peoples of the entire earth in this:
to worship a single God.

5. But keeping in mind every possibility, that a concept of this kind in a crude, completely ignorant people who have the slave bonds
just thrown away, completely eliminated
he used every means possible to not only to high national-religious concepts, but but also to countless sensual objects
captivate. |

6. And in this the unforgettable man more than all Lycurgus, Solon, Plato, and Numa must be in order not to fall into the Jewish Theocracy the seed of the inevitable nato ensure the future of the nation's destruction

To avoid this inevitable he would have
must understand: like religion, like theology
on the intellectual, the moral,
civil, civic and secular
bourgeois people can certainly relate

128

Ideas which are too immeasurable for the age
were far away. 1k . ö
7. In order to convey this concept to high national
The aim of the presentation was to link religious concepts:
to speak personally with the deity himself
have, to be chosen by her, the idea so close,
to his people: he, the Creator and
The creator of the earth is above all its God, he has fhe chose above all other people,
fie fogar to the heir of the captured earth)

*) This extremely misanthropic, above all pride, idea that goes beyond all presumptuousness deserves
following remark. Even earlier, men
ner among the Jews against the Mosaism
which the corrupting influence of altar service
ftes had before their eyes; how much more must it happened when that expectation was so disappointed:
instead of rulers of all peoples, other peoples us

to have been defeated; how much more emphatically

then, when the Jewish priesthood began,
to deceive the people again in another way:
that everything is just a time of testing; that a savior
will appear who will carry out that promised great work furely carry out, instead of this thinking men who final dissolution of the National Government as certain

had under eyes. i
And so the Mosaic Theory proved
cracy continued its corrupting influence into the late 19th century

ft centuries, through the use of the many fraudsters who appeared and who claimed

Messiahs were able to issue riots,
and caused countless misfortunes.

For the sake of the elective affinity that exists in those dark

*

129

suppose that their ruler, their king, and the prince
furthermore is the vicariate of his state administration;

been made, that idea also came over here.
The older Christian church used them, made the Founder of our religion, who as a popular teacher against the Mosaicism had appeared, to the true Messiah,
and built on this idea so that the Christianity, especially through the idea that was evoked:
Chosen of the Godhead, in Judaism entirely
had to fall back, accompanied by all analogous consequences;
strengthened the idea of Judaism at the same time
a future Messiah, since he is not appeared as a secular prince, completely rejected.
In addition: like positive Judaism and Christianity
have supported each other in that Each uses the weakness of the other reciprocally, will one day, even if it only happens after a year=
hundreds, subjected to a special examination Whereby it is up to the researcher of the history of Humanity will not escape, as so many Points of contact because of the Indians all Peoples so hard-pressed contempt for no more believers than among Christians
so immensely, so most beneficially alleviated;
beneficial to humanity, since it is the terrible idea: that Christians already committed a crime against their religion when they accept people, who crucified their God. Even if this is a Hint, where the former pressure for allowed
been seen as a way to cure the offended religion
blow-dry; if on the other hand it is just as true, that Judaism has never been in such loud opposition with the Christians would have had to sit down to avoid persecution, because of the injustices they have committed, more to be secure. And it is just as true that if Mysticism and Judaism today equal
a 9

130

It could therefore be the sure hope, the firm Expect that one day all princes and Regents of the earth vassals of their ruler, for the sake of the power in possession. And in this way he succeeded unnoticed)
to get there: to give his people such an immense high national value, for which there is no other example has ever been given, nor can give.

8. Not enough that he, the 'elected Theo=
cratie, according to which the priesthood prevails=
fharming to the spirit of Judaism

to complete; not enough that he the world=

did not allow the spiritual to exist alongside the spiritual;
but subordinated the former to the latter; not enough that he concentrated all state power on the used the same, but directed the whole thing in such a way,
that in the event of a subsequent, possibly arising

Try to keep pace, the latter does not consider,
what impending dangers for daffelbe from the Finfters
nif could emerge.

*) When calculating the causes and consequences, in this

sole business of the understanding, with which all thinking begins, continues, and ends, must be
tel, chosen intention, and natural consequence be distinguished from each other. Assume that Moses the high national value as the basis
of his religious building, wants too much be predicated by that man. To his own
He tied the choice of his people to the election; the rest emerged by itself.

131

secular government, where fine look durdy
could not suffice, these from the priesthood
had to be completely dependent), and fo the state completely subordinated to the Church, and therefore for the Following that state within the state, which

on the eventual complete destruction of the National Government continued to operate incessantly.

9. And to convey that sublime idea to countless To tie sensual objects, a incalculable series of ceremonies, of special customs and formulas, not only for the public altar service; also for private devotion, for domestic use, and therefore also an equally large number of festivals, celebrations and rest days without the many religious, even mystical here
to be considered).

) Does this hopeless idea also give rise to the positive Christian religion? leads the election=
relationship insofar as one wants to be consistent,
not back to absolute hierarchy!

> Which, in addition to the rich food for the:
from the sectarian spirit that emerged, also served to
to offer them more and more in the following.

Jews may decide for themselves what of the following
existing customs were originally, and [mas
only subsequently was it made clear to the person who had passed,
which, however, still applies to them today.

3. B. Religious threads: those on the Corners of the clothes, or on a specially designed chose to wear prayer cloak (thalith).

132

"

10. But this required in itself,
more in terms of what the altar service consisted, namely: in daily morning = and evening sacrifice, in sacrifices at the numerous festivals and holidays, as well as in firstfruits offerings, thank offerings,
guilt offering, punishment offering, joy offering, vows=
victims, convalescent victims and other various Opportunity victims, the latter required a large number of priests who were already very overdriven by their income paralyzed the state forces,
and the marrow of the country was consumed all the more easily,

the more such a theocracy . |
to enervate the producing forces.

11. But to have a glimpse of holiness to throw the chosen ceremonies, fuche, except for a then prevailing brilliance, to
to give the sensual people as much as possible
captivate, with mystical acts, ceremonies and formulas, where above all and especially the so profitable reconciliation festival

Thephilia or religious memos (another type of rosary) with straps that partly tied around the head, partly around the arm,
and attached to the middle finger.

To remain standing in one place while praying;
to keep the feet firmly together; to face
to arrange the odfts; change three times when washing=

know how to water the right and left hand;

Wash your face three times; do not get up

more or less than 8 feet from the bed to the washbasin

basin to go away and f. wu f. w.

133

Because according to theocracy, nãm=
the priesthood as a representative
the deity, could in their name
open a tribunal before which the people fhe completely resigned himself to his sins, his wis appease, and their Lord God like=
the new sins, new transgressions through fat
victims could be brought to account *).

12. But what the Mofaifche theocracy
all others, even before all created religions
the entire earth is particularly distinguished:
that the founder of the Jewish religion mainly
fhis gaze was fixed on how and in what way
If he shows a warm affection, a firm loyalty,
an unbreakable obedience in the bosom of his people for the God he taught, and

*) What a highly pernicious influence such a festival continually in the morality of the Jewish people
It is very easy to imagine how far the damage
However, it had to become more difficult in the future – a Consequence that Moses could never foresee, nor even suspect den wanted – fobald Jews after 1 National= dissolution began to live among other peoples, and that feast for them for each and everything in which they also against those among whom they lived, non-Jews, who would like to be obliged to do so, granted complete absolution.

Have other so-called pagan peoples, their Idolatry notwithstanding, through so many and some beautiful, noble and worthy of imitation virtues
excellent; the sole reason may be that the idea of such an indulgence festival
remained entirely foreign to their welfare and benefit.

134

to achieve this,
he (as already pointed out above) is the highest,
most exalted being, the father of all inhabitants,
of all infinite celestial bodies to his people only
as a national god; him, the original
He made the ruler of all nature the Ver=
wefer of a hemp people, which is not yet for any Atom in the universe, since hardly our Earth can be considered as such, since even our entire solar system is probably only a gap filler within the outer circles unpredictable larger solar systems, enough, he degraded the highest being just as deeply,
when he sought to elevate his people, every idea belonging to it, every intentional act “order applying, as: felf as elect
the deity; even himself as the sole
to be able to consider him as the heir of the whole earth;
through peculiar habits and behavior
customs to distinguish oneself from all other people;
absolutely no contact, no intercourse with non= Jews, so that as a people of God it would not be desecrated), etc. |

) Also included is the family register of Adam, the sole owner of the earth, after Jewish theocracy, up to the progenitor of the Jews in a direct line; insofar as the whole

is not an invention of later times, no matter
even then, or fúer later conceived; but precisely for this reason, accidentally remembered, the deadly hatred, the unequal

135

13. What with every other people is the inexhaustible permanent consequence of such highly perverse, even misanthropic religious concepts have been
was also affected by Judaism, from which point of view from which it may be viewed.
For, as soon as it is in ftate civil hin= fight, with the Jewish nation came to the point that a secular power had to be established in order to
To ensure greater security for the state have, which the foo soft way of life of the Priests could not grant; so also began at the same time civil unrest, as the predominance of the priesthood of the state
had been completely subjugated to the church.

14. Saul, the greatest in stature, became the greater contempt from the brother children, namely of the Muslims against the Jews, because those of the Ifmael's, because of their stated ancestor,

more than all other peoples against the autocracy=
fociety of the land of Judaism.

Was that idea (of a single God) from the esoteric religion of the Egyptians; so him Moses, also the great chronology of the Egyptians are not unknown. But what if he is a 30 to 40 thousand year old genealogical records should fill out, where would he have got the names taken?

This may also include such old age,
which is attributed to some forefathers to the genealogy easier to fill out if not moons=
Years after the opinion of others
are. |

>
J

first king. He disliked the priesthood. David had to ascend the throne. And since there was only one only king needed, which inclination to splendor, luxury, luxury and Wasteful, so that the people had a two multiple burden of spiritual and secular taxes Had to bear, and since this was already the third König was the case; so was the whole nal dissolution of the National League, all the more so, because through the spirit of caste, through the upholding the tribes have no unity in the state body laid; there were already two kingdoms

*) The tithe of the entire produce of the land and the double tithe (i.e. the fifth part of the whole) in the Jubilee year were still far not the sole income, but that invented A multitude of all kinds of sacrifices served as the most productive source priestly finances (and therefore not among any people more than the Jews practiced simony so often so that even the high priesthood in the later times not according to dignity, but only according to Ueberboth was given) under which the following from= It is written: that even the firstborn Jewish Lord God, i.e. the altar, the priests, were consecrated, and with gifts and presents a= had to be solved.

How much, apart from this, the people bear the burdens of the first

required amount of livestock, forests

of wood for the ever-flaming altars, of oil

the many lamps, some of which are always burning, the Consumption of the very large amount of incense and of the rest of the entire apparatus, may other archaeologists calculate. E towards each other, which not only in unfortunate

bloody civil wars, centuries
through, tried each other; but also foreign
the states the easier it is to conquer both made, and therefore the entire future Dissolution of the Jewish National Government and avoidably prepared.

15. Equally sad was the consequence of that in moral and civic terms.

The great, almost unforeseeable series of festivals and holidays, the continuous altar service attracted all

However, through the organs of the priests, the view of the people on their national God; but on the other hand |

How many hateful vices may such, on morality, not on bourgeois advancement calculated, through laziness, inertia, tendency to luxury, extravagance, debauchery
and have sown through poverty and need.

16. The Feast of Reconciliation was particularly busy
However, priesthood at a very high level

Reverence: Final judgment on conscience

to be able to speak; but how unfortunate such interfere with the moral dignity: such so easily and quickly come to terms with all transgressions
To be able to erase every misfortune at once ability, but generated a blind respect for the priesthood, such as ties and bindings
to have power in his hands; however, it aroused
a greater attachment to such a cult that provided such advantages, it made 138

the defense of the same by the people
even more terrible, even more on the part of the priesthood against everyone of the same at et de net unbelievers, religious scoffers, God

blasphemer, who is nothing more than the one on Costs of Morality, Calculated Altar Service

in mind, and therefore made it easier for himself

the cruelest persecutions, to so many innocent

committed by worthy and just men.

17. No less had that to be done on the in= intellectual people a pernicious influence flow. It was very praiseworthy for Moses Men= sacrifice of his ancestors into animal sacrifices

transform, (but without that unconditionally to prohibit) and in the culture of human spirit, even if only very small,

to have taken a step forward; but his religion was also just as little based on the intellectual, as moral and civil servant
calculated for ordinary people.

18. For the gloomy, dark sight of so many ceremonies stained with blood devoured
the idea of the holiest, above all needs
most sublime, most selfless being); gave the

*) Many and some phenomena may appear in this circumstance find their explanation. Precisely because the idea of a supreme, sublime being in those

with blood-stained ceremonies was completely lost,
the otherwise inexplicable possibility may take place:
where such a large number of Jews come from so often and so much

a raw wildness which gave rise to the germ
of the sensitivity to be awakened, entirely with the happy nation; since the education
lation of humanity into the innermost folds of the tenderness laid by the deity on the human heart= feeling alone only through the contemplation of noble, humane actions can be awakened. No wonder Therefore, if the constant sight of the hands of the Priests, to see them always dipped in blood;
to see how they approach the entrails of the

could turn to idolatry, although the many Religious coercive laws may have been partly to blame for this.

This may be why enlightened people
the non-Jews of antiquity, instead of the Jewish religion region, which the Jews blamed for the abergau=
biggest people.

For there were also thinking men among the older Nations who directed their thoughts to this: that they, the Jews, were the only people on earth,
which worshipped a single God; so the Thought of the strange, unpleasant ceremonies
and events (temple and cattle shed combined;
sprinkling altars and people with blood &c.)
again completely lost.

Even more, the non-thinking class turned its Look away from it. She preferred to stay with her friendly gods, rejoiced over the highest Attribute of her Zeus: Protector of the hospitality of the

ftof that the Jew every foreigner fled, rejected every stranger, every stranger fhed, so that he could already enter his apartment through touching the sole of the foot does not desecrate. – How unholy
my much against it would have the Jewish religion to rise
can really contribute to the enlightenment of other peoples.

Animals rooted, the nation even more than one Aura of callousness, harshness, wildness and There was a grudge, and instead of a general
love of humanity, its harshness towards other people
fchen, even harsher against non-Jews; without to remember here: that a religion that is emphasis on ceremonies, customs, altar service
and priestly acts, never for the intellectual-culture of the people even the slightest undertakes, even if other peoples through Lyceums, Academies, educational institutions, where all their attention
fomity have directed towards it.

19. Far more pernicious and hopeless was but the influence of that in world citizens= logical and political point of view. However, Moses had taught the people
religious concepts of a very high value of Judaism before the eyes of the Godhead, and an equally great disrepute of the non-Jews
a purpose fully achieved: one, no matter how threatening=
the dangers of being unshaken by anything
devotion to the state religion is promoted
have; but on the other hand, he had religion completely
not related to cosmopolitan conditions;
that not only general love of humanity,
which accompanied so many noble deeds
virtue, was completely stifled in Judaism, it to the unheard-of harshness and cruelty against non= Jews; but that the deep human insecurities respect which Judaism has over all other 141st

Rolfers and nations so loudly, his supposed
For preference, to show a just fo widespread contempt for one another produced, accompanied by so many unfortunate consequences,
Even if this was not intentional,
nevertheless these on natural, inevitable
Because of this.

20. And just as religious segregation, the complete abstinence from contact with others
Peoples, however, to preserve those attachments=
ity contributed immensely; however, the Judaism not only deprived of all and every means=
men: to practice arts and sciences;
but at the same time not to resort to artifice,

not agriculture, industry and trade, these three pillars of the state firmly and unshakably judge, not with the growth of other nations in relation to state forces, equal steps and prosperity, peace, security in To be able to justify internally and externally.

Mosaic Revelation.

21. Whoever through the study of history of humanity, subject to certain limits knows the affairs of humanity better, and knows what is absolutely beneficial to them, and essential need for them must be out of respect for themselves the holy ground= truths of religion do not put a saw to the side, from which any doubt could arise for them.

142

Not to stand far away from this alone, he will also only know religious forms fciently, and at the same time with caution and care seek to subject to an examination.

22. This document considers the type and way in which the deity presents itself to man revealed to the forms; it sees immediate Revelation of the dignity, the majesty of the highest ft essence is not approachable; instead, it represents deep reverence for it the sentence: that the deity the knowledge concerning it already in the germ of humanity's abilities), and thus in a manner worthy of her revealed. Ä

23. However, such a deviation under other circumstances and on any other occasion undertaken, I myself would be considered questionable Judaism had to be (so much also lose general applause may, to which the legally minded man never owns= useful consideration) in the systematic context.

24. Now the basis of the whole jüdi= remains religious cosmopolitan building that which fit is; fuch one hears at the same time also completely to utter just one word against Judaism

9) God has laid so deeply that never a positive atheism
A sentence whose induction leads me to far into the philosophical realm.

143

speak. Then all Jewish religious Claims have their full value because they are together in that immediate revelation
Then the Jews are really the only chosen people of God, they are the only true heirs of the whole earth; they can then you can safely rely on the promise: the
to once dominate over all and every people can be carefree in their actions
continue, whatever may be said against it, enough if they adhere to their religious and moral Jewish concepts, in relation to non-Jewishness,
know how to keep it).

*) Whether further conclusions can be drawn from this,
I also leave this up for others to consider.
In my view, the hierarchy has a complete
never to be disputed right again in our days
the Copernican system of an inquisition (exact to have been subjected to an investigation (investigation inquire)).

You, the geologists, from whom a previous

Earth, whose shape is different from that of the opposite
" must have been different, then

thought up the biggest fantasies.

All historical works, especially drafts for Citizens' and rural schools such as the one of the meritorious
Mr. Bredow, and other esteemed men
ner who dared; a completely different time
to accept the bill, and many and some memorable
such incidents are due solely to natural causes
explain, have made interventions in ideas,
which they were never allowed to touch.

Even the entire physics, geography and ethnography
then stand there in a dream form, and enlightenment

25. How the Moses acted, that holy Idea of a Single God in a highly crude,
 and to preserve the equally ignorant people; as he
 an unwavering attachment to the lecture ftended to preserve his religion, is in the foregoing has been sufficiently presented, but also pointed out at the same time why
 the assumed basis of the entire religious building: from the deity under such and such promises before all other people to have been chosen – absolutely and on serve an inevitable way and finally had to be aimed at.

may, in fact, the sooner the better at dusk,
 become darkness.

Because, blind faith (Spain's former Inqui= fition in the times of Philip) goes indisputably far fure path, as faltering (Spain's later in= quifition in Ferdinand's time) between faith and Unbelieve. What twilight is to the working eye,

that is twilight, half enlightenment, of the spirit.

It is true that throughout the millennia the Humanity has progressed; whether there is ever a way
 can be taken backwards, seems to be a problem

lem to have been some times. An attempt,
 its success for the touchstone of the layer is to be examined, which the fo content-heavy Truth does not know that no material force in the world of ideas in some way a power
 'can exercise.

Homogeneous things can only be applied to homogeneous things work. Empty ideas only of the era of better

Ideas are subject to.

26. We are currently pointing out that Moses to strengthen such a strange religious system set the following keystone

has: that his entire lecture, both in terms of the worship of the deity, as well as the fo content= rich promises are true and certain; that therefore all fine religious regulations, events ftructs and facilities fuch and not otherwise must be because Jehovah himself had made this known to him done, instructed and prescribed.

27. Are ideas tied to self-interest and interest tied; that's how it is in general difficult to give them up; how much less can therefore ever expect from the Jewish people, those idea of Mosaic revelation) to want, since all the above-mentioned national Religious concepts are firmly and indissolubly bound to it The more Judaism relies on the Mosaic revelation, the more it seeks to preserve its national claims and to assert it.

28. However, how much the national= religious attacks of Judaism are tied to that idea, teaches us a memorable circumstance. Judaism namely, according to the teachings of the Rabbis,

*) Untouched, it is still said in the scriptures of the Jews, «everything must remain that way= what one can say about the Old Testament according to finder. » 8

10

146

'a continued revelation of the kind that, even if there are only minor circumstances, e.g. religious and legal regulations and customs regarding meets, the later one even surpasses the older one in value can meet).

29. This would have long since been the case among the Jews the concept of immediate announcement fluctuates can be made; however, the Judaism to ever more refined knowledge even their best minds will not accept that idea to give up not undertake, because find in General ideas which are in the mass of the people passed for centuries, and their production indelible for thousands of years, as much less the concept that forms the basis of all

* Judaism has two Talmuds,
"or two codes, simultaneously religious and legal content "as befits a theocracy. The One is for those who, after the national dissolution,

in Assyria, and the other for those living in Judah

Jews, and bear the name Talmud from Babylon, and Talmud of Jerusalem.

fol from two words, name: Mifhna and Gemara. About this and

and the oldest Jewish documents will now contain the following

"Comparison made: «The writings which the Bible contains, find with water, whereas the mixture with wine, and the Gemara with delicious wine to compare. "

An idea of continued proclamation that is the positive aspects of Christianity are also communicated has two wills unequal to each other

to connect,

447

Claims to such a high national value,
and thus the basis of all advantages, all Hopes and expectations serve: waiting
of so many centuries past
regardless, nevertheless one day prevailing mean
to be able to.

30. But now belongs to the nation
God of the Jews, given proclamation also the:
sole rightful heirs of the earth, Be=
to be ruler of all other peoples; so confessed,
As already mentioned, the one who Judaism fits immediate revelation=
not only at the same time all and every

National Privileges, Claims Based Thereon
and promises; but he also makes nor the above all praiseworthy undertaking of the Reformer of Judaism, even in moral efficiently just as problematic as it is from the Judaism has happened, is happening, and will continue to happen for a long time
will happen continuously because it is the same
Do not bear that immortal man with the Mosaic Revelation: Chosen of the Godhead, Contempt against non-Jews, sole heirs of the Earth etc. finds harmony, and fills it with lig rejects N.

*) Much of the above is taken from Jewish writings=
led, however, there was so much else in the
This paper does not have any space, but a Another remarkable feature of Jewish writers here

148

31. Here, too, it is not just a question of the defense of that august man,
the defense of a purer morality, but also on the defense of the rights of humanity
who, without distinction of religion, are the same goodness, the same paternal care of the Creator of the universe. The= subject themselves to this sole motive we the Mosaic Revelation, as well as the Collifion may be), the following Examination that is willing to undergo any counter-examination and willingly submits. |

to be remembered. Where historical documents situations (like the writing of Mr. Cohen) before them and refer to the era of the Reformer of Judaism, they pass over it with complete sorrowful silence! – Is this silence
what more or less than disapproval? –

*) The history of the peoples of the whole earth may
are more closely related than ever thought

But never will the eye of the Mortals can discern what is in the affairs of the Peoples and nations, be it intellectual, or religious, or in any other respect initially un= noticeably intervened, and as a result of immense

has become of great importance.

Many men rose up among the Jews,
which is so highly detrimental to the Mosaic
theocracy, especially the altar service;

what important consequences this will have for your company in the

It was impossible to predict what the future would hold.
The reformer referred to those men who had spoken to him in the same spirit; he knew 149

32. That which is the foundation of humanity,
what is eternal, imperishable, indestructible, as:
the principle of morality, legislation,
Religion has the deity, in the, in the content fo
immensely fertile seed of humanity,
as if divinely revealed here.

33. She, the Godhead, as highest, full-most important, above all and every veneration to Her sublime being left to her, man=
ity, the development of the disposition of religious concepts
also for their welfare at all times, depending gig of the level of their intellectual and moral lic forces.

30. If she had not yet but for the sake of the people, directly with= the more he relied on them, the more he rejected the Mosaic

wanted to completely dissolve forms.

But now the time when the positive aspects of the Christian
thums formed, one did not go to the reformer,
and from his instruction to his predecessor, and fo back to the whole, in order to find in Judaism the
to find the same basis for analogous theorems, and.
through this a priestly religious building is erected
to be able to.

*) It is worth noting that he is not a human being,
He sinks deep beneath the animal, who is not with the deepest reverence, worships God. The greatest thinker, he should also be seen by others as atheist, is his greatest admirer. In thousands of temples, shining with all splendor, he is not celebrated as highly as by such a single man.

150

want to share; so she would have time for it each time. Only the concepts of communicating, which, in respect of all other circumstances, would have been appropriate to the level of culture; therefore, the direct communication would often and have to repeat a lot.

31. As the highest white, goddess And 6 We
The deity would also have an influence on the choice of those person and of that people, with whom she would have wanted to communicate personally. This choice would be made by him as the Father of all men. When was none other than: that all peoples, all nations at the same time to the immediate open agreement would have been received.

32. To focus on a single person, on restricting a single people, the Deity said all the more: I have given you I am one of the best, most excellent – men, now go and teach all peoples that there is only one supreme being, an originator and father of all men not only this earth of yours, but of the endless world-body, which cannot be touched by animals, nor by niger through human sacrifice, but rather to worship “in spirit and in truth.”

And do you believe him who needs nothing, Gratitude gifts from the fruits of your field which must be offered; so distribute such among the poor, he will see them as offered to him see.

151

4

33. She, the deity, as the highest moras:

human nature would not be limited to this have: Judaism the grossest vices and.
Crimes in the prohibition. Instead of thou shalt not kill, » had she in holy,
moral precept in the commandment said: Help and.
support your fellow human beings from possible Forces. Instead of «thou shalt not steal: proceed faithful and honest in all your dealings *)
u. f. w. ra

Rightly so, also on the Mosaic moral law
Throwing a harsh rebuke, the divine
Reformer it in all and every piece:
«You have heard, he says, for example, that to the ancients
It is said, Thou shalt not kill. But I say unto you,
Anyone who offends his fellow human beings is committing a Type of fatal blow » etc. wu f. w.

34. She, the Deity, who is all Perfect= truths, and therefore also truth,
no false, erroneous ideas would be communicated

*) How did the Jewish Levites react?
They hid, as if it had happened intentionally, their National=God in their interest. Because je nei:
they placed the same on the idols brought
The more gifts they could give, the more the people are driven to offer sacrifices;
the easier it was to say: that in all trust=
consequences, but only from the Mosaic Theocracy, from this bad state constitution proceeded, merely religious neglect (altar:
serves) guilt fey.

152

have; it concerns their dignity, their power, their size, or noble religious beliefs positions. Not least because between Retention of these and those terms that may not yet be appropriate for rougher people,
and between communicating significant untruths
ten) there is such an immense distance that in relation to the highest being, which is none

erroneous 9 in itself capable, my 9 8. B. A being "which needs fine love and care to a single people on this earth, and all could neglect the rest; a being which for and for many years ago the construction of the world, instead of the eternal being also been in continuous activity from eternity,

not to mention that the Mosaic Revelation under World only this our earth, sun (which nor should it take its orbit around that one), moon, a

so-called firmament above the earth, with whose Lights understand that in this petty world of Humans are so petty, transient after death
few; a being that can be reached by blood-soaked Victims could be pleased by gifts of the kind
the smoke of the animal sacrifices is a sweet smell;
enemies who could put themselves at the head of their opponents, and the number of those killed
a comfort to which all predicates of Meufchen are to be attributed: of becoming tired, of being out-
rest, reflection, and inquiry
conscious things, the repayment of debts incurred,
the deep pleasure in gifts, the desire for revenge
exercise in neglecting his altar service, the Regret of revenge taken, of promise not to want to punish so harshly again etc. etc.

153

itself cannot be described in any words;
even less would it be excluded from all truth-
have communicated distant ideas because
the people, because of the communication that has taken place,
such would never have let go, in the secure conviction that they must be absolutely true).

35. But if the highest being were to telable communication repeated, what would then, because of the erroneous concepts once given,
would have been absolutely necessary. Yours,
would have said the truth, the deity
I had to say something to your predecessors communicate what is not so inherent,

—

*) Only one thing: how many millennia has it taken that because of supposed immediate revelation,
lasts for people to move away from the highly erroneous

opinion: that the sun follows its orbit around the earth, that our earth is the sole dwelling place for thinking beings, instead of the world=
bodies of the trillion-times-trillion solar systems
except other creatures, with thinking beings are populated. So many solar systems Some might say. But one should definitely count on grain of sand on the sea is a solar system, so one has not yet the beginning of the world building. The finite, so very limited thinking power remains before a concept, which she considers sublime, with astonishment
it, and yet the most sublime concept, as soon as of the universe we are talking about, in relation on what it is supposed to represent, the lowest among
all relative concepts. |
Only for the smallness of the menfihen, nothing else,
there are so-called sublime concepts.

154

I will teach you something better, and through throughout all periods of future ages. Whence but then the firm, unshakable confidence in the man who through the mouth of God truly had spoken; where did obedience come from, when the older terms (already completely and inseparably
with the interests of these and those people
would have been interwoven. –

The fate of the founder of our religion is clear proof of this. What was the legal man's wages? –

36. But above all and especially, and
This is also the most important criterion of the Mosaic Revelation, the all-good for the Welfare of the whole human race
caring beings general love of humanity
the basis of their communication. He,
the author of all things, would be his own work
not affected by this: in the religious presentation of contempt for all peoples which, since the reaction, to obtain= the order of things, the ge=
all of nature, as general, unchanging
Norm is prescribed, an equally general
counter-contempt, with all the unfortunate consequences accompanied, absolutely and inevitably produce
had to.

37. Now the basis of the claims of the Judaism of the species in itself, and for the Jew's nature itself of the nature that it is fine privileges, his hopes, his expectations and claims are always based on it; so stands Jew's all peoples in the most serious consideration and ceaselessly there. And this is what we primarily wanted to demonstrate in order to be part of the outcome of all present studies the sentence at the end this work all the more: that Judaism already because of its religious isolation sake, apart from everything that is in state and cosmopolitan relationship based on it iff, and inseparably connected with it hangs, forms a state within the state, since it is not at all, like Christianity, to the to connect the whole of humanity, meaning, will and inclination.

155

Rabbinical Dogmas, Spirit of Jewish Theology.

38. It is mentioned in many writings by sides of non-Jewishness have been claimed: that in the Jewish theological writings, according to mentally in the Thalmud, in this from several Dialects collected codes of all religious legal and statutory provisions and regulations of Judaism the most reprehensible teachings sentences that are not only the better culture of Judaism the greatest obstacles in the way, even the improvement of the Jews almost impossible; not only fight against all concepts of morality; but with the welfare of civil society in obvious contradiction, and Judaism give an even stronger impression, as much as forming a most destructive state within the state.

156

39. A matter too important and serious, which, if it were completely settled, would already make the word about Judaism completely superfluous

would be too big and important not to be Jewish side that accusation to their assumed Categories of malicious, malicious, slanderous accusations and hostilities
would have been expected. |

40. Who is right here! I ask, who has Wrong! Questions which are certainly decisive must be brought to justice, since Judaism is against=
We have been talking about it for a long time.

431. The men led by those from Rabbi i=, who was prominent in the Talmud itself Jewish dogmas, or Jewish theological moral ical doctrines are of such reprehensible
Content that one can even look away from it=
is forced to turn to.

42. For what could be better than the culture of Judaism, their religious cosmopolitan isolation, the too deeply rooted contempt for non= Judaism more, the imaginary hopes expectations of supposed promises
nourish more, and the opposition with nothingness
Judaism more entertaining than the following sentences:

\

157

Sacrifice and temple service is the actual god= pleasing worship, but since such (of non= Judaism's sake) (unfortunately) cannot be practiced
he can; he must by reading the sacrifices=
laws (until better times) are replaced. »

The hope of a future savior and Redeemer is never to be given up, and in prayers the
to implore the deity for it. »

43. But this is nothing compared with the following principles of morality:
What can be more detrimental, more destructive,
Morality, even in the welfare of the bourgeois society, as doctrines of the following halts, whose clothing I make here so lenient
than is necessary.

44. «For Judaism there is no injustice:
to commit an injustice against non-Jews; the greatest usury allowed for it. Judaism fe not to keep his word against non-Jews= obliges. Stolen, robbed, lost items of the=
The same does not need to be extradited. No Jew may tell anyone anything to a non= crime committed by Jews. »

45. To whom, among many haters, fogar adds: «that Judaism is every Fraud, even perjury in court, against non= Judaism is permitted, and if any serious crime committed against a non-Jew
should be the Day of Atonement for all and everything erase and extinguish, »

158

46. As is well known, it was Mr. Eisenmenger, teacher of oriental languages in Heidelberg,
who in modern times that Rabbinical Doge
men first publicly in a detailed work
made known).

47. The fubstantial series of inductions= reasons notwithstanding, which for the truth of the Be= announcement of that man, although not in all and every part, but taken as a whole fpeak, and of which I only the following
wants to highlight:

a. How much the spirit of Judaism knows already in itself, even more so in view of what the historical has bent to the same, to the=
the same back, how noticeable they are, moreover, in the
The actions and activities of the Jews are described when one only has to look at the horrible, above all ignorance beyond and towards want to see.

*) Everything and everything arises from the need for time. So long the Jews lived quietly and in silence in our ferm Vaterland, one cared for their theological=moral principles, and what about History of the work delivered by that man
I want to briefly describe what you hear.
After its publication (1704) it was commissioned by the Jews were confiscated by the then Reich Court, in their Synagogues burned under anathema. As a result but it was, by higher orders, at the university

Halle was subjected to a revision, which – for the Work decided, and accordingly to Königsberg 1 11 of Newly published.

159

b. How much do they stand, those doctrines, which in Judaism's dominant fanaticism. Every positive religion has not only a veneer of fanaticism; but such was indeed Need of humanity. Priestly third rite is harder criticizes more than he deserves. There had to be a Preference for the mountain height (Fanum), where sacrifices was, take place, and a high value had to from their priests (Fanatici) to those who ceremonies to be practiced in order to mine to elevate to solemnity, give it objective value The more or less the according to priestly interest in the altar service bound, the higher or lower was also the degree of fanaticism in the different Religions. But none on the whole earth has been characterized more by an outrageous fanaticism distinguished as the Mosaic theocracy, the indelible through so many ages. should even be transplanted.

48. We want all ceremonial laws where also the dietary laws of Judaism belong, not to be considered here, just to maintain their Sabbath, never to have wanted to spend her rest day with the one who to celebrate unitedly with all believers, who nevertheless intended to live a civil life, and it is enough to perceive from which unfortunate nature of their enthusiastic religion en ie.

160

49. Even the later appearance of the Muhammedanism did not put any obstacle in the matter Way, here with the Christians the Sunday, there to choose Friday among the Muslims, since the matter is an-fid), which, the sole selection of the day, one may take it from a h i s t o religious, physical, moral political, state and civil points of view, or as you will consider it, the most insignificant of the world.

50. Justly and fairly, Moses ordered the rest day for the good and welfare of the slaves and serfs, so that these brothers of the people have a rest from their work want. |

51. But as everywhere, he also tied here to the regulation for careful observation and unbreakable adherence to a religious Idea: that the deity (the infinite beings who gather strength and never tire) on the seventh day from the burden of creation (Earth, Sun, Moon, Firmament, and lights on it).

52. As long as the Jews have their state maintained the unity of the celebration of the Sabbath, however, must be kept, but soon after the dissolution of their national governments were scattered throughout the world, what did the Sabbath mean on Saturday celebrate.

.---

161

53. Those Jews who are in the western (parts of America), catch their Sabbath only begins when the eastern parts Asia partly half, partly completely have completed ); so that Judaism almost Friday, Saturday and Sunday his Sabbath. Of course, the same applies from the Friday of the Muslims, as well as from the Sunday of the Christians, therefore the good Lord plenty of three times 24 hours = 72 hours after each other the prayers of his children only in respect

these three religions.

54. Even these geographical terms would have completely freed Judaism from that fixed idea held; without his previous experiences
to have under his eyes when it was still his own State formed, and . and much warned, 1

*) Who live even further west than those who future on the Grande Isle in the Niagara = River
live; which island containing 20,000 acres of land Lord Mordechai=Noah for the settlement of Ju=
it has been sold.

) how far does the difference of the beginning and end of every natural Day, when both of them through all, even the smallest run through moments of time? Of course, the Jew believes in a fine restaurant: with the ringing of the bell, everyone starts Jews observed the Sabbath; instead of, for example, some started it long ago, partly already half
have completed; others in the morning, on the eve=

noon, to stand at noon, and to begin it
in part still a long way from remembering x. x.

11

162 _
what it means: religious concepts that only refer to the individual well-being of people,
and must be, to exaggerate, because in Their enemies almost always fight the Jewish Sab= bath, where they were not allowed to carry weapons,
used, and thereby brought disaster and ruin upon
the brought; without paying attention to the fact that the observance of the Sabbath, the guidance and Management of the collisions that occur,
and the circumvention of the associated formal Laws, not only so many and some Persecutions for the sole reason originally located, but also that it is in the morality
of Judaism has intervened in a most pernicious way.

And the matter is just as insignificant in histo= rfeint point of view. It would be foolish to claim: that this Saturday is a exact sequence from the first, from Moses scheduled rest day, since the time sequence in the History of all peoples of the earth on many and interrupted in some ways, and later only been arbitrarily reconnected.

It would be more foolish to say that the Jewish Saturday a complete series of the day on which the deity rested | ar *),

| *) eie, the Christians under the rule of the Romans |
ftanding, initially and subsequently calculated Construction of the city of Rome. Only after a very

| 163
55. It is even more insignificant in physic

Consideration. In every, even the smallest moment= moment, one half of the celestial bodies (with

the known difference which the twilight makes up) in shadow, and also steps out of the=

—

many centuries, when the exact chronology
had been completely lost in the Middle Ages,
people began to count according to the reformer's birth=
And so did the Jews, their calendar was after leaving Egypt; only in later times
led a rabbi, if I am not mistaken, named Scherira, the time calculation after creation
But where did this man get the exact information?
future, when the Creator of the world, this eternal beings, I began to create.

But his intention was probably more to The Jews are more focused on the Jus patrimonii of the to judge the whole earth. For (provisionally before said where Judaism in intellectual
In this respect, instead of the Jewish rabbinical theology would have been influenced by the fates
of Judaism long ago; so she laid
This is all the more important: all sentences which refer to the solution of the National Government completely failed
were now even more to be hardened, now reversible
and to prove that everything is just a test time for the Savior to be just as sure and certain appear, as honestly the end of the world

preached without the least thought to cherish: whether it is conceivable that an all-good Whoever seeks revenge, much less such revenge lengthy punishment (one now almost two thousand years of imprisonment, as the Jews
call, and therefore also their head of the zer=
scattered communities, which they had lived for many centuries= |
through to preserve, and presently again

164

out again; so that night and day progressive references in the smallest moments of time
follow each other; so that every moment of the among natural days at the same time here or there is present. They the suns stand in the middle of their surroundings, thus a un=
interrupted continuous day after them.
facing side of the celestial bodies. The very different time of the orbit of the celestial bodies around its axis, however, is determined not only by the large difference in the length of their day and night;
but they celebrate at very different times
their days and their nights; hence what is in religious respect for him, the author of the Universe, day, what is night for him, who one half of the countless celestial bodies from its suns illuminated at every moment? –
56. But the matter is more serious in ftaa ts= civil point of view. Like mentioned earlier, the exaggerated idea of

her zu stellen nicht unlaut ants lassen), the title “Sur of the captivity) exercise
could, without ever considering: that the Jews that what they are, only through themselves, and will remain; as long as they are so destructive to them
former Mosaism, on which the whole Rabbi:
nis mus is founded, in respect of the forms remain clingy.

*) See below: Judaism in .
To . e ö

165

strict observation of the formalities of the Sabbath celebration to Judaism in cosmopolitan
 In this respect, it has often become extremely detrimental in wars fein; but this was only temporary,
 How much more detrimental would this have been to the Judaism then become, as they among others
 believers, for example among us Christians,
 stay, live, and interact with the same
 wanted. |

57. The Mosaic Law forbids them from even to make fire on the Sabbath. A law, which was not designed for cold zones. An= ftill now that which is merely human rela= tive concepts in which time, circumstances,
 a different situation, different circumstances certainly a Demanding change, to model, believed the Jews=
 thum to be able to circumvent that law,
 poor, needy people among the Christians for good
 hold: for him the Jew, at his command,
 and with his will to prepare fire to
 to protect it from winter wrinkles; from which in the result: only Christian maids
 to keep, which Judaism, however, has fo many reluctance, felf – through whose fault? fo
 some prohibitions of this and that with silence

*) See below Judaism in moral terms
 considered, namely, what is the bypassing, the Um:
 fnewing of prescribed laws means, as it continues, and the inner essence of morality
 completely destroyed. |

166 | |
 for the sake of temporary causes, even persecution
 gen to way drawn.

58. It was even more worrying for Judaism
 the Sabbath celebration in relation to business= live, and therefore even worse in this regard go to the Mosaic regulations. In the Christians, the relationship of work and rest
 days = 6:1, bet the Jews on the other hand = 5: 2.
 Judaism understood this by keeping Christ
 licher) shop assistant subsequently there= change that ratio to = 7:1
 was transformed. And the more the indifferentism

this people had to spread, the further It also happened here. The new believers, the like to call themselves enlightened because basically they Believe nothing, have everything sorted out, carry
no qualms about going out publicly on their Sabbath to appear in person at the stock exchanges, but out of respect for the Mosaic Law only as it means to run a passive business. He,
the Christian must offer a bargain to get the
to bear the burden of sins committed alone.
350. And who knows (remembering in passing that it belongs to where Judaism in historical

In this respect, whether the persecution

*) See above: First section p. 16, where the Contribution of Christians to the rise of the Jews are mentioned; and further down in the fifth ee §. 98 and ff. e are taken into consideration been 1607

in Spain would have been so hard if the Jews, as they became a significant had achieved significant prestige, not the rigid attachment to their Sabbath,
who had the bold presumption to later
harshly reprimanded: that the Christians have their peace=
day can definitely be moved to N Sabbath should.

60. This requires a closer
The Jewish trade there was merely trade of the time; they would never have come up with that idea
But they were, says the story,
there, as later in Poland, for example, through Pach=
ments, through purchases, through pledges and debts
prescriptions etc. for the possession of very many lands=
On the Jewish Sabbath the farmer who became a serf, a slave=
had sunk, personally to work
ben, got into trouble with the religious duties which the Mosaic Law prescribes, in Collision; the
But on Sunday, on the Christian
To stop working on a day of rest, his religion region too close; but both from the side of the Jews too unite, was them at that time, when still far lower levels of intellectual culture, so

rather, it is an abomination of all abominations.

61. All these circumstances taken together:
to select needy people from among the Christians,
which, without violating Judaism, abolished the Sabbath
had to be holy; written servants, oh rift=

168

to employ qualified shop assistants who will be responsible for the .
To violate the Mosaic Law, rw. How best Does this mean that Jews are being treated against Christians?
in all this a certain respect for us? Is Here too, Judaism is merely a passive point of view, so that if it
of love, respect, consideration towards the same missing, we alone are to blame?

62. It is in fact very clear in the preceding
It has been pointed out how far Jewish Writers have tried to spread Judaism everywhere to be considered only in the passive state) in order to every hatred of Judaism towards non-Jewish people to be able to roll. But I fear that if someone else can do the same to the latter

) In the history of the Jewish people, one has only
the persecutions suffered by the same among all people
core without exception under eyes, and yet
A Mr. Buchholz (the younger one) also dares to historical documents, all historical truths

Despite the fact that the legal, honest ancestors
Giving preference to scorn, ridicule, slander,
to add: Judaism is so long, so hard,
and – – innocently (!) persecuted:
den, in order to through this completely composed means Mit=
cause suffering, damage, derive claims assert, and at the same time men who Judaism relevant, and therefore also historically true
and sincerely illuminate, in a hateful light, where possible to be able to stand up.

There are judgments of this kind in the world that truly
have no criterion whether he is wrong or bribed
Understand she liked it. |

169

folgte, then a heavy bill may arise,
of which the result of the fairest judgment between
There will be nothing else for both of them than: how holy Judaism spread everywhere to other peoples up to whose innermost being has been influenced.

c. Furthermore, the previously mentioned In= duction reasons: that in history several Examples occur that the Rabbis are f worse=
However, it was forbidden to teach the Talmud,

yes, that he even gave them orders from the administration=

been taken, namely, as stated
will corrupt morals, even human beings=
hostile principles contained therein
are.

d. Furthermore: the remark already mentioned above knowledge that the work of Mr. Eisenmenger is a strict revision and repeated expert opinion
several men who were for have decided the same.

e. Furthermore: that as a result such a large series of writers by highlighting these and those sentences from the Talmud to the Jew=
thum partly made the same accusation, partly
have pointed out most emphatically.

f. But what among all inductive reasons deserves to be at the top are the writings of the
Mr. Friedländer and Mr. Cohen. Both of them

Belonging to Judaism, of course, was not to expect that they will give the public a proper Enlightenment on the Spirit of Rabbinical Dog

t

men, especially in relation to non-Jews
gave; however, how such of them are judged has been, is already enough for a much further
to be allowed to close.

63. Mr. Friedländer just noted how from the Christian side, the raw ignorance=
ity of the Rabbis, and where the transformation
of Jewish worship in the synagogues,
the educational institutions, the educational system
He admits that they, the environment
education does not divide one part and the other
but that the whole inner being fen must be converted in one cast »
and elsewhere this enlightened man speaks *)

*) This venerable name is deserved by the Right. For as far as his thoughts, all attachment=
ity in the Mosaic theocracy regardless of Reforms are directed, emerge from his following words: ö
The food laws belong in our days only
and alone before the judgment seat of the healer » ;

And how he generally speaks about the ceremonial "laws
judges, the following words reveal this.

Those ceremonial laws have so much against sit= and manners of contemporaries that they appear adventurous and provoke laughter
had to. »

This is what a believer of the Mofaif religion says,
Such a man could and should not be treated more harshly
do not judge. |

But what is the verdict of the Christians on this matter, the Participants? In the religious segregation of the Jews
the customs that conflict with completely alien ones

171

following memorable words: moral duties
would not have confused with sacred ceremonies accompanied, there was such a deep contempt for Christ

ften, which not only amazes, but also laughs,
but even scorn and ridicule from the masses,

if not the loudest contempt of the better thinkers; so that when that talisman
not his magic power on the minds of the great heap could have exercised, from the opposition respect a far greater misfortune unfortunately
would have emerged. |

For, could any nonsense ever be carried further
as: an animal slaughtered by Christians is considered unclean,
for atrocities such and such parts only for non-Jews

to be considered worthy of eating; the most innocent to a Jew

the offered food or drink (a pure but= terbrod, a glass of wine) with a look of bewilderment
interpretation, from which the deepest contempt emerged, of fic). Not only a separate Sabbath to celebrate, but poor people among the Christians
to use it to desecrate the Sabbath, etc.

The Christians also admitted that wealthy people from their midst donate a penny served; one could still feel the shame that was rin was to consider only Christians good enough for such hold.

In addition, if on Saturday
at sunset, when the smaller population=
class is particularly numerous in the streets, the one and the other past the dwellings of the Jews
came, and that, how should we call it, with no Animal howling comparable cries of Judaism devotions. The wild, desolate, unruly
what was in the tones, tones that soon reached the quietest
ft humming and murmuring, soon suddenly ly to loud, wild screaming (judge for yourself

172

must have been, one should never have thought that through more frequent observation of these, which Vienna ever= to find a penance. »

Mr. Cohen) appeared to almost everyone loud shouting to God, but finally their wanting to fulfill hopes.

"They are calling on their Messiah again," was once a common, widespread vernacular language;

back then, when the unusual had an even deeper impact
put pressure on the people, "that should, it was said,
come and destroy us Christians together. »

This sad look back to earlier times leads me to the remark: that it is already the Jewish history
white sake would be very desirable: that someone faithfully, truly and accurately recorded how the Be= behavior and behaviour of the Jews formerly Such a pragmatic historical representation
would shed a lot of light on the present state of Judaism, since the previous current situation, circumstances and the conditions of the Jews
to the Christians such a powerful influence in their
had a character that centuries have not forgotten.
wipe, sometimes never erase
can. – >

I have in the above mentioned writing (hon in Viel
and pointed out some things, but it contradicted completely my inclination the Jew as he was six decades was to be presented in full dress.

And even if some things are too bright, too striking since then been eliminated, what the eye of the audience would have been too conspicuous; how Much may still be said about the fanatical way of thinking and Judaism's way of acting in its inner being still left feyn.

Only one thing: when a Jew moves into a house,

ches until then Christians have inhabited; so the 173

64. Even stronger are the words But Rab= binišć dogmas of Mr. Cohen: «As long as the Jews, he says, among the Rabbinical Dogmas (which ones?) remain, such as infallibly recognize, any attempt will Reforming the cult is futile. »

65. Not only to reform the cult, add
I add, but much more will be at the festival=
hold Rabbinical dogmas completely in vain

Without completely changing the positive Judaism, salvation is never to be thought of! –

66. But Mr. Cohen nevertheless continued the work that Orientalist, of insightful, of knowledgeable wealthy men of a high school of German country, examined by several men in the Consequence confirmed, from submitted report be= superstitious Jew, according to popular legend,

all wallpapers, no matter how beautiful they may be,
because the polluted breath of the Christians is not so walls, as well as on the doors, windows and floor washed away, and the house was not completely consecrated can be given. |

But how far does disgust and Contempt against Christians? Is there really no insult? Can something like this express affection, love, Awaken warmth in the hearts of Christians?
But Judaism may be on the path it has now entered, and immeasurably wide open path to the spirit of Judaism, progressing; they become fifth tear down the houses of the Christians and build new ones
have it built in its place to create completely unspoiled
to be able to live in houses. |

ATA

"

fatit, to call it a smear, to describe it with such popular to use derogatory names,

to the already mentioned countless series

shameful, loveless judgments of Jewish writers;
belongs all the more there if one looks at the prayer formulas cited by him (Cohen) only casts a single glance and sees what corrupting spirit of Judaism.

67. And suppose those men were really in their justified zeal against the highest immoral principles have gone too far;
They do not serve any blasphemy, they deserve
rather, the most heartfelt thanks, for the benefit of the

to have contributed something to humanity; the Humanity, I say, that those efforts to immediately on the ee of the Jews vigorously purposes! – – .

68. All of these 8 induction= But regardless of the reasons, I still never be able to persuade that what Rabbini= fic dogmas is stated throughout the Une start true and can be determined. Being moral feeling should not be at first glance look of the same highly shocked, from Abfchen and be taken with reluctance.

70. At least they must be for my individual duality as inductive reasons. Because every word that I, except the Jewish Rabbini= fic theology, written about Judaism is from my own many years of experience, from personal observation and careful private fung was created and written down, since I but not in the possession of the oriental ä *)

175

*) Just for the sake of the founable idea that the one who: cher wants to claim the name of scholar, actually have to know everything, despite the greatest Scholars, if much is done by him, at most only a ashlar to the immense building of knowledge, to which the materials only are collected, of which a very small part is useful; and in its performance is still a long way off, I make the following assumption note here.

Despite the fact that I am not a language learner the Greeks and Romans in possession of the living language European, which means no small inclination to foreign

l Learning languages may be connected, I saw the

: Learning Hebrew not only the translations

always considered superfluous for the sake of provisions, but it found at the same time an insurmountable aversion

Which can be explained from the following:

t! At the front of a language stands the character of a

1 nation written legibly, whether crude or educated,
f hardness or mildness, softness, pampering or
i Seriousness and firmness, slavishness, secrecy,
re or self-confidence and openness 2. in a nation
5 is predominant.

And may the climate have a great influence! in the well-being=
' according to a language, more will he through the character of a nation determined, indeed completely described,
5 insofar as he is through the interference of a foreign people=
1 il Nothing of its originality is lost

N at

ths But what euphony is based on, as far as I know,
A has not yet been properly stated by any linguist:

m den. But it does not only consist in the relationship

176

am to create an end from the originals judgment; that is what remains for me to

of consonants and vowels, in alternation
the latter, especially that not one and the same Vowel predominant (like the i in Italian and the e in German often fills entire lines);
but, it should be noted that it is the German Language is that just as little every syllable, as every Word does not have a vowel as the final tone, because the articulated voice of the people through this from the animal sounds, which are almost commonly linked to vowels; then in Ver=
reduction of the so hateful guttural sounds, the hissing
sounds of the snakes, the equally wide diphthongs etc. w., u. f. w.

Precisely for this reason, the euphony of a language from this
From this point of view, the internal Build such an excellent Spanish language
preference over all others, instead of the Italian Language can only please women and children.

Precisely for this reason, the character of the Spaniards is that of the Portuguese, as the sister

Languages of both relate to each other. That is why
The introverted character of the English may can be recognized by the fact that so often and much a vowel drawn into the other (not, as they say,
that one merges with the other);
so that no one is clearly audible; like the living,
Fiery, immoral behavior in the French character is so clearly
lich in that almost consistently the tone is put on ultima, instead of Greeks and Germans have an incredibly large number of dactyls.
This is why the Old German language has the advantage over by the Slavic peoples, namely by Guttural tones and adverse diphthons distorted dialect. This is precisely why euphony is 177 character of a strictly truth-loving writer

fstellers everywhere to claim, Nothing left but ask the following questions.

71. Can one already rely on the statement that Orientalist, to the statement of those who have subjected him to criticism, to the Wieder= fetches of other men, which will be discussed later goods given by one and the other= already completely abandoned, or does the matter require another strict revision? –

72. But if one is sure that the true
To get your hands on the originals?
one would find that partly in the letter, partly in the
According to the spirit of Judaism, it can then not from the side of present-day Judaism mean: although it cannot be denied that in
In the rougher times the Rabbis such and such highly reprehensible principles were cultivated and taught have, whereupon even Jewish writers noticeable finger pointer thrown; so one is

from that point of view, the German
tion as long as a solid, honest, serious nation
remain as long as they retain their core, masculine strength= full language with all the defects of euphony (the
the Greek sound n, which, among many others
words, still to the infinitives of both
A tribe belonging languages, not can replace) is retained.

Oieß may in relation to the Hebrew language enough, as I like their tohu wa wohu could.

12

178

in modern times far, far from it
come?

13. It may even be possible that moral writings, even by rabbis vder Others, which Containing theories which are those who in the valley
are exactly the opposite of what they should be.

For example, the excellent writing of the un=
greedy Mendelssohn already has an unmistakable proof: that present-day Judaism is the doctrine of immortality completely?

74. There remain the following phrases:
although those tenets are not fully are still left, what is still of still maintain the same at present, which lies already from them in the spirit of Judaism? Is,
In the words of Mr Friedländer,
inner being already transformed in one fell swoop?
At least what has been eliminated is already
of the entire population of Jews
hen, or is the rougher class of them not much= no longer completely devoted to them? And has the spirit of Judaism itself in the, or rather the
has already lost all its influence?

75. It is difficult to assume that the Jew who is expelled from the Rabbinical sentences, as soon as a collision
of the interest between a Jew and a non-Jew
ftplace, the following sentence is completely ignored
should read: "that if a Jew before a 179

pagan (un-Jewish, Christian) tribunal

an oath by the name of Jehovah, he the= hurts the same, and practices idolatry; v for what another, except the indifferentism that exists in the Jew= thum is currently so predominant, further below There is also a memorable circumstance to be mentioned.

76. So Judaism in modern times ten, except the indifferentists, in the old glau= big and new-believing party, especially the Secondary source of back and forth talk about what Jews= thum is, and what it is not, has decayed; The latter may, apart from the establishment of public temple decorated according to the rites of the Christians, no matter how much those Rabbinical dogmas are neglected= fet, despise yourself; may the hostilities between the two parties, no matter how big, The Rabbinical=Synagogical Cultus is much more than to the side. The contempt of the new believers only serves to strengthen them, for further confirmation of this and that Rabbi=

Niš sentences. The old-believing party has the large, completely uneducated crowd of on his side, on which Rabbinical dogmas have an even more terrible influence in itself can; without looking at the heavy content, which represents the rougher class in the spirit of the Jew= thums lies: to be the only people of God, the more it is in Mosaic torn clothes= But since it is difficult, I would say, impossible to determine from the written source,

180

how detrimental still currently the and the retained dogmas of the rabbis in morality of the Jewish people and from there also into the morality of those among whom they live fen; so the possible moral improvement of the Jews absolutely necessary and unavoidable necessary:

That the state authorities everywhere use the Rabbinical Completely abolish synagogical worship, and such to the public Jewish service, where, it is the Sabbath or holiday, both Jews and Christians have equal access.

77. That the lecture, prayers, songs, to be held and practiced only in the national language
It goes without saying that this is the case. But what Respect for the Organization of the Educational System
with regard to Jewish Rabbinical dogmas
I will skip over this, as here is a
an even more slippery path is to be entered; which, since in every positive religion, even more so in a such as the Jewish, an esoteric and exoteric teaching can never take place,
as long as Judaism remains Judaism, to a secure goal, regardless of all R,
will lead to.

Doctrine of the immortality of the soul, which whatever Judaism may be today.

78. What a strange mixture, here and worthy of the most serious consideration, the 181 history of humanity. The Gentiles were idolaters, and – taught a future existence. The Jews worshiped one single one God, and knew the teaching of the immortals=

ity is definitely not).

79. But ideas may be in respect of their
No matter how wrong their clothing, they will be means for the charitable purpose of mankind needs; they must be tolerated, even upright
be kept.

80. One has therefore au saci the but believe that they have done a great injustice about what in pagan theology, with regard to the future being, from Tartarus, from Elisa=
fic fields, from Minos, from Mercury and Charon *), from the various special harsh punishments for this and that kind of crime!)
It is said that he mocked so often and so much.

* According to a strange theory, their blood
the soul of the animal body: Remember,
it is in the dietary laws that you do not eat the blood,
For the blood is the soul, therefore thou shalt
Soul does not effect with the flesh.» –

* Which the souls on the unknown path
into the underworld.

*) The fine, correct feeling of those peoples characterized also in that they are not one and the same punishment, one and the same hell for those who deviate
the offenses determined.

He should, Minos once said about a miser,
pronounced a judgment that he should return to the upper world,
and see how fine heirs deal with fine inheritance.

\

182

81. The basis of these forms: fort=ongoing existence and future responsibility
struction of his actions, had all the strange Regardless of clothing, the most charitable influence on the morality of those peoples.
Therefore, it is only explainable: that, despite the Gentiles who were so despicable in the eyes of the Jews Idolater, and in this respect therefore deeply beneath
the religious dignity of Judaism, nevertheless, they do not have nearly as much and some vices, sins, even gross crimes found than among the Jews, about which their own teachers often and often the loudest Lawsuits have been brought, committed, because that redemption festival nor the most disadvantageous Another circumstance was that Mofaism not only no immortality of the soul is taught, but has pointed out the opposite everywhere.

82. But let us take from morality the doctrine of
of immortality; the whole collapses moral buildings together). Not only this,

*) I do not mean to claim that
1. B. a Lucretius would not have been an extremely righteous can be a morally excellent man.

But it is not enough that the development of human nature's abilities to take a progressive course observed, but the intellectual powers must be a relatively proactive progress

observe, so that the insight into the one e.g.
physical, intellectual objects, the one 183

the religious building leaning against it crumbles into ruins along with that one. Has the religion of reason is therefore a highly important important, highly beneficial discovery in the field of religious knowledge, it is that extremely beneficial teaching. Because, what gran zenless lack of conscience must be present in everyone, even more with a rough, moreover with others in opposition people in all their hands=
which is merely a temporal punishment

has to fear, therefore nothing, absolutely nothing to do what is on one

can be withdrawn in any way.

83. This gives rise to the very serious Question: what is the doctrine of immortality to the Judaism today? To its positive religion region, according to Mosaism, it does not belong)!
The Thalmud teaches, like the other theological gischen e of Judaism dieftsame?“ Sit fie

view of others, e.g. moral, ech
objects advance.

But never can humanity achieve a
to attain such moral education that those Teaching is not and remains not an essential need for them;
so that they of their future fate, their moral actions could be without concern.

) Which contained an emanation idea: Man returns to dust from which it came, and his spirit returns to the Godhead, which gives him life breathed into us, and his spirit flowed forth from us
tft. e |

184

been elevated to a religious principle,
and will assist in the education of Jewish youth
presented as a fundamental religious truth,
or does it depend only on individual opinion
of every Jew, which is associated with indifferentism
connected, the more hopelessly interferes with morality?

84. How is this to any information to get there? Have you seen the unscrupulous actions of Judaism, it concerns
Perjury, usury etc., fo arise from the same
Opinions emerge that are based on that doctrine
not point out, rather they speak too loudly:
either: that a person married to a non-Jew
injustice committed before God is not injustice;
or: that at least the redemption date is all
erase again; |
or: that there is probably no future responsibility=
reality takes place before the judgment seat of the deity.

85. But what the history of Judaism
As far as the above is concerned, this can also help us little in this Hand go. She says: among the little by little sects that emerged from every interest
calculated, artificially composed positive Religion, the Sadducees
the immortality denied, which in the lower written letters of the Mosaic lectures
remained standing; the Pharisees, on the other hand, have taught a future being, but at the same time the Transmigration of souls accepted, connected with the idea that Plato also had:

185

namely that the souls of certain committed misdeeds
because of the punishment of the same for a certain time

be imprisoned in a body Y; that,

furthermore the Karaites, the Essenes (the latter
a kind of monks, or hermits) to a future
believed in existence, but not to the place ho=
Doren Parthet was counted.

86. Even the most recent public published lectures (speeches, sermons)
which are kept in the newly built temples,

do not express anything that leads to the positive religion of Judaism. Although it however, point to a future existence, embarrassing enough passages from the Old Testament, which do not contain that doctrine at all, with the seek to combine the relevant lecture; so It should nevertheless be noted that the Temple brothers not only in the middle of the Orthodox party and the indifferentists N but that their pre=

*) The most ridiculous idea of all antiquity, which does not contain the very important propositions of the theory of causality knew, namely: that every active force outside itself requires a passive object on which it acts; that only homogeneous things act in= and on each other can; whereas heterogeneous things (as spirit and physical world) do not directly relate to each other are able to act, and therefore for them a medium (organized body) must take place. Accordingly, the organization 2 the necessary absolutely indispensable link between must be between the material and the immaterial.

186

Publicly, even in the presence of Christians

its happens. Since the Jewish darkness also can not rest completely here, but rather loudly lets us hear: "that Judaism is based on a other ways") to the worship of God; fuch would strike all the more hard, if that doctrine of Christianity is so completely would be ignored. --

87. What now of these 3 in the Jews= thum takes place, who other than Jewish theologians namely the Orthodox party, can only only provide the official information about it, and it asks whether Judaism is not obliged about such an extremely important matter to make a representation.

Erypto-Judaism or Illusion= Christianity. \

88. The words in my previous writing I do not take back in any way,

I rather present it once again to the most serious consideration.

*), But why such a hateful sideways glance: Truth is a unity, there is only one way to it. Such words explain what is beyond that path is, even if only indirectly, untrue.

Furthermore, why is confirmation both the test that has taken place, as the faith that has been laid down confession has been withheld from publicity? see Dr. Kley's sermons in the new Sfraelitifchen Temple held in Hamburg, 1819.

187

They read as follows:

«We should have said back then, when we were recording the Jews, somehow think, somehow suspect, and in spirit, to avert all future dangers, be able to foresee that a time will come

could mean that a simulated Christianity could be a cover= cloak of sophisticated plans and designs, that Jews can freely say in societies: Should one or the other circumstance ever occur, well, I turn fuch and fuch much that I receive a baptism certificate. »

The words that express my own feelings concerning, added find:

Truly, I know by the displeasure of the Emotionally, no matter that requires greater seriousness, and has a more important meaning in itself, as a thief.»)

89. If previously blind religious zeal fo many Jews forced profelites to join their re= religion; we hear today that this and that Jew of his own free will Name of Christ. But how and on how he got there, knows No one either; so that the claim that he is still a Jew, and counter-claim that he is a Christian, equally strong takes place, all the more so,

if such an individual is still in close traffic, in the most precise dealings with others

*) p. 192 et seq. there.

188

Jews continue to be the public religious service, the church contributions to withdraw 9, and more than in secret
for the interests of the Jews on the ground works.

90. This already shows what Crypto=
Judaism is to be kept, even more do the History of Judaism points to this. Countless,
In fact, find the already ) occurring there

!

*) From one to the Catholic religion, according to legend,
The following was told to the Jews who had converted: A
The parish had a collection of charitable offerings
The collectors also come to him, he addressed them: I am not a Jew, not a Catholic, lick, not Protectant, sa bin Nothing, and give nothing either.

) One should never forget to remind you that the historical aspect of Judaism, to the irreplaceable disadvantage of a complete history of the same,
been completely ignored.

You, the history that is mostly based on world-
civil affairs on the internal and external fates of entire states, entire nations
ftränke, in whose catastrophe Jews not even.
played supporting roles, just spectators and fans
have been generous, so big here and there your indirect participation in the preparations of these and those events may have been, they, the History, Judaism has only existed everywhere
found noteworthy when quite extraordinary incidents, it was rebellion of the same against those under which they lived, or rebellion against them and taken, it affected. But then the History is an event that is the result of countless

|

189

Examples: that Jews often return to Jews,
thum when they converted to non-Jewishness
(to Christianity, among the European peoples)
have been transferred; as soon as circumstances
He who permitted them to do so. He who has the spirit of the Jew=
thumbs, who is astonished by such things=
not. And just as history shows, that they, the Jews, where there is no return to Judaism was allowed to take place publicly, in secret
not only attached to the faith of their ancestors remained), but at home through every conceivable

previous causes, but since Ju= denthum has never been given official consideration,
the news of the world is completely withdrawn, and
the remedy was given, even then, even more in
the result, apart from any historical context,
it is up to the judge to decide for or against it.

*) Even now, it is said, 150,000 notes=
Christians in the two kingdoms of Spain and Portugal; from whose number the one and Others to high state offices even to clerical
Dignity has arrived, but in secret the Jew=
remain completely faithful to it.

This circumstance, by the way, has this and gave that Jew the opportunity to in Spanish newspapers about the state affairs there words spoken in the name of God: God is still watching

about Sfrael», to give a special interpretation:
as if returning for Jews there again under the
may be opened under current circumstances.

It is, and may Jews, through experience be= teaches to go there and be happy. But whoever the spirit of theocracy in Christendom, the
to inherit all the promises given to Judaism

ridicule of their religious » anger to appease
fent, whose revelation so many unfortunate occurrences here and there, the Art that the most impartial historian cannot can say who they are actually a burden to,
whether they are the intolerance of one or the fanatical
spirit must be attributed to the other party.

91. Even more so will that just concern about modern proselites in religious terms
This is strengthened when the acquirendi mode is used
which often falls into a moment in time,
if a collision between Jewish claims,
and Christian opposition; so that the religious, suddenly emerged super= conception probably no different than from one of the flowed from the dirtiest sources. –

92. The matter is just as serious in burg er= lichen circumstances. The Crypto=Ju= denthum is also far more detrimental in this respect than Judaism itself. For the S ie a Christ, who on this chosen path to citizen= legal rights, is now even more able his Jewish co-religionists at the expense of
to favor the honest party, just like that many advantages than he could give to this and has such a person through

have once claimed that the synonymous
not, he knows what is meant by that word (Iftael)
should actually be understood.

i

191

to gain influence through his wealth
knows; he can access the Deterioration of Christians hourly and daily work towards, thus he has it at the same time in his Violence: the necessarily regulated coexistence=
dependence of all parts of the body politic
to loosen things up, to change the situation,
which the total parts among and against each other held to always keep upright so that not a caste for civil society
and therefore disadvantageous to the state receive).

93. And no less serious is the matter from the moral side and in relation on the dignity of Christianity. A such a Crypto=Jew or Pseudo=Christian acts,
of course, even more unscrupulous according to the reasons
of Judaism. Actually, since he is fine
Private interest is entirely tied to the proselytization,
he acts as an enemy of both parties.
but such an individual subsequently this and that crime of irresponsible loyalty=
looseness, so here too what Jews=
thum alone has to bear, on Christianity «He is a Christian,» it is said of the

*) It is precisely that very important circumstance on which detailed discussion where Judaism continues to a political science standpoint
is considered, the statement is primarily based on: whether,
and how Judaism forms a state within the state.

—

192

treacherous language of the Jews, as such
he could act like that, as a Jew he would not have done more.) And, furthermore, Judaism fuch little respect for non-Jewishness, how deep must

Christianity in his eyes sinks when Jews

for a few pieces of silver he acquired the name of Christ
buy it and display it for mockery
can wear! — —

94. Words that are serious and enough to every country's authority conscientiously ft whether a statute of the main content should be design:

a. That every Jew who wants to be a proselyte
the previous sole use according to Cfo as such unchanged in some states most glorious is maintained), fhis assumed belief=

confession, after previous free election and careful examination, publicly in the churches, in the presence of a solemn veneration collection, filing;

b. that those married to Christian families children to all civil dignities and offices can reach);

c. and should such a baptized Jew be in the guilty of a serious crime, he then all the more according to the provisions of the law

to punish relentlessly, probably even from the community to completely exclude Christians.

*) In older statutes it says: only the grandchildren.
a 1 |

193

That newly restored use the proselytes would face a much greater cause concern, as the one from which Nie~~man~~ man knows whether he is really a Christian or not, as how far he continued his contact with Jewish houses how much he was committed to public religion service, and how less he then be entitled to a so-called to allow free choice to remain with Judaism, or also convert to Christianity.

95. However, one places the public religious act an objection: Some Jew, it is said, would attract public attention, with regard to the celebrations to be held len, do not like to become a proselyte, so much inclination he always wants to have it.

96. But to what extent religious dignity is connected with Morality is so closely linked with state advantage if rich Jewish houses quietly convert to Christianity, and whether here is not a way out) to mediate fey, about I leave it to the consideration of other men.

*) For example, that a private baptism can only be performed by the appointed priests; that for this Private act six witnesses would have to be required, elected from among the number of respected citizens who at the same time are known everywhere as honest men; that these men on the future lifestyle of their Godparents have to look after that the acceptance of Christ ftence of such a baptized person publicly be made etc.

13

*

194

97. And just as they are already increasing= paint partly threatened, partly actual events inheritance is concerned, I will skip the following juri= Jewish discussion: whether Jewish parents or blood relatives are absolutely right to have their children or relatives, the acceptance of the Christian to disinherit because of religion, or whether the laws

with full right to invalidate such disinheritance

I ignore them all the more because Laws of this kind already, apart from many other creeping because of the donations inter vivos et mortis causa to be completely avoided, and perhaps as useless would stand there, unless there is a well thought out measure= rules against taking action.

195

Third section.

Judaism in moral terms both in and outside of his homeland.

A. In their homeland.

1. We are currently approaching the Discussion of the one mentioned above
loud contradictions about Judaism, where it must be viewed from a moral perspective.
2. I honestly confess that it is for me a embarrassing feeling the words of Mr. Fried=
country: ee |

D They deserve consideration alone, because they were chosen by such a respectable man spoken. By the way, a lot of bows= number will not be sufficient if I have the g belonging here Statements by Jewish writers in general
wanted to lead. | | |

In very rude words, for example, Voß says:

«If the vices of the Christians are equal to the vices of the Jews
be set aside; if so, the Cons
kurenz exist. » oe u

All publicly known facts about
Despite this, Fränkel proceeds even more boldly:

« Offenses, he says, among the Indians:
are among the unusual exceptions, like this 196

"The Jews stand on the ladder of moral Worthiness not one step lower than any another, no matter how learned, polished and cultured
fourth people. –

proven by the trial records of all courts
can be. » –

And the trial records of so many courts
are the ones who prove, according to the public communicated extracts and announcements: that Jews in particular, on the so pernicious path of peddling, concealing stolen goods etc.
more than a share in the fowe wicked thieves= and Nauber gangs, even leaders of the same
have been here and there."

Truly, discontent must finally take hold of one,

if one can accept such lies and deception, the Jewish Writers everywhere have to refute. Ha=ben then those men (except Mr. Christensen, Brill, Grollmann, Pfifter and various Other) Untruths from the court files moved out? Is it the state newspapers that Many and often incidents of this kind have been made known, only concerned about making lies public bring? And what else does it contain in present days? the Official Gazette of the Government of Cleve, under Andern vom Hamb. Correspondenten N. 6, 1820 communicated?

Neither trouble nor anger are Jewish writers, almost all of them state: «that the number executed Christian criminals the Jews far exceeds. »

In fact, it would be strange if

Ratio of the number of Jews to that of non-Jews – 20: 980 million that ratio would be completely equal, then Judaism would be almost 50 percent worse, than all of humanity here on earth.

197

The night ends completely opposite to sweep. Not celestial bodies of the most distant Solar systems can be so far apart stand apart, as here between assertion and counter=

The Jews are commercially active on the Christian stock exchanges.

ft the always ready computers, where the ratio

5 Reason) has to calculate truths, because understand fit does not mean being unique.

Moreover, how many criminal crimes may be committed by Jews have always been covered with eternal night Crimes committed both among themselves and against non-Jews who, in the eyes of the world= court, partly by the previously quick burial, partly by the obligation: not to harm any Jew in respect of crime committed by the authorities against a non-Jew

to indicate and partly judged by non-Jewish authorities, to have been considered the greatest disgrace; precisely for this reason
also what history so often and cites a lot: namely that the Jews everywhere
have striven to get their criminals out of the hands of the courts of the non-Jews; so that they themselves with 50,000
Thaler according to our money a criminal from the
The authorities have redeemed them. Which is also is one of the Christian missteps.

The following is also worth noting: «a French Jewish writer says: in German Country is among twelve executed criminals
ftill eleven Jews, whereas in France among all
There is almost no Jew among those executed! » –

So different are the roles which Jewish writing= fettters in the different countries. To truths, they always follow the sentence:
The means are equal, as long as the end is
will be enough. |

198

claim is found flatt, even if here on the
should be judged most leniently.

3. But in the counter-claim: that in the essential components of the Ju= denthum a much greater advance
to immorality, from the inner essence of Judaism, somehow missing;
fo one presents the evidence presented
not statements of power, but evidence
so that the former is untrue, at least not as durable must be subject to these.

4. How Judaism from the moral side to be considered in their homeland, that is feven in the previous section: Judaism from illuminated from the religious side, mostly pointed out the powerful influence namely the religious, civil and cosmopolitan Jewish components of Judaism in the character of the Jews. Because:

a. The sight of so many of them covered with blood
tainted victim put hardness into her character,
Brutality, wildness, even cruelty.

It stifled all noble feelings, the sole Driving forces of noble, glorious, humane lungs. |

b. The very large number of rest, festival and Holidays fed laziness, indolence, well-being life, sweet tooth, tendency to indulgence fweufung 1c.

c. The religious concepts in Gering=

199

ftate, even deep contempt for non-Jews=
thum created pride, darkness rw. extinguished the last spark of the general people=
love out.

d. The Means Based on the Promises nations fed even more than the idea: except

.

chosen people of God, presumptions
of all kinds, created, because of interest, the fo unshakable devotion to doctrines
a selfish salary of their ancestors.

e. The Moses theocracy established led to the redemption festival, which the priesthood

however, it gave a higher venerability to better the people's view of the value of the altar=
service, to be able to bind oneself to it,
gave rise to vices of all kinds, since
which made the commission of new crimes so easy.

f. Incessant civil wars lead to wilderness
ten the already rough, inclined to wildness Cha= actors even more.

g. Frequent invasions, conquests and departures=
flugging from their homeland drove the National Hatred to an ever higher degree,

the, with gained strength, nameless revenge on their enemies; so that those through whom blood= sacrificial, wildness into the most inhuman Cruelty everywhere and everywhere against overcame their enemies.

5. But exercised revenge and awareness

some guilt committed at home, laid in her

: 200

Character a cowardly fearfulness, a

with combined arrogance in happiness, a dadon

inseparable despondency in misfortune.

i.e. lack of arts and sciences, complete lack of contact with other people tions from which their religious separation fo completely excluded, robbed them of the fo well= active powerful influence that they had in the military change of the brutality and wildness of an uncultured ten, and which this in the downvote of a seized by darkness and self-sufficiency people.

| i. Primarily farming and raising livestock=

of the people, this led to the lack of operation of the arts and sciences, as well as of trade, and the resulting higher industry already in itself to retail trade and usury, even more so in respect of of the latter, through a poorly calculated by Moses net state maxim, which the pernicious= ft germ of the spirit of usury, of skulking the laws &c. fo indelibly deep into the character of the Jews, about which I made the following digression I am compelled to do so.

6. He who first utters the word state

Whoever has served the railway has, truly, the people ft in the social contract, through= from unknown.

7. The dead, physical nature, so much nab some causality conditions for such

and to observe such success, shout
 yet nevertheless everywhere in a highly uniform gait.

8. It is not so in the living, even active world, here man does not appear as a dead, will-less wheel, which can be given any
 can give a big change, he is not there,
 as a person who is to be kept passive everywhere
 object; rather, he is endowed with inalienable powers given, for his and his family's well-being, the bourgeois society not only unscathed,
 but to his pious, to care, because of
 for the salvation of all only the marriage of the e can depend on.

9. Moreover, the powers bestowed upon humanity

Forces so easily movable that already in the next Moment every active force, be it through a mere alternative, or by immediately
 can become no. 28

10. But how deep the reaction in the direction of the state relations,
 This is the most important focus of all and every state maxim, which everywhere leads to have seen: that measures taken general unity that they are on all and every parts of the entire state body
 but if any measure is directed at individual parts should be particularly directed, then
 to see what success they might produce

can, to advantage and Nad thei! exactly opposite-to be able to weigh each other, as easily as thwarting interest, a intended profit in one part Schade in others often even in all other parts= can arise which can have a highly detrimental effect on those falls back).

11. What is just said in terms of state
What has been said also applies to civil matters
Here too, state maxims have Consideration should be given to whether what is necessary for the
To the detriment of one, and to the advantage of others
is not intended by them as a means can be used, resulting in an even greater
It is a pity for them. And just as well: whether that that which is beneficial for these and for others is detrimental, not from those as 5

*) This includes financial = operations. 3. B. Customs= taxes on foreign industrial goods, the profit of which through the damage of the paralyzed domestic industry
still far more than compensates for.

States have to punish the Jews for their conspicuous behavior.
urgency, the debut of the lottery tickets
into their hands. What incalculable damage but has emerged for states, especially As for the Lotto di Genoa. What about poor=

on sick people = on prisons on the other hand must! How costly is the gendarmerie through the immorality has become; in which lottery games
above all, has so much guilt and share? –

~~

203

means to an even greater misfortune for the latter

to be used).

12. Moses had the good intention of too great a disproportion between the assets
to prevent (especially the so important Mo= ment, which currently moves against Judaism
the lesser against oppression of the Protect the larger ones, at the same time the family property

secure, and in this way a larger

wanting to maintain attachment to the homeland.

13. But to achieve this excellent purpose, he completely missed the mark with the means he had chosen.
In every Jubilee year, a repeal or cancellation of all monetary claims) and
the process will take place; all purchased Land should be returned to those families
ben, those who conquer the country had fallen to.

*) Even under the reign of the excellent Theodosius
fius there were many uprisings against the Jews.
This great prince, who in man, without distinction
of religion, who loved man, saw himself compelled,
to issue an edict: that the damage caused should be replaced by the Jews in the future. Now
the Jews to offer all defiance to the non-Jews, to provoke them in every way, and – the edict had to be withdrawn.

) Also the same circumstance which led to the
the causes aroused by Judaism, through the usury of the Jews, among other nations alive, has been even more strengthened by History cites so many examples that their 204

14. But as soon as laws, regulations, their Intention may be so well-meaning and good,
contain measures that do not apply to all parts
are precisely calculated, which are contrary to strict law
run against; open the creeping and circumventing
because of every kind of deception, door and gates.

15. For how much may there be over provision= means of revenge to enforce the law of Jubilee year, which fraud
may, on the one hand, be played in order to
to make use of it; how can one, on the other hand,
all possible means have been used to meet the deadline of the Jubilee Year. Above all, we= usury may well have been thought up and devised, to get paid in advance. With= a state maxim which, with its countless cols
lifions because of which all equally strong in the bûr= intervened in public affairs, probably even led to perjury, this and that have not let it happen, the Ver=

Debt claims, the alleged frauds Be:
been annulled.

And even in recent times there is an example
that in a respected city, by order of a foreign government, the pawnbrokers Everything unen=
had to be returned to the owners in cash.

All such powerful measures, apart from their Right or wrong, but have always only served to Jewish usury more and more food, drive
and encouragement, since the source of the same to let it dry up, could not.

203

coarseness of morals to an even higher degree
had to drive up.

16. Those mentioned characteristics of the law denthum in their homeland, from which we only want to highlight the following; contempt
against all non-Jewish people, from the feeling general love of humanity completely bare boundaries=
loose rational pride in empty opinions
although founded, but tied to a national interest of the highest salary; wildness in the cha= racter; brutality in morals; usury with
the desire to circumvent laws;
full of leniency towards enemies rc. c. This character Judaism, with all its peculiar, after the dissolution of the state,
with themselves in the traffic of the over.

17. Man, it is said, is a world
in small things," The sentence may and can be valid,
if among them the common good of humanity,
that which is understood in every Individual can perceive. This belongs to all dings of humanity, all the more so since the thinking power of all under one and the same principle of the whole of nature, hence in its expression of force, all deviations completely appears analogously.

18. But the intervening causes are countless,
which the countless modifications of those general public. Does not fit

the characteristic of the business to the character
racter of this and that person, of one and of the other estates?

19. But may the climate, or may the very different celestial areas a significant

Influence, as well as in the organization, as well as in the character of peoples and nations,

much more of this happens from the assumed

men's customs, traditions, habits, living

white sc., much more of the spirit of their rela regions; even more of the history= situation in which a people through its own or foreign guilt); still unequal and far more dependent on the circumstances,
in which a separate caste is made up of all members of the state.

20. All this together concerns Judaism, it comes, therefore, in the guidance of the past truths, currently depends on
to show:

whether and how those character traits are Circumstances in which Judaism outside its homeland
math, reproducing among foreign nations,
have developed even further; what the historical Location, business, operations etc. even further the same
The so important
Moment not to be ignored is:

Y) How perishable is the nn the customs system under the government of that Manz
nes intervened in the morality of the people!

to what extent either Judaism or non-Jewishness
thum to be involved from an active point of view strive for, in other words: through whom Guilt Judaism in moral terms the
what has emerged from it.

21. Furthermore: u.

what a great, incalculable influence the moral attitude of Judaism in the moral= ity of non-Jewishness (in the morality of the
those peoples among whom they reside
have chosen) had; to whom still fother the Er=
weighing is to be added:
and what the future holds for the moral promise to improve Judaism.

B. Judaism outside its homeland in viewed from a moral point of view. N

22. The so-called strongly nourished, so loudly and publicly expressed contempt) against non-Jewishness had the over all peoples widespread contempt
This had to be done against immigrants who

~

) Men like Alexander the Macedonian and that great military leaders Pompeius may have been in their midst laugh when they later learned: what effort
it would have required that, merely by their footsteps, consecrated temples, to restore the consecration. Tau=
But the messengers did not think so, they thought more foolishly=
white a but only thrown by fanaticism on them
To punish the shameful severely. |

208

imperative of their religious isolation, even more
through their entire behavior and conduct") still too loudly express their disdain for non-Jewishness became even stronger;
had to be transformed even by the better-thinking into a state Reject, have no intercourse with a rejection to want, partly on moral, partly on religious
"Concepts founded, and with the rougher crowd in to ignore abusive counter-behavior,

Kind that in Judaism only too soon the noblest Drive of humanity, the spur of all good, noble
and legal actions, sense of honor, more
and more was lost. |

23. Honor lost, everything lost," belongs to the number of proverbs, the life \approx Maxi \approx men of the ancient world who understood the art in few words more than whole

Volumes of philosophical works often fail to do so.

24. Contempt and Counter-Contempt created a constant friction against each other.
This action and reaction escalated through the following Circumstance in the most disastrous way for both, for Judaism and non-Judaism, but more to Misfortune of the latter. |

25. The former powerful guild spirit had knew how to assert his influence: Judaism

Lv

*) See above how fair and just Mr Friedländer judges about this. Compare what I wrote in
I have duly mentioned this in my previous writing.

7

209

to exclude from all trades; so that the \approx
fame a means of earning, usury, into the hands
was given, which on the contrary never and never should have been allocated *).

26. This usury began, however, with the junk trade. But this one has the character teristic in itself: that everything that will come from Trade fell into the hands of the Jews, to usury
and would have led to all kinds of fraud.

27. He, the junk trade, opened this Judaism set out on the path of usury with the lower class in connection with the purchase of the things that she has to do out of necessity. This led to pawnbroking. This led to stealing stolen items. This is to get rid of lie, probably accompanied by a solemn oath, to the one who discovers the trace of stolen items believed to have. This is perjury, where legal complaints took place; and this ever more boldly to proceed on the path of unfaithfulness.

28. He, the junk trade, led Judaism to the public auctions, which they are in the Consequence so completely to master; he taught the Jews give the most trivial things a different external

*) Much more detailed and complicated is the Readers of this part of the present section in the cited above. In general, it seems as if the commentary preceded the actual work. Because what is pragmatically historical presented, is here dealt with theoretically. E to give prestige, no matter how much the buyer . being deceived by outward appearances.

14

210

20. The purchase of some, even from the middle learning class brought things with it, required necessarily a paragraph. From this came the so hopeless peddling in the cities, and in the consequence outside of them. |

30. Peddling in the country, stealing stolen items, the delivery of the same to other fences, the sale of the same at distant Places attracted the attention of the thieves on Judaism. Jews to sell their loot to make themselves known as customers while hawking fcaffers, and here and there they themselves to play leading roles.

31. The matter succeeded, and as it succeeded, the more Jews offered their hand, the more the number of robber gangs grew, as did the idlers walkers, beggars, and thieves in the cities.

32. For the peddling that was going on here was of no less sad consequences. Since Jews few not trying to gain respect, her appearance, her entire behavior and conduct rather, everyone shrank back; so the shameful rejection for a long time, unless for sale something offered, or for purchase something was requested. Cheated and behind to be walked was already through prejudice) assumed as an inevitable consequence.

—.

*) This prejudice was reinforced by the fact that when

211

33. Due to constant resistance, no wanting to have intercourse (through whose fault?), thus took the place of the completely extinguished honor emotionally a shamelessness, a through Nothing to be afraid of intrusiveness, with word inventions, with tricks of all kinds accompanied), which intrusiveness both Jews for oneself, to know that one is ahead of others, as also to use others through them so often advantageously have known, and still present to a knowledge).

34. This intrusiveness was based on a hypocrisy, on an ever higher rising verse art of positioning, falseness in the bosom always nourishing, which where it was applied in vain were, curse and malediction in the heart

One gave a Jew four grošchen for both, for which he demanded a thaler, and such received for it, but was still deceived.

) In my early years a Jew entered my father's house with the words, «Am I right! Yes, by God, I am coming right!» – «Hear me I beg you, by God I beg you, listen me. »

I don't want to continue the story, the whole thing is already role played elsewhere: the Jew had a lottery ticket and swore that the house was his
in the dream was precisely indicated, to whom he brought salvation and blessings.

) Spy business – Sale of lottery tickets –
Pharaoh tables or game banks that are for several Millions of Jews will be targeted. :

212

the ingrained, out of contempt
hatred against non-Jewishness that arose deeper, the envy, jealousy and Resentment against the privileges of non-Jews
even more intensified, their discontent, their bitterness, new nourishment for their hostility giving. ; |

35. Pawnbroking; lending money on interest;
hiding stolen items; increasing security
security for their stay; increased financial status etc.
led them from one stage of growth to another,
by some intervening causes, but by
whose fault? reinforced Y. |

36. From this came the refinement: how which goes far beyond the legal requirements=
ongoing usury is hidden from the eye of the law
could be, in whose wake the frequent Mein=

*) Extortions through usury brought even
often and many cancellations of debt claims Paths whose loss will be regrown
had to. Body tax, Jewish tax, higher taxation.
Jews were not only seen as offensive, but also as legally, and strengthened their usury. Sequetri-
She left the property she had acquired illegally in the Follow by all means, how and in what way
fie for damage =compensation, to secure possession of the
The uprising of the approximately caused this and that loss of property,

called for their vengeance: from the one that in financial transactions through usury to bring about what they may have lost it through others, etc.

Ie

*

23

ei d gefunden, da wo a matter of the e

Customer could not be withdrawn.

37. Which through usury always become larger and larger Extortions led to rebellions against Jews=
thum fo oft after themselves, even more lands
instructions, even persecutions, which are so countless in the history of Judaism.

38. Hard, sad fates together to have shared, unfriendly wherever they turned

excepted, uncertain how to procure their stay increased their hatred, their disgust against non-Jewishness, spurred their emergence from this=
The desire for revenge is inhumane, where circumstances presented themselves; laid in their character
a crawling, far removed from noble pride, hypocritical nature; erased the little hanging on the ground where Jews were born
the one, completely in her heart; taught her to rather only the whole earth for their fatherland
to look at only the place, only the country for their Homeland, where things are going well. This is turned to her bosom every bourgeois virtue, every exercise of civic duties). It generated

*) Regarding the many remarks omitted above
about Jewish writers also belongs: that all,
without exception mention that Jews joined the armies
the war to save our fatherland
It is not far from them speaking of it like this:
as if those heroic deeds without them would never have been possible had been.

an indifference as to who is in power at any given time=
 haber fei, by whom and by whom a state dominated and governed; it formed the Ge= thank, only the one who is best in their interest
 be kind, and will be kind; it led them to the country that appears so often in history= treason; above all and especially formed hard shared fates their national

club, their strong bond, in itself arising from their national concepts, in the mercantile common spirit:

 all forces, under a observed Maxim), how the three classes of people are treated must always work to make money
 to pull on it / to hold it tight, the

For the sake of Judaism alone, I wish that such a thing would never have been suggested,
 not to touch a discordant string here either darJrfen: Of course, you could see Jews back then, but especially those who are for the French interest had worked most vigorously, how diligently they offered to join the armies. Was it really love of country? or fear of future ancestors cessation, aware of their guilt? The answer lies in the following: As soon as here and there the French power regained power, they immediately re-entered French service. Played their previous role and there is still a lot of trouble. Bautzen and Lützen vers blinded them. Facts, too well known, and not to deny! And would not such things be everywhere and happened everywhere? –

*) See below Judaism in Rantsbürgerlicher
 From my point of view.

found the non-Jews to be paralyzed as much as possible,
 the nerves of the state (circulation of money) abs _
 tailor it to make it more dependent on the Jew=

thum to do, to this end especially
a trading maxim by which to have in hands
the wide-ranging) means of applying

) England, which uses the Jews as the lever of its Machinery goods considered, should only know,
how detrimental Judaism is to its trade.
Because the Jews are so afraid of public announcements
have full authority over what price can
the therefore shop there, and through which highest low sales they can any honest shop=
Destroy trade. Only one thing: drinking vessels, e.g.
Romans, which are not sold in the shops for half a Thaler are for sale, are often used by Jews for Two grofchen offered. Who wants to pay so much
Who is not waiting for the same opportunity? a

But here too the calm observer stands, and thinks about the thwarting detrimental and advantageous things. If they, the Jews, foreign goods not when purchasing so deep would reduce which larger sums would then be withdrawn from Germany. Can but this is probably a palliative for the active Pain, the internal industry is completely iu see? – Instead of continuing, I put a Dash. Narrowly restricted freedom of thought has Characteristic in itself, that it is precisely the most hopeless,

the most perishable things not in their entirety
extent may be presented, not presented as follows:
that the power of her words makes a deep impression,
conviction, and the intended Purpose: salutary consequence, piety and benefit to the state creates.

216

to move from one level to the next higher
to swing up, and, if possible, one day
to be able to become dominant.

39. These principles, which arise from all actions and activity of Judaism by itself=
led Judaism to become more and more
to ponder what can only be achieved by surreptitious means rich; this laid in the character of the Jews
that which is called intellectual agility, cleverness

ness, cunning, cleverness; it led Judaism to every bribe; now fed
even more so his natural inclination towards any kind Prejudice, led it even further to the path of fraud, of circumvention of the country's laws, of nothing abhorring perjury.

40. By the Sneaky and Detour of Every Mog
To obtain this, every advantageous ambush required
opportunity to win, quick grab
every moment, and enemies everywhere to gain the lead. It required a more than usual busyness, attention

and active procedure, precisely that in which

—

Jewish writers such immense diligence,
the immense activity and industriousness
of the Jews want to find. |

41. Now from the historical situation of Judaism, from its business, and from the relationships in which it relates to non-Jewish suppose that such a large series of hardships, so that one can 217

actual Judaism, separated from the better
Class of the same, which is unequal to the spirit of the times more advanced, would like to turn away the gaze,
in which the last moral spark was extinguished
is, since almost every virtuous thing that can be preached to man, still to all previously mentioned vices; because
No one will deny that a close connection connection between the virtues and between the vices; give the
For the connoisseur of human nature only one radical vice of any individual, he will, without knowing it, indicate the vices,
which lie in his character; is already that large number of hardships from the attitude of the Judaism emerged among foreign peoples;

fo has added to the corruption of the same the following Circumstance contributed a lot, namely the above cited circumvention of the Mosaic precedents writings.

42. «But what about the people who think:
the letter of the law through circumvention and subterfuge
ways to avoid without the N

*) Juice, I ask, because the blessing of the good is,
that it can even use evil for good.
The firm “unbreakable togetherness” which already founded in the historical situation of a people
is, sinks into his bosom a praiseworthy fatherly, childlike love, of separate interest, of careful look into the future situation, into future
fates æ. nourished and e

%

218 will of the legislator. The Indifferentism (the religious Indifferentism combined with the political) against everything that is called religion, and which

No other people speak so loudly as the Jews, the inevitable resulting loosening Concepts of all truths that ennoble humanity
ten too easily reach into morality, nor more with a people who only base their existence on the present world, they lead to very there: everywhere and everywhere arbitrarily every letter of every law, even non-religious interpret, and the interpretation to the private= interest without regard to right and wrong
to adapt).

43. But what influence might such a moral unworthiness of Judaism in the morality of those peoples where they maintain their residence?

44. A question full of seriousness and importance.
Its dissolution is not the task of a single person man *). It requires even the sharp-edged

*) p. 177 in the cited text.

*) Insofar as this does not refer to general statements whose number has already increased significantly
handen ist: «Small towns, » says a well-known Writer, «Towns and villages where many Jews
fit, receive on the whole a frivolous, unstable, beggarly appearance, because even the Christians
adopt many things from the Jewish way, yes
If they want to live, they are forced to compete with them in their tricks etc. »

219

other men. For this reason alone she has in most men eyes such great weight, because Judaism

quite different from a merely passive, well

completely innocent point of view, the
According to bold statements by Jewish writers, to be considered. Because the more one deals with the ftrics=
to reflect on Judaism with the greatest impartiality is forced), the more it becomes clear how healthy
los das sich selbst aktiv, selbst agier in the |
The welfare of the peoples has intervened.

45. What is on the surface of that investigation

I want to state what lies there, I can't do more than that.

46. It took a long time, but finally the

nor the Jewish ones that cannot be rejected by anything

importunity), old, worn clothes
dung pieces that previously only served the
were intended for the needy and poor, for shopping to receive. What happened to the previous pious love of humanity, through this small
lost the gain in the minds?

47. An evil image cast into the soul, drives

Shoots, at the tip of whose stalks several adversities blossom.

* Forced, and indeed the wanton, fcho= because of relentless attacks on Christianity.

) Did not this arise from their situation? True! but where does their situation come from? Let Mr. Fried say: Countries themselves talk about it. Such men would have made Judaism a leader in their immigration have to have. 5

220

48. The one established with the lower class of people Traffic for the purchase of the necessary Things, also attracted beggars to them. Instead of which was formerly used for bread or a Heller pacified, they now begged for clothes, especially shirts *), for which they have a slight discount on Jews could find, and so idleness took hold in the wake of the most depraved vices.

49. The concealment of stolen items with the cloak of secrecy, irritated some

*) I know of examples where a beggar stepped forward, opening his penance and showing that he had no shirt on the body. I saw tears of the mother flow, and experience taught that such a person 2 to 3 dozen daily to beg together in the

was in his position. Except that he only had 4 grofchen for the piece on average received from the Jew have, how much the begging trade must have be driven further and further.

But what I said in a previous Note: that the blessing of the good is: turning evil into good to be able to do so, and therefore only on sole authority fent of the good, and the evil, which bos in itself remains, only indirectly belongs, is considered also here: | When that begging nonsense was carried to the highest level, fuch was German in one of the most respected cities= country a poor institution was built, which was not only to the rest of the fatherland, but I would like

say, serve as a model for the rest of Europe could; and therefore also a man who particularly meritorious for this, with a rewarded for his fine merits with imperial dignity.

221

to lay hands on someone else's property, which destructive path he had never before so easily could enter in a paved manner. |

50. Thieves and robber gangs increased progressively increasing in number, the more the hawking of the Jews, the more the concealment of stolen goods, the more their sale in remote places, and the more the number of fences increased.

51. Tilting, rocking and melting the better types of coins, this reduction of the money, this methodical theft shattered some economic situation), thus the strength moral principles so shocking.

52. The motives which the Jews of the game tried to procure, also belongs here. Some, reset by lottery game, had the fixed Made a resolution not to think about the game again. General experience, however, teaches that precisely mis- circumstances most easily tempts you to play A Jew therefore dares to all kinds of foreshadowings to give him a fate Unfortunately, a small profit on it, and now the game starts again from the beginning and accelerates the hopeless downfall.

53. Even stunting and poverty come here into consideration, which Judaism has already the paralysis of the inner n fo *

) p. 57 wy ff. in the cited document, and baie . may be worth seeing. | |

222

a

Breadlessness alone feeds the people's discontent

in the wake of many and many vices. Discontent disturbs the internal peace of the state. Disturbed state Peace makes the sacred bond between prince and People are more relaxed. This loosening of mutual inner affection, mutual trust

protects the state less from external threats
This lesser protection makes the development development of any future more uncertain, uncertain and doubtful. |

54. Furthermore, how highly pernicious, how incorruptible
legally detrimental to the holding of written service= offered to the morality of the serving class
intervened, I have explained this in more detail elsewhere posed, and refer back to it"), although

I look at the matter from a completely different perspective

considered, and intentionally that around=
I have gone to what others have said about this matter, to the more lenient verdict
knowing full well that the question that matters is:
whether the morality of female servants in jade
Are there really more dangers in the theft houses?
55. A circumstance not mentioned there is still to be described here. It concerns the fo un= common great preference of the Jews to all and every

Meeting places of Christians too numerous frequent. Is it love of socializing, a friendly cuddling up to us? Would it be, I

*) p. 173 et seq. started Places.

223

would be the first to praise them for this.
But their steady advance is based on completely different Motives for reasons under which the emerge?

The most striking for some are the following.

56. Their enterprises shall be given an unequal larger sphere of influence. Listening to every conversation, eavesdropping on everything that provides information about the relationships of this and that family, this and that house. Paying attention, which wants to say more than that, on the sons fertile parents who are attracted to sensuality, to follow luxury and extravagance femen, they carry funprompted to the One and to help the other person in case of any embarrassment; and this only out of respect, out of deep appreciation= appreciation for such a worthy young man, whose rich father against young innocence one may be too preoccupied with these pleasures. Do not demand repayment until after Father's death. Prescriptions under cheap Interest, which on the first loan a also i cheap find, fair enough rc.

57. No fiction! At the source of the Truth drawn from the experiences of others. If there were no seducers in the world, how unequal the number of those who went astray would be smaller. But a young man who stumbles could bait, much less if Creditors pressuring him. What strength in character ter is required for such a one, not Kûm=

224

merniffe about fine En and ruin about fid).

58. How much, furthermore, the one from Judaism often committed perjury, which is associated with usury and indissolubly connected, how far the same disposition in the procedure and action white others may have reached over, who can and is able to bring such a deep-seated matter raise up their depths. | .

59. If, finally, Judaism and Christianity in religious terms in its own move in circles; there is still too much and some points of contact. Whether, therefore, the The sight of so many Jews who in modern times about the Sabbaths prescribed in the Pentateuch= celebration completely disregard those who on their Sabbath appear on the stock exchanges, there conscientiously the Bypassing the Mosaic sweep: a merely passive Business, as already said, to do to have a trade offered, etc. whether this sight, this observation of such a procedure,

the concepts of rest day also for those Christians who are not fond of ideas of the kind must remain completely foreign in order to celebrate their public worship no less celebrated
to be considered, the eg Other placed.

225

What does the future hold for the moral improvement of the Jews?

60. Judaism itself is free from such moral side, and Judaism considered: which highly detrimental influence (through whose fault?
through whose action and cooperation?) it into the morality of non-Jewishness; what can,
Nevertheless, the future of the moral fic improvement of the Jews? What can States therefore benefit from the better welfare of the peoples make mistakes)?

61. Great and glorious are the efforts,
Noble is the aspiration of many men among the Jews on the moral spirit of Judaism, working against Rabbinism, with best= possible forces. We also have the published lectures *) for the Mit= members of the new temple association too much the

*) Preparatory words for the examination: wel= States have no real advantage from accepting the Jews? .

*) See Fränkel's (namely SJ not M.
Fränkel) protective document of the Hamburg-published prayer book for the members of the new temple=
Association, along with an illumination of the Rabbini m 13819.

*) S. Klay's, Salomon's sermons, on which Writings I must restrict myself, since I have the inner Establishment of the new school system, as well as the temple
those who separated from the old believers Darth fich,

don't know.

15

220

distinctive oriental clothing, which was Simple, from what is less understandable,
more to the heart *) fpeaks, still too far away
ftehnen; fo this comes at the expense of the blind=
the charm of novelty, of striving towards the attentive eye of many (Jews and Christians) to go beyond the ordinary.

2. In spite of all those praiseworthy efforts Regardless of the circumstances, the following things come into consideration.

63. No mortal has yet lived who in general, the continuing power of those Ideas presented in full, which passed into the mass of the people, who with their woven into an inner being, which in everything whose actions and deeds are visible; much more

—

) What is apparent to the simple understanding is that presents what is easily understandable to him, what the in= aroused the most profound feelings, warmed the heart, brought tears
which brings emotion to the eyes, fiery handshake that brings about reconciliation,
otherwise I would be in loud conflict with myself
saying what I say about the unfortunate fragmentation
the power of thought only in respect of certain philosophical elsewhere. The poet can say: God tests the kidneys. Can he do this,
He can also say: he examines the stomach;
then the seat of the thinking faculty can be part of the body. But otherwise the language of common life must be retained
can, and otherwise, in philosophical writings
to express themselves unphilosophically.

227

less the indelible power and violence

those ideas that not only the national spirit
still flatter, but to a high, no matter how narrow educated interest, such as the spirit of Judaism teaches; how are such ideas,
nourished through centuries, in all storms sad fates, even through this strengthens, I don't want to say extinguish, but just to downvote)?

64. This applies in religious terms. Seriously
The matter is more closely related to the moral, state civil side. How do you find moral Concepts and habits which the spirit of religious Judaism so deep, so indelibly in the national character of it;
what fates, situations, circumstances, business,
circumstances, etc) have bent it so firmly;
how and in what way are such again
to be replaced? |

65. The words of a generally

*) No era poses this question more seriously,
than the present. How consequential is it in Spa= never the idea once so firmly tied to the Cortes

there. And France? You know this, one might say, not daily, but hourly towards that,

what it was before. Or stand by the request
those stanzas of a theatrical poet:

~

Un soldier tel que moi - - - - .
to have to repeat in the theater,
not a thousand other examples unfortunately to
Page? |

228

Writer's words are hard, but the truth that is in the same lies, how powerfully such things push themselves towards the reflection of each one.

«The long state, says the same, of a unsettled existence without a stable people and fatherland,

yes almost without secure possessions on earth, and the persecution, humiliation and abhorrence, the happened to them by the rest of the world (which they felf, it must be said, of all the peoples of the earth unfortunately attracted attention, which tes is too much neglected), the noble, Great, brave people sc. in them from gender to Sex is suffocated, and the common, then and lured out the miser. s

66. I bitsdneit removed, in the possibility the moral improvement of Judaism lends doubts. What has been said may be much= more instead of cooling down that glorious zeal, tire him out, spur him more and more on to do good to make him even stronger in achieving a noble To stimulate; but it is true and certain, that such a gigantic work of counteracting sake), more than energetic, powerful efforts conditions required.

) Namely from the side of Rabbinism, or the fos so-called orthodox party of Judaism, which the opening of the new temples, as well as the subsequent confirmation of adults to be carried out there all power to thwart, and with religious Anger the temple brothers, as apostates, as loyal loose, persecuted everywhere as traitors to their religion.

229

67. Public education is the basis of the e State: Economy"). From the NS

7

They, the reckless ones! They are punished
Father forgive them their sins, they know not U

what they do. »

For, has anything ever influenced the opinions about Judaism had a very powerful influence;
Something of the previous form of Judaism fvery Much of his hatred is taken away; so it is that new event. le

Diefe had it completely in her power to give a new cult to be established, with reference to older ones,
those religious celebrations that the
Raise your heart to undisturbed devotion, your eyes Elicit tears of deepest emotion; Solemn= ities that not only affect the minds of the deepest
make an impression, but rather take control of them
so that some, according to their own confession to become a Jew immediately nd)

could have closed.

Can the value of all and every thing, I. fo brilliant, so deceptive, so ravishing even at their appearance may occur *), only at the Time alone can be tested; so it must fit
also only later show: how men against:
earlier and later times to the spirit of Rabbinism,
to work against the spirit of Judaism
ten, or to strengthen it by other means
search.

*) The language of the first sessions in French

National Convention! – The beautiful language in so many Spanish newspapers of the present moment! –

*) I have this sentence, in which I go even further than the older state teachers I went to, in a fyfte=

_ matifdhen presentation of the entire state:
economy developed.

230

Youth must therefore be in a regulated state
Everything starts from undisturbed spiritual culture supported because the development of moral Forces of higher education of the intellect
depend solely on the external forces.
68. The more educated, therefore, the more insightful, and therefore the more artistic a nation is, the
she appears more industrious, effective and active.
The knowledge acquired through the exercise of the intellect
change of mind directs her attention
in all directions, making it suitable for countless objects receptive; generates knowledge from Knowledge. The acquired ability to

to think, tears them away from preconceived Opinions, prejudices, poorly understood habits; and the happy success
of the thoughtful, of the traveled experiments, of fi I and others tried and tested experiences, fmotivt
'for further progress, to ever greater
Here, as everywhere,

It has been said, by the way, that Mr. Storch in praised in the public press: that he was the first Writer among all who in his work:
Cours d'economie politique popular education with closely linked to political economy
have.

This respectable man will certainly be happy to the Suüm cuique; because apart from Mr. v. J ufti (father-in-law of the author of this paper)

all state teachers have more or 8 after pressure= pointed out clearly.

231

Strength from Strength, One Good from Another
But also, furthermore, the more insightful, the
the more active a people is, the more virtuous, the
It is more morally minded. It does not only take place in the appropriate application of his powers
and his family's lasting, lasting happiness;
but the accumulated knowledge, the matured
observations, especially in correct calculation
the consequences, the tested experiences present him
the very big, essential difference of the good and evil; so that it is in the Choice of the same not so easily misguided; advantages and weighing the advantages and disadvantages carefully against each other.

69. Should therefore the moral conviction improvement of Judaism, through many years of preparation preparations ever become something; then it is on his Er= to exercise every care in the processing of personal data, and
In this way, a great deal could be achieved
Promise good things for the future.

70. But as long as the Rabbinical=Synagogue= Greek cult continues; as long as the spirit of Rabbinism can control the masses;

long as its theories have any influence in the Education of the youth; for long is also no moral improvement of Judaism of some value. Then several human lifetimes are not enough before the hunger of those noble men in silence
acting, and never revealing the true purpose from the Leaving our eyes open, we will reach the goal: that Jews=

232

thum no step lower on the moral ladder
fthical dignity.

71. The relevant concerns are by no means to be regarded as if they were merely low salary. Above all, the main mo= ment should never be lost sight of:
that in Judaism everything, religion, priest=
sterthum, legislation, morals, customs and daily needs, world traffic, post-litik etc., that everything and each one is a precisely connected
a coherent whole, consisting of religious, from the Jehovah of Judaism itself given, regulations; on which the Temple Brothers, on the positive path of Judaism, in speeches and writings reject; texts derived from them, their lecture as a basis, and the mixed number of listeners a pleasant discussion

have to inform you about the regulations

Moreover, the Lycurgic clause is ill-advised
been attached: |
"Never to diminish, alter or change anything in them,
to add,»
and the instruction to the side
is provided:
a Be careful that you do not destroy the Levites (whose place
the modern rabbis just as well as the older ones
to have taken) never e fuch x you live on earth. »
72. Now that we have the . of Mofaism

233

under eyes: as a result, of Judaism

behavior, his procedure, his conduct, his behavior towards non-Jews"); then

The question is: does Judaism have the ideas of such isolation, such contempt for non-

Judaism, such a predominance and persecution

spirit of obedience, such a determination of the great difference between Jews and non-Jews

transferred to all non-Jews?

and how deep are such hopeless, misanthropic

Ideas in him, Judaism, indelibly

vaccinated? or can one rightly

and assume without doubt that they are only for the

was valid at that time, and that, without

to destroy the whole, some parts

*) Writings that are in the bosom of every man

Arouse horror and terror: « Ou throws all peoples

eat what the Lord your God will give you.

You shall not spare them, and their gods

not serve, that would be a noose for you. vp

«Ou follt tear down their altars, their pillars,

break, cut down their groves and their e with fire burn. » d

«Ask me, and I will give you the nations for inheritance, and the ends of the world for possession. »

"You should not make friends with them. Your

You shall not give your daughters to their sons, and your

Sons shall not marry their daughters. »

«You may profit from strangers, but not to your brother (the Jew). To him must the usury sucks out everything he has. »

*

234

really, at least more than temporarily exempt can be). N

About the Paris held Sanhedrin.

173. On the countless foreshadowings of Jewish Writers also include the fact that if some still in our days
faid: «everything that is according to the Old Testament appropriate, must be maintained at all costs;
On the other hand, by others on the one in Paris in 1807 under the name Synedrion (Sanhedrin) spiritual= secular council, from which declarations, regulations and Decide to speak out: how Su
denthum willingly and gladly become citizens
to form, and everything that the Mosaism

*) It would be different, very different, if the temple Unite the teachings of the reformer of Mofaism, the= fes to enlightened Judaism itself as a Jew
completely devoted man;
then the close connection with the mofkifchen Theocracy, however, would have been abolished; then the prospects of the approach of such a Jew= thums with Christianity, with all charitable consequences accompanied, available for the future.
Now the spirit of the men of present
Time, by which they are inspired, be like him wants, he does not promise any permanence for the future with with all certainty. What were the early Christians, who worshiped God in spirit and truth,

what happened to them afterwards?

235

in connection with religion, but the current situation and the circumstances of the time speaks, ready to give up! *) –

74. Without first being allowed to look: when, under what circumstances, under whose rights government of that spiritual= secular Jewish council been called together; in what form the same appeared, namely from which number of the total ten Jews of that Sanhedrin been; so that the same by no means has the predicate a general church assembly (Concilium REN) be settled fanır I

*) Others are still looking for this with an example to support, namely: "that Jews, in respect the polygamy permitted by Moses willingly and happily according to the customs of other peoples directed. y In fact, willing? or rather not by their location entirely and unconditionally= commonly compelled to do so? forced to do so.

What a great sensation it would cause Christian peoples have made when a Jew only accompanied by three or four women would have come, and if now the rich Jew a seraglio of a hundred wives and concubines. And this is especially true in Catholic countries, where the marriage is a sacred, indissoluble act (Sacramentum) is that with the so easy marriage; divorce of the Jews, every polygamy ly, not a little contrasted.

) and even if its number were that of that high spiritual= secular court in Jerusalem completely equal If I am not mistaken, the so-called great Sanhedrin in Paris consisted of 71 people. But the staff of that one was 72.

236

and without paying attention to success, which because he intended it for Judaism, namely nothing, so that it is just as good as if a council had never been held; Apart from all this, one may only have one glance at the content of those decisions to immediately see with which fine cunning thought through everything and everything, through= funned and clothed, as with the words statuer, ordonner, déclarer played; as in the sentences: nous ordonnons A tous les Israelites nés en France et en Italy here have the addition: et en tous autres états (or also de tous autres lie ux) there, however, not; here with the addition religieusement or comme précepte religieux accompanied find, but not there! –.

75. So if you have content and dressing dung just a little closer under eyes; fo looks one immediately recognizes the value of the whole juggling game. Juggling! Because, even if Jews of other Nations in that council at the same time have a seat and a vote had; fo they would have betrayed their country's = authorities. Here is the evidence of it. | | |

76. In the case of articles which are in themselves Jews in general are to be observed as:

Should it mean something like this: the One (High= priest), the truth is missing from the whole, whereby the seal of validity can be embossed on it. If this is the case, the government of that time would have had been made into a dupe.

237

the one contained in the Mofaism, but e Biel womanhood, it is said:

The grand Sanhedrin statue and or donne comme précepte religieux a tous les Israelites de all les états, que – – In the meantime, this is also not without all referrals have taken place. To prevent the Mosaism from a completely positive regulation should not be taken too close Judaism can, it is said, occur where much= womanhood is permitted by law, but adhere to Mosaism.

77. But with other objects which are already are difficult to admit, namely: what promises raths between Jews and N,

it says:

The grand Sanhedrin declares that the marriages are there
Israelites and Chretiens, contracts conformement aux lois
The civil code is obligatory and civilly valid.
Here it is not said civilement que religieusement,
rather, Senem added: et que bien qu'ils
ne soient pas susceptibles d'etre revêtus des forms religieuses, ils n'entraiment aucun anathème; ie
Something that they very much forbid
became.

72. For other articles, such as usury
where the great Sanhedrin knew well,
that it could still command in the strictest terms,
because no Jew outside France cares would), it is said, and at the same time in a very ambiguous language: 2 . i

*) Or has the usury business really 238

The grand Sanhedrin ordonne à all Israelites que
toute usure est indictement défendue “ non seulement
d'Hebreu a Hebreu, and d'Hebreu A concitoyen d'une
Other religion “mais encore avec les étrangers de toutes
Jes nations,

79. Do these words imply a prohibition of usury to the whole of Judaism? Are the Etrangers mentioned therein, the Concitoyens are set aside, other persons as Foreigners residing in France and to which, according to the law, no usury
may be practiced?

80. For that important object
but: the country where Jews were received,
to regard it as their fatherland, to serve it,
to ensure its general welfare
and to help defend it, which the Sanhedrin
certainly a generality would have to be added, it to the holy general rule must be made,
but did not want to do it because of the
not too close to the views and plans of that man
to step in, it simply says:

The grand Sanhedrin statue, which is an Israelite,

ne et élevé en France et dans le Royaume
d'Italie "est obligé religieusement les regarder comme
sa patrie de les servir et de les défendre.

>

and in fact stopped? Will it not be trouble now, than ever before, the distressed world of business quite

239

81. And this is the proposition about which is true= can be spoken: when Jews of other Na= tions for the formation of a general council
at the same time had its seat there and that sentence,
such as they had signed the whole thing, they had a treason against their country's authorities would have, and therefore stands and remains for Always in the history of Judaism that great Sanhedrin as a finely played, laughing=
historical play preserved for posterity.

240 1TM 8

Fourth section.

Judaism viewed from an intellectual perspective,
with regard to art and science.

1. the old times it remains one of the dent
most worthy appearances in the yearbooks of the world that Judaism from its origin down to our times, hence through for several millennia
contributed the least to the culture of the spirit
have. g | = |

2. «For if there is only one
useful invention that benefits humanity,
even a single beneficial discovery,
which one would have to thank a Jew for. How?
If humanity only increases the level of its culture
should have owed to the Jews; if the gods
ical facilities of the mind in which only their Development should have found what they, the Jews, from time immemorial; in short, when the people

the only had possession of what they, the Jews, always contributed to the welfare of humanity=
have to wear, in which extremely poor, dark, barbaric conditions they would find themselves in). »

*) p. 2058 ff. in my cited paper.

21

What do Spinoza, Mendelssohn,
these brave men compared to the mi=
lions that were there, compared with the un=
foreseeable series of immortal men of all countries
Europe, in comparison with the endless parts
the arts, the immense realm of knowledge=
fcities, they are a drop of the ocean, the
you see hanging on your finger). "
Is this so extremely low level of intellect?
u Value of Judaism is to blame for this,
that Jewish writers also set an example in this loser Un truth occurred find, vder fol
absolutely not from Judaism anywhere right= lich way, true and separate, A
what to expect!
"Almost in all sciences you have great, learned men were appointed.
says one.
Their rabbis practiced Wiffenfgaften
in the 15th century, »
says another.
The princes used their money, the subjects their goods, and over time
The honored people also demanded their lesson» –
asks a third, where from the earlier times, and their admission is mentioned.
Even F Friedländer says:

*) p. 208 ff. in my cited paper

19

15)

«The Jews find. a nee 9 e tenth nation. »

Rather, I say, they find remnants of a

State constitution unfortunately expired early nation.

4. And if Jewish writers on the evidence – that strange claim arrives, deviating from all truth; so on Maimonides, Spinoza, Mendelssohn. probably even on the ones in our days occurred, which are not even taken into account come because they have not yet purchased the sample).

5. But I would be wasting time and effort when I contrast: Judaism has in Arts and sciences absolutely nothing with many documents from the yearbooks to the world when I do this

* Even Mendelssohn would not be the excellent He would not have changed his name brought to posterity, when fine familiar surroundings walk with Christian scholars not in him as Writers Judaism and Religiousism of the 19th century zen would have.

Few may be able to judge this, as my individuality. The one that was written many years ago pflogen scientific approach to Reimarus let me see often and much: how far the ideas exchange took place between these two men; how trusting Mendelssohn is to our Reimarus submitted for examination; and with what Aumerkun they were accompanied by this man.

What applies to Maimonides see below.

243

wanted to travel through the field of knowledge in order to show that Judaism in no part of knowledge, something indispensable to the whole has produced.

6. She speaks the literary history felbst for everything. Or does this strict, pare unsympathetic judge committed such disloyalty, the unforgettable names of the many thousands of all civilized nations, and Judaism – how? wickedly, deliberately? – to be passed over?

7. Choose which subject of the 8th
 Know it is fol. It is physics!
 under the venerable names of the following men
 ner, chosen from among so many nations,
 to contrast their numbers with those of the Jews
 quite visible. namely, apart from the Greeks Chinese and Romans (Ariftoteled, Lucretius, Seneca)
 the Achard, d'Alembert, Bakon, Benaria, Bergmann, Bernouilli, Boerhave,
 Boscovich, Boyle, Cavendish, Clarke,
 Crawford, Delisle, Desaguliers, Des-
 cartes, Dughamel, Dugrand, Euler, Fah=
 remorse, Franklin, Galila, Gmelin, Guerike, Hales, Hermbfitedt, de la Hire,
 Ingenhouss, Kepler, Lambert, de la
 Lande, ante, Laplanche, La voi=

*) Why natural science, and not =
 Theology? We'll come to that below.

244

fier; de eve Lüßac, Mufchenbroek, Newton, Nollet, Pallas, Priestley,
 Reaunit, acid, van Swinden,
 Scheele, Torricelli, Vauquelin, Volta, Weigel, Wilke, is under this number. ae
 only one – Jew.

8. And how? if the hundred, if ii Tdufend of the other deserving men in that part of knowledge still to the side
 would be set, which are also in this and that subject of the so incredibly rich, never to distinguished themselves in fundamental natural science,
 and one would still find that no
 only Indian among them; and which is separated from all other parts of the knowledge, with very few exceptions, the
 for the whole is not taken into consideration, just as en can be pronounced.

9. And they, the sciences, do not find it alone, in which the Jews have never achieved anything;
 but the same applies to the free arts
 ften. In the countless number of those men of all nations that are in architecture, in clay= Painters= and sculptors=art their names

eternity, there is also not a single Jew.
The names of Apelles, Zeuxis, Praxiteles,
Raphael, Poussin, Lebrun, van Dyk, Rubens,
Mengs, Hollbein, Haydn, Mozart, Canova, Thorwaldsen etc. etc. belong. Greeks, Italians, French, Dutch, Germans, Danes and other nations.

245⁵

10. Instead of those of Jewish writers
also the untruth presented here in more detail;
ashamed to see in the mirror of literary history
to leave, but it may be worth the effort to Reasons to investigate: where those for surprising phenomenon that Judaism in arts and sciences are not distinguished by anything has, even if by an unfortunate fate it never
To be able to achieve something in it. –

1. However, if such an investigation leads to an immense field of considerations,
if all that is taken into account
the fact, which in the progress of the spirit formation of a nation its influence; for
is here, because of the very limited space,
little detail is to be expected.

12. The dissolution of those forever strange tive phenomenon does not lie in the intellectual tual forces of the Jewish people, and is all the more memorable and blameworthy for it.
It is true that the power of thought has two divergent paths ahead of her on which she can walk,
and lead into an area of the same size.

| 13. On the one hand she catches the similarity

qualities of little related, foreign, dissimilar
things, and presents them in parables.
The more brutal an age is, the less it knows the relationship between causes and consequences,
the less there is in the moral world on Both can indicate, or perhaps not at all

246

it may point out, the more it adheres to
parables, proverbs, fables,

to the type of poetry that bears the name ee rabel wears *).

14. On the other way, she spied the thinking power, the distinguishing features of the most related things, and not only in terms of their properties, but also in Considering their causes and consequences, in order to know which lies in their causality. And this is the immeasurably larger extent ) of the area of the investigation of the power of judgment, of the decision

covering capacity with that of the similarities
whereupon the inventiveness, wit
and mood.

And it is just as true: N the morning=

*) And from this it follows that if the thinking=
power in a nation through abstract investigations
is, as it were, oversaturated with the cycle of things
follow, the same thing in her Jean Paul again
appears; only with the difference that acumen
and imagination then paired between the hetero=
most rogenetic things, between the low and the most sublime, the most decent and the most indecent ftändigest, the common and the noble a
to find a similarity to what is so far away
hollowed out where at the same time widespread knowledge takes place find, the predicates intellectual, genius assigned
may be, if, on the other hand, the surprising
in finding the similarities the names Witz, Mood, idea, only alone are entitled.
) Expressed in view of the question raised,
whose area of the two may be larger.

| 247

country spirit, through its lively, active,
fiery imagination, far more than those
This path is followed. Where else would the general Observation: that the inhabitants of temperate zones,
those of the south in knowledge, insights
thorough research, as here
the imagination is much more restrained,
and quieter reflection less disturbance
caused.

16. However, in the end this would only be bare do: that Judaism, especially in deffer

homeland, in the higher sciences
only such and such degree of higher mental education
cation compared to other nations
could be in a position; but by no means that it in the field of knowledge not a single spot
to cultivate whatever inclination, desire and will I had.

17. The above discussion of the Moses=
But the general truth is that theocracy confirmed by the Yearbooks of the World, confirms:
that a priestly government of spiritual culture
absolutely and with all his strength strives towards Regardless of whether priesthood is the rudder of the State itself has in its hands, or directs the hand,
which governs such things.

18. But it is not enough that theocracy of Judaism the development of spiritual powers
paralyzed; but the forms of altar service,
which is a spectacle of blood-soaked victims
carried with him, suffocated in the power of thought that 248

what creates the moral = affective feeling:
Benevolence, heartfelt pleasure in everything that is good,
is beautiful, noble, true and right.

19. Not enough, the religious isolation=
treatment of non-Jews as an abomination
Judaism cut off every path,
through the inventions, discoveries of others
To enrich nations, from whose acquired Knowledge expanding knowledge, expanding
to provide insights.

20. Now the history of all nations teaches ker that it is an indispensable necessary essential need for humanity: that earlier and better cultured nations the teachers less cultured peoples everywhere will have and
* as

Egypt was the
and scientific knowledge. Men like the Thales, traveled with scientific intentions
there, and so Greece first rose in the rest of Europe through the collected Knowledge rose. Among the Greeks, these then the Romans their knowledge and of Italy

the culture of the spirit prevailed over the rest Europe continues to progress in such a way that formerly educated nation always as a teacher of the even more to be cultivated nation appeared *),

m – ee –

| *) at 95 95 may only explain the accepted
menen and des va aut rrüher kulti=

249

22. Judaism considered in its homeland
ft represents, however, the material to which no formative Hand could give any shape.

23. But as soon as one does this,
homeland, after its national dissolution
tet; the difficulty only begins, as those memorable phenomenon to solve fenrr.

24. The fact that Judaism is above the fourth nations. They, the Greeks, understood under Barbaros initially only one foreigner,

a stranger, but in the future and sciences so elevated above others;
fo the terms: from İndişisch, foreign,
ignorant, wild, rude, cruel, with them
Synonyms. They still called the Romans barbarians, as these in so many knowledge they have long since
had caught up. The Romans seduced in the same way: Hyperboreans, Transalpines called catch only midnight peoples, peoples who them lived beyond the Alps. The later Ita= liener bent the terms to what in Greek Barbaros lies, and can still be found so little so completely free from it, as France from feine le Nord, and England of fine: Continental Writers.

And who knows: whether we Germans will not one day
first pay attention to rude language and literature,
when they reach an unattainable height por will have lifted. Only several Alex on= which, like the present one, fur shines out over the literature
tur=Gefhistory of Russia that of several nations. What

We Germans have as many sources of aid as rather, through German reflection of that nation in which you also have a thoughtful intention freedom has been opened. – | i scattered throughout the earth), especially on the classical soil of Greece and Italy held (on the latter until the times of Emperor Hadrian, who transferred them to Spain, in order to be able to return to the Philippines to be displaced) among the scientific Arabs in Spain, in the intellectual Frank= richly accustomed to English and German occupation found acceptance, which in arts and science sciences as a whole competed with each other, and fought for the precedence most gloriously, Where does it come from that Judaism is for so many Role models everywhere and everywhere do not have the minimum a m. had.

250

The well-known objection: that the u to the higher schools formerly fo quite had failed, I have already looked elsewhere most emphatically met with this: that it is the examples under

=) There is much more historical news about Customers must come, as has happened so far, before Jüber the entire population of the Jews with a n certainty. The still present significant deviations from the specification start from 10 million and go up to 20 million. Some contributions have been published here recently. fcheschen, als: from a Jewish community in Chi ne fis fisch Empire (S. Morrison's Maturity after Peking) by a considerable Jewish state in the afternoon Africa; such as the recent incidents in Morocco Canadian Empire to a considerable number of Jews in this and that province: especially Glava) have been informed. Fa

251

there are so many of all peoples that men (like the Franklin, Nikolai, Mendelssohn &c.) by own strength, supported by the reading of classical works, have most laudably developed their minds.

26. Words that even a Jewish writer,

but certainly not to the advantage of Judaism,
This, just to avoid fine attacks *)

|

*) S. Afcher in fine writing: the German Spiritual Aristocracy. A Contribution to the Character
teristics of the contemporary political spirit in Germany.
Leipzig 1819. 8. 69 pages.

An equally strange phenomenon in the Jewish Literature of the present time, as the other above

written: (First section p. 23 note a)
which serve no less as proof of how far now
the unbridled freedom of the Jews has already spread.

But I have fo Me aches in the present document
must learn from Judaism what is in it is below all criticism, so may the following also Words about Ascher's work should be said here.

I Jaffe precede the question: Why? for what reason?
chemical reason, and in what intention is that Font designed? But who can and is able to explore the secret ways of Judaism? Who can and cannot her squinting sideways glance, the throwing them now to this side, now to that side,
give the appropriately faithful and true interpretation?
for example through writings of the type Public Teachers on the universities are becoming more and more a state Suspicion, the hopeless seed of the Mis trust, suspicion ever further and further be scattered? so that Judaism grapes of thistles. – | |

In addition, a clothing that provides a protective shield
sought, so that, as so often and much present

«.

252

to the higher schools of our fatherland more
To emphasize, says: e 8. 4

happens, malicious, deceitful attacks are not
 can be refuted, as it should be, as it should be. en eo
 For, as true and certain as it may be on the one hand
 Page 1ft: that the one and the other the history=
 not understood as the guiding principle of our fatherland, did not take into account all the circumstances, how and in what The colossus of France was overthrown; not the internal and external political conditions German= lands, especially not the rings calculated which is placed on the outside of it; the shape that with the best will in the world it cannot can move; also has not preserved the idea: that there are pious wishes (pia desideria) that are expressed through from outside the circle of humanity, even:
 can lie beyond the circle of an entire people;
 It is just as untrue and slanderous: «that the spirit of the educated class of German men blows, is hostile towards the people, and in whose views one must find opposition. »
 But it is from the educated class of German man ner the speech; fuch surely the public teachers at the high schools
 .. All and especially there. 0 the white country=
 princes have no choice between knowledgeable and superior:
 superficial half-wits? Would the teachers of the higher schools what an Afcher would like
 Who would then be the one to bear the shame fall back? And if the princes had no choice, the thinking class would be completely jerks, what would the shame finally return to fall? It would destroy the entire German nation
 a which an Afcher indirectly fo wilfully tos
 eindet. 5 N „ 5

253

« The teachers at the universities certainly overestimate their influence if fe All Rn believe,

Even more offensive are these attacks because erer the sentence: «the thinking heads always represent the result of the popular vote, which those who cannot manage,
 but just develop faster » far more than it needed to be placed there, and moreover, it also only half understood.

Because, thinking heads do not just walk over their era, but often over several centuries=
out, whereby there are cases; that their statements, this and because of that resistance, even after years=
thousands can obtain citizenship. Where The Jewish altar service remained different, where did it come from?
this transformed idolatry centuries, years
thousands through, despite the fact that a man from World ruler had asked: «Is the earth not mine!
Do you think I could ever go hungry? » oe
Where else did the fo rubmwmardige Salilai

renounce the Copernican system, and where
At that time, not only priests but also mathematicians maticians, even philosophers in great numbers against the same on. . |
But it is absolutely and utterly impossible,

that the development of intellectual powers:
einzelner everywhere a completely equal progressive course of the whole; thinking people have Men also thought about what time
may be what is not, what is only in the must be and remain a visual view. Therefore, never their opinion, their intention: their ces, others
to try to impose.
They also present some of them in writings;

For them this is only preparation for the future;
it is only intended to progressively alleviate these
and serve those preconceived opinions, each Subjecting it to counter-examination. Do you also know that

)

254
that through their communication the progress of knowledge

a peculiar foundation is laid. » Cfey) «Universities no longer offer the mind

as the tools through which the genius Man learns to handle subtle forces.

The truly brilliant minds are formed by

Talent actually after surviving the apprenticeship, be it in business life itself, or during the profession to which they dedicate themselves as teachers. Of course! according to the well-known docendo discimus.

The true knowledge, that which the spirit with : fine force is the result of a self-developing product. v

27. Furthermore: that Judaism is involved in the | non-Jewish writings no national – Sutereffe find

could also be sufficient to explain that phenomenon
Even less so when it comes to art,
which precisely because of this is called free arts
because their lofty gates are open to all and Everyone, regardless of religion, for everyone
moment open to enter their sanctuary= to be able to enter. There is nothing left further remaining than the cause of that alone
only to be found in Rabbinism.

not everything is recorded, not even recorded

men can be; but they are convinced that that their ideas are rays of light that shine forever; that through them now this, now that heart is warmed,

on whose heat material there are others as a result
sunbathe until finally the time gradually approaches,
that they can be accepted for general admission.

255

28. The one in the Jewish theocracy
The spirit of Judaism described had such deep taken root, connected with the inner being of the same so married that the dissolution of the National government of the same, instead of that religious to weaken earthly concepts, rather to greater strengthening of the same in the priesthood served.

29. They, the Jewish theologians (in whose hands of the people who remained so completely uncultured because that which had remained almost alone, what called Lefung der Bacher) instead of finally one to come to their senses, only now began right to the past and future fates of the Jews from their canonical books and – to sum up in a few words the To describe the spirit of Rabbinism – the German fent of the same everywhere: |

That the fate of the Jews: from their homeland driven, taken prisoner) to be under the pressure of pagan peoples x.

= Under this name the Cabbiners of the Jews Staying with other nations. This is precisely why their former head, which was already mentioned in the previous the dispersed churches, these re= ligio= politifcal la ma, which for several centuries preserved throughout (namely until the 11th century) ten, the strange title: Prince of the Prisoners= fhaft. An idea that now seems to be reviving.

See below Judaism from a political science perspective= personal point of view in particular.

256

only one examination period 9 fey, because of the in altar service neglected in their homeland, and that they, the Jews, as a chosen people God's future redemption, liberation x. can be fully assured that that, what under the pressure of the Gentiles to God= service to sacrifice, through ceremonies, through 8 , e be replaced must sd 8 f

30. And thus the unfortunate Jewish people are properly instilled with such hopeless ideas, The newly created prayer formulas had to be completely breathe the Rabbinic Spirit). By the Supreme Being their fellow human beings, the non-Jews, for destroying their empire, the *). A period of trial lasting several centuries even thousands of years to the attributes of the deity? Or does such a selfish revenge belong

(not enough fat cattle to be preserved for the burnt offering have) to the number of the greatest blasphemies?
humanity, especially the frail mortals
that in the most perfect being no crimen laesae Majestatis takes place, otherwise the world would have to be in every moment passes.

It should also be noted that the Jewish Announcements of the next apparition of a Me fe
fias with the former annual prophecies
from the near end of the world in contact point
came and served each other as a base
What must have been the end of the world here,
There must have been an appearance of a Messiah. –
*) Just read with some attention the Cohen's prayer formulas.

257

still suffering contempt and pressure to accuse it, to beg it: to finally give them a=
to send their Savior and Redeemer; they,
as his chosen people, whom he
I have not made all peoples equal, again from the four regions of the earth together);
to reinstate their judges as before; to reinstate their worship again in his holy temple
to introduce; and then eternally with extermination
all idolaters (non-Jews) over them, and over to rule the whole earth as king rc 2.» **), –

31. How it was possible that the raven=

*) How many Jews may have it in their eyes:
lande fo wohl geht, these last words have noticed
It is therefore no wonder that such a religion
finally led to the worst indifferentism!
The rabbis should accuse themselves of this. |

) No people on earth has ever fought so hard,
finhumanly sinned against humanity as the Jewish people: all their fellow human beings from the

' The glory of God is completely excluded, so to speak:

to have people. But where is a people for which the world spirit seems to be more irreconcilable.

But whoever venerates Providence deeply will see the eternal rulers of human destinies also in this honor: that the Mosaic theocracy was the germ of future national dissolution,

had to close. What? if the Jewish legislator
about a state constitution could have been drafted,
by the power of the Jews the power of the Romans
had surpassed, what would then be the case with such a fanaticism –
from the fate of the other peoples of the earth
If their fate had been less unfortunate than that of the innocent inhabitants of Canaan? –

27

258

binism is such an unfortunate one, and through fine unhappy situation also over other people's misfortune spreading people, many centuries, even years
thousands of people, is alone
only explainable from the spirit of Judaism, albeit intervening causes, which we further below, join that one. –

32. But those interpretations and explanations threw their rabbis, their so-called scholars
to a very large playground of Jewish theology
gical investigations, on whose dry sand-ground the spirit is becoming more and more atrophied
had to, because there was nowhere material for science-
logical thinking, rather to the most useless,
even to the most ridiculous discussions, accompanied
of countless disputes.

33. For it was not only about the reproduction of Hebrew documents, which, in a long dead, extinct language,
No one could claim to understand it completely correctly;
It was not only the quarrels of a few about the authenticity of the manuscripts, as about their true
Reading, in terms of the choice of vowels, the Accentuation, the punctuation, for like about the preference to be chosen of the many Ab-variations of the rediscovered manuscripts; but it also came down to the Interpretation and explanation of the same, the poverty of the Hebrew language), soon

*) But (hear) a criterion of a people who have remained rough.

through the Syrian, soon through the half Dāisch, soon by the Arab dialect of the oriental native language
 be helped"), especially it was important to: what is written in the original scriptures
 men, and must be maintained, and in which one only has to follow the meaning of the words.
 For example, whether after the Flood God only rainbow, or only then set the firmament?

34. All such profound investigations broke ten now a very large number of comments (interpretations) about those documents; so that the one upon the other in a considerable measure.
 have been accumulated. And how far the Syllable-picking, word-picking, etymology
 firen may have gone, can be deduced from this:
 that previously highly praised works, so highly respected
 for enthusiasm, for divine inspiration,
 by later writers, however, the criticism under

*) How, and in what way, find the one from an Es ra rediscovered Hebrew documents worn? In what form and shape are they fell into the hands of the Christians? What fate
 They have changed by re and copying, by one suffered from worn rim glosses, which is the fo
 very different, even different, reading.

Mr. Kennicot has, if I am not mistaken, 80,000 Va

variants or different readings for the Hebrew

Bible collected. Who has now the touchstone on found, on which the original true

Lefeart to test tft? tit » 2

{

were thrown, which then often resulted in heresy persecutions), even sectarian spirit to consequence; so that one could mutually burned books, banished each other that who dare to read this or that writing

became.

35. Even worse were the theological concerns.
feuds over letters and syllables thereby that from the different interpretations and interpretations a lecture was created which Cabala was called; a kind of dividing line between 'efoterifder and exoteric religion, and to belong to the Jewish Eleusinian Mysteries seems.

30. Was all this enough to answer the verse care of the spirit that is in
moved in such a narrow, unscientific circle,
which, moreover, does not have the slightest influence
in the intellectual development of the people, because all theological writings, their brilliant titles notwithstanding), were illegible for the same,

9 So Maimonides had to leave Spain for Egypt save, because, as it is said, he the forgotten
terten Talmud contradicted in some parts batte; the real reason may well have been because, in spite of Rabbinism, he adhered to the learned Arabs to these non-Jews of his time and with the heretical Moflemin the

. most intimate contact,
we) You may now bite: Mifchna, Gamara,

ee Mechilta., Torah, Talmud,

261 | =

wrote in a dead, long-extinct language,
who did not understand it at all; so that the brutality
the people must always remain submissive to Rabbinism
had to, in such a way that it was a fraudster,
who claimed to be a meffi as, in straight Line, like the prince of the captivity, from Since vid descended, gave himself up so easily; and that its immoral value is continually the
The reason for many sad fates.

37. Was all that enough, the higher

Zohar, Sepher, Yetzira, Cabala, Mofarah, Herak, Moreh Nerahim 2. and which under Others include Juda, Hillel, Afee, Marmont
of the 13c. to authors, they may be called, as they want; from them is for the good of the people not even the slightest benefit has emerged
yet; so that a single page in Euclid is worth more is, as a million such writings, which in total only served to create a modern grave for the power of thought to open.

Even Maimonides, who was a student of great Averroes, has no other glory
brought to posterity as: the largest valley=
mudflat of that time and of the past to be. But what would have come of him, of this May= mon's son could become most glorious if he never

the extended path of Talmudic quarrels, Rabbinical Hades entered, and for very fine
Diligence in pharmacology, for part-time study,
But the high, earthly interest of Judaism, although it is based on the blindest but= belief, has always attracted the best minds
in the maelstrom of Jewish theological word-trading completely, as if the noblest facilities
weathering everywhere. |

\

202

to completely blunt the power of the galls; this closes
There is also the following memorable circumstance:
Rabbinism had a severe ban
on the study of the works of non-Jews!
completely excluded himself from this study,
and the reading of the same as idolatry
presented and given an anathema! —.
33. How different it seems, then, that Christianity "accompanied by the most beneficial consequences and what unspeakable praise can, with be paid in full right of the same, which, in order to
to gain knowledge, to expand one's mind
form, to provide firmer support for morality,
at the same time to advance in artistic diligence, the state to open up new sources of help for himself, to give him more
To gain security internally and externally,
knows nothing of any difference of religion,

from all possible sources of knowledge
fchöpfte, where only those are to be found, which therefore not only the writings of the Greeks and Romans
mer, regardless of all paganism, recommended,
but they themselves are considered classic authors
ftated, and which also, in fact, the reason to the subsequent formation of cultivated Na= tions; which, furthermore, to the spirit=
to promote education among the people more, especially in this regard= seen: Writings only in the national language
to make it usable for everyone.
39, And let us look only at our Infterblichen G eller rt (this ee

263 teacher at the Leipzig High School) pointed to How many hundreds of thousands of minds might this Man, this benefactor of humanity, alone

falready worked, which beneficent incalculable
The writings of this unforgettable man in morality,
the lower classes of the population.

41. Just as spiritual communication with other peoples and nations especially those
The benefit that it brings with it is the secret
Bond is by which the world spirit binds the nations
which the unfortunate national hatred of W |
firebt.

42. For though one nation
Others might be angry in political terms,
should be angry; she again pays homage to the same
in intellectual terms, since there are always advantages on the one hand and advantages on the other arouse mutual respect, muster it yourself.

43. Who does not have a passion for the heroes of Italy?
Nifch, French and English literature
most heartfelt veneration; which nation did not serve
The high, solemn momentum that the Music is preferred by the Germans taken from all others, as the criterion of everything that lies in the character of the honest Germans, since such things in their music are so eloquent, so true,
is so pronounced.

44. It was therefore only necessary that Judaism distinguished, educated, knowledgeable=

rich men had ever emerged whose discoveries and inventions useful to humanity deserve the most solemn thanks of posterity; it would not have committed a thousand bad things, and in which it would have fallen into, like any other people, whose criticism would be offset by respect for those Men, through the praise to be given to them it have been greatly diminished, a respect that spread throughout Judaism.

45. But how much the future in respect It is uncertain whether intellectual development may be achieved. That Judaism subsequently opened up through the contact with the literature of non-Jewish culture will achieve infinitely more than in the thousand years fend through it, fts fure and certain to be expected.

46. But the noble and great must whether art or science, the moral improvement of the Jews. Their spirit must first reach a certain level of strength Because the attempted fragmentation the power of thought has also brought out the harmful brought, exceeding the unity of their expression of power, _ not having paid attention to the fact that when they in one part, at the same time in all other places. Where the Spirit tends towards immorality, where the moral aesthetic feeling is missing, there can be no sense for the Beautiful, noble, true and e take place in some way. :

265 e

47. But at present the characteristics appear, which in the moral character of the spirit of Judaism, still too much from all its writings: bitter hatred against non-Jews= thum, shining out from all attacks; Ab= deviate from the path of justice; nowhere the To remain true and faithful to the truth; Every To reach= and secret paths seek 3c.

48. I add the following remark added: where it might have come from that even in earlier writings of non-Jewish Jewish scholarship) spoken so loudly

As is well known, exegesis was (the interpretation = and art of interpretation) as the non plus ultra of all knowledge, all thought.
What is said here by the Rabbis, by the Jewish theologians, the contact points because of, between Judaism and non-Jews=
thum also from this side with admiration strives, namely, how sagacious, how true and right there among so many and some others
also examined extremely important things:
For example, whether the angel's sword at the entrance of the Paradise was really made of steel, and where it was made, or whether only a figurative
The meaning of this is that through beige organs the snake

* From Magifer P. 90 there is even a « lift
all learned Jews, Patriarchs prophets and famous rabbis from the beginning the world up to our times. » Leipzig 8.

*

266

with the primal mother; how much Adam
from the apple of his wife;
whether the egg that the hen lays on the festival day),
be enjoyed? and a thousand like that highly important discussions that still have content
richer than the others, who together are to know
nis, to insights, to science, to history
teaching, «which the Jews themselves
in the darkest times. »

*) This investigation, it is said, only leads to a
make up folios. |

267°

Fifth Section

nn in business life Cin bourgeois sense

ficht), where the fo rich source points= to see from which Judaism always higher wealth, to distribute wealth themselves create it, and thereby the conditions the whole is becoming more and more shattered.

Old yearbooks of the world speak where only Jews were admitted, from which extremely rapid growth of their population 9, from the property acquired just as quickly riches, and how such everywhere to oppression of non-Jews, with a light touch of what is inevitable consequence. |

2. The more powerful, the more content-rich a Success (an effect) is, the more powerful and Of course, the causality must also be stronger This is the sure guide of the science. Now it depends on those forces which in the causality

) ©, further below: Pan in abi ch er Hin= point of view.

268

fuch substantial successes so that the theory prove itself in practice (in the real world).

3. Jewish writers have not not only made easier, but they are also here, as everywhere, right = and unscrupulous. The sole reason for this highly noteworthy Appearance on the Sudenthnm, namely: des fo leich= rise and acquisition of a respected ual financial status should only be in the active drive, in tireless activity, in undaunted diligence "in the frugal life of the Jews founded on the principles of carelessness, laziness ity, laziness, wastefulness of Christians face each other).

4. What a tremendous contrast must between the activity of the Jews and the Laziness of Christians can only be found if one the working days of Judaism proper under eyes, which $\frac{1}{2}$ weekly from the Ge=

business life without taking into account the knowledge, skills
lente and insights into what Christians will continue to surpass Jews for a long time to come; without
to ensure that Jews are not allowed to cultivate, Engaging in trade (all work that requires physical effort)
fply require, not to mention the Jews so completely) that they have no public offices whose number is so considerably large;
therefore to some ee ee no access

> E. above: First section, 11. Note a.

269

have gang, and in population numbers still smaller stand there.

5. But is this claim of Jewish Writers not only for Christians so highly offensive, but at the same time completely untrue and poets; here too there is much more than just malicious request happened, in detail to present: in what way the means of acquisition of the Judaism, and how it is such, its religious, moral, commercial, etc. terms
according to, knows how to use. Here too, Things are forced to face those hostilities
because of, which are under
other circumstances would have been happily overlooked.

6. Trade, – once rightly so highly praised beings, celebrated as promoters of agriculture, as a caretaker of trades, as a protector
of the arts and sciences, as friends
of all peoples and nations of the earth, through a fhode trade policy but in later times so ambiguous thing), trade, a thing
fchaff, which, the less effort and thã=
activity of physical forces it requires, the 9 How little is what I have said about this two decades in my work: "Attempt at a critical overview of the peoples' maritime rights, page 108

etc. I have said, compared to all the Schleich=
detours and side roads; which the consequent con=
eal s Eyfem of that man BREUER taught at

3,270

Prudence, prudence, even cunning and ber:
fluggishness requires, leads to fih already the fo
interwoven business, which is extremely through= because of intersecting interests, in countless ways and side paths, leads even more in itself
to unpredictable deceptions, where no strict conscientiousness takes place – he, who trade, has led to the gradual ruin of states
instead of agriculture, industry, trade=
ments, and all other physical work
been given into the hands of Judaism.

7. Such a means of earning, which moreover less in the trade in goods and more in the trade in money
exists, is now already through itself the fo ergie=
great source from which Judaism derives its views wealth, but even more so it is through the way Judaism
to use them on an incalculable scale
knows, all the more so since money is the representation
tentative of all conceivable value in business life
is, and therefore in infinitely countless incidents in gear can be set.

8. She, that source, is in herself 1 1

a) through the so-called lucrative banking business
fh aft; baie den en gros in treibende Geld=
trade 93.

ry) Moch vor lay in public news
that 300,000 pounds sterling or one and a half Millions of thalers were remitted to England in cash
those of which only one Jewish house has a 271

b) by the far-reaching Wed) fel
trade, which Judaism almost exclusively in the hands
has *).

9. Since not everyone has such a complete idea

it of exchange trade knows how to make, so may
The following should be noted here: from the un-measurable volume of trade in bills of exchange
However, everyone has the appropriate idea,
because the following is too well known
is, namely: that world trade, to many hundreds millions of thalers in annual turnover for all Trading nations calculated fine payments of the Goods are mostly exported by bill of exchange.
But it must be less for those who are affected by large trading cities are too far away, explainable left, like Jews, if they do not have the entire commodity trade in their own hands, nevertheless almost
can be in sole possession of the exchange,
and I cannot give a simpler explanation
do as:

10. What the banks have done to the trade
Depreciation and write-offs are to make money payments

Silver measures of 260 hundredweight were delivered.
this weight is probably calculated in bars;
This makes over one and a half million marks banko; |
or more than two thirds of a million Thaler RG
If we assume a profit of two percent, then without any effort in this business alone
more than 10,000 Thaler Banko were won.
* For the history of this see the above

Scripture pp. 68 – 78.

272

to pay the debit and credit each time

equal, that is the Jews in world trade. They are, so to speak, the paymasters of the merchants, through their hands are used both for remittances and for transfers

ten (payment and collection of funds) and

through the sale and purchase of bills of exchange, and lay down, as it were, from the balance of both the invoices from).

11. c) Through the related money-changing, discounting, money=

trading in government securities, money loans ee

~

*) This view was taken by Wed, already in Concerning business life, in the hands of the Jew=
thumbs is, gives us reason to all statesmen Germany in the very important consideration: whether for

Judaism a general state norm for all States of Germany to accept the following
a serious concern:

Is exchange business, as said, in the hands
of the Jews of such immense magnitude;
fuch it serves them, politically, to one of the most terrible means, under prominent given the circumstances of the time, a trading state in the largest confusion, into the worst disruption, into the mis=

most eminently imaginable situation,
to be able to move; it serves them as a
Such terrible means almost every arbitrary, every
Will make every revenge a rule, and as State within the state indirectly the ruler therein
play, spread fear and terror over the minds
to be able to spread.

How all this is possible, I will explain elsewhere in fragmentary contributions to the history of the Jews
thumbs to present.

273 government and private bonds, purchase of bonds, mortgage bonds,

Shares, mortgage funds etc., wherever Payments Averfional=Money, Advances, Lease=

ments of the lifts, the Lotto= and the Münz=

nature, etc. are to be expected.

12. d) What kind of money trade is the – fo

profitable, – junk trade
Pawnbrokers; Details Trading with foreign

Machinery goods, brokerage shops, Auction customer, all and every trade new inventions, new conveniences &c. still on=close.

13. So incredibly productive now already in itself
such a rich means of earning money, money
del, is, it is nevertheless only through how Judaism the same to an incalculable extent knows how to handle it. Because you don't say too much, if one puts the entire in the hands of the Jews
current trade, excluding trade
with government bonds, where the limits of profit
referred to as find, considered usury.

14. a) In the case of exchange trade,
proliferates through the management and promotion of the courses.
Bills of exchange must be treated just like goods
The more or less of it on the Market, the more or less it sinks or their price rises, which leads to the following maneuver=
proceeds: A merchant wants to sell bills of exchange;
fo the Jew pulls out a lot of papers,

18

–

\

274 if he sells it himself at a lower price

can; on the other hand, the merchant wants to buy;
fo the Jew has already a very large,
considerable series of orders, and gives himself,
as he says, more than buyers are willing to give.

15. b) What to do when trading and promotion of the courses is, is with state passport

pieren the agiotiren, the state of the same through equally mischievous and obvious means

(of which falsely spread stock exchanges=

news only makes up the smallest part)

up or down to Finns); the same,

whereby the English game of stick Jobbing's, Stock - Bubbling's as we know e wer=

that can.

46. c) The money exchange is

Page: the usurpation of the purchase and sale
changing the types of coins; tipping,

– * Regardless of what is in this section
presented is based on general experience,
without taking history into account;
nevertheless from countless public acquaintances=
recent developments only one or the other find space here: f

Letter from Vienna.

A local Jewish banker tried the course
by artificially creating a need for paper money pull "it worked for a while, but then he went the higher up. v

* Hereby compare the en en die um:
feligen er URL, en 3

FE

Rocking, melting and stretching (this, so that the circumference is not too much due to the circumcision lose) of the better types of coins, be it gold or silver coin), and, besides this surreptitious Melting, separating gold and silver from their so-called silver separators to silver Ingots and gold bars to this and that To make a salary out of it. A business which the hands of the Jews alone, and

* Letter from London. 1
« The intrinsic monetary value of the new yr u sten Sovereigns exceeds their price, since now such are highly sought after by Jewish hands, so one tries to bring such ant diligently back melt. »

Schteiben from Saxony.

« The Sidfifhen Speiiesthalet and Guldeu find almost completely disappeared, and hardly find new ones were minted, for the fie of Jewish Banguiers

n 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 2 percent premium exchanged, and from the country into a foreign coin from where they return as inferior coin types. *
We have seen the same complete disappearance at a other type of coin: The French minted us from the silver = bars of the n ham= Burgische Bank a considerable sum of two marks Pieces. The people called them Chabans. They were N surplus. Where have they gone? Just as where are dit Gulden (N. $\frac{1}{2}$) remained, which the former RS: nig von Westphalen had it minted. Jews gave for both a half shilling premium, and served especially in view of the still hu n= percent of it. 4 |

But the hunt for richer coin types makes; in passive trading the more abundant flatten goes, since a folder always remeffen in Baars ftschaft demands, and thus on a two-axis ways to impoverishment
..

17. 40 When pawning "Bet money=
loans, when purchasing bonds &c.

) Jews who lend on collateral generally proceed
mean in the following way: the deposit becomes 1/of the value is assumed. From the sum of the Dar=

u» Tendon was cut off per Arha 2 bl. for each Mark= drawn, find $12 \frac{1}{2}$ percent. Nath course of fix
"The deposit must be \$2 for each Mark redeemed or extended, are again $12 \frac{1}{2}$ percent. After the following six months
also with 2 B. for each Marf, find again $12 \frac{1}{2}$ percent, hence per year 37 72 Progeut ; 3
apart from what is caused by the Prånumeraudo, by the
the first six cheeks also become due been won.

Now assume the case that the pledge in the first six months expire, and the Jew
only makes 15 percent profit on it; he has $15 + 25 = 40$, plus 10 percent in haggling through the profit per Arha ' to 50 Preient annual made usury.

If this is not a blatant injustice;
So I don't know what injustice means in the world.
In general, it was said earlier, such is the
The Jews' behavior, and yet this is part of far from the worst class of usury,
st.' which knows how to get 70 - 80 percent, the
" 3 cents a week from a ' . Bins fen give $81 \frac{1}{2}$ percent.

oe -

*

277

Now comes what is preferable
is called usury, and is of such a nature that it
because of his lack of conscience, with no words,
which would be to express the hateful in the pig,
to be designated.

18. From countless reports ee deeds=

fts, I just want to highlight one, which Dar= loan. Are the bonds Mortgage funds that are in the bank; so there is the Jew, whether in the purchase or loan of the= the same, for this current money, makes moreover the payment in poorer coinage, so that he in this trade at a profit of 28 percent.

10. And when such unfortunate times come, that Jews in just one year 200,000 thalers Bank money can be obtained in this way; Judaism alone has almost 60,000 thalers in its all-encompassing canal in a such a short period of time. |
| 20. We dwell on this spiteful Ge=

genftande a few moments, namely at what preferably called usury of the Jews, and in the case of money bonds, highly illegal interest (which often exceeds 40 percent), and when purchasing bonds just me Procente to take).

—

* Letter from Warsaw

to put a stop to the usury of the local Jews
iu do, now follow the last strictness against them *
ren 3¢, 2

278

21. On the source whence the usury of the Jews in their homeland taken, we have in the previous hin= wiefen). We now point out the participating reasons that would have taken him outside their homeland changed, and soon to a new beat have.

22. Furthermore, in earlier times, when According to the Code of the Clergy, the Christians was not allowed to lend money at interest, what Judaism is, however, wrongly, good for has been sufficiently considered, belongs above all here: the means of earning given to them: Haggling and trading, from this came the same= for the usury arose by itself,

but through the spirit of Judaism through the opposition that arose from this, through which originating way of doing haggling
feet, to that scourge of bourgeois society=
futility, which has always been the case at all times
all peoples and nations. |

23. Contributing causes include=
if there: Previously subject to higher tax to be. This led to the delusion with fi: a: vers intended injustice by another a ; Dee) usury, to have to replace.

24. Furthermore: Criminals with money= "sums of to be able to redeem themselves from the death penalty, but they |

*) See above third section p. 5 ff

279

it very expensive; for that the sacrifice
elsewhere, through relentless usury, wide and should be compensated.

25. In earlier times, large sums of money arbitrarily extorted from them, under pressure
the monetary sacrifices offered by them
to have accepted the demands, such also served only much more than Capital and 1
to move in again. .

26. Furthermore: that bonds he
the amount of the interest often and much of State annulled; that pawnbrokers are forced were given to the owners free of charge to be returned; the unsecured possession (by whom for debt?) which so often contradicts their property= drove, when finally the complaints about usury from all sides, and sequestrations,
judicial persecutions, even expulsions
the final consequence of that was; all such holy= loose circumstances, all such and similar measures and enormous resources have always been only served to extinguish the usury spirit of Judaism on all kinds of reinforcement, for which purpose the one in fpa=
Christian participation in it in the past Wucherer also strongly beige his own=
has to bear.

27. But if the above-mentioned usury is loans, when purchasing bonds gen 3c. Fact; here the serious question to clarify: Do state laws really allow

!

280

not in their power to prevent such cursed usury, such methodical theft to inhibit completely?

28. The answer of complete impossibility lies, apart from what has always been in countless Writings) about usury in general and about the usury of the Jews was particularly useless said and written down, it is already in the historical, in view of the very great series of mandates, edicts, regulations~~s~~ sions of the so many states which opposed the The usury of the Jews was strictly punished, but all together completely useless and in vain have been. |

29. In vain through the Judaism from~~s~~ ingenious skill in circumventing the laws, already practiced on fine Mosaic regulations. If an unfortunate person falls into the hands of a Jew,

9) Not only older, but also newer ones, but also against: waiting time. In a recently announced anti-Jewish writing that has been published it, regarding usury:

« J'ai vu des terres ravagées par la grêle, mais le spectacle qu'elles presentaient A mon oeil attristé, etoit moins déchirant que celui de quelques communes de mon département ravangees par certains Jew of our enemies. v

And this in a country where Jews have civil rights
And this judgment from a man,
of human rights and civil rights with all possible protection for Judaism carefully weighed against each other.

This is how he proceeds to take any oath in court to be able to do so in the following way:

« The discount, he says, which I have received as a gratuitous due, and the effective what they receive, is decided among us in silence; but it depends At this moment it still depends on you: whether You approve the agreement or not. fshould it happen, I declare in the document that the= the one you receive from me, bank money fe, the same must also happen on your part, so that I am protected in any case). "

30. Now I ask: how can a complaint What happened in court? Plaintiff would either speak untruth in his words, or sets them out in his writ; and defendant offers to swear an oath: plaintiffs really the full sum in bank money.

*) It should also be noted that Jewish loans that some people accept the high interest rate agreement because of this because he has received from the Jew the most sacred assurance is given: the money to him for five years to leave it in his hands without notice. The Jew also holds his word, he will not cancel the money; another Jew, however, from the mercantile association, stands for him to whom the bond is issued.

A hint for those who receive money from Jews record, do not stand by verbal promises to remain, they will also be bound with a hundred oaths accompanied; but the act to be issued about it add the relevant clause: that the Cefionar also agreed not to terminate obliges oneself.

31. But if documents, the following oath no longer has legal validity, what would then become of the process?

32. But if one wants to say: the money must be in presence of two credible witnesses

and be received as such regulations of several states;
fo is also this . ai ver=
l , completely useless.

33. Then let. = Jew e a bond, with secure pledge, or
a bill of exchange issued to him for the amount either the premium of the courant money, or to that Amount of the enormous interest to be anticipated (or Discount) in which it is said: fo and to receive so much money in cash from the same whose redemption is even less legal can be disputed.
en 34. In short, no human wisdom is ever capable "of ever inventing measures,
they may still be so well thought out and tested,
as they want, who have ever opposed the mischief of usury
could stop it; it happens with goods.
or with money, even less if there are significant enterprises because Jews are the clever
to practice politics, to involve Christian houses in it to find protection from this side
can, because, to admit the truth, it lacks not to bloodsuckers of higher classes, who like
give their hands to usury. |

283

35. But just as the merit of a man cannot be better recognized than if even his enemies will give him justice,
just there is also an evil, usury of the Jew
denthums, in all its fine, hateful form;
if defender of Judaism, no matter, the matter completely ignorant, or bought, but finally
must come to the confession of the truth=

36. A Jewish writer says: «it. it
It is not untrue that it was hard among the Israelites=
There are greedy usurers, and woe to anyone who falls under the hands, they pick and pinch him mercilessly. However, he adds,
«The usury of the Jews is only given to scoundrels
and swindlers who, because of their senseless
because of undertakings, got into trouble. » -

37. As for the latter words,
This also belongs to the number of untruths.

Because of the prudence of the Jews, the number of some unfortunates who give them more security than Fraudsters grant, far more considerably, the those who without guilt, without crime, enter the must have fallen into the hands of the Jews. Many a man, Far from being a fraud, is often under Conducting a solid business through a from unforeseeable fall of foreign, previously no less solid houses suddenly in a highly miserable, if only temporary situation which forces him to part of his warehouse to a Jew as collateral,

é

284

Loder probably stands well below the price)] to get a loan of 25 to 30 percent to be able to help for a certain period of time, so that by some other unavoidable failure, arising from the strict law of exchange entire warehouse of goods came to the auction, and here= by being deprived of all his fortune; like many other unfortunate people, except Han= state of affairs, without crime, without guilt from his Creditors who are often not in any better situation. Cases with which the present time is so hopelessly pregnant, and in Germany's previous situation, and in the current stagnation so much and some Businesses find their origin and reason.

– 38. But here the question arises, which Jewish writers mocking Christianity answered: why do Christians not seek from their fellow believers for cheap and fair interest? * the following is due resist:

39. The more pressing the lack of money in newer times among Christians, in the greater The Jews have a surplus of reserves. The cash money that Christians may have but can the Christian, instead of legal interest, better

*) This circumstance also contributes to the squandering of goods, and where the Jews got them, if it were

find fchienerie= goods at such fvery prices to. Mark can bring.

285

in fine shops. But what is usury
As far as this is concerned, it is not only the Christian in general who blushes
my unlawful interest, but the name usurer, pursues him quite differently than the Jew *), makes him an abomination to all people makes him the talk of the town, even if he were clothed with insignia. In addition,
The merchant must first and foremost ensure that Credit on the stock exchange, this sole guardian angel
his business by his side in order to
to prevent a complete fall if it is in a temporary predicament has arisen, whereby he is forced to put on the coat of Jewish Secrecy, without which Jews could could not practice usury, and then: that the Christian is just as little at the Coverage as can be done with usury,
may, and may, as the Jew everywhere against the acts hostilely towards Christians.

For example, purchased or given mortgages counter money. The owners of the heirs,
in which the funds are documented,
perhaps not in the fortunate circumstances of their heirs

as. You can already tell from the fact that, where a Christian usurer takes place who violates the moral
– lifical principles in which he is subordinate feperation of Judaism, that such a never appears himself, but a Jew as head= participant runs the business alone, who freely and unashamedly to the borrower with the Represents a demand of 25 – 30 percent. |

286

in the appropriate building – condition, then
The Jew therefore proceeds to denounce
before the price of such heirs sinks further.
Procedure which Christians in general
is not so easy, knowing that such things often the complete ruin of an entire family =

This leads me to the

40. e) Houses= usury of the Jews, the also belongs to those sources. If a Jew wants fe fe ft ...

directly or indirectly to mortgage funds in
to get there, it is through your own Mortgage funds, or through

Purchase of the funds contained therein. Is this Manö= carried out; then the threat of dismissal is made,
to get enormous interest rates at the beginning. Are through this the powers of the owner are paralyzed; if he= follows the dismissal, and the Jew is under
own or borrowed name owner of the same.

Is the previous owner a man who years
through food in the house, felf and his family is well fed, and something else
has to put up with; the house will be too much for him high rent. This further reduces the deeper, and the case is conceivable that the Jew
In the end, the warehouse was also transferred to the hands fall.

41. f) In the junk trade, Jews make profit who are just as bad with their money, if not even much worse, as soon as the moral corruption is involved

287 should not be ignored, thereby:

that the buyers and fences of stolen goods
Things are, therefore, those far below the Buy valuables, and with significant percentages
they can resell them elsewhere.

42. g) When dealing with foreign Machinery goods are the usury of the Jews in the following way. Judaism holds fo entirely in the possession of the Public Auctions "),
in which it has once placed itself; so that it
foreign machinery goods to be auctioned there
as it were divided among themselves; ae thereby *), fine

*) The historical biesen, wit, and in what way
see p. 245 ff. in my cited paper.

) Regarding what is stated in the above mentioned document
which is written: whereby Jews their Trade s maxim follow; how to such low market prices, which is highly detrimental and consequent rich they put pressure on Germany's industry ꝛc. add above (see this section §. 37. Note à) mentioned inconvenience: that Jews look everywhere,
to investigate, to spy out how to freeze

warehouses, which also Goods far below their value into their hands
The following, among others, may also fall into this category:
be expected:

A man who had been in England for many years,
and had read that cited writing, told me
one day: he could give me an equally important Provide information about where Jews came from and what I have mentioned in it.

called. Machinery goods are so incredibly cheap
mu could bring to German markets.

Not knowing what it might contain, I asked the same; but it concerned one of Judaism, which I knew little about.

28888

Following the maxim of trade, those goods to the highest low prices to market, and therefore on the internal industry of the fatherland
in a way that is as terrible as it is irresponsible |
it presses.

ft long ago known thing; on Um: and Schleich=
because of progressive changes a significant
To know how to obtain credit for ultimate fraud.
However, a fine story may be quoted here:
A gang, he said, is shooting in some German city 2 to 3000 pounds : Sterling together
men. With this, one of the smartest is going to England.
Deposited it with a local banker. Rented a magnificent office, holding 4 to 5 Fi=
guranten, the evenings are brightly lit.
now with the purchase of this and that goods. Gives to about 500 pounds order on fine selected Banker. Payment is made promptly and correctly.
The same thing happens with each new Purchase. The goods are rushed to Germany, from where remittances are made. This Manoeuvre is opened by the one with the 2000 pounds
ten loan up to a loan of 20 to 30000 Pound continued. The purchase of goods with this Money is rushing from the fast sailors of England supported, sent away, and then is Jew, are extras, everything has suddenly disappeared.
Recipient of the goods make appearances=Banguerotte, covered by cessation acts. Cefsionaries have the Goods for nothing in hands. These and other goods obtained in other ways

to German markets, are sold, and the German Manufacturer must see that fine, delicate goods, \ vn something and price because, ganich . bleib=
en.

289

43. h) In the case of trades which are to be carried out at a later date
ten emerged, not subject to any guilds
are, and the exercise of which they are free to do,
The usury spirit of Judaism proceeds to Monopoly of the same to be able to reach a 8 ways:

Whoever follows trade = policy on its fo.
knows the hidden paths very well, and
would reveal such in detail in a work,
he would be one of the open lies.
distant Finns. – 7

45. Among the numerous reasons for this belongs: whereby every manufactory=, every factory=
being in another country where access
is opened, can be destroyed beyond repair.
The famous Christian in the annals of Sweden
'stopher Polhelm has got hold of a Inftruction for the implementation of the above plan which Mr. Modeer in fine rich Försök til en allaen Historia om Svea-Rikes Handel page XXIX et seq.

46. Be it your own invention or imitation imitation, the Jews observe just the same Trade policy. A capital will be put together shot (a vehicle which is the lighter
must, the higher the wealth of the Jews rises,
supported by the mercantile spirit of the community,
At the beginning, a few percent, often even worked at a loss. Is this or that Business is ruined, only a 19

*

290

ture monopoly is achieved; such is the rise= increase in prices) in an arbitrary manner.

47. As impressive as all this would be, whereby Judaism achieved its wealth knows how to create and expand; this closes nevertheless, an almost incalculable number of other Circumstances still apply to that one through which the same is promoted even more, and at the same time Plans, intentions, purposes of some kind achieved can be.

48. i) Through all the shame and

5 peddlers accompanied by 5 lorries.

49. k) By the adopted resolution of the trade maxims not to be followed by the genparthei: frequent turnover with low percentages is unequal more profitable than rare sales with higher profits.

50. 1) Due to the low level of Prices because of the scarce resources granted to the Jews Mefen. Bit on 10 ells $\frac{1}{2}$ ell through such won; this is said with insignificant turnover fvery little. But Judaism has almost the entire Sales of foreign machinery goods in hands, both through low prices and well-sorted to be; fow, it follows that if it is on 10 cubits $\frac{1}{2}$ cubit by narrow measuring to benefit and annually ten million all machinery goods have been sold off, This amounts to a net yield of 100,000 cubits.

) Below you will find a relevant example which, like all the other examples given, games, taken from facts.

291

51. 'But in the bourgeois moral world
ben Say: Strength comes from strength in the whole extent, as once always again becomes the lever of another; so that the Corollary: what is rising always higher swings upwards, just as what is sinking always sinking deeper to the bottomless pit, words

which not only everyone makes into a rule of life
would like; but those who are worthy, with golden book=
ftaf to be written at the state gates *), Whoever could do that in its entirety would felf to the number of the most astute men=
close. ö ae Ne
32. m) Through the strong national together, which is particularly characterized by

*) Not because of the importance of the sentence itself;
but because the theory of causality is the conclusion
contains: It is not just strength that comes from strength, but because every success, without exception, is twofold, an active and a passive reason depends; fo if every gained power in the subject is a paralyzed in the object, insofar as the action is on the components of both are limited.

For opposing parties, profit
and loss in the inverse ratio, since the Ufurpiende only borrows their power from the opposing force.

The ratio was therefore 8:7 and the first ratio (the usurping party)
reaches 9; fo becomes the second 6. And now arises

instead of 8: 7 the ratio 9: 6 = 3:2; and fo the rise on one side and the fall on the other
other side. | |

202

mutual support, by helping each other taking heads in to Ae u fich
distinguishes itself. |

53. n) Through the hereby connected= the mercantile common spirit. All and any business that has anything to do with a Jew
can be agreed to use N in any way
to withdraw. |

54, ,0) Due to the historical situation of Judaism, shameless, through Nothing to be shied away from the intrusiveness of the Jews, whereby Christians so often and much of the advantage jump is obtained exclusively.

55. p) Through their agency in private=
to withdraw. |

life, from every incident that relates to their business to receive prompt and rapid information, and especially the most favorable advance purchase must offer a generous hand. |

56. For, besides the fact that there are Jews who several patrol boys from their beggar class which are in the surrounding areas=ftreak, have to explore everywhere what is on their trade, they are represented by strongly supported their peddlers.

57. 4) Through the agency in related state visits and intrusive frequentation of all and any public place to get through the so cheaply available reading material of the numerous Public papers for all and every customer=

293

fhaf to 8 , especially what arrival of the stranger *) concerns, in order to overhear Ashes conversation,

*) These cannot be avoided by the delivery=ity of the Jews. For hardly is a stranger, belonging to the trade, weathered; so he is the very next morning from the exemplary urgency of the Jews, besieged and must often share the following fate with many others. A stranger also comes from Saxony. Gos A Jew immediately appears before him, the future before= knowing: to do big, very big business with him to be able to, first wants a portion of his goods thie to test how it works; also receives such the value of a few hundred thalers. Soon there=

'The stranger goes up to him and asks how things are.
« Very good, I have sold them, and the money?
"I don't have any money, I'll give you goods instead."
What do goods do to me, says the one with which I cannot afford my short stay here will. Moreover, the goods are not the fourth part valuable

The stranger does not want to be in a strange place to enter into a lengthy legal action, the Bitterness that the Jew was killed by another Jew,

who plays the lawyer, has the nerve to give him five percent for comparison, if he is not of the

be lost in its entirety or become actionable. –

Another relevant example: Someone has

Prussian leased a piece of land. It falls

by inheritance to a new foreign owner,

who, since the lease years are over, will administer them himself wants. Meanwhile, the current tenant owns the Harvest. Good men are therefore appointed, arbitration award is that this ... Thaler Preussian

Courant has to be preserved. With this compromise,

he to *, the place of residence of the current owner. Wåh=

During the heyday he buys himself a

+4

294

to find out which clusters of

be threatened with luck traps in order to deal with such

Conclude purchase contracts, assignment applications, etc.

and to be able to undertake; to young men,

who set their foot on the path of debauchery

sweeping seem to serve as companions to the=

those who already find worms, completely out of tap 3c. 3c.

58. r) Through their family branches, which are reside and settle in different countries

must).

50. s) By the resulting, + fo

extremely widespread Jewish Corres= pondence (of all events that occur

Jewish houses are almost always closed

only the most complete message), which in many cases provides a means to save Christian homes

to destroy it without warning).

a small creature. But disputes arise for the sake of compromise, and the payment will be made only delayed. However, the time is approaching that purchased position, and 1000 Thaler Hollfitei=

To be paid in cash in něch čurant. Buyer lives in a foreign places, does not know who to turn to.
but a Jew presents himself to him who procures the money
fen. It happens, the 1000 thalers are paid to the seller by court order, but at the same time
The Jew draws a bond of 200 thalers (i.e. the fifth part only for his effort by getting the money from someone else
given up) which for him also either in the country Protocol entered or 'Page e are
must.
) ) See page 236 et seq. in the cited text.

>

205

60. t) Through their companies,
in which individuals enter who are in different different trading cities, even different countries
through the transplanted family branches
so much easier to carry out, and the fifth game of deception.
In the event of a planned banquerot, the dissolution of the company at the
The person who has left has capital and active Debts with them; so that the company
The Paffiven remain alone. At the same time, the previous company (Compagniefschaft) again here or there under a modified name, and so the game continued from time to time. N

61. u) By an unscrupulous failure, the=
shape that if in the mass really 80. - 90 Percent are available, no 2 percent to the Di= vidend come, namely by preceding Copying important posts, whereby this and that Jew is fully covered); by Cef=
fions=deeds through which a Jew acquires his real estate
billards, fine warehouses, even fine furniture /

*) If the person mentioned is a pseudo-Christian, a Spanish
nuevo Christiano, or novo Christao of the Portuguese;
fo it may say: «by their fruits you shall eat recognize.v >

*) If one sees that a Jew is nevertheless in possession of his considerable furniture remains; so is

This circumstance is taken care of, as stated in the cessation act:
e however, the assignor shall be permitted to temporary use of the mobile phone ceded to me liars to stay.» –

296

because of fictitious debts, to another Jew
ceded; by fictitious creditors who are in the Manifesta=
tional oaths appear, and not a single Heller had to demand.

62. H Through the profit they get from such unscrupulous people who speculate
on rich widows “through marriage to them,
make; the latter believe that their wealth is about, because it is occupied in houses, but not punish those who borrowed money from Jews
can be used for which bank funds in the houses
be enrolled.
ee w) By using their Sab=

baths in relation to exchange transactions.
much. Whatever the profit from it may be, it belongs with the rich source of Jewish advancement.

64. For there is a change on the Jewish Sabbath= bath is due; then he can only do it on Monday, therefore.
can only be redeemed on the third day. The Rams
The process goes from showing to accepting, from protesting ftiren the change etc.

Who does not honor our noble ancestors in this?
They would rather have been involved in the resulting collision
two days of rest, suffer more harm than any blame the religion of a foreign People), on whose strict observation at that time

*) Here too, consider the points of contact
A foreign people with a completely foreign
. if it were, then one would have had some 297 observance of the Sabbath was not religious consideration of their

fideits, or even the preceding one.
to make Friday the payment day.

65. It is true that they admitted such things at that time, apart from religious considerations, in order to facilitate a
the exchange business in the hands of the Jews only began and was of no importance.
the expanded industry of the fatherland, by virtue
the resulting active trade baras
The German trading cities were mostly Goods. But now that almost all payment of the passively traded in rems; stands
to answer the state question: whether that law
does not require modulation, namely followingas
because of the reasons.

Consideration is given to whether it is this or N day
celebrate or not? – Jews should therefore, instead Christianity, and consider how incredibly much preferential to all other religions regions. You should look in what value they have, for example, in the eyes of the Muslims who consider themselves descendants of the eldest son of Abraham, and to reclaim from the Jews everywhere their inheritance rights;
which, by the way, is the main reason
fe may be, from which the fanatical spirit of the Muhas
medanism – a primal inheritance borrowed from Judaism
to have a right to the earth, – once such ravishing
could make progress in his conquests,
and motive for the Christian party on the earth may be and remain Iden Muhamedanism
just as little as Judaism in political terms never to lose sight of those who are under such and fpizien (fic) could temporarily fraternize.

=

| 298°

. a 66, You, the Jews, currently have the Exchange business almost entirely in their hands. So unas

my previously limited it to active trading been "just as it is with the present
passive trade of Germany has been expanded.
The formerly strict observance of their Sabbath

Moreover, it no longer takes place in any way. Through the attempt to keep Christian shop assistants through Christian clerks to carry out office business, they have long since converted their Sabbath into a keltag. They also appear on the stock exchanges just as well on the Sabbath as on any other working day, let on the same Days draw up acts, some of which eer önlich e *) ieee: one Width:

*

* How impossible a the sabllofert modifications because is to make a general judgment about Judaism, fo. that one just has to stand there, would be the Spirit of Judaism, which is everywhere one and the same is, can develop there, and also inevitably

ftch unfolds, where it is given a freer scope is štstattet, of which 9 two are known= writings that have become.

In the one I just knew 5 :
Scripture states: despite the fact that the Jews in Frank: right to civil rights and public functions were nugfed, they still did not want to go to their Sabbath copies signed, fie wanted to limit themselves to verbal activities only. and in a depiction of the Jews in Galicia It says: «No Jew would dare to be on the Sabbath House to delete. Jews here and there what a huge difference! –

299

res what to business life, to the desecration of Jewish day of rest, to be mentioned here.

67. And if that were to happen, if a Amendment to that standard undertaken, On which side would the blame lie? Is the The day of rest set by Christians is not as holy as the Jewish one? Would the Jewish one, by Jews themselves desecrated the Sabbath when it was on Sunday would be less holy? And should the Christ a Sabbath, for which usury= spirit itself does not have the slightest respect,

why a fanaticism based on usury
is also taken into account and is used for this purpose? –

68. x) Furthermore: by the Jews trusted debouchiren of the Lotko s. States were only too soon the rejection that cannot be denied by anything urgency of the Jews, all other measures to be taken in this regard), and

*) Where reciprocity takes place, a foreign Lotto may be announced, but the advantages
may not be cited which grant such a right.
The following may also serve as evidence of the not blushing intrusiveness of the Jews.
where peddling generally does not take place,
the Jew still does not succumb to lottery= to pile up notes, as he is more lenient in this promises. But how outrageous is it, so often and so much to see: how Jews people whole stretches pursue, force them to give them a lottery ticket praising, not failing to give it to them in their bosoms,

felp . not . oe
to force.

300

therefore thought of no better hands=
to be able to trust. But how far ahead here= part and disadvantage calculated, is a fvery important question, especially when a lottery of Jewish cunning, which is set up by what our ancestors intended when playing the lottery=
ten, very far away ftebt.. – =

69. "). Through the very considerable profit,
Judaism where it is considered to be a realm
thumern has arrived, from u... Abs delivery system.

70. Confitent in his ideas, opinions and sayings not decades, his life
staying through is always the highest honor for me
of a writer. It is the sure criterion of fixed, unchangeable principles to have gone. For this reason alone, I will,

*
*
Pe vu

Or when a man who hates all Lotte» games,
because the number of so many unfortunate people
became known, even made the effort,
to write urgently to a Jew:
"To avoid the risk of lottery tickets,
and yet from time to time such things come into his house
be sent; so that acceptance of the same;
preservation of a quitclaimed lot,
Request for actual payment of the same;
delivery 2. so that all these disturbances in the Jews are valued for nothing.
How? such a lot of payment to open it urge, is already quit, even if it is only fin=
happened by chance, was lost,
What then would a Jew consider himself entitled to do?

301
as long as I live, never deviate from it), me
against the indirect tax system.

71. It is characterized by two equally important relevant characteristics: instead of relying on the total number appropriate carrying parts are placed – this fuch important, by fo many states
above all and especially considered eyes=
merk – has the middle, even more the lower class to carry larger loads, and is therefore unjust; and the already increased tax preservation of foodstuffs that are affected by the perishable Advance purchase by monopoly even higher is driven, falls on the industry – which already paralyzed by this, it becomes even more so by this,
if the circumstances of the time are against an industry of a foreign
the nation has to fight the greatest battle – –
so that no competition
can be achieved on foreign markets, and is with= highly detrimental to the state.

72. Because the indirect tax system, Ä which is considerable elevations from the first
As far as life needs are concerned, it is considerable because no direct support to the same stands, is far away relative tras
to allow it to be regarded as a state maxim, it

*) Except for previous political science issues, where Whenever this object was touched, I
in a separate treatise (recorded in Mr.
Nemnich's Hamburg Archives Ites Seid, 1814)
had in mind. :

302

Rather, the lowest class of people, even the Beggars must be dependent on the basic necessities of life pay the same as the wealthiest.
what the millionaire kills. Ä

73. But if the gap between poverty and Wealth so immeasurably great; so come from that disproportion gives rise to further disproportions,
which gives the whole thing the appearance of
give unjust. it

74. For what does the childless wealthy person pay (Domestics, whom he keeps for his convenience, are not considered here) what pays against it weekly, what does the poor man pay daily= worker who has to feed about 7 – 8 individuals is obliged; he comes even higher than to a annual fee of 25 – 30 thalers.

75. What do the rich pensioners pay in comparison?
rer, who probably even live with others, except Eat lunch and dinner at home, they pay
the state directly nothing,
not even a penny, because what is more indirect=
white through them, is passed on to the restaurateurs rolled, as these at the traditional table price
have to stop.

. 76. Moreover, how much can they, the goods=
ten, facilitate the indirect delivery system,
which places an even greater burden on the smaller Class falls. There is only one article, butter.
The beneficiary shall, at the appropriate time, provide himself with the required quantity. The lesser man

303

On the other hand, buys fine butter, especially with Kramers “Weight, in half and quarter pounds, and which goods? At what prices? Hence
The wealthy person wins (except what is due upon import Water is conceivable) in weight, in quality of Goods with a price increase of more than 10–15 percent.

77. And how much the profitable indirect Tax (=System *)– on the industry (trade)

*) Precisely because the indirect tax system is so profitable
The more dangerous it is, the more damaging it is for industry.
Because if you calculate the money circulation for each of one hundred thousand individuals a day one thaler, for

This makes 36 million in the circulation of money
Thaler annually. The state takes from every Thaler
3/16 Schilling indirect tax; this makes a

Revenue of 2 million 250,000 thalers. Now

The state does not retain this sum.

Even supposing they only settle the expenses;

for still that sum does not come back into circulation=

run for the entire population, a large part remains in individual hands.

If a nation has no resources in its hands,
its annual deficit of money circulation, especially through Replacing Active trading is probably not possible with passive
If the cash is traded out of the country, such a Nation is becoming increasingly stunted, the lack of money must become more and more oppressive, and Jews who Loans that know how to use such a loan will receive a ever larger market for itself.

But to understand how important it is for a state
the circulation of money, which must be the soul of the state, may one only has to cast one's gaze at England. Without respects the enormous amount of money there, which the wealth of the rest of Europe prevails,

If there is such bitter poverty there. Where else

.

red) is clearly highly detrimental,
I believe we have a loud and clear example before us.
178. All knowledge, all skill,
Despite all diligence and tireless striving,
can be a food source in a major city
branch that once directly served over 30,000 people nourished, and on which by reaching over into countless means of earning a living, thus through internal and external money circulation not hundreds of thousands, but Millions indirectly participated, little or almost no competition in foreign markets win.

79. Apart from the difficult difficulties
ities which have brought about the circumstances of the time,
It remains an extremely important question: whether such with unequally reduced prices of the first Life needs just like that and in that all | oa ftatt would find). –

than because in the same ratio that the mass
feemed=beings there rose, the circulation of the gel= des been inhibited, because by the same, and by those to be driven out with the products of the same important trade in connection with the rest of the world trade the money only ends up in individual hands.

*) Of course it will not take place if another another worm is gnawing at the business. And here again an example that proves the sentence:
what is once sinking, sinks through inner and external circumstances ever deeper and deeper down, because the use of extraordinary funds for 305

80. In general, this can be achieved by fine craftsmanship
once famous, by all nations because of it fo ft highly respected Germany, it concerns
All fine linen= manufacturers, the re

Heavy and beyond human strength
seems.

Previously, when a sugar refiner through Meißner
in a sugar refinery, by subsequent Cooking for your own account a small
He had acquired wealth; he bought the raw Sugar from the first hand of his place (as it is still now happening in England) with cash. The Merchant, going hand in hand with trades
was content with 2 percent of his lucrative profit,
because it had a turnover of millions of pounds annually.

But now the parallel to the present time.
Terrible robbery of sugar refineries and their property
thum committed; years of complete stagnation, and;
Successful attempts have increased the ability of Most of them are consumed. They open up at Handelsbank
a credit. This comes to them
6 percent interest and 2 percent guarantee.

Suppose that, at the same time, the higher Asekuran
For the sake of the premium, because of the dangers which the German shipping has been suspended in recent times,
the merchant only makes 6 percent of trading profit;
for this already goes up to 14 percent. Come in addition, 5 percent higher carrying parts of the in disbursements
due to the levies; thus arises the noticeable Difference between then and now from 1922/17.
So where does competition come from? Consequently, there is no other option.
fight there, than that a complete ruin will result from it,

that such unfortunate people who have house, furniture,
even equipment as collateral for the credit
have finally got away naked and begging
have to go.

20

306

Prussian, Saxon and German states, then
its wool, cotton spinning and manufacturing
invoicing; iron factories; Sugar boilers etc. etc.,
in such a hard fight against foreign industry,
not paying enough attention to the indirect
delivery system.

81. The corresponding sites are just as extremely simple as obvious, yes, even generally recognized, and yet competition on foreign
The only way to maintain the market is through good of the goods, and by the lowest possible
Preis happened.

82. This can, all perfection of the Technology, regarding the quality of the goods, and respected, only by a low level of Prices of raw materials, and of Lebeus= means can be achieved.

83. To achieve this, agriculture is therefore this sole solid foundation of the trades, of to free all and every burden; the trade ben, this sole lifting device of the active Trade, are both the basic necessities of life, as well as the raw materials, as low as only ever possible to get into the hands in order to thus give up that monopoly= system, the three pillars of state, agriculture, industry and trade, more firmly founded, and then from the expanded financial situation of all the state forces to be able to derive

307 |

84. 2) Furthermore: by the unscrupulous, Jews so often and widely practiced perjury, the even the most shameful predation, the most shameful knows how to evade the most deception of justice. What was said earlier about the laws regarding the Usury has been predicated, also applies to Perjury. Witnesses are infinitely countless against measures taken, regulations= gen, statutes, which together have always and until now has been completely useless and and stayed.

85. aa) Through the so often perpetrated by Jews Name change, which also caused the worst deceptions. There are cases that one and the same Jew in five to six places appeared under different names. In Warsaw, different in Berlin, again different in Leipzig, and in Frankfurt, in Hamburg is different again.

86. bb) Through the Judaism adopted= my maxim: everything that is done in secret must be wrapped in the cloak of deepest secrecy past, which makes some people consider: mundane profit from the eye, the Jew in the hands falls. 5 nn

87. All these components of the bubbling source), from which subenthusiasm his fortune=

*) But do not think as if on all and Everything that is created from it is already there:
What would be said is: What from the murky ground of the same

ftand can be considered permanent for daffelbe be viewed. But this is followed by a large series of accidental circumstances through which to make a temporary profit dares.

88. cc) Through espionage. It would be superfluous, first on the character of the Jew=
thumbs to point out why the same
found to be particularly useful for this purpose
In the former Republic of Venice

is fished out, who can touch all this!
3. B. What dirty profit do Jews have from the crooks they invented = language
know how to draw, whereby the courts only advise
may be drawn where gangs of thieves are arrested
to see what tremendous difficulty=
abilities have risen through that, so that from practice Robbery: Crimes that do not defy justice
winds. |

In general, whatever Judaism falls into,
must become to him what every other person has become to him.
Only one thing: temples will be built,
Sermons held in it; so these things must
to be promoted to Oruck. Not as if one believed fie the sample works of Boffuet, Maffillon, Tillotson, Zollikofer – – somewhere to the side to be able to sit down, but also with the dear Judi=
The Word of God is to be traded in the following manner.
For this purpose, subscriptions are collected from Jews.
The number of Eubferibents will be any Bud):
action, which was 6 Louis d'or per Bos
gen, as extensively as possible, and with larger let:
tern printed, pay fol. A price that a with=
A mediocre novel cannot earn half the money.

According to the story of Daru, the State Inquiry 200,000 ducats annually on espionage, the majority of which Jews. The same thing happened in France under the dynasty of that man, the same has found everywhere and in all places.

89. dd) Through Kupler=Geftschaft, which, fo as espionage they do not shy away from at all= the intrusiveness, especially their agility to appear under every larva, under every mask, But what wealth can a Jew with shamelessness written on his forehead embossed, acquire if he couples a man nes is the one who can dispose of millions, and to whom women are brought from time to time, their household furnishings with 5 - 6000 thalers which is not 800 thalers have value.

90. ee) By bribes.

91. ff) Through banquets on the part of the fo very wealthy Jews, where invitations were made, to describe the plans, intentions, projects, drafts have promoted.

92. gg) Through adverse fates, which are not only individual persons, but even peoples and States. The saddest remark that just about Judaism, in relation to usury, and in their intervention in the well-being and suffering of the Volker can be employed is: fishing in the Troubles, how to express oneself in everyday life

Everything that humanity knows about "Always hard pressed, their unspeakable suffering and has caused tribulations, all this is always has become a great gain for Judaism.

93. The more a country is plagued by misfortunes is bowed down, the more Jews know. the unfortunate fate, from the sorrows and suffering of others to considerable provide.

If countries are devastated by wars, then so be it;
They position themselves as suppliers and commit probably even in the end to the subcontractors, from the number of non-Jews, the most horrible Fraud if their statement of the fee=ne=
deliveries to be made when paying for an audit
is subjected to; cases that almost always occur,
so that then costs of judicial investigations;
travelling back and forth of the personal present,
for the sake of faster enforcement of the matter;
stings; delay in payment; abbreviations,
fo that then everything and everything that comes from that usury business may have emerged.
Subcontractors must be given a Accord is offered so that they, at their own expense
because, probably hardly to a dividend of three to four percent.

94. Or they sneak after the armies, 105
bargained booty of this and that precious items
with a profit of more than 500 percent.

95. And has a foreign warlike power

311

through devastation, scorching, baptizing families
lien plunged into misfortune, fo gerathen, the before.
For the reasons given, all those in their Hands held by debtors, who are often no less,
are unhappy, are pushed, and those through rescued debris try to help themselves, so proliferate
fie with the money acquired in the wars
also continues in this respect.

Even if the Furies-driven fate the greatest scourge on a nation
fwings, Jews also know how to
To make use of it. The following is written somewhere historically truly written: |

« During that time of misery, in the worst of Revolution, if France is divided by factions was torn apart, the Jewish people surrendered in Alsace, which has no part in our civil Disagreements took (lurking in ambush) and only became more courageous through our misfortune, completely their predatory desire for usury. The most punishable

Usury was practiced. The interest was raised to One hundred per hundred raised, and the honest,
by the harmful consequences that the war brought with it.
weakened, and by the standstill in trade impoverished farmer of these areas, soon had no other choice than this, the dishonorable usurer to hand over his small fortune, the speculated on public misery. »

96. And ransacked, an equally hostile
Schick; fas because of this and that displeasure

312 bosom of a nation, if this even results in a unfortunate tension between governments and Rex

emerged; so they, the Jews,
it, which this situation of things, many and many reasons for wanting to differ in every possible way
keep trying, for many and many reasons,
If only: so that every crime that Aegide of the Christian side must at the same time cover, in the Borrowed the more anger can be exerted.

97. Now let us cast our eyes upon everything what was said above, whereby Jews=
thum knows how to increase his wealth;
summarizing all the parts presented above,
which directly and indirectly contribute to the
to increase the wealth of the Jews, and then Let each one judge for himself whether Jews ever dare
were allowed to say: that the decline of Christians
from such an unfair source as laziness, Indolence, opulence and eee emerge.

98. But if non-Jewishness 'in respect these vices he was so harshly accused of, in appropriate protection from me with all competent Rights have been taken away; thus the Jewish writers also so often and much sentence:

"It is precisely they, the Christians, who find it themselves,
which directly (autonomously) leads to the elevation
Judaism contributes so much
have to bear, » an idea that felffed on the 313

urges that Jews everywhere be mixed with Christians
negotiations, and where these develop neither passively nor actively must not yet be refuted, which also, the Truth completely true, absolutely and in no way
can be refuted in every way.

99. However, the following can be said in defence be asked: civil society is, as
it already mentioned earlier, no dead, will= loose machine that, like the physical world, moved in merely uniform circles; fondern . the energy of people, depending on views, opinions, partly peculiar, partly erlifet, from the state of things, from the urge of circumstances, private interests, passions in the wake of so many and many vices, the energy of the people brings movements which are spread over countless, never-to-be-missed To cross paths, to run on through action, there are repelled by reaction, here through transaction to spread to countless parts, return there by reaction, or must extend farther over other parts. |

100. These wrongs, of so many and movements dependent on certain motives, which= because of the conflicting elements – which are precisely often completely unexpected, as well as sudden, produce properties and teach: never to reliable future that calls for: everywhere with caution, with consideration on the way to act in accordance with the law – has every usurpation

314

The history of all peoples teaches us that
of all nations, it is entirely in their power:
Appendix in the middle of the opposite
party to provide 9. |

101. Accordingly, Judaism also owes the self-activity of Christians, however, is very
and many things to his mighty rise=

102. But what the historian must nations and all peoples, of humanity, it is their limitations in= living and peculiar; even the shoots and outgrowths belong to it, as those of the most delicious fruit tree is not missing. But That is a burden on him, on Judaism itself,

by taking what is left of the bourgeois

* We have already mentioned the difficulty of answering the
A historical question has been raised: how that man
what he could become at the peak of his height. How many countless parts would
But the same one advised those who explain that he came from the
In the midst of those to be defeated he brought his greatest forces led.

Whoever can believe and think that it is through his own
Force has risen to that height
to have, he has never entered the interior of the bûr=
looked into the social world, never paid attention
how the easily movable parts with
With a few tricks you can easily move to a achieving advantage; has never reconsidered, as in cosmopolitan traffic through= interwoven interests here made more complicated, there can be pulled.

,

315

Society cannot be separated in any way,
has taken advantage of such a large scale.

103. Bitter poverty and miserable situation, used by Judaism, could only too easily
make it possible for poor people among Christians devoted themselves to the Jewish gift bath to undertake.

104. Among Christians, this and that vice because of not being able to move on, brought= maid only and solely there, one
. to be able to serve Jewish rule;
which leads to self-interest, vanity,
gave even greater impetus to life; so that
the serving class into an ever greater depravity
degenerate into the situation that they become the nursery
had to, from which poor=, sick=, prisons,
Court hospitals were subsequently populated *).

105. The same cause, if not more self-interest, to gain a higher salary, perhaps even vanity in a noble Jewish Trading house, blurred the Christian shop assistants blush to hire Jews admit. "*"

106. Petty profit could not destroy the Christian Give names to the Jewish purchase of an inheritance.

*) How dreadful, how pernicious Judaism is in the morality of the peoples has been interfered with,
This single circumstance in my statement serves ten document (p. 178 et seq.) and further it should be thought about.

316

Low interest had to be found here and there:
to sell mortgage money from such houses to Jews
buy the property they have set their sights on.
Nasty self-interest was not ashamed to emerge from the...
favorable location of a house to a Christian displace in order to pass it on to a Jew unequally
to rent at a higher rent.

107. The usury spirit of this and that rich man would stifle conscience: shots to money=
to issue bonds that yield 30 – 40 percent deliver). There could be no conscienceless not missing, who here and there had no qualms,
to offer a hand to the antedate.

108. Bribes had to be able to reach it to promote plans, intentions, perhaps even under whose aegis the most hideous banquerot
to be carried out, or any other break to cover.

1:09. More than a contemptible gain could to this: to have Jews at the auctions

*) And how large may be the number of those who Financial transactions with the surplus of their annual income, whether pensioners or those feen, which from the disputes of others a acquired significant wealth, or also luck
ter who have become rich through marriages, who Jews stand by their side because they have made significant Percentages must help. It can therefore, when

Progress of Judaism, a time will come,
that that class of people is a premium for the
which provides a protective document for Judaism,
to cover one's own shame wherever possible.

317

support so that the entire sale is for them become prey.

110. But what more than all the preceding fay: Christian writers could fimperate
far forgotten, to let oneself be bought, to those,
which, out of unforgivable ignorance,
the word spoken, to join, and for Jews=
to spread untruths against Christianity,
to that in its madness, darkness, claims
and intentions all the more to support. .

111. But it is not enough that everyone usurping party is so easy to
to gain an immensely large following, to
to acquire a significant number of participants); fone
but it can finally even bring it to the point that the opposing party is forced and compelled,
to honor their interests in many and many respects
to have to. |

112. He who knows the trade and knows what the credit of a merchant wants to say, sees

that a man, in a difficult situation,
in the cloak of secrecy of a Jew
has to be wrapped up, but also for this loan so must be bought much more expensively. N |

113. Anyone who knows trade knows that the Merchant only to conduct exchange business with Jews
making it absolutely necessary.

*) To the number of many other phenomena that deliberately omitted in this section, belongs also what is in the eighth section p. 30 in a note.

114. He who takes people as he finds them;
does not require that one go where he has a
has to buy goods more expensively.

115. Whoever sees the importunate dress of the Jews in its entirety, cannot be unconditional=
weis want: that states debouchier the Lotto out of the hands of the Jews.
Lotto's costs to be used could easily become a burden on the state. This Jewish discipline=
The people have simply imposed this burden on themselves.

110. Finally, how incredibly difficult it is,
all intervening causes that lead to such a usur=
rival party, such as Judaism, ftall, to be able to enumerate, I want to tell you one memorable circumstance, which, like so many Others are not so close to the field of vision.

That which is in Judaism
is viewed only with reluctance,
when it comes to Christians,
infamy.

117. Where does this striking contrast come from?
where does this strange phenomenon come from? the most dings also to the means of the n of Judaism.

The reason for this can only be that
be fired: in the case of a Jew,
Generally, it is assumed that the procedure
white of Judaism so and not otherwise
fachen fei, and therefore no further surprise excited. Under such a condition falls.

no such harsh criticism of the individual as of every Christian who acted in the same way would fall.
Where then the isolation of Judaism,
whose mercantile spirit, whose applause
To have gained the advantage over Christians xc.
may be included. 2

118. In Instructions of Scene Examples
Everyone should make his own judgment: whether Christians

in these and those cases with equal intensity ability to act with the same shamelessness could, and would act, and if it really
what happens, what judgment is then passed on them
will be, which contempt fi fe then everywhere bine
would have been presented.

119. A farmer has the fate, fine.
Losing your house through fire. Already at the next morning *) he does not know

*) All such and similar incidents confirm what has happened
is said, namely: that the character of the Jew^s :
thumbs befonders fein usurgergeist ert the fine, delicate feeling in man, the sense of the bonum et honestum had to completely suffocate before such a shameless way of life. But what Jews an unblushing intrusiveness,
would be if such actions were carried out by Christians (here a man in mercantile terms
who will not be able to recover from his dismay for a long time has not recovered) a barbaric mentality, could even be called malicious joy, a silent
desire to avoid several misfortunes
to be able to take advantage of cases of this kind. |

The Jew, on the other hand, is free to act
not because it is right, not because it is human;

from Jews who were selling him timber
want to force you to buy. After a few days
he comes after * What do you think, he says,
The next morning, Jews, even
this place and offered me timber.
I heard it,» They harassed me so that if I did not know how the unfortunate fire
(by weather rays) I could believe:
Jews had infected it. Meanwhile I come to You. What are the prices? – – How? So much? Jews offered it to me at that price^s « Would I make it to you and others for a even lower prices, I would have to wither, or the raw wood on completely un^s obtain it legally. How can but Jews deliver it at such prices? “Because
here, as everywhere, they strive for monopoly,

but because the way the Jews behave fuch is created because the Christian can expect nothing better from

can expect from it, because it is a worm and remains, which gnaws at bourgeois society. But if one holds up the mirror to Judaism gen that it can see itself in it, so it is said also here by Jewish writers: «frivolous Writers everywhere are reviving things that were previously could be a burden to individuals.» No! Judaism, viewed legally and truly, is no look back at the past, no warming up of the past legal procedure. What Judaism has always been fen, it is generally still present. Still now it places itself in its own spirit above the everywhere and everywhere. |

321

and they have recently also been working in the have admitted, please do not let the goods than driving under the shopping price to as a result, it can grow even more.

120. The lease years of a mill are next gone. A Jew appears at the tenant's house. I will, he says, bid on the lease, but let me settle with 200 thalers from you. No sooner has this been dealt with than a second one appears, which consists of 250 thalers.

Now a Christian should do the same, he will become Daily conversation! Everyone will point fingers at him white, the Jew, on the other hand, is applauded by his fellow believers.

But what should such a tenant do? He has himself, wife and children at the mill nourished, he shall go away, and besides all Bread live? or should he make it an exaggerated Let the lease come, the pressure of which, even more if it falls into Jewish hands, on his fellow man who has a secret worm in the food supply of the trades, which, apart from indirect taxes, Pre-purchase, so severely suppressed by Monopol 1908 and are burdened.

121. A merchant has a batch of raw American furs in commission. He hires a Christian. During the interview A Jew also comes to the store and asks for her, . the trade with that person is concluded.

This requires punishment. He learns when a public auction will be held fol 5
 He also sets a Auction. To prevent this, the one Day earlier announced. But here appears the Jew: «What goods! What shovel goods!»
 he speaks in the middle of the much larger number of Jews who are of one mind with him, to the greater part paint too loudly. Buyers are put off, the limited price is not offered, and from
 The whole auction will be nothing.
 the following day for really much worse
 Goods through bait and switch, through promotions etc.
 given more than the previous day for real good goods will be received sun, j On complete commercial freedom of

>

 | Jews.

122. The one mentioned in the preceding Overview of what trade and haggling in the hands of the Jews, an object that is not
 can be easily exhausted to prevent spoilage Jewishness only in terms of business life so completely before our eyes,
 fe ee the fo e important state
 question
 whether, apart from that means of earning what is Part exclusively in the hands of the Jews
 is located, they also have a complete commercial Freedom, or the exercise of all and every trade should be permitted?

I am in the scripture quoted several times
 This question has almost been avoided, since its complete Answering the most difficult of all examinations

about Judaism. Not the occurring difficulties, even the inevitable collisions because of, but the matter is how to common life is said to be in the cut spoiled. A proverb that says more here wants than anywhere else. For it is now as the fate of civil society: it may only one evil germ in their interior be lowered, it shoots up, roots initially in silence, but soon drives into unforeseeable Rows of shoots that in centuries, cannot be eradicated even after thousands of years.

123. Where Jews are not accepted, and should be recorded, finds quite There is no question as to what should be granted to them; but where they are through haggling and trade usury for many centuries left to it, a dexterity and skill even in this a preference over all other business have acquired), whose pernicious course is not be hindered by the most thought-out measures den kann; that question is a matter of large salary, and depends on the decision:

*) How many examples are there of Jews, where they are given complete freedom to pursue their trade, yet such of them . and at the N vines | remained find, ° a ö 5

324

how Judaism linked the trades with Jewish trade and haggling, to the complete ruin of the non-Jewishness!

124. Examples of those trades, which are not subject to any guild or association, and with which Jews in modern times, through Christian Hands that can barely earn a living nen, operating them, have been busy, lie ft already in sight. They are mostly It has become a monopoly of the same. Whether all and every trade would have the same fate, There remains a difficult question to answer, if one understands the spirit of Judaism, its

tagonism; fine firm holding together; fine mers Cantilian common spirit; it became possible for him dene Handels= maxim; fits principle: the

Money must be directed to our people, and in whose circles are held, its advance means of his financial situation; his where possible final intention to be proven etc. in every way pulls. |

125. But on the one hand, Sudentum

and allow every trade, but on the other hand in terms of haggling and dealing try to limit it so that this does not become a highly a rude means of advancement for those, as this few executable, for me at least, the entire possibility is too much in the background.

126. Because there are other

nn. , even collisions of various kinds

a

325

to that one. Judaism could at least who hold a positive religious opinion, which essence of religion as the basis, but Judaism through its religious = secular isolation does not place itself in the bond of the bourgeois Society, where it lives and moves, has want to weave; it has thereby the largest Disruptions in business life, which trade concerned, put in by his own will, which by his previously exercised means of earning and use of the same has been expanded even more the fare. For this reason also not with all truth there can be said: that the former guild spirit that was once so powerful It was to blame for the fact that Jews were were excluded from all trades.

127. For if apprentices of the Jews have masters? They must first be formed.

128. Should the Jewish apprentice at the dy rifts lichen Master on the Sabbath, on the. so many Jewish holidays, or not? Should he To be a food companion or not? all the less so, since the apprentice was taken from the rougher class would be, and the trades would be mostly such food, which is completely alien to Judaism abomination is.

129. Should, furthermore, where guilds still exist ten, Jewish apprentices, journeymen, masters with the Christians constitute one and the same guild,

326

Or not? Should tires of craftsmen in future stay or stop? How friendly would fulfled in the sequence of journeymen of Jewish, and journeymen Christian masters meet each other?
Which of the two would one day have an easier
Acceptance if Judaism is included in all trade so completely put into it? Would they do not easily collide with each other as hostile stars
ftumble, especially when the journeymen of Christian Masters know how their fellow believers
and wither away, who nowhere have such a
such advance, such assistance, such support
support in credit when purchasing raw mate= materials, who have seen everywhere how even older customers of their masters turned to the Jews
because they worked for unequally low prices
ten, and work – can? A through this here and there the unrest broke out, however, how could the peace and . of the state travel

130. Civil society consists of parts that are divided by a conflicting interest, birth
of self-love, and means of never-resting activity,
in constantly criss-crossing movements.
According to this, what is in the interest of all
is to be of great content, of special importance. And that is why false views, every untruth can never and never find general space.

131. are but one and the same

327

Interest the minds of a ration); so it is undoubtedly of extremely important content; so it is often only a single local shock,
all parts are then affected by it.

small, insignificant circumstance can cause become hopeless events. Every coincidence but wanting to foresee, being able to foresee, what human wisdom could suffice for this?

132. Finally, where the guild system been retained, a complete, a whole= fundamental reform should be carried out with the same; too Jews were admitted to all conceivable trades should be allowed to continue; which also belongs to the set up by me somewhere, and not enough sentence to be taken into account:

That in such a federal state as Germany no generally applicable standard for Judaism can be accepted."

*) A respectable statesman says in fine |
Scripture true and incontrovertible:
e The discontent which already exists among the people over the Jews, if a consequence of the pressure, under which they know how to keep the Christians. v
Therefore, countless times, although in vain, against Jewish writers, it is already remembered that it is completely ly false and fictitious: that he is so vivid revealing hatred against Judaism by certain Writers from the Christian side.
If the slightest thing were true of this, such an un= right undeserved criticism not only on the immortal lichen Luther but to all before him centuries, when Judaism existed from time immemorial In ancient times it had not been judged with high praise.

328

Quite different in Austrian, in Prussian, Bavarian, etc. than in Lübeck, Frankfurt a. M. Hamburg ic. possible and at all conceivable.
133. With the guild system, it is said, before a complete, total reform be undertaken. Because how many craftsmen can now, as they say, not come to a green branch because they have catching and progressing so incredibly difficult is, partly by external causes (against foreign products that Jews put into circulation to have to work closely, although in general in vain); partly through adopted guild laws;

partly by those who are the consequences of the aggravation of the customs in which Jews have so much share have taken.

134. You, the young beginners must be there; where guilds, associations and unions meet, in general, the office is very important to be able to work as a master, which is already the case with a Jewish craft association would disappear completely. –

135. Furthermore, you will not easily find anyone who initially supported with a fund. Virtues and vices of a nation depend on both its history, its fate, than from so many other intervening causes. Because it cannot be remembered enough about Judaism be: that in no case e in no case

329

People such a community spirit, such a strong family, such a mercantile association instead could find”), as with the Jews.

after all, they still have so many incalculable advantages grant. |

136. Furthermore: as skins they have to their At the beginning little or nothing was collected. Except for the Temptations in the inns, these their collection points to collect their small stock, consume, they were all young men Lander was open. Therefore, only a small Disagreement where they worked; so they moved from one place to another, through the so-called, fencing, which they did not resent, completely consuming what little there is, what is less= wisely deserved.

137. Does it also happen that a young hand= worker marries a girl with some money, which served in so-called large heaps:

*) Therefore, any sentence requires a very large input | restriction; if so, it is as follows: |
« Instead of the common spirit of the Jews, which is such an important lever, the Christians are through many political and religious prejudices

always at odds with each other. » |

But the Jewish community spirit must do more than that;
in a different way, from a historical background
point considered advertise.

*) May this bread =Collect (under the name Fencing,) also only in villages, towns and small country towns, it is enough to cover whole stretches
to be able to travel with such a vehicle.

330

fo fieht fie, completely spoiled, in triumph
her opinion her wedding ceremony,, befons
ders their domestic furnishings for the largest restriction, for the highest possible savings
But, because of their location, the very large wide
Because of the distance between their possible homes
attitude and that of the rich a true, un= is a forgivable waste, from which they only through poverty, but too late, completely back | must come.

331

Sixth section.

Judaism viewed from a physical perspective.
A. Regarding the census of Judaism.

1. The fact that this section is in a fyste=
matic lecture on Judaism not entirely Standing in place, indicates that he is almost could have been skipped. It would also have been without hesitation, with regard to all that what in physical terms of the Jew=
thums partly to the present investigations not heard, as a body formation that the Despite the many centuries that have passed,
due to strict segregation, still outlines Oriental forms; partly must have occurred where Judaism in religiously, as life=
wise in terms of choice of food,

Washing, wearing a beard, circumcision etc.
Since everything and anything in Judaism is religious concepts; but partly also of the nature that Judaism
in it can happen too close to where the one=

332 heard the strange claim mentioned above: as would be a physical outflow to Judaism

to the health of the rest of the country
residents disadvantageous; That would be in the mentioned
In this respect, it would have been possible without any concerns, if not for the
the following very serious question into consideration to be drawn, and such as minor, and for the state completely unremarkable actually to could be put aside, namely:

where the fo is extremely easy and quick growth of the number of Jews in general, and especially where the spirit of Judaism becomes unequal |
can develop?

2. However general the Ge= history of Judaism highlights the remark:
that the number of Jews everywhere is so easy
and soon multiply; for after the dissolution of the Rational « Government and the Dispersion of the Jews
about so many countries, perhaps 4 – 5000 went to Alexandria, these Number, says history, rose in a very short time to 100,000. In Babylon (Chaldäa) it amounted to after a few decades to 200,000, without approximately only 8-10,000 people migrated there.
The same is said of many cities in Asyria,
Mesopotamia, Asia Minor, Egypt, Greece,
on the numerous islands of the Mediterranean
Marine, especially Creta (Candia) Rhodus &c., fo as in Italy, in Spain &c. noted,
an increase in, except for those who are becoming ever bolder=

|
25

333

the request), to the, often repeated

provided support and resources for the terrible uprising.

3. And as for more recent history,
It says: Shortly after the unfortunate cross-border processions
the number of Jews was not only restored,
but almost doubled, which is due to the consequences
those marches and campaigns may be explained;
through which so many families are confused, and Er= shocks, alienations, needs for Money loans, for pledging 2c.
the one that all the remaining Jews had considerable usurious profit, which the Ashes of the Perished in Gold – efi ae Jew could.

4 In Spain, a story goes,
the situation of the Jews, shortly before the expulsion exercise of the same to the Christians in terms of number ftill now = 1:9. In Prague,
At the beginning of the 17th century there were 12,000,
which at that time was approximately a ratio of 1:7
has given. Hence the emphatic= ft regulations of the time by the government
such as the progressive advance
to set appropriate limits.

5. And in view of the recent times
we ourselves have already made the remark: that for about ten decades the number of Jews

2 3. B. the above mentioned impression: that (in Spain) the Christians celebrate their oe on their Sab= bath should be laid.

—

334

in two respected cities of Germany without fahr = 1: 400 feifn, which to = 1: 300 :
1150 and finally currently to 1:7, as it means, has grown up. Just like what Poland and Galicia, it is also said:
that entire villages and towns in the possession of the Jews
are from which Christians have been completely pushed out, which from Sundgau and other areas
is also noted, and with which this and those small country towns in the D ee not winder be threatened.

6. The most important remark 12 concerning the growing number of Jews,
is: how such things are quite different with the Christian religious parties,

7. In many German cities live Lutherans raner, Reformed, Catholics together,
Nowhere does the concern arise that the ruling Church had anything to fear that the one or other sect rises too high, like=
probably because of the civil rights of business life take an entirely equal share. What's more, there are Examples that in a Lutheran or Reformed
city a considerable community of Reformed
or Lutherans, or even Menonites
instead of their number changing in any way
larger, it gradually melts
with the main components. 5

8. Even more striking is what is happening in North= America. There, people live and work peacefully

339

under 2 and together: Presbyterians, Episcopates, Lutherans, Reformed,

Catholics, Herrnhuters, Qudfer, Me

nonites, Baptists, Methodists &c., never
and never will there be any complaint,

that the one by intervening in the conditions

of business life threatening the rest against= Only Judaism alone is characterized before all other believers in this noticeable. Not religious segregation alone is to blame for this. The questionable words of a jüdi=

fic preacher: «although we Jews on other Ways to attain true worship of God, »
and which must be so close to them, can be
be commoned; so that it follows that

also, as far as business life is concerned,

Jews walk on completely different paths, the
on the ruin of the Christians, from the middle parts supported, calculated find.

9. Praise and blame, it was said in the above one management, are the slipperiest things in the world.
Yes, the question is whether a thing can ever be valued praised, or quite rightly criticized.
What terrible ridicule, for example, has posterity notto do with the superstitions of earlier times
sought, and yet he was the benevolent bird=
plague that devours so many vices around it in fear. In how many countless writings ft the former terrible ban rays with curses, and yet what has become of their

}

336 complete extinction? Just like

Nothing in the world in the crowded middle of two excessive things remain; this is also the case.
Reaction went too far.

10. The same applies to Judaism.
former limitations of the same, which iron shackles, even dehumanization of the people of Canaan
have been mentioned now and again, they have in recent times not enough with the hardest
One could prove rebuke. One honored oneself, thought man, if an e is above it
| was spoken.

11. But men will never get there= sea: Advantages and disadvantages, theft against
To weigh them carefully against each other; never let's focus on the moment of the present
Let it stick for a moment; never attempt to calculate: what time was needed in earlier times, what Time requirement of later times had to be; above all

never the world spirit, on its secret, the eye
remote ways, get to know the unseen
guides people from age to age,
the need of each of them in order to
to lay hands on what benefits humanity,
fuppositional as it may seem to the latest times
one thing or another may seem to belong to the ancient world;
never will any posterity cease: a verse

to exercise validity: with darkness on the nn

*

42. But whosoever our forefathers and with them

337

their descendants in respect of those who adhere to Judaism restrictions imposed are so harsh and unjust
If you want to blaspheme and criticise silently, let him
The following from the eight.

13. Jews belong in respect of the 11
secret Europe, only excluding Greece
China and Italy, among the oldest nations
the earth. But a nation which has already
Two thousand years ahead a skill, a Skill, even a cleverness in traffic, in business life, already possesses through the fen advantage a very large preponderance)
about peoples who are yet to become civilized
begin, and one day become a nation
want one, even more if they are from such and such a spirit is nourished and driven, from the demand is being made loudly and clearly everywhere=
proceeding, it must be stopped.

14. Now, of all the restrictions, of all the shouting Regardless of previous pressure, the total population of Jews at 6 million),

*) From the even greater preponderance of a Suns skills reached the nation via a still in the Natural state lives, it is not even mentioned here. With what number with what physical bodies=
Spain was able to subjugate America with great force.
Or is it physical strength when a boy

a train of elephants behind it?

n) The very different information of the Jewish people
mass on the whole earth begins with some
with 6 million, and goes up to 40 for others

22

338

If 60 were to be, 300 would actually be there=
be sufficient if the so often and much daring Uprising would have succeeded everywhere; if the many Messiahs who have appeared are finally at the top terrible armies, if the Judaism has become generally known ftichtliche nowhere to a prince, nowhere served as a warning to a ruler; if they all necessary measures to be taken
would have been completely absent, so that Judaism everywhere a free, completely shoo effect=
circle would have had n)? –

15. So slippery, still Aka . is Praise and blame that, the consequences of the sentence and
the opposite precisely calculated, our front,
apart from that in which here, as everywhere,
the limits have been exceeded too much, instead all blasphemies, probably very grateful from the descendants are to be recognized; all the more so since everything you have against rue millions. I am at the lowest number stopped, it may also be stated much too low

ben feyn. fe |
5 Whereas the tacitly promised observance
of Mosaism in terms of advertising.
Without these, the Jews would have only had a century
may continue in Spain as before;
fo would be the ratio given above = 1:7;
= 1:5; =1:3 and f. w. become. There would be In Spain alone there are currently over 2–3 million south and 339

have undertaken, had to undertake them,
feven in view of the time; by no means |

to Laft falls, because it comes from the doing and doing of Judaism emerged by itself.

16. As general as it was said earlier, the History of Judaism the above-mentioned remark kung, from the experiences of our time= comrades confirmed; fo is still the one who to the discussion of the cause of that questionable appearance, not able to see it at once to be able to specify precisely and precisely. because different observations occur here, which is no longer applicable everywhere applicable; partly because it is still too far of historical= statistical news ») about Jews= thum is missing, as can be seen from the added notes will be visible to prevent any intervention to be able to keep a close eye on it.

17. Men who have already thought about that have, seek that phenomenon from physical to explain the reasons. But it is a very important important question: whether, apart from the same, to which other religious and moral concepts do not occur Above all, and especially the reason for that in conditions of the Wee
1 fey. . 3
We therefore adhere solely to these and \ ne S. below Sena in bite ort f er au point of view.

340

touch them only lightly, for more, since here
There is no room to explain things that would have to be discussed on physiological grounds,
and around which partly modesty a veil to throw.

19. We therefore ignore what the Circumcision contributes to that, and in An= fevifation of the fertility of Jewish women: whether a Human= plant, moved to colder zones, just fo well, more or less thrive. Also it is true that a man's beard is his physical and mental powers are not imperceptible influence); however, this only applies to earlier times, and perhaps in the countries and

Areas where the Jew still lives with his mother Jewish regulation remains, whereas almost in all large cities where Jews live, they have already begun several decades ago,
to follow European customs,
They also hereby violated the Mosaic Law
to shave the beard, to trim it to be pinched.

20. Even more than that, the selection their spears, their preparation, especially the frequent consumption of all onions and tubers;

*) Here too, some writers may have gone too far:
gone. For it can rightly be said:
the giant steps of the Romans would have been even greater
then, Cicero would have become an even greater Reducer,
if they, the Romans, had kept their beards.

x

341

the extremely strong sensual inclination towards sweetness,
which provides the body with constantly new stimulating nourishment
is granted; just as the lesser enjoyment
spirituous beverages (since this religious term also applies to them | interfered) take part in it.

21. Even the following religious term saws contribute to this: Judaism regards the Sentence: «Be fruitful, and multiply, and fill the earth, as a holy precept. The
As a result, it considers offspring as the 'greatest blessing' gift of God. According to this, a kind of curse rests on the infertility of a woman, and, if I not mistaken, such a thing can already be a reason for marriage=
divorce, and her, according to that provision
a brother is obliged to support the remaining children=
to marry a loose widow etc.

22. But that religious concept may be because of not insignificant contribution, because from him
a much more careful care and protection for the female body, both in the unmarried and married status, which is what the maternal tenderness, so highly praised by Jewish women
ity, and careful care of their children no

may take a small part.

23. What is here, furthermore, also on account moral concepts may be brought, is even harder to answer. Because it asks very much: whether in Judaism, such as Jewish Scripture=ftenders also claim that adultery is a far is considered a greater crime than he committed before

342:

the eyes of non-Jews carelessly apply fol. And really claimed less Che rupture in Judaism had its influence on that; There is less morality here, more the fo different relationship between boys and girls | into consideration); no longer the much better one from

32,000 TITS

= What is the ratio between the number of boys and girls: among the Jews to that among the Christians? How the Number of remarried women? Like the "Virgins? who are married abroad?

"How does the number of marriages compare? here, as everywhere, according to the population ratio=ate calculated. How the age? of the few=grinding Jewish women to that of the unequally aged Brides among the Christians. What proportion The death registers show in terms of the number of dead Jewish and Christian children? Furthermore, how does the population of Jews behave in the different countries, states, cities etc. in Consideration for Catholic and Protestant inhabitants, in terms of trade and industry del, on active and passive trading. How is the proportion of emigrants / who must choose a foreign climate as a refuge. Should probably. on a thousand Christian emigrants a single Jew go?

The study of Judaism, if I look at the= fpect may use this expression, this prickly object . in the field of knowledge has only just begun It will be a long time before we can fem and that to a certain result can.

The present document, ,f content-rich as it may be may, is nevertheless nothing more than a basis, a preparation for 2 a godfather to full denden NN

to be married in the sight of the parents, namely feven in itself through the better progress which the food situation, through the wealth= supported even more by the transplanted family branches through which widespread acquaintanceship is spread;
 and a Jewish house with the Outer Lands.

24. Furthermore, minor adultery is if only to the earlier times, when Jews=
 thum was much more restricted to domesticity,
 when there was no traffic and interaction with Non-Jewishness of both sexes, especially not yet access to a certain class of people female sex; when the
 now general, also in so many statutes
 strictly prohibited use: Christian maids to hold did not take place and was not allowed to be valid).

25. Now, even if everything mentioned is intervening causes apply: that Judaism also in physical terms, grows so happily as soon as it can only find enough floor space; the main

* As hard as it is never written by others:
 wm ie the morality of female servants in jüdi=
 houses are said to be at risk; ift nevertheless the Circumstance to be considered: whether in Judaism the fo strongly stimulated passion, which, quoted Grin:

 de because of it, with Jewish virgins always less satisfy, the higher the prosperity of Judaism
 fincreases, cannot be satisfied elsewhere.

Where else do the loud complaints about the debauchery of the Jews, in Nunio:
 lichen creatures ee |

However, the reason is probably only preferential
 in the circumstances of business life.

26. How rich but that in the hands
 the means of earning available to the Jews is in itself,

even more so by the way Jews= thum used; what a powerful boost it gave to their constantly expanding wealth, the out= guidance of their plans and intentions is in the foreground have been presented in a completely adequate manner.

27. What, therefore, in view of the increasing= the population, in Judaism is practiced, is already generally accepted from the following= principle belonging to the theory of the state: The retrogressive course of the prosperity of the whole parts (in connection with the unfounded Complaints of an over + population), with the Company of emigration, with the Un= courage, which idleness and impoverishment alone only produce) with the retrogressive course of the population in the most precise proportion; just as as far as the contrast is concerned.

28. On the manner in which Judaism uses his means of earning, belongs above all to this: the incredibly strong holding together, e be=

*) If business life has come to a complete standstill guess, but then the number of people hard against each other. About the few remaining Thousands rush towards the same food sources, to spoil them in the hands of so many tearing must be done. |

345

fet by its historical location. Richtinbenthinn must, as has already been said enough, be own strength, only through excellent talents Jews, on the other hand, are able to help themselves supported by the meaning and spirit of the Judaism, find the most willing Hülfe where there is activity, activity, activity= loneliness takes place in a young man. She provide support all the more readily., fo soon it was carried out at the expense of non-Jewish people can be achieved, while at the same time ensuring a secure outlook rend, in the future advancement, in the acquiring assets fi BEER share in can.

20. In addition, Judaism belongs here the entire earth is considered to be his homeland. Almost every son is given a different country as his future residence; so that the planted families »seed through their Products are exchanged mutually.

30. Those in the previous section

It is now the circumstances of business life which in the lush reproduction of Judaism, since
where it acquires fertilized soil, already in itself
have such a powerful influence, they are still defense, if all and every circumstance simultaneously
must be carefully observed.

31. Only one thing: in no nation are women= rooms to foreign countries, at least to other
the cities married as often and as much as 346

the: Jews. From the circle of closest relatives separated, in a foreign place, probably
in a foreign country, living among strangers,
what influence must this have on the attachment,
in the attachment of a woman to her husband,
in the effort to captivate him completely.

32. But now one should not bring the | 5 the incalculable difference
in Anschlag: if in Judaism so many young Men, through the advance of the much lighter advancement, in the full bloom of her years, in full of youthful strength of their age
can, and such with Christians, the unequal
because of the difficult progress, only in the overripe
'Miter, probably even in nervous years in general=
mine, although far less the number of the children is considered as their blossoming increasing strength, health and vitality.

. 33. A foen when sifting hard
Frost-affected plant remains intact
Others who, under friendly wit=
tion emerged from the womb of the earth.

234. Precisely for this reason, even if, according to the above cited. request, really the death registers should show that the number of dead Jewish Children in unequal proportion to the number of Christians
felf children; this is not yet directly on the account of tenderness and furforge
Jewish mother, and as if the Claims of Jewish writers also

Christian mothers, on the other hand, through neglect neglect, through abandonment 5 . N
from the bust to the coffin on Sunday

35. No! Just like Judaism, through the drying up of some branches of food for the Jews /
by the paralysis of German industry, by the share of stolen and robbed items
takes, through the advance it gives to the lottery game
to give white sc., poor, sick = and Prisons are populated, and this is also already through the failed marriages of some Christians in the after-summer of their lives many a grave of him, the eee 1 on the en.
open: . |

36. Finally 385 and above all: the
in Judaism, which is also so highly praised, more from their solid association, rather than from a unique hum= support resulting from charity,
which their poorer class of people to such a high degree
enjoys; therefore even beggars at the begging stick Beggars=children, he he the en dare
can. he

B. Physical dem ade ansefäre bene emanations –

37. Merely the context of a possible
For the sake of systematic presentation, I touch on what is not true of Judaism with due care, I touch it only because the One and Others can be informed about this. =

348 |

38. There are, namely, in some writings, as already indicated, Judaism attributed to physical odors, which the health of the R fo. i ee
should be holy.

39. "Everything serious, »- it is said, has a ridiculous side. v» Thief can probably only primarily take place when what the Seriousness is the basis, conclusions be derived which the painting of the .

lichen get.

N 40. It is true: dirt and uncleanness has always been a harsh reproach to Judaism made, and not without reason. Because,
if a still useful thing is forced laws) should be achieved, which also forms, time, many and some circumstances be tied; their value is determined by the
the associated annoyances are too easily overlooked.

41. Elephantiasis, this terrible skin disease, was among other oriental peoples also rooted in Judaism =

7) One has the in the second section p. 7 Aumk. an= guided customs. when washing under Eyes, in which even the most serious and cannot contain laughter.

) The Arabs brought them to Spain, the completely unknown to the ancient Iberians, and who knows, how long they (admittedly in a much more subdued manner)
fenness, consisting only of the common scabies)

still there, all careful efforts recent unges
a will be received.

\

349

If the Mosaic Theocracy controls everything tied to religious concepts; so it was Namely also with washing, with care happened, for the e of . e
to wear. |

42. But precisely through exaggeration 1
Jewish ceremonies one of the first virtues,
one of the first needs of life: cleanliness,
to the people a not insignificant burden. It was not enough, through often repeated daily,
Time and form knotted washing (keep clean)

to fhall; fome in addition to this came the large number of rules on how Judaism

from these and those to the completely indifferent

~

things, but presented to him as unclean, so quietly

he may have touched her, to cleanse her again (to sanctify) had to have; so that such too easily and soon turned into completely empty forms; that a Jew thought he had already fulfilled the requirement,
if he, perhaps even with displeasure at the imposed Duty, barely touch the water with your fingers=
ftips touched, and . fe au ben called.

3. And only so may it be 9,
that there has been no nation on earth which fo fvery waflerfchen, and to the uncleanliness in the universe=
common people than they, the Jews.
What is more, the fact that they are outside their homeland
come that they, in physical work less

used to, also. for, that one assumed inertia=

& =

*

350

men who have the tireless care that

domestic and physical cleanliness is so urgent nn fo fvery contrary:.

44. But if physical appearance
a of dirt and uncleanliness
cannot be separated; nevertheless, those can only conditionally, and not as absolutely in= be attacked harshly. And this is what one has gone way too far.

45. The following of several minutes also applies remark quoted by some: «where Jews in larger numbers, everything gets – a highly filthy affair," perhaps only from country towns, villages and villages. Because in The larger cities are jealous of Sudenthum, which wealthy and middle class, the Christians of cleanliness, although always

there is still a very noticeable difference.

46. But what the lower class has to offer=

As far as those districts are concerned where the yeast of the Jewish people breathes, there are the mephitic exhalations of the kind that! the fact a threatening influence in the e of the other residents.

47. Less respect for N which which corresponds to the spirit of Judaism itself:

no national, no patriotic, no

having to obey non-Jewish authorities, makes even the strictest police laws completely useless. Here, too, as everywhere, it strives to 4

351

to be able to handle writings, to his own such to practice in so many and some things:

lives, and hardened. They, the lower class Therefore, she does not stop throwing up her feces and
To throw filth on the streets; or where they are near living on small canals, those with all the rubbish
almost completely to spill; so that in hot Summer days more than a highly unbearable,
more than a suffocating stench caused by it
and here too the unfortunate result emerges= goes: that the Jews stay in significant An= number no small detrimental influence in the health status of the other residents.

48. But all this by no means indicates an inherent, primal physical appearance haze back. However, the effort may not be completely unworthy to look at where a
such strange, just as unjust, as too much commonly accepted legend may have come,
what might perhaps be at the root of it'.

49. It, the history of all peoples, all Nations, the history of humanity, presents often and many objects in front of which the wonder, which provokes thought,
which does not always find the appropriate explanation
the ig

Among the many strange
eee also belongs: where the possibility,
that customs, habits,
Way of life has not only changed for centuries

352:

te), not a few thousand years, but more
several thousand years e 5 and unchangeable
can receive. ZN

51. They, the Jews, were from a country
(Egypt), where onions and tubers=
Plants thrive particularly luxuriantly. One They used to love such things from time immemorial, as if they also listened to the prescribed dietary laws,
and still prefer to eat them today.

52. Among the onion plants there is Garlic is the fruit that is generally (at least in northern Germany) at most is unbearable. The unpleasant smell, which it causes after consumption; the nausea,
which the breath of a already fic) otherwise clean Jew who is too close to him
comes, may especially here and there ) the cause
to reinforce the delusion that surrounds
fo rather was nourished when the thereby fpronounced smell of the lower highest dirty people's class everyone around so and legs

had to be more stable.

53. As if they, the onion plants, also belonged
it was said earlier, to the number of prescribed foods=
*) How many centuries back might, for example, the Customary date: on the first day of Carnival
hot rolls (Hedewig, Heetwege in the Nieder= to enjoy the Swiss folk language? – a a Here and there, because except Jews that fruit
also by Chrisen in 8th and N enjoyed. a oe

f

353

I conclude this section with the following
Remark, not as if I wanted to the Mofafic theocracy quite deliberately; but just to show: how highly unconceived, how far more than improper and indecent things
into their religion, which, if you
wants to regard religion with holy reverence, completely outside the area completely nae
have to stay.

54. It is true that priesthood has everywhere |
of all religions the tenability of his statements on the Simplicity of his contemporaries, and some= necessary, insofar as one can be fair and just wants to judge. For this reason, however, fo easily in the consequence with only a small amount=
the intellectual culture of much and much in one ridiculous, even in the most ridiculous light.

55. But in no religion is that taken further than in the Mosaic theocracy.
For what could there be that they do not have in terms of religious concepts as if there was absolutely no Possibility would have been available, even in that,
what the physical, the economic man fchen concerns him on the value and worthlessness of the=
to be able to point out these and those things about oneself, without first resorting to religion, and this
even more than deeply degrading by doing so,
to desecrate completely.

50. For it is not enough that they, the Mofaifche |

Theocracy, circumcision, election of 23

354

Feed Chie alone only before the forum of medicine), wearing a beard, washing,
Clothing, household items, etc. for religious purposes
regulation; but even that which Decency forbids mentioning, also had to be covered with a religious cloak.

57. Unbelievable, and yet true, it is written somewhere= where it is written: «If you – – – *) fo
go outside the camp, take a small shovel with you – – – then cover the hole with. the Earth again. This police measure was commendable, but by no means the one with no words
addition to be described: « for I am holy, says
the Lord, you too shall celebrate. »

j 9 Exinariri m il – – Those men have it right or wrong, which require a strict selection
gen? Is your pious concern about that community founded, do not smell! And how much and some had to and should absolutely and let the Eye withdrawn merden! –

355

seventh practice. ä
Judaism in a bi-lateral respect.

A. Sources of the Jewish ole. :

1. What of the previous section 19 if,
applies here. Judaism in historical terms
To consider this required a completely different place in a concise, systematic presentation. The presentation
However, the execution had to be based on the time required.
The following period may therefore be better arranged here understand. What is the end of this work will they start at the top, and what goes on in it, it will be presented to the other as irrefutable evidence follow. From time immemorial there has been a pressing need for time= circumstances that the truth slowly step, and shyly from the background must emerge.

2. It is everywhere in the work pointed out the history of Judaism. It is right that not only the sources should be cited from which the facts cited are created; but there must also be a historical overview is presented, from which the so important result emerges: that the spirit of Judaism in all its parts, considered in this document, from time immemorial, through all millennia, until to the present moment, under insignificant tenden Modifications, One and the Same being; it concerns its religious isolation, morality, cultivation of the arts and sciences, business life, usury, perjury, accumulation of riches, striving for ascent, bold and brave increasing demands, circumvention of the laws, Crypto=Judaism; or it concerns: how and on which way governments so much and some Nations to restrictions, even to national instructions have finally been forced; which hopeless causes here and there for revolt have prevailed, as almost universally every usurping Makes a willing to from au found has x. c.

356-

3. But what those sources . 7 ft no further open before us than that in respect of Judaism fo Außerft inadequate general World history. Everything else about Judaism, which has also been undertaken so far can, however grateful it is to receive, only as fragmentary contributions for Re: be challenged *).

*) This includes the worthy writings of the Hers ren Moldenhawer, v. Hermann, Paalzow, Tschoppe, but many men, namely with regard to individual countries and states must follow.

357

4. But how much everything and everyone, after a well-known saying, from which time requirement emerges= one must only take a single look at the field of knowledge, and one and the other History of the plantations there under have eyes.

5. The history of diseases, for example, in view of their progressive increase with the advanced pharmacology, as much as possible, same step. | go rk

6. The countless invented forms of the process are associated with the possibility of Deceptions of deceptions always on the same Way advanced.

7. Furthermore, world trade had to be This had to be done in a completely different way men are led, as trade was previously carried out was; only then could the "Prehistoric world completely unknown, and, unfortunately, never to crucial question arises: what international law See, what not? Never scientifically decide because they, in the crucible of martial law thrown, dissolves in it, because for the (jus Belli) which is not a right in itself, cannot Limits of injustice have been discovered, they can only be granted; for which any overriding power never felt any inclination, and probably nor subsequently to the more human in it will arrive. |

8. Church reformers then appeared,

358

when the altar service begins which showed morality), etc. |

9. The same applies to Judaism. Centuries could have passed before it had been made into some kind of study,

when it is quiet, away from the world stage,
this being would have wanted to drive away. But since it not only to play a public role on the same
want to start playing, but even as the previous most important actor intends to act; so had to
of course the important question arises: what for in Judaism lies whether it also leads to lead, one day play the Lord, and the Christians who want to serve N.

+) However, it is true that everything and everyone
the time required; this is only one Part of causality, namely the subjective one. It must find a resonance with some object a
.that resonates into the innermost being of a man, that like Hieronymus, Huss, Wiclef, especially those like our Luther who are capable of courage and has the strength to say what time requires. Because
On the one hand, it is true that church reformers
occurred when the altar service turned to morality perishable; on the other hand, with regard to the Reformer of Judaism is certain that if Jews soon after the founding of the state to some kind of ft= culture, for the opposite of which feverely cared for, for about a thousand years
a man of the same spirit had previously appeared;
the Jewish altar service was too powerful right from the start
the deterioration of morals and the Attracted the attention of so many men.

359

10. For the entire nature is so highly simply prescribed reaction.), whereupon Preservation of all forms of the indestructible whole,
solely and exclusively based on the scales of the suns=
systems; which alone determine the cycle of things which nowhere represents a predominance of individual Parts can and must never rest.

11. But we are not only not in any Possession of a general critical history of Judaism); but it may still be centuries
last before such a thing is completely
can be edited.

*) The terms used in relation to various objects under
so different names, expressions and images

occurs. Here the court care is mentioned, which reacts to the crime; there it is called retribution=
right of action, reprisal, retaliation, self-defence War. Elsewhere it is called antagonism, nor where it is called world spirit, soul of the whole,
Even in mythical clothing it must be under the Name Nemesis appear. And it is not missing much that one carelessly gives her the name
settles the dispute of the elements; like Centri= Fugal= and centripetal=force probably further nothing wants to say except that power (sun) and spirit
force (surroundings of the suns) relatively,
through its medium and its movements,
can react.

*) Whereupon the Jofe ph Ben=Gorian (no matter
true or pseudonym, and according to the claim of the Levi von Jofephusb and in the Bråisch
language) Jofephus, Bas nage, Hollberg, Bûfching, Adam certainly no
can make a claim, even less the two
First, as regards later times.

360

12. And this not only of the immeasurable
Because of the extent of this historical Study is spread out, not only the
because of many subsidies, which it absolutely required, but the almost insurmountable difficulty rities, which are a work of this kind, already in terms of the foundation of the entire Jew= thums in the way, the lack so much
and not to mention some sources of help.

13. For, strangely enough, so incredibly deep Judaism has always been involved in the well-being and suffering of People have intervened; but it is still not far off
that even the first historians of individual

nations, individual countries, the Mariana, Fe=

reras, Thoyras, Mezeray, Millot, Hume, Schmidt, Huitfeldt &c., Judaism almost with have been passed over in silence. That is why fo little of it in the general world=
history, as far as later times are concerned, has a».
can be worn.

14. Judaism was not seen on the World Theatre. Only written princes, if Europe is mentioned, and their peoples were
it, those who inherited, established and overthrew thrones.
Whatever part Judaism played in the situation,
conditions that have shaped the fate of a nation
wanted, it was viewed with indifference. Moreover knew only a very small part, especially among the number of scholars who secret
Hand that controls the turning of the wheel and the 361

Direction had been given. Only then, when Judaism extraordinary trap
were, they were applied to the leaves of the Yearbooks dripping with human blood, but how?
Not with a critical eye, directed at what Cause, consequence, and therefore connection of the events. Almost throughout followed the feelings that we humans
so benevolent and mighty from greetings
break hold back. | |

15. But what is true of history,
The same, and much more, applies to all the rest
historical=statistical political writings
ten, they may under the framework of annals,
patriotic annals, patriotic Archives, state notices, or under which whatever name it may be. |

16. It is less true of the large number the travel descriptions. Until recently
We came across a new travel description in French

Language, concerning Holland, in the hands, but not a single one here at present either.

Word about Judaism, although its number, and share in the local business life for years=
hundreds of no small importance.

17. But whence such a complete departure= seen from Judaism especially in this kind of writing
ten to the lecture on Judaism so much and Could contribute something? Precisely because
Jews become a completely free people 1 |

362

have: The traveling writer therefore only with addresses to Christian communities in whose circles

he only stays. As a Ghrist he has only Cha= characters, customs, habits, traditions, customs kind of fellow believers and faith relatives ten under eyes. Moreover, your eye is only what Christians alone have accomplished;
erected and presented to posterity
ben. Everything, be it pious foundations, think= mähler, Monuments " State Buildings, artificial road and bridge construction, Cana
fe xc. belongs only to the reference of the scriptures:

1.8. But we have travel descriptions in tor
pographic, technical, technocogical, mercantile ac. Respect, how important would it would be for the history of Judaism if there were also travel descriptions in the following,
who Judaism in all its forms
would have. |

19. But how much more important is it for the entire history of Judaism, if even just a few men from him, the Indian themselves, who were concerned about the ft was the Jews' distress, and only one fhall= che travel description, as from a
a Jewish author *) in ee N
before and lies. =. 5

*) Named Beniami n. he was from 'Tudela (Spain) lived in the twelfth century. His Work it by Barrathier from Hebrew into French translation. Amsterdam 1732. Full I, II. 8

363

20. Even the history of trade
Judaism hardly touches with a single word,
although in earlier times the slave trade was
in their hands, and hardly through the strictest Edicts, regulations, ordinances etc. under:
could be asked, and although money trade, Weds –

business, merging of the better 1 and

fo deeply intervene in the state of trade.

21. And so numerous also in later times the political science works, especially those which belong to the state economy, fo

you can see aad cement 125 5
um. 9

ZB 8 Jews have a very large share=
Thum on the ever-growing Arma th;
by the fact that, through the paralysis of the German Industry, so focused on the middle class, so that this one in the lower clase ever deeper and deeper must sink down; by doing so, it is the lowest Class so much advance to the lottery game, to the deposit lend, to the wickedness of the morals that early or flower the bitter poverty in its wake).
namely by stealing and . entwand=
ter and stolen things ic. rc. |

22. However, it is your turn in these days;
retifk og prakifk Anviisning til Fattiqud
fenet's careful bestyrelse i Dan
mark, published by Preacher Bastholm. |
Very (chin knows this instruction, to a Fw
moderate supervision (administration) of the poor relief system,

364 on the manifold reasons for which Poverty arises, but here too no word of Judaism. This is how much it is for almost everyone and Everyone not only outside their fight circle; fon=

but their gaze also falls on Judaism, they
which he displeasedly pushed away without touching it, out of concern probably even my one oo
to have to.

223. Only works relating to civil law hear, the more their attention is focused on

Judaism; however, this concerns the greatest –

partly only peddling, usury, perjury, and for example, the Jewish spiritual jurisdiction.

2, The complete lack of general
Because of reliable historical sources,
fo here no historical overview of Judaism
Even less so, because this is so un= common rich object alone more than

—

would constitute a volume, since a general

critical history of Judaism a gigantic work
which one day, after many decades,
worked out in detail, no different than from several ties can exist.

25. But how far one can be from a fully-fledged ditional processing of the same is currently still far away, the very different atistic news alone.

26. We just want to see Poland bdaben. Some say: The population in Bohlen jt: about three and a half million, which=

*

363

ter fit) something But 200000 Inden are «5 this would, therefore, be a ratio of 1:14 e
But others say: ;
: Warsaw.

eu "The Jews in the Kingdom of Poland find on an indefinite period of military conscription
have been released, but must pay an annual certain sum of money. In all of Poland you pay over a million Jews, consequently apparently even more than before in Palestine. Galicia contains 432,000 Jews " which, in great contrast to that one,
a ratio of 1:3 would be! —

27. This twofold message is, especially the latter, untrue; but who can, from contradiction=
sayings to find out the truth. Contradictions,
which do not concern Poland alone, but |

occur everywhere and in all places. m.

B. Subfidia of the History of Judaism.

23. But without anticipating other men, who know just as well what needs a possible
complete general critical history of Judaism, I want to serve here

rn

29. You, the world history, like sélant performs very little, especially in terms of
of later times, and almost as little the Yearbooks of individual nations, except that the Roman fche Gefichte Much for the earlier times

23866 contains *). However, so highly important and inauthentic essential the study of history, of all imperfections

regardless of the circumstances, for that work also remains;
fhe fhowever, it has just as much, if not even far more to adhere to the subsidies.

who

The historical works of the previously mentioned men, and those who were most glorious given example in the future,
all the more so if their reports are based on documents
drawn from history itself, which Judaism has been underused.

b. Furthermore: the Jewish theological documents and writings, which alone already represent an immensely large row, and with that of many men
delivered church and religious history in Ver=
binding to sweep the spirit of the Jew=
thumbs, viewed from a refigisfer point of view, closer to get to know; where the many writings=
ten, which are about Jewish antiquities, GEere monien, their former princes of the Gefan= community, synagogues =service rc., as well as the greet Sanhedrin. Paris, the Temple = Association concerning the present time " been written +4),

* 3. B. the Roman history from Gi 590 on worked.

 This includes not only the theologians but also the ecclesiastics=
ten of the Jews among others: Baumgarten, Bartolozzi, Butler, Burdorf, Cohen,
Endfield, Godwin, Frank, Frankel,

e. Furthermore: In addition to scientific values,

the very considerable number of internal, legal!

police documents, related academic dissertations and court documents, it is the spiritual jurisdiction of the Jews in the hands of their rabbis, what churches ban, marriage breach, wills, disinheritances, early burial of the dead, who have committed so many crimes with eternal Night has covered c., as regards, or also Hansiren, Pawnbroking, usury, perjury, swearing before Court, trial of arrested robber gangs regarding Jewish participation, and ring leadership the same; tipping and rocking of the money, change= business rc. rc. concerns, in Judaism in business= life, as well as from the point of view of morality, to be able to keep an eye on it).

Furthermore: historical= statistical news in Considering the population of all countries and states, where Jews found refuge, and to what Ratio they have increased here and there. An aid to the history of Judaism. | which is not only still completely lacking; but

– Friedländer, Jennings, David geri, Ma u= rice, Meiners, Mosheim, Neubauer, 1 Fleury, Pri deaux, Rofenfeld,

nen –

*) Among the related writings, the following which Mr. Beck, Brill, Bülow, Christensen, Estor, Grollmann, Hagemann, Hieronymus, e, Rule Scherer, Selden, –

N

for ever in relation to past times are missing

is, since everywhere the growth of the Jewish
The number of people is not recorded statistically, but only
the population in one era or another has indicated), for that on a Subsidium, but even if it only affected the states,
8 can. 2

Above all, aid voephalich but nügen bie
in different states about and against Iw
denthum issued regulations, ordinances regulations, mandates and edicts
be consulted, by ensuring with all certainty
ity can be inferred: that where a strict prohibition or a serious regulation has been issued,
it. fen against usury, against perjury, against illusion
ee "or it affects the predominant

*) She was expelled from Spas during the expulsion of the Jews
The ratio is given as 1.9. |

– Currently, Hungary is being integrated into the provinces with a population of approximately $7\frac{1}{2}$ million among whom there are said to be 135,000 Jews.
This would therefore be the so insignificant ratio
e221 111 14: 56.

"The author: Les Juifs du dix – neuvième Siecle
5 calculates the population of Jews in the great Franks »Nreich for only to 50000 (a third of that less than in a single German city!)
which therefore, according to the current calculation
of the entire population in France with approximately $209\frac{1}{2}$ 10 million, which is distributed among the masses losing ratio = 1: 581.

The population of Jews in Austria calculated then The same to half a million —

369

Growth of the Jewish population, where Jews
have given a freer hand, or the ban
containing not dealing with pharmacist=goods,
not to be allowed to operate a brandy distillery; or directed against their Fafchings, especially against their

Purim festival), not to celebrate such a thing, against the cursed peddling against which the Honesty so very dishonoring holdings of Christian servants and f. wu f. w., fie, the governments,

everywhere there were extremely urgent reasons for this,

because Judaism is subordinate to the state

has shown its detrimental side.

30. Not just from one * , but here and there at the same time from a highly offensive Page. For, which Jewish girl became,
and would probably give himself up to a Christian
to serve? – This would be the greatest abomination it would be even more than disgust in the * of f Jews fein. 3 8 or

* + Unfortunately, history does not seldom cite this;
that Jews on their Purim festival instead of Haman
to hang him on the gallows, (deliberate mockery,

because of the deliberate finger-pointing, also their situation for imprisonment, and such with the title of their centuries-old

religious= political leader: Prince of the Prisoners
community, to join a close association) to a

Kreut – have struck. The Jufantieiden to Honor of humanity, not to mention those for further

Nothing but legends, although in all proselytes of the various religions, or the most furious

enthusiasts with more or lesser fury,

24

|

370

Do, at des! ftebt aber mit golden book=
at the gates of civil society written. It, the bourgeois society, is concluded by mutual agreement. Your contract contains,
like every contract without exception mutual Obligations which can only be answered by the inability fösbility of this sacred bond. Who so this reciprocity, this sine qua non, not recognizes, does not want to enter into, not, ~~fwammeri~~ cannot enter into it because of religious ideas,

thinking about a common good separated self-interest, which is an enemy of the citizens= social society. He is an enemy of himself.
Because the welfare of all depends only on the welfare of every individual.

33. If such a deprived man not alone, he makes a caste with many others
out; this already forms a state in the States. How important or insignificant, ~~wis bros~~ present or safe such a caste as a state in State depends on the circumstances of the country business life, which exists between the same and the other inhabitants of the country. |

33. Are these circumstances such that even a reflection, a constant striving instead of finds, of the means belonging to it: most powerful supported, as the upward swing on the one hand more and more promoted, as on the other hand the descent= ken, can be more and more effected; ~~fo for~~
with such a caste itself a threatening state

1)

in states, ~~fo~~ every government has its origins, reason
and right to focus all their attention on it.

34. But if the ferious and the history ~~fo~~ indispensable study of diplomacy by the Efforts of Abreu y *) Bertodano, Cape
many, Chalmer, Dumont, Jenkinson, Leipnitz, Mably, Rymer and others especially by Mr. Martens a very large Relief has been found; however, there is no relief for the History of Judaism still entirely at one as complete a collection of documents as possible, in Spirit of Abbot Mably historically politically elabor=
To which documents not only issued Ordinances, Edicts, Mandates, Jews= concerning, but also outside of documents the letters of protection and oenad, Majeftsbriefe &c. set aside that work
will have to.

35. For even for Judaism the bear= processing of this history is the most salutary undertaking men, so that Jews can see what they were, what they

* Many things find ungawein Cheraktafian, and

yet their characteristics are so easily overlooked,
The Spanish custom of adding mother names

gen (Abreu and Bertodano, the former Water s this mother =name), what else does this indicate,
than on the incredibly tender love that exists between children
fathers and mothers in that country.

_ Cafissimi hijo mio, hijo de mi heart! iff the ge;

homely title in m. . e an
their sons, |

=

372

become as it has become, and as it has, through their religious isolation of a very special kind 9,
still work against the hidden.

f. Finally, all and every writing belongs here=

ten that were written against and for Judaism

den, and die, just by Julian and Kinch i

a), but one legion, as one can see

fay, make a difference, even more so when all individual essays should be included there, b)

without paying attention to the judgments of countless men, who

I find interspersed in her writings c).

: 36. But here too the Omp= is still missing

tedas, to in n * . Ju=

2

~

h Also at the Satholite U Hrotrfanten, Keformic-
ten xc. a kind of religious segregation takes place,
but of a completely different content! -

) Both Spaniards, and, as far as I know, the oldest ft writers belonging here what their own to
As regards treatises relating to Judaism, Bishop of Toledo against Judaism; he
A Jewish people, most zealous for that Elbe.

a) b) c) And especially against Judaism.
I want from every thousand, literally speaking,

only one: Alphonfus, Arndt, Beck,
the authors of the Butzowfischen Nebenstunden, Buchhol: (the Elder) Christenfen, Eisen=
menger, spruce, frieze, gibbon, herder,

Hieronymus, Hofmann, Julian, v. Justice,

Krug, Luther, Mangelsdorf, Moşer; mole=
Denbawer, Moureau, Paaljow, Ribs,

Schakefpe ar, fchorve, sn in

tus, üs fschneider. ae

j

—

373

denthum is concerned, to undertake what already laudable for almost all parts of knowledge
been carried out.

37. Prof. Lips, by the way, has on the study of Judaism a few writings –

ten, which he to the m sufficiently |

what seemed to be said about Judaism
The can. Much further is, among others, the Author of the text: « Against the Jews.
A word of warning to all our Christian Fellow Citizens». Third, unchanged edition. Berlin 1803. Meanwhile my literary collection already presently over the number of several hundred
But if it were even bigger,
fhowever, none of them constitutes a complete
history of Judaism, which, as we have said,
still asks a lot and some . n

57

r Eighth Section.

7 " ¢ .

– in accordance with all previous ones under=
 . " also in political terms
a F e considered in particular. .

1. In this equally important and serious
The following considerations come into consideration:

a. Where does the almost unthinkable possibility come from:
that among all believers there are also Christians decided to take in Jews. A Appearance that will forever be in the yearbooks
the world one of the most memorable
becomes.

b. What advantage or rather States have suffered incalculable disadvantages from the reception of the Jews?

c. Is the claim of many men true?
that the visible advance of Judaism
a political tendency is linked? Which However, prospects would arise if there were possible, ever possible, that Jews=
khum could become predominant)?

* The numerous means and ways to that goal,
so deep it also seems to lie in the background at present

375

d. Formirt der Casten=Weift des Judenthums,
also after the statement of so many men a State within the state, and which one? Where the spirit of Judaism can develop more freely? Which Considerations arise from this on the very large Diversity of states, what religion, right
form of government, legislation, prison life rc. concerns; so that the present An= sayings of Judaism: complete equality of all concerning civil rights in general,
especially in relation to individual states
the strictest consideration, the most precise state

are to be subject to consultation.

e. A final word to all of this, to Guben:
thum felbft directed, to add. ft.

2. What the answer to the first question also depends on their A Ero.

seem to find the siren naked to the ingenuity spun, completely empty dream images. Only one from countless relevant" considerations: The Temple « Walk with caution, with prudence=
ity, with all consideration forward, eliminate in the Follow only the one formal, foreign climes
not own and superfluous; fuch there is for the Jews=
thum more proselytes in one Ada / than there are through not given for honesty throughout all times
has. The same reasons which appear to Christianity. have led. " will, moreover,
to the appearance of Judaism finally lead; fd that Judaism from one power to another indisputably will progress.

376

the explanation of so much and many r Ethel

tions, especially as regards the initial,
almost insurmountable difficulty, to
to have decided to accept the Jews; how their presence initially from the people, from the lower class in particular, and through whose fault,
considered; what their limited position, all regulations issued against them by the States into which they are admitted
were transferred; what the resulting reaction
so widely opened path is valid, from the spirit of the Jew= tum leveled and expanded; how such finally through= out of nothing other than striving and counter-striving,
to the unfortunate fight and counter-fight much and some parties could lead, and one in= sustainable development for the future
like – but I still can't go over that to step out, which was already mentioned in the previous noticeable indication has been given, and must detailed analysis of the answers to those Question of the future alone, which is not less the lowest reason for movement illuminate, the Jews in turn e ur
taking eee wiffen.

N * Zen Sergei 2 ote

3. Should the second equally substantive question be considered properly, so in advance, in briefly, to look at the following:

Ae. The well-being of the 1 ne 20 fo

377

much as possible, based on inner
Peace and external security. |

5. Inner peace is based on the solid Union between prince and people, whence also the external security, supported by the Nationals
Strength, their protective wall takes away.

6. The firm union between those 1 '
Love for the people, love for the prince, is based on undisturbed . , in the broadest sense of word taken.

7. This depends on the quality of the activity of a nation above all and especially ab: not just to have means of earning money in hand;
but also for protection and security reasons,
both in respect of the person and of the acquired property,
from the state administration by the body
the legislation, their activity
to be able to happily sweep away.

8. Such activity is then the most powerful Promoter of morality (this is so highly important focus of every state constitution)
whose beneficial influence on the welfare of a Nation cannot be calculated so easily.

9. From it, from morality, depends loyalty, honesty, conscientiousness, keeping one's word; fp
such as reverence, respect, obedience and compliance= ity for the laws so completely. May that a state, no matter how many and tireless Careful observation and recording of public religion, which is really 378

A person educated in moxa must be in that situation, the moral duties which Religion and morality lowered in fine. bosoms, gladly and willingly in all the sins of life to exercise)). \ wa

40. Se virtuous fe fleigiger ,” je betrieb= former a nation, the more protection and security work, as far as performance and property are concerned, which it possesses; the more she strives for higher income; the more the more she expands her enjoyment of life; the more joyful ger exercises each of her duties, definitely more devoted becomes their love for the fatherland, the more honored the tighter the government's steering ropes, the greater her hatred, her disgust towards everyone, but: the inner Peace only thinks of Wren, and the more fiery her zeal flares up against every stranger who paternal land and property protected at home with weapons in hand, only dares to threaten.

11. But the enjoyment of life is not limited= way to merely individual parts of the body politic; but another important point to note is that People's happiness, namely prosperity, from the national forces alone emerge, so as much as possible, across all classes wide; that therefore the circulation of money is not | on ere u EN ; vans BR

*) Just look at Spain. What is not Everything undertaken for inquisitive religion there vdotden and deunech for what purpose.

379

trade ic. inhibited; that the state before the two like dangerous extremes: voluptuous Reidthume, and emaciated Armath protected; that even the so important state funds for Maintaining inner peace, increasing of the state forces, to strengthen external security ity in exercise be swept: all parts of the state body in a necessary to maintain context.

12. But people's happiness, as much as possible, to spread across all classes, presupposes that

Activity and industriousness spread throughout the mass of the people. This is appropriate: reach To be able to do this requires, above all, close observation to have, as in the entire business life the means of acquisition among and against each other how they serve as points of support for one another.

13. Agriculture, industry and trade were which is rightly attributed to the three great pillars of the state, on which the whole, the nose of the State building rests.

14. But they, the trades, are not perhaps in a purely floral middle; but They are of the three pillars of state which as it were by means of straps, to their basis (spiritual culture) and attached to their, Architrave, the Fellen: provide the firm connection of all three.

15. They stretch out their arms in friendship to both sides. Him, the field of construction, warning, for as much as possible from burdens

$80

free to produce the greatest possible number of products in order to ensure that commercial life becomes a wrestling price of raw materials, from the law environment supports it, and At the same time, the growth of this class of people is a great larger number of buyers of the country's products give the farmer in this way for the whole giving compensation at lower prices. Let him trade then calling for the Gite and low Prices of goods drawn to foreign markets to bring about a situation where exchange in world trade does not Under Bilanz) for the Fatherland arises, and the riches does not gradually become impoverished, withering away into itself mere. Arts and sciences. friendly waving, for support, to all three Parts applicable, carefully and from all to exert one's strength.

46. But this is by no means the Solely what follows from the above let's go. 2 ee

17. They kill idleness, but fear the bare source of so many vices, so countless bad habits of the people. You bet 9 million marks * Mans - '.

=) about balance sheet! this is how it works

States, this sole purpose of the deeply calculated

Trade policy shows, in all this, on which ni dye

The basic principle, trade policy, is based on:
only on the simplicity of other nations. For if= which everyone strives for according to Weber's balance sheet; for also everyone loses what is contradictory in itself.

2381

diversity, and mutual crossing of One business into another an uninvited,
calculable) number of people in activity.
138. They promote through diligence, industriousness and Busyness above all morality. They ren . and to each R

) A single trading house can trade with several? milli
a fine trade annually; one million
Thaler but on the value of the goods produced by trade in Country producers calculate, take several millions of people participate.

It is true that that sentence applies much more to the past times is applicable as it is a even larger number of manufactories (manu facere) of hand animals. Since then, however,
England has given the world the example: Men= to paralyze hands by the thousands, by the millions, and through the most ingenious machines it has been brought to this that, as previously noted, this annual

can produce much more than the hands of 10 million find a person unable to reach the depths; fo ent=

There is a problem here: how this will subsequently for the good of humanity, which finally
A problem that the

Looking into the future, one cannot help but shudder

dares to imagine a future where several hundred Millions lost due to dead machines
found to be lawful.
Indefen, fo: ,infinitely large aud) the number of mer=
Cantilian spirit of paralyzed hands, so many

Millions of people also lose their livelihood as a result;
for still remains a lot and some businesses remain,
which machines can never reach, and
the human 'unequal neha' is about must be let go. a

1,882

She finds herself in the middle of all other business,
for the circulation of money, also for this extremely important focus of a state, what the ventricles for the use of the land in this

The body is.

19. Because the sole use of Rational Wealth can only consist in how the circulation of money is taken care of.

A nation can have immeasurable wealth
'hefisen', and yet their inner security
be very endangered, "in this way limitless Wealth and immense poverty in the progressive

Gange, namely in the reverse Berhilini's fort progressed. are there a

20. Furthermore: with the expansion of shops as they increase the number of trades, and protect the state from dishonorable emigration.

21. They also protect him from:
loss of income does not take up branches of industry which are simultaneously in morality has the most pernicious influence *).

12 -- see

* How overgrown big it is (already tenmürtis in many large and poor cities, for the idle,
for those who killed time with games, their > trying to stifle bad moods in a drunken state, the number
the Restoration = Schweitzer = Billiards; Caffee = Erhöhungen = Böffen = Drink = Hüfer, the Appollo « Sas
ons, the Bacchus = and Ceres + Hallen, the fire =

wine bar 2¢. without looking at it,
"bass former merchant's «brduer» and sugar refinery=
. Heaps in boutiques, in dry cleaners, in newspaper and Leibbibliotheken=Comtoirs rc. transformed find, which in the
I would like to put myself in mutual nourishment.

383
7 5
2 0e

22. They hold, what is more important, the means stood upright, this solid foundation wall *) of the state
ten, not because he knew the countless prehistoric animals
gen, a much larger number; but because in the trade, in the middle class, where
The Fandmann is also to be counted, the largest sum me of morality is found, which the two Extreme wealth and poverty are unequally alienated nage ae
They are a milhig,.pie state forces on a hamlet; fle, perfachen through the
a very large number of their carrying parts. Staats + Ciny fifth, an aggregate which neither pom Reich=
nor from poverty, no way to lift iff. ",, re eee wer 121

24. They are therefore above all and especially
* Namely for the Aube security, but also the brazen wall against dangers from outside.
For the time that so many things have lasted forever
tangible world, and the state of things
fo fe fer noticeably changed, what about white state=
men's need for time, from light-shy Dimon of time called, has also brought with it: that foreign hirelings and mercenaries in the Horen
that Laudes children, with completely different feelings,
defend the paternal hearth, for one's own rights
and fight for the rights of their fathers, their brothers must, therefore the state can from the middle of the

HGBerbftstand only the largest number of the bravest,
and most militant defender of the fatherland
men, it is braver, the more combative the more inviolable
the fatherland, the more their d of their own Serechesame are protected.

384

in the entire business life, which the inner

Promote the security of the state, since so many thousands send, even millions on their business routes walk, directing their attention there alone, and feel happy while enjoying life, and concerned about the modification of a form of government subjected to it, if only the happiness of the people united striving in word and deed.

25. Under these preceding considerations ments") may now be the above-mentioned question: which Disadvantage of the admission of Jews to the states ways, can be answered in more detail:

206. Indentum has above all, the state welfare digging deep; the most unfortunate influence on morality ity) of the une ge It inhibits the LoL SCOR ePIC eee

; be observations that find enough, from other perspectives= The author of this paper emphasizes the importance efforts of several noble, honorable men strives to create a Ha udels= association to revitalize the industry of the fatherland, felbe from impoverishment, from depopulation, from depopulation vung, especially the consequences arising from this iu . to seek to preserve.

bac, Since this is in my repeatedly quoted writing my main focus has been, under proof= reasons, which disastrous influence namely the junk trade, mainstay of the begging guild; stealing stolen goods; peddling; coin counterfeiting fchen; the Lotto di Genoa; the holding of Christian Servants; usury, perjury 3c. 3c. 3c. into the ever-decreasing morality of the people in National + Dignity=Power and Strength had, and been instructed: what unreportable costs,

*

2385

Circulation of money, this soul of the whole state body by using the assets of the non= Judaism not only introduces, but also according to the maxims taken. It carries to the destruction of the industry of our fatherland infinitely much, because through his hands plus foreign machinery goods. E has a highly detrimental effect on the trade sector on the middle class, on this bulwark of States. It is due to the ever-increasing

Poverty is primarily guilt. It is up to the population Christian reform in the way, and from All this has dire consequences,
of which the above-mentioned e fo
put the e down.

27. But with much greater caution, the to answer the following question: whether the fight= worthy advances of Judaism a papal Tendency tied fey?

28. It would be completely superfluous to remind you:
that anyone who reads this document with all
'other works written about Judaism
been, compare a little more closely, on the spot

what a burden this has on the states through

Police « Operations in the cities, by Gens=

d'armerie on the military roads, through discipline of the poor =

Sick houses, hospitals have been established; this may
I will not repeat what was said there here.
ze 25 i abe

386

will find: that there is much and much that An=
which have been directly blamed on Judaism,
here partly treated problematically, partly completely been rejected, and only that which was presented carry is what is evident.
can.

“20. It therefore remains ee: 5 with such a a 5 1 5 8 Objects, only in inductions= reasons, however much they may be The matter could have the appearance of being the fact of the advancement of Judaism a political tendency.

30. The reasons for induction include:

and especially: how Judaism

many Bolföklaffen worked. With the richer class
it is committed, under all means used, through his financial transactions in a very close exact connection. The lowest class is left it all and every hard physical work, and are processed, regardless of whether voluntarily or involuntarily the ruin of the middle class incessantly, the continuously undermining the foundations of the state; so that the slavish dependence of all three peoples classes the finite, in sequence day of must be). o a

*) There has never been so much said about the holy Jesuitism been said and written when talking about Jews them let's say, and how will the future The view of those men who not bribed with the value of the universe, nor could be blinded! –

387

b. It seeks the main ring of the state chain, through the constant striving, by virtue of his wealth, influence at the courts manage to hold in his hands. >

c.. It is moving towards this: the editorial team is very periodicals and magazines
then; fitself in state newspapers, they also only by indenting this and that article, to eröf=nen; to win censors; men who without any Knowledge of Judaism finds, to protective letters to mislead; through New Christians the direction of the To have plays in your hands, just to see what Non-Jewishness belongs to the parody of Preiß give; 8 }

4. In addition to a widespread uninterrupted Correspondenz in Matters of Judaism with his fellow believers to see how and

Among the justifications for the against: Jesuit Order, which had recently been abolished in Russia, whereby the immortal ruler of that kingdom of A new example of his never-tiring father=ual care for his deeply loving people of the world, come the following equally true, Nal's memorable words, directed against Jesuitism, before: " ee 5
All the endeavours of the Jesuits find their own advantages, and the spread of their power

adapted, and their conscience is reflected in each one's legal action a convenient justification in their order statutes »
Words that also refer to the Judaism, which is still everywhere through Nabbinism . prevailing spirit of Judaism is applicable.

388

in what way it impresses the ton; fey it, from Supported by wealth, fed by pride, by Lust for this and that title, through An-kg of magnificent palaces, precious villas, glänzender equipages, by lavish guest banquets, etc.

e. And in our days the attempt was made to have, as it is also in the book trade
could put in it, and whether it is at all possible
fe, also a complete dominion over the world of ideas.
'to be able to achieve 9. .

*) Everyone must shudder when he,
having all the consequences in mind, thinks that, as Everything that affects Judaism, including book trade to the monopoly of the same could ever become. Meanwhile The German book trade is facing impending dangers before, and through whose fault? What was the book-trade formerly, what is from his artistic

Spirit gradually became?

Once scholars and booksellers went hand in hand

Hand. Science was to be promoted, before the Roz manenfücht, the pride of the German book trade.
And 'find the (hon ft for several decades led complaints ever taken into account? Where originally the emphasis? Where does the possibility come from under the half-to be able to reduce the price of a work? How Writings are being printed urgently in England, like split, for current goods, in Germany?

What shape do the side columns have, what here? Shouldn't England only be the third part of the number of sheets, and the purchase-

Price can be calculated at 200 percent less?

I mean well for the German book trade,
and honest, but what can the speculation of the Ju=
who begin and carry out all the works =

who have long since lost the right to 389

f. But above all, the following circumstance is in Ere:
to draw a conclusion from which it is difficult
what it might actually be aiming for.

31. Writers among the Jews have namely, it has already been stated that Jewish Con= fistories in the various districts of German=
country's are to be established; that all consistories
Central=Confiftorium, to form a concilium have; that then the same in all other countries; and that, – we add added, for example, an arch=patriarch (a prince of the captivity as before) over all empires
fofen be set!

32. Whether from this ever such a being as Jewish High Priest (Pontifex Maximus) of that time could emerge from it, the first Bible and Schwerdt with an ally, then Schwerdt and holding a censer in his hand, worldly and spiritual lord; I present the Be= consideration of others.

2 i

33. But what prospects are there,
if it were ever possible, if it could ever be possible:
Judaism, even if not in writing,

And, regardless of all circulars, every Jew,
who comes to Leipzig with cash here and there find an open shop. The evidence of this is in my hands. |

390

loudly expressed idea”), realize, one day before=
become dominant.

34. Are Jewish writers of the Acceptance of the Jews the dirtiest movement reason for the attack, indicating how difficult their acceptance by rejection of a low application)
What the Jews had to pay customs duties on was body tax, whose higher taxation x. the state are said to have brought in; they are already leading in our days intentionally: that, for example, the King of Por= tugal the reception of those expelled from Spain
Jews with 80,000 ducats, without personal tax,
paid; they would, without a doubt,
then we can safely assert that those promises
finally came true.

35. Their priests, their rabbis would then the revival of such a deeply rooted in Judaism founded, never-to-be-uprooted far beyond=
try to use the idea with all our strength.
The flammability of the fanatic is what is in the spirit of Judaism more than in any other religion
ligion would then be terribly inflamed.

) p. 195 in above font

) Namely; gas cleaning. A dirty

Request, moreover, to a holy people, which already fo many things that are not unclean are abominations, so that Judaism that buying up for the most outrageous in= rightly regarded, and right from the start the one in him
germ of bitter contempt against non-Jewishness
may have warmed to hopeless fruitfulness.

391

All that would be needed is to point out: what Judaism before the eyes of non-Jewishness,
through the millennia, which hard Fate it, only through someone else's fault (1), suffered= to ensure full justice for every atrocity
to be able to find.

36. For, if we take men as they in general find: own fault everywhere Ans to blame others, how much less would Judaism then has before its eyes: that, fo much also elective affinity for the reception of the Jews
may have contributed most powerfully, nevertheless that what the Christian religion, the tenets of its According to the sublime founder, the basis is all= common love of humanity, on the so healing

concept of an all-father of all living things,
above all and especially their reception alone only made possible; they would, however. in a= rooted meaning, not to be offended privileges emanating from Jehovah never admit: that it was she herself who Recording so much and some difficulties,
confronted, accompanied with all the unavoidable
logical consequences arising therefrom; even less
they would then have the grateful feeling that to acknowledge the will of our ancestors=
least of all confess:
that whatever persecutions in later times
ten, after the recording has taken place, here and there fallen "they are solely to blame

| 392

were because people's happiness, general welfare, always so far outside the circle of ideas of the mind
of Judaism, which Rabbi is m
rather, everywhere only on national interests,
on their own advantages for the state expansion of their Power of such and such religious concepts
always been nourished, cared for. 5
37. Prospects! which become all the more gloomy when one should not imagine the possible future fight
without opposition can remember those who originated
have fundamental, inalienable rights to the fatherland.

38. We come to the last, and at the same time to the most important discussion of all Bech Enger
about Judaism:
whether Judaism is a state within a state
formire.

39. And here it only needs, in guidance
all previous investigations, one en glance that one has at one of the most important
State maxim, namely: |

«That all parts of the body politic in one precise, regulated context, in challenge their mutual relationships, are preserved
must »).

*) « All parts of the body politic must, in their required context. All Estates and members of the commonwealth in which they are parts of the same, namely, have both against

393 5 \

40. This would require an obvious, content-based fever difficult sentence of any deduction, then such is in The foregoing has already been sufficiently given.

41. Judaism destroys the necessary connection of all superior and subordinate parts body of the state in the most detrimental white, and this already through his religious isolation= tion, even more by its mercantile community and monopoly spirit; through which state power following a fine maxim: «the money must be among us= remain with the people; through whose visible

the state, as against each other a certain This is based either on their external physical or moral nature. The external Quality consists in fortunes and in reputation all classes and subjects must constantly in a certain relationship, which corresponds to the end purpose of the State, from which They should never step out when the state be preserved in the order and in the previous version which is necessary for his peace and happiness.

Therefore, no class or individual member of the state to attain such power and wealth that he was to oppose the supreme power in the state de is, and just as little can anyone be allowed that he is above his fellow classes and subordinates thane such power, privileges and rights measures that lead to their oppression, and with the happiness of the state is not compatible. »

So Mr. v. Jufti in his Systematic Deduction action of all economic and ca meral=Sciences p. 90 and ff. 1st part; and just as all subsequent state teachers without the minimum restriction in compliance with that general Theorem, which, because of its generality, is not may be subject to restriction.

Strive: to exclude all and any advantages
 only know how to turn to his fellow believers,
 to withdraw such from non-Jewishness, the nation=
 not only to channel the forces into its channel
 ten, but also to hold on to it, whereby it
 the circulation of money, which the state so important circulatory system, thereby reducing the general
 my welfare is highly detrimental occurs; especially through the way in which it working towards the three classes of people: the Rich people gradually become just as dependent on each other
 make it more and more the lower class
 more by sharing in the Jews' wealth=
 low-interest businesses will automatically be affected;
 fo that Judaism is the foundation of the states, the middle class is being undermined more and more.
 42. For, as the number of the Jews grows, in the same progressive course the lowest class of people; because the less
 the Jews were forced to do menial physical work employ, the greater must also be their involvement
 increase the number of the serving class, the porters,
 the cart pusher, the crane puller, the grain
 Salt=Coal=Lime=Brick=Bearer, the Ars workers, the gas cleaner rc. rc. rc. will be, the fto higher must, apart from others, itself be unmistakable consequences, their pride, their arrogance rc. increase,
 to an increasingly numerous low
 to be able to look down on the common class with contempt.

43. This decision that Judaism can be preached with complete truth: that it forms a state within the state), now gives the Standpoint: how the previous claims of the Jews are to be judged.

44. It would be appropriate for the author of this Scripture that covers the study of natural law,
 People's rights, constitutional law for several decades
 cennien has had under his eyes, be an easy ft, felf extensively against Mr. Lips, and all those who support human rights
 and civil rights do not differ at all,

which between religious and political
Tolerance does not make the slightest difference.

45. But useless words would be wasted.
be wasted, since everything that comes here
belongs, on the most simple, long-standing, generally accepted recognized propositions, and on whose main= moments in the preceding binges
meadows etc.

46. The conclusion of the social contract
made a sacrifice to human rights,
for a far higher, nobler, incomparably more lasting
more valuable property in exchange for it: protection

*) It would be completely superfluous to repeat this here
To bring back to mind that sentence
primarily concerns states where the spirit of the Jew=
thums his opinions, his teachings and principles, fhis maxims and f. wu f. w. in Ba = in exercise can sweep. ;

396

and security of both the person and the recruited).

47. The raw, extra-closed bourgeois

*) Only in other words the same thing is already in my « Review of a critical overview of International Maritime Rights », where it says:

“It only depends on the sum of fine phy fif chen

Forces, which man, as long as he is outside the social contract, at every moment

feen, feen fuch can be: tyrant or slave. »

In this state, in which man has those Feelings that nature had etched into his heart,
has not developed, in which he rather the desire=
the fhis unbridled senses, and the fom
blindly follows excited passions, unite
two equally striking extremes: for the present moment with greedy eye as free area=
to look around, where the strength to him
messenger stands; but also, and this often in the next

moment of having to crawl in the dust as a slave,

where he falls under the arm of a powerful man. v

" It needs, in fact, only a few Cultures of the spirit, even in the crudest man, not on this struggle and counter-struggle, which often leads to the fastest change to become aware. He closes, awakened by needs, by circumstances driven, supported by inclinations, the rock lenient covenant; renounces finer. unlimited, but unsecured freedom, to a limited, but secure freedom for his life and property and for the property and life of his people

. to exchange. »

But whoever shakes that basis, whoever changes the meaning and

Spirit of the founders loses sight of it, it is under whatever form it may be, he throws that fight and counter-battle ban, or a the

A whole bunch of them.

397

But every person living in society up to that point gave fine Natural right of the stronger, to achieve that higher purpose, not just willingly and gladly, but laid, in agreement with the others, protection and security for life and property All to the basis of the social contract, so that such through fulfillment of mutual obligations are indissoluble and exist; he ordered his natural law, the general, the civil law, the legislation, so that

this against every insult, against every offense, against every crime with the power granted to her power alone has to react.

48. But strange, very strange enough, that a short-sightedness of the kind can take place, which are under that completely surrendered right think of merely physical forces, on whose ob violence no individual in civil society ftituft may make a claim; that such, however,

but can appear under any other form
may, although people are so completely in the natural state and to the complete abolition solution of the social contract; that therefore

there may well be a caste in the people that,

if not by physical violence, but
through machinations, through unpredictable activities,
by outwitting all kinds of tricks, a right of the stronger).

) As the intellectual
forces at the expense of physical ones,

*

398

49. If one had to go under that one completely=
1 Right of the stronger only and solely understand physical forces; so that every other
The form of the same would be indifferent, even if a ll=
common welfare is still so endangered,
even if it is precisely what the gef N |
Contract means to be crushed:

own welfare everywhere in connection with the welfare of the whole,

since those only emerge from this, and the duration of civil society alone only can be obtained by this; the farmer could Stand without any objection say: we want,
h us oe Senfen in ARE a ,

in the same ratio, she would also have Murder, carried out by methodical
Theft, committed by fraud, far more serious
must be punished. |
But where and in how many parts does the lighting reach?
ten of Judaism? Is it therefore surprising that Jews use such bold language in our days
lead, regardless of whether the social contract exists
could, or be solved. |

Whatever stands in the way of Judaism may it also from the red-minded Maune under=
be taken, only the breath of a revolution
spirit of revolution, so that the truth may fall silent;
as if this never-born daughter of heaven with
the universe of the same age, the same duration per earth could be taken away, it could be taken away;
as if their return was not always in greater splendor shoes, the longer the distance took likes

63099

but by tricking us into becoming the sole owners of the earth. Every human being has the human rights, free use of one's property, free use of his activity.
The field is our property. No more than our household needs will be sown in the future, then the rest must take revenge on those who have suffered inequality will pass away by itself.

How? Pass away? No, the people in the wilderness of nature
rush in, use the right of the strongest
The large number of those who have not yet starved would fall upon the country people, and we
not even a grain left behind. | |

50. That also, according to the presented abel, and by virtue of the above-mentioned states=
Maxim only what is of human rights

maintained in civil society, and their duration and strength were taken as the basis

den, Judaism comes with full, and never to disputed rights; but by no means a right of the Star to be exercised in another form core, which the far-seeing spirit of Judaism, although not, as I said, by physical strength, but through outwitting, through circumvention drives, through machinations of all conceivable kinds,
strives for success.
Now this already applies in general;

'fo ai it is much more in relation to individual States of our fatherland where Judaism in

Regarding the form of government, religion,
legislation, business life,
acquired ratio of the population between Jews and Christians on the right, much more or less content-heavy characteristic in exercise can be continued. |

52. For, as in respect of religion,
the form of government, the legislation,
the internal city administration, even
firstly with regard to the coinage and customs system,
of the measure and the weight &c. for German
country, for this federal state no general
my norm is accepted, and, in one and other respects cannot be accepted at all can; just as little, and even less, lets
to establish and defend Judaism in general
ftimo: how their reception, how their stay,
what their civil rights should be like.

53. Every State, if it does not completely shattered, if he is not hopelessly should be lost, to look after his household needs to judge solely and exclusively; all the more so, since in addition to form of government, religion, legislation,
What needs to be considered is: what means of acquisition the
The resources of a state are, whether agriculture,
or business, or trade &c. on fecfe is.

54. The hopeless idea of the former Levellers.
in England, the Jacobins in France, the Ultraliberties in today's Spain, which also has taken hold of Indenkhum in our days,

squeezed out of the French maw.

. stands " the more
Lichte da 9 aa ee

* We add, heat it from ituee; « ri
more than complete equality of civil rights,
same advantages that Christians enjoy in this regard. »

55. If only equal advantages were really the speech; every word would be But: Judaism completely useless, and spoken against it only hostilely expressed: But since Jews

already highly unequal *3:advantages through unequal usurped visible machinations here and there;
fit goes far beyond civil equality,
in respect of civil rights, without fail
working toward the ruin of non-Jewishness.

56. And it is just a feeling of achievement weight, or merely vanity and pride, such
To let others feel, also the following appearance=
tion points very much to a future: « We Jews, » it is said, « no longer find what we were previously. In the then France
We held public offices. In various States we are entitled to imperial honors and honorary titles

*) Or is it perhaps complete equality in civil Society, if all low-level business, the

have the character of slave labor, of beasts of burden,
more and more, with ever greater growth of the youth
which is attributed to Christians, while Jews=
thum revels in fine riches.

20

402

arrived, why should we not also sit and have a vote in the Senate of free cities.= 1.57. Are such widespread looking statements made; this is how it is, at increasing ambition, which with the means
can keep the same steps, and consequently infallibly
even further: why should we Jews
the gates of the princely houses were completely closed
What could at least prevent, for example,
a possessor of many well-known, little by little arrondissements did not bear the title of prince nũhme, so that one day an e will become a " ¤.
what will come of it."

Rare 5 . en, se . Br:
4 af a4 eg x 1 In ri Par P3 ~ " 4 8
Ars Me af
yet 4 Ba a . 0 N - .
ded ky fo 0 2 ' pale .
7 ren E 1

4 a : . * eta tae are 7
 q f Ae '
 of * eas — be oe —
 5 \ ~ 4 ie
 .
 7
 a 1. 145 A { i
 a U 7 ' 4
 * re ae at vite |
 it rye i
 "
 on ot
 . vr. f.
 Pe
 \ i 4 ae
 y
 + ot tht j
 H . " 7
 4 a
 } 3

S dh tu 4 w or t. IR
 a Judaism fetbe serissentent

58. Conscious of my 1 attitudes, , it be completely the same to me as the present writing |
 of, "Jews are judged; whether they are the author
 also, most unfairly, to the number Southern enemies reckon 7 his intention so completely and completely misunderstanding. " . oo

*) Well suited to the many wine presses
 pee from which Jews say That they do not miss any opportunity when not directly, but by signs and hints=

>: tungen' fogar to arouse personal persecution. »

The reader may remember which excellent nate Attention I in the previous sections
 this document to Mr. David Friedländer faithfully and sincerely; the more painful it is it is for me such, through the above words, which the same,
 also joining the ranks of those who are now play a basic game) the actions of others the dirtiest motives, in a so-called published small piece (24 pages) in line
 with: other Jewish authors (p. 7) in transcript

written down, so as to be seen completely distorted.
Which find the many writers, the
. to educated Germany only some attention
freedom through which Jews are persecuted?

404

en 59 He hates, and can not Sabin bates, 'fe belong to the collective humanity. Even under

Who are the many writers who have set out to persecute Jews to instigate 0

Is Judaism illuminated with the torch of criticism?

ten and. Jews persecute one and Daffelber Find sayings of this and that Men, founded on their own or others' critical "Investigation of Judaism only in the context of
of spirit of fate?

Aoeberdiesß, the words of the Lords 2 could pray! u
and Voigt, the former in his preface to Byron's bhbebrüisch Gefängen , from the English of the
' translated the same; This one in his life of the Lord

Profeffor Kraus, the words of this legal Men are already sufficient for the intended purpose
bhiöch unusable piece the following n Nez Heading and selection!:n:

Contribution to the history of persecution
the Inden in the 19th F by
. Writer. Berlin 1820. 3

Should one not light it before the fire; that in it it is even stated how writers
"sought to be placed at the head of numerous gangs in order to
To commit crimes that are harmful to humanity
de dishes.

But why a f ie: through the Böchken Grad 1805
addictive bitterness, title of a audience to non-serving " an

one of the most worthy women?!

As if one in the far bitter feeling against Au= hostilities of this kind would say: This is how loudly the conscience of the Jewry, which is constantly in fear, conscious of his guilt, Nothing but persecution and PVPurse to smell, such that the uuver=
beferliche Judaism even in the best Jews

There are 28 of them, as among all believers good and respectable people. But Rabbinic Judaism is based on Mor leaning against the Safian theocracy, after careful previous examination in every conceivable
 malice before his eyes.

60. But happy is Judaism, happy is he,
 if only) Never lose sight of the following
 if it is for private interests, for personal interests advantages, according to one's own judgment, finer

r

will remain unsurpassable for a long time. 8

By the way, what does Mr. Friedlander say against Kant?

statement about Judaism so much in doubt,

I am, as already mentioned above,
 due to the circumstances, informed in much more detail.

*) Without Judaism on the following elsewhere
 to reject the words I have written:

« What if the opposite case were to take place, if the Jews still present in Judah (even without Retention of all religious=political state=maximums men, however inseparably linked they may be to the spirit of the Jew=

ttuhums geknüpft find) a state and an empire
 deten, and if it ever came to that with them
 can tolerate: that non-Jews there in the cities=
 ten, even in the capital, and if the non-Jews of the striking disproportion
 the branches of food and the wealth – status notwithstanding, they dared to do the same with even greater distant calls to appear; whether then Jewish rulers, Jewish priests, in short, the Jewish people
 listen calmly to such demands,
 let alone how and in what way one can
 would take up, » –
 St. in the cited document.

better thinking minds, each with their own interests.
 brotherly married for the welfare of the whole.
 if it is through a completely new organization the corresponding measures each 1 out of 5
 can grasp in the ability!

61. In civil society, in this
 The lasting well-being of a close-knit association depends movement of individual parts, whatever they may be,
 only from the well-founded welfare of all and every
 parts of the body politic. |

62. ZB makes the people not Agel legal rights; this inevitably leads to demagogy and even to anarchy, with which Spain
 can be threatened so easily at present. Raises the prince, seduced by his surroundings, such;
 fuch goes little by little, the never resting Reaction because of, not only inevitable, but even involuntarily, with ever-increasing urge the circumstances, to the extreme, to despotism over. Ä

63. Or a caste arises among the people, who separate their self-interest, their private interests from the general welfare, from the happiness of the people;
 This not only destroys and destroys the welfare of the whole; but the resulting Consequences finally fall in an inevitable way
 has a very damaging effect on itself.

64. There is no need for a religious 5
 | ifolirten caste, as Judaism is, just machinery=
 neries gentlemen, world traders are only allowed to make very large

407 =

attract wealth, increase the circulation of money
 bring into great stagnation), so Reich advances= humility and poverty incessantly in reverse
 conditions, the middle class in their midst crushing, from the chain of state the greatest, the one at= most visible row of rings, and Eng= country's situation and history will sooner or later result
 out. " ee
 The welfare of individuals in the burgers
 lichen -Gefociety can and may, therefore,

never from the welfare of the family members
be separated. u To
A sentence that lasts as long as the inheritance
*), and without which I would never have said a word about Judaism may have written.

*) Not that a nation may acquire wealth,
be the sole focus of the states; especially
how wealth becomes national wealth
how it should extend over the classes of people;
foft it is a thousand times more desirable that in a Nation never creates wealth, whose poverty, little= fts for internal security, never as dangerous as

that one can become. u ö
+*) A sentence that happened in the progressive reference rapprochement of the states of Europe has long been
if not raised to a state maxim
have been: namely, that, with regard to political {the aim of ensuring the lasting welfare of an individual
a nation only with the lasting welfare of all of the great confederation of states could exist. a

A truth confirmed by the yearbooks of the world

ity, on which Friederich fhis great, yet un= feasible idea. B

7

Attachment.

In preparing this paper
I have cut away a lot and some things in order to the main moment: Judaism from a ftäts= scientific standpoints, the more
to be able to stay longer; meanwhile I see it,
in more than one respect, necessary,
to add the following to the whole thing.

First of all, those who deserve me among others Writings cited works of Messrs. Beck, and Eisenmenger a closer look. The
The full title of the work of the First Star is:
f Tractatus de Juribus Judaeorum: on the law of the Jews, in which of the laws to which fhe subjected their marriages, contracts, Maucher, Testamenten, Successionen oder Erb=

consequences, crimes and their punishments, Privileges and legal benefits, oneribus and complaints, especially the Crown tax
and guldener sacrifice=pfenning, as well as court=
ten, and judicial acts, and other
more, more thoroughly and clearly.
From the divine and general kingdom=
and other special rights and customs 409 collected, and with Praejudiciis , decisienibus : and response everywhere, strengthened. Those judges, officials and other people

for the best, with a register that is useful for this purpose provided, edited by Jo b. Jo doc o
Beck. JUD Hochgrave vl=Hohenloh=Neuen= Stinian and High Priestly Greek Council, at Lobbl. University of Altdorf Pandectarum Professore Publico et Facultatis Juridicae Assessori Ordinario.
Nuremberg 1741. 4.

On the powerful influence of our relatives
science between Judaism and Christianity with fich
I have found in several places a very
A noticeable indication has been made. Undeniably, belong to this: that the Jews in the reception
of the same its own legal system, in the special
what was formerly part of Canon Law was granted; out of concern to their religious statutes and customs relating to Mosaic regulations advised not to get too close stepping, not paying attention to how such in the social life, thus providing the subject to common civil laws
to have; which also in later times in respect
the funeral, the births, the engagement
niffe xc. fehr wisely in the one and the other Staa=
ten were undertaken, initially Sofeph, France later gave the first examples. And Not without reason, several men have granted legal protection to the number of mishandling

4410

counted, which happened at their reception, soft generally carries the characteristic in itself: intentional to have given the spirit of Judaism certain grain

zen, and yet choose such means to have that it was very easy for him to
to exceed the predetermined limits and this in such a way that the future situation
of things subject to the greatest criticism
Everything or nothing that enters social life can reach across powerfully, one would have to admission to them. There were no medium, if one considers the close connection
the participants of the social contract, which highly interwoven, so intersecting Jutereffe of the same has under his eyes. But now, since the cut has been spoiled once, this
fen or to make that attempt is a daring feat,
whose execution the future may test.
But that glorious work contains not only Rights, Customs, Traditions and Statutes"),
BR: zen i aoe EBEN 3 2 Fr | "

*) My own opinions. Of these last I will only highlight the following: Apart from Eifenmenger, Joch, Müller, Storven, Beck, and others
is also in this document prepared by me on the service of Christians to the Jews
been, whether there has been any injustice here, I
the concern that, apart from Scripture,
begged, Niz Zahon of the Jew Mattathiah
This is expressly stated in several Jewish writings as an intentional undertaking is represented:

414

which the Jews exterminated among themselves, and a far= comprehensive view of the spirit of Judaism throw; but there are also a number of regulations
nnions, which Judaism on the part of Christ= States still in those days under mern. gewefen. =

At a time when Judaism, namely with Injustice, not yet in full enjoyment equal=
miger Evil= justice before the Tribundlen wary Such a work must have been extremely important (hence it is also fine dama= great praise with all justification) to
to know everywhere the very noticeable difference, what is legal for the Jews and what is not. They
The legal scholars of earlier times had to Doctores trini ftatt utriusque juris feyn, namely des secular, spiritual and Jewish Right. But not only in itself was it a fruitful work, but the one from the Reichs=Ab=

sche (Reich statutes, regulations): be
and since such very different privileges, Disper
fations *) 2c. the right against the ra

"Christians to serve Selrunchen, to ben
To better fulfill the spirit of Judaism, which:
non-Jewishness as hereditary servitude
has seen.

= 3. B. that he has his debt claim= to another

Jews cede; that he was a lawyer, public prosecutor, notary &c.
that he may charge more than 5 percent interest
men are entitled; that an ad a en . |
then tinge u. f. wu f. w.

—

412

everywhere served to obtain a dispensation according to
to provide the others, gave to some juris= Chinese questions: whether through these and that dispensation was too close to the imperial decrees
step; whether they even in this or that pieces have been broken up so that everyone else
such a dispensation is justified by &c. e.

However, if the changeability of forms
for the sake of things, that work for the present Time can no longer be regarded as that,
what it could be valid at that time; nevertheless,
to still respect one and the other very much.

Which regulations and obligations
Judaism in our fatherland formerly under= I have partly mentioned, also
the reasons why such in a kri= tic history of Judaism not to be go find. But before I go to those obligations= tions, which still exist today, such as said before, is very much to be respected, I want to What has already been said with regard to those regulations cited, nor the following from the chemicalgae a cite the Reich Statutes:

Interest rates exceeding 5 percent are usury,

and is associated with the loss of a quarter of the Punishing debt claims can even be done with imprisonment or a fine. – To
To avoid usury, a Jew may have his debt-claim not to cede to another Jew,
magistrates, notaries who draw up such acts 43

make, or have made, find with duck
to punish the abdication of their office. – Stolen and stolen things and then again =
ne will be.

Jews are more surreptitious than the Padang Goods completely excluded –; may not be live on a monastic property –3. have a higher Traufito customs, on their travels a body toll, as well as a special corpse toll
– Defrauding customs. e is to punish with eonstigation of the same. u
You have a crown «tax, or e

offering» Pfenning: to the Roman=German Emperor
to be paid annually; at the coronation Dentscher Emperor to impose a certain crown tax)
Baptized Indians can (1) begin a previously crime would not be prosecuted the). . Speech e 1 as
– – "

. We have written down in the present document, seat; in flowed into the wide-open canal of Judaism,
fen, and mentioned: that much and some things abs
feen obviously not taken into account; this also eat
there, however small it may be. 1
=o Was there anything about this mere sectarian 7 above 'Beebe
seeks to establish guilt, which crimes open up an asylum ten? Was such a person really worthy of remaining an honorary citizen?

No wonder that Jews, according to historical documents
den, es fo: weit have rubbed that fic, dis Gevat=

* for the sake of a penny, to take part in several Dexter

have been baptized, even with the statement: "that just as good as any other junk.

" in their trade: peers. CC

414 freed from paternal authority; however, retains.

a baptized father the complete paternal anthology
tit. – Exercised violence, from India
a baptized person is to be punished,
to be burned alive. ++: The same punishment
makes the handling of eet ne with. einkr
France

Red feuding barf above honorary guard
Brokers do not happen Jews must pay the amount a bill of exchange delivered to the house of one's own Christian;
On the other hand, the Indian, if the Ehrišt Acceptant
Ht, get such. – Jewish bills of exchange that are on Bonds issued have no right of exchange.≠
“Jews are not allowed to be lawyers or procurators≠
tors and notaries. – The validity of a Injury proceedings take place when a Christian calls another a Jew. –
Sig may not testify in court against a Christians appear. – When witnessing the oath “ the one Jew has to take, find the and the forms
more to observe. – To falsehood deceit
To avoid an intentional fall, the Indians absolutely forbidden to denounce 5
– EERIEDS

| R
Of course, convicted criminals are often met with traffic jams;
x penftschlag, brandmark, with complete expulsion æ.
been punished, and this by law.
The above may remind you of belong to some section, what I have to say about Schein≠ CChristianity has been said. .
) How far have we come in later times from the deviated, the Jews, with their entire

=

Me

The Jus xtractionis (Cash right to purchase)

and sale) is not granted to them. – That.
Jus restitutionis , which, added to the laws,
fourfold replacement of a stolen item
if such a thing is said by a Christian against a Christian | exercised, requires only double compensation, perpetrated by a Christian against a Jew).

6 They, the Inden, must, when beginning a Process that Juramentum cnumpize (oath about 'Ges, |
not out of malice, a contentious matter,
to have begun) and may also Juramentum supplstorium, (oath of performance, the näm=
must be paid if the evidentiary grounds |
sworn to. Early find), not alan 1 RR

* Hal against Nfchejudentyum, to Gpähern, iu 1 »Ambushers used, and 'Their denunciations He
"listen, to have given. 5

When the former French government
"several years ago, the third
. Aten who became property in Germany B0 ums.
ter the name E L23154 ches property partly Four confiscated, partly smashed, and burned, knew. Jews who were used for espionage
were banned in houses on floors and attics,
To practice goods, they went there,
7 cirtett, and Kürten whole . and grämenlofee Misery.

* As is the case in the latter case, if a= sometimes a difference had to take place, the replacement
six times to attain the moral dignity of Christianity thereby loudly revealed ben: Who. . . will knows, and . ed
not ze. %%% U

416

just as little to the negation of the word; and most of all
at least to the law in litem, which is:
is to be paid if entrusted, but by fire,
Theft or lost items are not included
can be returned and whose value and
be confirmed by an oath fo.

Jews had to pay tithes on goods
also pay tithes, just as they
the Jura stolae (Yfarr=official=fees) under ob=
prevailing circumstances.

Here we have now come to an object
9 who belongs there, of whom it was said before,
that still today the meritorious work
of Mr. Beck in some respects genuine on ist.

Because it contains an extremely important Stantofenge:
whether with the steady progress of reproduction
of the Jewish population. lie, the Jews, to the maintenance of the churches, for the entertainment of all and not to be trusted in any pious foundations of Christians
have to contribute proportionately?

How immensely greater, how far more considerable
were the income of the same, as the population
the Jews amounted to = 1: 600; = == 1500,
how much, how very much they are offended and been diminished, since that ratio (probably to notice, without increasing the total population
in these and those big cities). gu a= 18; 1:7 even 1:6. Or should the churches, for example, all and every pious foundation

417

more and more into debt, their fuffifcience
more expensive entertainment for the Christians alone
finally become a burden, and perhaps even finally completely crumbled into ruins?

Four churches that became the state religion in 1791
are already in a respected city in Germany
entered into without considering the loss of the fifth could also ensure their confiscation, their be= because of the significant number, be undertaken; so it would not have happened if only the significant numbers of Christians remained the same
would be, even less if they had the same
wax like that of the Jews, *

But does it concern any structure of a from= foundation, be it a hospital or health facility
house why a subscription, instead of a general
a tax, is opened; the Jew knows
In general, the request for assistance with the Words completely from themselves: « We do not take part in it, we . yes our sick people themselves
to feed. »

True! No direct, shee how does it work with the extremely questionable indirect share?
Research is being carried out in the orphanages of large populous
cities, especially those where Judaism spread seat, carefully, and you will find that about a third of Jews + children are there. Consequence of such a dissolute life= | type of modern times among the Jews, and consequence that the Jew, whom I have mentioned in this paper,
8 | 27

418

very important reasons for this,
has little access to Jewish women.

Of course, those Suden = children among the number illegitimate children of Christians, as of Christians=
nen Gegeboren. Precisely for this reason, in addition to=
As I said, statistical writings without consideration proceed if they simply the relationship and legitimate children among Christians and Jews
specify, whereby a very noticeable difference must take place, which Jewish writers
to base their statement on it:
how much less adultery among men
people take place.

What now applies to W, what Ju=
the one so important, indirect part
men, the same applies, namely from hospitals and hospitals even more, which are due to the ftravelling lifestyle of the younger years almost alone
be populated without considering what poverty
which leads to the very, very, in our hopeless
Time to be on the account of the Jews.
Here too, the life story of many un= happy ones, and you will find that their flower of life from the hand of lustful Jews
been crushed without referring to medical histories
respect, which originally through poverty, this Er=
fower of so many diseases, the poor nutrition
means of subsistence, miserable housing, daily strife
and dispute over their election arose
the mouth | 4

We come to the work of Mr. Eisenmenger. The equally extensive inscription of the title, is – because at that time one could say title and preface in one – in extenso, as follows: N

Johann Andrei Eisenmenger's professor of

Oriental Languages at the University of Heidelberg Discovered Judaism, or: Thorough and truthful report, which the persecuted Jews the Most Holy Trinity Unity God the Father, Son and Holy Spirit horribly blaspheme and dishonor the holy Mother of Christ despised, the New Testament, the evangelists and apostles, the Christian Religion imöttisch permeate, and the whole Christianity to the utmost despise and cursing; and many other things, so far under Partly known things and great Sree professor of Jewish religion and theology, as well as many ridiculous and entertaining fables and other inconsistent things come to light. Everything from their own, and indeed very much with great effort and undeterred diligence read books with an extract of the Hebrews fñc words and their faithful translation into the German language, proved to be strong, and in Composed in two parts, each of which has its own always from a certain matter eye contains chapters that deal with the subject. All Christians

420

fts for the trusting message, and with perfect registers. With silk

His Royal Majesty in Prussia, Most Gracious

Special – Privilegio, printed in Königsberg in Prussia, in the year after Christ's birth, 1711. 2 parts, »

The first part contains 1046, the second part 1111, so in total 2127 pages in quarto. In The copy in front of me is from an older The following note was written in handwriting: In Rahtlef's Madness = Writing, which, titled Theologian, to the year 1756, p. 797 it is reported that this Book not written in Königsberg, but in Berlin

printed, also indicated the reason why Königsberg on the Titul= Blatt swept fey » which I the . to the near e over=
let's go.

From a later hand are the following words recorded: « Eisenmenger was a contemporary the noble and great man Benedict v. Spinoza, born as a Reformed Christian, and raised as such died, but not, as some mistakenly believe,
a proselyte. His work contains a treasure
by Jüdisch Talmudic=Rabbinical Scholarship » (in the parentheses, however, it says, "if such phistic – cabalistic – visions with the Ver=
reason and the understanding to scholarship
call it, » words which are all the more strange,
if, as I suspect, they are from a Jewish Hand written), «and that he fo hef=

421

tig), you can use the poison of fine time
excuse: but fraud, as some accuse him, he has, as far as one can now compared with the sources and studied,
not to let him get into trouble. Oh! if he Spinoza's head and heart! or Spi=
noza rabbinical scholarship (1) and thorough knowledge of Hebrew and other languages, what a win for Sfrael! But, as the Now that the book is there, everyone is looking for:
against Jews therefrom.n –

What a confession! and at the same time what a Contradiction, at least what squinting words!
No falsifications, and yet the following
Truths poison and bile are sucked Truth can, however, be this and
Be used to the detriment of the latter, by
that exaggerated conclusions are drawn from it,
but that in it, to be extracted from the truth Poison and bile is the greatest mockery of the one can ever speak against them. he

j *) Not violent, but merely foreign to the tone of modern world. What we learn from the writings of the
which seems to be unpolished in its time,

at that time already a certain polish, compared to the language of everyday life at that time. We too posterity will regard it as unpolished.

Polishing of things continues until even the Core will be rubbed away when every seriousness in Smile, every just rebuke in a shrug, every Contempt for the reprehensible transformed into tolerance

feen, and which world and worldly life alone only fine way of life.

322

The work mentioned is, as already seen from the inscription, almost entirely theological content. Everything is possible, as they say.
from the need. At that time,
The time has not come: Judaism from a
to consider political science standpoints.
In keeping with the spirit of the time,
such almost exclusively in religious terms
Eyes.

But Mr Eisenmenger can rightly say: that he is just as unparalleled as he is written effort from an incredibly large number Jewish=Rabbinical=Theological Writings Original Places in the Hebrew language were dug out,

and such, even the subsequent testimony of so many

t

According to Manner, with the most faithful German translation

fetting accompanied. Being, which precedes works= fetter, Catalog contains almost 200 related

Jewish writings, hence the work also for the Litterator has the same value as that of the
Mr. Beck, who also has a considerable number writings that have been written by the rights,
Discuss customs, statutes, etc. of the Jews.

But not only on the evidence provided of Mr. Eisenmenger, and many other men
ner, who bring the spirit of Rabbinism before everyone's eyes
ft, I have my own statement in vor= supported by lying writing, the conclusion for the Impossibility of better moral education of the

Judaism derived from it; but itself on

x

423

the statements and judgments of several later Jäbis
fhän writer has been seen doing this.

But since my almost sole focus was:
Judaism from a political science perspective
point to consider; fo I have of all the Whimsicalities and follies that Eisenmenger and An= dere from the Jewish theological writings
drawn, may cite little or nothing,
among which there are even things that are worth mentioning Modesty is permissive. Only one thing: that, for example, circumcision a God himself the – –
held.

Meanwhile, since that work has become so rare,
and almost exclusively in public libraries
is kept, and nowhere such a complete collection of the most nonsensical ideas;
fo it may not be unpleasant for the reader if I in a nutshell, under the guidance of that man
nes, herfetz, like the Rabbinism of Pharisäic
sect with regard to the resurrection of the dead
has tormented *). |

He, Rabbinism, throws the
ftant questions, which in different ways

+) Whereby a certain Abar- Ben- El, the secure Aus=
because of the prediction he made about the nature of the resurrection ben, seems to be at the top. One forgets
but not: that the two main sides of Judaism Pharisaism and Sadducdism in view of immortality completely deviate, and that the latter should stand at the letter of the Mofaism remains.

answered by Jewish theologians, like and after Seder follow fine spruces =
fen, believed:

Who? or which ones will rise again? whether only
South, whether all Jews, or only the pious, especially the scholars of the same, or at the same time
the dead of other peoples, excluding the Sas
Maritaner, will be resurrected? Whether the wild

Can those who are eaten by animals also be resurrected?

When will the resurrection take place? Whether it is time of the redemption of the Jews? Whether Adam and the patriarchs with or without their wives, and will also be resurrected sooner? Whether the Jews
those who lived in Judah rather than me
resurrect as usual in this country?
In what form do their bodies appear?
whether with their clothes, with their bodies=
physical disabilities (one-eyed, hunchbacked)?
Where the doctrine of the transmigration of souls is established
mixes, it is said: how it is with those bodies
into which the souls will gradually been transferred?

place where the resurrection will take place
in Sudda, namely at the Dele
mountain, so that those who lived outside Judah
have moved underground through caves, like sacks, have to roll on in order to get to the place of
to attain resurrection * ee
) Common sense would be the highest power in itself

commit when the madness of all kinds

" Future stay. This cannot be other than the earth. But if this, it is called it there, not too small, if everyone would be resurrected! Consequently, only the
Of the elect, the Jews alone will be resurrected.
Needs: whether the resurrected are these needs of life, eating, drinking etc. as before= times? Whether kings and princes like= therefore become among men? Whether the resurrection=ftanden once again die, and one day from New resurrection?

Through whom they, the dead, become be? whether by God? or by the Messiah? or by the righteous? Whether a relative of the lived in Palestine, his relatives outside of Pa= lãftina could resurrect? Does the resurrection happen? awakening by the righteous; they need certain rods, by the way it happens through a life-giving dew, supported by bring the trumpets sound 1c. 1c. 1

with all its variations, first ask wanted: how it is then those with the rolling under the earth, beyond the seas, In= feln to say nothing of living, all the more so since currently everyone is just thinking about itIt is certainly not acceptable for a Jew to mock this all the more so since in earlier times the Theo= logy of other believers also not to spun fantasies were missing. Only that stands to note in which the so high, by Jewish writers, whose highly acclaimed scholarship – the Rabbi has always existed. | He

426

Enough of these ridiculous things, we turn to a more serious subject. It has been pointed out in our present document that a critical history of Judaism not only currently a great need= not yet; but perhaps for some time to come, for the reasons stated, I will stay.

What is meant by a critical history of a People, which as a contribution to the history of the humanity is to be understood, to know Men who understand the requirements of a true known to the true historian, by itself.

Anyone who has read Schiller's historical works, especially his history of the Thirty Years' War read, and whose author in regard to his alone does not know the saving faith: the question man: Who was that highly celebrated man? Was he Catholic, or Protestant? or Reformed, or what was he? Schismatic, Herrnhuter, Quacker, Dissenter, Presbyterian? And if he were a Jew were, one would have just as surely, without the possibility possibility of getting an answer, you can ask: Was he a Christian or a Jew? Pharisee or Sadducder, or Effener, Karaite, Herodian or Gaulonit, and like all religious= religious « political Sects of Judaism may be called, from from whose germ they have developed.

But even just one Friederich, one Schiller were in possession of the equally rare (Millot, Schmidt, Archenholz &c.) as high gift to achieve what is expected of a Eighth historian is required. This must the bright expository gift of a Hume, Voltaire with the cold philosophical research spirit of a Tacitus, a Gibbon; he must the most memorable events in the most concise context (Machiavelli) in a powerful, fiery, yet compact style, without notes, Paintings of Declamations (Livy and his successors) after Guicciardini, Curtius &c.) in such a coherent context; like Consequences arise from consequences, since these in turn become causes for those; so that the Events are so proven that even the no doubters, and the most determined party spirit, whatever opinion he may hold, Nothing can be found to object to.

427

He must set, fatherland, opinions, all and forget any prejudices. His unbecoming unprejudiced spirit has the attention= ability to bind oneself only to deeds and actions, from which arises what we experience, learn and notice. He, the history= (scribe, self must be invisible *), like one our most excellent writers say, of the the preceding words are partly borrowed.

*) However, the further below mentioned = led writing to read a few lines; already a One look is enough to immediately see that a Jew is the author of it.

Not as if I didn't have peculiar choices
 can, but because the eft of the object
 worth, even on the statements of other men
 to respect, to which I consider the following unequal rern words, from me ee a ans
 'bend. }

Without the HE of the doctrine of causality
 to have eyes, the true historian knows researcher by himself: how infinitely far the wonder= worthy variety of actions in the living, self-active world; how fee it from the fôchfe simple course of the fôge=
 so-called dead nature, in respect of its formations,
 to be distinguished, where every active force is merely
 the passive lying next, it is indirect,
 ,or is immediately limited. He has the fo
 wide-ranging electoral scope of the active forces under eyes, therefore, these on incalculably countless passive near and far forces act
 can, from which the just so great content-heavy "Deviation of successes. He knows the such an incredibly fast change, that in the next moment active and passive forces their roles. He falls on the immense applicability of the mediate (means)
 so that even the most useful, the most beneficial Things can be used for evil purposes
 while carefully considering the extremely important conclusions
 considering, if custom and abuse
 cannot be separated in any way, if only everywhere

4229

an approach to perfection takes place,
 that perfection, no matter which .
 whatever it may be, can never be achieved.

He knows the fo content-rich indirect, or indirect influence of the self-acting, so highly moving world; so that actions on this and those directly directed to countless other People can reach out and influence indirectly whose extensive scope never) a Mortal is capable of overlooking, precisely because of this fate of every individual everywhere in the many thousands of people.

He moves the following sentence Be into be= conceivable consideration: that when active forces
at the expense of the paffiven, then strength and Fainting in reverse proportion fchance, then only the sentence is proven is: that power comes from power, and without= turns into another powerlessness to the bottomless
space, in order to thereby also the fo ftan= worthy rise and fall of the states, the Empires and nations closer to
can.

He pays attention above all and especially to the white

Where does the Srimme now raised in S resound,
to which mountain range of Europe, Asia and America
ka's she breaks, and how? which in the dark Night of the future is buried, and where human= ual caution always only eae Sa des e can achieve.

7

430

felfeftige, in never resting vibration reaction, whereupon the entire order nization of things in the universe is based solely on which contains the sole reason: that every Adversity, if it is not reacted to from outside,
contain the germ of its destruction within itself
must; which contains the reason: that consequences of consequences
gen emerge, and this so often and much in such incalculable ranks, that even the most important,
the most unexpected consequences can arise,
however small their beginnings had been and must have been,
since nature never allows a jump in any nor in itself in any way and 1 suffers.

He considers the mutual reaction around fo
more "to the correct assessment of the law
and injustice by using the suffering part from the active, this part of That one distinguishes exactly in order to know, whose account this and that F
to set fey. ~ |

It does not bring less. which can be stated many times
the easily confused motifs on a Touchstone, which character, both of Han=delenden
than the fact, situation, circumstances, behavior=
niffe to the hand to see whether, and like the motives presented in history, the
such as cunning, self-interest, private interest, passion denfciation is subordinated to the actions, as founded on the characteristics of the facts

7

131

lie, hence what moral value these and that action, whether also such and such content
should be fairly attributed to them.

And in all that has been said,
as for every truth researcher, the source opened there, from which, among countless other Phenomena that cause such a large deviation of the praise and blame; the possibility of words= inventions, of illusions, of interpretation=
and art of interpretation; the possibility of the passage
radories of all kinds, of scorn and mockery of that,
what is venerable to all and every human being; the Possibility of trampling on everyone, even the unconditional
most offensive truth, just as sarcasm is the
To exercise cunning and deceit x. x., herge=
which is more complicated to break down
sweeping would not be in place here).

*) Only a few words belonging here in a poem subject of immeasurable considerations: How would the Art of blackening innocent actions so completely in must dissolve, if no motives, so foreign this also corresponds to the characteristic of the actor and the fact may be, so that even the purest, most innocent act, without Exception, a hateful motive may be used
What would be left for interpretation= and
The art of interpretation remains if it is this or the opposite:
theil (protect against adversity iu take) e use
could. =
Where do paradoxes get their subsidies from when
not the diversity of the applicability of things

would take place, with the outcome being so different, To abwri= be able to feel comfortable here and there

| However desirable a detailed critical history of Judaism may be, from= led by an unbiased knowledgeable man whose clairvoyant, far-reaching gaze
solely under the guidance of the regulations of the Stu=
dium of the history of mankind; so be= Nevertheless, heaven protects everyone from a
such a history of the Jewish people, which with the most biased sense in the most idle philological
| 5 scientific investigations of the most useless

must be; so that let us say: every thing has its front and back. Every time that is present tice, not to mention, is suitable for this: even the Stupidity to be able to hold a panegyric. Smart=
ity naturally repels stupidity, whereas stupidity
is politics again, what it loses there, it gains
they here in full measure, and can on this White, worthy of an award. j
How would every illusion, every fictitious protection= speech shrinks into itself if there is no indirect tes influence in the self-acting world
would be; so that even the man stamped by ambition
thenmord here and there quite something good indir ee=
ter wise produces, which of the limitations
of the spirit is enough to celebrate his praise
And how many direct actions have not partly a cleverly calculated partly from the nature of matter of self-emerging indirect intention. Eng= country's trade policy has been the cement, the
every joint of the entire state building
had to be cursed, which in no way can and may be torn out without the
The whole thing collapses into ruins, and yet
how are foreign words to be examined
been used here and there. | HE | 433 quarrels. fisch gets involved, in the tone of the Paw Bure

man, Barnefius and Klotz, judging which | collects variants, pierces syllables, and picks out words;

who acts as arbitrator between Casaubon, Scaliger, Selden, Voß x. where they are
each other because of the most indifferent things

(the ignorance of which often has a higher value contains) in the hair, raise and
wants to demonstrate decisively: | |
whether the measure of the robe of the High Priest= priest according to Brabant or Hamburg cubit measure to calculate whether the great altar of fire in the temple
to Serufalem 900 or 900 $\frac{1}{2}$ square feet, par
ris scale, no line more or less whether the head of the Holocaust was on the Burning altar facing east or west,
south or north; whether
a Jewish grain=Measure 7%é éU or even 7 / measure of lenses; so that no 2 or 3 lenses could still go in; whether and how many feet, inches and lines the forecourt of the Women at the temple lower or higher wefen fey; how much Agio Sächfifisch=Courant on 100 pieces of silver come, Jewish coin after England's standard calculated; at what hour,
Minute and second, according to Jewish daily calculation,
reduced to all other countries, the Jewish people lost his independence; whether the and the one whose name never left the history of mankind
called, born from the ninth or tenth marriage,

28

434

with the twentieth, or hundred and twentieth

concubine was born, and how far the sex

register of this and that up to Adam=

can be brought etc. wu f. w.

Mere introductory words to what is against currently follows.

It is a pleasant sight to see that the | Jews begin to develop their spirit more and more form, make the attempt yourself to get into the one and other subject. How much preparation=

ut gen dieß but demands lies before the eyes of the one,

the following sentence in its entirety, never enough observed, extent knows:

That the development and education of the intellectual power, in regard to the most important matters human beings in relation on these must be. What is common Life is expressed like this: head and heart must be formed simultaneously. That is why a moral man can be a very learned man, but not every scholar is a moral Human. This is precisely where morally

3

writers (Klopstock, Herder, Schiller)

only occurs in nations with higher morality. Anyone who has a sense for the great, noble, beautiful and wants to have truth, must first of all be

ity of morality must be completely inspired, if not,

it is a bright-sounding dead brass.
First, Judaism must be used for moral improvement

ferft if such a thing ever comes to the Rabbinical

435

Spirit of Judaism will be possible only then it can have a say where truth and justice apply. We have recently received from Mr. J. Mi Joft received the following document: "History of Israelites since the time of the Maccabaeus until Days. First part, 1820. gr. 38. Sande. man the title of a book: from detailed history of all and every event about the French Revolution, such memorable events from the year 1812 onwards have worn; fo I don't know what to say about the author and the book.

How can a detailed (or should it be not be and become, what is the point of all this?) History of Judaism from the times of Maccabeth begin? how can you get from a epoch, as the character of Judaism
fich {has been going on for several centuries
which form, already repugnant in itself,
through the events of later times, new ugly shades. a
The entire history of Judaism sweeps
one says, hidden in the reeds of the Nile. Go but sequences of sequences in an incalculable series
their first approach must be in the smallest small things are sought; so one must
the bank of the Nile to the palace of the grain tenant Jofeph, who is to the future destiny
the Jews in Egypt laid the foundation; one must study Jacob's pedagogy. It is still 436

to go back further, provided that the electoral relationship
ft only allows the future time, it
The question is whether J faak is strong and tall
It was enough to ask: for whom the butcher's knife
fshould be, or whether he should be small, but agile enough been to get away and under the
her mother's apron to save herself.

So, no further back into the past?
However, someone ask Abraham to
to his homeland, Chaldaeaa, to further back to the emergence of the present
earth, this remnant of many thousands of ancestors
Or is the altar service
of the Jews something more or less than a mere slightly changed (to speak humanly) the God-
heit mocking form of the fo fhüslichen, verde=
horrific human sacrifice, which Abrahau of Chaldaeaa brought with him?

The naked eye of the mortal lifts
everywhere his investigations of consequences –
which it is for Ur= rn *) anfänget, he meets

= and the search for the causes/ and the Ur= concepts a remarkable analogy takes place.
Just as consequences do not exist until their first occurrence
can be traced, just as difficult it is

Births and relationships of ideas, their numerous loose, unpredictable branches because of family=
white to be able to overlook, whereby the language in
in many cases even a basic name Cates gorematic expression) is missing, since the gaze is seldom been executed on that from which something emerged

ee

437

since those often result from many countless previous transactions that have been made, which gone; but remained attached to what came from

That one is removed.

Whoever correctly judges the spirit of Judaism
wants, must, as with everyone, concern such things judgment, the basic idea of the same under
Have eyes to which everything and everything is tied,
from which everything and everything emerges.

Holy people! The only people of God!
Chosen ones! Elect ones! These terms pull together in one to get to the basic idea
All other ideas, all teachings phase, all statutes, all opinions, all and every Claims are in close, consistent context.

Then, presented sensuously, one immediately perceives
which stem from the ground = or root idea up into which two branches with their infinite countless branches of this spread. High exaggerated opinion of oneself, in possession of a
not to be of any value to be shared by any other people, forms the trunk, which has one main branch: sole hereditary rule over the entire earth.
Hence the exclusive, demanding, combined with the deep contempt for humanity of the Rabbinic Ju= denthum against non-Jewishness, it is nothing white

ter, as a hereditary servant; hence the tal= Muslim opinion: that a person who is addicted to non-Jewish practiced injustice to fic) no injustice fey; therefore every suffered persecution as a persecution against Judaism represent irresponsible injustice, any discontent
punish with every possible vengeance, for every taken Revenge still to be allowed to say: Tolerant – – every

to have endured, because the revenge committed is not revenge,
at least not sufficient; hence the
The Rabbis' (now renewed) call to mark the day of 438 together serve to explain a matter.

No wonder if the judgments of historical content
also have such a very crooked direction everywhere.

--

Salvation – to beg from the deity; hence
whose strange nature, who will ever rise again?

" u. f. wu f. w.

The second main branch, which includes the sentence: multiplies yourselves, and be fruitful, so that also through number
the idea of sole rule, where possible,

; to be able to do it, it is just so numerous in many and some branches, hence: those of Judaism

permitted, not permitted in Christian states Polygamy; furthermore: the incomparably higher value placed on the birth of a boy; the un=

: same annoying formalities for the mother at a born girl; respect for the father

many children, especially many boys; the curse,
which rests on a barren woman; which derived frivolous reason for divorce; therefore the obligation: the brother's remaining children= to marry a hapless widow in order to save her, if possible, from

to be freed from the shame of infertility (which

Mo aific regulation, like so many others to the loosening of morality, is currently being circumvented.

In this respect, a woman who may have other intentions

: ten bat, fic) before the death of her husband an even:

current divorce certificate); the forgfame

Care of Jewish women for their foreskin

education; the powerful support for postpartum women

“among the poor; the extremely strict quarantine *)

Jewish women at the time of their monthly purification
gung 3c. 3c e.

*) Seven days must, according to Rabbinical teachings,
a Jewish woman completely separated herself from her husband
but may not sit on the same bench with him,
from a bowl and a drinking glass
enjoy something with him, even if not on egg

439 |

Must also the guideline of historical Radke
research, however, in the darkness of the times completely lose, in which the most ccharffte glance
the researcher cannot penetrate; nevertheless at least there – not to begin where several Centuries have long been concerned about the “fouberbaren
fabric of national characteristics, mentality,
behavior, human errors, foolishness
ties and destinies of a people, partly woven in such a way that what the character
served for the elevator, can never be inseparable.

Sad enough that the still raw Because of Judaism, such well-known things
must be brought to mind.

But this is by no means what
we have to remember against that history book.
Mr. Soft announces fic) as a man with gifted with excellent talents, with school knowledge equipped, but from all higher sciences
completely exposed, he poses with the most embarrassed Spirit for Judaism. Even somewhere the Wishing that the Pharisaism of all religious parties may finally stop, he carries
which still bears all the signs of Jewish fanaticism, doings and activities of the e an fich. . 0 are the u

a tablecloth with him; not even face to face, talk to someone, even less touch him in any way, even not offer anything from their hand. 3c. 3c. 3c.

AAO

~

The machinations of the Judaism, to bring it to this point: that the torch of criticism of the same is completely extinguished;
Here too it says: it is finally after him and Herzanken Zeit, «the acts on the value and to conclude that Judaism is worthless.” No!
The book has barely been started and has barely been opened 9.

) Recently, Professor Sartorius

in his writing: « about the dangers which German threaten the land, and the means to them with happiness
meet (Göttingen 1820 gr. 8.) a word about fine

Zeitz spoke about Judaism.

But there is something that makes the language against Ju-denthum will again be strongly stimulated; fo
tft it the fic) again fo loudly stirring Rabbini m,
who in turn thereby passes on his incorrigibility to the Dag that he would transfer everything and anything to the Rabbini-Jewish spirit of Judaism thinks. |

They are from Baruch Meyer, President of the Rabbinical College of Hamburg, by Jakob Meyer Jaffe and Michel Ifrael Speyer,
Rabbi of the Jewish community there « Letters,
or Words of the Covenant (Dibere Haberith) of the chosen teichnest Rabbis and Rabbi «Collegien der vor-
most active Israelite communities in Germany, Poland and Italy, about the one in Hamburg by some individuals of the then Israelite community
the New, which was built against the laws of Judaism Temple Association, in which the Ans Hanger that is much more suited to the needs of the time

mefenen cult with some honorary titles special- | whose award is documented. But why such just the temple: Association of Hamburg – concern
had to, is explained by felbk., if one considers the population and wealth in sight, and that precisely

The moments in time are in the nearer or more distant future, that far more than a revision of the same

—

It is the wealthy who go there to the temple have turned to.

Before reading through those collected letters, but one cannot help but be of certain expectation, which horrible, heretical principles therein the outcome hangers of that temple association perhaps to the accusation would have been made, and yet the greatest in it is The complaint stated is nothing more than: that (in accordance with some country = regulations) the Prayers in German, not in Belgian Language is held there. Just as one before=

was sometimes very upset that the German ~ Landmann, the Roman language better than Rome's first Speakers knowledgeable, no longer in Latin pray and sing, which was a great It can also serve to strengthen the heart. complained that an organ=play, a will it aud)» is called it there, carried out by a non-Jew » is an abomination to the Jewish Lord God. a

Carried out by a Christian, one cannot say But where does the expression Non-Jewish spirit, only a Christian to the organ= I don't know if there are any "in the Temple Association traces of Jewish fanaticism

– Need to be allowed to play? Weider Christian likes fid but then give it to the mocking Rab= biner who are of the better opinion that their Lord God a high priestly, or royal= waltz alone can be a pleasure. But what distinguishing sign is there for the indecent between dance and organ music, Accompanying church songs. And the gentlemen Rabbis do not at the same time refer to the cult of the Christians over, with which organ sound then. no less, as something pagan, as something unacceptable to the deity Taming feon could.

FIT

undertaken that the spirit of Judaism then
will be subjected to rigorous scrutiny,
which will provide documents with significant content.

When will Rabbinic Pharisees improve,
when will he stop, Christianity also becomes more hidden= white to mock in every way. I have many hard Word spoken against Judaism; but who is 1 esolely and solely to blame?:
The main reason, although only lightly touched upon:
. to that temple: unite so hard rebelled to have, but is actually none other than: that there in the prayers modifications of the Rabbini=
fic prayers, since on Jewish traditions, statutes, customs, customs fet xc. not be changed in the slightest (as if the Mosaic laws had not long ago
: in so many and some pieces, even among consent of the Rabbis, bypassed, and encircled chen, of which our present document
by no means has every example been listed), especially that in the prayers the following should be omitted: God
to implore the final redemption -- fie nad
their homeland, to the profitable altar service which, as noted, without the
continued to offend governments
can be and must be maintained. Nature= lich! because the relationship of the Jews to the Christians (to the entire non-Jewish community)
ignored, which then with lesser respect, would be viewed with less hatred,
Instead of having to give up the idea:
to become dominant one day, never harbor the delusion
may: the country where they are born for their father terland, to respect their permanent residence if also all duties of social life of Lig
perish in the process. Ä :

443

Furthermore, in our above document it is sufficiently
been shown in what a hateful light
the incorrigible nature of Rabbinic Judaism
from time immemorial until this moment all that has designated what ever and almost consistently unavoidable= and necessary=

white against Judaism, here too it says that of Christianity, as well as the rest of the non-Jews=
thum, owed historical N never

wrote: |

| The community of Judaism, » is called ees by Mr. Joft, namely in the preface
fhis thought writing, «has the chosen=
most torments and acts of violence, which wickedness
Dog rage, hatred and scorn for their destruction
un, pale (with neck bent. =)

* Did such judgments happen in earlier times in Jew=
fic writings, where Shevet Iehuda, Shalochéleth Hakkabala, Mikvet Iisrael and others;
fuch were forgivable in those times. That but still the incorrigibility of the Rabbi= Jewish history, all historical documents that Moreover, only that which is in the Charaeteristi=

fhes of all and every usurping party

which from time immemorial and at all times has motto, aut nihil, aut Caesar, followed, him,

because of the antagonism, had to follow, so completely
out of control is almost inexplicable.

There are sentences, statements, as well as actions,
where the greatest ingenuity cannot judge,
whether they arise from stupidity or malice. This
This raises the question of whether it is also possible to

The essence of Judaism: the causes of the suffering 0

AAS

Piel and some things I have deliberately overlooked, However, at the end of this appendix I want to make a historical excerpt, how far persecuted against Judaism have extended so that
that which is in them is preserved,
our present paper on this subject
been. 4

But all religions are characterized more or less less in the yearbooks of the world through fanaticism A matter that, on closer inspection, is more in the inner being of things, rather than that they are from the evil depends solely on the good will of men; However, there is no doubt that no religion has ever been who have ever been guilty of greater fanaticism would have had to make guilty because of the basic ideas, than that of Judaism, from which the same can only be cured in the end if the fo great far-sighted idea of a world religion, which, on the basis of pure Christianity alone, only to be founded; could ever be realized.

Here at Mr. Jofst you can still read the horrific words: «That extermination» persecutions are entirely and solely based on non-Judaism in order to insinuate that No one was allowed to do anything against the holy people, in order to increase hatred against non-Jews ren, the more eagerly point to the day of redemption, thwart any attempt at rapprochement, the to be able to point out more strongly that in the old prayers formulas that express the entire spirit of the misanthropic Judaism breathe, to have to stand still. 3c. 3c.

-

AAS

and Bertilgungs » War of the inhabitants of Kar naan's fey nothwendig geweiffen!» A sentence, who with the Inquisition Court from one and emerged from the same hell, is enough to show what can be achieved by a Jewish history of spirit can be expected. |

Paldftina, a most miserable, poor Land, worth barely half of our Saxon land, a country which, due to its natural situation and

Due to the nature of the soil, of persistent Drought so often and much, and just as hard hit will, whereby even more through the ordained Sabbath year (when religiously no field could be cultivated) that, by the priest thum, moreover, drained, people in misery and famine, such a country says to him, to Mr. Soft: «a holy – Ground! » «Garden of the Lord!» – area where o the Lord should wield the sceptre! –

Jerusalem, the abode of all the abominations of Fanatism, the seat of all vices, all atrocities,
the cradle of the most horrific civil wars, the op= position of the High Priesthood and Kingship thumbs, which mutually await their downfall, and thereby working towards the ruin of the state,
where a demon in the former sole Tem=
pelf chatz in Jerufalem of the 10,000 dwelling there=
the priest who sucks the land's mart *

) A number of on % of 99.

446

'and the subsequent one, that lying to the side
found a bone of contention in the state treasury, and between both parties to irreconcilable hatred
he calls «the holy city!» –
"City of God", as the Jewish people everywhere called a holy people by Judaism).

We still read from him today: that the walls of Jericho stood before the trumpets=
The sound of the priests horrified them so much that they Earth sank. Of course, the words stand there like that,
that they even have a touch of parody.
But if a historian uses such a fo the whole must be a ray of light on

It happens to the words that have the character of noble, sublime concepts, like the coins, on which
chen the image of the country's prince is pronounced,
This one presses the face of someone in need.
He pours her into the lap of his joyful girl=
chens. This one buys food for it. That one offers it to someone as a bribe. Limps=
Nevertheless, this example, like every one according to the material, of the old Montaigne, so it has some similarities=
possibility with it. ar u
One of our esteemed writers criticizes the former nonsense with the word divine! god=
divine food, divine tobacco, divine comedy,
divine fun; and yet this was only the beginning,

In the end, even the most reprehensible thing was made divine:
This reprimand can now also be used to
with the word holy. Everywhere you hear:
holy character, holy mind, holy business, sacred undertaking, holy act. It is
'I expect that in the end people will say hot shit,
when, for example, a sacrificial animal is mentioned.

—

AAT:
such things, so that the harvest of

Irony must be clearly distinguished.

Furthermore: Herod, contemporary of Antonius |
nius, Cleopatra and Augustus, this out-
throw of humanity, whose misdeeds are enemies,
Spring is able to designate the, lesser,
of foreign origin, as a Ufurpator after the crown
strove to obtain it by surreptitious means, 'to destroy it'
from the smallest, most insignificant circumstance.
Suspicion and revenge created, and therefore spies
on all roads; who through no,
Regent's duty to preserve the crown he has acquired understood; who all Nero's bloodthirst, all Augusts.
love of splendor, all Ludwig for indulgence=
who had the noblest of the people in prison
languish, thousands die on the rack, Several people bled to death on the cross; even
to his family, wives, children, blood relatives=
ten, through shameful executions the
through their own crimes people become criminals
made to punish his own shameful deed against them;
the fine people with the most outrageous taxes.
which the neighboring peoples
by no means any prestige, any power sake; but only because he was who supported the Romans' supremacy; who, to be able to do this,
through flattery, which comes only from the lowest soul, worked there, from his Sister) Salome supported in this, under the

*) Which the wife of the Emperor (Livia) also

The shield of the reverent August is not alone
hold, but also to be able to grasp;
in short, who dedicated his whole life to the ruin of the state seemed to have been intentionally consecrated in such a way that he, like all tyrants, his successors,
dysentery, indignation, * ; ai to the legacy
suspended. f

For, not because of much and much evil,
what tyrants commit during their lives, find:
fhe is worthy of hatred; fbut of curse,
which they load onto their successors, who so often
the best will, with the purest intentions, with more than ordinary dexterity, the steering wheel=
cannot steer the rudder of the state because poet Fog, thunderstorms, pregnant clouds all around= above the ship of state, which only storms and violent tremors apart
can hunt.

Now to this Herod, this monster first Claffe, he also gives the priestly, in the year=
books of the world for ambiguous predicate: «Herod
the Great! I» *) and ur , because berfelbe Sm alten |

55 the admirable flattery in been searched.

* Strange! Some will ask, the author he= does not even utter a single syllable that the namely Herod the Massacre of the Innocents in Bethlehem anftablẽ has! And if it had happened! one would have been cannot say: only for this reason are those shields=

tion has been undertaken by me; as one should have
can say, because what can be said about the motives

449

tore down the temple and built a new one, but whose vain splendour, the true state of the country and the people exactly with the same similarly, the immortal reformer said the following
most correct judgment is made: ; _

Would it be possible that the entire Mosaic
If altar service could stop completely, I would
in three days a solution in accordance with reason
can establish standing worship of the deity;

He saw the whole thing as dilapidated and decaying
Moses-like buildings, in terms of the positive.

Furthermore, in the above, from my point of view= produced document; that Jewish historical writings of recent times the reformer
of Mosaism with complete silence.

This is not the case of Mr. Jost. After he p. 269 a few words about his birth said, he speaks of the same p. 293 et seq., as
in short excerpt follows here:

not start everything, it is a mere malicious joy,
to have mentioned from history that the fate
fall of Herod the Great at the most hideous disease, he was raised alive eaten by lice. May historians way of thinking nor (6 very discontent about such Monsters are seized, they find themselves in the manner of Death of the same no nemesis, no punishment, nor less a hand of the deity, only that they see
as a punishment for such: that the taking of the same,
as long as the earth stands, spoken with abhorrence
The just and deserved fate of all people via .

29

450

It soon became apparent that he was planning a reorganization of the opinions at that time about the relationship of God=
ity to the people – often called himself=

a king, but not an earthly one Land – Declared (id) publicly for the Son of God
tes – Such new teaching was suspicious to the Jews
tig – The resurrection story made them suspect – The Jew had to, by virtue of his concept of God, even after purification of the same
of everything physical, the doctrine of the God=
Jesus, of his mission, redemption, resurrection erftehung ufw outright reject – Therefore the emergence of Christianity in the first Time had no regard for the condition of the Jews
had the influence – This event was the Sus
which at that time was merely a striking everyday occurrence benheit – It, Christianity, left
foeven soon fhis fatherland “and converted the de eis
den,ufw»

Space prohibits me from discussing these words.
To write a commentary. But what can be said about expect from a historian who not only the historical context, as previously mentioned says, completely torn, which begins where Ans bere almost stop ; but in addition to this,
historical ignorance of an unforgivable kind lays.

If the true historian, as in
As has been said above, nowhere in empty forms, how many inches wide and 451

how long the horns had been on the altar;
On the other hand, he dwells on every action, every Fact, considering its character carefully, well= knowing that even the seemingly small
most habitual events often lead to the great drive= wheel of the doings and activities of men very can intervene / but he should hold on to it chen whose characteristics are unpredictable consequences for the future.

All that was needed was the shameful hire
direction of that righteous man, whose character, as his teaching, directed against the priestly spirit, which bearing the mark of the greatest innocence,
and his lecture, his teaching rose above every Everyday history infinitely high.

Socrates did not drink himself, he drank the hot denthum to death. Neither Plato, Lucian, nor Cicero and Caesar would have expressed themselves so freely have. The flames of Huss and Hier o=
nymus flared up in Luther's soul.
In general, in the confused = regulated tissue
the destinies of humanity: that if truth ever appears in its full glory, if fhe with unstoppable force in the sequence=
step forward, you have to start by taking all strength with every effort imaginable
to suppress persecutions.

All that was needed was the execution of the innocent on the cross, who sacrificed himself for Truth led the word, and Judaism,

the Mosaism, had to be "first and foremost"
N will be.

Respect for the jabife had long since disappeared Priesthood had completely ceased. The people had learned the insignificance of their idols. Ale xan= Pompey had the interior of the temple
enter without being struck by lightning
That Herod even desecrated the new holy Temple with the Roman eagle, with Anguftus image, and yet altars and walls remained stand unshaken, what outcry a Ä no might raise against that one.

The dignity of a high priest, which formerly bordering on divine worship, had long since passed into Dust completely trampled, was a plaything of the world= Jewish rule (the kingdom, the Tetrarchy), which the highest bidder
was offered for sale, and through which so often subsequent shameful deposition and clothing
the same, even with the most despicable creatures,
finally become the object of contempt
had to,

Every lecture alfo, ithe against the Jewish bloodthirsty, yet highly profitable altar"
service, against the so hostilely accepted relationship of the deity to the people, which in Mofaism was calculated for the elect only that was, even more so, such a lecture, for the
that immortal man bled who the whole
ual transformation of the positive in Mofaism

purpose, had to bring the Jewish priest's venom into the whole hateful light (and therefore also
the same the gruesome persecutions against the Reformed Jews among the Jews of earlier times)
all the more so since it was also the time of Guelph
and Ghibellines under the name Herodians and Gaulonites in the Jewish state: two parties, one of which is fighting with the defunct spiritual power, the other, to the Romans= Rejecting domination, it with the worldly power

held; since an opposition found state, which zealously working towards the ruin of the state, and whose primary reason probably only in the previously mentioned formerly existing Temple treasury of the priests, and the subsequent set aside state treasury of the aes can be found.

Because, self-love, real self-preservation self-interest and private interest are the sole fishing, for which all e and all trucks turn.

But in order for the author mentioned to be able to achieve a satisfactory result can, namely: that the fo content-rich teaching of the Reformer, who is beyond praise, day history, and a highly unforgettable had a significant influence on the condition of the Jews (but probably not indirectly to prove their nullity to represent!), he proceeds in the following way with all historical documents set aside.

454

First he pushes the countless intervening Ur=fts because of later ideas that emerged catching Reformed Judaism. However, had his teacher in Mosaism so highly hostile= blessedly sought-after relationship between God and completely abolished by humans, precisely because of this he has immortalized his name. He taught the never enough to be verified consequential truth: God is Father of all people. And so he had completely Right to say: Man is not a worm, not a servant, not a slave but a son of God=

ity! Or are the children of a father not his Sons? But how much he, the deity, himself, as a member of humanity, highly exalted considered, this is exactly what he did so loudly and openly= clearly demonstrated that there is no interpreta= tion needs, by even the predicate good *) rejected her, and it was her, the NF alone wanted to settle. |

By means of this substitution he then concludes

the insignificant reception of that doctrine, which also,
in fact, on the part of Judaism not only very small, but almost impossible
would be. Since the proportion spread out fo
There is little to deny that he himself is the truth

) Namely, taken in its original sense:
pure, clear, faultless. That is why,

by the way, the term good, only one in Dd is reeten comparative (melius, mas bien, mieux, beffer) in all languages.

55

by stating somewhere:
Agrippa (namely the last wren of the Jews)
have a persecution against the followers of that new teaching; he judges the conversion that has taken place
to Gentiles-what instruction at the beginning almost exclusively in Jewish communities except Sudda was undertaken, since of course those who lived in the foreign country, already in itself through the Intercourse *) with other peoples, under observation
their formulation of their thoughts and actions
white xc. much less intolerance, much more receptivity to that lecture,
even more so if they are to commit all the horrors through emigrants,
all the accumulated crimes learned which the oppositional spirit of the priests and the tetrarchs exercised against each other.

On the critical history of Judaism, alongside= said, may also belong where it came from men: that {even before the complete dissolution of the Jewish Empire, so many hundreds of thousands of Jews
in the foreign countries (Perfia, Asyria, Mefopo=

tamien, Egypt, especially in Alexandria,

Ionian, Greece, Italy, in Rome

*) What this is capable of, would have been experienced by the one
the one before the present, perhaps momentary,
Abolition of the Inquisition Court in Spain
Cities, Cadix, Malaga, Carthagen, Alikant, Barcelona, Bilbao etc.; he would be amazed
have been, what a great difference in these

. cities. and in the interior of the country.

456

There were more than 8000 Jews on the islands the Mediterranean Sea, Cyprus, Crete, (Candia) Rhodus, Melos etc. we) stopped, spurning the return to Judah. From Love for the poor homeland was surely not happened! But they found their way with foreign unequal to the so-called pagan nations. fer? Did the so very shattered Jewish state serve constitution of later times the same by so much to disgust? Did this promote the more emigration? Were those in Those living in foreign countries feel much freer from the such burdensome Mosaic coercive laws, which they partly bypassed, partly had to bypass? and effected for all of this is not unequally available to such people! more willing acceptance of the Reformation doctrine? because there is no unnoticed influence on the Undertakings: the Jewish Empire entirely having to dissolve.

Finally, Mr. Jofst speaks to Ehrism and Christianity at the beginning of the Reformation mations=teaching of Judaism, as far from such names were thought of. The followers of those Teaching were and remained for quite some time Juden, namely Reformed Jews. They practiced almost all Mosaic customs, only with the so big important difference that they have a very other value on it, which in a ever stronger growth, with an ever increasing intertwined interests gradually emerge from the

a

457

Eye lost. How would it be otherwise, without retaining of the Mosaic customs, it would ever have been possible that Jewish ceremonies in a different form, in a different shape in the cult of the later unequal fpa= ter Christians could have passed over; so that of new reformers of this and that kind. I conclude, for the reasons given above, this appendix with a very brief historical

Extract: where, with what very large number of Peoples, nations, they, the Jews, partly been exposed to persecution, partly expelled from the country meadows, partly plundered, namely for debt collection release of money gained through usury, enjoying enormous interest have been done; wherever the undertaken Confiscation of acquired but misused money gien etc. belong. |

We ignore here all persecutions of previous times which they suffered partly in their own country, partly to the reformed Judaism on a fear= have exercised in a bare way, and lead only a few Examples where, apart from Judah, after dissolution of their kingdom the above has taken place. | In Italy, under Trajan, Hadrian C wel The latter transferred them to Spain, and they, ih.ed insurrection=for reasons of intellect, punishable by death the return forbidden) Constantine, Justinian, Theodofius, Theoderich rc. In Arabia, under Muhamed, and his Successors. Among the Caliphs, as well as among the Sultans there were several such

72 Rn

458

Bitterness that she, inhumanly, complete extermination, such as the Sultan Gela Dullat.

In Perften, under the last monarch of the Muslim dynasty. |

In Spain under the government of the Arab= princes, Mohadi, Wathek, Motawakel, the Christian ruler Ferdinand, Philipp.

In Portugal, under Emanuel, and his successors.

In France under Childebert, Ehilperich, Dagobert (also banished them under penalty of death | from his kingdom) Earl the Great, Louis the Schöne, Philip V in Alsace in modern times.

In England under John, Henry III, Edward J., George III.

In Denmark 1651, 1681, 1819.

In Hungary, under Ladislaus.

In Bohemia, especially in Prague, Bubweiß 1c 1c
4200, 1389, 1399, 1411, 1436, 1448, 1506, 1541, 1501 1. *), still in 1744
fie of Maria Therefia, forever, although give, expelled from there.

In Germany in the eleventh and

) The incomparably greater anja of that historical fact in Bohemia. We owe the Writing of Mr. v. Hermann. How very considered=

The history of that event must therefore be consequences, once several historical works
individual countries about Judaism have appeared. .

459

Century during the Crusades, as in fourteenth century, but not only in Germany but almost in the rest of the whole Europe, Paffau 1399, 1475; Nuremberg 1449,
Vienna 1670; unrest in the Electorate of the Holy Roman Empire time; unrest in many cities in 1819.

| Main he printed by Florian Kupferberg.

f va

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Full text of "The Riddle Of The Jews Success by F. Roderich-Stoltheim (Theodor Fritsch)"

See other formats

F. RODERICH * STOLTHEIM

THE RIDDLE

OF THE

JEW'S SUCCESS

F. RODERICH-STOLTHEIM

THE RIDDLE

OF

THE JEW'S SUCCESS

Translated from the German by Capel Pownall

HAMMER-VERLAG / LEIPZIG

1927

From Metapedia

[http://en.metapedia.org/wiki/Theodor_ Fritsch]

Theodor Emil Fritsch (October 28, 1852 near Leipzig – September 8, 1933) was a German antijudaist whose views did much to influence popular opposition to Jewish supremacism in Germany during the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

A believer in the absolute superiority of the Aryan race, Fritsch was upset by the changes brought on by rapid industrialization and urbanization, and called for a return to the traditional peasant values and customs of the distant past, which he believed exemplified the essence of the Volk.

In 1883 he founded the Hammer Publishing House.

One of Fritsch's major goals was to unite all Jew-resister political parties under a single banner; he wished for opposition to Jewish supremacism to permeate the agenda of every German social and political organization. This effort proved largely to be a failure, as by 1890 there were over 190 various patriotic parties in Germany. He also had a powerful rival for the leadership of the patriots in Otto Bockel, with whom he had a strong personal rivalry.

In 1893, Fritsch published his most famous work, The Handbook of the Jewish Question also known as the Anti-Semitic Catechism which criticed the Jews and called upon Germans to refrain from intermingling with them. Vastly popular, the book was read by millions and was in its 49th edition by 1944 (330,000 copies). The ideas espoused by the work greatly influenced Hitler and his party during their rise to power after World War I. Fritsch also founded a journal – the Hammer (in 1902) and this became the basis of a movement, the Reichshammerbund, in 1912.

His better known book, The Riddle of the Jew's Success was published in English in 1927 under the pseudonym F. Roderich-Stoltheim, and dealt with the negative impact that Jewish values and the centralization of the German economy in Jewish hands had on the German people. This book was recently republished by Noontide Press, and was the subject of a media controversy after it was banned by Amazon.com and other online book sellers.

Fritsch held the publication rights to the German edition of Henry Ford's work The International Jew.

Contents.

Chapter ... Page

| | |
|---|----|
| I. Preface ... | 5 |
| II. Jewish Methods in the Economic Life ... | 10 |
| III. Particular Business Tactics of the Jew ... | 29 |
| IV. The International Connection and Secret League of the Hebrews ... | 39 |
| V. The peculiar Morality of Jewdom ... | 53 |
| VI. An Explanation with Sombart ... | 68 |
| VII. Jewish Successes in modern Times ... | 72 |
| VII. The Stock-Exchange ... | 84 |
| IX. How Sound Business Methods are forced | |

out of the field by the Jews ... 98

X. Jewish Trade Specialities ... 111

XI. Moral Principles in Trade ... 141

XII. The Hebrews as supporters of Capitalism ... 154

XIII. Business and Religion ... 183

XIV. The Race Problem ... 200

XV. Origin of the Jewish entity ... 220

XVI. The influence of the Jew upon Womankind ... 242

XVII. The Jews and the World-War ... 277

Concluding Words ... 283

Errata ... 290

Preface

If there are riddles in the history of the nations, then the Jews most certainly present one of the chief instances; and, whoever has occupied himself with the problems of humanity, without advancing so far as the great problem of the Jews, has, so far as knowledge and experience of life are concerned, merely skimmed the surface of the subject. There is scarcely a field, from Art and Literature to Religion and Political Economy, from Politics to the most secret domains of sensuality and criminality, in which the influence of the Jewish spirit and of the Jewish entity cannot be clearly traced, and has not imparted a peculiar warp or trend to the affairs in question.

Indisputable as these facts are, it is nevertheless equally certain that Science, Literature and the Press, which concern themselves, not only in Germany, but all the world over, with all manner of valuable knowledge, display the utmost anxiety to avoid casting any light into the secret and mysterious sphere of Jewish influence. It is, as if a silent mandate had been issued, that the essential relations of life with Jewdom are on no account to be disturbed – that the Jews, in fact, are not to be discussed. And thus, one is entitled to maintain, that in no department of knowledge is the ignorance of our learned men so pronounced, as it is in everything, which is connected with the Jews.

If, however, the influences and activities, which the Hebrews exert upon the spiritual and political destinies of the nations, are of an extraordinary nature, one must finally supplement this recognised fact by the further recognition, that Hebrewdom avails itself of extraordinary powers and means to produce such results.

It is, in this respect, that the present book furnishes disclosures.

To start with, one point must be made perfectly clear: religious views and religious motives are excluded from this work.

[Page 5]

The author is completely neutral to the religious parties, and cannot subscribe unconditionally to any one of the same.

When Jews are spoken of in the course of this book, we are not thinking of a religious community, but rather of a particular people, a nation, a race. Consequently, whenever it would be advisable to avoid the use of the word "Jew", on account of the unpleasant flavour or taint which invariably accompanies that expression, use has been made, to a great extent, of the names "Hebrew", or "Semite".

That the Jews, however, in spite of their dispersion amongst the nations, still feel, at the present day, that they are a special people and a special race, and that they feel themselves united more by their common blood and race than by their religious creed, is testified to by one of the most illustrious amongst the people of Israel.

Disraeli, who later on became Prime Minister of England, and was created Lord Beaconsfield, makes, in his novel "Endymion", which was published in London in 1844, an influential, elderly Jew speak to a young man as follows:

"No one must treat the racial principle, the racial question, with indifference. It is the key to the history of the world; and history is only so frequently confused because it is written by people, who are unacquainted with the racial question, and ignorant of everything which has a bearing upon it. Wherever you find the same in operation, whether amongst communities, or, in the case of individuals, it has to be reckoned with. But, on the other side,

there is no other subject again, which demands such a fine power of discrimination, or, where the principle, if it is not completely understood, may show itself to be as misleading as an Ignis Fatuus.

I find in Europe three great races with pronounced characters – the Germans, the Slavs and the Celts, and their behaviour is determined precisely by these distinguishing characteristics. There is, however, yet another great race, which influences the world – the Semitic. The Semites are, without question, a great race, for, amongst all the things in this world which appear to be true, nothing is more certain than the fact that they invented our alphabet.’’*

* This has long been shown to be erroneous (The author.)

[Page 6]

“But the Semites, at the present moment, exert through their smallest but most peculiar family, the Jews, an extraordinarily great influence upon all affairs. There is no other race, which has been endowed to such a degree with obstinacy and talent for organisation. These qualities have secured for them untold possessions and immeasurable credit. As you advance in life and acquire a more extensive knowledge of business and affairs in general, you will find that the Jews cross your path and frustrate your plans, wherever you go. Long ago they stole their way into our secret diplomacy, and have become almost complete masters of it; in another 25 years they will openly claim their share in the government of the country. Now here we are dealing with races: men and cliques of men who are guided in their behaviour by their peculiar organisation, and a statesman must reckon with this situation. On the other hand – what do you understand by the Latin race? Language and Religion do not make race – blood makes it’.

At this juncture we shall only occupy ourselves with the signification and importance of the Jews in trade, that domain where they have laid the foundation of their power, and over which they are always extending their influence and authority in the endeavour to make a Jewish monopoly of it.

In his meritorious book: “Die Juden und das Wirtschaftsleben’’, (The Jews and the Economic Life) Professor Werner Sombart is at pains to prove nothing less than that the economic destinies of states and nations stand in immediate relation to the wanderings of the Jews. What further conclusions he then proceeds to attach to this theory, can best be summed up as follows: to whatever spot the Jews turn their footsteps, there trade and culture at once blossom forth; but, if they withdraw, commerce decays and prosperity disappears.

If this fact also, as a fact, is not to be disputed, it still seems to me that the reasons, adduced by Sombart, to account for this phenomenon, do not satisfy. And, as his conclusions also appear to me to be unsound, I consider it necessary to supplement the work of this scholar, who depends almost entirely upon literary and documentary evidence, by examples and experiences taken from practical, everyday life.

According to the impression, which is left upon one after reading Sombart's book, one might almost fancy that proof had been actually produced that the Hebrews were the real supporters of modern culture.

[Page 7]

Sombart speaks of the "Culture of Capitalism", and endeavours to show how this culture rests preponderantly, or almost exclusively on the shoulders of the Jews. The perception, that humanity is extraordinarily indebted to the Jews with regard to Culture, has been vigorously and continuously propagated in more modern times, and may well have given rise to the opinion, which is widely held, that

Culture and Religion have come to us mainly from the Hebrews, and consequently that the other nations owe an everlasting debt of gratitude to this Oriental people. In fact, in many quarters, it is actually maintained that all progress proceeds from the Jews, and that Culture without Jews is unthinkable. Such notions are, however, no longer tenable at the present day, by reason of our extended insight into the most remote periods of national history. One must remember that highly developed systems of culture have come into being in lands, in which a Jew has never set foot; that great systems of culture even existed at a time when no such thing as a Jewish nation had put in an appearance in the history of the world. The discoveries, made at the ancient seats of the Egyptian, Babylonian, and Assyrian nations, testify to this. The Aztecs, and the Incas in Peru as well, attained to a high degree of culture, and yet they knew nothing about the Hebrews. The culture of the Chinese and the Japanese gradually unfolded itself for thousands of years without the Hebrews contributing in the slightest degree thereto, for even at the present day, the Jew is only to be found as an isolated individual in China and Japan.

The strongly developed racial feeling of these nations knows how to keep him at an arm's length. But, above all, what may perhaps be regarded as the highest and most exquisite blossom of culture, which humanity has ever brought to maturity – Grecian culture – developed at a time when Jewish influence was quite out of the question.

Thus, to hold up the Hebrew to universal admiration as the supporter of culture, is simply not admissible. On the other hand, it is conceded, that that, what is so commonly called "Culture", at once acquires an acceleration in pace, as soon as the Hebrews lay hands on it, and that, under the influence of this singular people, the external appearances of Culture develop in an astonishing manner.

[Page 8]

Only, at this stage, we ought to make a finer distinction, and not call "Culture", i.e., constructive work, what is really "Civilisation", i.e., a refinement or polishing-up of the mode of living. The increase and enhancement of the forms of life, which proceed under Jewish influence, affect preponderantly the externals of life. Trade and business increase, production receives a powerful stimulation, the circulation of money and the amassing of capital become more conspicuous than was formerly the case. Life seems to assume a richer and more luxurious aspect, and an impression of universal prosperity and augmentation of real property is created. All this, however, must be included in the conception of civilisation, whilst real culture, which is the cultivation and encouragement of the highest human capabilities, the improvement of organic and moral arrangement, and the deepening of religious feeling, is more or less disregarded. In fact, it appears that these deeper, cultural values actually suffer injury by the externalization of all existence.

The dynamic conformity to law throughout Nature is not to be evaded even in human life; too much on one side always causes a deficiency on the other. It is not possible to develop extraordinary powers externally, without incurring a loss in internal values. We shall therefore be obliged, in order to treat this matter conscientiously, to throw light upon the highly praised enhancement of culture by Hebrewdom from other points than Sombart has done, so that this obvious phenomenon can be viewed and comprehended as a whole.

[Page 9]

I.

Jewish Methods In the Economic Life.

The question, why the economic life flourishes wherever the Jews direct their footsteps, has not been answered by Sombart in a way which satisfies us. He is under obligation to us for important disclosures. We shall, to the best of our ability, present these as follow. The facts and phenomena, upon which light must be thrown, can be separated into groups, according to the points of observation:

1. The Hebrew enhances and accelerates the circulation of Money.

2. He mobilises slumbering values: lets loose balanced and reposing forces.

3. He practises "Raubbau'", (Predatory culture)* at the expense of the stored-up forces of Nature and Mankind.

At this juncture must also be taken into consideration:

4. The "Playing into one another's hands" (secret understanding) of the Hebrews.

5. The strange Morality.

1. The Hebrew enhances the circulation of Money, enlivens business.

The sound merchant of the old school held the opinion that his duty was Satisfactorily discharged, by satisfying the actual purchase-requirements of his customers. He allowed the latter to approach him of their own accord, and waited until they called upon him, believing that he had conformed in all respects to his business obligations, by procuring for the customer, at a suitable price, the goods which the latter required.

* Translator's note. It is very difficult to find in English a concise equivalent for the admirable German expression "Raubbau'".

"Predatory Culture" is, perhaps, the best.

[Page 10]

He regarded it as beneath his dignity to run after customers, or to entice them, by all manner of tricks, to buy from him; in fact, in olden times, conduct of this kind was regarded as unbecoming and quite unworthy of an honourable trader. Far less did it ever occur to him to talk a customer into buying some article, which the latter would not have bought of his own accord. Thus trade remained a peaceful, and not unduly exciting occupation, and still the customer got what he wanted.

The Hebrew introduced into these relations, a new tendency and a violent revolution. Wherever he invaded trade, he refused to adopt this quiet and peaceful method of satisfying requirements. He endeavoured to entice the customers by advantageous offers and promises of all kinds. Above all, he emphasised the cheapness of his goods, and knew well how to delude the purchaser, by suggestion, into imagining that, in this cheapness, the latter would find an enormous advantage.

He recommended his goods, loudly and publicly, by methods, which were formerly known and forbidden as being those of a mountebank, and which are now called advertising, and very soon brought the practice almost to the verge of an art.

Yes, and when all these means of attracting customers proved of no avail, he went and looked for them, not only by sending out circulars and price-lists, but personally, by pedlars, agents and travellers. Thus, he did not wait until the requirement arose, and the demand set in of its own accord; he created an artificial demand; he aroused requirement by persuasion, and by other means. In this manner, a new and alien trait was introduced into all business life. Commercial business activity now became a wild hunt for customers, for each tradesman sought to tear away the buyer from his rival.

Certainly all this resulted in a violent application of the spur to business life, and the exchange of commodities was accelerated and increased thereby, but this kind of activity was of less service to political economy, in its higher sense, than it was to another purpose. If it was the aim of sound economy solely to satisfy a genuine want, and to direct goods wherever the same were really required, the new way of proceeding aimed mainly at gathering up or "assembling" actual money.

[Page 11]

Trade, according to the new perception, was no longer a useful link in the chain of calm, constant economic development, but was rather a means to direct the circulating money as quickly as possible again into the hands of the trader.

It was not the transfer of goods, which was so important, but the fact that the transfer of goods gave the opportunity for getting hold of money.

Thus, extraction of money from the pockets of customers instead of satisfactorily meeting the need for commodities, now became the main purpose of trade. But trade forfeited thereby its proper and honourable character, and its former reputation as an important contributor to the well-being of the community.

One can only learn to understand correctly this particular tendency of the Hebrews, by considering their peculiar relations to their environment. The old-fashioned merchant was not particularly envious of his trade-competitors; his motto was, "Live and let live"; and he knew that if he conducted his business, honestly and conscientiously, that if he served his customers honourably and fairly, a portion of the universal volume of trade would fall to his share, through which his individual existence would be assured. The merchants of olden times did not feel themselves competitors with one another, to the extent which the modern ones do. They were not so numerous; and, through the guild privilege, each was assured of his particular market or sphere of activity. The mania to supplant one another did not force its way to the front, and was kept within bounds by the respect felt for the vocation.

A feeling of goodwill and of mutual tolerance – an attitude corresponding to the Christian view of life – prevailed amongst merchants and tradesmen, just as it did in other circles.

The attitude of the Hebrew towards this state of affairs was quite different. He came as a stranger into this kind of existence, which was a new world to him, as a supernumerary, whom nobody had summoned, and whom nobody desired to see. Moreover, he was not united to the native inhabitants of the land, either by the tie of blood, or by a common history, or by patriotism, or by religious and social views.

[Page 12]

He felt himself to be an alien, and regarded the others as strangers, who did not interest him; but he desired to force a place for himself amongst them by any and every means. He did not look upon other competitors, striving all around him, as being either entitled to live, or as compatriots. His view of life, derived from his religion, had taught him that his nation was something out of the ordinary, that it had been "chosen", and its holy books contained the promise that he should possess himself of all the riches in the world in order to rule over all other peoples. The "Nations of the World" were represented in the law of the Hebrew as strangers and as enemies. He had neither respect nor tolerance for them. All he cared about was to dispossess them, and to make them tributary to him. This is simply what stands written in the books of the Old Testament, which we also have accepted as "sacred books"; and it stands written still more distinctly in the laws, which Hebrewdom teaches within itself, but prudently conceals from the rest of humanity.

We shall return to these facts later on.

At all events, the Hebrew was not content to keep step with the other merchants, and to confine his attentions to those customers, who came to him of their own free will. He considered it as his right – yes, even as his duty towards himself and to his nation, to seize for himself as much as possible out of the total volume of trade, and to deprive his nonJewish competitors of as many customers as he could. He also recognised what a great advantage it was, to attract to himself as much as possible of the money in circulation, in order to obtain, by this means, power and mastery over the economic life.

This assiduity grew out of his natural disposition, for the sense of gain and the impulse towards self-enrichment have always been very pronounced in the Hebrews. The greed for Gold is an ancient and hereditary evil in the tribe of Judah. But one only half understands the situation, if one forms the opinion, that the Jew is actuated in his business operations solely by the desire for gain, or by the love of money.

[Page 13]

Certainly the Hebrew is fond of money; but the mere possession of the metal is not enough for him; he knows that behind the glittering gold lurks the secret also that the precious metal gives him power over others. In his case, the possession of money is not solely a means for leading an independent and luxurious existence, but is, at the same time, a means for exercising power; he will, by means of money, rule and oppress.

And, through his intense – one might almost say, artificially forced – business activity, by which he strives to bring back all the circulating money quickly into his hands again, he achieves something further. By gathering up money on all sides, by every means in his power, and by retaining it in his possession and allowing it to accumulate, the Hebrew knows how to cause a scarcity of money in the nation; and the scarcity of money brings him fresh custom – not indeed as a merchant, but as a money-lender.

If anybody understands how to bring back the money, which is circulating amongst the people, quickly into his own hands again, by enticing, for instance, in his capacity as merchant or tradesman, his customers to make purchases, for which there is no immediate necessity, he withdraws money from the “market”, and money at once becomes scarce if unforeseen wants put in an appearance. Whoever then finds himself in monetary difficulties, is compelled to apply to those, who have known how to attract all the money into their own hands.

And, in this way, commercial activity, which had been so violently stimulated, became simultaneously an auxiliary to the loan-monger and usurer. It was not chance, nor was it by any means the pressure of circumstances in former times, which made a money-lender of the Jew, but a carefully thought out system. Money is a very peculiar commodity, and whoever trades in money has a tighter grip on the economic life than he who trades in ordinary goods. For this reason, all trade, as far as Jews are concerned, is, strictly speaking, merely a means for gathering together or “assembling” money, again and again.

[Page 14]

For the Hebrew follows the money, which has been lent on loan, also with ever-watchful eyes, and knows well what precautionary measures to take, to ensure that it will soon find its way back into Jewish safes.

It is not disputed that the Jewish method of doing business produces a showy splendour, both in trade and traffic, in which everybody appears to be prospering. We often stand still, absolutely dazed by the precipitate development, which has overtaken all trade and traffic arrangements during the last few decades. But, – and we labour under no delusion in this respect – this blossom of external life, dazzling in all its splendour, is only produced by heavy sacrifice on the other side.

2. The Hebrew mobilises slumbering values, lets loose balanced and reposing forces.

I once knew a man, who could not behold any stately tree, either in garden or park, without indulging in an outburst, somewhat on the following lines;

"How crazy the people must be to allow a tree like that still to be standing! What an amount of capital is lying there locked up! What fine beams and planks could be sawn out of it!"

The man had Jewish blood in his veins, and gave vent to a feeling, which must be keenly alive in many Hebrews, although they do not venture to express it in such a barefaced manner. The Hebrew is incapable of allowing anything to rest in calm peace, which can be turned to some economic use. Instilled into his mind is the urgent impulse to make everything "Jiquid'', to convert everything into money, to "mobilise" everything.

And, on all sides, we see Hebrewdom, driven by this impulse, hard at work in order to scoop up with greedy hands the treasures of Nature and of Human Life. Certainly existence is enriched and broadened thereby, and civilisation is enlivened.

From the common economic point of view it has the appearance of being highly meritorious, when a forest, which has been standing for a hundred years in peace, slowly and laboriously growing up by virtue of the creative power in Nature, and has become a great potential source of value, that somebody should set to work with axes and circular saws to liquidate the reposing capital.

[Page 15]

Hundreds of men are employed to lay the trees low, and to cut up and transport the timber, and thus life springs up in the district; wages are paid, and sales are effected. Regarded from this point of view, the man, who "mobilises" these sleeping values, may well appear to be a benefactor to the neighbourhood where he provides useful work for so many hands. But, not only will the lover of nature be saddened by what has taken place; the serious economist will also be of a very different opinion. Certainly the forest is there, reduced at last to a form, in which it can be utilised by the community as building-timber and fire-wood.

The wise forester, however, goes to work with care and restraint, and does not fell any timber without making provision for afforesting an area equivalent to that, which has been cleared.

Or, at any rate, he only allows the mature trunks to be felled, and spares all the younger timber. The Hebrew obeys an entirely different principle – his true commercial principle: he clears the ground to the last sapling; the afforestation he leaves to others.

The above is an example of reality rather than of symbolism.

The Hebrews have actually laid low enormous stretches of primeval forest, not only in our Fatherland, but also in Russia and in Poland; by doing so, they have certainly given a stimulus to business and commercial intercourse, and have caused money to circulate, but the reverse side of this activity will perhaps only be appreciated to its full and disastrous extent by future generations. The cut-down forest certainly brings profit for the moment, but, for the more or less distant future, it means nothing less than impoverishment of the district – in many cases, actual devastation. The springs dry up all over the now bare surface; permanent drought sets in, and when heavy rains do come, they simply sweep away the valuable upper layers of soil. The extirpation of great forests means, accordingly, nothing less than the exhaustion of fertility, and the conversion into desert land of vast tracts of country. Italy and the Balkan States furnish a grave enough warning.

[Page 16]

As in the case of the forest, so does the Hebrew comport himself in other spheres of activity.

He is for ever intent upon mobilising or stirring up sleeping values, and bringing them into circulation, in order to derive an ostentatious and momentary benefit therefrom; but organic breadth of vision is completely wanting in this individual. He does not trouble to consider what the further consequence of this reckless and predatory method of proceeding on his part will be. This is quite in accordance with his nomadic nature. He does not feel himself in any manner linked to the soil; he forsakes the devastated territories, and seeks fresh profit elsewhere in the world. The conception of the Fatherland is altogether foreign to him, and, in this respect, he is true to his nature as a member of a desert and nomadic race.

3. The Hebrew piles his Predatory Culture at the expense of natural and human resources.

Once more, as in the case of the forest, the same fate befalls the treasures contained in the bosom of the earth. What has here been slowly formed in Nature's laboratory by processes, which have taken hundreds of thousands, or even millions of years, are dragged to the light of day with insatiable greed; it must take its part in enriching and adorning life. At first this sounds very plausible – but how long can it last? Careful economists are already asking uneasily how much longer the world's supply of coal will suffice to shield the human race against the ever-menacing forces of the cosmic cold. Certain geologists have spoken reassuring words: the world's coal supply is plentiful, and will suffice, at any rate, for many centuries, perhaps, even for three or four thousand years. The foresight of humanity ought to enable it to project its conscience across this span of time, for it will be our descendants, who will – even if it is after the lapse of thousands of years – raise bitter reproaches against us because we have squandered the irreplaceable treasures of the earth, greedily and blindly.

[Page 17]

And there are other treasures of the earth as well, which are not so plentiful as coal. The world's supplies of iron ore, which are nearly all known, as they can be discovered and marked down by means of the magnetic needle, have been subjected to close calculation with regard to their extent and richness; and the result is, that if we continue to use up iron in the same way, as we have been doing for the last few decades, all the iron-ore fields of the world will be exhausted in from 50– 60 years. And then what?

Whether such calculations prove true or not, they provide us with a glance into the future, which must arouse apprehension, and cause us to regard the lordly culture, of which we boast so readily today, in a very questionable light.

The Hebrews are certainly not the only ones who practise Predatory Culture at the expense of the treasures of the earth, but it can be maintained with justice, that it was that class of men, who introduced the principle of ruthless mobilisation of values and of pitiless money-making into our economic life.

And it is precisely that which Sombart wishes to demonstrate, or actually does demonstrate, whether he does so intentionally or not; the

Hebrew has made the principle of pitilessly carried out capitalisation supreme in the economic life, and it is not to be wondered at if others try to copy him – or rather, are compelled to do the same, in order to withstand the Jewish competition.

Not only do we squander these natural treasures, but we are dissipating another treasure as well, which finally is the most important of all, as far as culture is concerned. The mobilisation of the treasures of the earth, and the tremendous activity of economic life, which has risen to an almost morbid degree, impose a terrible strain upon man and his creative powers.

He may, perhaps, feel a pride in the results of his work, in the thousands of roaring and clattering machines, in the boldly executed constructions, with which he spans rivers, estuaries and mountain ravines, and in the ingenious technical appliances, which convey him with the speed of the wind across the face of the earth. But what does he run down and secure as booty or prize at the end of this wild pursuit? Generally only the loss of his best powers, and an early end to his days.

[Page 18]

Who can now refuse to recognise the fact that the harassing hunt after business, which characterises modern economic life, is rapidly leading to an exhaustion of mankind, and that the race itself, in spite of all the technical perfections of the external world, is slowly sinking, as far as its personal constitution and powers of accomplishment are concerned, i.e., is decaying steadily both physically and spiritually?

In this respect also, the modern economy is carrying on ruthlessly another method of Predatory Culture. Industrialism entices men from the country into the town, and consumes them. It is a well-known fact that the families, born in the towns, very soon fade away, and that they seldom extend to more than three generations, and that the large towns and the industrial areas can only maintain themselves by a constant influx of human beings from the rural districts. But even the reserve of human strength in the country, taken as a whole, is not inexhaustible. It already shows an alarming retrogression.

Sixty years ago, two thirds of the inhabitants of Germany lived in the country, and derived their livelihood from agriculture and from forestry, and only a third of the population lived in the towns. Today, the proportion is almost reversed. The rural population has now shrunk to 37 per cent of the total, and will no longer be able to make up the deficiency in the births amongst the 63 per cent of the population, who now dwell in the large towns, and in the industrial districts.

We see accordingly how the magnificence of modern culture can only be produced by the expenditure of powers, which cannot be revived. It requires but a few more decades of this mode of existence, and the German Nation will have used itself up; foreign national and racial elements will stream in from all sides, and make themselves comfortable in the bed, which we, in our excessive and suicidal diligence, have so carefully prepared for them.

A typical example of the fanatical pressure, which impels the Hebrew to mobilise all values, is furnished by his attack upon the "Fidei-Kommission", namely the indivisible family estates.

[Page 19]

The land-owning nobility, in particular, has frequently made the arrangement that the family estate shall descend undivided to the heir, in order to guard against the breaking-up and dispersion of the estate. It is of incalculable value, both for state and community, if, in this manner, strong, independent existences can be maintained; moreover, the community cannot suffer any detriment thereby. Notwithstanding this, the Jewish Press has, for years past, fiercely attacked this arrangement, as if it were an offence and an injury against the majority, and Parliament is overwhelmed, from the Jewish side, with motions to do away with the "Fidei-Kommission", as if the eternal happiness of the whole nation depended upon this. The innate hatred felt by the Jew towards the nobility plays, in this respect, no small part. The Jew wishes to see this nobility destroyed, which presumes, both by breeding and tradition, to be something out of the ordinary, while the "chosen people", according to his opinion, alone possess a claim to pretensions of this kind. Do not the Jews, with predilection, refer to themselves as the "natural aristocracy of mankind"?

Moreover, this aversion to the "Fidei-Kommission", (the indivisible family estates) is only the old Hebrew urgency to mobilise values expressing itself afresh: there must not be anything durable or constant: everything must be cut up and handed over to speculation. – The new revolutionary government, directed by Jews, has no more urgent policy than that of breaking up all the "Fidei-Kommission", and of prohibiting the formation of any new family estates. Who can compute today the harm which will be caused by such a policy? The undermining of the economic foundations must also make itself felt in the social and intellectual structure of society. Genuine men of nobility will become scarcer and scarcer: the nobility has already, in many respects, degenerated, and become degraded by the intrusion of the Jewish money- and business-spirit. The Jewish principle of life drags mankind back from the heights, which it has scaled. The final result is: universal vulgarisation.

[Page 20]

We hear the ready answer: but wealth has increased enormously!

Have we not collected huge quantities of capital, which are a sufficient guarantee for the future? In this respect also the modern idea of economy arrives at a fateful and most erroneous conclusion. Even Sombart represents the situation as if the Hebrews brought riches with them wherever they went, and were continually producing new wealth. Even if we understand under the expression "wealth", merely the gold and silver treasure of the earth, it certainly cannot be maintained that these are increased by the Hebrew and his economic activity.

We have already seen that his art consists in collecting and re-collecting these treasures into his own hands, as quickly as he can. But the Gold and the Silver in their totality form only an insignificant portion of the riches of the nation. What we call capital does not generally consist of coined metal.

Today we reckon also as capital, landed property, such as cultivated fields, forests, buildings etc. But the Hebrews certainly do not increase this kind of property either.

There is, however, another kind of capital, which plays the most important role of all in modern political economy: this is the Loan Capital those sums, which are lent out in return for the payment of fixed rates of interest. And it cannot be denied that the Hebrew possesses an extraordinary talent for increasing this particular kind of capital.

Let us, first of all, make it quite clear to ourselves of what such capital really consists. Whoever owns a million marks, which brings him in interest, does not possess this million marks in the form of gold and silver coins, lying in his safe, but has lent the million marks out on loan. But even the borrower- the debtor to the man who owns the money - no longer holds the actual money; he has passed it on further in the course of his business. All that is left to him of it is - the obligation to pay interest. He has taken over for himself - and generally also for his descendants for illimitable time – the duty of paying to the creditor, certain sums of money as interest, at certain stated intervals.

[Page 21]

Out of all this the fact next emerges, that an equally great debt, on the other side, faces this sum of Loan Capital. Whoever is in a position to call his own a million marks of Loan Capital, and draws interest from the same, must hold other people as his debtors to the extent of a million marks. And thus arises the peculiar equation: the more Loan Capital there is here, the more Debts there are there. An increase of capital of this nature means, in reality, nothing else than an increase of debt.

Loan Capital thus consists of acknowledgment of debt, and of obligation to pay. It takes visible shape in the form of mortgage-deeds, bonds, shares, original or founder-shares, rent charges and similar devices. And, if we boast today that the number of rich people has increased enormously, that millions and thousands of millions are accumulated in the hands of single individuals, we must not forget that the debts and obligations of other people have increased in equal measure.

It is accordingly a bold assumption to maintain, that the general welfare of the nations is promoted by the increase of capital of this kind, i.e. Loan Capital. Whoever speaks of modern Wealth ought, if he is conscientious, to speak at the same time of the monstrous nature of the modern system of creating indebtedness. In whatever direction we look, we see an enormous development of this creation of debt; in the kingdom, in the province, in the parish, in the business, in the family – all are carried on by means of debts. The registered mortgages on land throughout the German Empire are computed at 60 – 70 thousand million marks* (three thousand to three thousand five hundred million pounds sterling).

It is a very remarkable and significant fact that we have no statistics whatever concerning this so important question of political economy, while we are overwhelmed with statistics on all other matters.

* According to Jewish computation (v. Gwinner in the Prussian Upper House) the capital value of the land in the German Empire amounts to close upon 300 thousand million marks (Fifteen thousand million pounds sterling) and, according to other authorities, 220–250 thousand million marks (eleven thousand to twelve thousand five hundred million pounds sterling). Certainly, in most districts, the debts on the land are higher than 25 p.c.

[Page 22]

If the above-mentioned sum of debt is approximately correct, it simply means that the nation has to find something like 3000 million marks (one hundred and fifty million pounds sterling) every year in order to pay the burden of interest, placed upon the ground, composing the Fatherland. Who, in the last analysis, provides this sum of money? It is simply the working and productive class of the citizens: the peasant, the craftsman and the workman. These are the powers, which create productive values, and who must, by the excess of their labour, produce the burdens of interest in order to satisfy the owners of Loan Capital.

If we reckon that there are 15 million working-men in the German Empire capable of production, a yearly impost of 200 marks (ten pounds sterling) is laid upon each of them in order to satisfy the owners of Loan Capital. That this crushing impost is not consciously perceived, is simply due to the fact that it is split up and distributed in such a way, that it is almost impossible to check or trace it, and that all kinds of roundabout ways and tricks are utilised, which make it quite impossible for the ordinary man to discover the source of his misery. The Loan Capital, which burdens our land, sucks in its interest by raising the rents of tenements, workshops and business premises, by increasing the price of food-stuffs and other necessary commodities, and by other similar indirect methods. Thus, the productive worker is not directly conscious of this impost, but feels only an inexplicable pressure on all his business activity. He sees that, in spite of all his effort and industry, the fruits of his toil disappear out of his hands, without his being able, at the same time, to discover any satisfactory explanation of this. In spite of all his toil, he cannot make any advance and prosper, becomes discontented with his lot, and vents his resentment in all directions, mostly against those, who are quite innocent of his hard fate. He complains about the high taxes and rates, which form only an insignificant particle when compared with that impost – the interest on Loan Capital.

[Page 23]

He grumbles about the increasing cost of living, of rent, of food, of clothing, and of other things, including "bread-usurers" and bad government, and does not seem to have even the faintest idea, that it is just this invisible impost of the interest on Loan Capital, which is oppressing him by making everything dear.

Thus, this modern system of creating capital, by casting an intolerable burden on the entire national life, produces universal oppression and consequently discontent, which is causing an ever-growing resentment between the various classes, which compose the community, without the oppressed people being at all clear as to where the source of the oppression really is.

It is not very probable that the Hebrews invented that work of art – the loaning-out of capital against interest; it is quite likely that it was known and practised before their time.

It is quite certain, however, that they first introduced this branch of business to us in Germany, and, supported by the prohibition against practising usury, enforced by the Christian Church against its members, promoted and developed it to an extraordinary extent. Owing to their peculiar dexterity in always attracting to themselves again the money, which is in circulation, they know how to produce a constant shortage of money amongst the people. In this manner they compel the productive classes to borrow, and to continue borrowing.

The money, which has been gradually collected by commerce and other means, leaves the hands of the Hebrew, for the most part, only as Loan Capital, and continuously creates for him fresh circles of people, pledged to pay him tribute.

Is it then really such a great blessing for a nation if it can be shown, that the Hebrews, living in their midst, possess thousands of millions of marks in the shape of Loan Capital, for which the productive class have to find the interest? What does the saying now mean: wherever the Jews turn, there appear new riches, new capital? Should one not, before all other things, state emphatically: there arise, to a terrifying extent, fresh debts?

[Page 24]

It is not the real wealth of the nations, which is increased by the Jews, but their debts and obligations, which, under the deceitful name of “mobile capital”, accumulate until they amount to sums of incredible magnitude, but which are in reality, only a phantom possession – an imaginary value.

We read, with aversion, the descriptions of the persecutions of the Jews, which are said to have taken place in the Middle Ages: if these were, in all cases, as many people imagine, can be left an open question; at any rate, one ought to explain conscientiously, what led up to these persecutions, and what was the real cause of the same. We can read, in every record, that it was by no means a religious hatred, which incensed the citizens against the Jews, because at all times and in all countries, a remarkable tolerance has been displayed towards the religious rites of the Jews, some of which rites are of a very peculiar nature. No one has prohibited their noisy method of praying; no one has disturbed their Sabbath and Passover festivals. Nobody has prohibited even their Purim, their festival of revenge, which they still celebrate annually, with unquenchable thirst for revenge, in recollection of the massacre of 75,000 Persian enemies of the Jews, by the direction of the minister Mordecai more than 2,000 years ago. What really incensed the people against the Jews were the insatiable hunger for interest, and the unchristian like usury of the latter; by reason of this diabolical greed for money, which stopped at nothing, this slinking, alien race became so repugnant to the ordinary German man, that he considered the Jews capable of anything.

As has been already stated, during the time when the influence of the Church was predominant (from the 11th till the 18th century) Christians were forbidden to practise usury; only the Hebrew was allowed to do this. Thus it naturally came about that everyone, who wanted to borrow money, was obliged to go to the Jews. According to the law, the Hebrews were aliens and on sufferance, and their sojourn, in either town or district, was only permitted when a tax ("Jew-tribute") had been paid to the ruling prince or potentate; but it was precisely

[Page 25]

this arrangement, whereby the mild or stern treatment of the Jews depended essentially on the attitude of the ruling house, which relieved the situation to an extraordinary degree for the Jews living in the Empire, which was, at that time, split up politically to an endless extent. Generally speaking, the legislation was very considerate, and allowed the Hebrew to devote himself wholeheartedly to his favourite occupation, viz traffic in Money, and to claim unheard-of rates of interest for his loans. A rate of interest of 30 – yes, even of 50 and 60 per cent per annum, was already known from the 12th to the 15th century, and was so well-established during the 16th and 17th centuries, that it was regarded as nothing out-of-the-way.

Under these circumstances, and owing to the scarcity as well as to the extraordinary fluctuations in the value of money throughout that period, it was an easy matter for the Hebrew always to collect all the money again into their hands, and to force the remaining citizens to raise fresh loans.* A particular trick facilitated the obtaining of an exorbitant rate of interest. Even when the rate of interest was moderate, the debtor had, for the most part, to pledge himself to pay back his debt on a fixed date by weekly or monthly payments of interest.

* "At the end of the 14th century, the social position of the Jews deteriorated, chiefly on account of their arrogance and usuriousness. Up till then, they had been respected, were qualified to own landed property, and were appreciated as being necessary for the development of the towns. They had, in some instances, even found an entry into the municipal bodies, for instance at Cologne and Worms. In many towns, the highest admissible rate of interest reached $86\frac{2}{3}$ per cent for the year! Ludwig of Bavaria (1314-1347) decided, as a particular favour for the citizens of Frankfort, that the Jewish rate of interest was to be restricted to $32\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Since the canonical prohibition against the lending of money for interest was enforced sternly and universally against Christians, and the cloisters no longer loaned out money, the money-business remained almost exclusively in the hands of the Jews for a long period." (Durr and Klett) History of the World II, page 139) – "Thus a regular monopoly of usury by the Jews established itself, which was only broken into in the 18th century, to the extent that, towards the close of that century, it was permitted to charge generally a 5% rate of interest."

(Rich. Schröder: "Deutsche Rechtsgeschichte" II, 15, [German History of Law II, 15].

[Page 26]

In case he was unable to keep to the appointed date, he was bound by the terms of his bond, to pay double the rate of interest from that time onward; often indeed, the whole debt was doubled. The well-meaning debtor, who had the best intention of paying off his debt at the appointed time, entered into such contracts with a light heart, in the certainty that, at the appointed date, money, from other quarters, would be at his disposal. The Hebrew, however, who had a complete understanding with his fellow-tribesmen, and knew accurately what call there was for money, and how much there was in circulation, took good care that his debtor did not get the expected money at the appointed time, and thus he compelled the latter to accept the new and still more onerous conditions. The Hebrew only granted an extension of the term on the condition that his claims, both with regard to interest and capital, should be increased, and as, thanks to the cooperation of Jewish friends, of which we have already spoken, delay in the repayment of the debt was frequently repeated, the Jew was more successful then, than now, in entangling, by means of a comparatively small loan, a whole family in the bondage of debt throughout their lives, or even in expelling them from their house and land.

Thus there is nothing strange in the fact that, already from the time of Charlemagne, unceasing complaints about the Jewish usurer were directed both to the civil and clerical authorities.

The earlier peasant-insurrections also, were not due to the "Priests" and to the Nobility, but to money-lending Jewry; for example, the Peasants' Rising at Gotha in 1391, and the Peasants' Rising at Worms in 1431. Later – when the Jews had drained the extravagant and quarrelsome nobility of their riches, and the latter had made an alliance with the clergy to oppress poor "Hans Karst" *, with tithes and compulsory labour, the peasants turned against all three tormentors.

[Page 27]

In 1450 the cup-bearer, Erasmus von Erbach, an ancestor of the present Princes von Erbach (in the Odenwald), who personally was quite prosperous, raised his voice thus against the Jews:

"The poor man is robbed and flayed by the Jews to such an extent that it has become intolerable, and may God have mercy on him. The Jewish usurers settle down, even in the smallest villages, and when they lend five gulden, they take six-fold security and take interest upon interest, and yet again interest, so that the poor man loses all that he possesses."

How well founded this complaint was, is proved by the testimony of all contemporaries.

Elsewhere it is stated that, "Jewdom sits on the necks of the citizen and of the poor man, and is the cause of the rapidly increasing poverty'. The Jews are referred to as "vultures", who "do not desist until they have consumed the marrow in the bones, and reduced the citizen to beggary". (Petition of the Frankfort citizens June 10th 1612). Sombart also mentions in his conscientiously collected material a number of similar expressions of opinion, taken from the same period, which confirm what has been said above.

Thus, it was not religious hatred, which incensed the people against the Jews, but the actual plundering of the masses by a system of charging an immoderate rate of interest. The wealth which the Jews "brought into a land", was thus of very doubtful value. It was a kind of wealth, which had a dazzling appearance in certain places, whilst everywhere else it produced only poverty and misery.

Thus: the Hebrews did not create new values in the shape of goods, and consequently, actual new wealth; they merely understood, in a masterly fashion, how to obtain possession of the prosperity of other people; they did not produce any new possession, but only brought about a change of possession.

What they produced was merely an appearance of wealth, which in reality consisted only of the debts of those people, who were not Jews.

[Page 28]

Hl.

Particular Business Tactics of the Jew.

The commercial practices of the Hebrew require that more light should be directed upon them. It is conceded that the Jew, in matters of business, displays great dexterity, and has at his disposal a particular method of operation, which procures for him the admiration of extensive circles of people.

Many are inclined to ascribe an extremely high degree of cleverness to the Hebrew, because he knows very often how to give a particular turn to his business machinations, which surprises and confounds all concerned. As soon as we look more closely into the matter, and ascertain upon what principles these business measures are founded, we learn to think less highly of the renowned cleverness of the Hebrew. It becomes a matter of a number of tricks, carefully guarded and transmitted by tradition amongst the Hebrews, and with which this dexterous race of traders overreach every man, who thinks in a natural manner. A short story out of actual life will give us an idea of what goes on in this sphere of activity.

A well-to-do elderly married couple had decided to dispense with their footman, and consequently with the latter's livery as well. The lady of the house offered the garments for sale. A Jew appeared punctually at the appointed time, in order to inspect the livery. After carefully examining the same, he made an offer of 50 marks. The lady was astonished that the dealer was able to offer such a high price, as the suit could not have cost much more, and was, moreover, a kind of clothing – being a uniform with particular badges – for which there would naturally be very little demand. She thought at once that she could do a good business with him, and hurried away to fetch an armful of discarded clothing, which she offered to him as well. The Hebrew examined everything, and offered quite respectable prices.

Apparently he could make use of it all. The lady of the house, delighted with the prospect of unloading her wardrobe in this way of unnecessary ballast, continued to fetch more clothing.

[Page 29]

The Hebrew chose out most of this as well, and laid it in a great heap together. The only article, which did not find approval in the eyes of the Hebrew, was a fashionably cut, light summer-suit, which the master of the house had only worn once, and had then laid aside, as it did not take his fancy. The Jew threw this on one side with the remark:

“this is out of fashion, and nobody will buy it’.

When he had laid all the remaining articles of clothing together, and had offered quite a reasonable price for the same, the old lady asked him again to take the summert-suit; she wanted to see the last of it as the sight of it annoyed her husband. Finally the Hebrew agreed to take the suit for 5 marks. The lady accepted this offer, because of all the other clothing, she had been able to dispose of. The entire sale amounted to about 200 marks.

“T have not got so much money with me’, said the Jew, politely, “because I was not prepared to buy so many things. I will, however, have the clothing fetched away shortly, and will send the money at the same time. I will leave a deposit of 5 marks, and may as well take the summer-suit with me so that I do not make the journey empty-handed”.

With this the Hebrew took his departure, and, up to the present moment, has not returned.

The worthy lady related the episode to me herself, and was quite at a loss for an explanation. The Jew must have been taken ill, or something unforeseen must have happened, as otherwise he would have returned, "for he made such a favourable impression". I am afraid that I hurt the lady's feelings, for I had to laugh in her face, before I proceeded to explain the incident to her as follows:

"the summer-suit was the only object of any value to the Jew, and consequently the only thing, which he was willing to buy. The other articles of clothing he had never intended to buy; only, in order to gain your confidence, he offered such good prices. Your confidence once gained, you did not observe how he was overreaching you with regard to the good summer-suit. He accomplished his object, and will take very good care not to let himself be seen again'.

It took a considerable time before I was able to convince the good lady of all this; she then exclaimed with astonishment and almost with admiration:

"Gracious me, what a clever fellow he is!" – "No, madam'', I replied, "that is not real cleverness; it is a mode of operation, partly inherited, partly the result of instruction. It is an ancient receipt, according to which the Jews have conducted their operations for centuries – even for thousands of years."

[Page 30]

It is the "arf" in business of deceiving one's opponent as to the value of the goods, and as to one's real intentions. I will relate to you a short story of a similar kind, which will make quite plain to you how this mode of operating proceeds, according to a certain pattern and custom.

A Jewish lad, who could not have been more than 10 or 11 years old, was accustomed to go from village to village, buying up hare and rabbit-skins. He was instructed what he should pay for the wares, and soon acquired such knowledge of the business by constant practice, that he was able to carry it on to the satisfaction of his father. A peasant, from whom he had bought several rabbit-skins, produced also the fur of a marten [related to minks, weasels, ferrets, etc.]. The young Jew held it to his nose, and said contemptuously:

"This is only the skin of a stinking marten, and is not worth anything''.

The peasant, who understood little about such matters, urged the young Jew to take the fur of the marten as well, and finally the little business-man purchased it out of pure compassion for five half-pence! As soon as the young rascal had reached home, he called out:

"Father, look what a stroke of business I have done! I have bought a valuable marten-fur for five half-pence!"

— and he related what had happened. A neighbour, who, unobserved, had witnessed the episode from the window of a stable, made it known. Even this diminutive man of business already possessed the "cleverness" to speak disparagingly of the most valuable goods in order to deceive the seller with regard to the real value, and thus to enable himself to buy them up at a very cheap rate.

Anybody who has once thoroughly grasped the mode of operation, which has been systematically made use of in these cases, need not express any great astonishment as to the measure of "cleverness" required. It is always the same trick. The Hebrew, who has lived for thousands of years by dealing, and by overreaching other men, has developed, in this direction, a cunning and superior tactic. He knows that the desire — the demand, causes the price to rise. Whoever allows it to be seen that he would like to buy certain wares, or, that he is urgently in need of the same, will soon tempt the seller to demand a higher price. And, on the contrary, whoever offers his wares in a pressing manner, and allows it to be seen that he must get rid of the same at all costs, probably because he is in urgent need of money, has to put as cheerful a face on the matter as he can, when advantage is taken of his situation to reduce the price to the utmost.

[Page 31]

The old saying: "Supply and Demand fix the price'', has a certain justification — so long as upright and honest merchants are concerned. Today, we know that Supply and Demand can be artificially produced, simply to influence the price. And the Jew "runs", or carries on the most insignificant business in accordance with these sagacious measures, just as if he were operating, on a large scale, on the Stock Exchange. He knows how to deceive the other side as to his real intentions: he pretends that there is Demand, when he knows that, in reality, the Supply is more than sufficient, and also the reverse.

The Hebrew, who goes to the Produce Exchange, under the necessity of buying several waggon-loads of wheat, because he has contracted to deliver this amount to a mill, takes very good care to conceal his real intention. He assumes an attitude of complete indifference; and, if anyone offers him wheat, he replies, shrugging his shoulders:

"Wheat? I have enough wheat.

Do you want to buy any?"

And, as all the other Jewish business people present, who, perhaps, also want to buy wheat, assume the same attitude, as if by some secret understanding, and behave as if they had no need whatever of wheat, but wanted, on the contrary, to sell it, they create the impression that there is a superfluity of wheat; thus, they force the price down, and succeed in buying the wheat cheaply.

A simple or open-natured farmer, on the contrary, who has gone to the Produce Exchange, in order to get rid of his produce, because he needs the money urgently to pay the interest for the impending quarter, will at once offer his wheat eagerly.

But, strange to say, he encounters cold refusal on all sides.

And the same thing happens to all the other sellers; Supply preponderates, and the prices fall. Our farmer now returns to the first Hebrew, to whom he had offered his wheat, and who, in reality, urgently needs wheat, and the latter appears at last to relent, and says with apparent generosity:

"Now, as you are an old business friend of mine, I will relieve you of your wheat, but only at a price, which is 2 marks (2 shillings) under the current price"

– that is 2 marks cheaper than the official price, quoted for that day on the Exchange.

In the end the farmer is glad to have found a purchaser at any price, and is secretly grateful to the Hebrew for having purchased his wheat out of sheer good nature. Several days later, when the supplies have been, for the greater part, bought up by the Hebrews, one notices a marked rise in the prices.

Business has been carried on in this manner, at the markets and on the exchanges, for decades and for centuries, without that simple section of humanity – the producers – perceiving what is going on; they – the producers – have always all the toil and disadvantage, the Hebrew dealer all the benefit. And this benefit or gain, on occasions, mounts up to millions. One example of this will suffice, compared with which, the so-called “Bread-Usury” of the Agrarians, about which the Jews and their hangers-on, especially the Social Democrats, are always crying out, is mere child’s play.

In the year 1892, the corn-merchants Cohn and Rosenberg, supported by God only knows how many of their friends behind the scenes – the Chawrusse – by buying up on a gigantic scale, and then withholding from the market all available supplies of rye, produced such a shortage of this indispensable food-stuff, that the price of rye rose, in a few months, from 140 to 290 marks. They then “unloaded”, and “earned” by this business, in a very short time, about 18 million Marks (£900,000).

Most of our newspapers and of our so-called “Liberals” – the friends of the people – had not a single word of abhorrence or even of disapprobation for this “Bread Usury” according to the Old Testament pattern.

The game is made much easier if the Hebrews have a secret understanding, that is to say, if they have consulted beforehand, amongst themselves, about the condition of the Market, and have decided what the attitude of the other side is likely to be. Still any such understanding is scarcely necessary, for all Jewish business-people respond to one and the same instinct, are schooled in one and the same tactic, and act as one without any previous arrangement.

[Page 33]

The “Killing” or “Slaughtering” Principle.

There is another mode of operation, by which the Hebrews secure an advantage in business, and to which they are indebted for their present dominating position. Again, an instance of this mode of operation will make the same clear to everyone.

Take, for example, a town in which there have existed for a long time ten separate businesses of the same kind or trade, and all of about the same size. The owners of these businesses have confined themselves, each to his or her circle of more or less regular customers, in accordance with the principle, "Live and let live", and have all been able to make a tolerable, and even comfortable living. Suddenly this old harmony is disturbed. One of these businesses changes hands, and the new owner, a man with a large amount of capital, or with extensive credit, brings a new business principle along with him. He calculates thus: What has been formerly sold by ten businesses, can be just as well sold by one business. I will make it my task to attract all the customers in the town for this kind of business into my shop. This will not be difficult. I have sufficient money at my disposal to live comfortably, even if I make no profit whatever for several years. I will therefore offer all my goods at prices which show no profit whatever, i.e., at cost price. The result of this will be that all the customers in the town for this class of business will be attracted to my shop.

This business-man with the "New Principle" orders a new price-list to be printed, and sends it to every customer in the neighbourhood. He has reduced the prices so much below what used to be customary in the trade, that all purchasers are attracted without fail to the new shop.

The remaining nine businesses or shops now either lose their customers, or are compelled to reduce their prices correspondingly. As in either case no profit is made, those, who have no means to fall back upon, must sooner or later give up the contest. Others, who may possess enough capital to support them for the remainder of their lives, remark that it is useless and stupid to continue to carry on a business, in which there is no profit.

[Page 34]

These simply discontinue business. Others again, try to keep pace with the new competitor, but only see what means they possess, gradually disappear, and they also, sooner or later, are compelled to retire from the ruinous struggle.

Thus, after a few years, the man with the "New Principle" remains the master of the situation, and now that he is without competitors, and is practically a monopolist on his own territory, endeavours to make up for the loss, which he has undergone, by gradually raising the prices, until finally the customers are at a greater disadvantage than they had ever been before.

This is no principle of life; but is, on the contrary, a principle of destruction or death; it carries on business for the mere sake of business, that is to make money; it does not ask what becomes of the other people. Here we are, face to face, with a tendency, which places acquisition before life itself; for business and political economy are, in the last analysis, only of importance when regarded as a means for preserving life.

The supreme law of political economy should always culminate in the question: how can we arrange matters economically so that the people shall secure the maximum benefit in body and mind? A political economy, which certainly enables riches to be accumulated, but which, at the same time, causes the people to degenerate both physically and morally, cannot be regarded as ideal.

Seen from a purely business point of view, it may appear to be an improvement when material advantages are secured by concentrating all the trade into a single business. Certainly many purely economic advantages may be attained by the uniting of the scattered individual branches of any trade or business into one large central establishment;

at any rate, the concentration of the management effects a saving in space, time and energy. Any person, however, who does not recognise business advantage as the supreme aim of life, but asks, on the contrary: what becomes of the people concerned? – such a person must have the gravest doubts as to the beneficial influence of such a business development as that described above; he would feel himself compelled to ask: what has become of the nine families, who have been thrown out of action by the “New Principle?” And he will then have to confess, that this “New Principle”, however profitable it may seem at the first glance, leads finally to the expropriation and impoverishment of extensive classes of people, and thus, by its ultimate results, becomes a curse to the national life.

[Page 35]

The man with the “New Principle”, of whom we have just spoken, is not necessarily a Hebrew; others can also adopt this business method as their guiding principle. But, as a matter of fact – at any rate in our European affairs – it is almost invariably the Hebrew, who has introduced this principle. By so doing he has certainly created a great deal, which corrupts the eyes of many by its dazzling appearance, as, for instance, the great retail shops; but what kind of fruit this sort of development will produce in the more distant future of our nation is a question, which is well-warranted, and also very serious.

Another example, taken out of everyday life, occurs to me at this moment; it illustrates, in an allegorical manner, the action or operation of the Hebrew on the community.

For a great many generations there had been a number of small mills on a little river in Posen. There was not always sufficient water in the river at all seasons of the year to keep the mills working regularly; but one of the mills, on the upper part of the river, possessed a reservoir of considerable size, in which water could be stored up to provide for times of drought, when the sluices could be opened according to requirements. When the upper miller had water enough to work the mill for a day, or even for half a day, he started his mill, and thus the motive water flowed down regularly to all the mills situated below.

There was no written law to regulate the use of this water; the practical requirements and common sense of the owners sufficed to maintain this arrangement to the complete satisfaction of all concerned.

One day, however, a disturbing element crept into the harmony, which had so long prevailed amongst the milling industry along this particular stream. The upper mill, together with the reservoir, passed into new hands. Whether it was that the new owner did not understand much about his business, or did not make himself agreeable to his customers, in short, the old customers gradually deserted the upper mill, and went to the other mills, lower down the stream.

[Page 36]

This annoyed the new owner, and he did his utmost to disturb the business of his neighbours. One means of offence he had always at his disposal, and that was his reservoir. He no longer allowed the water to run off, at regular intervals, but stored it up for days, and even for weeks, to the utmost capacity of the reservoir. Then, he would suddenly release the water by opening all the sluices, generally at night or on a Sunday, so that the accumulated water rushed down the stream with great force. The mills, on the lower part of the river, could make little or no use of this sudden head of water, and were obliged,

as they did not possess any reservoirs for storing the water, to open their floodgates, and to allow this superfluous water to flow uselessly away. Any methodical management of the lower mills was thus rendered impossible. The injured parties complained in vain to the local and other authorities; they could obtain no redress because there was no law, which compelled the miller, on the upper part of the stream, to let the water run off at regular intervals.

The mills, on the lower reaches of the stream, would most certainly have been ruined by these spiteful tricks, if chance had not put a sudden stop to them. On one occasion, after a heavy rain-fall, the upper miller stored up the water to such an extent, and then let it rush through the sluices so suddenly, that a regular inundation ensued, which caused considerable damage to the embankments, dams and machinery of the lower mills. Now, at last, there was cause to take legal action against this disturber of the peace to force him to desist, and to make him pay compensation for the damage, which he had brought about.

Also, in this case, it does not necessarily follow that the disturber of the peace was bound to be a Hebrew; but as a matter of fact, he was; and, one is entitled to say, that the example given is typical of the onslaught made by the Hebrew race upon our economic life. The organic connection of economic examples, which results from the love of order, innate in the Aryan element, and from a voluntary adjustment to the harmony of life, which instills common-sense, and is supported besides by a moral feeling of duty and a respect for the respect of other men, collapses immediately when the Hebrew puts in an appearance.

The hitherto quiet and regular development of business relations suffers a considerable disturbance in all directions, as soon as this Oriental stranger, with his strange principles, and in whom the sense for social harmony is completely wanting, interferes with the economic life. He displays an utter disregard for others, and pursues, only and always, his private advantage. By the ruthless manipulation of this principle, he has become everywhere the destroyer of the economic life.

[Page 37]

He checks the even flow of development, creates "corners", produces artificial shortage and superfluity, and knows how to make profit out of both. Thus, in the economic life, he is nothing less than a disturber of the peace, a revolutionary and an anarchist.

[Page 38]

IV.

The International Connection and Secret
League of the Hebrews.

Amongst the various causes of the tremendous advance of the Jews, special emphasis must be laid upon one of the most important – the way in which they play into one another's hands internationally. The Jewish success can be attributed, in a large measure, to the cooperation of many in conformity with a principle of unity.

The House of Rothschild stands, before the eyes of all, as the most striking example of this, and is testimony at the same time to the avalanche-like growth of the property, which is strictly confined in Jewish ownership, and which plays the chief part in sucking dry the national prosperity, not only of entire Europe, but also of most other countries.

1. The Rothschilds.

The role of the great millionaires, who control the economic life of America, has been played in Europe, until quite recently, almost exclusively by the House of Rothschild with its five branches in Paris, London, Frankfort on the Main, Vienna and Naples.* The Rothschilds, however, can only be compared with the former, i.e., the American millionaires so far as their actual riches are concerned, and not with regard to their economic position.

* The founder of this house, with its world-wide connections, was Mayer Anselm (Amschel) Rothschild at Frankfort on the Main (1743-1812).

He had five sons, of whom Anselm (1773-1855) took over the management of the Frankfort House, Salomon Mayer 1774 – 1855) that of the Vienna House, Nathan Mayer (1777 – 1836) that of the London House. Karl (1788–1855) that of the House at Naples, and Jacob (James) Rothschild (1792 – 1868) that of the Paris House.

[Page 39]

The money-princes of America are always striving to utilise their gigantic fortunes for the further economic development of their country; the Rothschilds, on the contrary, compose a cosmopolitan company, without any country of its own, devoted to the mere acquisition of money, and which lives solely from the “financing” of the productive power of others. And, in order to ply this business on as great and as safe a scale as possible, the House of Rothschild has devoted particular attention to that chronic want of money, which is displayed by the Governments of the various countries. For the last 50 years, scarcely a single national loan of any importance has been negotiated and concluded without the Rothschilds; they have their fingers on the pulse of every exchange, and no one knows better than they how to skim the cream off all important economic operations.

If one was desirous of writing an appropriate description of the various influences, which the Rothschilds exercise on our economic life, and upon our politics, the material would fill volumes. In this case a mere indication must suffice, and reference must be made to other books. Even in Sombart’s work there is something on the subject. The so-called “Germanicus-Broschtren” (pamphlets) published during the years 1880–1888 by G. Richter at Frankfort on the Main, contain most instructive matter. Also F. v. Scherb:

“Geschichte des Hauses Rothschild” (History of the House of Rothschild) Berlin 1892.

“Germanicus” is evidently a well-informed judge of all matters relating to the Exchanges, and particularly so of the Jewish fraternity of Frankfort, and he lays bare relentlessly the fraudulent machinations of the great Jewish firms. But although some of these pamphlets passed through several large editions the voice, which spoke, therein died away, completely unheard in authoritative circles, and has not led to the slightest proceeding against the systematic plundering of the people, which takes place on the Stock Exchanges – a proof of the terrible ban, which Jewry has already cast over our public life. Nothing which runs counter to Jewish interests can any longer obtain publicity.

[Page 40]

If Social Democracy were a genuine movement of the people, it would find, in this respect alone, its most urgent call to come to grips with the real robbers of the nation; but the genuine friend of the people learns to his astonishment, that the apparent representatives of the Proletariat extend their hands protectingly over the machinations of the Stock Exchange, and march, arm in arm, with the very men, who arrange how the people are to be deceived. With what notorious assiduity the leaders of the Proletariat have earned their title, "The Truncheon-Guard of the Jews'", can be learnt from the fact, which has never been challenged, that during all the incendiary destruction, which took place at the time of the Paris Commune in 1870, the only property, which remained completely unharmed, was that of Mr. Rothschild.

Further material for the chapter on the Rothschilds and their companions is to be found in the writings of Otto Glagau: "Der Borsen-und Griindungsschwindel in Berlin" (The Stock Exchange and Establishment swindle in Berlin) and also "in Germany" (1877).

Old Meyer Anselm (Amschel) Rothschild laid the foundation of his fortune in Frankfort on the Main, as is known, with the capital of the former Landgraf and later Kurfurst, William I of Hesse who, during the time of the Napoleonic wars (1806-1813), handed over the whole of his fortune, amounting to 12, or, according to other authorities, to 21 million thalers, and the whole of which had been acquired by the sale of soldiers to other powers, partly by his father, and partly by himself, to the Frankfort money-man at 2 per cent (some say, free of interest) for many years, in order to guard it from the hands of the enemy. As money is very scarce, and is in very great demand during times of war, the clever banker earned, not only 5 and 10 per cent interest, but even higher rates, by means of the royal treasure. And those, who held the purse-strings for the German Federation, were guilty of the criminal folly of entrusting the huge sums of money, paid by France, as war reparation, and which had been marked for the erection of fortresses for the protection of the Federation, to the Frankfort Jews, and in particular, to the House of Rothschild, at the rate of only 2 per cent for 20 years!

[Page 41]

Thus, the House of Rothschild has utilised the millions, belonging to princes and states, to make a foundation for its own world-wide power, and to still further extend its usury amongst princes and peoples. It became the money-lender and the money-broker for the Governments of all the European states, and from then onwards exercised a fateful influence upon all political proceedings.* It is significant that Amschel Meyer Rothschild, the eldest son of the founder of the business, was present at the Vienna Conference in 1815, spoke on that occasion, and was altogether a personality of considerable importance. In 1845, Prince Metternich wrote to the French Ambassador in Paris:

"The House of Rothschild plays a far greater role at Frankfort than any foreign government, with the exception, perhaps, of the English. There are natural reasons for this, which one certainly cannot regard as good, and which, from a moral point of view, are still less satisfactory. Money is the great and final tribunal in France' etc.

* This is best shown by the drastic speech of the old tribal mother Rothschild, when she said to her sons:

"Dont give the Princes any money, so that they will not be able to make war."

The fine art of the Hebrew has always consisted in ascertaining, by means of espionage, the approaching shortage in goods and provisions, in buying up the same, and then, when they are urgently needed, only parting with them at a profiteer's price. In times of war it is scarcely possible to satisfy the requirements of the army without the aid of the Jews, as they have already laid their hands on all available stores, and secured the same by deeds of purchase and payments on account. That the House of Rothschild is quite at home in this underhand business, is proved by the following passage out of a letter from Nathan Rothschild, the third son of Meyer Amschel, to his friend, the politician Thomas Buxton:

When I had established myself in London, the East India Company sold gold to the amount of 800,000 pounds sterling. I bought it all, because I knew that the Duke of Wellington must have it; I had bought up a large number of his bills at a cheap rate. The Government sent for me, and declared that they must have the money. As soon as they had it, they did not know how to send it to Portugal. I undertook this as well, and sent the money across France. This was the best piece of business, which I have ever done.

 According to an article in the Quarterly Review, June to September 1848, page 127, reviewing a book called, "Memoirs of Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton, Bart.," the amount is given as 800,000 lbs. of Gold! As twenty Troy pounds of Standard Gold, 1.e., 22 carat Gold, are coined into 934 sovereigns and one half-sovereign, the above-mentioned amount of 43 800,000 lbs. would represent in minted gold the enormous sum of £37,380,000, that is to say if Troy Pounds and Standard Gold are meant in Buxton's memoirs; if Avoirdupois Pounds and Fine Gold are intended, the minted value would be still larger – far over £40,000,000! It is incredible that Nathan Rothschild, or even the East India Company, had such an enormous amount of Gold at their disposal.

The great probability is, that the actual amount of Gold, whether "standard" or "fine", was represented, as Fritsch has stated, by a minted value of £800,000. (Translator's note)

 Wellington, who was a spendthrift in private life, was first Lord of the Treasury from 1826–1830.

[Page 42]

And the members of this firm, which has become rich through countless, unclean, financial operations, have been ennobled (Amschel Meyer by the Emperor of Austria already in 1815), have been loaded with orders and decorations, and have been entrusted by princes and persons of rank with the management of their fortunes, and princes and persons of rank did not regard it as degrading to maintain relations with these wholesale usurers – yes, they sank almost to subserviency in their eagerness to help this descendant of a Frankfort Jew, who dealt in old clothes, and who had no other name than that of the house in which he lived, to play a more important part even than that assigned to kings and princes of the royal blood. And sprigs of the oldest and most illustrious nobility, who desired that everyone should know that their honour was a rare and costly possession, bent the knee before men, whose ancestor had adopted as his watchword; "My money is my honour''.*)

* Mayer Amschel Rothschild writes as follows in a dunning letter to the agent of the Kurfiirst Wilhelm I of Hesse: "He, who has my money, holds my honour, and my honour is my life; he, who does not pay me my money, takes my honour away from me." The original letter was sold by auction by Rud. Lepke in Berlin.

The increase in the wealth of the House of Rothschild is calculated as follows by the writer on political economy – Dr. Rud. Herm. Meyer – in the eighties:

The Parisian Rothschild (II) died in 1875, and left 1000 million francs.

One is entitled, therefore, to estimate the combined fortunes of the members of the House of Rothschild at 5000 million francs. The Rothschilds make more than 5 per cent interest. Let us reckon in the meantime, that this "Plus" is utilised for their maintenance, and that their capital only doubles itself every fifteen years. One is entitled to assume this, because it has actually increased more quickly since the founding of the House. If it had only doubled itself every 15 years, it would have amounted to:

1875 5000 million Francs
1860 2500 ...
1845 1250 ...

1830 625 x.
1815 000 000
1800 150 000

It may be pointed out, however, that old Rothschild had no fortune whatever to speak of in the year 1800. One is therefore entitled to assume, that if a remedy is not to be found by means of anti-capitalistic, truly economic legislation, the fortune of the Rothschilds will continue to double itself every 15 years.

With this fact in view, one is quite in order in asking what relation does the income of the remainder of humanity bear towards it. The kingdom of Saxony is one of the richest and most prosperous of the German states. In the year 1876 the income, which had been assessed for income-tax, of 2-3/4 million inhabitants, amounted to 459 francs a head, and in 1877 to only 430 francs a head. The fifteen per cent income derived from the present fortune of the Rothschilds is therefore as large as the combined incomes of 581,400 Saxon citizens in the year 1877. If one assumes, that the average income throughout Europe always remained the same as that of the Saxons in the year 1877, and, bearing in mind the fact that the income of the Rothschilds doubles itself every fifteen years, one arrives at the following result:

The fortune of the Rothschilds amounted, in the year 1875, to 5000 million francs; the income out of this was as great as the combined income of 589,000 ordinary individuals; in 1890 the fortune of the Rothschilds amounted to 10,000 million francs; the income out of this was equal to the combined incomes of 1,150,000 ordinary individuals; in 1905 the fortune would amount to 20,000 million francs providing an income, from which 2,320,000 human beings – half the population of the kingdom of Saxony in the year 1905 – would have to live. In the year 1920, the fortune will have swollen to 40,000 million francs; in the year 1965 the fortune will amount to no less than 320,000 million francs, providing an income equal to the sum of the incomes, upon which 37,120,000 human beings must exist.

[Page 44]

Thus writes Rud. Meyer. This survey, even if it can lay no claim to absolute accuracy, shows nevertheless, in a very instructive manner, how a great mass of capital, which is constantly increasing by means of compound interest, grows after the manner of an avalanche, and, like a sponge, sucks up the whole economic life. For these huge accumulations of property do not, of course, consist of real money, but simply of the debts and obligations of others; their growth, therefore, indicates a progressive indebtedness of the productive and owning classes, and also of the countries themselves.

The success of the House of Rothschild is entirely attributable to the fact that the firm possessed simultaneously an establishment in each of the five most important countries in Europe, and maintained, by means of their representatives at these establishments, a constant service of news, relating to all political and economic circumstances, which was utilised to exercise active influence in every direction. The five great banking houses, which all worked on exactly the same lines, and played into one another's hands, formed, whenever a crisis arrived, a united power, opposed to which the governments of countries were but little better than powerless.

2. The "playing into one another's hands", and secret understanding of the Hebrews.

This particular instance is not necessary to demonstrate how valuable organised collaboration is to business interests. The superiority of the Jewish organisation over individual activity is apparent in countless cases of everyday life – from the buying of rags, and the operations of the auction-room hyenas, to cattle-dealing and traffic in stock-exchange shares. The Hebrew, however, is already quite capable, as an individual alone, of out-stripping all sound and honest competitors in the business arena; not only does his innate and trained sense of business give him the advantage, but, before everything else, he is enabled to do this by particular tactics and by the unscrupulousness of his procedure.

[Page 45]

And, granted that the Hebrew possesses an eminent talent for commerce, and all kinds of remarkable characteristics, which enable him to force the average German business-man out of the saddle, these powers increase until they become absolutely irresistible when several cooperate to exert them in the same direction.

The German business-man, as a rule, stands as a single individual, opposed to all the rest; he endeavours to advance his business by his own power and ability, and nowadays it is quite the exception for him to receive any special help or advancement from relatives or friends. With the Hebrews it is quite different. The strong "holding-together" of this foreign national element is a world-wide historical fact. One hears them extolled in all quarters, because they stand by one another and support themselves. That is certainly a praiseworthy characteristic, and, as such, may appear worthy of imitation.

In the case of the Jews, this "holding-together" does not arise from unalloyed mutual goodwill; it is rather a duty of life, created by tradition, and indispensable for this people. The Hebrew recognises the fact that, owing to his peculiar behaviour, and to his peculiar designs, which are hostile to the rest of humanity, he would be powerless in the world as a separate individual. The co-operation of kindred powers, in the same direction, appears to him as necessary law of life.

It is solely due to the fact that many of his kind – either by agreement or impelled by the common instinct – incessantly oppose the established regulations of the honest and productive nations, that that kind of dissoluteness, and that kind of confusion are produced in the social structure, which are essential to the prosperity of the Hebrews.

For this reason no one finds "holding together" so necessary as the Jews. In all their business, whether it be as agent or middleman in the country, or as wholesale merchant or stockbroker in the towns, the Hebrews are organised everywhere in bands or gangs.

Even in the domain of theft where, until a few decades ago, they were considerably more active than at the present moment, they had developed theft by gangs, until it could almost be regarded as an art.* Each one had a separate part to play. For instance, there were the "scout", who had to "provide" the opportunity, the "Schmiere-Steher"

(Grease Stander) whose business it was to keep a look-out, while the theft was being committed, fellow-conspirators who received the stolen goods, and all kinds of other people, who helped to make "gang-robbery" so successful. One has only to read the writings of the criminal actuary Thiele, which were published in the forties of the last century under the title: "The Jewish Swindlers in Germany", to learn on what a magnificent scale the people of Judah showed their skill on every occasion, both in organisation, and in the assignation of the part, which each should play.

In one particular case – Rosenthal versus Lowenthal – there were no less than 700 thieves and accomplices prosecuted, who were, almost without exception, Hebrews, and whose communications extended, from certain towns in Poland, as far as the Rhine, with branches all over Germany. This powerful "Chawrusse" carried on burglary, embezzlement, artificial bankruptcy, and the traffic in stolen goods, on a truly grand scale. Anyone, who reads the account of the trial at the time, cannot help being struck by the fact that quite a number of characteristic names of various [members of this band of thieves are to be found today amongst the magnates of finance and the matadors of the Stock Exchange in Berlin, until the impression gains ground that the present-day Jewish corporation of the Stock Exchange is a direct continuation of the old swindling "Chawrusse" of Bentschen and Neutomischel.

* The "Thieves' Jargon" or "Rotwelsch" is, on this account, full of "Yiddish", which is a corrupt form of German spoken by Hebrews: compare also Avé-Lallemant: "Das deutsche Gaunertum"* (German Swindledom) 4 Volumes 1854.

One must not, by any means, believe that the connection between thieves and bankers belongs to the past. When four Jewish burglars were captured recently in the act of robbing a warehouse in the vicinity of Paris, a large number of letters were found in their possession, connecting them with some of the leading Jewish firms in London and Antwerp. The public press unfortunately remained silent concerning what other discoveries were made in the course of the investigation.

3. Nomadism of the Hebrew.

Internationality presumes, of necessity, a departure from the stationary habit – from the attachment to the soil, to the home, to the Fatherland. Since the Jew knows no Fatherland in our sense of the word, Internationality is an essential part of his peculiar disposition, and impels him, on principle, to assume a hostile attitude towards all national effort. For this reason the German disposition is especially hateful to the Jew.

Sombart very appositely represents the Jews as a nation of wanderers – of “nomads”, compared with the stationary nations.* Out of this fundamental opposition arises a wide divergence in the views taken with regard to life and to economic principles. The stationary individual must, of necessity, favour well regulated conditions and stability, in order that he may have full scope for his productive and constructive activity. The nomad, animated by the impulse to convey all his possessions along with him, and to make them as portable as possible, must always foster the wish to make things and values moveable; in fact, to “mobilise” them. Consequently he is not in love with fixity and constancy of relations and regulations; he desires, on the contrary, to see everything in a state of flux and revolution. The ground with its surface-soil, which is the preliminary condition, and forms the foundation for all productive and stationary nations, has little meaning for the nomad – if he is not able to convert it into moveable, liquid values. He accomplishes this by the production of “paper values”, for which the immoveable goods of stationary citizens are pledged.

* He was certainly not the first to remark this, for we have possessed, since 1887, the masterly work of Professor Adolf Wahrmund (f 1913): “Das Gesetz des Nomadentums und die heutige Judenherrschaft”: (The Law of Nomadism and the present-day domination by the Jews).

[Page 48]

Therefore he holds sides with mortgages, pledge papers, stocks and shares, bills of exchange, and all other paper values, which can be stuck comfortably in the pocket, and carried away.

Just as little interest is shown by the Hebrew in the production of the native soil; his instinct for "dealing", drives him to desire that all articles, on their journey from producer to consumer, should travel as far as possible, and consequently be made to pass, as frequently as possible, the turnpikes of his middleman monopoly. The more that goods wander about the world, and the more that nations become dependent upon what they import from foreign countries, so much the better for the Hebrew. It is on this account that he endeavours, by all means, to check and to complicate the simple and straightforward course, which the exchange of goods would naturally take. He thrusts himself everywhere between producers and consumers, and strives, wherever it is possible, so to arrange matters, that not even the smallest business shall be completed without his interference. In countries where the Jews sit close to one another, this system has been perfected to a marvellous extent. J. C. Kohl, for instance, relates in his "Journeys in the interior of Russia and Poland", that in Poland it is not possible to conclude either an important or unimportant piece of business without the mediation of a Jew.

"The nobleman sells his wheat to the shipper through the Jew, the master of the house engages his servants, his steward, his cooks, yes, even the instructors and tutors for his son through the Jew.

Estates are let, money is collected, stores are bought etc. through the agency of the Jew, in short, one feeds, travels, rides, lodges and clothes one self through the mediation of the Jew."

Formerly the Jews were also the sole tenants of the Customs, Mines and Salt-works in Poland.*

* Leipzig 1841. – This work is still regarded by those acquainted with the conditions as correct and reliable. – See also Richard Andree. "Zur Volkskunde der Juden" (National information concerning the Jews) page 213.

[Page 49]

T. von Langenfeldt in his book "Russland im 19.

Jahrhundert" (Russia in the 19th Century) gives a picture of the interaction of Jewish business activities, and of the far-flung net of their helpers and helpers' helpers:

"At the annual markets where the Jews are permitted to do business, the dealing takes on a certain feverish aspect. They appear in enormous numbers, and sell their goods, both wholesale and retail, from booths and stalls, or hawk them from house to house. Around each Jewish wholesale dealer swarm hundreds of poor Jews, who obtain goods from him on credit, and sell the same retail. One Jew supports another; they have their own bankers, brokers, agents – yes, even their own carmen. Over the whole of western and southern Russia there is spread an innumerable host of commission agents and factors, employed by rich Jewish wholesale merchants. These form the connecting link between the merchants and the producers, between the more distant markets and the commercial centres. The duties of these agents consist in purchasing goods, and in writing periodical reports, with which they have to furnish their masters, concerning every economic novelty, concerning the prices of every possible product, imparting at the same time their views as to the advantage of this or that commercial operation’.

And further:

“Besides the commission agents, the brokers are absolutely indispensable for Jewish trade. The business of the broker consists in knowing everything, hunting up everything, bringing the interested parties together, watching the actions of those people who have any kind of relations to the merchant – in one word: to represent all the interests of his principal. The broker is a living price-list, in whom the prices, the quantity, the quality, and the location of the goods for sale – in fact everything which can interest the purchaser, is recorded.

Almost every Jew is a broker, yes, one is entitled to maintain that he is born to the part’.

“The brokers on any particular market do not allow any stranger to enter the same, and do not themselves attempt to enter any strange market, but recommend their clients to go to a broker known to them, at the place in question. There are special brokers for the grain, tallow, salt, and timber trades. Where Jews exclusively live, the whole country is covered with a net of brokers, who penetrate into the most remote economic corners of each district. The broker understands how to make himself indispensable everywhere, and to everybody. The estate owner, and especially the Polish estate-owner, is the born friend of the Jew, who flatters him, abases himself before him, knows always where and how money can be procured, and where he – the estate owner – can dispose of his produce to the best advantage’.

* Berlin 1875. – See “Handbuch der Judenfrage” (Handbook to the Jewish Question) 27 Edition pages 100 – 111.

[Page 50]

From the above characteristic motives springs the mania of the Hebrew to give the preference to all foreign goods. He is always the first to bring novelties from foreign countries, and is an indefatigable praiser of everything foreign. He is always ready with an assurance that the foreign article is better than the native; he even goes so far as to maintain that foreign corn is more nourishing than that grown by German peasants. He knows full well that the native product very easily discovers the direct road from producer to consumer without requiring his services as middleman; and this sticks in his gizzard.

He would like to make production just like consumption – dependent upon himself, and to get it completely into his power; he therefore tries to separate the two processes, and to thrust himself between them. The business of the middleman has become to such an extent the second nature of the Jew, that he regards it with favour also, when practised by others, so long as he does not lose any advantage thereby. Manufacturers, who deliver exclusively to their representatives, the latter themselves, as well as the great army of agents, brokers, and commission men, who do not stand in direct competition with Jews, are wont to praise the Jews on account of the punctilious respect, which the latter pay to every kind of middle-man business. The Jew's ideal would be to convert Germany into a one-sided industrial country, importing all raw material and food-stuffs from abroad, and compelled to export again the greater part of its industrial products. In this case both the raw material and the finished article must pass through the hands of the middle-man, and his control of the market would be complete. But this would be accompanied also by the political control of the state. The nearer this ideal brings the Hebrew to the social-democrat of Marxian* tendencies, the further it separates him from all representatives of national work.

* Karl Marx (1818–1883) was of Jewish origin, like Ferd. Lassalle (1825–1864) and many other notorious social-democratic magnates.

[Page 51]

Therefore the Jew is a sworn enemy of agriculture in the home country. He persecutes with fanatical hatred the “agrarian”, who by his diligent production, interferes with the commercial monopoly of the Jew. For this reason the latter is never tired of singing the praises of international free-trade, of abusing protective duties, of inciting the inhabitants of towns against the country-folk, and of endeavouring, as far as possible, to sow discord between the two.

The Hebrew fraternity is favoured by yet another circumstance in its control of the economic life, and that is: – the peculiar morality.

[Page 52]

V.

The peculiar Morality of Jewdom.

That the Hebrew is not very particular with regard to his moral obligations towards other people, is fairly well known. One is wont to excuse him much in this respect, and to overlook his lack of conscientiousness with the remark that he had been frequently unjustly persecuted in "o/den times", and thus had been driven, by dire necessity, to the adoption of a lax moral code. In this respect also, many "worthy souls" are inclined, out of ill-considered amiability, to speak disparagingly of their own nation by imputing the responsibility for the moral deficiencies of the Hebrew to their own Christian ancestors.

These fine folk could easily ascertain from the Bible, that the bad ethics of the Hebrew are as old as that nation, and already existed before there were any Christians. The Hebrews were already decried, far and wide, in ancient Egypt, Babylon, and Syria on account of their questionable morality and business tactics; consequently, the Christians cannot be blamed for the moral shortcomings of the Jewish people.

Already we can learn out of the Old Testament that their law allows the Hebrews to treat the "non-Jew" – "the stranger" – very differently to those of their own faith and blood. In this respect already, the "Chosen People" place themselves in the strongest contrast to all other nations, who are designated as "strangers". It is continually reiterated that it is permissible to do all kinds of things towards a "stranger", which it is forbidden to do towards the fellow-Jews. Thus, for example:

"You may practise usury against the 'stranger', but not against your brother." (5. Moses 23, 20).

A sharp distinction is always drawn between the Jews, and the rest of the nations. All the moral commandments of the Hebrews extend only to members of their race; all other races are excepted.

[Page 53]

What is forbidden to be done to Jews, is permitted towards those, who are not Jews. 5. Moses, 15. 3:

“You may put pressure on the stranger, but you must be lenient to him, who is your brother.”

The contempt shown for all those, who are not Jews, goes so far as to regard unclean food and garbage as good enough for the “stranger”.

5. Moses, 14, 21:

“You shall not eat offal; you may give it to the ‘stranger’ in your gate so that he may eat it, or sell it to another ‘stranger’”.

All the commands, made with reference to one’s neighbour, are not comprehended by the Jew as by the Christian, who regards them as referring to all men; he – the Jew – accepts them quite literally, and as referring only to the actual neighbour, the member of the same race, the fellow-Jew. When we read in 3 Moses: 19, 13:

“Thou shalt neither overreach nor rob thy neighbour’, the Jew considers that he is released from any like duty towards those, who are not Jews.

The writings of the Rabbis express this particular comprehension of the text quite unmistakably.

This peculiar comprehension on the part of the Jews of their particular rights as human beings goes, however, still further back; it rests, in the last analysis, on the fact that the Jews not only separate themselves as a “chosen people” from all other men, but have their own particular god. It is a fatal mistake of our theologians to regard the Jewish God as identical with the Christian. On a closer examination, Jehovah (whom the more modern science calls Jahwe) is found to be the exclusive God of Jewdom, and not, at the same time, that of other men. One can convince one's self from 1. Moses, Chapter 17, that this Jahwe-Jehovah concluded his formal agreement expressly only with Abraham and his seed (descendants), and that this covenant bears a hostile meaning for all non-Jewish peoples. As a sign of the covenant, circumcision is introduced, and Jahwe declares: all who are not circumcised, will incur his vengeance, and will be completely destroyed.

[Page 54]

It is at once clear that this covenant between Jahwe and Abraham's seed is a warlike covenant, the point of which is directed relentlessly against all non-Jewish nations – the unbelievers, the heathens (Goyim). In the eyes of the Jews, however, heathens are all those, who are not of Abraham's seed, all who are not circumcised, all who have not entered into the blood-pact with Jahwe. Dominion over all other nations is promised to the Jews, and the possessions of the former will be given to them as a reward if they – the Jews – are true to their pact with Jahwe:

"Ask of me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel." (Psalms 2. 8. 9)

Yes, open hostility is declared against all non-Jewish nations, and their extirpation and annihilation are to be the life task of the Jews:

5. Moses 7, 16: "Thou wilt devour all nations, which the Lord thy God will give thee. Thou shalt have no mercy on them, and shalt not serve their gods, for to do so will be thy condemnation." *

The oriental scholar, Adolf Warhumd, is therefore justified in referring to the journey of the Jews across the earth as an expedition for the capture of the world – certainly not by open force of arms, but by other means, a plentiful store of which, is placed at their disposal by the Talmudic teaching of the Rabbis.

The most important weapon of the Jews against non-Jewish nations is Money; they therefore endeavour to obtain possession of this in every form. For this reason Jews are allowed to practise usury against non-Jews, and the lending of money, and the receiving of interest are recommended as an important means or instrument for dominating other nations.

* Consequently it was a fatal blunder of Luther, always to translate the word Jahwe as "Lord God", and thus to help to obliterate the fundamental difference between the particular god of the Jews, and the "Heavenly Father" of Christ.

[Page 55]

5. Moses 15, 6:

"For Jahwe, thy God, has conferred blessings on thee, as he has promised thee, so that thou shalt lend to many nations but shalt

not need to borrow thyself, and that thou shalt rule over many nations but that no one shall rule over thee!" –

Truly a wonderful compact with God, which is payable in cash, and which promises domination over other nations by money-power – whilst Christ teaches:

"Ye cannot serve God and Mammon."

The peculiar Jewish perception of life which results from such doctrines, is made the utmost of in the Talmud. It would take too much time and space to quote even extracts here from the mystical books of the Rabbis; therefore reference is made to the work by Th. Fritsch: "Mein Beweismaterial gegen Jahwe" (My evidence against Jahwe)* in which a strong light is cast upon domains, which we can scarcely glance at.

Thus, the segregation of the Hebrews from all other nations is conscious and deliberate, and is in nowise due to possible dislike on the part of those nations. The devotional books of the Jews furnish us with plenty of proof on that point. Warning is incessant never to make common cause with the foreign nations:

"Give heed that thou makest no treaty with the inhabitants of the land, into which thou comest, so that they may not become a vexation to thee." 2. Moses 34. 12 and 13.

The boundary-line between the Hebrew and the rest of humanity is everywhere most sharply defined, and the peculiar morals of Jewdom rest on this separation of interests. They were first set out, however, in characteristic form, by the Rabbis, who “/aid down” the Jewish system of morals in the “Zalmud” (= Doctrine), from the 2nd to the 5th Century after the birth of Christ.

“The Talmud – a comprehensive work, divided into many parts – is the real code of laws for Jewdom since the time of Christ, and is the foundation of its religious and civic arrangements”. (Brockhaus Conv. Lexicon).

And it is precisely in this book, where the perception impresses itself most forcibly upon the reader, that it is only the Hebrew, who is a man in the real sense of the word, and that all the remaining nations stand far beneath him, and are, in fact, comparable to animals.

[Page 56]

“The nations of the world are like the baskets, in which one puts straw and dung. They have a soul, which is only equal to that of the animals.”:

is an example of what is to be found in the “Midrasch schir haschirim’’, and a further specimen in the treatise “Baba mezia” is as follows:

“You Israelites are called men, but the nations of the world are called not men, but cattle.”

Jalkut Rubeni expresses himself still more distinctly:

“The Israelites are called men (human beings) because their souls are derived from God, but the souls of those, who are not Jews, are derived from the unclean spirit, and therefore they are named swine.”

But, in case a believing Jew might be of the opinion that those, who are not Jews, are just as good men as the Hebrews, because they possess the same form, Schene-tuchoth-habberith is prepared to give instruction upon this point, for it is stated there:

“A human form is only given to those, who are not Jews, in order that the Jews may not be waited upon by beasts.”

With such a perception it is comprehensible how all intercourse with those, who are not Jews, is most strictly forbidden to all true Hebrews. It is a matter of common knowledge that the Old Testament warns the true Jew, in the most emphatic manner, not to enter into marriage with those, who are not Jews, and the Rabbis of the Talmud repeat and accentuate this commandment on many occasions.

Consequently, when the suggestion is made that a mutual contempt exists between Jews and non-Jews, it is well to remember, first of all, which side started this; it is in consequence of the racial conceit of the real Hebrew that he regards his nation as quite out of the ordinary, and especially chosen, and permitted to look down upon other men with contempt. It is certainly nothing to wonder at, if the other nations, in their turn, pay back this aversion in the same coin, and they are more entitled to do so, as, in their case, it is a counterstroke to a brutal challenge.

[Page 57]

But, whoever regards those, who do not belong to his race, as no better than beasts, cannot possibly recognise that he has any moral obligations towards such inferior creatures. Upon this fundamental perception rests the entire system of morality of the Rabbis; it teaches, with constant repetition, that one has duties only towards one's neighbour, one's race, and towards nobody else. The Law states:

“Thou shalt do no wrong to thy neighbour’,

and the discerning Rabbi adds, to make it clearer:

“the other people are excepted’.

Again, one reads in the treatise Sanhedrin:

“An Israelite is permitted to do a wrong to a ‘Goi’
i.e. non-Jew, because it is written:

“Thou shalt not do wrong to thy neighbour, without however,
paying any heed to the Goi.”

It cannot be wondered at then, when the Talmud draws the following conclusion for instance:

"Lost property, which belongs to a Goi, need not be returned."

But the writings of the Talmud do not confine themselves to such general instructions. Just as business forms, as it were, the soul of the entire Jewish existence, so great importance is given in the Talmud also to all business relations, and all manner of good advice is imparted therein as to how one is to comport one's self during business developments. For this belongs also to the Jewish religion. When one recollects how little the doctrine of Christ concerns itself with money-matters and business, and how it, to a certain extent, rejects any such thing as Money, relying on the Word: "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon'", one must feel what a contrast exists between the Christian and Jewish perceptions of life, and one, across which no bridge can ever be built. How important, however on the contrary, are all business matters to the Hebrew! Thus, we find in the writings of the Talmud directions, of which the following are examples:

[Page 58]

"If a Goi holds the pledge of an Israelite, and the Goi loses it, and an Israelite finds it, the latter shall return it to the Israelite, but not to the Goi; if, however, the finder desires to return it to the Goi for the sake of the sacred reputation* then, the other (Israelite) shall say to him: 'If you wish to keep the reputation sacred, do so with what belongs to you.'" (R. Jerucham Seph. mesch. f. 51. 4)

It is also taught:

"It is permissible to take advantage of the mistake of a Goi, when he makes a mistake (to his disadvantage). Thus, if the Goi sends in his bill, and makes a mistake, the Israelite shall say to him: 'See, I rely upon your bill; I do not know if it really is as you state, nevertheless I give you what you demand.'"

Not only in purely business matters is the Hebrew allowed to treat those, who are not Jews, in a different manner to his own race, but Rabbinism inexorably extends the sharp division between Jew and non-Jew into all remaining domains of life.

The Jew is commanded, when acting as Judge in law-suits, to influence the course of the proceedings in favour of his racial companions. In the book Baba Kamma (= the first door) we find Fol.

113a, paragraph 2:

"When an Israelite and a non-Jew come before you in the Court, you shall, if you can, administer justice to him – the former – according to Jewish law, and say to him: 'it is so according to our law'. When the law of the worldly nations is favourable to the Jew, you shall administer Justice to him accordingly, and say to him: it is thus according to our law'. But when this is not the case, use cunning."

The following passage, for instance, bears eloquent testimony to the assertion that the despicable doctrines of the Talmud towards the Canaanites, Edomites and Amalakites, refer, not only to the peoples of antiquity, but also to the present:

"The inhabitants of Germany" says Kinchi (Obadja 1,20) "are Canaanites, for when the Canaanites fled before Jehoschua, they went into the land Alemannia, which is called Germany, and even to the present day the Germans are called Canaanites."

In more recent times, the Hebrews eagerly assume the appearance of possessing a warlike spirit, boast of their participation in the various campaigns, and endeavour, through their patrons and press, to bring it about that they will even be admitted to the rank of officer. That they, however, prize safety rather than valour is shown by referring to the passage out of the Talmud Pesachim 112b:

* A mode of speaking, which frequently occurs, much to this effect:

"In order that our Religion and our God do not incur a bad reputation."

[Page 59]

"Tf you go to war, go not first but last, in order that you can return home first'.

Also, the extensively held idea, that the Jew was compelled by foreign influence to confine himself to trade, because other vocations were forbidden to him – a matter, which, later on, we will go more deeply into – is shown to be fallacious by the actual writings of the Rabbis. The same prove that the Hebrew has, from the remotest periods, always displayed a preference for trade, because other activities, and especially agriculture, appeared too tedious to him, and brought in too little profit. Thus we read in the Talmud:

Rab Eleazar has said:

"No handicraft is so unprofitable as agriculture for it is said Czech 27. 29 'You will come down' (grow poor)!"

R. Eleazar beheld a field, across which cabbages were planted in beds. He then said:

"Even if cabbages were planted for the whole length of the field, trading would still be the best."

On one occasion when the Rab was walking through a wheat field, and observed how the wheat swayed to and fro, he said:

"continue to sway, trade is to be preferred to you".
– Rab has further said:

"He who expends a hundred Sus in trade, can enjoy meat and wine every day, but he, who expends a hundred Sus on agriculture, has to be content with cabbage and salt, must sleep on the earth, and is exposed to every kind of misery."

Thus, the preference for Trade, and the contempt for Handicraft and Agriculture are a very ancient legacy of the Jewish race, and no one has ever found it necessary to compel them to turn to trade.

It would be a fatal mistake to imagine that these ancient views and laws in the Talmud do not possess any validity today. On the contrary: the doctrines of the Talmud form, uninterruptedly, an important item in the Jewish religious education, and every young Jew receives instruction according to the views expressed in the Talmud – however much he may assure one, later on in life, that such matters are entirely unknown to him. Moreover, the law, set out in the Talmud, has been modernised by a recent revision – the so-called Schulchan aruch – and the validity of this law is so undisputed, that the Imperial German legal authorities, in law-suits, in which both parties were

Jews, have relied upon the precepts of the Schulchan aruch.

[Page 60]

In this more recent law-book of Jewdom is to be found that remarkable prayer, which is said every year on the Day of Atonement, in all synagogues, accompanied by great solemnity, the so-called Kol-Nidre-Prayer. It is as follows:

"All vows (Kol-Nidre) and obligations and conjurations and oaths, which we shall vow, enter into, and swear, from this day of Atonement until the next, we repent of, and the same shall be dissolved, remitted, abolished, destroyed, and shall be of no force and invalid: our vows shall not be vows, and our oaths shall not be oaths".

The contents of this peculiar prayer have often been used as a reproach to the Jews, who usually argue their way out of it, by maintaining that the vows, declarations and oaths, which are spoken of in this prayer, refer only to religious matters, more especially to vows and oaths, which the Jew makes or takes to himself, or to his God. It is difficult, however, to see why anyone, who regards his oaths to God so lightly, should take a more serious view of his affirmations or vows to his fellow-men. In any case, the praying Hebrew has the right, when reciting the "Ko'", to connect this prayer secretly with his own particular vows and oaths.

There is nothing to wonder at then, if a nation, with such a remarkable system of ethics, obtains a tremendous advantage over men, who possess a more sensitive conscience, and a finer sense of justice, and who not only abide by their oaths and vows, but adhere punctiliously to their ordinary promises and assurances. That ethical perception of the Talmud, which forces the Hebrew to observe his duties towards his racial and religious brethren with almost painful exactitude, but absolves him of his duties towards other men, must introduce a curious kind of discord into our life. The Hebrews are thus united in a strong union, which not only possesses a strong common-interest, but directs itself, at the same time, in silent hostility against all other men.

[Page 61]

And, since the Hebrews are forbidden in addition in the sternest manner according to their laws, to disclose anything of their secret legislation to those, who are not Jews, Jewdom acquires, with such a basis, the nature of a conspiracy which is aimed at all men, who do not happen to be Jews.

The situation is aggravated by the following circumstances: the doctrines and laws of the Rabbis are – with few exceptions – only to be found in the Hebraic language and characters, and are, for that reason, practically unapproachable for the rest of mankind. Besides, the written language of the Hebrews resembles a cryptograph, the reading and explanation of which are taught by tradition in the schools of the Rabbis.

The Jews are consequently in the position to maintain to the uninitiated that the rendering of the latter is incorrect. For, as a matter of fact, those scholars, who are not Jews, but who, having learnt the Hebrew language and examined the writings of the Rabbis, have then proceeded to translate some of the awkward passages, have become the objects of the most violent hostility on the part of the Jews. Only with the help of converted Jews has it been possible, in certain cases, to ascertain the correct reading or version. But for centuries reliable Christian scholars have made translations of the immoral passages, which all agree, so that it is scarcely permissible to entertain any doubt as to the correctness of the version. One need only mention the Heidelberg Professor of Oriental Languages, Johann Eisenmenger, who produced a translation of extracts from the Zalmud in the year 1700; the Canonical Professor, August Rohling, of Prague, who published his "Talmudjude" (Jew of the Talmud) in 1878, and since then has been made the object of most odious enmity from the side of the Jews.

Further, the Orientalists, Professor Johann Gildemeister of Bonn (+ 1890), Dr. Jakob Ecker of Munster, and Professor Georg Behr of Heidelberg, as arbiters in court, have confirmed the correctness of these same translations of the rabbinical writings, when the opportunity presented itself in law-suits, relating to such matters. Since, however, the Jews always renew their denials, there is really a most urgent necessity, in the interests of both sides, that the disputed passages in the Talmud should be examined by impartial experts; all conflict about the matter would then be removed from the world in the simplest manner possible.

It is, however, a most remarkable fact that the Hebrews oppose any such procedure most emphatically and, strange to say, the state officials have also declined to move in the matter when application has been made to them. When, in the year 1890, a petition was sent from the anti-Jewish camp to a number of Imperial and local authorities, containing the request that a commission of independent savants should be appointed, whose duty would be to examine carefully the passages in dispute, in not a single instance was the request granted. The Prussian Ministry of Culture dismissed any such step as being "impracticable." If one compares the thoroughness with which the morality of the Jesuits has been and is still discussed in public, one is forced to accept the view, that the zealous friends of truth and opponents of those, who work in an obscure and devious manner, know how to restrain their zeal for enlightenment in a truly remarkable way so far as the Jews are concerned.

The position is thus a very peculiar one. This much is established: The German national representative bodies and governments have given the Jews equal civic rights, and have recognised them as a separate religious community, without making any inquiry whether the moral instruction of the Jews is compatible with the welfare of the state. There is, therefore, no cause for wonder if attacks are constantly being delivered by the National German Party against this untenable position, and if the demand is made upon those, in positions of authority, to undertake, even at this late stage, a thorough examination of the Jewish doctrines.

There will be no end to this dispute until the matter has been made clear beyond any possible doubt. Joh. Ludwig Kluber, the diplomatist and authority on International Law (decd. 1837) calls the Jews plainly, "a political-religious sect, under the strict, theocratic despotism of the Rabbis", and "a completely separated society of hereditary conspirators, with certain political principles and commandments for the general life and for commercial intercourse." (Thus, not merely with religious aims).

[Page 63]

And this is, in concise, sober language, the essence of the matter. For the Jews do not compose, like the Christians for instance, simply a religious community, which depends upon certain moral doctrines, and worships its God according to certain established forms; their – the Jews' – law extends to all manner of practical affairs in life, and, under the influence of a peculiar morality, concerns itself particularly with the cultivation of trade and usury. They form, in spite of their dispersion amongst other peoples, an absolutely distinct nation, even, as Fichte expresses it, a separate state. And, as they are at the same time intent upon preserving the purity of their blood, and intermarry, as far as it is possible, they form also a self-contained race. Of all the rulers in Germany, no one has recognised this fact more clearly than the greatest of all practical politicians amongst them, Frederick the Great, who considered it necessary, even in his political will of 1752, to impress most strongly upon his successors:

“Moreover, the ruler must keep his eye on the Jews, prevent their interference with wholesale trade; check the growth of their population, and deprive them of their right of sanctuary whenever they commit an act of dishonesty. For nothing is more injurious to the trade of the merchants than the illicit profit which the Jews make.”

The racial peculiarity; however, is visible to the eye, so that the Jew can be recognised immediately and picked out from all the other peoples of the world. And, further, there can be no doubt whatever upon this point: by means of their Talmud and their system of Rabbis, the Hebrews are held together in a rigid caste, which carries on a cooperative war against the remaining nations, chiefly by means of material expropriation and the undermining of morality.

Our Moltke, who had the opportunity of studying Jewdom thoroughly, during his residence in Poland from 1830 to 1832, sums up his observations in the following words (“Darstellung der inneren Verhältnisse in Polen”) (Description of the internal conditions in Poland, Berlin 1832):

[Page 64]

“In spite of their dispersion the Jews still remain closely united. They are guided consistently by unknown authorities for mutual purposes. As they reject all the attempts of governments to incorporate them in the nations, the Jews form a state within a state, and have become a deep wound in Poland, which has not healed even at the present day. Even now each town has its own

Judge, each province its Rabbi, and all are subordinate to an unknown chief, who lives in Asia, and who is bound by their law to travel round continually, from place to place, and whom they call the ‘Prince of Slavery’. – Thus, retaining their religion, their government, their morality, and their language, and obeying their own laws, they know how to evade those of the land they live in, or, at any rate, to nullify the same for all practical purposes: and, closely united amongst themselves, they resist all attempts to fuse them into the rest of the nation, just as much on account of their religious belief as on account of their self-interest."

It simply does not do then, to complacently ignore, with Christian tolerance and sentimental charity, this singular and firmly organised hostile state of Jewry. This hostile state has declared war on us – war to the knife – for it is attempting to appropriate our material as well as our spiritual values.* It is an error to represent the Jews to one's self as a harmless "Concession", which lives peacefully besides us, and is only desirous of serving its God in its own particular way. The most excellent Adolf Wahrmund sees the ancient principle of the nomadic desert robbers, who sweep across the cultivated spots in order to leave the pastures grassless and barren behind them, surviving in our Jews. He says:

"According to the view taken from the Talmud, and expressed by the Rabbis, the path of the Jews across the world is a warlike expedition for the conquest of the same – nothing else. They regard themselves as soldiers on the march, hiding themselves in secret camps, or concealing themselves under a false flag – in the midst of the enemy, always waiting for the signal to attack and surprise."

* Dr. Moritz Goldstein stated in the "Kunstwart"' 1912, that it could no longer be disputed that the Jews ruled over, not only the material, but even the spiritual values of the German Nation, however much the Germans might deny their capacity to do so.

 Page 41 in the writing under his name.

[Page 65]

None of these facts are altered in the least, because, now and again, this or that Jew appears to us to be quite a harmless and perhaps even an amiable individual. Without doubt the Jew possesses many human and social virtues, but who will guarantee that this external aspect of his disposition can be regarded as genuine, mixed as the latter quite comprehensibly is with bitterness on account of imagined slights, or imbued with feelings of revenge? The peculiar situation of the Jew, in the midst of a community, which is inwardly foreign to him, compels him to adopt a cautious and discrete attitude. It would be foolish on his part if he openly displayed his pride and his aversion to all men, who are not Jews. How could he thus accomplish his aims? Slyness commands him to adapt himself by mildness and pliancy to his environment, and to present the appearance of entertaining good will and a kindly disposition towards his fellow-citizens, in order to captivate the latter in their artlessness, and to win their confidence. Only thus is he enabled to promote his own business interests, and those other secret aims of Hebrewdom, to the best advantage. One must not then accept the plea that there are also some extremely nice and honest Jews as a proof that they are not dangerous.

Exceptions prove the rule, and amiability and apparent harmlessness are amongst the most deadly weapons, which the Hebrews employ against those who surround them. If, occasionally, a kind heart may prompt a Jew to act unselfishly, and even to display self-sacrifice where others are concerned, (an occurrence which, on account of its rarity, is wont to be trumpeted forth a hundred times as loudly as it would be in the case of anybody, who is not a Jew) the best and most moral Jew still remains a member of a most secret society, which directs its front against us. And, at the moment, when the decision must be made whether to defend Jewish interests against other interests, the noblest and most high-minded Jew will also take the side of his racial comrades, and will treat everyone, who is not a Jew, as an enemy. Luther already summed up the situation correctly when he spoke as follows, concerning the Jews:

[Page 66]

"But if they do anything good, know that it is not done out of love, nor does it happen for your good; but because they must have room to live amongst us, they must of necessity do something. But the heart is, and remains, as I have said."

Therefore, do not forget: we are in a state of war with the Jews. But, if a nation has declared war upon us, and advances with hostile intent into our country, it no longer behoves us to ask: is that particular individual a good or a bad man? – but, from that moment, each of them must be regarded as our enemy, and against whom we must defend ourselves.

[Page 67]

VI.

An Explanation with Sombart.

After we have sketched in outline our own attitude to the question, which lies before us, the task still remains to follow up Sombart's work,* in order to supplement the same, partly by confirming it, and partly by making another comprehension valid. Sombart, himself, allows that his book is one-sided, and is meant to be. He has, in fact, supplied a written history of the economic method of the Jews, which – although the author obviously has taken pains to keep to the point, and to abstain from all appreciations – has nevertheless been written preponderatingly from the sunny side. Anyone, who did not know anything about the history of the world, would, on reading this book, easily acquire the impression that the Hebrews were the sole moving principle – not only in political economy but chiefly in Culture, that we were indebted to them alone for all great undertakings, and for all progress.

It can scarcely have been the intention of the author to create this impression, and he would simply disclaim any such explanation. But it can be easily understood, that at a time when so many disparaging remarks are made about Hebrews, the wish might arise, for once, at any rate, to muster everything, which could be said in their favour. Sombart still says – although he wishes to refrain from appreciation:

“Israel traverses Europe like the sun; new life bursts forth where it arrives; on its departure what has hitherto prospered, wastes

away.”

It would be scarcely possible to utter a more pretentious appreciation of a people than the above, and it is certainly opportune, for once in a way, to examine in detail how far such a pronouncement is justified or not. Sombart has collected, out of literature, with extraordinary diligence, everything, which could possibly throw a favourable light upon the activity of the Jews.

Life).

[Page 68]

He acknowledges that other factors have contributed to the building-up of the modern capitalism – which seems to him to be equivalent to modern Culture – but does not wish to mention the same in his book. He is of opinion that one will search in vain throughout his work, "to discover in any single passage anything approaching an appreciation of the Jews, their affairs, their performances," and yet, a few lines further on, he says concerning the Jews;

"They, above all other nations, are an eternal nation''.

That is a frequently expressed opinion, and yet the ancestors of Jewdom can scarcely date further back than the ancestors of other races, for it is not recognised that the incarnation of the remaining nations only happened within historical time; just as little is the national existence of the Hebrews any older than that of the other nations. It is quite the contrary – for it must not be forgotten that ancient cultures were already known in the history of the world before the Jewish people put in an appearance. And when Sombart goes on to reckon up, amongst the accomplishments of the Jews, the following:

"They have presented us with the one and only God, with Jesus Christ, and consequently with Christianity", this is not only an appreciation, but an extravagant eulogy, which, in the face of our modern knowledge of these matters, may even be called frivolity.

The contention that the Hebrews invented monotheism – the one God doctrine – belongs to the domain of thoughtless phrases, all the more as the most ancient Jewish documents recognise a whole line of gods, such as Elohim, El-Schaddai, El-Elyon, Adonai, Zebaoth, Jahwe etc. It was first of all Luther's translation – which was frequently extremely free – of these names by the universal designation "God the Lord", which is responsible for this semblance of Jewish monotheism.

[Page 69]

Moreover, it has been sufficiently established for many decades that the Jewish God has nothing in common with the Christian Father-in-Heaven, or the universal Father of the Germanic nations. Jahwe, as we have already discussed, is the exclusive tribal God of the Hebrews: he has absolutely no desire to be the God of other peoples, for he persecutes the latter with unappeasable hatred, and assigns to his favourite the task of annihilating the remaining nations, or, as Luther translates: "to devour them." It is quite clear in this case that we have not to deal with the one and only God of all nations, but with a tribal or separate and national God. Therefore Jewdom can, by no means, lay claim to have presented "the" only God to the rest of the world.

The discoveries of the Egyptologists and Assyriologists have furnished sufficient proof that these ancient, civilised nations already worshipped an only God before the Jewish nation was known of.* Our Germanic ancestors also worshipped an only God and universal Father, in the form of their Ziu (Dius), and the Egyptians did likewise with their Ptah, the Indians with their Dyaus Pitar (from which the Roman Jupiter originated), the Greeks with their Zeus, and the Persians with their Ahuramazda (Ormuzd) etc.

The way, in which Sombart misleads his readers with regard to Christ, is still more flagrant. Upon this point also we are at the present day sufficiently well-informed to know that Christ was not of Jewish extraction, but was a heathen Galilean. The enmity of the Jews towards him shows itself in every chapter of the Gospels; the Jews persecute him incessantly so that he must always seek refuge from them "in the land of the Heathen."

* Compare Wärmund: "Babyloniertum, Judentum,

Christentum" (Babylondom, Jewdom, Christendom.) Lagarde: "Deutsche Schriften" (German Writings); Fritsch: "Beweismaterial gegen Jahwe'" (Evidence against Jahwe); Further "Hammer" No. 257: "Zur Entstehungsgeschichte des Alten Testaments" (The History of the origin of the Old Testament); particularly W. Schmidt: "Ursprung der Gottesidee" 1. (Origin of the idea of God); 1912. A. Lang: "Making of the Religion" (1909). Fritsch endeavours to prove that Jahwe is identical with El-Schaddai, whom he indicates as the "Geist der Finsternis", (Spirit of Darkness) and as the personification of the Principle of Evil. The philological comparisons upon this point are striking. (Compare "Beweis-Material gegen Jahwe'", 9. Edition, pages 77-86.)

[Page 70]

Their hatred against him is so fanatical, because, out of his teaching a spiritual world, which is strange to them, is speaking. It is the spirit of the other race, which here opposes the Jewish nature, for the teaching of Christ signifies, in all respects, a complete reversal of the Jewish system of morality.

Christ had, accordingly, nothing in common with the Jews, neither outwardly nor inwardly. His teaching is the most pronounced contrast, yes, the most emphatic protest against Jewish morality and the view, which Jews chose to take of the world, and the whole life of Christ was a continual fight against Jewdom. The excellent Lagarde

(celebrated both as an orientalist and an authority on the Bible, died 1891) said:

“No nation crucifies its ideal, and whoever is crucified by a nation certainly does not correspond to the ideal of that particular nation.”

One must read the Gospel of St. John in order to convince one's self how, on every occasion, the racial contrast between the Galileans and the Jews bursts forth. But, when the Jews boast of being the children of God, Christ calls them the children of the devil (Gospel of St. John 8. 44 – 45). It would scarcely be possible to make a more trivial and thoughtless remark than that the Jews bestowed Christianity upon us, and therefore have a claim to our gratitude. But when this phrase is heard from the mouths of the Jews themselves, the very summit of senselessness is reached, and a piece of bluff is produced calculated only to deceive those, who are utterly incapable of judgement. It is only necessary to ask in return: If the Jews assign merit to themselves on account of Christianity – why are they content to pass on ungrudgingly to others, what can be proved to be a great advance in moral perception and in the ennoblement of mankind, instead of also enriching themselves therewith? And finally, above all, if the Jews of today, who still harbour the utmost contempt and enmity towards Christ and his teaching, claim merit for themselves by reason of the Christian doctrine, will they not also take over part of the responsibility for the torturing and martyring of Christ?

[Page 71]

VI.

Jewish Successes In Modern Times.

Sombart points out that when the migration of the Jews took place in the 16th century, a remarkable displacement of the economic centre of Europe became perceptible. The Hebrews, who had been turned out of Spain, migrated, for the most part, (some authorities say 90,000) to European and Asiatic Turkey, where they are known to the present day as “Spanioles.” Another large multitude (25,000) migrated to Holland, Hamburg, and England. The remainder, about 50,000, dispersed themselves amongst the various countries of Europe and America. It is not disputed that, from that time, the economic life of Spain suffered from a severe set-back, whilst, in those places, to which the Jews had directed their foot-steps, there was a sudden access of trade. There is, however, nothing extraordinary in this, and the same thing could have happened if people of another nationality and race had been concerned in these migrations instead of the Hebrews. The immigrations of the Huguenots, for instance, are a distinct proof of this. Every extensive emigration is bound to produce a set-back in the economic life of a country, whilst, on the other hand, every considerable influx of population, irrespective of whatever elements it may be composed, will always enliven the economic life. We experience this, on a small scale, almost every day – the removal of a factory, of a garrison etc

In our case it must be taken into consideration that the Hebrews, for the most part, brought capital with them and brought it to countries, which were developing, and thus it would be doubly beneficial from an economic point of view. We have already recognised, earlier in this work, the kind of enlivenment, which the Jew introduces into the economic life. It is the mobilisation of all values and forces, by which he imparts a tremendous stimulus to political economy.

[Page 72]

But we have also seen how this inflated economic life, which is, at the same time, highly artificial, acts, in its final phases, devastatingly and destructively upon the nations.

Still, for the time being, the glory of enlivening trade and international intercourse may be conceded to the Jews. But, at the same time, one must not forget that they do not stimulate trade out of love for their fellowmen, but in order to make profit for themselves. They produce, in all directions, traffic and exchange, in order to derive the utmost benefits for themselves thereby.

It is enough to take away one's breath when Sombart endeavours to convince us that modern colonial affairs owe their development chiefly to the Hebrews. Certainly the Jews went out also to the newly opened-up colonies, just as they go anywhere where business prosperity entices them. And, for this reason also, they were certainly amongst the first in the newly opened-up America. Sombart serves up, for our edification, the unproved legend that a number of Jews were present in the ship of Columbus (but scarcely on the original voyage of discovery), and that the first European, to step upon American soil, was the Jew Luis de Torres. Yes, he even maintains that the expeditions of Columbus were fitted out exclusively with Jewish money, and that we have, accordingly, to thank the Jews especially for the discovery of America.

Still more audacious is the conjecture that Columbus himself may have been a Jew, simply because some Columbus-investigator claims to have discovered a family "Colon," into which a Jewess married. This half-Jewish family Colon is therefore asserted to be identical with the family Colombo.

A genealogical feat, which is not made any the more probable by the fact that the Christian name Christobal occurs in both families.

One can thus see how ready many people are, to assign everything remarkable in the world to the Jews: and Sombart surpasses himself, whilst calling attention to the fact that already in the period 1820-1830 there were numerous Jewish firms in America, by the audacious utterance: "America is, in all respects, a Jewish country."

[Page 73]

He mentions with satisfaction that, at the present moment, New York contains nearly a million Jews, of whom the majority certainly have not yet begun their capitalistic careers; and since all Hebrews, according to his opinion, carry a passport for the territory of the millionaires in their pockets, his exaggerated fancy sees in the America of the future a land where there will only be Slavs and Negroes to act as servants, and Hebrews to lord it as rulers. With the fantastic imagination of an oriental, he calls the Jews, "the golden thread, which runs through the texture of American political economy."

He utters the following remarkable words with respect to the colonies in general:

"Their economic body must have bled to death, if it had not been fed from outside with a constant blood-stream in the form of precious metal. Jewish commerce, however, directed this blood-stream into the colonies."*

Here also we meet again the extraordinary idea, either that all the Gold treasure in the world had always belonged to the Jews, or that the Jews had, in some way, produced the Gold themselves. In this respect one must always keep the fact clearly before one's mind, that the Jew, in general, produces nothing at all – neither goods nor money, but that he possesses an extraordinary knack of attracting the goods and money of others into his hands, in order to pass the same on further, after making a considerable profit for himself. And the simple fact arises of its own accord out of all this: if the Jews had not got the money, other people would have it; and other people would look after what commerce was necessary if the Hebrews were not always at hand to push them aside.

* It is a remarkable fact that no trace of the above is to be found in our colonies. Out of the 35 milliards of German capital, which Jewish trade has, for the most part, directed abroad, little enough has fallen to our colonies, although it was precisely there, where problems of incalculable importance for the development of the lands themselves and for the mother-country, awaited solution. These problems, however, were certainly not those of the money-bag alone.

[Page 74]

Therefore again it is a curious kind of exaggeration when the learned man, who pretends to regard matters objectively, states:

"The United States must thank the Jews that they – The United States – exist at all".

Is it not most peculiar that these Jews, who are supposed to convey riches and life with them in all directions, are never able to exist alone by themselves? That they have never been able to create a self-supporting state, and always required other men on whom to live, and of whom to take advantage? If the Jews were really the great cultural nation, which they are represented to be, they would, for once and all, separate themselves from all other nations, and, established in their own colonial kingdom, would give proof of their power and productivity.

Very probably a Jew was always on the spot wherever there was prospect of business; but certainly not to benefit the commonweal, but rather to utilise the opportunity and to lay claim to the best for himself. Sombart himself has portrayed the process of the colonisation of North America as follows:

"A body of absolutely reliable men and women – say twenty families – advanced into the wilderness, in order to begin life anew there. Amongst these 20 families, 19 would be equipped with plough and scythe, ready to cut down the woods, and to clear the steppe by fire, and, by the work of their hands, to support themselves by cultivating the land. But the twentieth family would open a shop in order to provide their comrades quickly, by means of trade, with the requisite utensils. This twentieth family would then, very soon, busy themselves with the sale of the products, which the 19 other families would have won from the soil. This family would be the one which would first have ready cash at its disposal, and thus would be in the position, in cases of need, to provide the others with loans. In many such cases a 'rural loan-bank' would attach itself to the shop etc etc."

He thus actually portrays, in sleek words, a picture of the part, which the Hebrew plays amongst the working and productive nations; it appears to us, however, that the real cultural work is done by the people with the pick-axe and the spade, with the plough and the scythe, and not by the shopman; and, there is no doubt that if no Hebrew is present to act as shop-keeper, amongst the 20 other families there will certainly be one, ready to act in this capacity as soon as the necessity arises.

[Page 75]

For, after all, nothing is so easily learnt as this elementary dealing in produce, and the lending of money; and we experience every day and in every direction how people of mean origin and very mediocre ability can take up this kind of business with complete success. That the Hebrew, with his peculiar talent for this branch of business, and, we may well add, with his ruthless exploitation of the situation, generally has more success than other and more ingenuous men, we are quite willing to admit.

Further, Sombart tries to prove to us nothing less than that the Hebrew has played an important part in the formation of the modern state. He acknowledges that the Jews are, by their very nature, a "non-national" or "unnational" people.

Actually with the exception of the former Jewish kingdom in Palestine, they have never been able to found a state anywhere in the world.* Nevertheless Sombart wishes to assign to leading Jewish politicians an important share in the modern state. It sounds almost like biting irony when he says:

"But even if we do not find any Jews amongst the rulers of the modern state, we can scarcely imagine these rulers, we can scarcely conceive of the modern prince, being without Jews".

Who, on reading the above, does not recall Talleyrand's venomous words:

"The Financier supports the state in the same way as the rope supports the man who is hanged!"

And even Sombart, on referring to the conjunction of Prince and Jew, cannot refrain from the ironical observation that if you have a Faust you must also have a Mephistopheles. He continues then:

"To consider that it was they (the Hebrews), before all others, who placed the material means at the disposal of the state, as it came into being, by which it could maintain itself and develop further."

* Even in this case they did not form, strictly speaking, a separate country, but lived in the midst of the native Edomites, Canaanites, Hittites, Amorites, Philistines, Galileans, Samaritans, and formed, apparently, only the monied bourgeoisie, while the real cultural work fell to the lot of the others.

[Page 76]

He certainly does not disclose to us where the Jews are accustomed to procure these means, namely: if not out of the state treasury, then out of the pockets of the people, who have been fleeced. Also, he does not disclose to us how the Hebrews, before all others, have practised the art of plunging all countries deep into debt, and again, how these state loans are nearly all negotiated and created by Jews, in which process there lies a rich profit for the broker or agent, as the state becomes, so to speak, a cow to be milked for the benefit of the Hebrews. One is entitled to ask the question: Do the Hebrews provide this money out of love for the Prince and the State? – or, do not they rather provide it in order, by this means, to make State and Prince dependent upon them, and to create an economic system, by which they can, as it were, continuously suck the marrow out of the bones of the nation?

One must again and again recall to one's mind that all the so highly-praised services of the Jews do not arise from the promptings of a humane heart but simply from the mania for profit.

It is equally a matter for amazement when Sombart, with extreme conscientiousness, gathers together all the facts of how the Jews have always acted as army-contractors in times of war, and appears inclined to assign great praise to them for having undertaken a most meritorious service on behalf of the state. The Jews certainly had a strong predilection for army contracts, and it is equally certain that they always enriched themselves immoderately by this means.

In the disclosures about Poland (Page 42) it was shown that the Jews, by means of their widely-extended organisation, held the whole of the grain- and cattle-trade in their hands, and thus there is nothing remarkable, if, in times of war, they are the first on the spot – and are the best able – to undertake army contracts. Nobody should believe that they do this out of self-sacrifice for the state, and that they actually give something away, but it is a specific Jewish tactic to represent sly profiteering as kindly acts undertaken for the good of the community.

[Page 77]

The following fact is immediately conceded; the non-Jewish nations, and especially the Germanic people, are somewhat simple and awkward as far as economic matters are concerned.

There are excellent, highly spiritual natures, in whom all matters of money and accounting arouse an inward repugnance. And it is just this weakness – which one is equally justified in regarding as strength, and which certainly has its foundation in a lofty and spiritual constitution – which the Hebrew has always known so well how to exploit. He was always ready to encourage this dislike to all money and commercial transactions, which existed, as one would naturally expect, in aristocratic circles, and offered his services as obsequious assistant and agent. Sombart says of a Court Jew, Moses Elkhonon, who lived in Frankfurt a. M. about 1700:

“The industrious man, who procured jewelry for the Princess, cloth for the livery of the head-chamberlain, delicacies for the head-cook, was also quite ready to negotiate loans.”

This would constitute in itself a meritorious beginning, and would allow the Hebrew to appear as a useful member of society, if he had confined himself to taking a moderate remuneration for the performance of the above duties, and had not mixed himself up in other affairs. But the Hebrew has no time and no inclination for the simple discharge, for a moderate remuneration, of such duties as have been mentioned: for him they are rather the opportunity to make other people dependent upon him, and to acquire a determining influence over affairs. Everywhere he plays the role of Joseph in Egypt, whom Potiphar placed in authority over all his property, and who soon lulled his lord and master into such a state of comfortable indolence that it is said of the latter:

“He made everything over into Josephs hands, and no longer took interest in anything except eating and drinking.”

This was the first step for Joseph towards the all-powerful position of the Finance-man of Egypt, in which capacity he fleeced country and people to their very shirts. (See I Moses 17, 13–20.)

[Page 78]

For the Hebrew does not aim merely at profit; he desires to exploit, to rule and to subjugate. He soon finds out how to place the yoke of compulsion on to his confiding clients, and to keep a tight hand over them. He is not acquainted with the maxim: “Live and let live;” he releases nothing until he has seized all for himself.

But it does not matter what the Hebrews do; Sombart always knows how to direct a ray of sunshine upon their deeds so as to beautify the same. Speaking of our time, he mentions boastfully, that, at the present day, the Court Jew has been done away with, and that the loaning of money (we could also say usury) to princes and states is no longer the business of one individual, but that all opulent Jewdom takes part cooperatively in the business. And Sombart regards this also as a virtue on their part. He says:

“And now again it is the Jews, who have helped to perfect this modern system of loans. It is they, who have made themselves superfluous as monopolizers of money-lending and, by so doing, have contributed so much the more to the founding of the great states.”

What nobility of soul! – might one exclaim. But one really does not know if it is supposed to be praise or blame, when Sombart ascribes the “Commercialisation of the Economic Life” to the Hebrews, understanding thereby, the resolving of all economic occurrences into sheer commercial transactions.

He discerns, as the final accomplishment of capitalism, the “transmutation of political economy into a series of Stock Exchange operations.”* He says:

"First of all a process is completed, which one might call the manufacture of credit, and the materialisation of the same in the shape of paper securities. Closely connected with this is the occurrence, known under the name of 'Mobilisation', or, if one prefers a German word, the marketing of these claims." (Page 60).

* Translator's note. To convey the exact sense of the word "Verborsianisierung" one must coin an English equivalent viz "Stock Exchangisation".

[Page 79]

We have accustomed ourselves, in modern times, to understand by the word "Credit" something full of value, and precious in the highest degree; sober-minded people call it in plain English: "Begging for a loan economy", and one might just as well call the "making objective of claims", the "conversion of all values into paper form", that is to say: the transformation of all objects of value into easily transportable Promissory Notes. The creative part, which the Jews play in this transformation of the economic life, we will allow to pass unchallenged; it is quite another question whether this proceeding finally is wholesome for mankind. It is not denied that objects of value, when transformed into paper (shares, mortgage-bonds, bills etc) are a commercial convenience, and facilitate the flow of business on the various markets. But, in this mobilisation of all values lies also a great economic danger.

Let one imagine, for instance, that a millionaire finally acquires the power of buying an unheard-of quantity of such paper securities, including the title-deeds to a considerable portion of our Father-land, which he then sticks into his pocket in order to take up his residence in some foreign country. In every case, everything, including even the land itself, is thus easily made an object for speculation. And in all this, the Hebrew pursues – if not a conscious calculation – then solely his racial instincts. The nomad, in whom the sense of constancy and of a desire for a permanent habitation is wanting, wishes to make everything transportable, so that it may easily be carried with him wherever he goes, just like the silver and golden vessels and utensils were taken out of Egypt.

The forerunner of the paper security, namely the saleable or negotiable promissory note, is already to be found in the Bible, and in the Talmud, as Sombart points out. The loaning of money and commercial business are actually the twin suns, around which the whole essence and being of Jewish life revolve, and so there is nothing to wonder at if these two conceptions find an important place in the religious writings of the Jews. One can learn from a certain passage taken from the Rabbi Schabbatai Cohen, and which Sombart quotes, that the activity of the Rabbis extended also into the business organisation. The passage mentioned speaks of regulations introduced by the Rabbis for the extension of commerce.

[Page 80]

The Rabbi in question regrets that the trade in promissory notes cannot be very large on account of the amount of detail involved in a transaction of this kind, boasts, on the other hand, that in his time (in the 17th century) the turnover in note-of-hand or paper acknowledgments was considerably greater than in actual property, and states therefore that the decrees of the Rabbis for the extension of trade deserve the closest consideration.

One can see from this that the rôle of the Rabbi in Jewdom is something quite different from that of a Christian pastor or clergyman. The Rabbi is not only priest and guardian of the soul, but he is also adviser on business matters,* and – as we shall learn later on – political organiser and leader of his congregation.

The conversion of all economic values into paper arises, in the case of the Hebrew, still more from the mania for creating continuously fresh material for trade; for trade appears to him to be a purpose in itself – as the real object of life, and all his thoughts are concentrated on the extension of trade.

To us, trade is only a necessary kind of evil, a servant, as it were, to production and consumption; the Hebrew, however, regards the world as having been created for the sole purpose of being turned into a huge shop full of goods. Whilst we regard each promissory note, each paper security, simply as representing a receipt for a loan or value received, the Hebrew makes “trade-material” out of the same. Sombart says:

“The effect (Paper Security) is intended by its very nature for traffic, and it has failed to perform its function if it is not traded with.”

This is a specific Jewish perception, which is not clear to us without further explanation, but we hear at once that it is grounded upon the nomadic view of the world:

“Any peculiarity, which our economic life experiences from the perfectionment of the paper security, is derived exclusively from the mobility of the same, which makes it extraordinarily well adapted for quick transfer.”

* This is made manifest by the fact that the Stock-Exchange prices from Berlin are announced by telephone to the Rabbis in the provinces at the same time as they are announced to the banking businesses in the same places.

[Page 81]

We ask: is then quick change of possession a necessity for a healthy condition of political economy? Is it indispensable for a settled and productive nation? Is anything of a positive nature accomplished by the continual “shoving-about” of values in all directions? Sound, economically productive circles have no interest in such a constant change of proprietors; steadiness and certainty of duration must appeal to them as far more desirable objects. But the Hebrew combines with this easy saleableness of values yet another purpose; the traffic in paper securities, owing to the perpetual shifting in values on the Stock Exchange, means to him constant opportunity for profit-making; and we shall learn later on, how this profiteering is carried on at the expense of the honest and productive section of the community.

During the perception of such matters the contrast between two views of the world unconsciously reveals itself. The settled man desires continuance and steadiness, the nomad sudden change and mobilisation. Sombart admits that this strange principle of easy change of proprietorship, and of constant alteration of values, was foreign to the German, and also to the Roman Law, and that it, in all probability, had its origin in Jewish mentality.* Quite comprehensible, for the law of mobilisation is the law of sudden change and revolution.

Sombart calls the Jewish Law “traffic-friendly”: that is only a circumlocution for the idea of mobilisation and the shifting of values. While we should like to see trade confined to what is necessary, the Jew strives to extend it beyond all limits, and into every conceivable domain. The constant endeavour of the Hebrews is to procure for trade the utmost freedom from restriction. Under the expression “Protection for the market”, they demand an unconditional recognition of, and sanction for all trade customs.

* Compare Richard Schroder: "Deutsche Rechtsgeschichte" (History of German Law.)

[Page 82]

They go so far as to demand that stolen articles, which are found in the hands of Jewish "receivers", shall not be reclaimed by the lawful owner. This principle has already been enunciated in the Talmud, and it has been repeatedly corroborated, especially in the Middle Ages, by the privileges given to the Jews. According to Jewish perception, the right to buy ranks higher than the right to own, and the relative legislation aims almost at giving privileges to receivers of stolen goods!

[Page 83]

VIII.

The Stock-Exchange.

The Jewish World of Trade and Mobilisation achieves its greatest triumph on the Stock-Exchange. The Stock-Exchange might well be – although Sombart does not put forward this claim on behalf of the Jews – in its present day form an invention of the Hebrews in every respect. Originally it was merely the meeting-place for merchants, where they bought and sold their goods according to sample. All trade on the Exchange related originally to "effective" goods, that is to say, to goods, which actually existed, and of which, samples had to be produced. Even today business of this kind is still transacted on the Exchange, but the extent of the trade there has increased considerably. Not only are goods bought and sold there, which are really warehoused somewhere, but also goods, which time alone can produce – yes, goods even, which do not exist and which never will exist. It is justifiable, under certain circumstances, to secure in advance, delivery of goods for a future date, and therefore purchase-contracts on the Exchange, which refer to a future delivery of the goods, are comprehensible.

The manufacturer, who has pledged himself for months in advance to supply certain of his customers with certain wares at regular intervals, is naturally interested in also securing the necessary raw material in advance. He accordingly buys "on term", that is to say: he enters into contracts today at fixed prices, which contracts shall only become "effective" at a future date or "term." Trade of this kind has nothing actually objectionable in itself, although it was simply forbidden on the sound mercantile exchanges of the olden times. But, at any rate, this method of doing business opened the path to unlimited speculation. By this means large quantities of goods can be bought and sold, which are never delivered, and which are never intended to be delivered.

[Page 84]

Buyer and seller make a bet, so to speak, as to whether a commodity at some future date will cost more or less than at the present moment. Settlement is effected on the following lines, that one party has to pay out, on the appointed date, the difference between the arranged price, and the price quoted, for the day in question, on the Stock Exchange list.

Thus this "term-trading" becomes simply a business of differences, and does not rank any higher than gambling and betting. This game of "differences" might appear harmless if it were a private affair, and did not exert its influence upon the genuine fluctuation in the prices of goods. For, when business in "differences" is undertaken to a far greater extent than the real business purchases, the basic price, at which the business in "differences" has been concluded, must, of necessity, influence the price of the actual goods. The fixing of the daily price results from the general average of the prices, at which the purchases have been concluded, and, generally speaking, one is not able to say whether the latter represent genuine sales of goods, or merely a gamble in "differences."

It can also be the case that someone buys himself free from his contract to deliver the actual goods, by paying the price difference. Accordingly there is no hard and fast line between genuine purchases and mere speculations in prices.

The essence of the so-called "speculation" consists in making sham purchases on the Stock Exchange so as to create an artificial influence on the movement of prices; and, apart from the fact that this gambling in "differences" ruins many a person, it is thoroughly repugnant to the sense of sound political economy. Strictly speaking, every purchase, which does not aim at satisfying the requirement of the moment, but has rather the object of utilising the occasion to lay up cheap goods for a future date, is of a speculative nature. It is more usual, however, to understand by speculation on the Stock Exchange, sham purchases and the trade with imaginary values, as opposed to trade in real values.

[Page 85]

The machinations, connected with unsound business on the Exchange, and which first appear on the Produce Markets, assume a more pronounced character on the Stock and Share Market. Here, along with the national loans, it is particularly the railway-stocks and the shares in industrial undertakings, which form an important object of trade. The computation of the value of the share depends, generally speaking, upon the rate of interest paid during recent years, which is not by any means an infallible guide as to what the returns will be in the future. The art of the guiding factors, on the Stock Exchange consists in creating, above all things, a favourable atmosphere.

Reports are inserted in the newspapers in order to cast a more or less favourable light upon an undertaking, and to anticipate a higher or lower dividend as the case may be. The public is thus seduced into buying or selling the paper securities in question. Certainly a preliminary condition to the successful carrying-out of this manoeuvre is that the public press puts itself at the disposal of the powers in question. This is easily managed. Some of the matadors of the Stock Exchange are themselves owners of newspapers, or are connected with the same as secret partners, others again, through the agency of influential banking-firms, procure favourable notices from the press by making considerable payments to the latter in the shape of orders for costly advertisements. By far the largest portion of the public press, in all countries, is actually under the influence of the magnates of the Stock Exchange, and to this extent Sombart is correct when he states that the Jews took a substantial part in the development of the modern Stock Exchange.

But business on the Stock Exchange only yields a sure result when it is transacted by secret collusion, that is to say by gangs or bands. If individual always opposed individual on the Stock Exchange, the formation and quotation of prices would pursue an even and reliable path, and profit and loss would be more or less dependent upon chance. It might then well happen that what was lost one day might be regained on another.

[Page 86]

Matters take a very different course when a secret organisation of certain brokers exists, and when all the partners in the same, who have a mutual understanding, operate simultaneously according to a pre-arranged plan. In a case of this kind, the price is like a ball, which can be tossed about at the pleasure of this organised clique.

Let anyone represent to himself the following position: the number of shares actually on the market are limited. One knows, for instance, the exact number of shares in any undertaking. If now, several of the larger banking firms and stockbrokers are working in conjunction with one another, they can very easily ascertain what number of the shares of any undertaking are held by the public, and what number are in the hands of the operating banks and brokers. The aim and object of the secret confederates – we will make use of a Jewish expression and call them the “Chawrusse” – consist, as one can easily understand, in buying up paper securities at a low price, and in selling the same at a high price. And this business is effected in the simplest way possible. As soon as any particular paper security is held to a very large extent by the public, all that is necessary to do is to arouse suspicion about the same. The view is spread abroad by means of suitable and cleverly-worded press-notices, that the security in question has no prospects, and that only a poor dividend can be expected. At once a number of the holders endeavour to get rid of the shares in question, and the price steadily falls as the shares are offered for sale. The large stock-brokers help in the process by instructing their agents on other stock-exchanges to offer, whatever they hold of the security in question, at declining prices. They do not run any risk by doing this, for nobody wants to buy the discredited shares. Thus, by reason of these carefully planned and continued influences, the price of the paper security in question falls, day by day; and then, and then only, when a heavy fall in the price has set in, does the “Chawrusse” begin, in all secrecy, to carry out their purchases. They buy up the shares, at the greatly depreciated price, and know how to maintain it at this low level until they hold the greater number of the shares in their own hands.

[Page 87]

Then the page is at last turned over. All at once, the “well-informed” financial press announces that the former suspicions, with regard to the prosperity of the undertaking, were without any foundation, and that it promises, on the contrary, to pay an excellent dividend very shortly. Immediately the price of the shares begins to “recover”, to use a stock-exchange expression, and here also assistance is given by the instigation of a zealous but absolutely artificial enquiry for the shares. But, for the time being, the “Chawrusse” withholds all the “material” i.e., the shares. The tension, due to the growing demand and the scanty supply, contributes to a further rise in the price, and it is only when the

"Chawrusse" consider that their profit is large enough that they begin to unload their stored-up shares at the enhanced price. If, after the course of several weeks or months, as the case may be, they have relieved themselves of enough of their treasure, they turn the point of the spear in the opposite direction. They suddenly make a forced sale of the remainder of their shares, and arrange that the financial press shall publish articles to correspond; the price gives way, and the old game begins once more. It is instructive to note that, in these transactions, it is invariably the "Chawrusse", who gain, and the dear Public who are duped.

Some simple-natured people look up with respectful awe to the ingenious heads, who direct our stock-exchange affairs, and who, in spite of all fluctuations on the Bourse, always contrive, with "miraculous certainty," to secure the advantage.

The former imagine that an almost superhuman capability is requisite to survey the situation on the money-market aright, and to grapple with the circumstances as they alter. Good, trusting folk! If they only knew how it was done they might well say, to paraphrase an old saying:

"One cannot believe what a little understanding is required to rule over the stock exchanges of the world."

[Page 88]

The indispensable condition for success, however, is combined action: the Chawrusse. He, who ventures into the combat on the Stock-Exchange as a free-lance, must not be surprised if he emerges from the struggle stripped of all his feathers. Success is assured only to organised bands. It is a well-known fact that, in every game, if two or more of the players have a secret understanding with one another, they always gain the advantage, and "Jet the others in." They know how to communicate by secret signs, and play into one another's hands. On this account also, one of the conspirators can attach himself to the losing side, without the least apprehension, for he knows that he will receive his share of the profits eventually from his fellow-conspirators.

This is the secret of the Stock Exchange. And it is only the elect of the people of Israel, who form the conspirators of the "Chawrusse." The transactions of the Stock-Exchanges, at the present day, are nothing less than swindling; the artificial quotations are made by the "Chawrusse," supply and demand are artificially created, and all this takes place with the sole object of fleecing the unsuspecting, productive nations by the continual rise and fall of the Stock Exchange quotations, and of adding incessantly to the wealth of Israel.

And this important secret, of which Sombart unfortunately has betrayed nothing to us,* is the secret combined action of the Hebrews, of which we spoke on page 39 and the following pages, and which extends over many other domains as well. This secret hand-in-hand working has always been the chief strength of the Jews, and which has naturally always given them an advantage over all sound, straightforward traders. We are not at all astonished when we read in Sombart:

"Already in the year 1685 the Christian merchants of Frankfort were complaining that the Jews had gained possession of the entire broker- and bill-discounting business;"

and that in the year 1733 the Hamburg merchants lamented that:

"The Jews were entirely masters of the bill-discounting business, and had out-stripped our people."

* Anyone, who requires further information on this subject, can find enlightenment in Kolk's "Das Geheimnis der Borsenkurse" (The secret of Stock Exchange quotations), Leipzig. Herm. Beyer 1893, and also in the Germanicus Pamphlets. See page 34.

[Page 89]

Let us then grant to the Hebrews the glory which Sombart claims for them; i.e., of being inventors of trading in "Futures" and of being the fathers of speculation ("Jobbing'") on the Stock Exchange. And this questionable practice is introduced by the Hebrews wherever they settle. During the 13th and 14th centuries, when they were present preponderatingly in Northern Italy*, Sombart informs us that stock-jobbing was, at that time, in full swing in Genoa, and that speculation, in the form of "futures" and "differences", was carried on to a considerable extent at Venice – so much in fact, that in the year 1421, a prohibition had to be issued against trading in bankers' bills.

The mania for speculation accompanied the Hebrews to Holland as well, where, in the course of the 17th century, the shares of the East India Company furnished the material for an arrant piece of stock-jobbing. It is there where Sombart seeks the source of the modern Stock Exchange speculation.

Here also was issued a proclamation of the States General in the year 1610, forbidding, "the sale of more shares than one actually possessed." This prohibition was followed by many others, whereby Sombart remarks: "naturally without having the slightest result." Our author (Sombart) boasts that the Jews invented dealing in shares. A questionable glory indeed, for, in a report from the French ambassador at the Hague to his government in the year 1698, the former expresses himself in an extremely outspoken manner:

"the Jews have control of the entire business in paper securities on the Stock Exchange, and regulate it as they see fit"; and, according to the same report, "the prices of shares fluctuate so incessantly that they give rise to transactions several times in the course of the day, a kind of business, which rather deserves the name of gambling or betting, all the more, as the Jews, who are at the bottom of all this activity, carry out masterstrokes of artifice, by which the people are again and again 'let in' and made fools

of."

* The business of loaning paper securities (Lombardising?) which takes its name from the Lombards, dates from this period.

[Page 90]

Sombart informs us, with reference to the activity of the Hebrews in England, during the reign of William III. (1689– 1702), that the chief negotiators of the first loan were Jews; they were ready at hand with their advice when the Orangeman began his reign. The rich Hebrew, Medina, was banker to the English Commander-in-chief, Marlborough (1650–1722), and paid the latter a fixed yearly salary of £6,000 (120,000 Marks), for which he acquired the right to receive all the war intelligence direct from head-quarters.

"The victories of the English army brought as much profit to him as they reflected glory on the soldiers of England." (Sombart page 106) – "All the tricks of raising and depressing prices, false news from the theatre of war, the pretended arrival of couriers, the secret coteries on the Stock Exchange, the entire hidden machinery of Mammon, were well known to the first fathers of the Bourse, and were utilised by them to the utmost extent.”

We learn concerning Mannasseh Lopez, the body-physician of Queen Elisabeth of England, that he made a large fortune by circulating a false report that the Queen was dead, and by buying up the public funds which consequently fell in value.* Nathan Meyer Rothschild of London had reports sent to him in Brussels, by Jewish spies, concerning the issue of the battle of Belle-Alliance, so that he could travel back with the news to London by express post and special ship. On his arrival he circulated a false rumour concerning the result of the battle, which was the immediate cause of a tremendous drop in the prices of English and German paper securities. He bought up the depreciated securities secretly in enormous quantities, and, when 24 hours later, the London Stock Exchange learnt the true issue of the battle, and, at the same time, that Rothschild had made fools of them, he – Rothschild – was many millions richer.

Sombart allows that John Law (1671 – 1721) the author of the notorious fraud in the shares of trading companies, may have been a Hebrew, and that his real name was probably Levi.

* He ended on the gallows, a fate which he incurred for betraying the English interests to Philip II of Spain. (Drumont: “La France juive.”)

[Page 91]

Of kindred spirit to these Jewish “statesmen” was the notorious “Demon of Wiirttemberg”: Siss-Oppenheimer (hanged 1734).

The Hebrews also introduced the traffic in shares into Hamburg, in the 18th century, and carried it on to such an outrageous extent, that the Hamburg Council issued a proclamation, in 1720 prohibiting the practice. Today, it is represented as being the narrow view of reactionary circles to speak of business on the Stock Exchange with anything but the most profound respect; but, as Sombart himself confesses, this view of those, who are called today “Provincials” and “Agrarians”, was, in the 18th century, the settled opinion of the sound merchant. During the debate upon John Bernhardt Act in the English Parliament in 1733, the “infamous practice of stockjobbing” was condemned unanimously by all the speakers.

What have not our Hebrews accustomed us to in the meantime! Sombart has already said (P. 112) of the time in question: “Public debts were regarded as the shameful side – ‘Partie honteuse’ – of national life. The best men saw, in the rapidly advancing indebtedness, one of the worst evils, which could be inflicted upon the community."

The extension of the market in shares from 1800 – 1850 is regarded by Sombart as being of equal significance as the expansion of the House of Rothschild:

"The name of Rothschild means more than the firm; it means all Jewdom as far as the Stock Exchange is concerned; for, only with the help of their compatriots could the Rothschilds reach their position of power, which dominates all others, and obtain the entire mastery of the Stock Exchange."

This is a complete confirmation of the "playing into one another's hands", which characterises the Jews, and which we have always insisted upon; this is our "Chawrusse'" and its secret; this is organised Jewdom, which has turned the Stock Exchange into a cupping-glass to bleed the nations (compare chapter IV).

Sombart says further:

"Tf, in this way, the sphere of the money-lender was considerably extended, the Rothschilds also took good care to adopt further measures for squeezing the last farthing out of the community. This was brought about by skilfully utilising the Stock Exchange for the purpose of emission or issuing into circulation."

[Page 92]

This step on the part of the Rothschilds soon brought into this kind of activity other, and questionable followers and imitators, in the shape of "Banks of issue or emission." These deflect German "spare" capital abroad to an incredible extent (but not to our colonies!)* – thereby depriving the home country of the money, which is required for economic purposes, and depressing the value of our national paper securities, upon which countless citizens depend for the proper and regular payment of their interest. These "banks of issue," at the same time, secure enormous profits for themselves by their activity, which is absolutely destructive to all national economy, and which is either inadequately taxed, or escapes taxation altogether. Only a severe legal restriction and even, from time to time, an absolute prohibition of the issue of foreign securities, by means of the Stock Exchange, could remedy this nuisance.

Sombart then continues:

“‘Create a favourable atmosphere’, was the watchword, which, from this moment, dominated all traffic on the Stock Exchange. ‘Creating a favourable atmosphere’, was the aim and object of the unceasing fluctuations in the market-prices, caused by the systematic sale and purchase of shares, just as the Rothschilds manoeuvred when they were about to ‘launch an issue’. In order to obtain command of the Stock Exchange and the Money Market, all possible means, which stood at their disposal, were utilised; all paths, which might lead to the attainment of the desired object, were traversed; every conceivable trick of the Stock Exchange, and of anywhere else, was practised; all levers were put into motion; money was sacrificed both in large and small sums. The Rothschilds practised ‘Agiotage’ (Stock-jobbing) in the narrower sense which the French attach to the word. Up till then, the great banking houses had never done this, at any rate, openly. The Rothschilds employed the expedient of artificially influencing the market by creating a favourable atmosphere, which practice had been introduced by the Amsterdam Jews for a new object viz the launching of shares.”

* The amount of German “working” capital, invested abroad, was estimated in 1912 at 35 Milliards of marks (France 30, England – colonies excepted – 33 Milliards of marks).

 On the occasion of the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the accession of the Emperor William II., when there was a great deal of grandiloquent talk concerning the “unexampled development” of the German economic life during the past 25 years, the “7-gliche Rundschau” published, side by side, for the purpose of comparison, several Stock Exchange quotations from 1888 and 1913. According to this, the following prices were current:

| 1888 | 1913 |
|-------------------------|--------------|
| 4% German Imperial Loan | 107.00 98.10 |
| 312% | 102.00 84.90 |
| 4% Prussian Consols | 106.90 98.10 |
| 312% | 103.50 84.90 |

Here is proof, in cold, hard figures, of crushing weight, with which to confront those who speak of the "unexampled development of the last 25 years", and of the blessings conferred on the nation by the "Emission-activity," or the "Activity in issuing", of certain "great banks", which "opens the doors of foreign countries", but which, however, only causes the empire, our states and cities, and finally our citizens, enormous losses.

[Page 93]

This is a literal quotation from Sombart; and it is the same thing, which the wicked Anti-Semites have been saying for 30 years. This activity of a great banking-house had in view, the placing of golden fetters upon Governments, in order to compel the latter to create more public debts. The Rothschilds have made it their business to burden the different countries with the necessary public debts; with this object in view they understood how to create artificially the occasion for making a public or national debt. According to the latest reports (1913) they have reached Ecuador with their "opening-up activity."

Soon we shall hear the Press tune up, preparatory to bursting into hymns of praise concerning this "and of promise".

In addition to the fabrication of public bonds and obligations by the gentlemen, who manufacture stocks and shares, the Flotation and Mortgage business soon made an appearance. The industrial undertakings were "financed" and "discounted", on a miniature scale, in just the same way as the various states were on a large scale. In order to provide new trading values for the Stock Market, it became necessary to buy up the sound businesses of private people, and to convert the same into shareholder companies; that is to say, to float them. Otto Glogau has bequeathed to us a valuable book about the Flotation Swindle in Berlin in the years 1870-1873*.

* "Der Borsen- und Griindungsschwindel in Berlin" (The Stock Exchange and Flotation-Swindle in Berlin) Leipzig 1877.

[Page 94]

It shows that, in this case also, the Hebrews were always the active spirits, and that it was only for the better concealment of this fact, as far as the public was concerned, that a number of more or less innocent Germans - aristocrats whenever it was possible to procure them - were pushed to the front as dummies.

What Jews, and the companions of Jews, brought to pass on this occasion, belongs to the most impudent of political comedies.

When, according to their opinion, they had sufficiently plundered the masses at the time of the Flotations, and saw their erections of swindles on the verge of collapsing, they put up their tribal companion, Lasker, the then leader and particular star of the National Liberal Party, in the Reichstag, to play the part of the suppressor of “Flotations’’. He then unearthed, with great tumult, several members of the Conservative Party whom, he asserted, were implicated in “Flotations’’, but let the chief culprits, who were his tribal brethren and Liberal Party friends, escape scot-free. Thereby he secured the double advantage of diverting the resentment of the public, who had lost enormous sums, from the real culprits to the opposing political parties, and of posing, at the same time, as the guardian of public morality. The Jew-controlled press also helped, for all it was worth, to fan the universal indignation against the unfortunate scapegoats in the Conservative camp.*

Our professional political economists of the High Schools unfortunately do not report any of these ugly facts, any more than they mention the baneful effect, which the game on the Stock Exchange has on the National Wealth, and on the entire economic and public life: they even lift up their voices in praise of the beneficial development of the Stock Exchange, and all connected with it.

* The Jewish statistician, Ernst Engels, estimated the losses on the Berlin Stock Exchange alone, during the “Flotation Years”, at 700 million Thalers, and Glogau estimated double.

[Page 95]

Glogau, in his book, which we have already mentioned, calls the learned political economists the chief allies of the “Flotation” gang, because they so disgracefully neglect their duty as instructors and guardians of the people, and he regards it as being beyond doubt that many of these political economists are directly paid for their opinion and instruction by the Stock Exchange.

Sombart then proceeds to speak of the “commercialisation of Industry”: it would be better to use plain English, and to call it

“converting Industry into material to job and huckster with’. Industry

thus becomes a mere object of speculation for the Stock Exchange; Production is a matter of secondary importance. "In the Speculation Banks", says Sombart, "capitalistic development reaches its highest point. With their help, the commercialisation of the economic life is carried to the extreme, and Stock Exchange organisation becomes complete." He then says concerning these Speculation Banks:

"They take part, to a very considerable extent, in speculation, either directly or else by way of the 'Report' business, which, it is notorious, has become, at the present moment, the mightiest and most important lever of speculation. By means of loaning speculative securities, the banks are thereby placed in a position, by acquiring other securities at a cheap price, to create the impression that money is plentiful and is accompanied also by a desire to buy. Thus, on the one hand, a power of creating an upward movement in prices is easily acquired, and this power can be reversed just as easily to depress prices, by depreciating the store of available securities. The great banks accordingly, hold the handle, which controls the machine called the Stock Exchange, literally in their hand." (Page 129) And further: "The heads of the banks, who control the Stock Exchange, tend more and more to become entire masters of the economic life."

Sombart refers to the notorious "Crédit mobilier" in Paris as nothing better than a speculation bank. This "bank" was founded by the Portuguese Jews, Isaac and Emil Pereira; other large share-holders in this undertaking are Torlonia of Rome, Salomon Heine of Hamburg, and Oppenheim of Cologne. Sombart also includes in the species of speculation-banks, the Berlin Diskonto-Gesellschaft, founded by David Justus Ludwig Hanseemann, and the Berlin Handels-Gesellschaft, in close connection with which, stand the Darmstadt Bank, and the Berlin banking firms of Mendelsohn, Bleichroder, Warschauer, and the brothers Schickler.

[Page 96]

The above-mentioned also adds:

"The Jewish elements also preponderate amongst the founders of the Deutsche Bank." (Page 129)

Thus, the international character of the "Speculation-Banks" is proved, and accordingly the part which they play in the trade and intercourse of the world.

IX.

How Sound Business Methods are forced out of the field by the Jews.

Sombart also recognises the Jewish influence upon the mental attitude adopted by the capitalist towards political economy. He acknowledges that, owing to the peculiar Jewish spirit, something of an alien nature is introduced into our life, and he is in a position to understand how it is that, merchants, who are not Jews, and their spokesmen resent these conditions, and display a deep sense of injury, which is quite comprehensible. He perceives in all this a:

“quite natural reaction against the Jewish disposition, which is of a fundamentally different order.”

He refers constantly to the pages of history in order to establish how the sound commercial spirit has protested for centuries, in a similar manner, against the disorder caused by the Jews in trade. Everywhere and always the same complaint. Thus, the various trades and professions in the Mark of Brandenburg, in the year 1672, complain:

“that the Jews take away the food from the mouths of the other inhabitants of the land.”

The mercantile community of Danzig, in the year 1717, expressed themselves in almost identical terms. In 1740 a petition to the Prince Bishop of Mainz complains:

“that it is a matter of common knowledge that the Jews are the cause of ruin and destruction to the rest of the community.”

And it is the same story in every country to which the Jews come. In England also, the sound mercantile community resists the intrusion of the Jewish spirit with similar expressions of opinion. The business people of Toulouse in France complained in the year 1745:

“We implore you urgently to check the progress of this nation, as there is no doubt whatever that it will wreck the entire trade of Languedoc.”

In Sweden, in Poland, everywhere the same picture.

[Page 98]

A moralist of that period reports with reference to the Jewry of Berlin:

"They support themselves by means of robbery and deceit, which, according to their ideas, are not regarded as crimes."

The behaviour of the Jews was felt universally to be an offence against the good customs of the commercial community. Sombart concedes that, in all this, a battle between two antagonistic views or perceptions of the world is evident. In the settled organisation of society as it used to be, in what are called "the olden times," man was the centre of interest, and the object of all regulations and laws was to render the existence of the honest worker as secure as it could be made. The production of goods was proportioned to the actual need, and, in the sound development of all businesses, each honest worker and trader received his fair share. Struggling to obtain unlimited profit was regarded as improper and un-Christian; nobody deliberately endeavoured to enrich himself by damaging, or at the expense of, another. A spirit of social harmony pervaded all, each found his own path, and could exist honestly.

Into this state of social harmony the Jew now stepped, with his entirely different mind and irreconcilable disposition. He had nothing to give – neither productive talents nor capacity for honest, straightforward work; consequently he had to secure an existence by cunning. To him, trade was not only – as it was according to the Christian perception – the willing companion of, or the necessary complement to Production and Consumption, but a way and means also for the enrichment of the individual, and for the obtainment of mastery over others. A moderate profit meant nothing to him; he desired great surpluses, which would enable him to heap up capital and thereby become a despot with the power to oppress.

This new tendency naturally brought a very disturbing element into the organic nature of society as it was then constituted. Up till that time all business life and all social cooperation had been based on good-will and trust; now a hostile element stepped between, an element which did not lay claim to be trusted, and did not repose trust in anyone.

[Page 99]

The Hebrew considered that he was quite within his rights in abusing the confidence of others; he even despised them on that account, and designated trustfulness as sheer stupidity. This is the bottomless chasm, which separates the Hebrews' view of life from ours, and across which no bridge will ever be constructed. The contest has always been an unequal one for the two antagonists. The Hebrew arrived as conscious opponent, with no quarter for those who were not Jews; the artless Christian Aryan, however, took pains, in accordance with the teachings of his religious instructors, to see, in the Hebrew, a fellow-man who was to be met, before all others, with trust and love, because he belonged to the nation from which our Saviour was said to be sprung. Thus, heart and home were opened alike, in all directions, to the foreign intruder. The latter knew well how to profit splendidly by this, but not without sneering to himself at the confidence reposed in him, which he regarded as nothing less than stupidity. And, as a matter of fact, it is fit material for derision that the Aryan nations, even up to the present day, fail to grasp the situation.

Certainly there has been a silent conspiracy for centuries on the part of School and Church, on the part of the Law and the Press, to mask this situation, but, now and again, sound national common-sense perceived instinctively that the crime, which the ancient Jews committed against the Saviour, outweighed ten times any merit, which their successors might claim, on account of their descent, and the contemporary Jews were taken for what they really were: mysterious beings, alien in blood and country, usurers, dabblers, spies, cheats and voluptuaries.

The complaints of those, who carried on industry in the olden times, are all pitched in the same key, like the reluctant admissions of the clergy, concerning the spoliation of the departing crusaders in the 13th century, whom the Jews deprived of everything they possessed in exchange for bad equipment and faulty weapons.

[Page 100]

Thus we read – very significant with respect to the mania for dealing, which dominates the Jews – in a complaint from the tradespeople of Hannover in the 18th century:

“The trade in manufactured goods has fallen completely into the hands of the Jews. The Jew, by preference, stocks his shop with foreign hats, shoes, stockings, leather gloves, furniture and ready-made clothing of all kinds, and on the other hand, they prefer to export all raw material out of the country” (compare page 42).

And again: "the Jews entice away the customers of their neighbours. They lie in waiting everywhere, both for the buyers and the sellers', a practice which had been regarded hitherto as a gross offence against commercial etiquette. In 1685, the gold workers in Frankfort a.M. complained that the Jews had secretly bought up, under their very noses, and carried off by means of their numerous spies, all the available scrap gold and silver. In 1703, the furriers at KOnigsberg gave utterance to a similar plaint, to the effect that the Jews, Hirsch and Moses, together with their followers, overreached them in the purchase and sale of furs, and caused them great loss (Sombart page 161).

"When troops are quartered in the town, they – the Jews – run after the soldiers and officers, and endeavour to entice them into their shops, in order to take away the custom from the other tradespeople."

Under their influence also, the pedlar or hawker-business develops into a perfect nuisance; in 1672 the various trades and professions in the Mark of Brandenburg complain that "the Jews run from village to village, and round the towns, hawking their wares, and forcing the same upon the inhabitants."

In Frankfurt on the Oder the complaint was "that the Jews pursued possible customers in all directions – travellers in their hotels, the nobility in their castles, and the students in their lodgings," because they are not content, like the other tradespeople, to lay up goods in their store-rooms, but endeavour by importunity to force the sale of their wares, and thereby to deprive the other business people of their share of the local trade. On the occasion of the great fairs also, the Jews overrun all the restaurants and inns, in order to entice all possible customers to themselves.

[Page 101]

It is reported from Nikolsburg in Austria that they – the Jews – have possessed themselves of all the trade, all the money, and all the material. They lie in wait for customers outside the town, force themselves upon the travellers, and endeavour to keep them away from the establishments of Christian tradespeople. They listen to every conversation, keep watch for the arrival of strangers, and know how to derive benefit immediately, from every kind of disaster, by hastening to the homes of those concerned with their offers and quotations. Yes, their importunity is sometimes carried so far that it becomes physical compulsion; they attempt to drag reluctant customers by force into their shops, a mode of operation – the so-called "tearing" at a person – which was in full swing on the "Muhlendamm'" in Berlin during the “seventies” and “eighties” of the last century. The Hebrews lay in wait at their shop-doors, like spiders in their webs.

They stopped any passerby, who appeared to show the slightest interest in their goods, which were spread out even up to the pavement, and tried either to entice, or to tug him by force into the shop. This progeny of Jewish business enterprise has been called “Vermin-picker” business, a fact also cited by Sombart. Yes, the Jewish street-dealers even went so far as to erect their stalls, or to push their barrows, straight in front of the shop of a Christian competitor, in order to deprive him of his customers.

To attract customers to himself, by any and every means, is the sole aim and object of the Jewish dealer, and, in doing so, he does not allow any consideration of decency or shame to stand in his way. The Hebrew was the first to force hostility, as a principle, upon our business life; that pernicious principle, which asserts that the most important task in trade is to alienate the customers of other men, and to regard any and every means as permissible, which can be utilised for trampling under foot all business competitors.*

* If there was only some way of making all this known throughout all classes of our community! Then one might indeed expect that the displeasure of all honest people would be directed against such conditions, and that the pernicious stranger would be turned out of our national life for once and all. But, in this respect, the public press fails completely; in fact, it places its services with preference at the disposal of the Jews.

[Page 102]

The Hebrew has also carried advertising and soliciting in the newspaper to a stage where it is not only offensive to good taste but outrages public decency as well. Some years ago, the title, “Down with all competition!” was the favourite cry of the Jewish advertisers. The degeneration of newspaper advertising brought yet another disadvantage in its train, and that was that the public press became more and more dependent upon Jewish mountebanks and quacks, in order not to lose the advertisements of these people, it placed itself completely at their service. And today no public newspaper of importance dares to publish anything derogatory to Jewdom, if it does not wish to lose all Jewish advertisements on the spot, and to be boycotted by the whole Jewish community – a consequence of the unholy alliance between what should properly be the political newspaper, and the advertiser.

Thus, under Jewish influence, trade has completely lost its original, sound motive of acting as intermediary between producer and consumer, and has degenerated into laying cunning snares for customers. And it is on this account that the complaint of all sound business people in all ages, bears always the same refrain: the Jew ruins trade, because he disregards all rules and refuses to recognise any principle except the acquisition of money.

1. Certain Jewish trade-tricks.

An especially questionable kind of trade-tactics, practised by the Jews, consists in taking undue advantage of the difficulties which beset the producers of goods. Thus, the Jews know well how to utilise the occasional embarrassments, both of workman and manufacturer, to force the goods out of them at exceptionally low prices: yes, they also know how to prepare a difficult situation for the producer, and to lead him into the same by all manner of tricks. This complaint is an ancient one. Thus, a report of the wholesale-traders of Augsburg in the year 1803 reads as follows:

[Page 103]

"The Jews endeavour to profit out of the universal distress; they force goods out of the man, who happens to be in urgent need of money, at scandalously low prices, and upset and ruin the regular trade by selling these goods again at absurdly inadequate prices." (Sombart page 168).

Unfortunately, even the authorities, since the decay of the trade-guilds (beginning of the 18th century) have been short sighted enough to support this essentially Jewish policy. They allowed themselves to become corrupted by the cheap offers of the Hebrews, and never asked by what means the Jew came into possession of the goods, which he could offer so cheaply. A memorandum of the Chancery of the Court of Vienna, dated May 12th 1762, states bluntly:

"it is advisable to make military contracts with the Jews, as their quotations are much lower."*

It is a remarkable fact that, in spite of this, the Jewish army contractors have always become rich. It stands to reason that they must have over-reached someone, whether it was the State, or the unfortunate manufacturers.

The ways and means, by which the Hebrew obtains possession of cheap goods, are many; we have already mentioned the spoliation of the producer, who happens to be in difficulties. But the Hebrews also utilise the collapse of business concerns to get hold of parcels of goods very cheaply; they even know how to bring these collapses about purposely, by scheming amongst themselves, in order to transfer the goods from one to the other at a very low price. Levi, who has just opened a new business, knows how to obtain goods on credit. For several times in succession, he fulfills his obligations to the merchant, who supplies him, conscientiously, and by so doing, gains the latter's confidence. Gradually he increases the quantity of goods ordered, and keeps on taking longer and longer credit. The supply-merchants, obviously impressed by the apparent development of the business, are loath to lose such a good customer, and continue to give longer and longer credit.

* We know only too well, from our experiences in mobilisations since that time, what has been the result of following this advice. Hundreds of thousands of soldiers, belonging to the various European Powers, have had to sacrifice their lives or their health in order to satisfy the profiteering greed of Jewish contractors, who supplied clothing of inferior quality, and adulterated food and medicaments.

[Page 104]

Levi, however, with the help of his compatriots, sells the goods far under the proper price, that is to say, he becomes the middleman for other Jewish businesses, which "cut" prices. He sells the goods to these businesses, at a price, which is actually lower than what the factory charges him; when he has stretched his credit as far as he dares, he declares himself a bankrupt, and the supply-merchants, who have been under the impression that their customer held a large stock of goods, discover an empty nest, and have to satisfy themselves by agreeing to accept from the debtor a meagre percentage of what he really owes them. There is no particular skill or art in delivering goods, or, in other words, selling cheaply, if such means are adopted. The Hebrew, who knows only too well how to reverse the order of things, has, in this case also, reversed the normal business principle: sometimes he does not try to make a profit out of his customers, but makes his gain at the expense of the manufacturers and supply merchants. He sells the goods actually cheaper than he buys the same, and ends by never paying for the greater part. This peculiar method of carrying on business has actually procured for the Hebrew the reputation of being a philanthropist, because he "helps" poor people to obtain cheap goods – that he makes presents, in fact, to the purchasing public; but only a few are aware that he does this out of other people's pockets. Since time immemorial the Hebrew has been a master of the art of doing good at somebody else's expense.

It is a matter of common knowledge that he is always ready to receive goods, which have been acquired in an underhand and illegal manner. He buys pledged, attached and stolen goods whenever the opportunity presents itself. For preference he endeavours to acquire wares, which are cheaper, either because they have flaws, or, because they have been rejected for some other reason, the so-called "job-lots", which the genuine business-people will not accept on account of small imperfections. The Hebrew reckons on the shallow nature and general lack of any expert knowledge on the part of the public, and knows well how to dispose of such articles to his customers under the guise of genuine wares, which are worth every penny of the price charged for them.

[Page 105]

2. Lowering of the standard of production. (Cheap and bad)

Sad to say, owing to the influence of Jewish machinations, the manufacture of many products has degenerated. Any notion of quality in goods, has, for the most part, disappeared, and a great demand has sprung up, on the contrary, for the production of cheap and trashy goods. The genuine business people do their best to protect themselves against this unclean traffic, and endeavour to take proceedings against the "cutter", when he tries to pass off his inferior wares as being equal in value to those of better quality. The trade protection associations have frequently brought actions against the "cutters" with satisfactory results; but, in many cases, trade experts have been obliged to concede that differences in the quality of the material, and of the labour are extremely difficult to establish, even when they are responsible for a reduction of from 10 – 15 per cent of the value of the genuine article. And thus the Hebrew is enabled to keep on reducing the quality of the goods, and to injure the producers as well as the purchasing public.

Our average purchasing public of today is unfortunately far too frivolous to attach value to genuine goods. The Hebrew has carefully trained it, before all things, to seek for and find its satisfaction in "Modernity" and "Appearance", instead of insisting, first of all, on appropriateness and durability, which, in all cases, allow themselves to be combined with a pleasing shape. Most people desire to possess what glitters and dazzles for the moment, quite indifferent as to whether it soon loses its value, and has to be thrown on one side, only to be speedily replaced by some new and equally cheap and showy trash. Thus, not only does the national political economy enter upon a dangerous road, but the national mode of living, and the national morals follow. The delusive arc lights of the great "Stores" are not only destructive to genuine business but are ruinous to the nation itself.

[Page 106]

As Sombart concedes, the Jew is the author or originator of the substitute in its most extensive sense, i.e., in plain English: the Jew is the author or originator of adulteration and falsification in trade.

Many goods of inferior value, which have been produced according to the Jewish principle, have actually received the name "Jewgoods." Thus, one speaks of "Jew-linen", "Jewcotton" and other "Jew-stuff". A particular trick in Jewish business circles, consists in giving less than the proper weight or measure, in the case of goods where weight and measure are difficult to check.* When the new system of weights was introduced, purchasers, according to custom, still demanded an extra "quarter of a pound", or whatever the extra amount might be, and the Hebrew knew only too well how to utilise the opportunity by giving only a fifth instead of a quarter. It is also a matter of common knowledge that a "Jews Gross" is only about 100 instead of 144. If it was formerly customary to maintain in justification of the Jewish method of trading that the Jew could afford to sell and deliver more cheaply, because his way of living was more unpretending and he could subsist on very modest means, this argument is no longer valid. It is notorious that the Hebrews of the present day maintain a most luxurious existence, and their womenfolk especially endeavour to surpass all other classes – even Royalty and the aristocracy – in luxury and ostentation.

One point must be conceded to the Jews; that by increasing sales for cash to the utmost possible extent they accelerate the turnover. A quick turnover, at any rate, makes it possible for the merchant to content himself with a smaller profit, and yet to maintain the standard of his existence. It is the methods, by which the Hebrew procures the quick turnover, which are for the most part questionable, and which disclose their injuriousness in other branches of the economic life.

* Women, in particular, are victims of this practice, for, they allow, for instance, "English thread", which is measured by the yard instead of by the metre, to be forced upon them.

[Page 107]

For, in the last analysis, trade is not the sole aim of trade; the mission of human life is not to produce as much as possible; for enhanced consumption can be injurious to the individual as to the community. Just as excessive nourishment and excessive enjoyment are detrimental to the individual, so are the stimulation and enhancement of the economic functions by no means beneficial in all cases.

The Hebrew turns gladly to the maxim: "Quick turnover and small profits", and utilises it as an advertisement for his particular methods. And, in this case also, it is essentially a matter of discovering a means wherewith he can dazzle and infatuate.

3. Deviating mode of thought.

The nature of the Jewish mode of thinking is such that it functions quite differently to the normal understanding. The Hebrew thinks, as it were, round the corner; his thoughts travel by the opposite path to the natural one. Whilst the Aryan intelligence directs itself towards production and building up, the Hebrew is meditating everywhere on confusion and exhaustion, on ruin and dismemberment. He seeks his advantage in the injuries of others, his advancement in the oppression of his fellow-men, who do not happen to be Jews.

Jewish thought is always of a negative nature; the Hebrew is the born bacillus of decomposition. Hence it is that a healthy human mode of thinking can only follow the Jewish speculative machinations with great difficulty; and for the same reason, the Hebrew remains an incomprehensible being to the majority of mankind. The Jew is well acquainted with our mode of thinking and feeling, but we know nothing about his. The Hebrew reckons with certainty upon our straightforward conclusions, but we are quite unable to keep step with his crooked thoughts. The Jew, therefore, seldom makes a miscalculation when dealing with a German, but the German almost always, when dealing with the Jew. The Hebrew tries to guide our thoughts into a direction where he can follow their sequence closely – so closely that we are bound to fall into the trap laid for us.

[Page 108]

He has learnt to think the thoughts of other men in advance; we, however, have not practised the art of following the zig-zag workings of his mind. And thus the Hebrew has acquired an apparent superiority over us which, however, in the final analysis, is only based on a habitual perversion of the natural way of thinking and feeling. His whole endeavour has but one aim, namely, to direct the impulses and activities of others in order to misuse the same. The Hebrew is not a natural being with straightforward impulses; everything in him is diverted and perverted. His warped mind is simply a machine for provoking and harassing. Anyone, who has not gradually learned to know the eccentricity and subtlety of the Jewish mode of thinking by long personal intercourse with Jews themselves – and naturally very few Christians have the opportunity to gain this experience – is quite incapable of pursuing the Jewish train of thought unless he has obtained insight into the true Jewish spirit by reading the Rabbinical writings.

Everything there – based on direct denial of reason and morality – is turned topsy-turvy, and is directed against the natural feelings and disposition of humanity. He, who has not studied, in some measure, the books of the Talmud, will never come to a right understanding concerning the Jews.

All the motives and activities of the Jewish brain are directed towards obtaining advantage and material gain. And, in spite of this, the Hebrew imagines that, especially with regard to morality, he is a very exalted being. No one speaks more effusively about ethical values than the Jews, but whoever takes the trouble to examine what they understand by that expression, discovers that they mean the art of seeking their advantage by means of the understanding, under the pretext that they are engaged in some praise-worthy and unselfish effort. If one wished to sum up Jewish morality in one concise phrase, it would read as follows:

“All is moral which brings advantage.”

The Jew is incapable of applying a higher standard to the values in life than that of advantage or profit.

[Page 108]

The Jewish perception can be formulated in yet another way:

“Morality is the art of over reaching other people, and of creating, at the same time, the impression of a benevolent disposition – in fact, of representing what is in reality an offence against others as an act of charity.”

(During the recent war, we had ample opportunity of admiring with what masterly skill this doctrine was put into practice by the English statesmen, who had graduated in the Talmudic school.)

Sombart quotes one passage from the "Universal treasure house of Commerce", which presents the sound morality of a merchant of the old school in the most striking contrast to the present-day Jewish perception.

"If you happen to be the sole possessor of a particular class of goods, you are entitled to a fair and honest profit, that is to say, your conscience must be satisfied that you have not exceeded what is Christian like, and your mind must be at rest upon this point."

The Hebrew is incapable of understanding a moral summons like the above; it would, in fact, excite his derision. The religious and moral command had always the first consideration in all Christian business in olden times; it remained for the Jew to chase all morality out of the economic world. He regards everything which brings profit as permissible. He has made the mammonistic idea the dominating influence in our life, with his dogma:

"He who serves Mammon pleases God"

— for the real God of the Jew is Mammon, a fact which, Karl Marx, himself of Jewish descent, openly admitted.

[Page 110]

X.

Jewish Trade Specialities.

1. Professional Bankruptcy.

Bankruptcy means to the sound tradesman the severest misfortune which can befall him; in most cases, it spells for him not only economic, but also social and moral extinction.

The German tradesman therefore, devotes all his energy, and all his reserves, to avert this calamity; and, just as an honourable captain does not desert his sinking ship so long as he is alive, so many a German merchant has considered himself unable to survive the disgrace of his bankruptcy. In any case, a genuine German tradesman emerges from his bankrupt business as poor as a church mouse, and shuns the public disgrace.

In this respect also, the Jewish morality and mode of thinking, which are of quite a different kind, have brought about a change which, unfortunately, has exercised a demoralising influence upon the conceptions of honour, prevalent amongst the German commercial community. In the eyes of the Hebrew there is nothing dishonourable about bankruptcy, which is to be regarded, in any case, purely as a business accident, and which, on that account, may evoke the sympathy of kindred souls, but which has not otherwise the slightest effect on the social position. No, indeed, the Jewish mode of thinking, which regards bankruptcy as a stroke of good luck, bringing rich profit in its train, is far from being an invention of the comic papers. This is in accordance, not only with the peculiar morality of the Jews, but also with the entire tactic of the Jewish business system or entity.*

* In an article written in the year 1816, it is stated that "the Jew forces

99

trading to a height where the sound Christian merchant grows giddy.

[Page 111]

The Hebrew knows well how to begin a business with somebody else's money. According to his solution – often thoughtlessly echoed by people, who are not Jews – "Credit is equivalent to hard cash", and he sets to work to obtain credit from other firms and banks – for preference from those who are not Jewish – assisted in this respect by his racial brethren, who extol his business capacity and reliability with all their might.

If the business succeeds, and reaches the stage where a quick and profitable turnover is assured, the Hebrew meets his engagements punctually, and, perhaps, works himself up into the position of a really sound business man. If, however, the site of the shop has not been well chosen, and the right class of customer does not present itself, the owner alters his tactics: he now steers a straight course for bankruptcy, and a bankruptcy, which shall be as profitable to him as possible.

He succeeds in this by the following manoeuvre: instead of reducing, or even entirely withdrawing his orders, so as to allow for the deficiency in the sale of his goods, he actually increases them. So long as he still enjoys credit, he intends to make the utmost use of the same. By a steady increase in his orders, he is desirous of creating the impression that the business is in a state of healthy development. He pays punctually for part of the goods received, but lays claim, at the same time, to more and more credit; and this is willingly enough granted to him, for the merchant or manufacturer, who supplies him, is loath to lose so good a customer. The Jew now disposes of the goods, which he has obtained on credit, partly below cost price, in which process, he can always find some of his racial colleagues, ready to lend a helping hand, either by relieving him of large quantities of the goods at half the original price, in order to sell the same at extraordinarily cheap prices in their own shops, or, by selling the goods again as "job-/ots" to others, who profess the same faith. The expectant bankrupt takes care to lodge part of the proceeds where it will be safely guarded, and utilises the remainder to continue his part-payments to the manufacturer or merchant in order to retain the confidence of the latter, and to gradually screw up credit to its utmost limit.

[Page 112]

If he is successful in all this, and is satisfied with the amount of plunder, he finally suspends payment – with the profoundest regret that bad times and unlooked-for losses no longer allow of what was formerly a lucrative business being carried on profitably. The creditors find scarcely any stock and no cash, and have, moreover, the trouble and expense of the investigation. The man is practically safeguarded against any legal proceedings; the books are apparently in order; the selling-off at low prices of the "job-/ots" is so far justified by the argument that the goods, in order not to become old-fashioned, had to be got rid of at any price; the considerable sums, which are entered up to the private account, are again justified by heavy expenditure in the household under the plea that, in the interest of the business and its inseparable social connections, it was necessary "to cut a dash". Briefly; it is impossible to get hold of the man.*

Made shy by similar experiences, the creditors, for the most part, avoid the costly bankruptcy proceedings, fearing that, in the end, they will have to content themselves with less than five per cent, and prefer to conclude a forced settlement, meagre indeed, but which will leave them at any rate with 25 or 30 per cent of the value of their claims. It frequently happens that a special "bankruptcy sale" is arranged, which is kept going as long as possible, and by which means large quantities of goods, specially ordered for the occasion, are disposed of in the manner described above, so that the whole circle of "business friends" may benefit to the utmost by the favourable opportunity.

* One can frequently read in the newspapers that Jewish business people, who have long been in a state of bankruptcy, still continue to live in a very expensive style, and to move in a very expensive social set, until they are at last declared bankrupt to the extent of several millions.

[Page 113]

Recent legislation has, in some measure, checked this unsavoury practice, which had developed, during the last decades, to an incredible extent, but has by no means put a stop to it: for little as the Hebrew may have invented in other directions – he is a past master in the invention of new ways to circumvent or evade the laws.

The fortunate bankrupt knows well how to start business again – if necessary in another part – and probably on still more lucrative lines; if he considers it advisable, he will carry it on under the name of his wife, or one of his children, in order that his former obligations may not become a source of annoyance to him. And, if again the business fails to become a success, the ingenious fellow knows how to arrange for a second, and even a third bankruptcy. The money, which is lost in the process, never belongs to him, but always to other people, that is to say, it is invariably the property of the confiding Goyims.

Wholesale merchants and manufacturers have been plundered systematically in this way for years by Jews, who have made a profession or business of becoming bankrupt; and this particular species of crime has contributed in no small measure to the enrichment of many Jewish families, and, at the same time, to the impoverishment of many honest Germans. For the sufferers by this kind of robbery are not only the merchants, who actually deliver the goods, but also the sound tradespeople, who are squeezed out of existence by this unclean kind of competition. The Hebrew, who has obtained his goods by evil tricks like those described, or who has, perhaps, not paid anything at all, can well afford to sell them more cheaply than the sound tradesman. And thus the "cutting" of prices and unsavoury competition are considerably promoted by those Jews, who have become professional bankrupts.

If complaints concerning these abuses have not been so frequent of recent years, this improvement is only partly to be attributed to the increased severity of the laws, and is due, to a very considerable part, to great mercantile organisations of all kinds, endeavouring to protect themselves against these abuses by uniting to form trade protection societies.

[Page 114]

The Jews of today, however, no longer find it so necessary to enrich themselves by such comparatively clumsy methods of deceit; they have acquired money enough in the last few decades, and to use the words of one particular Hebrew – “can permit themselves the luxury of trading respectably” – of course with exceptions!

Many a Jewish business-man has had his task made easy, when engaged in such practices as those just described, by the absolutely irresponsible and ridiculous ease, with which a change of name can be made legitimate in Germany. The official advertisement that, for instance, Hirsch Levi intends to call himself Hermann Winter, or that Aaron Feiteles wishes to be known as Arnold Krause, appears only in the German Imperial and Prussian State Advertiser, a paper, which is not read by anybody outside official circles, so that those interested seldom learn anything about what has taken place until the – for them – unpleasant consequences bring it to their notice.

A further advantage is taken by those owning Jewish names, which can be used both for Christian and surname. Thus, Moses Meier Aaron, after his first bankruptcy, can reconstruct the firm as Aaron Meier Moses, to be followed, when necessary, by a third reconstruction as Moses Aaron Meier, and is thus in a position to escape more easily the eyes of his old creditors.

The Hebrew, equipped with principles of this kind, together with a complete lack of even the slightest sense of honour, can engage in any business undertaking with a far lighter heart than a man of another race. It is scarcely possible to find a business opening anywhere, even of the most risky nature, which a Hebrew has not already taken in hand. The costly shop in the newly erected premises at the junction of two streets, a questionable invention, some speculation relying on the folly or curiosity of the public – all are taken up by Jews, while conscientious business people are still carefully considering and weighing the merits and drawbacks of the concern. A decision is actually far easier for the Hebrew than for anybody else, for, in event of a failure, the conscience of the former does not trouble him in the slightest, and he says to himself at the commencement as well:

“you are not risking your own money.”

[Page 115]

The Jews certainly have the reputation of possessing great enterprise – one could also say: of possessing great temerity in business. It cannot be denied that they occasionally help to promote a sound undertaking and that many an inventor would have waited in vain for the realisation of his ideas if the Jews had not come to his assistance. And one may well wish that occasionally our German merchants and capitalists displayed less reserve where new plans and ideas are concerned, and did not leave this field of enterprise so completely at the disposal of the Hebrew. One must, however, take into consideration that the German promoter of any such undertaking not only risks his own money, but very often his own good name as well, whilst, in the case of the Hebrew, neither of these two all-important considerations enter into the question at all. Moreover, one must not forget a fact, which has already been mentioned; in all business undertakings the Hebrew is assured of the open, or, at any rate, the secret support and cooperation of his racial friends, whereas the German, in such matters, has in most cases to rely upon himself, and even, when peculiar and hazardous enterprises are concerned, has to reckon with the opposition of good friends and relatives, which arises from denseness of perception, and a dislike of novelty. The Hebrew, on the contrary, sets to work with a light heart and in a very different frame of mind:

“Risk it! – if you are not successful – well – it is only somebody else who is the loser!”

And further, one must take into consideration that, not only the business world, but that all public life, for the last forty years, has been infected with the Jewish spirit, and has taken on a Jewish aspect. Jewish tendencies are supreme everywhere, and Jewish ideas and views rule the mass of the population, in the towns at any rate. Everything, which is born of the Jewish spirit and pursues Jewish aims, is, on that account, readily assimilated into the current of public life, for it blends with it. The genuine German is completely out of the running; he is as a stranger in this new world; he cannot make himself at home amidst such surroundings.

[Page 116]

The best things which he can think of, do not seem to fit into this altered world; he is swimming against the stream. This holds good, not only for business, but in equal measure for Art, Stage, Literature and Press. Jewish work is in accordance with the disposition of the times, and the factors of public life, which come under the same influence, further Jewish enterprise. Thus, it is far easier for the Jewish business-man, just as it is for the Jewish author and for the Jewish artist, to "make a name", than it is for the more conscientious, and, for that reason, more awkward German.

The surrounding world is now estranged in many respects from the German mode of thought and action; it is therefore harder for a German to get on than it is for the eel-like Hebrew, concerning whom Franz Dingelstedt ("Lieder eines kosmopolitischen Nachtwächters") (Song of a cosmopolitan watchman) sang in 1840:

"He forces the farmer out of his farm, He scares the shop-keeper away from the market, And partly with gold, and partly with his servile wit, Purchases the pass-word from the Spirit of the age'.

If the German does not possess the power to create an environment for himself, suitable for his mode of thought and action, he will be lost in this Judaized world, and Hebbel's words will come true:

"The German possesses every qualification to gain heaven, but none to maintain himself upon earth; and thus the time may well come when this people will disappear from the earth."

2. The Instalment or Hire-purchase System

In nearly all the larger towns there are business firms, who, by means of brisk advertising, offer, as a special recommendation, that they are prepared to part with their goods on receiving a small preliminary payment, provided that the purchaser pledges himself, by a written agreement, to pay off the debt by regular – generally weekly – installments. On account of the apparently so favourable offer this kind of business secures many customers, especially amongst small officials, and the more needy of the working-class.

[Page 117]

People, without any means, look upon these firms almost as benefactors, and as noble-hearted philanthropists because, for instance, they hand over an entire suite of furniture to a young couple, anxious to get married, against an undertaking on the part of the latter to pay a weekly installment of from 3–5 marks. This type of business-man knows well how to pose in his advertisement as the friend of mankind. As a matter of fact, there lurks, behind this particular method of conducting business, unparalleled usury – in a shape, admittedly, which the law, as it now stands, finds extremely difficult to deal with. The next point is, that the goods, which are offered, have been hastily made out of inferior material; but in spite of this, the price at which they are invoiced, is high. The willing purchaser, however, pays little heed to the high price for the simple reason that he does not have to pay it at once; he imagines that the comfortable method of payment renders a dispute about the price unnecessary, for it becomes an easy matter to produce the money when the payments are spread over a considerable time. Accordingly, he signs the contract, laid before him, with a light heart, quite heedless of the snare, in which he is entangling himself. It is stated in the contract, amongst other conditions, that the seller is entitled to regain possession of the goods, which have been delivered, without refunding any of the money, which he has already received, if the purchaser does not pay each installment punctually.* The purchaser, who has every intention of paying regularly out of his income, is naturally unable to realise that such could ever be the case, and unhesitatingly attaches his name to the document. But unfortunately it only too often happens that the purchaser – perhaps through loss of his situation, perhaps through ill health or misfortune – is one day unable to meet his obligations, and suddenly he finds himself robbed, not only of the articles of furniture, which he has taken on this “hire-purchase” system, but also of all the installments, which he has already paid, and which are irretrievably lost.

* Recent legislation interferes to a considerable extent with the easy operation of contracts of this nature.

[Page 118]

An appeal to the Law Courts seldom avails, for the written contract has been drawn up in such a manner that, from a legal point of view, the seller is completely within his rights. Year after year large sums of money are sacrificed in this way by people of scanty means, who live, so to speak, from hand to mouth. It can scarcely be a pure accident that these “payment by installments” businesses are, almost without exception, owned by Jews; they belong to the most objectionable inventions, with which the Hebrew has graced the modern age.

The whole operation is based on a well-thought-out plan; it is an important part of the great system to rob the people of their money, according to a carefully thought-out and prearranged scheme. The Hebrew is not content with depriving people of the money, which is already in their pockets; he forces them to pledge their future earnings. The anticipation of the profits of the future is entirely the product of the speculative Jewish mind, which conveys the taint of unreality into the economic life, and builds it up, so to speak, upon air. For an existence, which is founded upon such future values, must, of necessity, undergo shipwreck as soon as the slightest hitch occurs in the tranquil and natural development of affairs. It is said with truth in Goethe's Faust: "The Jew will not spare you for he creates anticipations."

We learn that 27 of these great "Hire purchase" or "Payment by installments" businesses in Germany are united under one control, that is to say, belong to one company, the chairman or managing director of which is said to be one Leskowitz of Dresden. It is further maintained that the yearly income of this man amounts to Marks 800,000 (£40,000). Enormous as this may sound, it is by no means improbable if one takes into consideration that not only must very high prices be paid for all the goods, which these businesses supply, but that those goods, which have been confiscated and taken back in consequence of failure to pay an installment when due, are "touched-up" a little, and immediately supplied again to a new customer.

[Page 119]

In what plight is a community and its legislation when it is unable to check bare-faced plundering of its poorest members by such a system of thinly-disguised usury? Would one not do far better to substitute in the place of these innumerable laws, which eventually prove to be utterly inadequate, and which can be evaded on every occasion by experienced cheats, the healthy sense of fairness, inherent in properly-trained Judges i.e., men of long personal acquaintance with practical life, just like the English do, and which they find answers very well?

3. The "Stores."

The original of the "Stores" is the eastern "bazaar", which, already more than a century ago, was represented in this land by the country "general-shop", and the latter was really necessary in our remoter districts. Both of these satisfied an obvious need; but even in this direction an alien and degrading feature began to make itself visible in the sound development of trade, in the shape of the 50, 25 and 10 Pfennig bazaars, caricatures of the originals, which were started by the Jews soon after the establishment of the freedom of industry. It is worthy of note that the first "stores", on a grand scale, arose in that most pleasure-loving of all world cities – Paris – in order to provide the world of frivolous women with a convenient establishment or depot where the hundreds of requirements of an elegant lady could be satisfied under one roof. Their field of activity was then extended into the United States in order to make it possible for the population there, who, though dwelling in the smaller towns and in the open country, separated from one another by vast distances and cut off, for the most part, from traffic, still wished to be "up-to-date". The Hebrews have introduced their imitation bazaars into our larger towns, which were already amply supplied with shopping facilities, without any other justification than that of speculation, based upon the love of comfort, mania for enjoyment, confusion of thought and absence of any critical faculty, which characterise the great majority, especially of women.

[Page 120]

Not in one single case are our "Stores" necessary in the sense that the eastern bazaars, our country general-shops, and the American "Stores" are necessary, and it is worthy of note that in many countries – for instance Brasil – the erection of these great "Stores" is forbidden in the interests of sound, straightforward commerce, and therefore in the interests of the community generally.

Thus the great, dazzling, central shopping-establishments to be found in all our large cities, and into which the "Stores" gradually develop, owe their existence entirely to a deliberate violation of the practices of sound commerce, which forces a way for itself, regardless of everything and everybody, assisted by and in connection with an extensive association or combination of capital, i.e., great Bank-credit. It is undeniable that these establishments, by reason of the organisation upon which they depend, belong to the most remarkable creations of modern times, and it is quite comprehensible why the purchasing public seems to lose its head over these novelties, and is powerfully attracted by the real or apparent advantages of these establishments. What these advantages are supposed to be, is in everybody's mouth, for the "Stores" themselves have taken very good care that the same should be adequately advertised. It is not so well known, however, that these great bazaars find it necessary to make use of a number of cleverly conceived manoeuvres in order to attract their public, and to secure a good profit, in spite of the apparent cheapness of their wares. Chief of all is the endeavour so to work upon the customer by dazzling the eyes, and generally by bewildering the senses with an extravagant and varied display of goods, and further, by enlisting the arts of persuasion and cajolery to such an extent as to make it almost impossible, or, at any rate, extremely difficult for the customer to leave the establishment without having purchased something, whether he actually required it or not. A number of special tricks, as well, have been invented to mislead the customers on the one side, and to exploit ingeniously the manufacturers and merchants on the other. A few examples only of these tricks are given below.

[Page 121]

1. Tricks to deceive customers. Articles to entice.

The "Stores" have found that the best means to attract customers is to offer certain articles of little intrinsic value at surprisingly low prices; at prices, in fact, which do not allow of any profit, or may even be less than the actual cost of the goods. They sell many of such articles for several Pfennigs less than the factory price – fully aware that by so doing they are brilliantly advertising themselves. What does it matter after all, if a few Pfennigs are lost each time that reels of cotton, hairpins, goldfish, gloves, buttons, glasses etc. are sold! Customers are drawn in by the enticing prices, and temptation is placed in their way to purchase other articles, the real value of which they are not nearly so well able to estimate. And thus the great emporium is richly recompensed for its small initial loss.

Moreover, it is the intention to create the impression amongst those, who are desirous of buying, that, in a business, where certain articles are so cheap, all must necessarily be cheap. And that is just what they are not. This is one of the most effective deceptions practised by the great "Stores" on the public. For, in the case of the larger and more costly goods, which are only occasionally purchased, and the value of which the ordinary layman is not experienced enough to judge, considerably higher prices are charged than would be the case if the article in question had been purchased at a genuine business of the usual kind, i.e., businesses which specialise in the sale of one kind of goods.

Also, it is worth remarking, that articles, intended to act as a bait, or an allurement, are always objects, which have but little value in a household, and, for that reason, are not purchased to any considerable extent by the public. However, if anybody, in order to take advantage of the cheapness of these goods, endeavours to buy more of the same than is usual, he is almost invariably met with the answer that the stock is sold out.

"Display articles." – One occasionally notices in the windows of the great "Stores" articles of a larger size, which cause astonishment on account of their exceptional cheapness.

[Page 122]

So far as can be seen, these articles are made of good material and the workmanship is sound. On entering the establishment to buy one of these articles, one is usually shown something of similar appearance but of inferior quality. If the customer detects the difference, he is given to understand that all the better quality has been sold. If he then demands the article, which is displayed in the window, he is told that the same has been sold already, but that the purchaser has given permission for it to remain on display until a new consignment arrives. Certainly the law concerning unclean competition provides – in a measure – a remedy against tricks of this kind, but the customer scarcely ever avails himself of it, and, if he does, seldom with success. The rule is that one simply does not obtain the desired article at the stated price.

"Mixing of goods." – The following practice is customary in the "Stores" when a quantity of articles are offered for sale in one lot: amongst a number of cheap goods such as articles of clothing, linen, crockery etc, several articles of a better quality than the majority are introduced. These better articles are, for reasons which it is easy to understand, placed on the top, and are handed, for hasty inspection, to likely purchasers. If a sale takes place the salesman endeavours to substitute the inferior article, or, if a large quantity is being dealt with, to mix the inferior articles with the better ones.

"Deception-and Exchange-articles." – The "Stores" have introduced the following practice: they buy a parcel of goods of superior quality from a manufacturer of good reputation, and, armed with a sample from these, order articles, deceptively similar in appearance but made of inferior material, to be manufactured at another factory. As they then sell by turns from the superior and inferior stocks (but mostly from the latter) they are in a position to evade the reproach that they deal in inferior goods. Whenever a dispute arises, they simply produce one of the better articles, and assure the customer that this is their normal quality, and that the inferior specimen complained of has been introduced amongst the better goods by accident.

[Page 123]

What is related below as having taken place in a large "Stores" has been proved, beyond doubt, to be a fact: the business in question had bought a large quantity of well-made lace, the factory price of which was 10 Pfennigs the metre. Two inferior qualities of lace at the respective factory prices of 6 and 3 Pfennigs the metre, but of exactly the same pattern, were then ordered. The winding cards of these three different qualities of lace, which all appear to the ordinary superficial observer to be of the same quality, are placed, side by side, and are all offered for sale at the same price of 9 Pfennigs the metre. It is easy to understand that those who sold had received instructions to sell as much as possible from the winding-card, which contained the lace, which had cost 3 Pfennigs the metre; it was only when a customer entered, who displayed a certain amount of criticism, and appeared to understand something about the matter, that lace was taken from the winding-card, which contained the superior quality. The lady who, by chance, happened to receive a piece of the 10 Pfennig lace for 9 Pfennigs, would naturally continue for a long time to sing the praises of the superiority and cheapness of the article in question amongst the whole circle of her acquaintances, and, in this way, this particular "stores" recovered by the good advertisement far more than the value of the single Pfennig, which had been actually lost in the transaction.

"Prices which confuse and mislead." – The great "Stores" often endeavour, by marking articles at unusual prices (such as 98 Pfennigs, 2 Marks 95 Pfennigs etc.) to create the impression that their calculations are made with the greatest nicety, and that they are satisfied with a very meagre profit. But this is also a delusion, for, amongst the articles marked 98 Pfennigs, there are many, which can be bought in genuine business for 75 or 80 Pfennigs. Moreover, the fact that a customer has allowed himself to be enticed by an apparent saving of 2 Pfennigs is scarcely an event to which he can refer with pride; it is so obviously a speculation of a mean nature, or – generally where women are concerned – is prompted by an absurd idea of economy.

The "Confectiondr", which issues the official organ of the union of "Stores" and Warehouses as its Sunday supplement, recently gave its readers the following good advice:

"the smaller articles must often be sold at cost price, and sometimes even for less, in order that so much the more may be charged for the larger ones."

"Tf a lady is enabled to purchase gloves or soap for a few groschen below the usual price, she is there and then convinced that all articles in that same business house are cheap, and continues, with complete confidence, to purchase in the same establishment also, mantles and silken garments."

In the course of an action taken by the "Stores" called Stein in Berlin against the "Bund der Handelund Gewerbetreibenden" (Association of Commerce and Industry) a pronouncement was made by the Prussian Court of Appeal, when reversing the judgement of November 14th 1907, as follows:

"Tt is a matter of common knowledge to those engaged in law, that the 'Stores' endeavour to attract large numbers of customers, by offering for sale, at absurdly low prices, those particular goods, which are in daily use or consumption by the masses, but that when other goods are sold, far higher prices are demanded than are charged by the small and moderately-sized shops, which specialise in the particular kind of goods concerned."

When a large Berlin "Stores" went so far recently as to offer Imperial 5 Pfennig postcards for 4 Pfennigs, the intention, which was to entice customers into the establishment and to force other articles upon them, was only too apparent. For, finally, the reduced price for the postcards was only granted to those, who could produce proof that they had purchased other goods. But the intention was also present to create the bewildering impression that this "Stores" was making the impossible possible, and was actually in a position to sell the Imperial postcards cheaper than the postal authorities themselves could. The success of this questionable kind of business depends, to a large extent, upon the suggestion that this "Stores", by some incredible means or magic, could actually sell goods cheaper than those who manufactured the same. It is certainly only the most thoughtless, who can allow themselves to be fooled by such unbusiness like tricks, and the same may therefore be regarded as a speculation in stupidity. Whoever allows himself to be enticed by these "Stores" tricks is certainly not entitled to ask for a certificate stating that he – or she – is capable of sane and independent judgement.

[Page 125]

2. Injury done to the Producers.

It can be seen from the practices, which have just been described, how the "Stores" favour, for the most part, the production of inferior goods and thus react very oppressively upon certain branches of manufacture. The method of procedure is usually as follows: the "Stores" buyer puts in an appearance at the office of the factory, and producing a certain article says:

"I can order annually large quantities of this article if you can produce the same at from 20 to 25 per cent below the present price. It does not matter if the workmanship and the material are inferior, but the appearance must be the same."

When a respectable manufacturer declines to accept this invitation, the "Stores" buyer threatens to take his order to some other firm. Many a manufacturer, apprehensive of being squeezed out of the market, ends up by consenting, and produces the inferior goods, which are desired. One inevitable consequence of the constantly increasing manufacture of shoddy and inferior goods is, that the production of goods of superior quality tends as steadily to diminish.

An expert in the manufacture of china reports:

"our factory has worked for years at a loss simply because the demand for a good class of ware, which is worth its price, is gradually falling off. The 'Stores' buy only 'fourth selection' and flawed goods, that is to say, refuse. They then mix several good pieces among the lot, in the case of plates, for instance, laying them on the top of the others, and the public buys this rubbish unsuspectingly. A sound line of goods, however, waits in vain for a purchaser. There is nothing left but to resign one self to the manufacture of artificially prepared refuse. On the other hand wages keep on rising, so that it is no longer possible to make the business pay, and this entire branch of industry goes from bad to worse."

Numerous factories in other branches of trade have allowed themselves to be inveigled into manufacturing rubbish, especially for the "Stores", and have found their ruin in the process. It was the invariable habit of the "Stores" buyer to endeavour to beat the price down each time he gave a fresh order, until there was no longer any possibility for the producer to make even the most meagre profit.

The customers for the better class of wares had, however, disappeared in the meantime, so there was nothing to be done except to discontinue business.

Another decade like this, and we shall see the greater part of that branch of industry, which is dependent upon orders from the "Stores", ruined likewise.

A sausage manufacturer, when asked how it was that he could deliver his sausages so cheaply to the "Stores" that the latter could sell a pair for 12 Pfennigs when 15 Pfennigs were charged everywhere else, answered laughing:

"just measure the things! they are certainly a fifth cheaper, but they are also a quarter shorter." –

The purchasing public has no idea whatever of such proceedings, or behaves, at any rate, as if it had no such idea; it is bewitched by the fascinating and bewildering life of the great "Stores", and does not pause to consider to what an extent the entire economic life is being undermined by such a questionable form of development. For, not only is industry reduced to producing rubbish, but also those sound businesses in the towns, which confine themselves to the sale of high-class specialities, are being ruined, because the "Stores" are gradually depriving them of their customers. In the vicinity of the "Stores" one good business after another disappears; in Berlin, for instance, in the year 1913, no less than 18,000 separate shops were standing empty. Development of this kind can only end in a gigantic economic catastrophe; and we shall be indebted for this to the magnificence of the "Stores", as well as to the incredible shortsightedness of the public, which allows itself to be enticed into such man-traps, and which stifles every feeling of responsibility with arguments, which are prompted solely by its own laziness and vanity.

A lowering of quality in the type of all articles available for trade. – As the "Stores" have use only for great quantities of articles as much alike as possible, they endeavour, as far as they can, to reduce the number of the various samples and types. The whole of the Art-Industry suffers especially thereby, as it is wont to grant both fancy and personal taste as large a field as possible.

[Page 127]

The "Stores" like to have a suitable sample reproduced a thousand, or even a million times, and this naturally causes other good samples to be forced out of the market. The Art-Industry loses its individuality; all becomes mass-manufacture for mass-taste.

As inferior material is almost invariably introduced where the above course is practised, the Art-Industry suffers degradation and cheapening in every respect.

The French political economist, Trepreau, characterises the development in the following words:

"This change is causing the taste for what is good and beautiful, which formerly obtained such a good reputation for French trade, to disappear, and is substituting for it the mass-production of rubbish, which is degrading our industry, and the sequel of which will be the disappearance of all specialities of artistic handicraft in the immediate future'.

In the case of jam and preserves, for example, the factories were compelled, in consequence of the pressure, to reduce prices and to produce special lines of preserves for the "Stores" alone, whereby not only did the quality suffer but the difference between gross and nett weight was increased by improper filling.

Many textile fabrics are reduced, not only with regard to the quality of the yarn and the closeness of the mesh, but actually with regard to the breadth, customary in the trade. Thus velvet was woven 42 centimetres instead of 50 centimetres broad – a fact which quite escapes a hasty inspection. To what an extent the contents of the balls and skeins of yarn, thread etc, mostly stated in English yards instead of in metres, differs from what it ought to be, is seldom ascertained by our thoughtless women, although, in this case, the difference in money is considerable.

But enough; the manufacturers, whether they like it or not, are compelled to help the "Stores" to deceive the public, although they destroy their own business in doing so.

3. The overpowering and monopolisation of all economic means.

A further danger menaces our economic and social relations, arising from the circumstance that the "Stores", by gradually concentrating the retail trade into their hands, have almost obtained a monopoly of the same. This can make it as bad in the future for the purchasing public as for the manufacturers.

[Page 128]

As soon as the "Stores" have driven the majority of competing shops out of the field, they will not find it necessary any longer to entice customers with cheap prices, because the public will simply be compelled to buy many things from the "Stores" on account of the total disappearance of the sound old businesses, which confined themselves to one kind of trade and specialised in the same. When this time comes, the "Stores" will raise the prices as high as they like, and this will be made all the easier for them, as they have already formed themselves into a trust, and are codifying their rules and regulations. And there is no doubt that the purchasing public will eventually have to pay the reckoning for the apparent favours which it enjoys today.

At the present day the great "Stores" exert a kind of monopoly-domination over the manufacturers. They claim the right to take all kinds of discounts – special "Stores" Bonus etc – which the manufacturers are powerless to resist, as they are placed more or less at the mercy of these great undertakings, who can give or withhold orders. When a special tax of 2% was imposed on the "Stores" in Prussia, the "Stores" immediately passed it on to the manufacturers and merchants, by deducting 2% from all their accounts, even before the tax actually came into force. Thus it is clear how the monopolising nature of these great "Stores," which is steadily increasing, is creating and inflicting a state of servile dependency upon the manufacturers, which, in its turn, will gravely endanger not only the economic but also the civic freedom – to say nothing of objections from the moral point of view. And it is not only the employers, who suffer, but the employees are threatened with the same evils and to the same extent. All those, who patronise the "Stores", should make a note of this.

As a matter of fact the "Stores" and the great Banks, which work in close alliance with them, are obtaining, in consequence of the continually progressing concentration of the economic life, a dominating power, which gives cause for the gravest apprehension.

[Page 129]

They have the power to crush every smaller competing business, and to make the manufacturers and producers absolutely dependent on them. This means nothing less than steering a direct course towards an economic "right of the fist", which is an end to every conception of justice and morality. Every kind of compulsion, which hurts the feeling of justice and wounds social sensibility, must of necessity lead to an undermining of public morality, and finally to anarchy, and consequently cannot be tolerated in any well-organised community. Since the great "Stores" already form an international trust, they are in a position to subject the citizens of any country to international machinations, and to interfere to such a degree with the means for upholding authority that they seriously menace the economic freedom and independence of the inhabitants.

This calls for objection and opposition. The state cannot sanction that private persons or companies should have a monopoly of commerce, and consequently of profiteering. But this is precisely what any further development of the "Stores" system will lead to.

Least of all, however, can an economic predominance of such a nature be tolerated, when it endeavours to attain its ends by questionable means, when it makes use of trickery and deceit, and thereby endangers public well-being.

4. Moral and Physical Harm.

The great "Stores" endanger not only the economic existence of the smaller and moderate-sized businesses, as well as the steady and regular production of goods, but are harmful to the public morality. It is a well-known fact that, side by side with the evolution of the great "Stores", certain new and disquieting features have made their appearance in the moral attitude of the public. A new category of offences has come into being; the seductive influence leading to an improper appropriation of goods, the pathological appearance of that class of theft, which is peculiar to the "Stores".

[Page 130]

Experience shows that this particular type of larceny is not confined to the poorer class of people and professional thieves, but is practised by individuals drawn from all stations of life, and more especially by females, even when the latter belong to the most prosperous grades of society. The phenomenon is accounted for by the peculiar nature of business as conducted in the great "Stores". Everything is designed to excite cupidity, to bewilder and to ensnare. The whirl of business and the multitude of impressions raise excitement to such an extent that the senses become quite confused. Weak characters succumb entirely to these influences, and lose control of their will-power. They are tempted, when they feel that they are not observed, to appropriate something, and steal occasionally even from their fellow-customers. They are, however, nearly always caught, for the proprietors of the "Stores", well aware of the insidious charm of their "shows", keep a special staff of detectives to watch those whom they attract. Numerous cases have already occurred, where ladies of good position have been escorted into a private office, and have been subjected to the indignity of a personal search. It is easy to imagine what scandals develop out of such incidents.

But even if it does not lead quite so far as punishable offences, the influence upon the character of the public of the peculiar method of trading introduced by the "Stores", is altogether bad, for the simple reason that it induces many to buy more than their circumstances warrant, and to spend money on useless things. The whole system connected with this method of trading is designed to create the impression on the customers that they are guilty of neglect if they do not at once recognise and utilise the opportunity to make a cheap purchase, or, in other words, a bargain. The cheap rubbish also, made to look like something better, seduces simple people into buying articles quite unsuited to their position in life; by so doing they accustom themselves to a mode of living, which far exceeds what their circumstances and means justify.

[Page 131]

One of the great "Stores" advertised for a considerable period with reference to one of their brands of cheap Champagne: "Champagne must become a popular drink!" – a phrase that one of the Social-Democratic members of the Reichstag actually made his own particular slogan.

The demoralisation, which arises out of the peculiar method of trading adopted by the great "Stores", extends not only to the purchasing public, but even more to the staff or personnel of the "Stores", to the salesmen and saleswomen who labour under the steady and unvarying influence of the lax morale prevalent in these establishments, and who are compelled to help to deceive and overreach the public. To the above remarks may be added some foreign criticisms, in order to show how the objectionable features referred to have already acquired an international significance.

The physical injury caused by the unceasing strain of the service is considerable, and this reacts on the character. D Paul Berthold says concerning it:

"The assistants live in unhealthy surroundings, in badly– ventilated apartments, which are crowded with people. In most of the great 'Stores' the number of cases of illness and of actual death is appalling, so much so, that those, who work for several years in these establishments without acquiring tuberculosis, form the exceptions."

In addition moral perils arise from other causes. Dr. H. Lambrecht, Director of the Ministry for Public Works in Brussels deserves recognition for having published in a memorandum concerning "Stores and Cooperative Societies", a number of facts dealing with these matters – facts which are all the more striking for having been scientifically corroborated. He makes inter alia, the following remarks with reference to this subject:

"This penning-in of a number of young females, and making them absolutely dependent on a person of the opposite sex, whether the latter may happen to be the shop-walker, inspector or manager, constitutes already a gross moral danger, which is all the more marked, when one takes into consideration that the saleswomen are drawn from the very class, which is most susceptible to the enticement of luxury and social pleasures''.

He goes on to express his opinion about the questionable "friendships", which the great "Stores" offer both sexes so many opportunities of making, and which are utilised, not only by the salesmen and the saleswomen, but also by the customers.

[Page 132]

We have neither space nor time to refer further to the chapter dealing with this delicate subject. Lambrecht continues:

"The danger, however, is still further increased by the inadequate payment of the young girls employed, by bad advice, and by bad example. In these great businesses, in each of which several hundred people are employed, some of the older ones always find the means to dress themselves better than the others, and to visit the theatres and the restaurants after business hours, and soon the little girl apprentice, with her salary of 20 marks a month, allows herself to be deceived by what she imagines to be the brilliant prospect in store for her''.

J. Hennigsen (Hamburg) after portraying the questionable moral relations, which evolve out of the "Stores" system, remarks:

"Tam convinced that if all this could only be published, far and wide, no German woman, who still preserved a spark of sympathy with her fellow-women, would ever set foot again in one of these

399

'Stores ''.

And Baroness Brincard, after describing the same conditions, observes:

"Generally speaking, women are sympathetic beings, whose hearts are touched by all suffering. Therefore they do not act intentionally when they profit grossly from the misery and distress of other women, but unfortunately it is just the women of the well-to-do classes, who know nothing of these matters, who neither see

b)

nor think... .

The great "Stores" are responsible for the production of a new nervous disease, a fact which Emile Zola has portrayed in his book "Au Bonheur des Dames". The French physician, Dr. Dubuisson, has chosen as a theme for his book ("Les voleuses des grands magasins") the injurious effect which the "Stores" have upon neurotic people; he says therein:

"It is impossible, even for people of the strongest constitutions, to spend any considerable time in these gigantic establishments without experiencing a peculiar feeling of nervous debility – of mental languor and bewilderment'.

In the case of neurotic people this condition amounts to a complete confusion of the senses, which, to a certain extent, deprives them of the control of their actions, and brings in its train mental and moral disaster.

Dr. Laquer in "Der Warenhaus-Diebstah?" (Thieving at the Stores) says:

"Thieving at the great 'Stores' is very extensively carried on, and it is a matter of urgent importance that this fact should be made widely known, especially as children are taking a large part in it. The unguarded display of goods without any compulsion to buy, is a great temptation to those, who are deficient in will-power; for this reason alone it should be restricted. Whether this deficiency in will-power (notably in the case of women in an interesting condition), when brought face to face with the allurements of the great 'Stores', is to be regarded as a malady, must be decided by the evidence of medical experts in the Law Courts... .

99

In any case, the "Stores" contribute to an enormous extent to undermine the morality of a generation, whose conscience is already blunted, and to multiply to a serious extent the already numerous social evils. The determining factors in the State ought to seriously consider, whether the trivial advantages of making one's purchases under these luxurious conditions are sufficiently valuable to be placed in the scales against the economic and moral welfare of the population. And, before everything else, if it is consistent with the duty of those, who are in authority, to see that justice is enforced and that the interests of the commonwealth are guarded, that the brute force of money, combined with boundless selfishness, should be established as a system to enslave the whole nation. The evasion of our social politicians, who maintain that these results of modern life are inevitable, and must be "surmounted", is equivalent to the consolation, given to a man, who is unable to swim, that, in any case, he would also have to learn how not-to drown.

5. Premiums for those employed and the cost involved in carrying on this method of trading.

How thoroughly unsound the business principles are in the great "Stores", is Shown by the evidence of Dr. Josef Lux, who maintains that many of the "Stores" have different prices for certain customers and for certain times of the day.

A salesman, who had been employed in a "Stores", informs us that the employees were instructed to exploit the weaknesses and inattentiveness of the public. A leading principle was that, if possible, no one should be allowed to leave the building without making a purchase. If a certain article was too dear for a customer, after several ingenious attempts had been made to persuade him or her to take something else, the same article would be produced again at a lower price under the pretext that it was of a different quality. Further, that salesmen and saleswomen were instructed, if the opportunity presented itself, to charge more than the goods had actually been priced at. In this case they receive special premiums for the excess profits, which they have been instrumental in obtaining.

How often the employees at the "Stores" are tempted to purloin the goods is only too well known. The Law Courts are incessantly engaged with cases of this kind*. Several years ago in the Berlin Courts, in one case alone, 54 salesmen and saleswomen as well as the head of a department out of the same "Stores", received sentences.

The idea, that the working expenses of the "Stores" are lower than those of other businesses, is erroneous. The peculiar conditions, under which these great businesses are worked, call for all kinds of arrangements, which can be dispensed with in sound businesses.

In order to protect themselves in some measure against thefts, both by employees and customers, most of the great "Stores" engage and maintain a number of detectives, secret agents, inspectors and searchers, whose business it is to keep both the public and the staff under continual observation and control; and daily a number of the staff, as well as of the customers, are detained at the exits, and are conducted to a room, where they must divest themselves of their clothing in order to be thoroughly searched.

* In No. 182 of the "Hammer" there is an article entitled: "34 Summonses in one 'Store', and in No. 239 an article under the heading: 'Morality in the 'Stores'''.

[Page 135]

The moral effects of this bodily examination need only be hinted at. It is by no means excluded that a perfectly innocent customer might have suspicion deliberately directed against her, and would consequently be exposed to a search of this kind.

In any case, the "Stores" are bound to maintain a large staff of people, whose sole duty consists in dealing with the moral damage, which follows as a matter of course in the train of this novel method of conducting business, and this, of course, increases the expenses enormously. If one also takes into account the continuous and costly advertising, which the "Stores" are quite unable to do without, it ought to be sufficiently clear that these modern undertakings cannot spell progress from an economic point of view, and that they are not at all in the position to deliver genuine goods at lower prices than other businesses. They are only able to keep themselves going by deceiving the public, and by lowering the quality of the goods.

Moreover, they have a devastating effect upon the economic existence of the middle-class, and, in this respect also, bring again a whole row of social evils in their train.

Trepreau ascribes the appalling falling-off in the number of marriages in France to the herding-together of the unmarried of both sexes in the enormous business barracks, which are called "business emporiums" or "stores".

It is just the women and girls, who never think that by supporting the "Stores" they are sinning against their own sex. If one only pauses for a moment to consider that, owing to the growing power of the great capitalistic "Stores", the possibility of a man of the middle-class ever establishing himself in a business of his own is quite precluded, marriage becomes more and more remote for many men, and more and more women are consequently driven to seek some means of making their own livelihood, one is finally bound to admit that, by reason of the development of the "Stores" system, the woman-question has become considerably more acute.

[Page 136]

Thus it is the women themselves, who help to destroy their own social position when they give their custom to the great "Stores".

Lambrecht thus sums up the result of his investigations: the system of concentration in retail-trade offers no social advantages, which are not far out balanced by other great disadvantages. The latter are leading towards a social condition full of danger, and which must be regarded as less advantageous and desirable when compared with the soundness and many-sidedness of the smaller businesses, each of which confines itself to one special branch of trade.

Regarded from the social point of view, it is the ethical forces, and not the economic, which must decide the issue.

Already all the older civilisations have gone to ruin because they would not recognise this truth about the accumulation of all wealth in a few hands, and the consequent impoverishment of the masses. What leads to decay cannot be called progress.

For us, however, material self-enrichment must not be carried on to the detriment of morality, and the general welfare must not be sacrificed in order that profiteering shall flourish.

The mission of the truly moral system of government remains unaltered, viz, to respect and protect the economically-weak man, who, at the same time, can well be the best man when judged from the physical and moral point of view. A particularly valuable social quality of the middle-class is moderation in all its needs and requirements, even in its aspirations after honours and riches; for, only in this case, can there be a fairly good distribution of prosperity, and a cheerful state of well-being be made possible for the community. The entire mechanism of acquisition, which has been placed at the absolute disposal of an unrestrained lust for gain, has not increased either the health, or the safety, or the happiness of human individuals.

[Page 137]

The social consequences of an evolution along these lines are: monotony, degeneration, and a gradual disappearance of the aesthetic sense and taste; degradation of personality and of the individual, and lack of an appropriate field of activity; suppression of the artistic industry. This whole series of appearances are the forerunners and symptoms of the decay of a nation, and of its culture.

It is almost superfluous to add that the great "Stores"', in all parts of the world, are almost exclusively in the hands of Hebrews, and that it is in this particular domain that the Jewish business spirit celebrates its questionable triumphs.

A press, which represents every political party, and is always at the service of the great "Stores" on account of the rich harvest, which it derives from the advertisements of these establishments, has, up till now, helped to present these modern bazaars of rubbish in the most favourable light, and to write all manner of nice things about them. It has, in any case, refrained altogether from exposing the terrible nature of the economic, social and moral damage which is inseparably connected with the management and working of these great emporiums. Thus, for the sake of money, a grave crime is perpetrated against our nation.

When women, in particular, in the attempt to justify their patronage of these establishments, offer the excuse that it is so convenient to do their shopping at the "Stores", they should be reminded that convenience is a property or quality, which ultimately can be used to justify any kind of indolence and carelessness, and that it becomes an absolute vice when it is referred to as an excuse for supporting dubious undertakings.

This much-praised convenience is, however, as all genuine frequenters of the great "Stores" will, without exception, admit, inseparably bound up with an incalculable expenditure of time, and with many other drawbacks as well, so that in reality, double as much inconvenience is experienced as if one had made the purchases in separate shops. The dawdling about in the "Stores" is already recognised as one of the modern feminine vices, which the Hebrew knows so well how to foster.

[Page 138]

If all the facts, which have been portrayed above, were only sufficiently known, the great "Stores" would soon lose their fascinating splendour in the eyes of all thoughtful people.

Most of all, it is to be hoped that the conscience will awake in our womankind, and will ask itself the question, if it is consonant with decency and morality to support, with their custom, these questionable emporiums of trash, and thus to condemn whole classes of our nation to economic and moral ruin. It is fully time that the customers realised at last their social responsibility. Whoever, for the sake of a paltry and often merely an apparent advantage, supports businesses founded on questionable principles, whoever shows favour to an unwholesome and immoral development, must not be surprised when the consequences of his ill-considered trading finally turn against him; for the morbid principle, spreading always further and further, endangers the social order and moral welfare, and helps to establish conditions, which most seriously menace social and national stability.

Our cultured ladies have opportunity enough to observe and deplore the growing laxity of public morals; it never seems to occur to them, however, that they themselves have helped to undermine the spirit, which makes for order and morality, by the support, which they give to these questionable business-undertakings, which pander solely to fashion. It is more especially the possessing and cultured classes, who ought to be conscious of their social duties, and who ought not – sometimes out of stinginess, and sometimes out of a lust for spending – to give their custom and support to these dubious trading concerns, and thereby to set a bad example to those below them in the social scale. The principle of the great “Stores” is uneconomic, unsocial and immoral; and out of these great lanterns of modern times, erected to attract and dazzle, issues a spirit, which threatens to poison and demoralise all society from top to bottom: the spirit greedy for gain at any cost, the spirit of vain boastfulness and of pleasure-seeking, the spirit of frivolity, of bodily and spiritual sickness, in fact of megalomania.

[Page 139]

Whoever has regard for our nation and its future, whoever has not already made it a habit to barter his moral consciousness for momentary enjoyment and momentary advantage, ought now to understand clearly, in which direction we are bound, if we continue to give our support to lax morality in business affairs, and other paths of life; for, all offence against good sense and morality, by destroying both state and society, attacks finally both us and our posterity.

[Page 140]

Xl.

Moral Principles In Trade.

Many people consider themselves very clever when they impart the advice to the merchant, who complains that he is unable to hold his own against the Jews: do the same as the Jew! In reality, this amounts to the following: do not recognise any religious motives whatever in your mode of doing business, and descend to the level of a low money-grubber and voluptuary. The economic principle of the Jew threatens to trample under foot, in our time, all other higher principles of life. That, however, is no evidence of its superiority, but of the contrary – its moral inferiority; for, the supposition that, if all forces have free play, the better and the nobler must win, is erroneous.

On the contrary, what Goethe said, remains true for all time: Nobody should complain about what is base, For it remains all-powerful, whatever people may say.

So far as ordinary, everyday life is concerned, what is low and devoid of scruple wins invariably, if it is allowed free play – just as surely as the manners of the quadruped prevail over those of the civilised man if both are compelled to live in the same room, and to feed out of the same trough.

The task assigned to anyone, who has a desire to promote real culture, consists in subduing or eradicating what is vile, in order that it may not smother what is noble, before the latter can arrive at full development. Whoever is desirous of rearing choice plants in his garden, must wage incessant warfare against weeds and insect pests. Unfortunately in our time, the morality, belonging to the higher culture, has been neglected and forgotten, namely, the will to control, and the right to control, which is the prerogative of all that is noble.

When one no longer dared to think, and to act like an aristocrat, everything became vulgar and plebeian; and the Hebrew is the leading dancer in the Cancan of vulgarity. He calls this descent into vulgarity "Progress", and designates, on the other hand, everything of an aristocratic or noble nature, as out-of-date or reactionary.

[Page 141]

Society, in former days, possessed an organic structure; it separated itself, practically automatically, into classes, whose rights and duties were conscientiously defined and graduated.

Thus, a genuine social and moral order came into being, which secured to each man such prosperity as he was entitled to, and assigned to him his due share of rights, as well as duties. The Hebrew has shattered this ancient moral order to pieces. He has absolutely no perception for a moral structure of this kind; to his eyes it appears merely a jumble of disconnected fragments; he is incapable of understanding the purpose of all this regulated coherence. He regards every restraint as a fetter, and as an interference with his liberty.

In addition to his greed for gain, the Hebrew is, for this reason, driven by an irresistible impulse, before all other things, to dissolve all old-established associations, and to break up all arrangements, which are the outcome of social organisation.

He calls for "Freedom" and "Equality", but whether he does so out of pure calculation, or reacts in response to some dark instinct, it is difficult to say; at any rate, he knows for certain that, on the dissolution of all social bonds, he and his fellow-conspirators will gain the upper hand in the ensuing chaos. Thus, it is that he demands – loudly and incessantly – "Free play for the exercise of every kind of power", which, in reality, amounts to:

"Privilege for unscrupulousness, and domination by those, who conspire in secret."

There is no doubt whatever that the phrase "Freedom and Progress" has provided the Hebrew with a slogan, which he has known how to make his own particular property, certainly not to procure freedom for others but to procure license for himself, and to unsettle and seduce others to desert the firm union of time-honoured organisation, so that, disorganised and isolated, they may, all the more easily, fall into his power.

In spite of this, it is his constant boast that, by breaking down the old restrictions, he has introduced a desirable and beneficial freedom into the economic life; and, to a superficial observer, this may well appear to be true.

[Page 142]

But, in reality, a ruthless campaign of all against all has been instituted, which has certainly produced, as its first and immediate result, a release of all kinds of forces, and a stimulating and goading of the economic life to an alarming extent, but which must eventually exhaust the most valuable activities in a nation, and end in a complete victory for those, who are most ruthless and dishonest.

In former times, there was also no lack of stimulating competition; it was, however, of quite a different kind. The competition then, was in the good quality of what was produced; whoever sold the best goods, secured the most custom. The Hebrew, by "cutting" prices, has reversed the nature of the competition; for today, the low value of the goods produced is the principal object of the commercial rivalry of the world. Whoever can manage to offer goods at an exceedingly low price – without any consideration for the quality, or, at any rate, only with the appearance of quality – is assured of success. And, whoever makes use of deception, in addition, can rely upon brilliant results.

Unclean competition has usurped the position, once occupied by sound and straightforward commercial rivalry.

There is no doubt whatever – as has been stated already on page 99 – that the ancient guilds, which the Hebrew invariably abuses as a reactionary system, possessed their good features. They not only required proof of the capability of each craftsman, but they tested also the quality of what was produced. Each master had to answer for the genuineness of the goods, which he produced, and the guild or hallmark furnished the article produced with evidence of its soundness.

At the time spoken of, there still existed a morality in business, which, at the present day, has dwindled away to such an extent, that only some pitiful traces are still to be found, here and there. That mutual “hunting-down” of customers, which was formerly regarded as dishonourable, is, today, the special boast of the Hebrew.

[Page 143]

In those days there was a maxim:

“No one must force his way into the business of another, or push his own business to such an extent that another citizen is ruined thereby.”

This amount of morality, this amount of regard for one’s neighbour, this amount of social sense are unknown in the business-life of today. The announcement that one would accept lower prices than one’s competitors, was regarded, in olden times, as the lowest degree of commercial impropriety. The Hebrew, with mental machinery of an entirely different kind, has no sympathy with such dignity and propriety. These appear to him merely as irksome restrictions, which make it more difficult to earn money; for this reason he rejects them. An inevitable sequel to these modern business maxims and views is the relaxation of all morality, and of all social ties throughout the community. One looks around and asks one’s self, if humanity indeed has made any moral or social advance since those olden days.

Whilst the merchant of former times knew how to preserve the dignity of the independent man, and in the course of trading, never sacrificed his self-respect in order to obtain business, the Hebrew, on the contrary, has degraded the entire domain of commerce, and has cast honour and shame to the winds, simply to create business. He has introduced into the economic life that degrading hurry and scurry, which wears the soles off the boots in order to steal a march on a competitor, and sacrifices self-respect and decency sooner than allow any business to go elsewhere.

Only the grossest form of self-deception could enable anyone to imagine that this kind of mutual "hunting-down" is of the slightest value from an economic point of view. In reality this excessive activity is accompanied by a crazy waste of energy. Formerly, as now, the merchant found his customers, but the whole process was carried on, and completed itself, in a peaceful and dignified fashion. The merchant could wait until the customer came; and the customer came, surely enough, for there was nobody interested in alienating him.

Thus all business traffic pursued the even tenor of its way, without haste and without excitement, and a man could obtain a decent subsistence without infringement of his self respect.

[Page 144]

At the present day, business people harry one another to death, for each has the feeling that a potential robber is lurking in ambush, in his preserve, ready to waylay his customers and to take their money if he does not come up quickly to prevent it.

This hurry and nervousness, peculiar to present-day business, first made their appearance when the Jewish traders assumed the ascendancy. Sombart says:

"The world, well-arranged as it used to be, with all its ancient soundness and solidity was simply taken by storm by the Jews, and we behold this people, stride by stride, thrusting back the former economic order and economic mode of thinking."

Actually, this assault by the Hebrews on our Aryan world is not only an attack on our economic arrangements, but is simultaneously an attempt to undermine the very foundations of our moral system. Sombart certainly gives it as his opinion, that transgressions against the precepts of rectitude and morality are part and parcel of human nature. We protest against such a conception. Certainly there have always been individuals, who have not known how to remain within the limits, appointed by rectitude and morality, but they were invariably denounced as bunglers and disturbers, and regarded accordingly. Respect for the restraints of law and sound morality must be set down as a fundamental and marked feature of the Aryan or Nordic mode of living and thought; and if, at the present day, we are scarcely aware of the possession of this quality, we at any rate know, that it was bad example and dire necessity, which compelled us to cast it from us. He, who wishes to compete on equal terms with the Hebrew, must descend to the moral level of the latter.

This dire necessity has forced itself upon the German merchant, at an earlier date, than upon his brother traders in other countries, as Germany, on account of its political disruption, has fallen an easier prey to the Jew than any other of the ancient lands of culture. Two hundred years ago, the German name already laboured under the misfortune of being used as a cloak by the Jews.

[Page 145]

When the Jewish business people began to come into prominence, an English writer (1745) expressed his indignation, that there were certain people, who publicly announced their readiness to sell their goods at lower prices than their fellow-traders. He stigmatized this unseemly "cutting" of prices, as shameless. In England, "Dutchmen", that is to say, taken literally, "Germans", were regarded as being the instigators of this practice. It was really the inhabitants of Holland, however, who were meant, and who, up till the year 1648, belonged politically to the German Empire, and were then, as now, called "Dutchmen." It is these people i.e., the Dutch Jews, whom we Germans have to thank for the unpleasant fact that, even now, the English and Americans refer contemptuously to the Germans as "Dutchmen."

The Dutch Hebrews, who arrived in England at that time, were the real originators of under-bidding, and of the traffic in shoddy merchandise. The Jews also, who were hunted out of Spain, and fled, for the most part, to Holland, made their sinister influence felt upon the destinies of us Germans. Soon after 1700, they had already begun a system of predatory culture in a recovering Germany; the book-trade serves as an instance, upon which particular business they conferred the questionable benefit of sales, on a gigantic scale, at book-auctions, a practice, which they had introduced in Holland, because the profit by the old-fashioned method of selling volume by volume was acquired too slowly to suit their taste.

In modern times also, it is much to be regretted that the German merchant has accustomed himself to, and definitely accepted, all kinds of unseemly practices, which were formerly the monopoly of the Hebrews. Sombart allows that Jewish ethics differ from those of mankind in general, and that those offences on the part of Jews against public morality cannot be laid to the account of any individual in particular, but arise rather from those general ideas regarding life and business morality, which are implanted in the Jewish nature. He asks

(page 153):

“What really then was specifically Jewish? And is one entitled to assume, in general a peculiar idiosyncrasy in the attitude of the Jew towards all enduring arrangements?

[Page 146]

I believe so; yes, and I believe that this specific Jewish characteristic of infringing the law, expresses, before everything else, the idea that the Jews regard their offences against right and morality, as not being the particular concern of any individual amongst them, but rather as being the discharge of a code of commercial morality, accepted by and current amongst the Jews, and that their business habits are only those, which are sanctioned by the majority of the Jewish business people. We are bound to conclude, from the general and continued practice of fixed customs, that the Jews do not at all regard their irregular mode of trading as immoral, and consequently as unpermissible, but are convinced, on the contrary, that they are acting in a perfectly moral manner – the ‘correct’ right as opposed to a ridiculous conception of right and morality.”

As a matter of fact, our moral perception of things is “senseless” so far as the Hebrew is concerned; it is too lofty for him. If there is any pronounced feature about Hebrewdom, whereby it can at once be distinguished from the rest of humanity, it is precisely this absence of moral sensitiveness.

In reality the Hebrew is a lower type of being, in whom all those qualities are wanting, which confer a real dignity upon mankind—honour, a sense of shame, a conscience and moral consciousness. As our entire existence is confined within these barriers, we are naturally not so free to carry on the competitive struggle, whether it be of a spiritual or economic nature, so effectively as the person, who declines to recognise any such restraints. Just as a cleanly being steps aside to avoid a foul mire, into which a swine plunges with satisfaction, so does a man, with clean instincts, revolt against following the Hebrew into the swamp of moral degradation. If he tries to do so, either he or his better nature is ruined.

And this is the peculiar difficulty of the present time, that we have allowed ourselves to be overcome by the swinish predilection of the Hebrew, that we have descended from our moral altitude, in order to scuffle with him in the mud and mire for our daily fodder. It is vain to hope that one will ever be able to elevate the Hebrew to the plane of nobler manhood; for at least three thousand years, he has shown himself to be incapable of improvement, and he will always remain so. It is a fallacy to maintain that this moral deficiency made itself so glaringly conspicuous in the Jew, owing to his compulsory detention in the Ghetto, and would leave him as soon as he was permitted to move freely in a moral community.

[Page 147]

This fond expectation has been bitterly disappointed by the actual facts: the Hebrew, with his insensibility for higher moral values, will invariably drag down the rest of the community to his own low level, whenever he is permitted full scope for his baneful activity. The same presumption has shown itself to be false also, in countries, where the Jews have enjoyed unrestricted freedom for centuries, such countries for instance, as England, the Netherlands and the United States. In these lands, as well as in France, where they have had complete civic rights since the end of the eighteenth century, and now are the undisputed masters", their nature has not altered by one hair-breadth.

Sombart speaks in the highest terms of a certain Jewess, the so-called "Gluckel von Hameln," who lived from 1645 to 1724, and wrote her own biography. But, in spite of his praise, he added the significant remark:

"All the aspirations and endeavours, all the thoughts and feelings of this woman centred themselves on Money. For the whole 313 pages of her memoirs, she speaks of nothing else but money, and of acquiring riches." (Page 156).

And it is this trait especially, which proclaims the lower nature, and which predominates in the Hebrew; for we are entitled to maintain with confidence, that the man is by so much the more spiritual and moral, the less his thoughts are influenced by material considerations.

The noblest spirits, taken from any period, have seldom been good managers. The interest concerning money did not occupy their minds to any considerable extent, and was regarded as a secondary consideration. It was the noble Nazarene, who announced: "You cannot serve both God and Mammon." The more idealism, the more spiritual purity and dignity, and the less regard for money.

* After Martin, Levy is the name, which occurs most frequently in the French business world, a fact which the well-known Dr. Bertillon has established by reference to the various address-books. (T-gl. Rundschau, Nr. 291 of 1913).

[Page 148]

The Hebrew endeavours to substitute cunning in the place of the idealism, in which he is so conspicuously lacking, and to compensate for his deficiency in moral feeling and in deep instincts, by a more subtle understanding. The intellect – the cool power of calculation – belongs, by no manner of means, to the higher spiritual functions; invariably it forms but a poor substitute for the deeper spiritual forces, which are wanting, for the feeling and perceiving discernment of things and connections between things. Just as the Hebrew endeavours in the economic life to substitute the mere possession of money for the ability to work and create, in which he is so deficient, so does he endeavour to conceal his lack of the deeper, spiritual capacity by a veneer of sham culture. It is, for this reason, very questionable praise, when Sombart refers again and again to the "pre-eminent intellectuality" of the Jews; In reality, all that he means is the mental cunning, the subtle process of calculation, which is peculiar to a low order of intellect.

Deviation in the trend of Jewish life.

Now we will occupy ourselves for a short time with the economic side of the matter: the Hebrew desires to possess riches in order to obtain mastery over others, and to oppress them; and it is in this particular, where there is a great difference between the acquisition of money by Jews, and the acquisition of money by other races. Certainly there are plenty of business people amongst Aryans and Christians, whose inclination is predominantly towards making money, and people, enough and to spare, who do not pay much attention to the moral side of the question, and regard all means and methods as equally good, provided that money can be acquired thereby. But, in one respect, they impose a restriction on themselves; they content themselves with guarding and enjoying their wealth; they do not begrudge others, besides themselves, the opportunity to acquire wealth and to enjoy it. It is quite different where the Hebrew is concerned.

It is, as if he is consumed by an inappeasable hatred towards all, who happen to possess something; as if he felt himself alone entitled to claim all material possessions in this world for himself and for his people; as if he could not rest so long as goods and money still remained in the hands of those, who are not Jews. This frame of mind finds unconcealed expression in the Talmudic-Rabbinical writings. One finds there, for instance:

"God created the world solely for the Jews, and accordingly all property in the world belongs to the Jews."

The Talmud therefore declares:

"The possessions of those, who are not Jews, are equivalent to possessions without an owner and the first, who seizes the same, is entitled to them."

This is no theoretical interpretation; the Jews take it, and act on it in deadly earnest. They regard it as their special mission in life to travel all over the earth in order to acquire all the possessions of the Goyim. They do not consider that they have fulfilled their duty to their God, Jahweh, until all the riches in the world are in their hands, so that they can lay the same at the feet of their idol. It is for this reason that the real Jew is animated by a feverish restlessness to dispossess the Goy of his property. It is, as if he suffered mental distress, so long as there remained any property in his vicinity, which he had not yet acquired. It is precisely this behaviour, which draws such a sharp dividing line between the Jewish and "Christian" business and usury practices. The Hebrew does not only desire to gain, but to ruin and enslave others as well. The young deputy Bismarck, speaking in the Landtag of 1847, furnished a classical proof of this contention:

"I will give an example, which contains the whole history of the relations existing between Jew and Christian. – I know a rural district where the Jewish population is numerous, where there are peasants, who cannot call a single object on their farms their own property, where the entire furniture, from the bed to the stove, belongs to the Jew, and where the peasant pays a rent for each separate piece of furniture; the growing corn and the corn in the barn belong to the Jew, and the Jew sells the corn for bread, seed and feeding purposes back to the peasant again, by the peck. I, at any rate, in the course of my professional duties, have never come across nor even heard of a Christian practising usury comparable with this."

[Page 150]

Anyone, who is acquainted with the activity of the Jews in Bavarian Franconia, in Hesse, in the north of Wurtemberg and other places, can provide more than enough instances of a similar kind.

The Jew, when doing business, is always impelled by a double motive: not only does he desire advantage for himself, but he wishes, at the same time, to cause damage to the other side. It is for this reason, that he will not reject a piece of business, that brings him in nothing, so long as it serves his purpose of weakening others. His aim is to sweep all competitors away. "He does not ask", says Sombart, "if a profit can be made or not, or if it will be necessary to work for a time without making a profit, simply in order that, later on, he may make all the more profit". This is the "grear", startling innovation, which the Jew has introduced into business life, and which celebrates its economic triumph in the form of the great "Stores". At the back of the Jewish fighting tactic, is always lurking the idea of monopoly – of sole domination – the desire to annihilate all competitors.

A dark instinct for disturbance and destruction, for confusion and dissolution, all of which facilitate the plundering of others, is the most marked feature in the Hebrew; for, in the universal ruin, the richest booty falls to his share. In this respect he resembles the vulture, which, scenting its prey, hovers over the battle-field. The ruin of others brings him his surest spoil.

Whilst the merchant of former days willingly restricted his activities to dealing in one speciality, in one particular district, the Hebrew, by preference, deals everywhere with everybody. The former division of trade, according to specialities, had the great advantage of enabling the merchant to acquire a far more thorough knowledge of his goods, and, at the same time, to provide, in his particular line, the greatest variety of choice.

[Page 151]

The Hebrew, on the contrary, whose original business-occupation was always in the old-clothes shop, in which secondhand articles of all kinds were to be found, has not been able, even at the present day, to free himself of his preference for a medley of second-hand rubbish: he preserves the character and atmosphere of the old-clothes shop, even in his emporiums of trash and his great "stores"; yes, and even into his great industrial undertakings. Even Sombart perceives in all this, what he describes as a characteristically Jewish touch, and acknowledges that the great "stores" are almost exclusively in Jewish hands.

Sombart mentions with pride, that the Hebrews are the fathers of the "hire-purchase" business; and this may well be the case. (Compare page 117). One must not run away with the idea, which is for ever being trumpeted forth in the advertisements of these business, namely that sympathy with the small man was the motive, which originated them. A far different tendency is at the root of the movement. Just as the Hebrew buys up the harvest, for a mere song, from a peasant, who is short of money, or is in other difficulties, while the grain is still on the stalk and even before it is ripe, so does he secure for himself, by means of the "hire-purchase" system, all the wages of the poor man for weeks and months in advance. In Faust the Jew is spoken of as follows:

"Er schafft Antizipationen—
Die Schweine kommen nicht zu Fette, Verpfandet ist der Pfuhl im Bette,

Und auf den Tisch kommt vorgegessen Brot."

(Goethe)

["'He creates anticipations . . .

The swine are never left to fatten

Pawned is the pillow in the bed

And the very bread, which is placed on the table,
has been eaten in advance."']

The Jew knows how to prevent the unfortunate people from taking their money elsewhere, by binding them over in a legal agreement, to assign the proceeds of their labour to him for a long time in advance. The "hire-purchase" system is therefore a particular and valuable link in the chain of business operations, by which the Jews suck up the money in circulation.

It prevents the saving of money by those, who are not Jews, and quickens the return flow, even of the smallest stream of money, into the reservoir of Judah. Certainly all these Jewish practices have introduced a novel and peculiar atmosphere into modern business life, but it is certainly not a healthy and beneficial one. The final injurious effects of this kind of commercial activity upon the economic life are not immediately apparent, for the excessive stimulation of the economic life produces, with its colour, variety and movement, a positively dazzling effect. But it is no less certain that this Jewish tendency, in the economic life, is continually bringing public morality to a lower and lower level, and is destroying all regard for the general welfare of the community.

The principle of ruthless selfishness has obtained the mastery, and the right of the individual to enrich himself, by any and every means, has established itself, even if the rest of the community suffer grievously thereby, and both state and morality are sacrificed. Social harmony has been replaced by mutual enmity, everybody fights everybody, and this can only end in universal destruction. It is no longer a cause for wonder when active business people break down prematurely from nervous exhaustion in their best years, and when all manner of insidious diseases and social disorders arise out of this mad state of affairs. We are being continually and insistently informed that all this must be so – that all this is inseparable from progress. We perceive, at any rate, that the physical and mental powers of mankind are giving way, under these malign influences, to the verge of complete extinction.

This method of destruction must be opposed by a wise and sensible discipline, whereby all the material requirements of life can be satisfied without impairing the constitutive powers of mankind. This disciplinary system must adopt, as its standard, the principle that the preservation and elevation of mankind are of more importance than the mere increase of business, and the accumulation of world riches.

All.

The Hebrews as supporters of Capitalism.

Sombart advances the question as to whether the Jew possesses a special capacity for capitalism. It appears most extraordinary to us that such a question should ever have been propounded. Capitalism is not an activity, which calls for a special kind of capacity, but a condition, the cultivation or administration of which, calls for certain qualifications. Even, in the case of the Hebrew, capitalism, for its own sake, is not regarded as the main object, but rather as a means for increasing his own power, and for enslaving those, who are not Jews.

Thus, the question will take the following shape: does the Hebrew possess a special talent for amassing capital, and for giving a capitalistic formation to the economic life? Nobody has ever been in doubt concerning this fact.

Sombart claims for the Hebrews the merit of being the founders and upholders of modern world-wide commerce, of modern finance, of the Stock Exchange, in fact, of the commercialisation of the entire economic life; of being the parents of free trade, and of free competition, of being the exponents of the modern spirit in the realm of business. We will cheerfully concede all this, but, at the same time it is perfectly clear to us, that this modern spirit is by no means a good spirit, for it is the spirit of the disintegration of political economy, of the destruction of the productive nations. The explanation of the idea of capitalism, which, according to Sombart, is as follows, seems strange indeed to us:

“Capitalism is the name we give to that organisation of economic intercourse, by which two different groups of the population – the owners of the means of production, who, at the same time,

carry on the work of directing, and the ordinary work-people who own nothing – cooperate, so indeed that the representatives of Capital (i.e., of the requisite store of the necessary goods) are the real economic subjects, that is to say, hold the power of deciding the nature and direction of the economic management, and bear the responsibility for the issue, whatever it may be” (page 186).

[Page 154]

According to this, Capitalism characterizes itself as the economic method of the proletarian state, which is ruled and guided unresistingly by a few financial magnates, as a new edition of slavery in its most acute form. In actuality, this is the ideal of the Hebrew, to whom it has been promised in the Talmud, that a time will come when every Jew will possess 2800 slaves.

The only question is whether the other nations regard such a state of things as desirable, and are willing to help to bring it about.

This might be expressed in a somewhat more general fashion as follows: the capitalistic economic system regards the formation of capital as the principal aim of economic activity.

According to this system, capital, and not man, is of most importance. This system places man and his spiritual needs on a lower plane than the accumulation of capital. Moneymaking is regarded as the first principle of life. And the object of this creation of capital? – the domination and exploitation of mankind by means of loan-servitude.

Formerly the earning of money was a side-issue in the economic life; the other, and more important object was: on the one hand, the satisfaction of human needs by the production of the requisite goods, and the guaranteeing, on the other hand, of the possibility of an existence for the producer, as well as for the business or middleman. The man, and the possibility of his existence, were always the chief consideration. According to the capitalistic system of the Hebrew, the matter was regarded in a very different light. Sombart is of opinion that:

“Out of a systematic direction of economic affairs, for the purpose of making profit, which thereby provides the incentive for the effort to expand continuously all kinds of business activity, arises, as a natural consequence, a conscious guiding or directing of all trading activity towards the supreme reasonable method of establishing and maintaining economic relations.”

[Page 155]

It is certainly true that the economic life receives a very marked warp or distortion in one particular direction, if one enquires every moment what profit can be made, but we certainly cannot recognise the method just described as the “supreme rational”; it is rather supremely irrational, because it is so busily engaged in the mad accumulation of capital that it entirely disregards the aim of all culture: namely the preservation and elevation of mankind.

In olden times the economic method was grounded firmly on the principle of organic growth and building-up, but the modern Jewish economic method aims at a ruthless extermination – at the so-called predatory culture. It drags riches together, from all directions, at the cost of human welfare; it produces wares, which, to a considerable extent, serve but one purpose, and that is simply to entice and trick money out of the pockets of the people; it creates a few rich by the indebtedness and impoverishment of the masses. But, above all, it uses up human energy to such an extent, that it must soon end in the exhaustion and decline of the nation.

It is characteristic of this capitalistic system that it is unable to realise the effects of its own action – that it is actually killing the goose, which lays the golden eggs. Impelled by the short-sighted greed for amassing money, it wrecks the organic foundations of national life. Is there perhaps design behind all this? Is this Jewish-capitalistic economic method perhaps the means to the end of fulfilling the ancient commandment:

“Thou shalt eat up all nations?”
Sombart asks the question:

“What is the meaning in the capitalistic sense of a successful stroke of business? Naturally that this activity, with its terms and conditions, should be followed by a good result. In what way however, is this successful result to be gauged? Certainly not by the quality of the performance. Just as little by the quantity. All the more, simply and solely, if. . .”

The reader expects now to hear: whether, under the operation of this beneficial, capitalistic system, Culture and Humanity are to be conducted to a still higher plane, or: whether Morality and Social Arrangement are to show a gratifying advance?

[Page 156]

– Oh, dear no; completely erroneous! According to Sombart, the beneficial result of this economic method is to be gauged solely as follows:

“Tf, at the end of an economic period the advanced money is again in hand, and has brought with it something additional, which we call profit’ (page 188).

The sublime blessings, to be derived from this economic system, could not be stated in a more pertinent manner, and one must infer that Sombart is a man, with a very keen sense of sarcastic humour, who, under the pretext of recognition, is desirous of exposing, in these words, the utter barrenness of capitalism. Even the question is not asked, whether an improvement in the production of goods is the result of this economic method – no:

“the sole consideration is, that at the conclusion of the transaction, the gain in money or property remains in the hands of the capitalist, who took it in hand.”

– Mankind, you have no need to be alarmed; capitalistic Jewdom is conducting you towards a splendid goal:

“.. 80 that the debit and credit of the ledger shall be closed with a balance in favour of the enterprising capitalist. In this effect are included all the successes and all the transactions, undertaken by the capitalistic organisation.” (Sombart p. 188)

What is then an undertaker or contractor in the capitalistic sense? “He is aman,” says Sombart, “who has a task to fulfill, and sacrifices his life in fulfilling it.”* Certainly there are undertakers or contractors of this kind but, for the most part, they are not of Jewish origin. Certainly there are men, who, with the sacrifice of their entire physical and mental energy, devote themselves to some great work and who can be described as actually sacrificing their lives for these objects.

Great industrialists, such as Krupp, Borsig, Schichau, Hartmann and many others were men of this stamp, but we certainly do not find Hebrews amongst them.

*A strange formulary! Just as if the official, the officer, the doctor, the workman etc had not also tasks to fulfill, and might not with equal right be said to sacrifice their lives in fulfilling the same!

[Page 157]

The Rothschilds, Bleichroders, Guttmanns, Hirschs have accumulated hundreds of millions, in a few decades, but we search in vain for any great and astounding work, which they have accomplished; we see, at the most, that they have known how to exploit, in the most cunning fashion, other men, who have been the real producers, in order to amass enormous riches for themselves; we are unable to perceive that they have in any way hazarded their lives, while engaged in this kind of business. They were the money-lenders and speculators, who finally pocketed the entire benefit accruing from the work of others, without themselves accomplishing anything worth mentioning. If Sombart means, that the real promoter of undertakings must be a combination of producer and dealer, it does not say much for the Hebrew capitalists as far as the promotion or origination of undertakings is concerned, for, as a rule, we find nothing of the productive element in them, only the dealer. And the latter Sombart defines in the following manner:

“The dealer is a man, desirous of lucrative business, all of whose ideas and feelings are concentrated upon the value in money of conditions and negotiations, and who therefore consistently regards all phenomena in terms of money; for whom the world is a great market of supply and demand, of crises and occasions, of possibilities of gains and losses, who is always asking: How much does it cost and what does it yield? And whose incessant questions in this respect resolve themselves into the final momentous one: What does the world cost?”

Truly, the character and behaviour of the Hebrew, as dealer, could not be better portrayed, and we have a strong suspicion that Herr Sombart is, in reality, a cleverly disguised opponent of the Jews. With still more exquisite irony, he characterises the Hebrew actually as “discoverer” – namely as the discoverer of fresh possibilities of “doing business”, who knows full well, how and where to discharge his goods, when there is not the slightest requirement nor demand for the same, and who, in order to excite new needs, provides Esquimos with bathingdrawers and niggers with hot-water bottles.

[Page 158]

And Sombart also knows full well how to portray the tenacious importunity of the Hebrew, when he characterises the specifically Jewish talent for dealing, as the art of:

“Acquiring a pair of old trousers by cunningly wearing out the patience of a needy cavalier, to whose apartments he may already have been five times without accomplishing his purpose, in order, later on, to talk some peasant into buying the garment, by exercising all his powers of persuasion.”

According to Sombart, amongst the other requirements of the Dealer, must be included a power “to see with a thousand eyes, and to hear with a thousand ears’, and this accomplishment has been brought to perfection by Jewdom, by means of the organisation and consistent cooperation of all Jews. The German business-man can only see with his own two eyes, and only in exceptional cases has other eyes at his disposal, to help him to extend his vision. Jewdom, however, has been organised into a Hydra with a thousand heads, which are all attached to the same body, and which all follow the same instinct. This Jewish “dealing” organisation, with its thousand senses, spies upon the artless nations, never lets an opportunity slip of “doing business’, and knows how to arrange matters so that the profit always falls to its share.

According to the sound, old, time-honoured ideas, trading or dealing was an honourable exchange, in which one gave either goods for goods, or goods for money; and the sense of fairness regulated the proceeding to mutual satisfaction. In the case of an honestly conducted transaction both sides might well derive advantage and profit therefrom, because the object purchased might be worth more to the purchaser than the price paid, and, at the same time, the seller might secure a profit. It is quite different according to the Jewish perception.

Sombart’s opinion is, that trading or bargaining means “a struggle with mental weapons’, and, in reality, all Jewish trading and bargaining is made up of persuasion, overreaching, false representation and imposition. He is not desirous merely of satisfying a want but, in addition to endeavouring to secure an excessive profit for himself, he attempts to do the other side as much harm as possible. The Hebrews, as a nation, which, for thousands of years, has practised nothing but haggling, usury and overreaching, have developed the art of persuasion to the highest possible point.

[Page 159]

How often does one not hear simple-natured people, who have been talked into buying the goods of some Jewish pedlar, excuse themselves by saying:

“T had to buy something from the man because I could not otherwise get rid of him”.

Yes, it is impossible to ignore the fact that many Jews – at any rate when they come into contact with artless and ingenuous people – possess an almost demoniacal power of suggestion, and of infatuating simple natures, so that the latter follow unresistingly the intentions of those, who are fooling them. We shall return to this particular theme in chapter XVI:

“The influence of the Jew upon Womankind.” – “One of the most effective inward means of coercion, which the Hebrew is in the habit of applying, consists in arousing the idea, that the immediate conclusion of the business in hand will prove advantageous.”

Thus speaks Sombart, and the Hebrew knows full well how to utilise this means to the very utmost. It is actually a fact that some Jewish pedlars are in the habit of intimating to possible customers, that the goods they offer, are stolen property, or are taken from a bankrupt's stock, and must, on that account, be disposed of as quickly as possible, and at almost any price.

Sombart rightly refers to the peculiar position of isolation, which the Hebrew takes up in the midst of the other national communities, as a circumstance, which confers exceptional advantages upon him in the midst of the other nations. He emphasizes that the advantages, enjoyed by the Hebrew, are rooted in the following circumstances:

1. in their extensive dispersion,
2. in their alienage,
3. in their half-citizenship, and
4. in their wealth.

Unfortunately Sombart has omitted the most important items, namely,

5. the open and the secret connection amongst themselves, and
6. the Jewish morality, which is especially adapted for trading and for deceit.

1. The extensive dispersion.

The Hebrews, thanks to their extensive dispersion over all lands, are enabled, by means, of their international and domestic connections, which they attend to with the utmost assiduity, to maintain an accurate survey of all economic occurrences in distant, as well as in adjacent territories.

[Page 160]

By this means they are enabled to secure, at all times, the earliest reliable information concerning the prospect of the crops, concerning the production and sale of goods, concerning stocks of goods in hand, concerning the forwarding of goods, both by land and water, and concerning the circulation of money and any local deficiency of money. It is also known for certain that they mutually exchange most valuable information and hints with respect to these matters – not only by means of the reports in the Press of the various markets and exchanges, which reports are, almost without exception, under their control – but also by means of private letters and dispatches in cipher.

Important facts like these, are far too little known and appreciated at their full value in our time. Anyone, who has an inkling of these matters, cannot be in the least surprised at the success of the Jews; he, at any rate, will not gaze upwards with amazement and admiration at the supposed eminent and unusual faculties for trade, possessed by the Jews, because these faculties rest on very ordinary foundations. There have always been men with keen insight, who have seen through these inner workings; but, unfortunately the wisdom of olden times seems lost to the present generation, and it often appears to us as if our teachers and spiritual pastors, as well as our political leaders of today, put on smoked spectacles, so as not to see what is happening before their eyes.

Even in the year 1698, a report from the French Ambassador at the Hague, is devoted to a description of the activities of the Dutch Jews, and of the machinations of these people on the Amsterdam Exchange.* Amongst other things, mention is made therein of the secret brotherhoods (Congregations), which the Jews maintain, and which stand in the most intimate connection with one another. For instance, the "Fraternity of Saloniki, which rules over their nation in both those other parts of the world, and is surety for it," and that of

"Venice which, together with that of Amsterdam, holds sway over all the northern parts."

[Page 161]

Mention is also made that these "brotherhoods" are only tolerated in England, and have to be kept secret in France. The result of the intercourse between these "brotherhoods" is, that the Jews are the first and the best informed concerning anything connected with trade, or of a novel nature, and out of this liaison they build up their system (The Speculation), and meet weekly on Sundays for consultation, while the Christians are occupied with their religious duties.

The ambassador continues:

"These speculative schemes, which are of a most subtle nature, and have been prepared in accordance with the intelligence, which has come in during the preceding week, are sifted and refined by their Rabbis and learned men, and are then, on the following Sunday, handed over to their Jewish brokers and agents, who are selected for their exceptional craftiness. After the latter have consulted with one another, each of them circulates, on the same day, the news, which is specially adapted to serve their purposes. The next day, they at once set to work buying, selling, exchanging and dealing in shares. As they always have large sums of money and stocks of goods at their disposal, they are always in a position to judge correctly when the right moment has arrived to carry out their 'coups', whether at the top or at the bottom of the market, or simultaneously in both directions." (Sombart, page 202.)

This has been, in very truth, the secret of the Jewish brokers for centuries, and it is nothing less than astounding how neither our merchants, nor our learned political economists, nor our politicians, nor our statesmen can see through these secret machinations, and still cling to their naive belief that supply and demand determine the price. In reality, the Hebrews, combined internationally, form a clique for exploring all opportunities, and for systematically influencing all market conditions.

Even at the present day, similar conspirators and instigators of the same unsavoury plotting and scheming are to be found amongst the Rabbis, and one can soothe one's self with the reflection that, on occasions, matters are dealt with in the Synagogues, which have nothing to do with the service of God, but which, on the contrary, exhale the very essence of trade and the money-market (compare page 74).

This Jewish system of espionage, and the secret machinations in the synagogues and on the Stock Exchange, place the Hebrew in a position to obtain quicker and more reliable information, concerning all matters, than anybody else in the country, not excepting the Governments.

[Page 162]

And thus it comes to pass, that the latter, in their naiveté and artlessness, frequently imagine that they must make use of the Hebrew, not only for the purpose of obtaining important news from abroad, but also in order to exert diplomatic influence in all directions. They forget that by doing this, they are putting the cart in front of the horse, and that it is Jewdom and the money-market, which derive thereby all the benefit from any new political move.

Anyone, who is desirous of obtaining a correct idea of the methods and extent of Jewish interference with and intrusion into the higher political circles, should read what Emil Witte, formerly commercial counsellor under v. Holleben at the German Embassy in the United States, has to say in his book "Aus einer deutschen Botschaft. Zehn Jahre deutsch-amerikanischer Diplomatie" (From a German Embassy. Ten years of German American diplomacy). This work is rich in disclosures concerning the nature of, and the position occupied by the two telegraphic agencies of Reuter (London) and Wolff (Berlin), to whom has been assigned the chief role of making known important political news to the public by means of the Press.

Whilst dealing with this subject, the following remarks will be of interest, as they afford glimpses into the career of a Jewish adventurer. The founder of the "Reuter Bureau" was born in Cassel of poverty-stricken Jewish parents, and his real name is Josaphat. After an obscure and apparently turbulent youth, Reuter became partner in a bookseller's business in Berlin; he left this position on account of certain "irregularities", and soon afterwards founded the Reuter Bureau in London, in company with a fellow tribesman, Dr. Englander, one of those numerous men of honour, who, by their assumed German names, bring everything connected with that country into disrepute abroad, and who was, at the same time, a pronounced Anarchist.

[Page 163]

With the help of Oscar Meding (Gregor Samarow) the well-known Guelphic author and political agent, he was successful in inducing the blind King George V of Hannover to grant the concession of a telegraph-cable from Lowestoft to Norderney, which he disposed of, in 1869, for a profit of more than £200,000 (over four million marks)

to the British Government. Raised to the grade of Baron by Duke Ernst of Coburg-Gotha, he earned large sums of money by acting as impresario to the Shah Nasr-el-Din of Persia, and paid the latter's travelling expenses all over Europe. By so doing, he secured from the Shah, every possible concession, which Persia had to impart.

In order to put a stop to the mutual competition, engendered by the founding in Berlin in 1865 of the telegraphic bureau of Dr. Wolff – also a Jew – Reuter purchased a part share in the same, so that since then the same genius has held sway over the two bureaux. What the nature of this spirit or genius is, can be ascertained later on in this book, at the appropriate place. Here it will suffice to say, that the owner of the R. Bureau – Baron de Reuter – is portrayed as a man, possessed by a demoniacal ambition, who is enabled, by his position and his enormous wealth, to play a pernicious part on the political stage, even though it takes place behind the scenes. A man, moreover, utterly unscrupulous as to the means he employs to enrich, and to advance himself – one can read a great deal more about him in Witte's book – and who was turned out by Bismarck on account of the hostile tone, which his news service always displayed towards Germany.

The German Baron had his revenge for this, by securing a dominating influence in the direction of Wolff's Bureau, which is supported by Prussia and Germany, and since then has taken his part in shaping politics in both of these countries by the method peculiar to him. How and when this takes place, the public has never been allowed to learn, although it is a fact of common knowledge in all our newspaper offices, that Reuter's Bureau is the heart and soul of all the foreign animosity towards the German Empire.*

* Anyone, who is desirous of tracking down the instigators of the World's War, must certainly not pass Reuter by unnoticed.

[Page 164]

Thus, this institution, which exists to feed half the world with news – in other words to influence vast masses of people – is connected by the "most intimate ties" with the telegraphic bureau of Wolff, which is domiciled in Berlin. What that means, is expressed by Witte, on page 118, in a quotation from an article in "Black and White" by a former Times correspondent—Charles Lowe – concerning the bills of exchange transactions between Reuter and Wolff, as well as the inner organisation of the telegraphic bureau of Wolff:

'Wolff' is a joint-stock company, composed of some of the first Jewish bankers in Berlin, and, naturally enough, the members of this association claim the privilege for themselves of having the first look at all important telegrams, a privilege, the prodigious significance of which, for the twin worlds of international politics and international finance, is immediately apparent.

The W. T. B. is a semi-official arrangement, the recognised organ of the German and Prussian Government. 'Doutdes' (I give in order that you may give) or, "quid pro quo" (nothing for nothing) is the principle, which regulates its relations to both governments, of which it is, at one and the same time, henchman and mouthpiece. Many contemptuous expressions have been used concerning the 'Reptile' Bureau in Berlin, but, as a matter of fact, such a Bureau does not exist, or, at any rate, only in the shape of the above-mentioned telegraphic bureau.

This is not to say that Wolff receives a subsidy in money out of the 'Reptile' fund of the Government. In the case of a newspaper, or a similar undertaking, however, payment, in the form of important news, is just as valuable, if not more valuable, than payment in hard cash.

What does the payment to Wolff consist of? First of all, in the precedence, which the Government accords to all messages received by or emanating from Wolff's Bureau, in order to assure to that office, whenever possible, priority in the publication of its announcements, a consideration, which is naturally of the utmost importance to a telegraphic bureau.

Moreover, the Government makes use of Wolff's Bureau as its channel of information and mouth-piece, when it wishes to publish a "dementi" to influence public opinion, or to communicate certain information in a certain form to the world – especially to that part, which lies outside Germany, this last can be very comfortably accomplished thanks to Wolff's international "connections."

The W. T. B. is an institution, founded by Bleichroder, and for which Louis Schneider, formerly non-commissioned officer and later courtier, the well-known reader to King William I, was successful in obtaining the favourable notice of his august master.

In his letter to Dr. Wolff, in which he praises the Doctor's intention, the King, in 1865, announced his expectation that "patriotic financiers like Messrs Oppenfeld, Magnus and Bleichroder" would support Wolff's undertaking. What the shareholders in Wolff's Telegraphic Bureau understand by "patriotism", is disclosed by the activity of this institution, which Bismarck distinctly referred to in his famous aphorism "'to lie like a telegram.'" The principal shareholders according to Witte, are the chief of Bleichröder's Bank, Dr. Paul von Schwabach, English Consul-General, and Herbert v. Reuter, chief of the English telegraphic bureau, whose enmity towards Germany is an established fact. Amongst other shareholders are the banking houses of Mendelsohn and of Warschauer.

Similar agreements to that between the Bureaux of Wolff and Reuter exist also between these two institutions and official or semi-official telegraphic agencies in other European countries, of which the best known are the French "Agence Havas" and the Italian "Agenzia

Stefania'. All these are in the hands of Jews. One must pause to reflect what it really means, when one learns that by means of contracts, in which high penalties have been mutually agreed upon, each of the above-mentioned "Bureaux" engages to communicate to the Press in unaltered form (that is to say without any regard for the truth) any message, received from any other agency belonging to the Union or Ring of telegraphic news-agencies! Of the two competing American telegraphic news-agencies "Associated Press" and "Laffan Bureau', the former enjoys, thanks to the "smartness" of its representative, without any reciprocation on its side, official priority for the quickest dispatch of its news from Berlin – because one believes here in Germany that by this complaisance a "Good Press" is manufactured in America.

One must read Witte's book, in order to learn from the actual facts of the World War, what astounding success has resulted from this policy.

Witte continues:

"the men, who are interested in the telegraphic bureaux, know no fatherland, think and feel internationally. – War, and danger of war provide, as far as they are concerned, the most favourable opportunities for fishing in troubled waters. It has already repeatedly come to light in the Law Courts, and there is documentary evidence to confirm the statement, that Wolff's

Bureau has suppressed important news in the interests of its shareholders, so that the 'patriotic financiers' (to whom King William I addressed himself) might be enabled, thanks to the exclusive information, to transact profitable business on the Stock Exchange. It was established, moreover, that the Foreign Office communicates the Speech from the Throne of the Kaiser, at the opening and closing of the Reichstag, to Wolff's Bureau, several hours before it is made known to the Reichstag and to the Press." (Page 121 – 122).

This "national" Telegraphic Bureau was not ashamed to receive subscriptions from private individuals for the quickest possible telegraphic information of the death of the Emperor William II during the life of this monarch. Already for years (Witte wrote his book in 1907) the number of such subscribers had reached 5000.

One asks one's self: are the representatives of the German Empire unable to discover any means of protecting themselves against this "patriotic" Telegraphic Bureau and its dark machinations by instituting themselves a self-supporting independent news-service, which would ward off from us the insidious peril, which threatens the whole German Empire by the prejudicing of its outlook and opinions for the sake of Jewish money interests?* Sombart can also tell us something about similar secret methods of the Jews. He says:

"Their method in High Finance has frequently been the following: they first of all made themselves useful to the prince or ruler, as interpreters, by means of their knowledge of languages; they were then sent as negotiators and agents to foreign courts: then the prince or ruler entrusted them with the management of his property (which opportunity, it may be remarked by the way, was skillfully taken advantage of to lead the prince or ruler into debt, and to become his creditor), and by these means they became masters of the finances, and, in more recent years, of the Exchanges (page 203)."

* Even during the World War the W. T. B. was allowed to have a monopoly of the news-service! Who can wonder now at the way in which the war ended.

[Page 167]

The Jews work always according to the same old receipt. It is already sketched out in fullest detail in the history of Joseph of Egypt's behaviour towards Potiphar and Pharaoh; and thus the Hebrew does not find it necessary to develop any particular intelligence in order to repeat the same old artifice daily – especially as the Christian nations are brought up in complete ignorance of such tricks, and repeat, in good faith, the Jewish lie that the Egyptian Joseph was a pious, virtuous man and a national benefactor. Even in the earliest times the Jews played a leading part at the courts of the German princes; thus, for example, Isaac at the court of Charlemagne, and Kalonymos at the court of Otto IH. Frederick Barbarossa was surrounded by an entire staff of Jews, just like Rudolph I. – Maximilian I, being an unbusiness-like man, was heavily in debt to the Jews. During the extensive German wars in the 17th and 18th centuries, espionage was carried on by the Jews, in all directions, to an enormous extent; even during the Prussian-German wars of liberation in 1813 and later (compare the Kreuzzeitung 1913 No. 209) more than half the traitors, who served the French as spies, were Jews.*

The Jews were to be found in swarms at the various Courts until the monarchs fell. The latter were blind enough to take the most dangerous enemies of the monarchy to their bosom, and to place implicit trust in them. The collapse of the monarchs is not undeserved; stupidity is a crime in rulers; there was no lack of warning.

* This much is certain: the Jewish boast, on the contrary, concerning the participation of Jews in the battles of liberation, was proved already in the year 1819 to be a lie. That the same lie flourishes today, and even to a greater extent than formerly, so that one Jewish Journalist even goes so far as to claim Eleonore Prochaska – the Potsdam heroine – as a Jewess, is only in accordance with the usual Jewish falsification of history.

[Page 168]

In modern times, the notorious Bernhard Maimon provides a typical example of the Jewish intriguer behind the scenes on the political stage. On account of frequent thefts of documents from the Foreign Office in Paris, in 1911, various arrests were made, and Maimon, who was eventually unmasked as the leader of an extensive system of espionage, was included amongst the thieves. Concerning this talented political adventurer one could read as follows in a Jewish paper:

“Bernard Maimon, who is perhaps sixty years of age, is, without doubt, one of the most interesting adventurers of the present time, truly a modern Casanova, who, just like his famous (Jewish) predecessor, is constantly and universally engaged in politics, works simultaneously for and against all parties, brings the greatest financial operations to successful issue, negotiates the most difficult state loans, and still has time and inclination to engage in most daring love-adventures."

Bernhard – or properly Baruch – Maimon is a Gallician Jew, which has not prevented him from playing, sometimes the Christian, sometimes the Moslem. He was well versed, not only in the Talmud, but also in the Koran and in the Bible, and understood, to a remarkable degree, how to make the most of this knowledge. The Hebrew paper full of admiration, relates further:

"His extensive public, and still more extensive secret relations with the British Embassy were in constant rivalry with his mysterious connections with other Embassies, and especially with the palace of Abdul Hamid. Tachsin, the first secretary at Yildiz Kiosk, was literally a mere tool in the hands of Maimon. And whenever Maimon stayed away from the palace in his own hotel,

there was an uninterrupted exchange of letters and messages between Yildiz and Maimon, by night as well as day.

Apparently Maimon gave the first consideration to the interests of England, but it is quite certain that he had other irons in the fire. He was a spy for the whole world, and it flattered his vanity to play with the first diplomatists of the day like a cat plays with a mouse, and to converse with monarchs, in their private apartments, concerning matters, which their ministers only learnt about for the first time much later on in the day. The Winter Palace on the Neva was open to him, and Abdul Hamid had the greatest personal regard for, and placed the blindest confidence in him, in spite of, or just because Maimon was on very friendly terms with the Young Turks. Whenever Maimon was staying in Constantinople, Abdul Hamid took counsel with him daily concerning all international questions, and when he was at a distance from the Bosphorus, his advice was often sought and given by telegraph."

[Page 169]

"And, at one and the same time, Bernard Maimon was the counsellor – even the friend of King George of Greece, and his adviser during the Turco-Grecian War. He put in an appearance at Crete, accompanied by an entire staff of the leading French and English war-correspondents, and even the renowned American photographer, Underwood, was not wanting, for pictures of the most memorable episodes had to be provided for the great illustrated papers of both hemispheres – and Bernard Maimon naturally as the central figure in each case! The political adventurer, Bernard Maimon, travelled only by special train from one residence to the other, and lived only in the best hotels. – So much for the wisdom of the old governments, and so much for the wisdom of their diplomacy! Who can wonder that they suffered ship-wreck!"

The distribution of the Hebrews over all lands is particularly advantageous for their system of reconnoitering, and one can take it for granted that the distribution represents a carefully spread net, so that every important centre has its appointed spy or scout. When Governments so frequently gave the preference to Jews in the case of army-contracts and similar business transactions, it was always justified by the argument that the Jews, thanks to their far-flung net of agents, were in a far better position than other merchants to "assemble" rapidly provisions and other materials in large quantities – thanks again to the connections, which they maintained from town to town. In a book with the title "Über Judentum und

Juden" (Concerning Jewdom and the Jews) [1795] the author, von Kortum says:

"The Jewish contractor has no need to be scared by difficulties. He has only to electrify the Jewish community at the right place, and in a moment he has as many helpers and helpers' helpers as he requires."

Then again, how he emphasises the fact:
"formerly the Jew never traded alone as an isolated individual, but always as a member of the most extensive trading company in the world',

and there is also a noteworthy petition of the merchants of Paris, in the latter half of the 18th century, which states:

"they (the Jews) resemble drops of quicksilver, which disperse themselves and run about in all directions, but which, on the slightest shock, reunite themselves into one mass."

[Page 170]

The fact that the Government gives the Jews still further support for their business espionage, by entrusting them with the consular representations, belongs to those incomprehensibilities, of which our administrative wisdom furnishes so many instances.

2. The “foreignness” of the Hebrews.

The fact that the Hebrew is a foreigner in all countries is of great use to him. The Jew never identifies himself with the interests of the country in which he lives. He has his own peculiar nationality, and constitutes, with those of his kind, an international nation as it were; and the interests of this nation are supreme with him; they form, literally, the base of his religious faith. Why should he break away from a community, which is not only united by the double tie of consanguinity and religion, but represents as well a gigantic business association, which, simply owing to this adherence to one another, is able not only to maintain its own existence but can guarantee an existence to each individual Jew as well!

And an alien business association of this kind, with an alien religion, will see to it that its interests are sharply separated from those of other nations, and must accordingly confront the latter both as foreigner and enemy. The leaders of the Hebrew nation recognised this fact thousands of years ago; and, for this reason, they drew up the rule:

“remain a stranger in the land, for you go there to take possession of it.”

And, as Professor Adolf Wahrmund very appositely remarks, the Jews, even at the present day, regard their journey across the world as a warlike expedition, undertaken for the purpose of conquest – certainly not by displaying courage, sword in hand, but by the weapons of financial and mental enslavement, with which they overreach and infatuate the different nations, and impose usurious spoliation and moral disturbance on them.

Just as Jacob, the ancestor of Jewry, defrauded the honest peasant Esau of his rights as first-born, and, by a trick, sneaked into possession of what should have been another’s inheritance, so, even up to the present day, Jewdom remains the professional “sneaker” of inheritance among the other nations.

[Page 171]

The Talmudic doctrine announces:

"The possessions of those, who are not Jews, are to be regarded as property without an owner, and whoever is the first to seize the same is entitled to it."

One must certainly concede that the Hebrews have acquired to an uncommon degree agility of mind, business circumspection, and a penetrating judgement as regards relations and persons. These capabilities are the inheritance of a race, which, for thousands of years, has not practised anything but trading, usury, espionage and overreaching of honest people.

It was, by no means, the external pressure of his environment, which converted the Hebrew into a usurer and a deceiver; he has never been anything else. This can be seen from his primordial laws and doctrines, which – apart from meaningless stories and forms of ritual, scarcely touch upon anything except how to exploit and befool that part of humanity, which is not Jewish. It must also be taken into consideration that Jewdom, which is for ever on the move, impelled by the lust for roving, and which represents the nomadism of modern times, is enabled, by constant change of relations and surroundings, to develop a keener insight into affairs, than those who never move from the spot where they were born. The Hebrews are intruders everywhere, who were obliged to capture a place for themselves by means of cunning, and who, for that reason, have always practised, in a masterly fashion, the requisite artifices. "New-settlers" as Sombart, not very appropriately, calls them:

"must keep their eyes open, in order to make themselves quickly at home in their new quarters, must be careful how they proceed, in order that they may, at any rate, make a livelihood under the new conditions.

While the long established inhabitants are resting comfortably in their warm beds, they (the Jews) are standing outside in the chilly morning air, and must first of all endeavour to build themselves a nest! There they stand – regarded by all settled inhabitants as intruders."

[Page 172]

And the alienage of the people of Juda, as even Sombart allows, is not only of an external but of an internal nature as well. He says:

"Israel, however, was alien amongst the other peoples since time immemorial in quite another – one might almost say psychological social sense, in the sense, of an internal contrariety to the population surrounding them, in the sense of an almost partitioned-off seclusion from the economist nations. They, the Jews, were conscious that they were something out of the ordinary, and were, in turn, regarded as such by the economist nations."

That, in the last analysis, is the secret which stigmatises Hebrewdom: this alienage and contrariety, which they, as guests in foreign countries, feel and display towards their hosts; and it is the chief defect of our education, that not only are these peculiar relations not made clear to us, but we are actually deceived concerning them! While the Jew never allows himself to forget for one moment that he must regard us as strangers and enemies, whom it is business to exploit and overreach, we are brought up under the false impression that the Hebrew is a harmless member of the human community, just like the members of any other nation. And even more; we actually befriend and favour the most dangerous enemy of our economic and national existence, in consequence of the unlucky associations which Church doctrine has most erroneously derived from the traditions of Jewdom.

The Church ascribes a moral and religious importance to the Jew, which he simply does not possess. Out of this fundamental error on our part, Hebrewdom draws its main strength; our blindness and foolish trust provide him with the most favourable opportunities. Whilst he—certainly with the demeanour of the innocent friend of humanity – lies in wait for each opportunity to overreach us, we advance towards him with open arms, open heart and open pocket, and make his task of exploiting and harming us a very easy one. Viewing the situation, as described above, one may well ask if the Hebrew really is in need of a special intelligence department, and of superior business ability, in order to gain an economic advantage over us, when the secret alliance of his racial companions and our unlimited trustfulness have already made the game so ridiculously easy for him.

[Page 173]

We have already seen, in section V, how the Hebrew, in his compartment-like seclusion, recognises no moral obligations of any kind toward us; and how he considers himself entitled to abuse our trustfulness in any and every way.

One must realise that the whole culture of civilised humanity rests on a foundation of mutual trust. The co-operation of a great, civilised community is only rendered possible by each honestly fulfilling his duty, and thereby justifying the reliance and confidence of others in him. The Hebrew knows nothing of fidelity and trust – at least as far as “strangers” are concerned. He knows only of a compact with his own clique, which is more of the nature of a conspiracy, and which is indispensable for the successful issue of his plans for overreaching others.

As regards strangers, however, he considers himself freed from any moral responsibility whatever. Sombart says:

“The mere fact that one had to do with a ‘stranger’ has sufficed in all times, which had not yet been tainted by humanitarian considerations, to relieve the conscience and to loosen the bonds of moral obligation.”

And this is the position taken up by the Hebrew even at the present day; all of us are strangers in his eyes, fit material for exploitation, whom it is his duty to injure, for the greater honour of Israel and of his idol Jahwe. These relations of the Hebrew with the stranger are the antithesis to the attitude and behaviour of the German under like conditions. Overstrained conceptions of humanity prompt us to display especial consideration and obligingness towards those, who are not Germans. We have had to pay dearly for this unpatriotic indulgence in the past; and to nobody more than to the Jews.

3. Semi-Citizenship of the Jews.

The Semi-Citizenship of the Jews, which has already been mentioned, proceeds from their alien nature. They are semi-citizens amongst us, because their allegiance to our national community is only feigned and superficial, for secretly they retain their separate Jewish civil community, and their separate nationality.

[Page 174]

This causes them, however, in another sense to become double-citizens, for, according to the law, they belong simultaneously to two nationalities and states; amongst us they are, at one and the same time, German and Hebrew; they are amenable to two systems of law, and can claim protection from both; for they have the option of invoking, at one time, the German, and at another, the Jewish code, selecting whichever system appears to be most advantageous. They acquire thereby privileges over all other citizens of the state, and it is only a trait of their ancient mendacity and presumption, when they behave as if they were not treated with full justice in our country. As a matter of fact as double citizens they enjoy double rights – are actually privileged. Fichte has already called attention to this:

“Through almost every country in Europe a mighty, hostile state is extending itself, and is engaged in constant warfare with all the other states: its oppressive tyranny causes grievous suffering to the citizens of all the other countries, and it is called Jewdom. I do not believe that this fearful state of affairs has come about because Jewdom forms a separate and exceedingly compact community, but because it is founded upon hatred of the whole human race.”*

It has gone so far, in his (Fichte’s) opinion, that:

“In a country where even the King may not, of his own free will, deprive me of the cottage, which I inherited from my father, and where I have my legal rights against the all-powerful minister, the first Jew, nevertheless, who takes it into his head, can plunder me with impunity,” and he then continues:

“You are all aware of this and cannot deny it, and utter words sweet as sugar about tolerance, the rights of man and civic rights, and the whole time you are inflicting injury on our chief rights as men Cannot you recall in this case the instance of the state within the state?

Does not the intelligible thought ever occur to you that the Jews, who, apart from you, are citizens of a state, which is more firmly founded and more powerful than all of yours, will, if you once give them citizenship in your own countries, tread you, the original citizens, under their feet?”

* J. G. Fichte: “Urteile iiber die franzosische Revolution” (Opinions concerning the French Revolution) [1793] Extracts are to be found in the “Handbuch der Judenfrage” (Handbook of the Jewish Question). 26th Edition, Pages 63–65.

The assertion that, in olden times, the Jews were denied entry into the honourable industries, and consequently were forced to resort to usury, is contradicted in the most emphatic manner by Sombart. He cites, amongst other proofs, an order of the Cabinet, dated 1790, which permitted the protected Jews of Breslau to carry on all kinds of mechanical crafts, and mentions also that, amongst these Jews, besides those who were tolerated, there were privileged and universally privileged ones, who were allowed full exercise of all Christian rights in the ordinary course of life. It is quite certain that some Jews enjoyed special privileges, which were hereditary in their families.* Sombart also lays stress on the fact, that if the Jews neither obtained nor sought for admittance into the corporations and guilds, this was to be attributed mainly to the Christian character of these organisations; the crucifix repelled them. The Jews, moreover, already in the 12th and 13th centuries, were not only on a completely equal footing with the great merchants, the shopkeepers and the leading people as regards freedom of the markets (Freitag: "Bilder a.d. Vergangenheit" I] – Pictures out of the past II) but they actually had the privilege over their competitors of being protected, together with clergymen, women and pilgrims, against all action under feudal law (Schröder's Rechtsgeschichte. I – History of Law. I). In olden times the religiousness of the Christian, and the alienage of the Jew himself, operated to the latter's advantage, just as German cowardliness and "culture" do, at the present day. Owing to their alienage the Jews possessed one peculiar advantage, namely, that there was no need for them to take part in the quarrels of other nations, and could, on that account, all the more easily derive benefit from political complications – at the expense of the two conflicting powers.

* "Amongst themselves the Jews lived (during the 10th-12th centuries and later) according to the Mosaic-Talmudic Law, from which, later on, many legal ideas have crept into the common law of the community. In each town the Jews formed a special community by themselves" – that is to say the Ghetto – "under a Jewish bishop, who was appointed by the King at their suggestion, and who exercised judicial powers amongst them in all cases of dispute."

[Page 176]

Sombart says: "national conflicts became actually the principal source of Jewish acquisition." Espionage might also be included (compare page 156). Besides this, one must not forget the farming-out of the privilege to mint money, which the German Emperors, since the 13th century, had made over to the towns and to the large landowners, who, in their turn, had handed it on to single tenants – amongst them many Jews. Up to the middle of the 18th century these people secured enormous profits for themselves from debasement of the coinage alone. “Outwardly good and inwardly bad, outwardly Frederick but inwardly Ephraim”* was the derisive comment of the people of Brandenburg concerning the badly silvered-over groschen, issued during the Seven Years War.

4. Jewish Wealth.

The ancient complaint about the oppression of the Jews in olden times, contradicts itself alone by the fact of their indulgent mode of living, and their display of luxury. We have already mentioned how they inhabited the most magnificent mansions, not only in Holland and London, but also in Paris and Hamburg, and Glckel of Hameln discourses in the same strain concerning the princely splendour displayed at a rich Jewish wedding in Amsterdam.

Sombart furnishes long lists of the names of rich Jews in England, Hamburg and Frankfurt, during the 17th and 18th centuries, and the amounts – stated in figures – of the fortunes of these people are a sufficient refutation of the ancient fable about the “poor, oppressed Jew.” He says:

“The peculiar and interesting fact, that the Jews were always the richest people, has continued unaltered for centuries, and remains as true today as it was two or three hundred years ago. It anything, it is still more pronounced and universal at the present time than formerly.”

* The Jew Ephraim (Itzig & O) was the head of the mintage-farmers, of whose services Frederic the Great was compelled to avail himself when surrounded with difficulties.

 Sombart’s book is especially recommended to the notice of Social Democrats, in order that they may learn who are the originators of the capitalistic system, which they pretend to hate so much, and who are the real oppressors of the people. Perhaps then they will begin to reflect whether they are justified in selecting their leaders and advisers out of this particular circle.

We possess sufficient explanation of this mystery, when we have once become acquainted with the means, by which Jewdom acquires its riches. Only we must once more oppose the erroneous idea, that the riches of the Jews, who live in our midst, are part and parcel of the national wealth. The Hebrews, of their own accord, place themselves outside the pale of the nation; their riches, therefore, are not to be included in our national wealth. On the contrary, the Jewish riches are the sum of what is lost to us in prosperity. These riches, at the present moment, are in the possession of a foreign and hostile nation, which is using them in order to oppress us. All the mighty banking foundations and gigantic Stock Exchange speculations of the Hebrews are, in reality, consummated mainly with our money. In the case of all Jewish activity there is no suggestion of the creation of sound economic values, but only of a crafty shifting of ownership. An honest Hebrew, one Conrad Alberti (Sittenfeld), acknowledged as much when he wrote as follows in the "Gesellschaft" of 1889 No. 12:

"No one can dispute that Jewdom takes a leading part in polluting and corrupting all relations. A characteristic of the Jew is the stubborn endeavour to produce values without work, and this being a matter of impossibility, it simply means that these values are artificially produced by swindling and corruption, by manoeuvres on the Stock Exchange in conjunction with the Press in order to spread false rumours, and by other and similar methods. These artificial and fictitious values are then acquired, unloaded and exchanged for genuine values, produced by real work, only to melt away and vanish in the hands of their new owners like Helen in the arms of Faust. The representatives of corruption on the Exchange, in the Press and in the Theatre in my novel 'The Old and Young', representatives of that class who strive to enrich themselves without working, are therefore Jews."

When Sombart says: "Capitalism is born from the money loan", I should like to add to this: Capitalism actually exists only in the money-loan; for, under the expression "Capital" in the narrower sense, I understand only Loan-Capital, that is to say the kind of capital which is utilised, not to generate productive activity, but solely to win interest. It cannot be disputed that the dangerous capitalism of the present day arises solely from the loaning of money, for the productive fortunes of our great industrialists must not be compared in this respect with the usury-capital of the Rothschilds and their associates.

[Page 178]

The productive capital of industry consists, like that of the large land-owners, preponderatingly of landed property, buildings and industrial investments, and only gives a return when inventive intelligence, organising power and hard work are also brought into active operation. The distinguishing feature, however, of loan-capital – “speculative capital” – is to bring in a return without doing any work for it. Productive capital gives opportunity for work and wages simultaneously to hundreds and thousands, but loan-capital is only a steady drain on the return earned by others, taking often the lion’s share; for it makes sure of its percentage whatever happens, even when adverse circumstances or the failure of the harvest wipe out all profit.

When certain people make the simple masses believe that the farmer and the large land-owner – the hated “Agrarian” – are the real oppressors and plunderers of the people, they omit to mention that very frequently this “Agrarian” himself is grievously oppressed, and is on the rack from year’s end to year’s end, to raise the money to pay the interest on the mortgages. The workman in industrial service, or in possession of a handicraft, always remains a free man, who receives an honest wage for honest work, and who can, if he chooses, give notice and change his employer. But whoever finds himself in the bondage of Loan-capital and doomed to pay interest, is seldom, if ever, able to shake off the fetters. The landowner, burdened with mortgages, is far less free and far less of a master than the youngest proletarian from the factory.

All his life long he, and often his children and grandchildren as well, are chained to the same piece of soil, which claims all their labour in order to raise interest for Loan-capital. How crazy it is then, to direct the envy and hatred of the town bred proletariat against these supposed tyrants! In reality, many of these so-called owners – even the large landed proprietors – are themselves “owned” by the Loan-capitalists.

[Page 179]

A new kind of secret serfdom has come into being, which is invisible to the ordinary public, and which consists in allowing the slave to retain the outward appearance of lord and master, whilst it condemns the much-envied owner to a kind of bondage.

This bondage is rooted finally in our wrong arrangement of our interest system. It is opposed to common sense, in the case of a sum of money lent on interest once only, to make, not only the recipient of the loan, but his children and children’s children liable to pay interest for all time. This “eternal interest” is, on the one side, the curse of the productive classes, and on the other, the fertile soil in which are rooted the power and dominancy of that oppressor of the nations – Judah. The interest system invests the moneylender with a relative might which, in reality, is more oppressive than the dominance and despotism of the olden times.

The despot of earlier times invariably took the part of his bondmen, and protected them against dangers from without, because their preservation and his own economic interest were inseparable. The lender of money does not recognise this personal concern for the welfare of those who pay him interest; he chases them ruthlessly from hearth and home when they are no longer able to pay him tribute. He also enjoys the advantage that the unpledged portion of his debtor's property falls, in this manner, into his clutches as well.

Sometimes he acquires, under a forced sale, the entire possessions of his debtor in satisfaction of his claim, and thereby gains that part of the property, which had not yet been pledged. He then introduces a fresh "interest-slave" into the property, and proceeds to treat the same, who perhaps has increased the value of the property by his personal energy, in precisely the same manner should he fall into arrears.

Between the "interest-master" and the "interest-slave" all human relations have ceased; the connection between the two has become purely mechanical; it has become unhuman and soulless. On the other hand, the activity of the receiver of interest does not call for the slightest intellectual or physical exertion.

[Page 180]

The knight of olden times protected his bondmen with spear and shield against their foes; the lord of capital has divested himself of all such responsibilities. The accumulation of capital also has become a purely mechanical process. Interest and capital accumulate in accordance with the purely mechanical law of mass-attraction – an absolutely imbecile proceeding devoid of any organic sense. Sombart says:

"With regard to the lending of money, economic activity as such has lost all meaning; the occupation of lending money has ceased to be a sensible activity of either mind or body."

There is one, and only one object: the material result i.e., the acquisition of fresh capital, and therewith the extension of the power of the lender of the money.

In this manner loan-capital gains power over other men, and has forced itself into a dominating position, which is founded neither on physical, nor on intellectual, nor on moral superiority. This position depends entirely upon a fictitious power, and one which is devoid of any human element, namely the conception or notion of capital. It is enabled by means of eternal interest, extending into immeasurable time, to make foreign labour subject to itself, and to overpower and crush all spiritual and moral effort. The formation of capital out of interest is something automatic and spiritless, for it can be consummated just as well in the hands of an idiot as in the hands of a being destitute of all morality – simply by a fiction, by a false economic view.

“The possibility of earning money without any personal exertion by an economic transaction, makes its first distinct appearance in the lending of money. The possibility also, of getting strangers to work for one without physical compulsion, is immediately apparent.”

Thus writes Sombart on page 223; it seems to us, however, that the “scooping-in” of interest is scarcely worthy of the name of “economic transaction.”

After such illuminating reflections, it seems very extraordinary to us, that it is precisely in the capitalistic Jewish press where a bitter hatred is unceasingly fomented against the domination of olden times, and against anything which refers to, or recalls the same. Feudal-domination, Knighthood, Nobility are mediaeval ideas, and as such are exposed to incessant attacks from the so-called “liberal” press.

[Page 181]

With what right and for what purpose? Simply with the object of not allowing the infatuated population, who are ignorant of history, to wake up to the fact that they are languishing and wasting away under new tyrants, the interest-despots, who set to work in a far more selfish and brutal manner than was ever the case even with the most ruthless Feudal-Lord of the Middle Ages.

[Page 182]

AIL.

Business and Religion.

Sombart speaks mockingly of the "fearful maxims" which Pfefferkorn, Eisenmenger, Rohling, Dr. Justus and others have culled from the religious books of the Jews. It would have been a good thing if he had submitted a sample of these "horrors" to his readers, for, often as these "maxims" have been examined by other conscientious scholars, they – the maxims – have invariably retained the same aspects. And, when the explanatory artifices of the Jews are brought into play, according to the receipt given in chapter V, one is in a position to understand that the Hebrew can interpret entirely different, and far worse meanings out of those doctrines, than the conscientious Christian translator is capable of. The same Sombart, who reported to us some time back, how, owing to the Talmud, the entire Jewish spiritual world had declined into impotence, and how every minute point, every letter, every word had its own important meaning, goes so far as to say light-heartedly a few pages further on:

"naturally in the course of so many centuries these particular doctrines have altered entirely in meaning."

This is untrue. All that is correct is, that in the Talmud with its commentaries, the most divergent opinions of the Rabbis find utterance, and that the doctrines and expositions contained therein, frequently contradict one another; that, however, is only equivalent to saying that it is open to every faithful Jew to accept as authentic whatever doctrine and exposition may best suit his purpose for the time being. Thus, when one passage reads: "you must not lie to, deceive, or rob the Goi", and another Rabbi says: "under circumstances you may do so", more latitude is allowed to the conscience of the Jew who believes in his Talmud. He can act either in this way, or in that, and will still find himself in agreement with the law, will still remain a pious and orthodox Jew.

[Page 183]

Out of the mass of inconsistencies and contradictions contained in the Rabbinical writings, arises that cheap form of diversion which the Rabbis have always carried on at the expense of those who do not happen to be Jews. If anyone calls attention to a passage in the Talmud, which states: You may do the Goi an injury, the Rabbi can at once turn up another place where it says: You must not do this. The morality of the Talmud is like a conjurer's box with a false bottom, from which the moral and the immoral can be produced according to wish. It is therefore, trifling on the part of Sombart when, referring to the serious scientific study which Christian Scholars have made of the Talmud, to speak of the:

"downright silly game, which the Anti-Semites and their Christian or Jewish opponents have been playing ever since the recollection of man'.

The only question is, which side is playing a silly game. Sombart himself is engaged in a game of harassing and mystifying when he says with reference to these matters:

"So far as the religious writings are read by the laity themselves, it seems to me essential that, generally speaking, a settled opinion should be expressed with regard to any particular question. It is a matter of indifference if, at the same time, the contrary opinion is also represented; for the devout man, who has been edified by these writings, is content to accept the view which coincides with his own interests, so that he is thereby in a better position to defend the same."

According to this logic one might well believe that Sombart had also attended the Talmudic School, for this is a genuine specimen of the Rabbinical expression of opinion: one particular view or manner of understanding suffices if it exactly suits the reader! – capital. But if there happen to be two entirely opposite opinions, the devout man has the opportunity of selecting whichever one pleases him best. And one is bound to admit this is a very empty kind of morality.

Sombart adds:

"since everything, in this case, is divine revelation, one passage is just as valuable as another."

Quite correct! here we have the morality with the double bottom – openly defended by a scholar who does not desire to be a Jew!

The Rabbinical writings, which most certainly have been written by the most intellectual amongst the Jewish people, actually prove that, amongst the Jews, the feeling for true morality, for the ethical consciousness, is entirely wanting.

There is no good and evil for them; everything is gauged by momentary advantage. A naive ponderer, like Friedrich Nietzsche, saw with admiration in all this, a "higher form of morality," and felt tempted to write his "Jenseits von Gut und B-se" ("The other side of Good and Evil"). He had no conception how his action smoothed and prepared the way for unmoral Jewdom. There is no "other side" to good and evil for constructive and productive people, for nations of real culture; these require stern standards and accurate balances to determine what is constructive and what is destructive, and to show what preserves and what demolishes. It is only the Hebrew, who does not construct anything, who can allow himself the luxury of an "other side to Good and Evil."

Sombart is more honest when he confesses:

"I find in the Jewish Religion the same leading ideas as those which characterize capitalism: I see that the former is filled with the same spirit as the latter."

In reality, the conscienceless predatory spirit, which distinguishes modern Capitalism in its worst form – Mammonism – fulfils also the Talmudic Rabbinical doctrine. One must be grateful to Sombart for this admission. He proceeds to say – and this statement must also be approved on account of its honesty – that this religion:

"has not arisen from an irresistible impulse, nor from the deep fervour of the heart of those, whose souls have been mutilated, nor from the religious ecstasy of adoring spirits, but from a premeditated plan like a carefully-considered proposition, resembling a diplomatic problem."

He designates it as a work of the understanding, calculated to break up and enslave the whole natural world. How strangely does this opinion correspond with the perception of the derided Anti-Semites, who have been saying the same for decades!

Undoubtedly the Jewish doctrine arises from the understanding, warped with vanity, which has lost all touch with the fundamental laws of natural growth or development, and would like to convert life, devoid now of soul and reason, into a sum of arithmetic. The word, Rationalism, which one would like to apply to this particular frame of mind and this mode of regarding life, is not appropriate here. Ratio always means reason, i.e., thought that is in harmony with natural laws; reason is not merely understanding, but is, at all events, understanding united to instinct or feeling, being endowed with a keen sensibility as to the essential nature of things.

Mere understanding is simply arithmetic, without instinct, without feeling. And the Jewish mode of thinking must be placed in this category. If, according to the popular belief, the devil is to be regarded as stupid, then this points out very pertinently the purely intellectual nature of the calculation and scheming which arise out of Evil. For this calculation, devoid of instinct, invariably ends by deceiving itself for the simple reason that no allowance having been made for Nature, the calculation rests on a false basis. When Sombart says: "Rationalism is the principal trait of Judaism just as it is of Capitalism," he means the mere mechanism of the understanding – soulless calculation. And when he goes on to say: "the Jewish religion does not recognise anything of a mystic nature," he might have said still more correctly that it did not recognise idealism, nor true morality, nor anything ethical. When he further maintains that the ancient religions were always ready to attribute any deed, which aroused a sense of shame or remorse, to the Divinity, it is the Jewish doctrine alone that entirely justifies the accusation.

Already, in the time referred to by the Old Testament, all kinds of disgraceful deeds, perpetrated by the people of Judah against other nations, were undertaken, always ostensibly at the bidding of their God Jahwe or Jehovah; and the same diversion is continued in the Talmud. Jahwe not only approves of all manner of evil things, but he himself, as personification of the Jewish entity, tells lies and deceives.

[Page 186]

The philosopher, Ludwig Feuerbach, has already designated the so-called Jewish religion as nothing more than a business contract between Judah and its God. Nothing is to be found in these laws and doctrines, which does not hint at some material benefit for the children of Israel. Jahwe demands obedience from his people, and promises them in return: riches and long life.

"Utilitarianism profit – is the predominant principle of Jewdom" says Feuerbach. "The Jews have retained their peculiarity up to the present day: their deity is the most practical principle in the world: egoism, and egoism in the form of religion." Ernest Renan says the same thing (Hist. des lang. sém.).

Sombart is no different with reference to Jewish doctrine:

"There is no kind of compact or partnership between God and man, which is not consummated in the form that man performs something that is agreeable to God, and is rewarded by God correspondingly."

But even Jahwe does not do anything for his chosen people except for cash down. He is no God of the self-sacrificing love, but is an out-and-out business man like the Jew himself; and thus, throughout the whole Jewish religion, there is no higher moral guiding star. There is nothing to raise man above himself, no unselfish sacrifice, no inspiration for ideals. Always only:

"A constant weighing-up and comparison of the advantage or disadvantage, which any action or omission to act may entail, a most complicated kind of book-keeping in order to keep the debit side of each individual's account in order."

Such is Jewish piety according to Sombart. And, just as according to the Jewish mode of thinking, everything resolves itself into action and reaction, into payment and acquisition, so, in the so-called Jewish religion, is the acquisition of money regarded as the supreme and sole object of life. The Jew introduces the huckster's spirit even into his divine services, and Sombart reports that these ceremonies have, in many cases, developed into nothing less than formal auctions. Thus, for example, the official posts of the Thora in the Synagogue are sold by auction to the highest bidders (Sombart page 249).

[Page 187]

He also confirms that the Rabbis were, for the most part, prominent business people, (compare also page 73) and therefore we are bound to acquiesce when he hints that the Jewish religious system has greatly assisted the capitalistic career of Jewdom. In other words, the so-called Jewish religion is nothing else than the wrapping-up of sharp business practices in a religious garment.

A nation certainly has nothing to be proud of in having invented and retained in favour, even up to the present day, a code of morals which in truth is devoid of all morality. But why should not the Hebrew cling tenaciously to this traditional doctrine; for, thanks to its help, success is on his side! Why should he not cherish his Jahwe, who has been such an excellent adviser to him in all business matters? It is a fatal weakness of the other nations that, up till now, they have not been able to perceive what their real relations to the Jews are, and have not been able to discover the ways and means by which the Jews enrich themselves. So the Jew still retains the fantasy that not only is his intelligence of a higher quality than that of other men, but that his religion is also superior to theirs. He will only become sober-minded when the other nations at last settle accounts with him, and when he discovers that the accountant, Jahwe, unmasked and hurled from his throne, is no longer in a position to help him.

Indeed, there cannot be any more striking contrast than that presented by the intense, unearthly idealism of Christ, which disregards the material world, and the rabbinical spirit which is directed entirely towards material advantage and earthly enjoyment. Sombart says:

“In this respect the Jews stand in the most striking contrast to the Christians, whose religion has endeavoured to its utmost to embitter all joy in this world. Just as often as riches are praised in the Old Testament, are they cursed, and poverty extolled, in the New Testament.”

It is therefore illuminating, why the devout Christian and the pious Jew play such very unequal parts in the acquisitive life.

[Page 188]

The Christian seeks to acquire in order to gain his living; the Jew is desirous of heaping up riches in order to control and to enjoy. And, at this juncture, the question arises: Has not the unworldly religion of the Christians perhaps been the unconscious agent to fasten the golden fetters of Jewdom on the Aryan nations? – But while the views taken of life, and the moral obligations of the Aryan nations have, in the course of time, altered and become freer and more humane, the same cannot be said of Jewdom. Its law remains rigid and unchangeable up to the present day: in the course of 3,000 years Jewdom cannot record any moral advance. What stands written, stands written, and is just as valid today as on the first day, when, according to the legend, it was dictated directly by Jahwe to Moses on the summit of Mount Sinai. Jewish law is built up on a faith of sheer and literal acceptance, with exclusion of all common sense and of all unfettered judgement. It reduces its adherents to dumb slaves. Jewdom is, in reality, the religion of servility.

Whenever the fable is repeated that the Jews were our instructors in moral and religious matters, and presented us, as it were, with a religion, the repetition discloses either complete ignorance of the subject, or a deliberate perversion of facts.

The people of Judah were never moral and pious in our sense of these words; they do not possess any faculty of perception in this respect. And whoever regards the blind subservience of the Hebrew to literalness as the highest degree of piety, is incapable of recognising the spiritual and moral nature of the genuine man. The really religious man is he, who untiringly searches for the deepest and most intimate associations between natural and moral occurrences, who is constantly extending his knowledge, who surveys and judges of his own actions according to their effect, and who does not cling blindly and incapable of judgement to mere literal forms. Lagarde says appositely: "A religion only lives as long as it is cultivated."

[Page 189]

In reality it is only the constant striving for moral perfection and the constant seeking for and deepening of moral insight, which form the essence of true religiousness. Where these are wanting, there is no religion; and they are wanting in Jewdom. The slave to literalness, who conforms to the timeworn doctrine without passing any criticism, and who, at the best, endeavours to thread a way by means of cowardly subtlety between the various precepts of the same, is wanting in nothing so much as in religious consciousness. And thus, from this standpoint, the Jewish doctrine cannot lay any claim to the name of religion.

Sombart says with respect to the "Thora" of Israel:

"The commands and prohibitions of God contained therein must be observed most Strictly by the pious man; whether great or small; whether they appear sensible or senseless to him; they are to be fulfilled in the strictest sense of the word, just as they stand, for the simple reason that they are the command of God."

Thus, common sense and individual reflection, individual moral feeling and conscience are excluded – of necessity – in order to equip Jewdom for the particular task, which has been assigned to it as its world mission: viz. to ruin the other nations morally and physically, and to seize their possessions.

The Jewish nation is the soulless tool of an abstract idea, which has been exalted even to Divinity, and whose ultimate aim is the plundering and annihilation of honest mankind. The driving force in this struggle is the hatred of mankind, a disposition hostile to life, the evil spirit.

From a superficial point of view, that is to say the point of view of all those to whom the essence of true religion is unknown, the Jewish doctrine may certainly appear as a model religion because it concerns itself with the lowest functions of life (for instance, with one's behaviour in the w.c.), and represents all such precepts as direct commands from God.

Moreover, the Jewish language possesses a peculiar pathos, a fact to which Goethe has already called attention, and readily avails itself of extravagant expressions. But we must not be led astray by the high-sounding words. It is frequently the case in ordinary life that the person, who has the richest vocabulary and the most touching phrases at his disposal, has a cold heart, whilst another, whose soul is almost choked with overpowering emotion, is unable to utter a word.

[Page 190]

Both the written and the spoken language of the Jews use occasionally extravagant expressions for what is actually base, worldly, and even immoral, and by this means the semblance of religiousness is aroused, where, in reality, nothing of that nature exists. On the other side, blind obedience raises itself, which slavishly follows the letter of the law, which constitutes the might of the business managers of this “religion,” namely the Rabbis. And thus it is intelligible if the apparent piety of the Jews appears exemplary to priests, who are greedy of power.

In reality, the Hebrews have borrowed many devout words from the religions of older and more deeply-feeling nations, in order to act as a cloak to their selfish and worldly aspirations. When a comparatively honest Hebrew, like Dr. Jacob Fromer, maintains that in Jewdom everything is ethical,* all that he means to say is: everything therein is regarded from a practical point of view: for the conception of morality is foreign to this man also. I should feel inclined to believe that the Hebrew meant Art when he said Ethics, so as to give to all bargains and transactions, even of the lowest description, a decent appearance, and to invest the same with a mantle of piety, although the pretence could not be extended beyond representing that the transaction in question lay within the province of God. For instance, a Hebrew, who was about to rob a man, actually went so far as to clothe his intention in the following words:

“My Lord God, thou hast given thy servant power over the goods of the stranger, and see, I hasten to execute thy divine Will.” –

In this manner the Hebrew has introduced an element of untruthfulness and hypocrisy into the life of mankind, that is devoid of all naturalness and morality, and which is intended to detach the rest of humanity from any dependence on Nature and common sense. And this hostile principle works with amazing results, and is, at this moment, steadily and irresistibly dragging mankind down that stairway of degeneration prepared for it by the Jew.

* See Dr. Jacob Fromer: “Das Wesen des Judentums” (The Essence of Jewdom). The author has been fiercely attacked by many of his co-religionists on account of his frank and frequent criticisms.

[Page 191]

One may say: Jewdom is an attempt to tear the existence of mankind apart from Nature, and to mould it into a kind of calculating and exact comprehension. This is what is understood by the much-praised “Intellectuality” of Hebrewdom. To say no more about it, a life without dependence upon Nature cannot continue for any length of time; and just as the Hebrew with his disintegrating intellect has never succeeded in maintaining a state of his own, has never succeeded in creating an independent, self-contained, and self-supporting society and culture, so does he convey the spirit of disintegration into the midst of those nations, who believe in culture. From whatever point he is regarded, the Hebrew displays the features of the parasite. He does not derive his means of existence directly from Nature – from the soil – but only by means of an intermediary system of living, the essential members of which he sucks dry. But it is the custom of the parasite, if not checked, to entirely consume the juices and energy of its host, and then, if it is unable to migrate to a fresh source of sustenance, it perishes together with the host.

Accordingly there is little that can be regarded as rational in the nature of the parasite, but there is, on the contrary, a blind and greedy stupidity, which finally destroys the foundation of the parasite's own existence. The Jews, therefore, are not, as Sombart is of opinion, "rationalists," but short-sighted beings, wanting in sensibility, and nothing better than spongers.

His aversion to everything natural does not allow the Hebrew to feel any unfeigned pleasure in the simple expressions of Nature. A lovely flower, the song of a bird, are meaningless to him; he is scarcely aware of them.* Human emotions, such as affection, and sympathy with other beings, which would impede his cold and calculated pursuit of what is advantageous, appear to him mere folly. The Talmudic doctrine has no room for such. Rabbinism is a stern schooling for the Jewish soul, which finds its counterpart, perhaps, only in the arts, principles and practices of the Jesuits.

* Heinrich Heine's classification of plants, as those which one eats, and those which one cannot eat, is an excellent instance of the Jewish perception of nature.

[Page 192]

Everything is calculated and adapted with the object of making the pupil the hard tool of another's will. A good heart and a gentle disposition must not be tolerated, because these would prejudice the object and purpose of trade. Sombart calls the Jewish doctrine a:

"Mechanism of means to carry out a purpose."

Certainly a great deal of what is contained in the Rabbinical Writings sounds very fine and virtuous; especially the unceasing zeal manifested towards unchastity, which even goes so far as to spurn womankind and all natural pleasure derived from the senses:

"Let not thine eyes lust after women, turn a deaf ear to their voice, avert thy gaze from their form.

Thou shalt not even look upon the garment of a woman with approval!"

And so it continues in the same strain; but how does all this agree with what is actually practised? From time immemorial up to the present day the Hebrews are known to us as the most shameless pursuers of women. And anyone who undertook to write a history of Jewish unchastity, would have to extend it into countless volumes.

If the Rabbis of the Talmud are so zealous in warning their people against unchastity, the principal cause for this would appear to be fear regarding their own peculiar weakness. Even Sombart admits that, in the case of the Jews, we have to deal with a people strongly disposed towards sexual excesses, whom Tacitus has already described as a "projectissima ad libidinem gens." Just as the Hebrew is unnatural in everything else, so is he unnatural in this respect; his sexual inclinations and desires exceed all usual bounds and are quite without restraint.

The separation or shutting-off of the Jews.

We will now return to the affinity between the Jewish religion and Capitalism. Sombart also allows that the object of the Jewish doctrine is: to conduct a life, contrary to Nature or alongside nature, in order to develop an economic system, which likewise builds itself up alongside nature and in defiance of it. And, he is of the opinion that the religion of the Jews must be the means of accomplishing this.

[Page 193]

"In order that Capitalism could develop, it was first of all necessary that all the bones in the body of the industrious and forceful, but neutral man should be broken, that a specific psychology or mechanism of the soul, equipped solely from the intellect, should be substituted in the place of the original and natural life, and that a subversion, as it were, of all the values of life should be introduced. The 'homo capitalisticus' is the artificial and artful creation, which finally emerges from this subversion."

One is now entitled to ask: what was then the motive for such an extraordinary object? What natural man could entertain the desire to renounce and subvert all his natural inclinations?

Here it is not the case as Sombart thinks, and is generally believed, of the Hebrew being the product of a cunningly thought-out doctrine of life, but rather as follows: the strange doctrine arises from, or is the product of the Hebrew himself, and his attitude towards honourable society. The conjecture holds good that Jewdom originated amongst the expelled elements of the ancient, civilised, oriental nations,* and one must bear in mind the Tschandala of the Indians, composed of the degenerates and criminals excluded from the honourable castes, in order to find an enlightening explanation of the peculiarity of Hebrew mentality. Those who had been expelled, despised by all the other castes, revenged themselves by deriding and reversing all moral conceptions. What was sacred to others, they made a mockery of; they praised, on the contrary, those attributes and dispositions which other people despised. "Amongst these people everything is profane, which is sacred in our eyes; and, on the other hand, what appears abominable to us is permissible to them", thus characterises Tacitus the Jews. In reality the very essence of Jewishness is a subversion of all the views of moral humanity.

Whether it happens unconsciously or is undertaken deliberately, it still remains a fact that the Hebrews, in their nomenclature, reverse the names of many things; thus, for example, those who have been expelled, they call "the chosen".

* See Fritsch: "Handbuch der Judenfrage" (Handbook of the Jewish Question.) 27th Edition page 236, and "Origin and Essence of Jewdom", "Jahwe or Jehovah Book", second edition pages 176–193.

[Page 194]

Out of this compulsory segregation – the Tschandala were not allowed to dwell amongst the honourable castes – they established, in the course of time, a voluntary separation; and finally raised their segregation to the status of law, and in their turn – like the gipsies and the wandering people of the Middle Ages – looked down with contempt upon all who stood outside their circle, that is to say, upon all honest people.

The seclusion of the Jews from the rest of humanity, to which it is customary to refer as if it were the result of some cruel despotism, has always been voluntary; they were not driven into the Ghetto, but united of their own free will to form it, in order to practise their own peculiar customs without interruption, and also because their law forbids contact with the rest of mankind. It was therefore an advance on the part of the public authorities, when they allowed the Hebrews to erect separate quarters for the Jews. Many Jewish historians admit this frankly, and also the proved fact that it is precisely the Ghetto life, which is mainly responsible for preserving the Jewish national existence. Sombart says:

"The Jews themselves created the Ghetto, which originally, from the non-Jewish point of view, was to be regarded as a concession or privilege, and not the consequence of a hostile attitude. They wished to live apart because they regarded themselves as superior to the common people surrounding them; because they felt themselves the chosen – the priestly people. Their disposition, which is hostile to every foreign element, their tendency towards seclusion, extend far back into the ages."

Already, at a very remote period, they were forbidden to contract mixed marriages with other nations; and the Old Testament is full of outbursts of contempt for the surrounding nations – Edom and the Canaanites. The reproach, so often raised by people prone to sentimentality, that the Jews have become what they are, in consequence of the scorn and exclusion which they have experienced from the other nations, is thus quite beside the mark. It was far more a case of the Jews excluding themselves from other nations; they regarded themselves as a peculiarity, high above all other peoples upon whom they looked down disdainfully. "The Jews desired and were obliged to live thus in accordance with their destiny, which was their religion," is the opinion of Sombart.

[Page 195]

The economic nations have often approached the Jews with goodwill and trust: they – the Jews – enjoyed, during the Middle Ages, not only all rights, but often actual privileges, particularly under the government of the crosier (compare page 20 and following). A bishop, named Hausmann, built a well-fortified town, especially for the Jews, at Speyer in the 11th century, from which they used to undertake veritable pillaging excursions into the surrounding country, without anyone being able to intercept them. They were not obliged to restore any stolen property, which might be found amongst them, or could, at any rate, charge any price which they liked to set upon the same.

"The important consequence of this segregation and concentration of the Jewish population, which were effected by religion, as far as the economic life was concerned, was just that foreignness of which we have already recognised the importance: namely that all traffic of the Jews, as soon as they emerged from the Ghetto, was a traffic with foreigners."

In such a strain writes Sombart. Foreigners or strangers, are, as we have learned from our examination of the Talmudic writings (Section V), outlaws, beasts, fit material for exploitation. In the case of such strangers, usury was not only allowed, but ordered to take precedence of every thing else, and if there are perhaps passages in the Talmudic writings, which seem to teach the contrary, these are only variegations customary in Rabbinical Jewdom, which are intended to obscure the real sense. Even Sombart concedes this much:

"Tam inclined to think that a great part of these discussions serve the exclusive purpose of obscuring, by all kinds of sophistry, the extraordinarily clearly defined situation, which has been created by the Thora."

[Page 196]

Thus, according to the Jewish doctrine, you may practise usury at the expense of the foreigner (5 Moses 23, 20); and plainly stated, the larger the amount of undeserved wealth, which the Hebrew amasses during his life, the greater the complacency with which he looks back on that past life; for, by so doing, he has rendered his God supreme service – that God, Jahwe, who so ardently desires the spoliation and extirpation of all the other nations of the world.

"Whilst the pious Christian", continues Sombart, "who has practised usury, is seized with agonies of remorse on his death-bed, and is ready, before the end comes, to divest himself of all his property because he, at this moment, regards it as unjustly acquired, and it weighs upon his soul; the pious Jew, on the contrary, in the evening of his life, surveys with gratification the well-filled trunks and chests, crammed with Zechins, which he has succeeded, throughout his long life, in squeezing out of the wretched Christians. This is a spectacle upon which his pious heart can regale itself with the utmost satisfaction, for every groschen which lies there is, as it were, an offering laid before his God." (Sombart page 287).

Sombart is of the opinion that only ignorance or malice could deny that the position of the foreigner, as far as Jewish justice is concerned, is an exceptional position, and that the obligations and responsibilities of the Jew refer always and only to the "neighbour" i.e., to the Jewish racial companion.

And he adds:

"But the fundamental idea, that you should have less consideration for the stranger than for the racial companion, has not altered from the time of the Thora until the present day."

This is a most important admission, and can always be brought forward as a challenge to those people, who are of the opinion that the Jewish doctrine is, at the present day, no longer efficacious, and that the Talmud contains views, which have been overcome. By these very words, Sombart at the same time, contradicts his opinion expressed above, that the Talmud doctrine has altered in the course of the centuries.

"This completely vague perception: that you are not committing any sin, and that it is permissible in the course of business with a stranger to tell him that odd is even, became firmly established wherever that formal Rabbinism developed out of a study of the Talmud, which was the case in many districts of Eastern Europe. (Sombart page 289)."

Even the Jewish historian, Graetz, who otherwise certainly cannot be regarded as impartial, confesses that:

"Distortion and perversion, the trickiness of the lawyer, affectation of wit and precipitate rejection of whatever might not be included in his range of vision, are the essential features of the Polish Jew. Honesty, and a sound mode of thinking have deserted him, as well as simplicity, and a desire for and an appreciation of truth."

[Page 197]

We certainly are of opinion that, so far as moral negligence in the case of the Jew is concerned, it is not a question of the loss and disappearance of moral qualities, but is, on the contrary, to be attributed to a primitive and hereditary defect; for we discover this trait, not merely since the origin of the Talmud, but already even in The Old Testament. One need only call attention to the treacherous behaviour of the sons of Jacob, who persuaded the honest Hevites to undergo circumcision, and then attacked and slew them while suffering from the effects of the operation. (1. Moses 34).

It is worthy of note how the Rabbis in their Talmudic writings concern themselves in a most intimate manner with all kinds of business practices; and again, it is only in accordance with the principles of the Talmud, that warnings should be issued ostensibly against immoral business practices, whilst later on, the prohibitions are withdrawn and the selfsame practices are declared permissible. Rabbi Jehuda speaks thus in one and the same breath:

“The grocer shall not present the children with cakes and nuts, for, by so doing he attracts them to his shop – the Sages, however, allow it. Further, one must not cut the price – the Sages, however, are of the opinion: the precept is worthy of remembrance (i.e., it would be a praiseworthy habit). Abba Saul has decided that the split beans are not to be picked out – the Sages, on the contrary, allow it.”

Here we find the contradictory and discordant morality of the Talmud expressed in the sleekest manner – apparently without consciousness that it is a doctrine of nonsense and immorality. That is to say: everything is forbidden and everything is allowed; see which suits you best. However, the compilers of the Shulchan aruch, without any attempt at concealment, have made this question perfectly clear; they say in Chochen hammischpat 228,18:

“The shopkeeper is permitted to make presents of nuts and suchlike to the children who buy from him, in order to attract them to him; he is also in the position to sell more cheaply than the market-price, and the people on the market are unable to raise any objection.”

[Page 198]

Unrestricted license in underbidding and competition form the very life-breath of the Jewish existence, everything is permitted, which makes business easy; everything is allowed, which puts the Jew in a position to over-reach and fleece others. For this reason, Sombart says at the conclusion of this chapter:

“God (i.e., Jahwe – English Jehovah) desires free-trade, God desires freedom of industry! What a motive to make the same effective in the economic life.”

The references of Sombart to the accordance of English Puritanism with Judaism are interesting, and Heine, in his time, made fun of this association by calling the Puritans “pork eating Jews”. A fact, which Sombart lays stress upon, is that the Jews in England, especially among the Puritans, enjoyed during the 17th century a respect and reverence, which are only to be described as fanatical, and many writers of the period vied with one another to prove that the English were direct descendants of the Jews. At all events, certain pietistic circles in England were at great pains to copy the Jews in their mode of living, nomenclature and other externals. This symbolism was carried so far, that the Christian clergy and even the Christian laity studied the Rabbinical literature for preference.

Sombart refers to a "droll little book", which appeared in 1608, under the title of the "Calvinistic Mirror of the Jews", and which, amongst other things, treated of the relations subsisting between Puritanism (Calvinism) and Judaism. The following quotation out of this book is worthy of note:

"the Jews penetrate into every country to cheat the inhabitants."

In the Netherland and German pietistic circles also, (Wupperthal, Swabia etc.) one encounters reminders of the English Puritanism in the form of nomenclature, intense veneration of the Sabbath, and so forth. These form, without doubt, the strongest props of that fateful validity which the Old Testament possesses in the German Protestant Church. There are even Protestant clergy, who are ready to represent the Jews as the pattern of religiousness, and – perhaps unconsciously – to work more for the cause of Jewdom than for that of Christianity.

[Page 199]

XIV.

The Race Problem.

1. In general.

Sombart gives himself great airs in his XIIth chapter, where he treats of Jewish peculiarity when regarded from a racial point of view. He is of opinion – obviously with a side thrust at the wicked AntiSemites – that the racial problem and national psychology have become the plaything of caprice and dilettantism, and that in particular the portrayal of the Jewish entity is:

“undertaken as a kind of political sport by coarse individuals with gross instincts’.

It certainly cannot be denied that, in the course of the Anti-Semitic movement, many people and tendencies have started up, whose origins and pretensions will not bear investigation; but, at the present day, even these people, who can never inflict enough pain by the derision, which they cast upon the opinions of others, refuse, in a superior manner, to listen to anything Anti-Semitic. And yet, a very considerable number of leading spirits and estimable characters have belonged, and still belong to the spokesmen of this movement. We do not wish here to dwell upon the fact that great men in all times, that philosophers from Giordano Bruno and Voltaire to Fichte, Herder, Schopenhauer and Feuerbach, that statesmen like Frederick the Great, Napoleon I and Bismarck, that artists like Richard Wagner and Franz Liszt must be included amongst the opponents of the Jews.*

* A collection of extracts from the writings of these men is to be found in the “Handbuch der Judenfrage” (Handbook of the Jewish Question) 27 edition, pages 12–117. – The racial question is dealt with exhaustively by the well-known geographer Rich. Andree in “Zur Volkskunde der Juden” (Popular information respecting the Jews) Bielefeld 1881.

[Page 200]

The more modern Anti-Semitic movement also includes in its ranks as spokesmen, individuals like Paul de Lagarde, Eugen Dühring and Adolf Wahrmund, whose profound erudition cannot even be approached by any of their opponents however much it may be belittled or ignored by the public press, itself completely under Jewish domination. However, before everything, it must not be forgotten that it was the wicked Anti-Semites, who first tackled the Race-problem and aroused racial consciousness again among the nations. If, at the commencement, it was only the difference between Aryan and Semite, which engaged their attention, it is nevertheless due to their initiative that the whole of the modern racial movement has come into being, and has built itself up upon the fundamental views of the AntiSemites.

If, now and again, objectionable behaviour puts in an appearance in the course of the Anti-Jewish movement, and epithets are applied to the Hebrews, which are not exactly flattering, there is no cause whatever for undue sensitiveness in this respect on the Jewish side. One has only to recall how low-class Jewish wits, in the so-called comic papers, which are founded almost without exception by Hebrews, let themselves go concerning other nations, classes, privileges and political opponents. Scarcely anything is low and foul enough to enable the Hebrew to give full vent to his hatred against those, who differ from him in their opinions, and for this reason there is little or no justification on his side for a display of moral indignation and extreme sensitiveness on hearing an expression of opinion concerning himself, which is often remarkably appropriate.

This assumption of indignation collapses in a ridiculous fashion, if the fact is disputed, from a purely Jewish point of view, – like a certain Friedrich Hertz and others attempt to do – that there are such people as Jews at the present day. This is more than droll. So long as the so-called Jewish religion continues, so long will Judaism, as a compact hostile force, live and operate amongst the other nations. But even if it were possible to extirpate this religion, the racial peculiarity of the Jew, which has acquired an extraordinary tenacity by incessant inbreeding, would long continue to function.

[Page 201]

Sombart then honourably takes pains to put an end to those chatterers, who wish to deny the existence of a Jewish race and a Jewish peculiarity. But he himself is certainly not clear in his own mind concerning the racial entity when he says:

“On the other hand it is senseless to give the name of “Jew” to an Israelite of unmistakable origin, who has succeeded in throwing off the fetters of Esra and Nehemiah, in whose mind there is no longer any thought for the law of Moses, and whose heart no longer feels contempt for other races.”

In the next place it is doubtful if a Jew can ever completely free himself of the views, derived from his racial peculiarity, which were being prepared and established from the time of Moses to that of Esra and Nehemiah, and which, later on, under the influence of Talmudic Rabbinism, were extended and expanded until they became a gross exaggeration. But even if he is capable of emancipating himself, Jewish instincts will survive and function in his offspring. So long as we have no experience of a Jewish business-man causing his son to become a farmer, a conductor, a carpenter or a sailor, it is certain that no one will seriously believe in the transformation of the people of Judah into genuine human beings. We are in agreement on this point with our own most excellent Fichte, who also did not believe that the Hebrews were capable of being converted, unless:

"all their heads were cut off in one night, and other heads were substituted in which there was not a single Jewish idea."

These words describe most aptly the indestructibility of the Jewish racial entity.

The study of the racial problem has taught us that an indissoluble bond exists between the blood and the mental disposition of mankind. It is said in The Old Testament that "the soul of a man dwells in his blood," and that means, that the mental nature of man is inseparably united with his blood.

This fact we must ultimately learn to accept in all its seriousness. We have long been accustomed to attach value to the blood and stock amongst animals; we do not desire that a poodle should become a sporting-dog, or that a horse from Brabant should develop into a racer. We know that advantages, just like disadvantages and defects, are transmitted with the blood.

[Page 202]

We have no intention of conveying the impression that all good and bad characteristics must be transmitted with unchanging fidelity from generation to generation, that the children of a clever father must be, without exception, geniuses, and that the offspring of a criminal is invariably criminal; but we perceive a certain constancy in the transmissibility of average qualities, whereby only those deviations and variations crop up, which Nature allows herself everywhere as a diversion. If the constancy in the transmissibility of qualities is comparatively insignificant as regards the present-day generation, this must be attributed to the excessive intermingling of tribes and races, which has been taking place for centuries – even for thousands of years.

The pure races certainly have almost completely disappeared, and only mongrel descendants surround us. In spite of this, one must not straightway deny that the racial entity has ceased to operate. The frivolous doctrine, that all men are equal, has caused unspeakable disaster and has actually introduced degeneration into the human race. We Germans of today have certainly no reason to boast of our race, for its worth is seriously depreciated, both blood and intellect having been dulled. But this should not restrain us from appreciating to the utmost the importance of the racial entity, and from endeavouring, by means of racial culture, to restore what has been sacrificed by an irresponsible racial lottery.

It is a fact – and it is about the only reputable thing which one can say about Judaism – that racial consciousness is fostered to a greater extent among the Hebrews than among any other nation, whether consciously or unconsciously, by the rigid law which enjoins that everyone, who does not belong to the race, must be regarded with hostility and contempt.

Thus the irrefutable fact remains, that the racial entity amongst the Jews is today of greater validity, both physically and mentally, than amongst all the other races. The Hebrew, almost everywhere, can be recognised amongst other races both by his external appearance and, if anything, still more by his mental cast. And this racial constancy asserts itself, even when mingled with other strains.

[Page 203]

The Jewish Professor Eduard Gans expresses himself as follows:

“Baptism and interbreeding are of no avail; we remain, even in the hundredth generation Jews, as we were 3000 years ago. We never lose the odour of our race – not even by tenfold crossing. And, in every case of cohabitation with every woman, our race dominates: young Jews result.”

Whoever, in face of facts like these, still persists in denying the existence of a Jewish race, cannot have much regard for truth. But we can very well understand why it is so distasteful to the Hebrews to see racial recognition and racial consciousness awakening among other nations. In the moment when this comes to pass, the alienage of the Jew will, for the first time, make itself apparent to all, and this will, in every respect, make the Hebrew's business more difficult. Up till now, the Jew has been able, in an inimitable manner, to mingle with other nations, and to delude them into believing that he really belonged to them – a circumstance, which rendered his overreaching operations extremely easy to carry out. As soon, however, as the other nations become aware of their own particularity, and of the value of their own especial gifts, both moral and intellectual, they will soon recognise in the Hebrew the disturber of their domestic peace and of their harmonious development, and will endeavour to keep him at a distance.

2. The Psychology of the Jews.

The Hebrew certainly possesses a great adaptability, but it would be erroneous to expect from his external adjustment to the habits and customs of other nations that the Jew is absorbed and disappears. The Jewish peculiarity differs far too much from the nature of all other nations to allow a complete fusion to appear even probable. In the last analysis it is the Jewish view of life, and the Jewish moral law, which do not admit of any permanent association with other nations.

Sombart makes a vain attempt to sum up the Hebrew entity in precise ideas. He sees, amongst these, only a few of a disagreeable nature, and is unable to connect the same with fixed characteristics. The distinguishing features of the Jew enumerated by him, appear to me to be insufficient.

[Page 204]

I believe that I shall meet with but little opposition, when I characterise the average Jew as follows: sharp at business and glib of tongue, greedy for money and of a saving disposition, cunning and addicted to dissimulation, averse to bodily labour, sensual and shameless, vain, cowardly and impudent. There are but few Jews in whom the majority of these characteristics cannot be detected. When Sombart speaks incessantly of their "prominence in intellectuality", it is clear that he means only the calm, calculating intelligence of the Jew, generally speaking, the mere operation of the cold understanding as opposed to the sensibility of deeper and more emotional natures. This much-praised intellectuality of the Hebrew is, in reality, only the outcome of necessity*. How could otherwise a people, devoid of all capacity for production, maintain their existence unless they unceasingly made use of cunning and deception, and knew how to fool others into furthering their own secret plans? It cannot be denied that Hebrews have occasionally distinguished themselves as clever physicians, scholars and barristers, but only so far, in these professions, as the possession of a coldly-calculating and subtle understanding permitted them to advance. And, in this respect, they have frequently been actually favoured by their own low standard of morality. Moral laxity frequently gives the Hebrew an advantage over other people. Whoever is not particularly scrupulous concerning his moral duty towards mankind, has a much freer hand on many occasions than those, who are restrained by their conscience and consideration.

* The well-known oriental traveller, H. Vambéry, (originally Bamberger) confirms this fact, amongst others, in his report concerning the Jews of the Orient, 1879, in which he states that it is a delusion to assume that the Jews in Europe possessed higher intelligence than the nations who acted as their hosts, for, to take Middle Asia as an example, the Jew, when confronted by the Hindoo and the Armenian, invariably came off second best.

[Page 205]

Just as the Jewish business-man, thanks to his moral laxity, outstrips competitors in commerce, so is it in many other departments of life. For sense of duty, conscience and honour have but little value in the eyes of the Hebrews when compared with intellectual capacity. The Jew is desirous, at all costs, of passing as clever; everything else is a matter of comparative indifference to him. There are a number of Jewish proverbs, which regard stupidity as being far worse than any other mental or moral defect. All of these are centred on the idea: you may be a rascal if you only show yourself sly. Whilst the civilised and honour-loving nations attach the highest value to moral character, and to the emotional side of human nature, the Hebrew appraises a man merely according to his mental adroitness. Whoever is clever, is therefore worthy of admiration, even if he uses his cleverness to the detriment of others – perhaps, for that reason, all the more to be admired! It is often to be observed in the Jewish Press how the attempt is made to find a certain measure of excuse for grave crimes on the grounds that considerable intellectual capacity has been displayed in committing the same. This confusing and disordering of moral ideas by the introduction of intellectual standards, are to be included amongst the most dangerous means, by which Hebrewdom is seeking to destroy the other nations. Unfortunately, the moral sense in many classes has already been considerably weakened, because its power of discrimination has been injuriously affected by the fact that – thanks to Jewish example – admiration is frequently accorded to the criminal. It thus happens, that when a crime is being discussed, one can often hear good-natured men mitigating their abhorrence somewhat as follows: "But, after all, he showed himself a very sharp fellow!" – Indeed a sign of the Judaization of our mode of thinking.

Sombart characterises the Jewish – and probably at the same time his own – perception with the words: "the highest humanism is supreme intellectualism" – an appraisal, to which we feel ourselves compelled to object. For, measured by this standard, the most accomplished rogue and swindler would, under circumstances, represent humanity's supreme ideal.

[Page 206]

The heroic nations have an assured conviction of another ideal. They seek it in the direction of self-sacrifice of the individual for the general welfare, or, for an idea – for freedom or for honour – but, above all, in the complete subjugation of selfishness. The hero of our dramas, whose fate rivets our attention and affects us deeply, is not a sly customer, who, thanks to his crafty alertness, knows how to dodge all dangers, but is, on the contrary, an upright, inflexible character, who accepts his recognised duty courageously, and who does not turn aside from the path of truth and justice whatever menace may stand in his way. He thinks little of his own advantage, but all the more of duty and honour. A real hero of this type will appear to the eyes of the Jew as no better than a fool; – “better a live dog than a dead lion” is a Semitic proverb. This indicates the deep chasm, which exists between the Jewish and the genuinely human mode of thinking.

However, the understanding which merely calculates, proves itself generally inadequate for dealing with all serious matters in life. There is something higher than the intellect. A man of fine character allows himself to be swayed more by innate and instinctive feelings than by cold calculation. And these instinctive feelings which, in reality, indicate an intimate spiritual and emotional insight into the connection between things, are a far surer guide to mankind than all the speculations of the intellect. Where the guiding instinct is wanting, we see the intellect straying into all manner of blind alleys, clambering too high on its own artificial structures, which have lost all touch with reason and nature, and at last, for this reason, failing completely.

The Hebrew, a being, who is not of immediate natural origin, and who, for that reason, makes his journey through life without any intimate connection with nature, is devoid of instinctive feelings. He endeavours to replace them by conscious intellect. This may confer a certain apparent superiority on him so long as he moves in artificial surroundings, which depend, more or less, upon intellectual foundations. He is, however, completely at a loss, and feels helpless immediately when he finds himself in a situation where the relations are entirely natural.

[Page 207]

A Robinson, alone on a desert island, can contrive, with scant resources, to keep body and soul together; a Hebrew is incapable of doing so. The Jew is a second-rate man, whose existence depends upon all kinds of artificial assumptions. He is Nature's step-child, and cannot get on with this mother. He is always in need of some man, who has grown up in touch with Nature and who is full of natural impulse, to carry him – the Jew – through life.

And when Sombart believes that he can perceive the acme of genius in freedom from all natural law, and in tearing one's self loose from all natural instincts, he betrays, in spite of himself, his own Jewishness. The opposite is correct; genius stands – unconsciously in most cases – in closest relationship, in inmost feeling with the natural laws of being and becoming!

It draws from a source, whose deepest spring is scarcely known to itself. It is only for the reason that the internal and eternal obedience to law, of all natural things and occurrences, resides also in the creations of genius, that the latter are eternal and inextinguishable; and it is also for this reason that they stir the emotions of mankind, so long as men do not close their ears to the voice of nature.

The conspicuous intellectualism of the Jew is direct evidence of his weakness and of his inferiority from a human point of view. It is only when the natural feeling fails, when the instinct is no longer a safe guide, that the calculating intellect begins in its distress to strain after artificial remedies, and seeks to create artificial conditions, which are agreeable to it.

The Jew can only flourish in an artificial world. In reality, the mental speculations of the Hebrew are confined to comparatively narrow fields of activity, where it is a matter of obtaining an advantage and of misleading and confusing the opponent. Only there is he a master; everywhere else, where it is a case of penetrating more deeply into artistic, technical and exact scientific knowledge, the intellect of the Jew does not suffice. And therefore, the Hebrew is never inventor and artist in the grand style. Whoever follows up the refined subtleties of the Rabbis in the Talmud, can often observe how their petty, short-sighted, calculating spirit leads them into incredible imbecilities.

[Page 208]

According to the popular opinion, the devil is a professor of slyness. But also, according to popular tradition, there are all kinds of legends, showing how the peasant gets the better of the devil; and from this popular notion emerges a deep meaning. The peasant may appear to be awkward and helpless in the external affairs of life, especially when he is brought face to face with the artificial conditions of town life; he possesses, for the most part, however, although it may be only by means of his feelings, a deeper insight into natural things than many a learned townsman.

And the devil, for all his arithmetic, always miscalculates when he encounters natural cleverness, and when the unalterable laws of nature break through his web of deceit. Yes, after all, the devil is stupid, and so is his cousin, the Jew. Place him face to face with Nature, with no creative men to assist him, and all his lordly intellectualism will suffer a miserable shipwreck – will not save him from starvation.

On the other hand, the Jew has known how to confer an extraordinary power of attraction on the modern towns with their artificial and refined methods of traffic and intercourse; he entices the simple villagers away from nature into these modern paradises of vice, where everything is cast in an unnatural and artificial mould. Jews, and Jewish mentality reign supreme in the large towns, and the natural man feels that he is a stranger there, more like a child, straying helplessly into the traps of the Jews, which are laid for him on every side. Therefore, whoever wishes to escape from the Jewish illusion must fly from these places, and seek refuge again on the maternal breast of Nature; and, just as surely as he is doomed to certain ruin, who imagines that he can continue to live as a child of Nature in the meretricious and false world of the Jew.

Even Sombart admits as much:

“We frequently find in the case of the Jew that all instinctive feeling is stunted, just as if all sensibility and sensitive relations to the rest of the world were foreign to his disposition.”

[Page 209]

Here, however, it is conceded that the Hebrew himself stands forth as both foreign and contrary to Nature. He moves in the midst of Nature as a dull and insensible being; he certainly sees things separately, but he passes over the causal connection of the natural phenomenon and the inward obedience to law of all life, without paying the slightest attention to the same. For this reason, he is unable to judge what the final effects of his scheming and plotting will be; he is always directed merely by the advantage of the moment. He hankers after the goods and chattels of the peasant; he knows how to get hold of the same, and to drive the peasant from hearth and home; but he neither stops to reflect, nor does he care, what will become of the village, when all the peasants have been plundered in this fashion and driven away. He sucks the last drop of blood out of the workman and the small employer of labour, and dispatches them to ruin, without asking: what will become of the world if we weaken the productive classes in this manner? He entangles the various countries in debts and loans, and hands them over to ruin, without taking the trouble to think that these operations will eventually cause human society itself to collapse – that society which nourishes him with its flesh, and out of whose body he derives his parasitic existence. We see here the same fool, who saws off the branch on which he is sitting, and who kills the hen, which lays golden eggs for him. Accustomed to the constant provision of new hunting-grounds and fresh objects of usury by an inexhaustible Nature, and by the indefatigable industry of the nations, he is unable to conceive that the world-dominion, for which he is striving, would mean simultaneous world-ruin. The vain nature of his understanding, which does not look beyond to-day and to-morrow, operates destructively and suicidally in all directions.

Hence only powers can work constructively, which stand in organic relation to Nature; and the profoundest essence of natural things can only be comprehended by means of sensibility. The intellect is not sufficient to sound the well of life. The Jewish mode of thinking is inorganic, and is, for that reason, incapable of creative operation.

[Page 210]

For that reason also, the Hebrews are incapable of forming a state of their own, for, in the last analysis, the state is of an organic nature, and endures only through organic laws. Society, in a well ordered state, requires organisation of the classes, a rational constructive policy, and internal connections – i.e., sound relations and ties with one another, which enable the concern, taken as a whole, to prosper. The Hebrew has no understanding for all this. He regards individual men merely as objects to be turned to profitable account, and is incapable of comprehending why these same men are desirous of retaining a scale in their social order, why they band together in organic associations the better to fulfil their duties as men and citizens. All this appears to him as foolish prejudice and antiquated institution; he would like to alter, loosen and dissolve everything in order to find an easy and convenient field for his profiteering operations. He is, therefore, hostile to all organic social creations: the guilds, the trade associations, the nobility, the army. These are like a thorn in his eye. He would like to disrupt and atomise them, and to isolate the members. He is guided in this policy by the calculation that he can deal better with the individual, and can more easily make him subservient to his aims than he can the compact whole. He calls this disruption of all organic structures, “bringing freedom”, “‘liberalising’”; he knows how to delude men into believing that their organic connection is a barrier, which must be broken down, a fetter, which must be shaken off, in order to attain to true liberty – the liberty of the wolf amongst sheep.

Sombart remarks very appositely:

“The Jew is very sharp-sighted, but he does not see much. In the first place, he does not perceive that his environment is a living one. And, for this reason, feeling for what is singular in life, for its entirety, for its indivisibility, for what has organically developed, for what has grown naturally, is lost to him. Consequently all conditions and relations of dependence, which are built up on personality, such as personal rule, personal service, personal sacrifice, are foreign to him. The Jew, from his very disposition, is averse to all chivalry, to all sentiment, to all nobility, to all feudalism, to all patriarchy.

[Page 211]

He is also incapable of understanding a community, which is built up on the above relations. Everything to do with class or rank, everything incorporative is hateful to him. He is political individualist.” *

And yet he is individualist only in a restricted sense; he is himself the slave of a rigid principle, of a law of compulsion, which, in the place of a natural tie, binds him together with his kind. The Jew himself possesses no individuality; he is invariably only the more or less successful repetition of a Jewish pattern. The Jews, amongst themselves, resemble one another in their national characteristics to a much greater extent than the men of other nations; and the extraordinary limitation of their disposition is rooted in the above fact. The Hebrew is, as it were, an automaton, trained and adjusted to carry on definite social activities; he fulfils exactly the same functions in all grades of society. For this reason a Hebrew is easily replaced by another Hebrew, whilst the same cannot be said of men of other nations.

The Hebrew is now desirous of transferring this systematic constitution of the Jewish league, i.e., this mechanical placing together of elements all equal in value and devoid of individuality, to other social creations, and even to the state. He is unable to understand why organised society is on the defensive against this subjugation to one pattern, and he denounces this opposition to his endeavours to break up and dissolve, as “Reaction”. In reality, this reaction is the natural and healthy resistance, which an organised society evolves against the efforts of the Hebrew to introduce decay and dissolution; in other words, it is the instinct of self-preservation.

The actual and harmful reactionary is, on the contrary, the Hebrew, who checks the natural growth of national life by his plan to reduce all to one emasculated pattern, and who desires to force this life back into its primordial state – the struggle for existence of all against all. It is he who hinders natural development, and thereby disturbs the even progress of life.

* We are justified in supposing that this train of thought on the part of Sombart was set in motion by the “Hammer”, which, ever since it was founded in 1902, has often thrown light upon the “Jew Question” from this point of view.

[Page 212]

This fact, to our unspeakable misfortune, is only recognised by a few. The enormous liberation of energy, caused by the speculative principle of the Hebrew, and the enormous development of the external life caused thereby, deceive everyone as to the true state of affairs. The glitter and gleam all around us appear to many as the veritable light of life, but it is, in reality, only the phosphorescence of corruption. The Hebrew, by inciting to that wild struggle for existence, has forced into action the last reserves of national energy, and thus the national life itself seems to have experienced a tremendous stimulus; and yet it is only the waging of a desperate battle for mutual destruction, which must end suddenly from exhaustion.

But what does the Hebrew care about that! As a man who depends upon the momentary fluctuation of affairs, he derives his chief benefit from such conditions, and that is enough for him. Sombart says:

“The Jew brings everything into relation with his “I”. The questions, which have first claim on his interest, are: Why? To what purpose? Where do I come in? What do I get out of it? His real living interest is the interest for success. It is unJewish to regard an activity as an end in itself, to live life itself for its own sake, without purpose in accordance with destiny; it is unJewish to rejoice harmlessly in Nature. (Sombart page 230–31).”

And just as he is himself, so has the Jew devised his God. The Jewish God stands outside the pale of Nature as a despot, who alters the course of affairs arbitrarily to suit his purposes. He allows all kinds of miracles to take place, which are contrary to Nature, and arranges everything so that it turns out to the advantage of his favourite people.

3. Apparent Jewish Superiority.

When Sombart expresses the opinion:

“At the present day, the Jew of Western Europe no longer desires to retain his faith and his national peculiarity; he wishes, on the contrary, so far as national consciousness has not again been aroused in him, to allow his peculiarity to disappear as completely and quickly as possible, and to adopt the culture of the nations who act as host to him,”

we must ask circumspectly: where are the proofs of this suggested effort? Who authorises Sombart to assure us of this? For our part, we perceive and know just the contrary.

[Page 213]

It may well be conceded that, at the present day, the Hebrew is occasionally uncomfortable under his skin, since observant men have begun to make a practice of observing his activity, and are now revealing his tricks; it may well be the case at the present day that many a Jew no longer wishes to be recognised as such, and would prefer to change his appearance; the fact remains that it is simply impossible for the Jew to be absorbed by other nations, even if it were his wish. His distinctive nature is far too different from that of other nations, and moreover his self-esteem is too great. He has no intention of resigning his privilege of being regarded as a “chosen people.” But the aversion also of the other nations, so far as a healthy instinct is still alive in them, will protest against any such fusion. Certain sections of society, which have already completed their resemblance to the Hebrew, represent types of degeneration doomed, in any case, to disappear. It is only the degenerate who shows inclination towards the Hebrew; the former, by the loss of the finer instincts, has sacrificed his real manhood, has been discarded by nature, and sinks into that swamp of corruption represented by Hebrewdom – the dregs of culture.

The following judgement concerning the Jews testifies that Sombart, in his scientific positiveness, is gradually working round to our perception, even though it may be in a circuitous manner:

“His intuition has not grown out of his innermost being, but is a product of the head. His stand-point is not the level earth, but an artificial building in the air. He is not organic original but mechanic-rational. He is not rooted in the mother-soil of sensibility – instinct.”

All this is covered by the perception expressed a long time ago by the Anti-Semites. Only, at the same time, it must not be forgotten: the Jewish entity, and its inward perception of life, is certainly an artificial creation of the intellect; but, in the course of thousands of years, it has become so ingrained in the Hebrew – has entered so thoroughly into his flesh and blood, that he is actually less capable of changing his skin than the representative of any other race.

[Page 214]

He certainly possesses adroitness enough to adopt superficially the manners, and even the mode of thinking, of others; he has sufficient powers of dissimulation and of acting, to make us believe that he is a being very similar to ourselves; but, in the end, the unadulterated Hebrew always comes to the surface again.

This pliancy, this outward adaptability, this talent for representing one's self as something different to what one really is, might appear admirable to us, if it was not at the same time so dangerous. All these Hebrew talents are only means to mislead us, and to make us subservient to the designs of the stranger. It is correct that the Hebrew, regarded from a purely intellectual point of view, appears to display great superiority in a number of respects, the questionable value and unquestionable danger of which are only recognised by the instinct of fine-feeling. We may admire the Jew from an intellectual point of view, but our feelings reject him.

Sombart speaks appositely concerning the “moral mobility” of the Jew; in the pursuit of his purposes:

“no irksome restrictions of a moral or aesthetic nature are allowed to intervene.”

His morality is lax and elastic; he is ready, at any minute, to proclaim that odd is even if he sees any advantage in doing so.

"In this respect his poorly developed sense for what one can call personal dignity, is of assistance to him. It is very little exertion to him to deny what he has himself said, when it is a question of accomplishing his purpose."

Thus writes Sombart on page 327. In reality, the Hebrew possesses so little of what we call character, that he is ready at all times to barter his honour and self-respect for material advantage. An old proverb says:

"The Jew will wade through seven puddles, in order to possess one groschen more."

[Page 215]

With the help of the Talmudic schooling, the Hebrews are educated to become cunning pettifoggers, for, from youth upwards, the practice of dissimulation is enjoined upon them, practically as a command. There is, accordingly, little cause for surprise when they distinguish themselves later on in life as lawyers, journalists and actors. The art, of being able to transpose one's self quickly into a strange world of ideas, is absolutely essential to speculative dealing; if the Jew did not possess it, how else would he gain respite for himself, entirely dependent as he is on the exploitation of other men, and on the misuse of law and thought? The advantages, possessed by the Jew, mirror his weaknesses; these are shiftiness, evasion, adroitness in escaping from embarrassing situations, all of which he requires in order to conceal his failings from us.

There is a well-known contradictory principle in Nature, whereby she endeavours to conceal and compensate for prominent defects by other qualities. She provides weak, defenceless creatures with properties or qualities, which serve as a means of protection against the pursuing enemy. Thus Nature protects the young birds in their nests by their revolting ugliness, other animals by an obnoxious smell or by a disagreeable secretion, the snail, for instance, by a nasty slime. And, in the same way, Nature dispenses properties to a section of mankind, burdened with hereditary weakness, which must serve as a protection. Even the evasive intelligence, craft and cunning are protective qualities of this order, and they are to be found amongst the weak and the criminal. Men of great bodily strength are, for the most part, open and upright, good-natured, patient and obliging. They can put up with a good deal, without losing their tempers, because they know that when the decisive moment arrives, they can rely upon their good, natural strength, which, if required, will sweep every obstacle out of the way. This good-nature and this indulgence, which are sometimes taken for weakness, but which are, in reality, only an expression of self-confidence or assurance, are occasionally displayed also by men of mind and character. On the other hand, it is a matter of common knowledge that weakly and deformed beings display a sharp mental activity, which can even become caustic, and which represents, in their case, a means of defence to protect them against unexpected attacks.

[Page 216]

The situation of the Hebrew, when he finds himself in the presence of honest men, is analogous. He, the weakling, who is incapable anywhere of shaping a life for himself by his own exertions, whom political incapacity has condemned to lead a parasitic existence amongst other nations, he, who is wanting in all the higher mental powers necessary to produce an imaginative and creative culture: he, it is, who has been equipped with a cunning intellect, and with boundless impudence and slyness as a means of defence. In reality, the Hebrew is the mental cripple amongst mankind, the type of intellectual deformity. The Jew represents the lower side of human nature.

Let those wonder at him who will: we should only feel sorry for him if he did not happen to be, at the same time, a poisonous snake, which endangers the peace and safety of honest humanity everywhere.

But the slyness of mind, and the threadbare morality are still not sufficient to assure him of prosperity; he requires yet another weapon for defence and attack, in order to outwit and overcome honest people. As a substitute for the natural ability, which he does not possess, he has created for himself a principle, in which an almost demoniacal force resides, viz Money-Capital. Money plays so great a part in the existence of the Jew, that the individual sinks into insignificance when compared with material possession. "Whoever does not pay to me my money, deprives me of my honour', wrote old Amschel Mayer Rothschild to the Elector William II. (see page 37), and the socialist leader, Carl Marx, who was himself of Jewish origin, admitted that "money is the real secular deity of Jewdom''. From an allegorical point of view it is worthy of note, that the Hebrews erected a golden calf on Mount Sinai, and arranged a dance around it. This is also recognised by Sombart.

"Money, and the increase of money, must always be the centre of interest for Jews, just as it is for capitalism. Not merely because its abstract nature is congenial to the equally abstract nature of the Jew, but, above all, because the appreciation of money is in conformity with another leading trait in the Jewish character viz teleologism. Money is the absolute means: it has but one meaning with regard to the purpose to be realised."

[Page 217]

Sombart expresses himself as above in his scientific German, and thereby recognises money as the highest potential in all Jewish endeavour.

Money is, however, an imaginary value, an artificial creation of human speculation. It has nothing to do with nature, nothing to do with organic things; it has no inner relation to the being of mankind. Money does not make a man stronger, wiser or nobler; the capability alone, conferred on it by the human imagination, of possessing, not only buying power, but – in the form of loan capital – power to produce interest, has invested it with an almost supernatural might. And this imaginary might has been recognised by the Hebrew, as the correct means to provide him with a substitute for his deficient powers. Money places the sub-man in the position to pose almost as a super-man, and to force all human affairs under his yoke.

Of what then does the renowned Jewish superiority consist? In reality, of a kind of mental provocation and harassing. It is precisely because the distinctive nature of the Hebrew is averse to Nature, that he is destined to deceive and over-reach the man who thinks naturally. It is because the Jew does not think organically, and consequently does not think naturally, that the unspoilt and unaffected man is unable to keep pace with his speculations. Whilst we are accustomed to think straightforwardly, the Jew thinks, as it were, "round the corner"; his mental process is perverse, warped, subverted. Consequently his conclusions confound all natural logic. It frequently happens that a man, who has been overreached by a Jew, is unable to restrain a feeling, akin to admiration, for the cunning deceiver. The unnatural sequence of Jewish thoughts confuse a natural brain, so that it loses the power of thinking logically while under the influence of the seductive language of the Hebrew, and falls into a kind of stupor, a condition in which, a weak-willed man, or a man who is unable to think quickly, is inclined to succumb to the influence of an external will.

This power of suggestion, which operates by imposing one's own will upon another, is one of the most dangerous means employed by Hebrewdom to infatuate, not only individuals, but whole nations. There is scarcely any other way to explain this extraordinary state of infatuation, in which the civilised nations of to-day find themselves, when confronted with Hebrewdom, than by describing it as the result of a kind of suggestion or mesmerism. Indeed, both states and their populations scarcely know what is really happening to them since the Hebrew, in addition to the demoniacal power of money, has also enlisted that gigantic power to deceive and mislead, which the public press possesses, in order to hypnotise everybody and to paralyse their mental activities.

Perhaps, however, it only requires an unmasking of the hypnotic agent, and a thorough exposure of his dishonest expedients, to break the spell for ever.

XV.

Origin of the Jewish Entity.

1. Descent of the Jews.

Sombart searches around to discover the origin of the Jewish race, and raises the question: whence does it come, and whither is it proceeding? He does not hesitate to describe the Jews as a kind of freak, as a lower order of humanity, of entirely different blood to the nations amongst whom they live. We add to this: difference in blood means also difference in mind and spirit, for, amongst the most important disclosures of the science of race, must be included the fact that certain mental qualities are firmly and inseparably united with a certain kind of blood. In accordance with general acceptance, Sombart believes that Israel, as well as Judah, originated from a mixture of various oriental peoples. This notion is contradicted by the fact, that all Jews regard themselves as the descendants of a common tribal father (Abraham or Jacob), and that already at a very remote period, the Jews were prohibited by strict laws from mixing with other nations. Actually, one can only begin to speak of Jewdom, from the moment when a particular caste arrayed itself in conscious opposition to the rest of humanity, and declined either to mix with the same or to entertain any feelings in common with it. It is precisely the exclusion of their stock from any consanguinity with the remainder of mankind, which makes Jewdom what it is. That Bedouin, that is to say, Semitic tribes have provided the ground-floor of the structure of Hebrewdom, is universally accepted, and Adolf Wahrmund, in his frequently-quoted work:

“The Law of Nomadism and the present-day domination by the Jews” has provided convincing proof of the spiritual affinity of Hebrewdom with the Semitic desert tribes. Nomadism and changeableness are common to both; the conception of a firmly-founded state is foreign to both, and both seek their salvation in continual wandering and peregrination.

[Page 220]

They graze the pastures bare, and then move on to where fresh booty beckons to them. Both practise the sudden method of attack, allow no quarter, and exterminate; both are animated by the spirit of the desert, which leaves a train of burnt-out settlements along its track. Amongst the civilised nations, however, our Hebrews have altered the methods of their predatory expeditions. They no longer slay with the blade of the sword, but throttle their adversary with the golden noose of capitalism.* The surprise and slaughter of the opponent is accomplished, in its modernised form, on the Stock Exchange. There the dice are cast, which determine victory and dominion; there the economic fortunes and the economic freedom of the nations are gambled with; and as Judah plays with loaded dice, it is assured of victory. There the strangler of nations twines the golden snares, in which he entangles, not only the economic, but also the spiritual and political life of the peoples.

But one must certainly not any longer speak of our Jews of to-day as pure Semites; they have also taken up all manner of foreign national elements; and it is truly remarkable to what a complete extent they have assimilated the same. One is entitled to ask whether the Talmudic spirit alone has rendered this complete adaptation possible, or whether a few drops of Jewish blood have sufficed to give an unvarying stamp or impression – at least mentally – to the entire mass. Externally the Jews of to-day present marked differences in their appearance; Negroid and Turanian (Mongolian) types can be discerned amongst them as well as Semitic. Even amongst the Hebrews, who hail from Russian Poland, one not infrequently comes across blond and watery-eyed examples.

* We find here a parallel with the Indian Thags or Thugs (= Robbers), who consider that they can best serve their God by strangling as many victims as possible. Perhaps these Thugs also stand in relation to the old rejected caste of the "7schandala" (see page 182).

[Page 221]

It is practically certain that the people, who were formerly called the Chasaren, and who are regarded as belonging to a Finnish-Tartar stock, and who, about 800 years after Christ, formed a separate empire in the South of what is now Russia, went over to Jewdom and were completely absorbed. The Jews themselves are conscious of this racial distinction, for the western Jews, who have come across Spain, call themselves "Sephardim" (if baptised: Marannen), and have North-African blood in their veins, describe the Eastern Jews as "Aschkenasim'', and look down on the latter with a certain amount of contempt. In spite of this, the Talmudic law embraces them all, and the Rabbinical despotism welds them into a close caste, absolutely united in its hostility to all non-Jewish peoples.

If, therefore, the Jews of today are not to be regarded as a united race from a physical point of view, all Jewry is inspired, nevertheless, with the uniform racial spirit of Hebrewdom. And – one must not forget this – the spiritual entity is of higher importance to the racial idea than the purely physical, which may well play a part in all manner of chance externals without prejudicing the racial ground-work of blood and soul.

If an explanation is required of what is understood by the expression "Race", it can be formulated on the following lines:

Race denotes a community, which, starting from a common ancestor, is based on blood-relationship and exhibits, for that reason, a number of physical and mental characteristics. One must also reckon with the fact that, with the blood, the attributes of the mind and disposition, of the temperament and character, are inherited equally with the bodily properties. The purer and more united the race is, the more stable and constant is this inheritability. Through admixture with other race-elements, racial peculiarities are partly masked, the external ones more so than the internal, but they assert themselves again, often after generations, with astonishing distinctness. One is therefore entitled to say: a race characterises itself by means of a complex of unvarying, transmissible qualities.

[Page 222]

The German people of to-day represent a mixture of Germanic, Slavonic and Romanic (Celtic) – or, according to modern methods of indication, of Northern, Alpine and Mediterranean elements, which have melted into a certain sort of homogeneity after the lapse of centuries, at least to the extent, that scarcely any doubt can exist as to the uniformity of German thought and German feeling. It is only comparatively recently, after distinct signs of degeneration have become visible, that it appears as if these racial constants are about to be resolved into their original elements, and, in the course of this process, to release a multitude of mongrel-products (degeneration-forms) which cannot be classified racially.

If the existence of a separate Jewish race is disputed, as Felix von Luschan, amongst others, attempts to do, the contention may, perhaps, have a certain amount of justification, as there was not an original Jewish race; It appears to me much more likely that the Hebrews arose out of a mixture of the dregs of all kinds of races (compare page 194), a mixture, however, which has been welded by thousands of years of in-breeding into a racial type.

In the meantime, whoever is searching for the anthropological peculiarity of the Jews, will find this rather in the constitution of mind and character than in definite physical relations. It is quite correct that the Sephardim are preponderatingly longheaded, that the Aschkenasim or Chasaren Jews are roundheaded, and that the profile of the face passes through a great variety of gradations. Perhaps, shortness of limb can be regarded as the most noticeable physical feature of the Jewish race. Nearly all Jews possess remarkably short arms and legs and a proportionately long trunk. Whilst the normal European, and especially the German fathoms more than the entire length of his body, in the case of the Hebrew it is the reverse. The inferior development of the arms might certainly be accounted for by the fact that the race in question has never occupied itself with honest manual labour, has employed neither weapon nor oar, and, for these reasons, has failed to develop the arms properly. Other unmistakable physical features include the relation and position of the ear to the nose; amongst the pure Aryans the ear and the nose, on an average, are of equal length and are on the same level; in the case of the Jew, variations and startling irregularities in both of these respects are noticeable.

[Page 223]

As a matter of fact, however, the Jewish racial constancy is stronger at the present day than is the case in any other human strain, and this is also confirmed by the declaration of Professor Gans, which has been already quoted on page 204. That the peculiar mental tenacity of the Jewish people was already in evidence in the remotest period, is testified to by the excited references of the ancient prophets to this "stiff-necked and stubborn" people.

Jewish peculiarity may also acquire exceptional solidarity from the fact, that this nation, more than any other, possesses a religion entirely suited to its nature, and which occupies itself at the same time, in the most painstaking fashion, with laying down the most detailed precepts for the conduct of ordinary life. Race, religion, nationality, mode of living, and business behaviour are all cast in the same mould as far as the Hebrews are concerned; these are all the uniform expression of the same fundamental nature. The mentality and character of this people, owing to uniform schooling and tense discipline, and owing to the mode of living, which has become strengthened by inbreeding and habitual by the practice of thousands of years, must have established and incorporated itself to an unusual degree so that the Jews are less susceptible to outside influence than any other race of mankind, which is capable of culture and development.

The voluntary segregation of this race, and the consciously fostered aversion to all other peoples, all contributed to maintain Hebrewdom in its singularity. It must be repeated with emphasis: the segregation, so far as the Jews were concerned, was voluntary – just for the preservation of their singularity and their singular rites. Sombart insists that the Jews have not always been "half-citizens" in the strange states, but, on the contrary, in olden times, were frequently actually endowed with peculiar rights and privileges (compare pages 25 and 176).

[Page 224]

They held themselves aloof, however, of their own free will, from all participation in civic and state affairs; they did not accept their share of the spiritual and political destiny of the nation; they regarded themselves everywhere merely as visitors and foreigners, and were always ready to fasten up their bundle, so that – laden with gold and silver, after the manner of their forefathers – they could slip over the frontier.

Sombart also confirms the fact that Jewish peculiarity did not first develop out of the Diaspora (Dispersion) like biased Jewish historians endeavour to make us believe, but that the Diaspora itself is a production of this peculiarity. Just as invalid is the contention that the doctrines; far rather has the Jewish religion grown out of the fundamental nature of Jewdom, and is the inevitable product of the Jewish mode of thinking. Yes, it is an indispensable expedient for sustaining the Jewish mode of existence. Without this "immoral morality" the Hebrew could not continue. The rabbinical doctrines are merely the undisguised expression of the real thoughts and feelings of the Jew; if these doctrines had been artificially constructed, and had been forced upon the Jews against their inclination, the whole Jewish mass would have revolted against such views of life. But no one has ever heard of anything of the kind. Rather have the Hebrews gladly adopted these senseless doctrines because the latter suit them to a nicety. Sombart is therefore entitled to say that one may, without hesitation, refer back from the peculiarity of the Jewish religion to the national peculiarity of the Jews. Certainly, when he expresses doubt if one is justified in attributing the dishonest behaviour of Isaac, Jacob and Joseph to a fraudulent trait in the Jewish nature, we must leave it to the reader to form his own opinion upon this point.

Jewish peculiarities are the fruit of the religion, and of the rabbinical

The legend, which is always cropping up, that the Jews were originally an agricultural people, is to be accounted for by the excusable failure to distinguish between the two tribes, Israel and Judah.

[Page 225]

The extensively held opinion – especially amongst theologians – that Israelites and Jews are identical, is an assumption, which must be challenged, for it is refuted by numerous passages in The Old Testament, in which Israel and Judah are mentioned.* Ancient Israel was a people, composed of honest husbandmen and graziers, which eventually came under the yoke of the intruding Hebrews. The real Jew made his appearance in Palestine, just as in other countries, as the financial political usurper; he came with the gold, which he had abstracted from other countries (as in the case of the excursion from Egypt) into the land, and made the honest population tributary to him by money-lending and usury. And thus the honest agricultural Israelites were enslaved by this alien money bourgeoisie, precisely as many other nations are at the present day. But the detestation of the real Israelites for the new money-lords must have been very pronounced when the Israelitish captain, Abner, answered an unworthy imputation with the indignant words: "Am I then a scoundrel like a Jew?" (2. Sam. 3. 8.)

2. Development of the Jews as a commercial nation.

During the subsequent vicissitudes of the people of Judah, there was opportunity and to spare to devote themselves to agricultural occupations; the Hebrews, however, have never availed themselves of the same. They feel little inclination for this burdensome and downright occupation, for it is impossible to make a fool of nature. And already the wisdom of one Talmudic rabbi has said as much in the following words: he who employs one hundred "Sus" in trading, can enjoy meat and wine every day; but, on the contrary, he who expends one hundred "Sus" on tilling the soil, has to be satisfied with salt and cabbage, must sleep on the ground, and endure all manner of hardships.

* Amongst other matters, it is worthy of notice that in the apocryphal story of Susanna and Daniel, a sharp distinction is drawn between Canaan's stock and not Judah's on one hand, and the "daughters of Israel" and Susanna as "daughter of Judah", on the other.

 "Harosch keleb anoki ascher |'jehuda?" Kautsch translates: "Am I then a Jewish scoundrel?" – Compare "Hammer" No. 259: The History of the origin of the Old Testament.

[Page 226]

Thus, there is no lack of historians, even amongst the Jews themselves, who openly admit that the Jews are inclined by their very nature to trade, are devoted to it, and are a nation with a very pronounced commercial tendency. Their most ancient scriptures also bear testimony to this fact. The cuneiform documents from Nippur as well, have provided additional evidence that the Hebrews were already wholesale dealers and bankers in ancient Babylon. They cheerfully resigned the dangerous maritime trade to the Phoenicians, for this branch of commerce called for personal courage, and was inseparable from peril to life.

Sombart must credit us with great simplicity when he tries to represent the notorious robbery of gold and silver by the Jews, on their departure from Egypt, as if these were loans of the Egyptians, which the Hebrews were intercepting. This discloses an astounding lack of any understanding for national psychology. Since the Hebrews, in olden times, scarcely ever carried on any other occupation than those of grain-dealer, cattle dealer, usurer and pawnbroker, it may be taken for granted that they carried on these occupations in Egypt also. I consider it likely that these gold and silver vessels and costly garments, which the Hebrews took with them on the occasion of their exodus from Egypt, were pledges, which the Egyptians had handed over to the Jewish usurers, into whose clutches they had fallen. (Compare Sombart pages 370–372.) To what an extent the Jewish usurer was in demand in olden times, is testified to by the punitive sermon of Nehemiah, and especially by Amos. 8, 4-7.

It is only part and parcel of the Jewish doctrine and view of the world, that the Rabbis, all their lives, have not disdained to participate most actively in all money transactions.

Even Sombart admits, that the Rabbis are, in many cases, the chief money-lenders; there are even passages, which seem to suggest that the Rabbis have a monopoly of usury. Sombart cites an instance out of the Oxford Papyrus, which actually describes a case of Jewish usury on the grand scale, for it is distinctly declared in this document, which is a bond or obligation, that the debt shall be doubled each time that it is not repaid at the appointed term. A true Jewish mode of operation, which we are continually coming across, at all times and in all places. (Compare page 25).

[Page 227]

Can it be wondered at that the Hebrews have managed by such practices, throughout the ages, to draw the money of the other nations quickly into their own hands? And thus Sombart remarks, that already in the Hellenic period, and in the time of Imperial Rome, rich Jews were acting as moneylenders to the kings; and much was said in the Roman world concerning Jewish hagglers and usurers. Amongst the Arabs, however, the Hebrew has the reputation of being a born usurer and chafferer. The Jews were likewise the financiers and business-men of the Merovingian kings; and in Spain, where they enjoyed most freedom for their operations, they very soon had the nation in debt to them. Already at the time of the Crusades they were engaged, to an excessive extent, in money transactions, and "bled" the Crusaders mercilessly (compare page 25 et seq.) so that Sombart feels compelled to admit: since we have ascertained something about the Jewish economic life, we see that the loaning of money plays a very prominent part in the same. (Page 375 and following). He adds:

"It is really about time that the fairy-tale disappeared, that the Jews had first been driven into the money-lending business, during the European Middle Ages, because all other occupations were closed to them.

The history of a Jewish loan-traffic, extending over a period of two thousand years before the Middle Ages, ought really to be sufficient proof of the erroneousness of this historical fabrication."

And even when the path to other occupations lay open to the Jews, they still turned aside to devote themselves, with preference, to the loaning of money against pledges, like Karl Biicher has pointed out in the case of Frankfurt a. M. Indeed, at certain times, the authorities have even offered premiums to induce the Jews to choose other vocations, but all attempts in this direction proved futile. It is characteristic of the Jewish religion, that the Jewish temples, in olden times, were the centres of the money-traffic, and were, to a certain extent, banking-houses. A large quantity of gold was accumulated in the Temple at Jerusalem.

[Page 228]

And this alliance between religion and money-traffic is not to be excused on the grounds that other Semitic nations, like the Babylonians, are said to have done the same. At any rate the same reproach cannot be levelled at the Christian Churches. And, although the talents of the usurer are occasionally to be found amongst the other nations, the non-Jewish usurer is, generally speaking, more or less of an amateur; the Hebrews alone have brought usury to an art and a science – have exalted it even to a religion. Sombart also admits, that the Jews have developed the technic of loan-agreements to an uncanny perfection. He says:

"Tf one reads the fourth and fifth chapters of the Baba Mezia, one gets the impression that one is taking part in a usury-inquisition in Hesse, some twenty or thirty years ago, so multitudinous are the tricks and devices, which are introduced into these loan-contracts."

It is, therefore, not without full justification, that both Jewish wealth and the Jewish usurer have become a by-word.

Whilst the priests of other nations have to be the guardians of what is ideal, the Hebrew priests are business-folk to their finger-tips, and even usurers. Sombart says:

"Tt is remarkable what a number of rich and very rich men there are amongst the Talmudists. It is not at all difficult to draw up a list of several dozen Rabbis, all of whom enjoy the reputation of being extremely wealthy."

But Sombart confesses that all his investigations into the faculty of acquisitiveness, possessed by the Jews, do not satisfactorily account for the phenomenon of Jewish wealth. He has actually forgotten the most important factor, viz that confederation of the Jewish business demeanour, the Chawrusse.

The enormous gains of the Jewish capitalists are also only to be accounted for by the existence of the Chawrusse. The characteristic picture in the fourth section (page 47), drawn from the descriptions of the actuary, Thiele, of the criminal court, forms a typical example of the Jewish organisation for acquisition. The Chawrusse continues, at the present moment, on all sides; on the Stock Exchange, amongst the Banks, in the Press, in the "White Slave" traffic, amongst Jewish pickpockets and burglars, and has its ramifications over the whole world.

[Page 229]

There is only one satisfactory explanation for this phenomenal enrichment of the Jewish people; it is the organisation in bands, of Trade, of Usury, of Fraud, and of Theft; and all these again are federated with one another – however vague and shadowy such connection may appear to be.* It is exactly as Herder has already stated:

"The Hebrews are a despicable race of cunning dealers, a race that has never desired honour, home and country. That they can ever have been valiant warriors and honest peasants does not appear credible to us, for the disposition of a nation does not alter so quickly."

Sombart makes a last attempt to save the honour of the Jewish nation, and to explain away its peculiarities, by representing the Jews as an oriental people that became mixed up with or dispersed amongst Northern nations, and started a system of culture in conjunction with the latter. Certainly one has every right to refer to the fact, that the penetration of a nation with alien racial-elements can impart a tremendous cultural impulse. Gobineau, as is well known, has attempted to explain the origin of the ancient cultures, as being the consequence of the penetration of Southern Nations by elements of the Northern race, the blond Aryans, whereby the latter assumed the leadership amongst those, who had been subjugated, and by means of their organising power and heroic mode of thinking, sowed the seeds of future great developments. It is unlikely that anyone will attempt to compare the part, which the Hebrew plays amongst us at the present day, with the above example.

Nowhere can the Hebrew be regarded as the bearer of culture and of a new social order; his entire method of working is of too negative a nature.

* There is a particular association in Russia for the purpose of business and exploitation, called Kahal or Kagal, which embraces the whole Jewish community. Important disclosures concerning this are to be found in Dr. Rich. Andree's book: "Information about the Jewish nation," and the "Handbook of the Jewish Question" also contains extracts. 26 t h edition page 293-297.

 Count Gobineau: "Disquisition on the dissimilarity of the Human Races." Stuttgart 1902.

[Page 230]

When Sombart continuously talks about "capitalistic culture", he is only using a euphemism all the time. We learnt already at the beginning of our examination of the subject, that although the capitalistic economic method can certainly effect a prodigious release of latent forces, the only result is a rapid wasting-away of the nations concerned, and in no case is a constructive culture ever produced.

Justifiably apprehensive of the above fact, Sombart occasionally speaks of "the strange blossom of capitalistic culture." Far more remarkable is his expressed opinion that this oriental race wastes its best faculties in an environment, which, racially and climatically, is antipathetic to it. On the contrary, it seems to us that it wastes the faculties of others. We can agree with him, however, when he calls the Bedouins itinerant cattle breeders and nomads, and then continues:

"Such a restless and roving tribe of Bedouins were those Hebrews also, who, about the year 1200 B. C., burst into the land of Canaan, pillaging and murdering, in order to compel the native population to work for them." (Sombart page 405)*

He also admits that the land was subdued, less by martial valour than by financial subjugation, and that the Hebrews had known how to make the greater part of the territory tributary to themselves, and thus to achieve the same result by a loan relationship. He allows – as thoughtful Anti-Semites have always represented – that:

"Considerable numbers of Hebrews resided in the towns, drawing rent and interest, whilst the enslaved population cultivated the soil as if it were a colony or they were free peasants."

All the idle talk about the Hebrews having been formerly an agricultural people, can, as Sombart also admits, be dismissed as a myth; he says:

"But the spirit of nomadism must have remained active in all tribes, for if it had been otherwise, if Israel (should be Judah) had been an agricultural people, even merely in an oriental sense, we would never be able to understand the origin and first formation of the Jewish system of religion."

* These ideas of Sombart, however, are not original, for they were already expressed in 1886, in the "Handbook to the Jewish-Question", which was formerly known as the "Anti-Semitic Catechism" of Theodor Fritsch.

[Page 231]

As a matter of fact, an agricultural people is not wont to invent a religion of usury and deceit, and to choose a God who ordains that the destruction of countries and their populations is a sacred duty. Whatever suggestion there might be of honest agriculture, in the history of the ancient Jewish people, must surely refer to the original and permanent population, the Israelites, and not to the tribe of usurers, called Hebrews, who migrated into the country at a later date.* That the Israelitish history has become intermingled with the Jewish, and that, now and again, in the Old Testament, glimpses of a loftier conception of divinity occur side by side with the hate-breathing, revengeful destroyer of nations, Jahwe (Jehovah), is to be ascribed to the influence of the non-Jewish Israelites. Sombart seems to have some hazy notion that such is the case, when he says, that the Pentateuch has been composed to suit the mind of a nomadic people, and when he continues:

"The God, who maintained his position victoriously against all other false gods, is a god of the wilderness and of the shepherd. And, in the conscious establishment of the cult of Jahwe, all the ancient traditions of nomadism from Esra and Nehemiah are quite distinctly adopted, without any notice having been taken of the intervening agricultural epoch, which, in the case of the Jews themselves perhaps never really happened."

He then cites Jul. Wellhausen, who corroborates as follows:

"The priestly records reject every reference to settled life in the land of Canaan; they confine themselves to an exposition of the desert migration, and claim to be, in every sense of the word, desert legislation."

* In number 269 of the "Hammer" W. Scheuermann, in referring to the book of W. Fishberg, an American Jew, traces the legend of agricultural Jews back to the fact, that in olden times, just as at the present day, converts to Judaism from agricultural peoples, were straightway designated Jews.

 Compare Th. Fritsch: "Der falsche Gott" (The False God) (evidence against Jahwe) Ninth Edition. "Hammer" -Verlag, Leipzig.

[Page 232]

Sombart is of the opinion, that if nomadic instincts and inclinations had not prevailed to a preponderating extent amongst the broad masses of the Jewish people, this preponderatingly nomadic religion could never have been permanently imposed upon them. And the destiny of the Jewish nation proves that it has remained a nomad- and desert-race throughout thousands of years.

This is my opinion as well. But all this again is nothing more than what discerning Anti-Semites, who, so far as ethnological matters are concerned, are far in advance of their times, have been insisting upon for decades. But, in order to avoid all points of contact with these intelligent racial-psychologists, Sombart finds it necessary to speak about "anti-Semitic pamphleteers", who have drawn upon these facts, in a most odious fashion, in order to obtain material to carry on their "campaign of abuse". He can know very little about those concerned, when he includes Eugen Dhring and Adolph Wahrmund amongst writers of this class, for both of these, and more especially the latter, have only written in a most refined and scholarly manner concerning the Jewish problem. Sombart regards all anti-Semitic utterances as "silly and odious"; but what he has to offer us, although presented in another form, does not differ essentially from the conclusions of those farsighted men, who had comprehended the racial problem long before certain loquacious sciolists had formed even an idea on the subject.

He is justified, however, in his derision of our incorporated professional wisdom, which proceeds crablike, with logical considerations of the following kind:

“In olden times agriculture was carried on in Palestine; at that time the Jews inhabited Palestine; consequently the Jews have been agriculturists.”

Really, one might just as well argue: at the present day the Jews hold a dominating position in Germany, and since the German Nation, which maintains itself for the greater part by agriculture, has reached a high stage of culture, these Jews must be agriculturists, and the creators of the German culture!

[Page 233]

3. Dispersion of the Jews over the earth.

Sombart has only irony for the Diaspora, which provides a most acceptable motive for evoking howls of lamentation from the children of Judah, and a whine of sympathy from many other sentimental people.* He is of opinion that if we wish to be honest with ourselves, we are quite unable to form any correct impression of the exile, whether of the departure or of the return. The Jewish account states:

“And Nebucadnezzar led away all the captains and all the soldiers; ten thousand were led away, and all smiths and metal-workers; no one was left except the common people of the country.”

And when it proceeds to state:

“He led away all the nobility of the land from Jerusalem into captivity at Babel’, the thought occurs to us, that perhaps only the parasitic upper classes were transported, whilst the honest, agricultural population was allowed to remain undisturbed (2 Kings 24, 14–15; 25, 11 – 12). There is obviously a mistake in Luther’s translation of the latter passage. This reads:

"But the rest of the people, who remained in the town, and who sided with the King of Babel, and that other poverty-stricken section of the populace, were led away by Nebusur Adan, the Governor."

This must manifestly mean: – "not away"; – for, later on it reads:

"and the Governor called for peasants and vine-dressers from amongst the lowest in the land;"

and again, later on, in verse 22, that the king had placed "the remainder of the people" under the order of Gedalja.

To the Governor, Nebusur Adan, Sombart gives the title "Chief of the executioners'. – What is then the object of this objectionable translation? Does it not disclose the ancient Jewish hatred for the enemies of Judah? – But Sombart himself, referring to the exiles, speaks in confirmation of the above:

* Amongst other things it is interesting to know that Alexander Dumas, in his play: "The wife of Claudius', which glorifies the Jews, makes his hero, Daniel say:

"the Diaspora has not scattered us; on the contrary, it has extended us in all directions. In consequence, we enmesh the whole world in a net so to speak'.

[Page 234]

"The real country-people were not to be found amongst them. Thus the wisdom of the Assyrian kings obviously recognised the kind of plague, which was afflicting the fruitful land of Canaan, and endeavoured to purify the new province by deporting the parasitic class – the plutocracy – and leaving the honest peasant and working-class undisturbed in the country."

Excellent! This is exactly the reading which the Anti-Semites adopted 30 years ago. And we are in agreement with Sombart, that these honest people were the remainder of the original native tribes. Thus our author, (Sombart) has adopted the perception of the despised Anti-

Semites, in its entirety, when he characterises the dominion of the Jewish nation in Palestine, and the conditions, which they took along with them to Babylon, in the following words:

“Town-bred masters, who are, at the same time, money-lenders, have their land cultivated by non-Jews, who act as tenant-peasants; that, at any rate, is the typical picture, which we obtain from the Babylonian Talmud.”

Sombart allows it to appear, that the exile of the Hebrews in Babylon, was by no means enforced by compulsion, and that the Hebrews, on the contrary, had gone there voluntarily so that they would be able to practise their usury to greater advantage in the centres of culture.

“For”, he says, “we never learn that those self-banished Jews ever returned to their native soil, after they had acquired a small fortune, like emigrant Swiss, Hungarians or Italians do, at the present day. They remained, on the contrary, in the foreign cities, and maintained merely spiritual-religious relations with their native land. At the most – like genuine nomads – they undertook their annual pilgrimage to Jerusalem at the Feast of the Passover.”

The diffusion of Hebrewdom over all lands, open to commercial intercourse, must already at that time have been considerable, for, referring to Strabo (B. C. 63 to A. D. 24)

Josephus writes, that it was not easy to find a single place on the inhabited earth, which was not occupied and dominated by this race. Philo (about 20 B. C to 40 A. D) also reports that the Jews resided in numerous maritime and inland cities of Europe, Asia and Libya. We do not hear, however, of any brutal act of violence, which caused them to be dragged thither against their will; for this reason, the dispersion of the Jews throughout all lands of culture has been manifestly voluntary.

[Page 235]

How closely packed they were, for example, in Rome, during the early period of the Empire, is testified to by various authorities. An embassy from the Jewish King Herod to Augustus, were accompanied by about 8,000 members of their faith, who were domiciled in Rome, and in the year 19 A. D. 4,000 men of military age, who had been released, and were “infected with Egyptian and Jewish superstition,” were sentenced to be deported to Sardinia (Page 430; according to Tacitus, Suetonius and Josephus; the last-named is said to have been a favourite of Vespasian).

Sombart goes on to speak about the very considerable immigration into the German Empire, and shows, by means of figures, how the Hebrews are streaming from the East of the Empire to the West, and especially to Berlin. It certainly sounds more than strange when he speaks of "a people hunted from place to place." We, for our part, are of the opinion, that if the Jews move from Birnbaum and Meseritz to Berlin, they do so because they can do better business and procure more pleasure in the metropolis, and not because someone has hunted them thither. At the present moment, actually more than half of the Jews in Germany reside in the large cities, feeling more in their element there, because the brisker business-life, as well as the pleasures and noise of a large city, are more in accordance with their taste. It is also apposite, when Sombart, in another passage, compares the great modern cities to the desert, indicating thereby, that the spirit of the nomad and of the desert has a close affinity to that of the modern cities, and that the great modern city acts devastatingly on the national life.

"Desert and Forest," says he, "are the great contrasts, around which the distinctive natures of countries and of mankind group themselves."

The forest is actually the real birth-place and home of the German, and it was on this account that Germania or ancient Germany appeared so gloomy and abhorrent to the Romans, who disliked forests.

[Page 236]

At the present day, the real German can prosper only in the field, and in the forest; and, as forest and desert are contrasts, so also are the two extreme contrasts of mankind to be found in all that pertains to the German, on one hand, and to the Hebrew, on the other. It is a firmly established fact, that agriculture has, at all times, been the most important institution of the Germanic races, and was never entirely unknown at any epoch of early Indo-Germanic history. By living and working continually in the presence of Nature, as peasantry must of necessity do, the essential and true nature of the German is formed, as indeed is that of all really-constructive, cultural peoples. The estranged attitude towards Nature is the hall-mark of the Semitic race, concerning whose tribal father, Cain, the murderer of the gentle and peaceful husbandman, Abel, it stands written:

"A fugitive and vagabond shalt thou be upon earth! Let thy hand be against everyone, and everyone hand against thee!"

Sombart betrays his prepossession for Jewdom, by commending what a 16th century Jewish physician in Spain has excogitated, to account for the "high-spiritual" nature of the Jew. He – the physician – is of opinion that the dry, pure air of the desert, the "clear water", and the "delicate food of Manna" have produced a marvellous spiritual refinement in the Jew. The ridiculousness of this perception is obvious.

Must not correspondingly all Bedouins also have refined spiritual natures? And how will Sombart explain away the fact, that the Arab, strangely enough, who must certainly be regarded as a true son of the desert, feels himself separated by a yawning chasm from the Jew? There is scarcely any other nation, which fosters such abhorrence for the Jews, as the Arab. Arabian authors have expressed their contempt for the Hebrew in the most biting terms. Already in the year 545 A. D. Abd al Oadir a-[ani wrote as follows:

"The Jews, who live scattered throughout the entire world and, in spite of this, hold firmly together, are cunning, misanthropic and dangerous beings, and must be treated just as one treats a poisonous snake, namely, by stamping on its head immediately it approaches; for, if one allows it to raise the head for one moment, it will infallibly bite, and the bite is fatal."

[Page 237]

And when Sombart makes a further attempt to account for the peculiar disposition of the Hebrew, by ascribing it to his former life in the desert, one is entitled to meet him with the question: why then have not the Arabs become Jews? – why have they preserved a disposition, which can be regarded as aristocratic and heroic in comparison with that of the Jew?

Sombart attempts to explain away the malevolent attitude, assumed by the Jews towards the Northern nations, by attributing it to the "wet-cold" manner of the natives of the North.* But this attempt at defence is also doomed to failure, for we see how the Hebrew, in southern countries such as Egypt and Morocco, behaves in exactly the same way and becomes usurer, just as he does in the North. And when it is finally brought forward in excuse of the Jew, that his bad character must be attributed wholly to the circumstance that, for thousands of years, he has been the appointed custodian of the monies of the various nations, we then ask: who appointed him? Did he not choose this role himself? – With regard to this particular aspect of the Jewish question, there is a favourite perversion or distortion of facts, which is repeated to satiety, and which is in conflict with all history, especially with the spirit of the Old Testament. It must be included amongst the clumsiest subterfuges, employed by Jewry, but unfortunately belongs also to those, which impose most easily on the idealists amongst our fellow-countrymen. The Jew is always represented as having had his particular rôle forced upon him, against his will, while, in reality, he has chosen this role of his own free will, in order to create conditions around him, which are congenial to his nature. When Sombart says:

“They became the lords of money, and by means of money, which they made subject to themselves, lords of the world’,

these words amount to a confession that the Hebrews made themselves masters of money in order to dominate.

* In former times, the attitude of the Germans towards the Jews, as such, was by no means hostile (compare page 25). But the Jews have abused the great patience of the Germans, beyond endurance, and have thereby incurred the lasting hatred of their hosts.

[Page 238]

To anyone, who looks more deeply into the matter, the question certainly occurs as to whether the actual existence of money does not introduce such a dangerously deceptive and unnatural factor of power into human life, that the deceitful spirit of the Hebrew is thereby accorded the utmost license to develop its sinister activity. It is quite possible that the nations will not be freed from the Jewish plague, until they can get rid of the ban of money – that kind of money, the value of which rests on a fiction, and which introduces a demoniacal element into culture, or, until – according to Lagarde’s plan – the State takes the entire money-business into its own hands. The Hebrews did not invent money, nor have they dug the glittering gold out of the bowels of the earth; but they may well have devised that misuse of money, which, in the shape of loan-capital, loads the honest, productive nations with fetters of interest to all eternity. For, the strange mystery connected with money, lies not so much in the money itself as in the notion or conception of capital, which is derived from money, and in the further notion or conception, which is inseparably connected with the former, of unnatural, "everlasting interest." It is unnatural to demand for a loan of money, so long as it is not repaid, a continuous, unchanging rate of interest for hundreds and thousands of years. It is here where the source of the distress of the honest, productive nations lies; here we find the cause of the unlimited growth of Jewish capital and Jewish dominion.* Sombart is therefore right when he says:

"money places in the hands of the Jew the means to exercise power without being strong."

In very truth, the feeblest and most cowardly nation in the world, by a misuse of the glittering gold, have arrogated to themselves, the demeanour and position of lords and rulers.

* Theodor Fritsch has already proposed in 1892, that it should be made obligatory and legal, to include, in every loan-contract, provision for the reduction of the debt (so-called sinking-fund) so that the debt could be paid off within a conceivable time. – Compare "Land-usury and Stock Exchange", Leipzig 1892.

[Page 239]

It is amusing to read Sombart's account of how hateful the German-Polish Jews, the so-called Aschkenasim, are to the Sephardim, their western brethren-in-faith from Spain and Portugal (compare page 221). At Bordeaux, in the year 1761, the Portuguese Jews brought about a drastic order, that all foreign Jews should leave Bordeaux within 14 days. They called the eastern Jews "vagabonds", and took the utmost pains to get rid of them as soon as possible. Now if the more "aristocratic" Jews themselves harboured a detestation for the lower-class Hebrews, the Aschkenasim, how can anyone take it amiss when we feel this aversion in an enhanced degree?

For the Sephardim and Aschkenasim are, to say the least of it, closely united by the ties of religion, morals, and their conjoint view of life; how then, shall these abhorrent beings not be doubly repulsive and hateful to us, to whom their feelings, mode of thinking, and entire nature are completely alien?

The spiritual and spiritual-moral difference between these two sections of Jews cannot well be great; for they are both steeped in the atmosphere of the Talmud. And even Sombart admits, that the habits of those of Jewish blood, however low in the social scale they may be, acquire a remarkable fixity: for instance, inclination for petty deception, obtrusiveness, lack of self-respect, lack of tact etc.

These selections from Sombart's writings should suffice to convince anyone who is visibly anxious to regard the Hebrew in as favourable a light as possible, but who is, at the same time, unable to close his eyes to a number of serious faults and failings in the Jewish disposition, in themselves of sufficient warranty for regarding the Jews, in the midst of the cultured nations, as a highly undesirable, and entirely alien element, that the aversion and dislike, felt by the moral nations for the Jews, has been thoroughly deserved by the latter.

It is most valuable, when a man, who repudiates the slightest tendency to anti-Semitism, and who collects carefully every word said in praise of the Jews, makes such important admissions.

[Page 240]

It is for this reason, that so many passages from Sombart have been quoted and criticised, although the same contain little that is new for anyone, versed in the Jewish question. It is evident that Sombart has learnt much from the Anti-Semites, but he employs the tactic, which, though it may be ingenious, is certainly not noble, of repudiating the source of his instruction. It is to be hoped that our German countrymen will be ready to believe certain facts when stated by a person, who refuses to be regarded as an Anti-Semite, although they would flatly decline to accept these same statements when made by a declared Anti-Semite.

[Page 241]

XVI.

The influence of the Jew upon Womankind.

Women exert an important influence upon the development of retail trade. It is they, who superintend, for the most part, the purchase of necessaries for the household; it is through their hands that the greater portion of the income, earned by the man, is returned into business life, and it is for this reason surely, not a matter of indifference to whom women entrust their custom.

It is now a generally recognised fact, that most women and girls give Jewish shops the preference. The apparent cheapness of Jewish goods might be brought forward as an explanation of this. Women – and even those women, who are by no means entitled to include thrift, in its true sense, amongst their other virtues – seem to find a peculiar pleasure in the mere idea that they have been successful in purchasing some article at a cheaper price than it is usually sold for – even when this supposed cheapness exists only in the imagination of the purchaser. Such women regard this result as being directly due to their own cleverness – in some cases, perhaps, even as a triumph of their own personal charm. For this reason, the shopkeeper, who, by exposing his wares in calculated disorder to be pulled about and hunted through, advances half-way to meet this fancied feminine capacity for ferreting-out and overreaching, will stand a far better chance of doing business than a rival tradesman, who prefers a conventional and orderly method. Women often require “chance goods”, and, for that reason, visit by choice those shops or stores, where everything lies jumbled up together, and where they imagine that they will be able to pick up something cheaply: they pass by the well-ordered shops, so, at least, is the admission of a domesticated woman, who knows her own sex.

[Page 242]

By the cunning utilisation of this feminine weakness, the salesman is enabled to kill two birds with one stone; he confers a special favour upon his female customers, and saves himself the trouble of sorting out and arranging his rubbish, of which task his customers obligingly relieve him.

If, in addition to this, the same salesman knows how to create the impression that, overcome, as it were, by the personal charm of a female customer – and of her alone, he is prepared to part with some article under its proper price, he will infallibly secure her goodwill. And if, moreover, he is expert and nimble enough to flatter all of his customers in like manner, and to lead each individual on to believe that she has been especially favoured before all other customers, he will have no cause to complain of bad trade.

Our women are extraordinarily simple when confronted with any economic question, although they surpass men in many other matters, where cleverness and intuition are required.

They allow themselves to be perverted by the dazzling exterior of an object, and to be guided by the prospect of a momentary advantage, without taking any account of the further consequences of their conduct or action. They do not stop to ask whether they are supporting, with their custom, principles, which are unsound, and business practices, which are harmful, and are thereby depriving genuine and deserving tradesmen of their custom, perhaps forcing entire branches of industry into difficulties, promoting inferior manufacture, and, briefly expressed, imparting an ominous tendency to all business-life. All such considerations are foreign to them.

Possessing these particular failings, they come face to face with the natural disposition of the Jew, who is likewise the man who believes in and upholds the dazzling exterior and the momentary advantage. The Hebrew, who takes more pains to study the psychology of his customers than the trader of Aryan descent – because he looks for his return less in the quality of his goods than in the exploitation of human vanities and weaknesses – has always been able to detect these peculiarities in the feminine disposition, and has known how to take the fullest advantage of the weak side of woman.

[Page 243]

As it is, his shop-window acts confusingly and disturbingly on the feminine mind. It is difficult to define exactly what the particular art may be, which the Jew makes use of in displaying his goods, so that the same have a more attractive effect upon the glances of the passers-by than the wares in the window of a tradesman, who is not a Jew. There must be some kind of affinity or connection between the capricious and abstracted nature of the average feminine mind, and the Jewish manner and touch when they exhibit or display anything; for the Jews most certainly do not show superior taste in the arrangement of their wares, and it is rather a bewildering jumble or an obtrusive thrusting-in-the-face of certain articles, which seem to excite and lure the female spectator. The Jew also tries to puzzle and confuse by marking up unusual prices. An article in the shop of a tradesman, who is not a Jew, which remains comparatively unnoticed at the price of 75 Pfennigs, can be prominently displayed in a Jewish shop at the price of 97 Pfennigs, and here it seems, all of a sudden, to create the impression as if it were in reality several Pfennigs cheaper than elsewhere.

At any rate, it is a matter of fact that the Jewish show windows exert an almost mesmeric influence over the great masses of curious and inquisitive people. But for all that, the Hebrew despises no other means whatever, by which he may achieve the same result.

Calculating upon the herd instinct of the public, many of the larger Jewish businesses engage and pay people, solely for the purpose of walking to and fro on the pavement in front of their establishments, at such times as the traffic is at its height, and of occasionally stopping before the show-windows as if curious and interested.

Their example prompts others to imitate them, and businesses of this kind are always besieged by people. As soon as one of the hirelings separates himself from the throng, and enters the shop, the movement seems to become contagious, and others follow.

[Page 244]

An unceasing and striking series of advertisements in the newspapers by the Jewish business-houses, also contributes to attract custom to their shops, and in this particular sphere of activity, the Jewish trader gives full rein to the obtrusiveness and heedlessness of his race. Doubtless such artifices ensure that Jewish shops are more extensively patronised than other establishments, but still they are not sufficient, to account for certain, almost unaccountable phenomena. It is rather the personality of the Jew himself, which acts upon so many women with absolutely forcible suggestiveness.

Without doubt, the well-known susceptibility of our women for everything "foreign", has prepared the soil for this astounding Jewish influence. It is an absolutely incomprehensible fact to people from other countries, that representatives of our womanhood – from school-girls up to women in the forties – are to be found in large numbers, who comport themselves towards negroes as if the latter were of their own race and standing, and who behave in a downright shameless manner towards the various men of colour, connected with exhibitions etc.; and others again, in the colonies, whose conduct with respect to the natives discloses an unbelievable intimacy. A state of things, which, quite apart from the unrestrained sensuality involved, is a melancholy indication of a steady decline in national and racial self-respect. All this has reference to the relations, which – unfortunately – subsist between a large section of our womankind and the Jews.

And now it becomes necessary to step aside into a dark territory, which the majority of our contemporaries pass unsuspectingly, but which must be explored and opened-up in order to help to account for the unholy influence, which the Jews have acquired amongst us. Certainly it is a region, which a clean-living and conscientious man enters with reluctance, and it was long before I could make up my mind to lay it open to the public view. But as this book, by reason of the serious and economic matter which it contains, runs but little risk of falling into the hands of the young, the idle, and the pruriently inclined, it will not be dangerous, in the presence of mature readers, to treat with candour a subject, which, as a rule, is wont to shun all publicity.

[Page 245]

As it is a question of the secret undermining of the moral and physical strength of our nation by the machinations of the Hebrews, undue sensitiveness in this respect may well be laid aside for once. Moreover, the discussion of this question cannot be avoided here, because it is necessary to a proper characterisation of the racial and ethical domain in which the Hebrew lives, and out of which sphere he moulds his life and carries on his business. In order that the chief features may be recognised, it will be best to cite some instances, selected from the experiences of daily life.

As an introduction the following remarks are not out of place. The many thousands of single and married Jewish sensualists are causing such devastation amongst our young women, that from this quarter alone the ruin of our nation is assured, without taking into consideration all the other closely connected economic and social evils. So much can be learnt from a thoughtful perusal of the following pages. But, from my own personal observation there are many, in other respects experienced men, who are ignorant of these facts, or, who are ignorant at any rate of the extent and depth of the injury, which is being inflicted upon our nation; they simply proceed blindly on their way.

There is no doubt whatever, that the real nature of the Jew is completely unknown and incomprehensible to the great majority of the most educated people of to-day. They have had no opportunity to gain an insight into the more secret machinations of the Jew. Their acquaintanceship with Jews is confined, for the most part, to occasional and brief contact in social and business circles, and, since in this respect the Hebrew is wont to show his most harmless and agreeable side, there is little cause for wonder when one repeatedly hears, that the Jews are really nice, decent, amiable people. Others again, only know the Jew from flattering literary presentations of him, like "Nathan der Weise", or Sir Walter Scott's "Ivanhoe", and are inclined also, to transfer their instilled and unquestioning reverence for the Biblical Patriarchs to the Jews of to-day.

[Page 246]

And has not our light literature always been utilised in a most subtle manner, by Jewish authors, to convey an entirely misleading portrait of the Jew? With a cunningly calculated appeal to German susceptibility, Jews and Jewesses have been portrayed invariably as high-minded, innocent beings – as patient creatures, bearing their burden of “eternal pain”, because they have to suffer severely under the prejudice and unfounded hatred of the malicious Christians. Moreover, as our daily press and our literature are completely under Jewish influence, all personalities, who come into publicity, are appraised and judged accordingly as they show themselves well disposed, or the contrary, towards Jewdom. This circumstance has always formed the standard of criticism for Jewish authors, and is more the case to-day than ever. The consequence is, that from youth upwards, our dispositions are made susceptible to a false philanthropy, and become especially sympathetic to the “poor, innocent, persecuted Jews.” And, in riper years, “refinement” and “tolerance” both play a part in shielding the Hebrew of to-day from any unpleasantness, which he might experience on account of the mediaeval prejudice. Yes, we actually give ourselves trouble, not only to make all manner of excuses for the Jews, because of the illusory state of suffering, in which they are supposed to live, but even to assist them, and to further their interests whenever we can, just as if we had to make restitution for an ancient wrong, which our ancestors are supposed to have inflicted on them.

Such a sentiment does credit to our hearts – but what about our intelligence? All people, who are acquainted with history, and the actual facts of life, know perfectly well that the Jews have never emerged guiltless from the occasional disasters, which they have encountered, (compare page 25 and following) and that the tales of cruelties, said to have been perpetrated against the Hebrews, proceed, in many cases, from the imagination, and in others, from gross exaggeration. Thus, the so-called “Jew battles” of the Middle Ages were confined, for the most part, to an expulsion of the Jews, who had become far too numerous, from the towns and districts in which the economic pressure, directly due to their usurious practices and manoeuvres, had become unbearable.

[Page 247]

As a tremendous clamour arises from the whole of Jewry, at the present day, whenever one of their race loses his life, or has even one hair of his head touched, one can easily understand how it is, that all incidents, in which Jews have figured as the injured party, have been so extravagantly described in history.

The only person, who really understands what the Jew of to-day is, must have had the opportunity to associate with him on intimate terms for years; but an opportunity of this kind does not offer itself to many. For the Hebrew is just as cautious on his side in the selection of his intimate friends as any intelligent German might be; and the latter knows instinctively, in spite of all conventional toleration, how to preserve a certain distance between himself and the Jew.

Of all the greater importance then, are the experiences of Jewish companionship, which we will now let our correspondent relate in his own words.

"I came, as a guileless youth of twenty, from a small provincial town to Berlin. Chance brought me into the company of Jews of the same age as myself. I was introduced by them into their family circles, and both saw and heard there much that came as a surprise to me. As the acquaintanceship with my Jewish friends became more intimate, opinions and sentiments were occasionally expressed in my presence, which secretly horrified and angered me. But whenever I attempted to remonstrate, I was met with such universal laughter that I began to be ashamed of whatever delicacy of feeling I still possessed.

In the circle of my more intimate Jewish friends, the conversation turned almost exclusively upon women and sexual matters; they preferred to boast about the various tricks and artifices, which they had employed, in order to seduce innocent girls; and, in no case, did any one of them display the slightest trace of being conscience-smitten."

[Page 248]

"It was regarded as a matter of course, that the female servants must be at the disposal of the men in the Jewish household. 'We have just got a new servant', announced one. – 'Is she pretty?' asked another.

'Well, it is scarcely likely that my father would select anything bad for me', was the answer. – One related with considerable ill-temper, that a servant-girl, who had only been a short time in his family, had rejected his advances; that his father, however, had very soon brought the girl to reason by saying: 'Have I not engaged you as 'general servant'? Very well, then! this is included in your duties!'"

– And the universal assent of his listeners, proved that they all regarded the incident from the speaker's point of view, and approved of the way it had been dealt with.

Many years later, after other events had combined to make me a convinced opponent of the Jews, these first and lasting impressions of my early manhood came vividly into my mind.

I had, without success, repeatedly endeavoured to convince a well-known educational reformer of the injuriousness of the Jews. He was too much of an idealist, and was too remote from practical, every-day life, to be susceptible to the influence of commercial, economic and political facts. According to his opinion, all hostility to the Jews arose from the incapability and envy of the "Christian" business-people, who did not feel able to compete with the "superior" Jew. In order to bring him down from his Utopia into a sphere, in which every man, who had any regard for morality and decency, would find it difficult to control his anger, I related to him some of my past and recent experiences as set down in the chapter on "Jews and Women." Still, even these made no impression upon him; he regarded them either as incredible, or, at least, as grossly exaggerated.

After the lapse of considerable time, he called on me again, and made the following admission:

"I must confess that I have become convinced, that the descriptions, which you gave me, of the relations between Jews and women are believable. At Munich recently, a passenger got into my compartment, and I soon recognised, in the course of conversation, that my companion was an educated Jew in very comfortable circumstances."

[Page 249]

"He might have been either a merchant or a banker. The conversation happened to turn upon the servant question, and he exclaimed: 'At last, thank God, we have again found a nice and proper kind of servant girl.' When I asked him if it was difficult to get servants in Munich, he replied: 'There are servant-girls enough to be had, but when I engage a girl I have my own particular conditions. I have a son, who is fifteen years of age, and one of my conditions is, that he shall have free access to the girl.

The relater continued:

"I could scarcely believe my ears; my heart almost choked me, but I managed, with an effort, to assume an appearance of indifference, and asked: 'What does your wife say to this?' The reply was: 'What should she say? my wife is a sensible woman. Is it likely that she would wish the boy to have intercourse with unclean, street prostitutes? It can only be a source of satisfaction to her, that her son should have access to a clean and healthy girl in his own home!'"

Our educational reformer was still more shocked at this answer than he had been at the first; but it had at last dawned upon him what a world-wide gulf lay between Jewish thought and Jewish perception, and ours.

But how few of those sentimentalists amongst us, who are always disputing and denying everything, of which they have not had any personal experience, have such a drastic opportunity of refuting their Nathan-like views of the Jewish character? One recognises one fact: the education of the Jewish youth is a very different process from that of the German. Is there any cause for wonder, when boys, growing up into manhood, continue to extend the experiences, which they have gained in the manner described above, so ruthlessly in every direction, that they become accustomed to regard every female, who, according to their view, is socially inferior, or who may be dependent upon them for a living, as an instrument for the gratification of their lust? Anyone, who does not shrink from the only conclusions, which this summing-up of the situation will admit, cannot be astonished at the racial degeneration, which is making itself only too visible by the countless thousands of illegitimate and falsely-legitimate children, resulting from this Jewish-German sexual intercourse; and the easily-recognisable mixed-type, to be found amongst the populations of Berlin, Frankfort, and other cities and districts, which teem with Jews, will not come as a surprise and shock to the honest observer.

[Page 250]

And, keeping pace with this, is the appalling decay of the national character, which is the inevitable consequence of mongrelising the race, and which invariably means national ruin. A nation can save itself from moral lapses and relaxation; but never from racial decay. Ancient Rome is a historical instance of the former case, France of the latter.

The lascivious impudence, displayed by the Jewish youth especially towards female employees in business-houses, in dancing-establishments, and in restaurants, and generally towards females of no social pretensions or devoid of all worldly experience, is only too well known. Neither married women, nor girls, scarcely emerged from childhood, are safe from the importunities of the most conscienceless of these fellows, and an unending succession of cases of this nature occupy the police-courts, and would soon attract the attention, even of the most stupid, if the names, nationality, etc. of the criminals were not intentionally and systematically suppressed in all the newspapers. It is a fact, confirmed by many police-court cases, that Jews violate, for preference, maidens, who are so young that they are only to be regarded as girls, and even children.

For these unnatural offences a kind of authority is actually to be found in Talmudic literature; for a Talmudist Rabbi endeavours to prove, by going into details, why a girl of three years of age is fit for sexual intercourse.* Berlin, at the end of the "seventies" in the past century, was the real field for conducting observations of a very convincing nature. The advance of Jewry was at that time extraordinarily in evidence.

The fraudulent manoeuvres on the Stock Exchange, during the so-called "promotion years," had brought enormous wealth to the Hebrews, who forced themselves to the front in all directions, in society as well as in public life. Even then, one could not avoid seeing what was a deeply humiliating sight for every honourable German, namely, splendid specimens of German womanhood hanging on the arms of Jews – and even then not enjoying, at least, the respected position of a married woman.

* Compare Fritsch: "Der falsche Gott", (Evidence against Jehovah or Jahwe.) 5 Edition (1919) page 77.

[Page 251]

Dazzled by the flash appearance and behaviour of Hebrews, who have amassed wealth in every conceivable manner, and allured by the most cunning methods of seduction, countless women, well qualified to be the mothers of the nation, fall victims, year after year, to the Jews, and descend to the level of purchasable commodities. Prostitution always flourishes luxuriantly wherever the Jews live and have lived; it is a matter of common knowledge, that a notorious law-suit scarcely ever runs its course without implicating one or more Jews, either as "friend," seducer, usurer, cheat, or receiver of stolen goods. The Leyden Papyrus, which dates from Egyptian antiquity, as well as the Old Testament, refer frequently to Jewish sexual excesses.* The Jew, as Oriental, is a supporter of polygamy, or, as the well-known Jewish author, Max Nordau, (Siidfeld) expresses himself, "is not a monogamous animal."

If he happens to live in countries, where monogamy alone is legal, and conforms outwardly to this law, he can always find plenty of ways of evading it in order to indulge his oriental proclivities. Jewish married women place no obstacles in the way of their husbands in this respect, whether it is because the idea of polygamy is something innate in them, or because they derive a secret satisfaction from seeing the women of a foreign race – rivals in a double sense – in a state of complete subjection to their husbands. With regard to the phenomenon, it is interesting to establish how occurrences of this kind are judged by Jewesses.

In the "Lit. Echo" (1912. Number 3) the Hebrew woman, Anselma Heine, deities her racial companion, the author Jacobowski. In the course of her article, she treats of his love affairs, and expresses herself in connection therewith as follows:

"Suddenly I discovered in him the ancient typical trait of pain, peculiar to his race. He experienced a vindictive rapture in displaying his power over women, and never indicated the plebeian with more scorn than when he boasted, how he had subjugated the elegant wives of the blonde nobility by brutal force."

* Compare: "Handbuch der Judenfrage" (Handbook of the Jewish Question) 26th Edition. Page 240.

[Page 252]

– Only let anyone try to imagine to himself, if it could be possible, that a Christian authoress would announce to the whole world, with such a voluptuous thrill of veneration, confessions, like those above, of the sexual triumphs of a fellow-countryman over Jewesses.

And still one more instance of this kind. – The publishing house,

Velhagen and Klasing, of Bielefeld and Leipzig, which has gradually built up a sound literary reputation by the loyal and strictly evangelical inclination of all their publications, and especially as publishers of the family paper, "Daheim'", has been issuing for about the last twenty-five years, the "Monatshefte" (Monthly Numbers) which form a periodical of interesting contents, edited by H. v. Zobeltitz and P. O. Hocker, and which of late has been giving preference to novels from the Jewish pen. The following noteworthy passage, concerning the Jewish hero of the story, is to be found in the novel, "Der Tunne?", by the Jewish author, Bernard Kellermann (Furth), published in the periodical.

"S. Woolf was a perfect specimen of a gentleman. He had only (!) one vice, and he concealed it carefully from the outside world. It was his extraordinary sensuality. The blood began to sing in his ears as soon as he caught sight of a young and pretty girl. He travelled at least once every year to Paris and London, and had his 'friends' in both cities. From these expeditions he occasionally brought back 'nieces', whom he transplanted to New York. The girls had to be young, pretty, and blonde! S. Woolf avenged (!) in this way, poor Samuel Woolfsohn (his father) who, years before, had been hopelessly driven out of the field, so far as all good-looking women were concerned, by the competition of stalwart tennis-players and large monthly cheques (!) He took his revenge on that blonde race, who had formerly spurned him with their feet. And, above all, he recompensed himself for the privations of his youth."

Thus, the cynical debauchee, who comports himself with "blonde girls" as if they were nothing more than so much "human flesh", captures them, enjoys them, and then flings them on one side, is, according to Jewish notions, the "pattern of a gentleman"! And then this foolish idea of revenge: because old Woolfsohn could find no favour in the eyes of German women, is that any reason why his son should revenge himself on other women of the blonde race?

[Page 253]

Has not the Jewish author here, by mistake, revealed too much? – Accordingly it is not inclination, or mere sensual desire, which attract the Hebrew to the blonde women, but rather – Hate and Revenge! He desires to ruin and dishonour as many of these females as possible, whether they stand in any sort of relation to his scheme of "revenge" or not, and thus procure retribution – for what? – for a wrong existing only in the Jewish imagination, which is clouded with conceit and hatred.

Verily, logic of this order can only flourish in the swampy carnal-mindedness of a people, who celebrate today, just as they celebrated more than 2,000 years ago, with songs of triumph, the remembrance of the massacre of those 75,000 Persians, who fell victims to the lust for revenge of the strumpet Esther and her cousin Mordecai.

But – without doubt – the real motive for the feeling of revenge lay, as far as the Jewish “gentleman” was concerned, in the concluding sentence: “he compensated himself for the deprivations of his youth,”

by dishonouring, with the help of his money and all the tricks of the professional seducer, as many women of the blonde race as possible: and the incarnate hatred sweetened his triumphs.

And what about the “ancient, typical trait of pain in the Jewish race” – “the eternal pain of the Jews” of Heine, Jakobowski and company? It is nothing but the mortification of Mephistopheles that he is not left at liberty to do exactly as he likes; the mortification of Shylock when he is prohibited from mutilating his business rival in order to gratify his demoniacal hatred. This pain, born of hatred and insolent pride towards everything that is not Jewish, is certainly an ancient inheritance of the race, and one of its fundamental and lasting characteristics. The Jew disguises or conceals it under the appearance of melancholy, whereby he deceives simpleminded people so long as he has not the opportunity to, or dares not exhibit his real nature; it discloses itself as insolent sensuality or ruthless rapacity, when it feels that it is safe enough to step, unveiled, into broad daylight.

[Page 254]

Woe to those, who allow themselves to be deluded by the harmless exterior; and may shame and disgrace descend on all who assist the Jew in deceiving the rest of humanity as to the true nature of his “pain” and “revenge”.

What kind of spiritual offspring this “typical, ancient pain” of the People of God is, is disclosed in a poem, published in the Jewish periodical, “Die Aktion” (February 1913), from the pen of a certain Paul Meyer. Perhaps it may open the eyes of a few, here and there, as to the thinly-veiled “ultimate aims” of Jewdom.

THE MERRY SONG OF THE VAGRANT AHASVER.

Behold! I am a man rooted to no spot,

A man unwedded to any environment:
The narcosis of home-sickness

Does not drive my heart into my breeches,
For I am proof against grief.

If you drive me from your thresholds,

I still remain more sought-after than anybody else,
Your cries of envy resound,

For I drink at your fountains,

And I weigh up your values.

The sleek skin of my soul

Conceals what I have expiated as a beggar,
Still, my booty mounts up

And, your brides call joyfully to me

– me, the refuse of a foreign desert.

Yawningly you exhale your tobacco-smoke
As you honourably digest your meal,

But I am a clever juggler,

And I know how to excite your vices

So that they develop to the utmost.

Thus I continue to play the game
Of my mature insolence,

The strange, very subtle, final aims
Of my Asiatic blood,

Which are hidden from you!

[Page 255]

It is a fact, that the Rabbinical doctrines of the Talmud deny the right of the Jewish wife to raise any objection to the intercourse of her husband with women, who are not Jewish, even though the latter may be married. The circumstance, that the marriage of those who are not Jews is, according to Rabbinical perception, not to be regarded as marriage but "as no better than the living-together of beasts'', is confirmatory of the above. According to Talmudic doctrine those, who are not Jews, are not even to be regarded as human beings, but only as "animals in human shape." (compare page 57).

A perception of this kind accounts for a whole series of Jewish views, which would otherwise be enigmatical to us. An animal has no moral rights, and consequently Rabbinism does not recognise any moral duties on the part of the Jew towards those who are not Jews. A beautiful woman, who is not Jewish, is nothing more than a beautiful animal in the eyes of the Jews, and therefore the individual Jew is at liberty to do with her as he likes. In any case there is no necessity for him to trouble his conscience with what becomes of her.

Now and again, one hears the voice of a superior type of Hebrew, frankly admitting and disapproving of this shameful behaviour on the part of their racial companions towards women, who are not Jews. Conrad Alberti, (Sittenfeld) for instance, writes as follows, in M. G. Conrad's "Society" 1889 No. 2, after he had spoken of Jewish intolerance towards those who are not Jews:

"The only exception is the sexual intercourse, and especially the behaviour of rich, young Jews towards girls of the poorer class, seamstresses etc. This reaches an incredibly low level of cynical brutality, and one to which I have never seen young men sink, who belong to the Christian faith. The latter, for the most part, still preserve some lingering traces of shame in the presence of the opposite sex, but, in the case of our young 'jobbers' of the Stock Exchange, not a spark is to be found."

[Page 256]

The thousands of girls who, year in and year out, come to their ruin in Jewish business-houses and in Jewish families, could provide terrible evidence that the honest admission, quoted above, is founded upon fact. Certainly the objection is justified, that employers and people in positions of authority, who are not Jews, frequently abuse their position in the same shameful manner; but in all cases of this nature a characteristic difference always distinguishes those cases, where the culprit is a Jew, from those where he is not. And this difference lies in the attitude, which Jewish women take up towards such conduct on the part of their men-folk.

When confronted with the complaint of a servant-girl, that the "master" or "young master", is annoying her with his attentions, a German married-woman will, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, prepare a very bad time indeed for the men of her household, and will replace the girl by one less dangerous. It is far otherwise with the Jewish wife or mother. She not only shows herself "tolerant" to her growing-up son, but overlooks as well the weaknesses of her husband, and actually assists him to attain his object – thus following the example of Sarah – by advising the girl, in her own interests, to yield to the desire of her pursuer.

In one particular instance, the words were repeated to me, with which a rich married Jewish woman received and disposed of the complaint of her pretty housemaid, that the master of the house was persecuting her with his attentions. Smiling almost sympathetically, and with a goodwill, which had something motherly about it, the mistress of the house spoke to the girl:

"What a foolish child you are! You are young, and you are pretty; if you leave and go into another house, there will be men there also, and they will also pursue you with the same object. And if you again leave your place and go to another, it will be the same there as well. Men are like that; a pretty girl is never free from

pursuit. And at last you will yield. – Be sensible, and remain here; my husband is rich and can pay you well!*

* It is well known to the inhabitants in Berlin, that, in consideration of a special payment, many registry offices for servants dispatch all good-looking country-girls, who apply to them for situations, exclusively to Jewish households.

[Page 257]

In the case mentioned above, the girl possessed character enough to at once take her departure, but how few others would be strong enough to resist such plausible argument and insidious temptation? They fall victims to the Jews, and preserve silence concerning their shame. Moreover, the Jew is astute enough to flatter the vanity of the girl by timely presents and liberal treatment, so that those who have fallen, after they have once lost the first sense of disgrace, find little difficulty in speaking in glowing terms of their Jewish employers.

This story may surprise some readers on account of the peculiar attitude assumed by the Jewish married-woman, but this fact is nothing new to anyone acquainted with the circumstances; and, quite apart from the Talmudic perception, to which attention has already been called above, this behaviour arises out of another and absolutely materialistic frame of mind.

The Jewess knows only too well, that her lascivious husband will not be satisfied with intercourse with only one woman. Accordingly he will seek opportunities away from home. This, however, is generally expensive, and carries, moreover, dangers in its train – not the least of which are those affecting health. The astute, saving Jewess reasons thus with herself: a healthy servant-girl, who is paid a few thalers more than the usual wages, and who receives an occasional present in addition, is the cheapest expedient for appeasing the lewdness of the husband: and, of course, danger of infection is greatly reduced. –

It has already been intimated above, that the personality of the Jew exercises a remarkable, even a puzzling influence over many women, which can be described as suggestive and will destroying. When, during the past nineties, this subject was, for once in a way, treated to a public discussion in the periodical “Deutsch-sozialen Blättern”, personal experiences and observations, confirming this influence, poured in from all sides.

Powers are seen to be at work in the background, which one is tempted to call demoniacal, and there is an unnatural sensual stimulation, which apparently robs the victim of her reason.

[Page 258]

The role of “enchanter”, which one otherwise assigns to the female, seems in this case, by some inexplicable means, to be transferred to the opposite sex. And this power must be described as unnatural and disquieting, because the woman, who is accessible to its influence, appears to succumb literally without showing the slightest trace of resistance.

Amongst the communications already mentioned are the following, which have been selected as particularly characteristic. A lady describes what was actually observed on several occasions:

"A somewhat shabby-looking Jew met a respectable middle-class woman. He glances at her, she stops, remains standing as if rooted to the spot, looks round after him and finally follows him.

– Much the same thing happened in another street, where a red-haired Jewish clothes-dealer was standing at the door of his shop. A respectable young female, in fact scarcely more than a school-girl, passes by, and the Jew catches her eye or whispers something to her; she stops suddenly as if shot, and remains before the next shop-window, her gaze fixed on the Jew. It is not long before she follows him into his shop.

An old and ugly Jew called, ostensibly on business, at the house of the young widow of a merchant, who had but recently died. She admitted him again the same evening, and allowed him to spend the night with her. She came from a good family, and was educated and refined; he was a repulsive old fellow, devoid of refinement." –

The lady continues:

"The question arises: are, perhaps, secret Talmudic arts at the bottom of all this? – It is said that many Jews have brought their art to such a pitch that they can, with one glance, cause a female to quiver and tremble just as if she had received an electric shock. – A lady, who had allowed herself to be implicated with a Jew, gave the following account to her family as soon as she had regained her senses: the first time when the man spoke to her, and gazed at her with his penetrating dark eyes, she felt stricken to the core, and from that hour she had been drawn as if by an irresistible force to him, that he had appeared to her in dreams, CL0 esi

Who is going to solve this riddle? Is it the look (perhaps that which the Italians call 'jettatura') or is, perhaps, the extraordinary Talmudic knowledge and experience of life acquainted with secret alterations in relations – with certain mysterious, sympathetic forces?

[Page 259]

Or must we, in these cases also, take into consideration Jewish energy, whereby the Jews have perhaps learnt how to dominate the mind of the female?"

As a matter of fact, in such cases as these, one is confronted with something obscure and mysterious, which must be made clear at all costs. The great majority of the countless girls and women, who have fallen victims to Jewish seducers, relate afterwards that they were driven towards them, as it were, by some unknown evil power.

Unquestionably many Hebrews utilise hypnotic powers in order to render women submissive to their will. A correspondent, writing from Triest, on the 16th of July 1913, announces:

"The authorities here have just succeeded in arresting a certain Ziffer, who had abducted a 19 year-old girl of noble descent, and daughter of a great silk manufacturer, after he had previously hypnotised her. It is said that, two years before, Ziffer had abducted the wife of a Breslau sugar-refiner by employing similar methods."

Further, one read in the Berlin papers of July 20th 1913:

"The tragic fate of a young girl, who had been robbed by a marriage swindler of all her savings, and who had committed suicide in her despair, was revealed yesterday in the course of a case, which came up for hearing before the 2nd Vacation Criminal Chamber of the Provincial Court of Justice. As the result of the enquiry, the fitter Frederick Ziffer was brought up on a charge of fraud. In April of the same year, the accused had made the acquaintance of the single woman, Johanna Simon, who had arrived in Berlin from her home a few days before, in order to take a situation as companion. Ziffer represented himself to the girl as an engineer, and promised, after a short acquaintanceship, to take her to South America and to marry her there, describing to her at the same time in glowing colours, the delightful life which would be their lot. As the girl, who was a strict Catholic, had once stated, that she would not marry out of her faith, the accused, who was a Jew, pretended to be a Catholic also, and carried his hypocrisy so far, that he raised his hat ostentatiously every time when he passed a Catholic place of worship in the company of the girl. By all kinds of pretexts, he succeeded in inducing the inexperienced girl to part, by degrees, with her entire savings. When he had extorted the last farthing from her, and had, in addition, brought her to physical ruin, he let fall his mask, and became brutal and callous. After the victim had given notice to the police, it came out that the accused had already deceived and robbed another girl in a similar way. – The Court, with regard to the proved bad character of the accused, sentenced him to ten months' imprisonment. – The next day, the girl, who had gone to Hamburg, committed suicide in despair at her ruined life.

[Page 260]

On appealing against his sentence, the accused had the incredible impudence to maintain that it was grief at his punishment, which had driven the girl to take her life. In spite of this, the Court actually reduced the sentence! The final judgment was six months and two weeks imprisonment."

This is one example of thousands. – It was the custom, in the "dark Middle-Ages'', to safeguard the community against the repetition of a similar crime, by hanging the scoundrel out of hand. The occasional outbursts of outraged national feeling at Jewish misdeeds have been most erroneously described in our falsified historical records as "Jew-baitings''. For his "servitude" under German law, Ehren-Ziffer will know full well how to satisfy his "typical, primitive Jewish pain" by taking further revenge on the female section of the blonde race as soon as his mild punishment is completed. – And the men of the "blonde race?" Are they too "tolerant" and too "refined" to be any longer aware that the honour of the blonde women is also their own honour? – Just as in the case of Ziffer, one is also inclined to assume the presence of some hypnotic power, when one observes how even old and ugly Jews render young females docile and submissive to their desires. Many a story could be told, in this respect, by the small rooms behind the actual shops, into which Jewish dealers know how to entice pretty customers during the slack business hours, usually under the pretext of showing them some exceptionally attractive patterns or garments.

Feminine curiosity can seldom resist an invitation of this kind, and the Jew then has it in his power to create such compromising situations – for instance, by a further invitation to try the garments on – that the feminine nature proves too weak to resist any familiarity.

'A respectable young woman, who had been enticed, in the way described above, into a small room leading out of the shop, became absorbed in the examination of some particularly beautiful patterns: hearing a peculiar rustling sound behind her,

she turned sharply round and saw – the Jewish shop-keeper standing completely naked before her. With a cry of horror, she rushed out of the shop.'

[Page 261]

But even if one is not willing to accept the theory of hypnotic influence, the weakness of women, when confronted with Jews, can be reasonably accounted for by other facts. Already in their own ancient writings, in The Old Testament and in The Talmud, the Israelites are described as a voluptuous and lewd people, who were addicted to the grossest sensual excesses. Lust and desire stand written on the faces of the Hebrews, and this is not without effect upon weak people of the opposite sex. But, above all, it is the complete absence of the sense of shame, which makes the Jew so dangerous to women, and which makes the game so much easier for him to play. The Rabbinical writings bear ample testimony as to the complete absence of all sexual shame amongst the Hebrews, by relating, unabashed, the most intimate affairs, and always in a manner as if the most harmless and ordinary topics were being discussed.

A particularly significant example, taken from the book of Benakhot 61a relates as follows:

"Kohana, as a youth, was the pupil of the wise Rabbi Rabhs. Observing one day that his master was engaged with a young and strange girl, he concealed himself under his – the Rabbi's – bed. The Rabbi and his female companion came in, and laid themselves down, chatting and laughing... ."

When the woman began to utter cries of pain, Kohana called out from under the bed, making use of a Talmudic phrase:

"It looks as if the mouth of Abbas had never yet tasted food." He intimated, of course, that the woman was still a virgin. The Rabbi answered: "Are you here, Kohana? Go away, it is not proper." But Kohana replied: "It is only for the purpose of acquiring knowledge, Master; I want to learn from you in all particulars."

That the pious books of the Jews consider such muck as this as fit for narration, is sufficient comment on the Jewish perception of morality and decency.

Hampered in no way whatever by ethical considerations, the Hebrew carries his lustfulness openly for all to see, and thus discovers and arouses latent, kindred feelings in the opposite sex. The nature of woman is adaptable; it acquiesces involuntarily and unconsciously in the actual feeling and way of thinking of the man, with whom she comes into immediate contact, and for whom she feels sympathy.

[Page 262]

In proximity, to a noble-natured man, a woman will also preserve and uphold all her innate dignity and distinction; but, brought into close contact with a low voluptuary, she is just as much in danger of sinking to his level. Now the Jew has a peculiar knack of speaking of sexual matters, as if these were perfectly harmless and ordinary topics of conversation, and in this way he contrives to lull, or even deaden a woman's natural sense of shame. In the vicinity of the Jew, feminine sensibility sinks to the lowest plane; one may even go so far as to say that each Jew transforms the women around him into prostitutes.

As he regards them merely as instruments for gratifying his lust, they, for their part, accept his appraisal of them, and no longer feel acutely that this appeal to their animal instincts is a gross affront, or, at any rate, do not resent it to anything like the same extent, which they would, if it were made by other men.

The late Professor of Natural Philosophy at Leipzig – J. K. F. Zollner, who died in 1882, has preserved for us in a small brochure, the various tricks and frauds of the Jewish swindler, Glattstern. Some of these are worth repeating in the form of a contribution to this chapter.

Glattstern, an indigent Polish-Jew student, who, in addition was half blind, had somehow managed to gain a footing in the best Leipzig families, and to associate on the most intimate terms with the daughters of the same. He represented himself everywhere as a well-to-do man, and procured the means for playing the part, on the one hand by patent-swindles, on the other by instituting collections at the best social functions, ostensibly for charitable purposes, but in reality for his own pocket. He employed a trick, the main feature of which was to start a subscription by laying a bank-note for a large amount on the collecting salver, an example which prompted others to give lavishly; he then embezzled the proceeds. When he was sentenced by the General Court of Justice at Leipzig to six years imprisonment, he left the daughters of several wealthy families with the best prospects of becoming mothers.

Influential people must indeed have interceded on his behalf for, strange to say, he was pardoned after the expiration of two and a half years.

[Page 263]

Amongst the especial exploits of this dissolute rogue must be included the following: he had provided a poor woman, whose husband acted at the same time as his private secretary, with the means to fit up and stock a small shop, in order to carry on a business in selling and repairing washing-garments. The main responsibility of the woman, however, was the engaging and employing of a number of young seamstresses and female apprentices, who worked in a small room, which was lighted by a sky-light, and which led out of the shop. Glattstern was accustomed to come, whenever he liked, whether in the daytime or in the evening, to send away the owner of the business on some pretext, and then to lie down with one of the girls on the sofa – in the presence of the others. After this had been witnessed several times through the glass roof by the neighbours, notice was given to the police, who then interfered.

This is not the only case, of which I have been personally informed, where Jews have satisfied their lust in the presence of other women and girls. And, strange as it may sound – each of those present, standing under the ban of this shamelessness, had accepted the occurrence as inevitable, and kept silent also concerning it, so long as particular circumstances did not lead to a discovery. Just as the mere glance of the snake is said to have the power of paralysing a bird with horror, so does the behaviour of the Jew appear to effect a complete paralysis of the senses in the case of the weaker minded females, and to blast them as it were with a curse, from which there is no escape.

Women of character and noble-mindedness, on the contrary, feel an unconquerable aversion towards the Jews and all that is Jewish, and, thanks to their fine instinct, they are conscious of the repulsiveness of the Jewish nature even when it escapes the eye of an observant man. On the other hand, weak and vain women succumb to the influence of the Jew as if bereft of will-power. In this case, it looks as if the conditions, governing the mixing of races, were playing a part. A being, who is racially clean and true to type, is keenly alive to the alienism and enmity of the Jewish nature, and avoids the destroyer either consciously or instinctively. In the case of the mongrel or mixed breed, however, all these fine instincts, as far as one can see, are extinguished, and, incapable of resistance, it becomes the victim of the enticer.

[Page 264]

One can, if one chooses, discover a higher purpose at the back of these events. And that is, that the Jew has been sent, as it were, amongst mankind, in order to help to destroy and obliterate all who are feeble in their vital instincts, that is to say, all who are degenerate and of little value. An explanation on these lines might afford some consolation, if it were not a fact that it is precisely the most pronounced Germanic type of woman, which is most eagerly pursued by the Jew, and which eventually succumbs. As the Jew represents, in all respects, the exact opposite of the Germanic man or woman, he does so in this particular respect as well, and it is just the sexual contrast of both races, which seems to operate bafflingly and fatally.

At any rate, one can derive from the above considerations the firm conviction that if the Germanic and Jewish races are to live lastingly in close contact with one another, it spells doom for the former, and must lead inevitably to the decay and disappearance of Germanic ethics and racial characteristics.

Amongst the various methods of seduction, which the Jewish girl-hunter is wont to employ, preferably as a last resource, when he sees that he will not otherwise attain his object, is that of "betrothal" or "engagement". It is simply incredible how infatuatingly the prospect of the "ring on the finger" operates on the disposition of simple and innocent women. But what power this method can exert, is known only too well to the Jewish snarer.

Two commercial travellers – a German and a Jew – were gossiping in an inn about another hotel in G. . . and doubtless considered that no one overheard them.

"I recollect", remarked the Jew, "that I once went there years ago. Quite an interesting incident was the cause of this. I had 'picked up an extremely pretty girl in the course of my railway journey. She was scarcely more than a school-girl. After a time she became very confiding in me, and we became engaged..."
"Engaged?" asked the other astounded. "Well, yes, what one calls engaged", continued the Jew, in a tone of amused indifference.

[Page 265]

"T gave her a ring – I always carry several cheap little rings with me for this purpose. I then persuaded her to get out with me at the station atG... by telling her that we must solemnise our betrothal!" concluded the Jew, laughing, "and we then spent the night together in the hotel we have just been speaking of." "And what was the end of it all?" asked the other. "God only knows," replied the Jew, in his nasal, indifferent tone of voice, "she continued her journey the next morning. It is a pity, for she was a nice, little thing... ."

The Jew also does not hesitate to promise marriage, if it is necessary to make a formal promise in order to gain his purpose; he knows that, in any case, the matter cannot affect him seriously. As soon as he wishes to get rid of the girl, all that he has to do, is to acknowledge himself a Jew, and to declare with feigned distress, that all his relations are bitterly opposed to his marriage with a Christian. Under the supposition that the relations of the girl also, would refuse, in all probability, to hear of her union with a Jew, he plays the rôle of a man, afflicted with misfortune, and parts from the woman, whom he has deceived, assuring her that he will never forget, for the rest of his life, his one true love affair– only to begin the same game with another woman the next day. German girls, for the most part, are confiding and naive enough to accept such miserable subterfuge as something genuine, frequently even to defend the impostor against the accusations of others, and actually to bear in their minds an affectionate remembrance of him.

That section of the German Press, which occupies itself especially with social matters, remarked, after describing a number of cases of this kind:

"Ts any law-suit of a disgraceful nature ever heard of in any law-court throughout the whole, wide world, without Jews being either directly or indirectly involved in the same, whether as seducer, keeper, inciter or in some such unsavoury capacity? Wherever it may be – we always find that it is the Jew, who is the most daring seducer, and to whom no one's virtue, no one's beauty, no one's honour is sacred, when it is a question of the gratification of his lust. One is even inclined to believe that it is not merely sensuality, which impels him to this, but that he experiences a devilish and malignant joy in undermining moral feminality, and in dishonouring those, who would otherwise have been the respected wives of German men.

[Page 266]

Shameless as he is by nature, he makes use of the circumstance that desire awakens desire, especially when it is displayed, brazen facedly – without the slightest trace of shame – for all to see. In sexual life, the animal appeals to the animal; and it is precisely in this respect where the lowest and most animal nature finds the best opportunity to display its power. Therefore, there is nothing to be astonished at in the fact that an animal-desire, proclaimed without the slightest restraint, must make an irresistible impression upon a weak and impressionable nature.

And there is still another psychological factor, which cannot be left out of account; an absolute lack of shame, which is openly advertised, deadens the sense of shame in others, and arouses shamelessness. One thing is quite certain, and that is, that one feels far less shame in the presence of the Jew, than in the presence of any other man. Why do the peasant, the mechanic, yes, even the land-owner, the officer, and – the clergyman, when they get into money difficulties, apply to a Jew rather than to a friend, a bank or a loan-office? – “One does not feel ashamed in the presence of a Jew!” This frequently heard phrase solves many riddles. And, as a matter of fact, one has many a transaction with the Jew, which one would anxiously conceal from the eyes and ears of other men, one does not feel ashamed in the presence of the Jew because the Jew does not know what shame is.

And to this cause also must be attributed the extraordinary faculty for bribery, possessed by the Jews. “Moral Nihilism”’, i.e., the renunciation of any higher standards than those of money and enjoyment, is proclaimed with such imperturbable assurance by the Jew, that he is able – at any rate for the time being – to degrade the sentiments of others to his own low level.

This forms the base for the fearfully corruptive force exerted by the Jew, also with respect to feminality. The Jew allows no other feeling to come to the surface in his vicinity than a lust for enjoyment and profit. Is it then essential that he should possess any particular or especial power for this purpose? By no means! Wherever the lowest and crudest instincts appear unrestrained, it is impossible for anything, higher and more refined, to hold its own. The erroneous doctrine of the victory of what is better, in the "free interplay of forces'', leads in reality, step by step, to an absurdity.

Furthermore, it is extremely useful to the Jews that the superstition concerning the particularity and preferableness of the "People of God" is inculcated into us from childhood upwards, and it is precisely the female disposition, which clings more tenaciously to all superstition than the sober sensibility of the man. And, in addition to this, our women are given an entirely wrong idea of what constitutes the ideal man.

[Page 267]

On the stage, the role of the lover is played, for the most part, by Jewish youths; in our romantic literature, which is now completely Judaized, the hero of the story is almost always a Jew, while the role of the duffer, the dupe, of the altruistic seeker for the ideal is assigned to the German. Is it to be wondered at then, it the misguided taste and bewildered fancy of our young girls see, in every half-grown black-headed Jew-boy, the hero of a romance, and are 'enchanted' by his appearance? The general German folly, which makes a special point of admiring everything which is un-German and alien, also plays its part. We have, as a matter of fact, for decades encouraged a culture of what is oriental in the higher branches of literature, in the ladies' journals and fashion-papers, in Art..."

It is, however, not only the honour and moral purity of German women, which are at stake; their physical health is likewise endangered. Whether it is that the peculiar nature of the Jew exhausts the female body to an unusual degree, or whether it is that physiological circumstances, connected with the act of circumcision, play some part – it is sufficient to state the fact, that women, who have been accustomed to have sexual intercourse with Jews, suffer from a variety of uterine disorders, and remain barren. Yes, one can go so far as to say: women, who have been accustomed to sexual intercourse with Jews, are lost to the other race. And, if enquiry is being made at the present moment to find out the causes of the decline in the birth-rate, there ought to be no delay in directing attention to the influence of this racial alien in our midst, who ruins the women, not only morally but physically, and who threatens, together with the widely-spread efforts to check conception, to become always more and more injurious to the community.

And it is not difficult to conclude from all this, that the Jewish race is the principal carrier of sexual disease amongst the other nations, which could not very well be otherwise, considering how unbridled their sensuality is. And even when he is afflicted with an infectious disorder, the Jew will still not place any restraint on his lust. One recalls the disclosures of young Jews, according to which, a fiendish kind of rapture is experienced by them in seducing – in spite of their diseased condition – what is, in all probability, still an innocent girl.

[Page 268]

A terrible picture of such devilish cynicism was revealed in the course of a judicial proceeding in February 1904.

The trader, Julius Klippstein, married man and proprietor of a money lending business, which he carried on under the name of Jacob Weg, was brought up before a jury in the Law Courts at Munich. He was charged with perjury, and with incitement to perjury. Klippstein had attempted to induce the wife of a postman, who was under examination, on account of some other misdemeanour, and was one of his customers, to deny on oath the fact that Klippstein was, in the course of his business, in the habit of having immoral relations with her. Klippstein denied the fact. The woman, however, confessed eventually, in spite of the present of money, which had been promised to her. The examination of Klippstein now brought to light, that it was a regular part of the daily proceedings for him to make immodest proposals to the female customers. The State Attorney had found out no less than 35 women and girls, who had come to their ruin through Klippstein. They all appeared in court as witnesses. Their joint evidence furnished the material for a terrible history; some cases were little removed from rape. Klippstein proceeded to sell up the goods and chattels of certain women who resisted his advances. He only postponed execution, and granted a longer period for payment, when the women yielded to his wishes. These unfortunate beings consisted, for the most part, of the wives and daughters of workmen and small officials. As a consequence of his licentious mode of living, Klippstein suffered continuously from a revolting disorder, which he communicated, moreover, to the victims of his lust. His wife had been infected by him, and had had to undergo a severe operation; the cook in his own household, with whom he also had relations, suffered from the same disorder – and the same was the case with his seventeen year-old son, who had taken his father as a pattern. – Klippstein was sentenced to 1-1/3 years (!) imprisonment.

The social democratic “Miinchener Post”, one of the few papers, which published this unheard-of history, as a public warning, stated also:

"During the retirement of the jury, the accused was busily muttering Hebrew prayers in his cell."

Various divorce proceedings are the further consequence of this case.
– The "Deutsche Handels-Wacht" had also something to report concerning the personality of the accused:

"Julius Klippstein had already been arrested and detained on a charge of rape, in his former domicile, Giessen, but had managed to secure an acquittal. After moving to Munich, he had carried on his business, scarcely for a year, when he entered into an 'arrangement' with his creditors, whereby the latter incurred a loss of 25,000 marks, and he then embarked on a fresh career of debauchery, which simply beggared description. 'If you are nice to me', he was wont to say to his female employees, 'you will have a good time; but if not, I will make your life a hell.

999

[Page 269]

"A girl, employed at the counter, who had energetically resisted his advances, and had, on that account, been disgracefully abused by Klippstein, complained to the book-keeper of the business, who told him, straight to his face, that he ought to be locked up. This, however, did not trouble that man of honour in the least. His customers, both girls and women, were assailed in the same way as the servants of his household and the employees in his business, and he compelled many of them, as mentioned above, to yield to his wishes, by threatening to seize and sell up the last of their belongings. Some things, which happened, cannot even be hinted at."

The paper adds:

"Naturally we shall at once be accused of unfairly suggesting that what is an isolated incident, is of general occurrence, but we feel ourselves compelled to say that the case of Klippstein is more or less typical of certain kinds of business."

At the same time the "Hammer" made the following remarks:

"It would be mock modesty to forbid the public examination and discussion of such disquieting excrescences as these. A danger lurks in the gloom of concealment, the effects of which are inconceivable as regards their range and extent. Anyone, who has affection for his nation, must open his nation's eyes to such horrors. The great, public press has taken no notice whatever of these unheard-of occurrences – not even that section, which is fond of stepping to the front as the special guardian of the national morality and rights, and which otherwise makes a huge fuss over every trifling scandal. A remarkable confusion of moral conceptions dominates our dear public. When some rough words are spoken to a few recruits, and an exceptional blockhead amongst them happens to get a smack on the head, all the newspapers work themselves up into a state of fury, and inflame public opinion for weeks with the 'incident', and the Reichstag occupies session after session with the discussion of like occurrences. But when it is a question of criminal acts of the basest description, and the honour and health of numerous women and girls are at stake, everything is enveloped in silence. Why did not Herr Bebel, who is so ready to play the part of a censor of morality in his book 'The Woman', discharge some of his moral wrath in this particular direction? – Are not the majority of the victims the wives and daughters of workmen and minor officials ? – We should much like to have an answer to these questions."

[Page 270]

The traffic in girls.

The Hebrew has made almost a principle of degrading woman, both in illustration and text, as well as in speech and in action. He dominates the stage – and now the cinema as well – with his insolent lasciviousness; the shops, where the most shameless books and pictures are sold, are kept by Jews (mostly under a Christian pseudonym), who are also purveyors of the worst kind of appliances for preventing conception and procuring abortion. So it is scarcely to be wondered at that the profoundest disregard for mankind in general, and more especially for young unmarried women, as well as the degradation of commerce to its lowest conceivable plane, should proceed from the Jew. We refer to what is known as the "White Slave Traffic", and in particular to the traffic in young girls. It denotes the most infamous degeneration of the business instinct: trade in living human flesh, sale of souls for the sake of foul profit. It was reserved for Hebrewdom to develop this vile business, systematically and on a grand scale, until it grew into a vast organisation, which embraces half the world.

In olden times the slave trade was already a Jewish speciality. Not without good reason did the eminent Polish painter Henryk Siemiradzki depict the two slave-dealers, in his celebrated picture of ancient Roman life: "Zhe Vase or the Woman'', with unmistakably Hebraic features. Even in the Carlovingian time, the slave trade was preponderantly in the hands of the Jews.* Thus, in conformity with the original state of affairs, the dealers in girls of the present day are, almost without exception, Jews: and this is admitted by the Jews themselves. On the occasion of a conference, which was held in London, during March 1910, protesting against the traffic in women,

"The Jewish Chronicle" of April 2nd 1910, acknowledged that "the Jews in this particular sphere of activity far outnumbered all the other 'dealers'", and added;

"the Jewish trafficker in women is the most terrible of all profiteers out of human vice; if the Jew could only be eliminated, the traffic in women would shrink, and would become comparatively insignificant."

56).

[Page 271]

If avarice and greed for profit occasionally tempt the man of Aryan race to engage in businesses of a doubtful nature, and if his sensuality also calls for many a victim, it is improbable that a man of genuine Aryan race has ever descended to such cold-blooded commercialism and malicious subtlety as is required to carry on the "White Slave Traffic"; If such has been the case, it is an instance of moral abortion.* Only by means of the Talmudic perception, which regards all who are not Jews, as beasts (see page 57), and more particularly so the women who are not Jewish, is it possible to find an explanation for the cold-blooded behaviour of the Hebrews towards women, whom they treat as if the latter were articles of merchandise. And, one is justified in asserting that the extent to which the Jew avails himself of cold calculation and cunning dissimulation, in order to entice young and unsuspecting girls into his trap, for the most part either by betrothing himself to them, or by promising them marriage or a good situation in order to induce them to run away from their parents' home, and then, after "his passion has lost its novel force", handing them over like ordinary merchandise to another, and surrendering them, beyond redemption, to ruin – would be practically impossible to parallel in the case of any man of Aryan descent (Compare the case of Ziffer on page 260).

As a Jew is always ready for the purpose, when it is a question of screening the pernicious activity of the Jew, so it is in this particular case also. All the exertions of "charitable women" and "social workers" on behalf of the miserable victims of the "White Slave Traffic" are rendered, for all practical purposes, null and void from the beginning, by the fact that Jews place themselves at the head of these organisations.

* One does not allow one's self to be misled into regarding an unmitigated Hebrew as not being a Jew, merely because his name has a very genuine German sound. In the publication of the names of malefactors also, the Press is deceit itself. Every day it succeeds in "misprinting" an unmistakably Jewish name so that it assumes the shape of a genuine German one.

[Page 272]

In this way, every genuine investigation is held up.* For it is the aim and object of the Jews, always and everywhere, to weaken, emasculate, or to divert against those who are not Jews, any accusation, which might prejudice a Jew, until the gravest affair fades away into insignificance or is transformed into a comedy.

The literature upon this subject is copious enough to preclude any necessity here, of going into the more intimate details of this sorrowful business. One account alone, taken from actual life, is sufficiently eloquent to reveal all the ignominy of the conditions, and to provide testimony as to the long period throughout which this shameful trade has been carried on.

Otto Glogau's "Kulturkämpfer" (Combatant for Culture) No. 3 of 1880, contains the following description of Rio de Janeiro (from the pen of a former German Consul):

"Could anything well cause us deeper shame, when we visit the wonderful capital of Brazil, than to observe that German and Austrian girls compose one of the largest sections of the local prostitutes?

Whole streets are occupied by them, and from open windows, in the most shameless fashion, they endeavour, in their native tongue, to entice passing men to visit them, and even in the numerous pleasure-resorts of the same city, one is pestered with their importunities.”

* Here is an instance, which is worth mentioning as significant of women’s work in this direction. There is an association in Munich, presided over by Princess Sulkowska, and called “The German League for combating the traffic in women.” The committee includes, in addition to several other titled ladies, three men as well, the publisher of the society’s organ – “The Human Market”, and two Jews – the General Superintendent, D. Possart, and Oscar Tietz, proprietor of a great shop or “stores”. The secretary, who acts also as editor, signs himself Robert Heymann, and makes the third Jew. A printed slip had already been attached to the first number, intimating in a significant manner, that a change in the editorial had become necessary, because the contents of the first number ‘had not been all that was desired.’ Whoever reads the same, will find it incomprehensible, generally speaking, that wishes have been met: it is piquantly dished-up pot-pourri, in which the experienced reader can at once detect the purpose to prevent, at all hazards, any exposure of Jews.

[Page 273]

“The majority of them are very young, and it can be proved that they have not emigrated of their own accord, in order to earn money in a foreign country, in this unclean fashion, but are the unfortunate victims of Jewish procurers and procuresses, who have carried on an undisguised traffic in German girls to Rio for several years.*

At last this assumed such dimensions, and operated so alarmingly upon the already very feeble morality of the Brazilian capital, that the local government was forced finally to interfere, and to order the deportation of the Jewish procurers, who posed, for the most part, as dealers in jewelry and precious metals, but whose principal source of income was the traffic in women.

In Rio de Janeiro, in the month of December, the following persons were “moved on.” Markus Shomer. Moritz Silbermann, Markus Weinbach, Tebel Silbermann, Moses Silberstein, Moritz Eisenberg, Johann Freund, Adolf Bernstein, Tobias Saphir, Hermann Ficheler, Gerson Baum, Markus Schwarz, Hermann Beitel, Markus Freeman, Samuel Auster, Karl Bukowitz and Abraham Robins. – They drove in carriages to the place of embarkation, and engaged first-class cabins on the steamer “Equator”, which was to take them to Buenos Ayres; they were enabled to travel in this style out of the iniquitous profits which they had pocketed in Rio. However, on arrival in Buenos Aires, the unclean company were disagreeably surprised to find that the police had boarded the vessel, and had protested against their landing, in consequence of which action these "uncles" will again make old Europe joyous with their presence.

According to the newspapers of Rio de Janeiro later on, twenty-three Jews, who had been convicted of traffic in girls, were again ordered to leave the country, and simultaneously their unfortunate victims were relieved by the authorities of any obligation with regard to repayment of any pecuniary advances, which had been made to them by the Jews, for the purpose of paying their passages and other inevitable expenses, a measure, which enabled the women to withdraw themselves from the dens of vice, if – which, however, is much to be doubted – public compassion would smooth their future path, and charitable souls would interest themselves in the fallen. – But, praiseworthy as the measures taken by the Brazilian Government undoubtedly are, the evil is far from being extirpated, and will soon break out again in a new form.

* To such an extent is this traffic a Jewish speciality, that the brothel-keepers are officially and openly spoken of as "os caftens",, (Andree: "National History of the Jews", "Volkskunde der Juden" page 253.) In New York matters have reached such a pitch that the brothel-business has been converted into a Trust! At the head of this "Trust" is a Jew called Goldberg (still another "Dutchman"). See "The Hammer" No. 267 (August 1913)

[Page 274]

"Complete suppression is only possible, if the procurers are attacked here in Germany and Austria, where they obtain their supplies. In order to ascertain their names, it would be necessary for the German police to communicate with the authorities at Rio de Janeiro, so that the latter could institute an official examination of the unfortunate creatures, who have become the prey of the vilest form of greed. – But, enough of this miserable business, which compels many of our countrymen in Brasil to blush with shame, and makes it the bounden duty of the German press to call upon the proper authorities to intervene."

The following notice, taken from the "Tagliche Rundschau" of the 24th July 1913, will serve as proof that these conditions, in still more recent times, have not altered but have, if anything, grown worse.

“Abduction of 4,000 girls. The Russian (i.e., Jewish: author) ‘White Slave’ trafficker, Jakubowitsch, who was arrested the day before yesterday in Hamburg, is regarded as the business-principal of the entire trade in women, which is carried on in the east of Europe. Several thousand cases alone have been brought home to him. According to reliable statistics, more than 4,000 girls have been passed through German ports, for this purpose, during several years.”

Although a “League for combating the ‘White Slave traffic’” has been instituted, although severer measures have been ordained by the Government, although every year a few procurers and procuresses are arrested – who are always and exclusively Jews – the hateful business still flourishes, to the shame of “moral” Europe, and as an infamous reminder of the feebleness of will, sickly tolerance, and last, but not least, of the uncontrolled dread of the Jews, which possess the majority of our “cultured” men and women, up to the highest circles, and which sap any collective effort at its inception.*

* “Our consideration for the Jew is carried to an incomprehensible extreme. To realise this, one has only to recall with what precaution and indulgence, everyone concerned, treated the name of a Doctor Sternberg, the Jewish lover of the accused, in the Hedwig Miiller criminal proceeding, which was heard before a jury in the Berlin Courts of Justice in the course of October 1913: counsel for the defence, witnesses, reporters and even the Judge – all united their efforts in this direction. Experienced newspaper-readers know, that for several decades, whenever the names, in a questionable case, are suppressed in any of our papers, Jews are invariably concerned as evil-doers.”

[Page 275]

The power of infatuating the female mind, possessed and exerted by the Jewish commercial competitor, appears, indeed, to verge on the supernatural, and this much must have become clear to the readers of this chapter. It is all the more necessary then, to expose this power, and to warn all people of its dangerous nature.

[Page 276]

XVII.

The Jews and the World-War.

The wars of the Aryan nations have always served to enrich and strengthen Judah. Reference to this fact has been made many times in the course of this book. By usurious behaviour in connection with army-contracts, by financial manoeuvres with various securities, and by raising and depressing the rate of exchange, the Jews have always known how to make profit out of the agony and need of the various nations. The Jewish families, which have become rich, and have been ennobled, are almost always indebted, for their ascension, to war-time profiteering, and in this respect the "Semi-Gotha" contains some interesting disclosures.* The World-War of 1914-1918 also, showed us Hebrewdom in a state of feverish activity. This time, again, they were the most important army-contractors, the most daring manipulators of prices, the most cunning clandestine dealers, formed the most powerful business rings, and absorbed incredible profits. By their behaviour they contributed, to a large extent, to the defeat of the Central Powers; one may even go so far as to say: they have emerged as the real victors from this monstrous war of the nations.

Directly after the outbreak of war, the Hebrews, Rathenau and Ballin, took over the organisation of the economic side of the war – ostensibly in the interests of the nation, but in reality to secure the lion's share of the army-contracts for their racial comrades, and to create almost a Jewish monopoly of the entire trade carried on, not only in Germany itself, but with neutral foreign countries as well.

* Semi-Gotha. Register of ennobled Jewish families, Munich. Kyffhauser Press 1912.

[Page 277]

An industrialist, who visited the Prussian War Ministry in September 1914 in order to tender, pictured to us his amazement when he found installed in this high office, not, as he had expected, officers and military officials, but preponderantly Jews. Herr Walther Rathenau sat in a large room, at an enormous secretarial writing-table, "dispensed" and gave away the army-contracts. Around him were seated, almost without exception, Jewish clerks and Jewish business-people. – Herr Ballin, Director of the "Harpag'", seeing his shipping enterprise temporarily paralysed by the war, offered himself to the Imperial Government as a voluntary organiser and business expert, migrated with his entire staff of officials and clerks to Berlin, and organised the "Zentral-Einkaufs-Gesellschaft" (Z.E.G.) [Central-Purchase-Company], and other Jewish undertakings.

The feeble government under Emperor William II, which had always formerly favoured Jews in all important positions, allowed this to happen, owing to its embarrassment and perplexity; and if, in the course of the war, any fact rose conspicuously to the surface, which, until then, had only been perceptible to those who see deeply, and which even then appeared incredible to German visionaries, it was the fact that since the beginning of William II's reign, the Jews had been the real rulers of the German Empire. For the last fifteen years, those in immediate personal contact with the Kaiser were Hebrew financiers, Hebrew manufacturers, and Hebrew merchants like Emil and Walter Rathenau, Ballin, Schwabach, James Simon, Friedlander-Fuld, Goldberger, Guttman, Hulschinsky, Katzenstein etc.* The old legend that the Kaiser was under the influence of the high nobility and of the Junkers, living east of the Elbe, was only a Jewish ruse to deceive the nation as to the real state of affairs, and to lower the Kaiser himself in the estimation of his people. It is quite true that the Kaiser, for the last decades, has gone mainly to the Jews for advice, who have flattered his weaknesses, and have contributed much to the follies, which led finally to the World-War, and to the collapse of Germany. – The German Nobility were as good as banished from the Berlin Court.

* Compare Rud. Martin: "Deutsche Machthaber" (German Potentates).

[Page 278]

Hymns of praise have been sung to one of the Rathenaus in the press, conducted by his racial brethren, on account of his supposed services in connection with the organisation of the war-time economy, without which it is pretended that the war could never have been carried on. He arranged that he should be designated, behind the front, as "Chief of the Economic General Staff", to whom the German victories were really to be attributed. As a matter of fact, Rathenau created by means of his "War Companies", which exceeded 300, an absurdly complicated apparatus, which disordered and made more difficult the entire economic life throughout the country, and transferred, by a kind of jugglery, all the power and the advantages into the hands of the Jews. I do not hesitate to maintain, and can furnish convincing proof moreover, that Rathenau's "War Companies" contributed, in a large measure, to the defeat of Germany. They did not facilitate the German economic life but, on the contrary, disturbed and interrupted it – for reasons, which are not to be discussed in this work. This particular subject, as well as the general attitude of the Jews, throughout the war, calls for special treatment in a book, devoted to that subject alone, and it is to be hoped that an opportunity to accomplish this will soon present itself.

Here mention is only made of some grave facts, for which valid documentary evidence is forthcoming: the activity of the Z. E. G. as can be proved, has, in many cases, rendered the importing of the necessities of life from abroad more difficult than it was before; and in other cases – a particularly glaring instance is that of the “War-Grain-Department’ (K. G.) –goods have been sent backwards and forwards, from one end of the Empire to the other, time after time, in such an absolutely crazy manner that they have reached the hands of the consumers in a perished condition. Simultaneously the railways were burdened, in an unheard-of manner, beyond their capacity, and the cost of the commodities unnecessarily increased by heavy freight charges.

[Page 279]

What extraordinarily uneconomical business was perpetrated by the buyers of the Z. E. G. in Holland, Denmark and other countries, can be easily ascertained by referring to the numerous and instructive instances given in the “Hammer” publications from 1915 – 1918.* The annual volumes, 1915 – 1919, of the trade paper “Deutscher Miller’ (German Miller) in Leipzig, contain numerous examples of the favouritism shown to the great mills, owned by Jews, and of the crazy transport, backwards and forwards, of grain and flour by the K. G. It would be a great mistake to see in all this merely blunders in organisation and disposition; closer observation discloses that malevolence prevailed.

The attitude of the Hebrews is only comprehensible by attributing it to their deep aversion for all that is German, for the German form of government, and for militarism. Victory was begrudged to the German Empire. It is beyond all doubt that the Jews hate the Germans more than they hate any other nation – simply because German idealism is the natural antithesis to the Jewish Tschandala – disposition. It is quite obvious also, that the majority of Jews sympathised with our enemies, and were on their side, and especially on the side of England. Influential Jewish newspapers, such as the “Frankfurter Zeitung’, “Berliner Tageblatt’, the Vienna “Neue Freie Presse”, and many others also, knew well the whole time how to glorify the Western Power at the expense of the German people, whom they characterised as a horde of reactionaries, and of whom they could never say anything bad enough.

* These were collected and published by the "Hammer" under the title: "Complaints against the Z. E. G." Further, compare "The Z. E. G. and the Jewish Business-Monopoly"', Hammer No. 377 from March 1st 1918.

[Page 280]

It is this kind of newspaper, which, for decades, has carried on a steady campaign with the definite object of rendering everything connected with Germany, despicable in the eyes of foreign countries, by circulating as widely as possible, occasional scandalous incidents, such as the Eulenberg law-suit, various military excesses etc, and, by suggesting that the German Nation was addicted to a revolting vice, has procured for it the equally revolting term of abuse "Boche" – a word, the meaning of which cannot be reproduced in German book-language, for it denotes someone who is addicted to indulgence in unnatural lust (The desire for boys).* The crime, which the Hebrews have committed against the German people by their unheard-of war usury, by their invention of the clandestine and secretly linked-up method of trading, known as "Schieber- und Kettenhandel" (linked-up smuggling), by raising the prices of all the necessities of life, and thereby enriching themselves to an immeasurable extent, can hardly be estimated. All these matters call for a searching investigation at some other time and place.

Here it is only necessary to call attention to the fact that alone in the case of army supplies, a disproportionate increase in prices at once set in, because – in consequence of Jewish influence – direct delivery from the producers was evaded, and the orders were assigned to Jewish commission-merchants, agents and middle-men. It created almost the impression that the people of Judah had made it a condition with the German Government, from the very beginning of the war, that they should receive the lion's share of the army-contracts.

For the cases are too numerous where German contractors, manufacturers, merchants, trade associations, guilds, etc have been "turned down", whilst, later on, Jewish middlemen have secured the contracts at considerably higher prices. In this way, the delivery of important supplies was frequently entrusted to dealers, who were without experience in that particular kind of business, and who had no technical knowledge of the goods required; it sufficed that they were Jews.

The Hebrews were seldom to be found in the trenches, but were more at home in the depots, in the offices, in the garrisons and – in the war-trading-companies. In consequence of the numerous complaints, which were made about this – even in the Reichstag – statistics were taken, notably in December 1915, which, however, have never been published – probably because they would disgrace even Judah.

* It Is quite possible that the expression is derived from the Hebrew word "Bocher'" (boy).

[Page 281]

The revolution, the object of which was certainly not to assist the honest working-class to obtain its fair share of political influence, but rather to enable the Jews to do away with the hated Monarchy and the military organisation, was principally the work of Jews. The Masonic Lodge at Milan (Latin Freemasonry is completely under Semitic direction) announced in a circular, dated July 30th 1914, that the object of the Lodges was, to introduce an age "free from thrones and altars'. That is to say: the overthrow of all princes and the removal of all non-Jewish religions. Jewdom has been working at this task – openly and in secret – for decades. And they have very nearly succeeded in their purpose.

The ill-advised working-class, instigated by the Jews, has allowed itself to be made a tool of, in order to promote interests which are entirely Jewish. The destruction of all national feeling amongst the working-people, and the actual turning-to-contempt of everything German, are the work of a subtle Jewish press campaign. Throughout all the years of war, confidence in an ultimate German victory was steadily sapped by the influence, which the Jewish press exerted upon the public frame of mind, and the attempt was made to lay the entire blame for the war on German shoulders. And the collapse of our front was the result of sheer treachery. A person, who enjoyed the fullest confidence of the "Hammer", reported that a Jewish soldier had declared in July 1918:

"Germany will not be victorious, for we (Jews) will make the revolution before the end of the war comes."

The independent Social Democrat, Vater, admitted at Magdeburg that, since January 1918, his party had carried on propaganda at the front, inciting to desertion and mutiny. – Thus, the German people are indebted for the collapse and the annihilating peace conditions to those malicious forces, which, even in inmost Germany, played into the hands of her enemies outside – favoured by the blindness and trustfulness of the German people themselves.

[Page 282]

It is as if the old prophecy in the cloister Lehnin fulfilled itself:

“Tsrael infandum scelus audet, morte piandum.”

(Israel dares unspeakable crime deserving death).

Concluding Words.

Whoever weighs up all the facts, which have been imparted in the course of this work, will understand how frivolous and superficial those phrases are, which, clothed in the semblance of humaneness and tolerance, speak of an adaptation and blending of the Jews with the Aryan nations of culture. Only fathomless unacquaintance with real life, such as that of Friedrich Nietzsche and other stay-at-homes, can excuse such phantasy.

The entire humanitarian assimilative idea shatters miserably at the first contact with the awful seriousness of racial heredity.

The notion that all contrasts could be balanced, as it were, by men living in closer contact with one another, and by so-called civilisation, rests on a doctrinaire interpretation, which is contradicted, at every moment and at every turn, by the hard facts of actual life. Jewdom is something, which moves and acts beyond the sphere of the natural laws of life, something hostile to life, something unnatural, something demoniacal.

And that doctrine also, which is equipped with a veneer of natural science, that, in the battle of life, what is better and stronger, conquers, is out of place here. A selective combat of this kind is only efficacious and warranted, when beings of kindred stock, provided with the same natural weapons, strive with one another for the mastery. No one will claim that an unrestricted sphere of action should be granted to the bacilli, which cause disease, that one should not oppose devastating pestilences with precautionary measures; no one will contend that the Cholera bacillus is a better and a stronger being than a human being, because the former is able to destroy the latter. This doctrine of a free field for all forces, requires the restraint of reason, for that singular destiny persists, which ordains that diseases work by infection, but that health does not. A single rotten apple in a basket will easily communicate its corruption to a hundred sound ones, but even a thousand sound apples cannot heal a rotten one.

[Page 283]

Here it is a case, not of selective combat and superiority, but of shielding what is healthy against infective illness, of warding off national poison. Intelligence commands that all corrupting and infecting forces must be kept at a distance from healthy life, and must be suppressed by all possible means. To avoid what is poisonous is the first precautionary law of life.

“Find out what is good for your body, and do not give it what is bad for it.”

Jewdom, however, is a symptom of disease within humanity, a fact, which even the Hebrew Heinrich Heine admits, for he calls it,

“the everlasting plague, which has been brought away from the slime of the Nile.”

The Hebrew is the “under-man”, who has passed into a condition of spiritual and moral rottenness, who carries disintegration and corruption with him wherever he is permitted to come. He is himself very well aware of this peculiar property, as the following outburst of the Hebrew, Dr. Miinzer, shows. He has written a novel – “The road to Zion” – which has been suppressed on account of its filthily naturalistic contents. In the course of this book, he makes the hero of his story speak as follows: –

“Not only have we Jews degenerated in this manner, and are at the end of a civilisation which is used up and sucked dry; we have ruined the blood of all races in Europe – perhaps we infected them in the first instance. Generally speaking, everything is under

Jewish influence at the present day. Our ideas animate everything, our spirit dominates the world. We are the masters; for what is power at the present day, is the direct offspring of our genius. However much we are hated, however much we are hunted down and persecuted, our enemies can only triumph over our weak bodies. We are no longer to be expelled. We have eaten into the nations, have tainted and dishonoured the races, have broken their power, and, with our mortiferous culture, have brought staleness and decay into everything."

Minzer tries also, in the usual way, to represent the war of annihilation, which the Jews wage against humanity, as a justified act of revenge, because of the pretext that the Jew has been unjustly despised and persecuted.

[Page 284]

He portrays the Jew as being insulted and spurned with the foot: he continues to portray him as ducking, dodging and twisting; and then adds in the same strain: –

"But, at the back of all glows triumph at the surreptitious victory. The world had been Judaized, and had decomposed into the Jewish mode of thinking and into Jewish vice. That was revenge!"

"The surreptitious victory!' The word describes the situation – involuntarily. Only by surreptitious falsehood and deceit has the Hebrew attained to his power. But surreptitious victory is no victory – just as little as the success of a thief is a proof of his power and superiority. Whoever, as guest in house, abuses the trust placed in him, and robs his host, has not thereby gained a victory, but has, on the contrary, committed an act of villainy. The Jewish "victory" is a parallel case. Now, it seems to us, that the triumph is somewhat precipitate. It is certainly true that the dull masses in civilised countries have been infected, both with the Jewish mode of thinking and with the poisonous blood bacillus of the Hebrew, and, before all, that certain higher classes of our society, who, devoid of instinct, have coquetted and fraternised to such an extent with the destroyer of nations, that they have fallen victims to the corruption, and are beyond rescue; but a sound core still lives in our nation, which, up till now, the foreign poison has been unable to get hold of. And, even if a tremendous collapse is impending over the imbecile masses, who have been Judaized both in body and soul – over those masses who crowd together in the great cities – our nationality will grow young again, and renew itself out of the unspoilt reserves, who live on the land.

It is to be hoped that the standard will be adopted, which the excellent Lagarde speaks about in his "German Writings":

"Every Jew who is burdensome to us, is a serious reproach to the genuineness and veracity of our life. – Germany must be German, and be full of Germans, full of itself like an egg .. . then there will be no room for Palestine.”

It is perfectly true: the nations of antiquity have collapsed under racial degeneration and Judaisation, without any correct foreboding of what was gradually happening to them.

[Page 285]

We, however, have learned from history, and have discovered the source of racial destruction. Now, for the first time, the Jew is being unmasked and recognised for exactly what he is, and now, for the first time, the secret of Jewdom is being pitilessly unveiled. For many decades, intelligent men have been on the look-out, carefully observing every movement of this enemy. They have seen completely through him, have calculated in advance what his next moves will be, and have begun, as quietly and unobtrusively as possible, to protect the most important positions against destruction; no one now has the power to arrest collapse of our miry surface-culture, collapse of that structure of fraud, erected by Jewish speculation, collapse even of the Judaized system of government;* but one may well hope that the unspoilt elements will escape in an ark, as it were, from the deluge, and will land, after it has subsided, on a purified soil, to build up a new and better life – in a German world, free from Jews.

Leipzig, August 1922.

The contents of the present book have not been altered since the second edition in 1913. In the meantime the movement, directed against Jewdom has developed to an undreamt-of extent, and important political and economic events have taken place, which would possibly make it advisable that an amplification of the statements, made in this book, should be published. At present, this has not been done – chiefly on account of the unusual expense. The text of the book is cast in plates; alterations in the same would necessitate a complete resetting of the type. This would be bound to increase the price of the book considerably.

* These words were written in the year 1913, and have since proved themselves true.

[Page 286]

But there is, however, no urgent need for such a supplement. Whatever has been set down here, in the separate chapters, as characteristic of the Jew, still retains its validity. It has not been refuted by more recent events, but, on the contrary, has been confirmed in all that is essential. Moreover a new and extensive literature has come into being, which supplements in welcome fashion what is given here. (A list of such works is appended).

The most remarkable literary event in this particular domain is the appearance of a book, written by the American, Henry Ford, the great and widely known motor-car manufacturer and winner of the Nobel prize. The title of this work is: "The international Jew – The World's foremost Problem." Millions of copies of this book are dispersed throughout English-speaking countries, and there is also a strong demand for the German edition.

The discriminating and careful manner, in which the author introduces the American public to this question, which is entirely novel to it, is masterly and works irresistibly. In particular, the accounts in the second volume present an engrossing picture of the machinations of Jewish High Finance during the World War, which latter stands revealed as the indubitable work of the Jewish "Golden International."

The discovery of the so-called "Protocols of Zion," which in truth represent the programme of political action of the secret confederations of the Jews, is of further great importance. The Jewish plans, which are revealed therein, display such demoniacal malice that the uninitiated reader might well believe them to be a fabrication. Jewdom is straining every nerve to refute the genuineness of these "protocols"; what, however, speaks most strongly for their authenticity, is the circumstance, that not only during the war, but that even now, Jewdom acts, in unmistakable fashion, in full accordance with the programme laid down. (The essential points in these "Protocols" are also repeated in Ford's book.)

At the present moment, Jewdom is endeavouring, by means of the Government organs at its disposal, to stifle the ever swelling anti-Jewish movement:* it hopes, principally by means of an artificial and disproportionate increase of prices on the paper-market,

* Numerous patriotic and German-national associations have been dissolved and forbidden.

[Page 287]

to render impossible any further publication of those books, periodicals and newspapers, which are hostile to the Jews (the paper trade lies under the dictatorship of Hartmann, a Hungarian Hebrew, who lives in Germany); all this, however, cannot prevent the spark of perception, which has fallen into the national soul, from continuing to glimmer, and from bursting, one day, into a clear flame. Already, far down into the working-class, insight is dawning that the pernicious effects of the degenerate capitalist-system can be referred mainly to Jewish machinations, and that it is precisely from that quarter that the greatest danger threatens the freedom of the nations. The awful events in Russia have made it clear to every one what Jewish tyranny means.

The movement against the predomination of Jewdom is no longer confined to Germany: it has taken root in all civilised lands. Anti-Jewish periodicals and books are being published in England, France and the United States, and also in Poland, Hungary and Sweden, and a "White International", a league of all honourable nations to break a way for the departure of Jewdom, is now in the process of formation.

Peace and quietness will not return to humanity until the enemy of humanity has been completely unmasked, and has been warned to keep within his own boundaries. We are, however, on the right road to accomplish this.

[Page 288]

Errata.

Page 21

Page 33.

Page 34

Page 42

Page 43.

Page 46.

. Line 6 from above: Read "went" instead of "wet".
,, 20 ,,,, Chawrusse" instead of "Shawrusse"'.
.

. Title , , , "Slaughtering" instead of "Slaughtering".
. Line 7 from below: , , "don't" instead of "dont"'.
.

» 17,,,,, after "honour":  instead of *.

»9,,5, that' instead of "the"'.
.

Page 47. 9 and 18 , , , "Chawrusse" instead of "Shawrusse"'.
.

Page 48.

Page 49.

Page 53

Page 57.

» 1,,,,, Of instead of "'o".
55 9555, one's self' instead of "'oneself'".
.,, 8 above , , "amiability" instead of "aimiability".
.

», 12,,,,, -Jalkut Rubeni" instead of "Falkut Rubenv".
.

Page 114. , , 10 below , , "are" instead of "'is"'.
.

Page 153. , , 6 above , , "commercial" instead of "commercia"'.
.

Page 153.,, 16,,,,, "grievously" instead of "grievously".
.

Page 212. , , 5 below , , "the" instead of "this".
.

Page 217.,, | above ,, “in their case, a means ...”

Page 237. ,, 2 below ,, “head” instead of “ead”’.

Page 242.,,8,,, “ferreting-out” instead of “ferreting, ,, out”.

Page 266. ,, 10,,, “of” should be omitted.

This is a reproduction of a library book that was digitized by Google as part of an ongoing effort to preserve the information in books and make it universally accessible.

GoogleTM books

<https://books.google.com>

Über dieses Buch

Dies ist ein digitales Exemplar eines Buches, das seit Generationen in den Regalen der Bibliotheken aufbewahrt wurde, bevor es von Google im Rahmen eines Projekts, mit dem die Bücher dieser Welt online verfügbar gemacht werden sollen, sorgfältig gescannt wurde.

Das Buch hat das Urheberrecht überdauert und kann nun öffentlich zugänglich gemacht werden. Ein öffentlich zugängliches Buch ist ein Buch, das niemals Urheberrechten unterlag oder bei dem die Schutzfrist des Urheberrechts abgelaufen ist. Ob ein Buch öffentlich zugänglich ist, kann von Land zu Land unterschiedlich sein. Öffentlich zugängliche Bücher sind unser Tor zur Vergangenheit und stellen ein geschichtliches, kulturelles und wissenschaftliches Vermögen dar, das häufig nur schwierig zu entdecken ist.

Gebrauchsspuren, Anmerkungen und andere Randbemerkungen, die im Originalband enthalten sind, finden sich auch in dieser Datei – eine Erinnerung an die lange Reise, die das Buch vom Verleger zu einer Bibliothek und weiter zu Ihnen hinter sich gebracht hat.

Nutzungsrichtlinien

Google ist stolz, mit Bibliotheken in partnerschaftlicher Zusammenarbeit öffentlich zugängliches Material zu digitalisieren und einer breiten Masse zugänglich zu machen. Öffentlich zugängliche Bücher gehören der Öffentlichkeit, und wir sind nur ihre Hüter. Nichtsdestotrotz ist diese Arbeit kostspielig. Um diese Ressource weiterhin zur Verfügung stellen zu können, haben wir Schritte unternommen, um den Missbrauch durch kommerzielle Parteien zu verhindern. Dazu gehören technische Einschränkungen für automatisierte Abfragen.

Wir bitten Sie um Einhaltung folgender Richtlinien:

- + Nutzung der Dateien zu nichtkommerziellen Zwecken Wir haben Google Buchsuche für Endanwender konzipiert und möchten, dass Sie diese Dateien nur für persönliche, nichtkommerzielle Zwecke verwenden.
- + Keine automatisierten Abfragen Senden Sie keine automatisierten Abfragen irgendwelcher Art an das Google-System. Wenn Sie Recherchen über maschinelle Übersetzung, optische Zeichenerkennung oder andere Bereiche durchführen, in denen der Zugang zu Text in großen Mengen nützlich ist, wenden Sie sich bitte an uns. Wir fördern die Nutzung des öffentlich zugänglichen Materials für diese Zwecke und können Ihnen unter Umständen helfen.
- + Beibehaltung von Google-Markenelementen Das "Wasserzeichen" von Google, das Sie in jeder Datei finden, ist wichtig zur Information über dieses Projekt und hilft den Anwendern weiteres Material über Google Buchsuche zu finden. Bitte entfernen Sie das Wasserzeichen nicht.
- + Bewegen Sie sich innerhalb der Legalität Unabhängig von Ihrem Verwendungszweck müssen Sie sich Ihrer Verantwortung bewusst sein, sicherzustellen, dass Ihre Nutzung legal ist. Gehen Sie nicht davon aus, dass ein Buch, das nach unserem Dafürhalten für Nutzer in den USA öffentlich zugänglich ist, auch für Nutzer in anderen Ländern öffentlich zugänglich ist. Ob ein Buch noch dem Urheberrecht unterliegt, ist von Land zu Land verschieden. Wir können keine Beratung leisten, ob eine bestimmte Nutzung eines bestimmten Buches gesetzlich zulässig ist. Gehen Sie nicht davon aus, dass das Erscheinen eines Buchs in Google Buchsuche bedeutet, dass es in jeder Form und überall auf der Welt verwendet werden kann. Eine Urheberrechtsverletzung kann schwerwiegende Folgen haben.

Über Google Buchsuche

Das Ziel von Google besteht darin, die weltweiten Informationen zu organisieren und allgemein nutzbar und zugänglich zu machen. Google Buchsuche hilft Lesern dabei, die Bücher dieser Welt zu entdecken, und unterstützt Autoren und Verleger dabei, neue Zielgruppen zu erreichen. Den gesamten Buchtext können Sie im Internet unter <http://books.google.com> durchsuchen.

erc.

2

4

au

brindel

Merc.

323 d
(1)

Xerokopieren aus konservatorischen Gründen nicht erlaubt
Nur im Lesesaal benutzbar

30. 08. 1991

<36607726040015

<36607726040015

Bayer. Staatsbibliothek

(1.)

Der Börsen- und Gründungs-Schwindel in Berlin.

Gesammelte und stark vermehrte Artikel der „Caricaturisten“.

Von

Otto Glagau.

„Wer die Wahrheit liebt, der muss
Schon sein Pferd am Zügel haben –
Wer die Wahrheit denkt, der muss
Schon den Fuss im Bügel haben –
Wer die Wahrheit spricht, der muss
Statt der Arme Flügel haben!
Und doch singt Mirza-Schaffy:
Wer da lügt, muss Prügel haben.“

Vierte, revidirte Auflage.

Leipzig,
Verlag von Paul Froberg.
1876.

Preis 5 Mark.

Der
Börsen- und Gründungsschwindel
in Berlin.

Der Börsen- und Gründungs-Schwindel in Berlin.

Gesammelte und stark vermehrte Artikel der „Gartenlaube“.

Von

Otto Glagau.

„Wer die Wahrheit liebt, der muss
Schon sein Pferd am Zügel haben –
Wer die Wahrheit denkt, der muss
Schon den Fuss im Bügel haben –
Wer die Wahrheit spricht, der muss
Statt der Arme Flügel haben!
Und doch singt Mirza-Schaffy:
Wer da lügt, muss Prügel haben.“

Vierte, revidirte Auflage.

Leipzig,
Verlag von Paul Froberg.
1876.

Uebersetzungen in fremde Sprachen werden ausdrücklich nicht vorbehalten, sondern gern freigegeben. Dagegen sind längere Auszüge und Mittheilungen nur mit Genehmigung der Verlagshandlung gestattet.

Vorrede.

Bis 1866 trieben wir in Preussen, und überhaupt in Deutschland, abstracte Politik. Die Schlagwörter waren „Einheit“ und „Freiheit“, bei denen Jeder sich etwas Anderes dachte. Auf Festen und Congressen, in den Vereinen wie in den Parlamenten declamirte man, regalirte man sich mit Phrasen. In den Handwerker-, Bezirks- und anderen Vereinen wurde in „Bildung“ und „Aufklärung“ gemacht, das Volk für die politischen Wahlen gedrillt; in den Parlamenten wurden doctrinäre Reden gehalten, unausführbare Beschlüsse gefasst. Unter den Massen, wie in den Köpfen der Führer und Volksvertreter, herrschte dieselbe Unklarheit, derselbe Wirrwarr.

Nach dem Kriege von 1866, mit der Neugestaltung Deutschland's zerfielen die bisherigen Parteien sammt und sonders, und es bildeten sich aus ihnen zwei neue, die man im Grossen und Ganzen Bismarckianer und Anti-Bismarckianer nennen darf, und die bald von gewisser Seite als „reichsfreundlich“ und „reichsfeindlich“ bezeichnet wurden. Die langersehnte „Einheit“ hatte sich plötzlich eingestellt — nur war sie auf anderm Wege gekommen und von anderer Beschaffenheit, als man geträumt und geplant hatte. Diese Einheit führte nach Aussen zu Macht und Ruhm; und modificirte im Innern gar wesentlich das Verlangen und Streben nach „Freiheit“.

Die grosse „liberale“ Partei, welche jubelnd und huldigend sich um den Staatsmann drängte, den sie bisher so erbittert bekämpft hatte, mühte sich fortan weniger um die politische als um die wirthschaftliche oder eigentlich — manchesterliche „Freiheit“; welche Handwerk und Industrie, Handel und Speculation von jeder gesetzlichen Schranke befreit, an Stelle

der staatlichen Aufsicht die „freie Concurrenz“ setzt, und dem Capital jede Willkür gönnt. Statt Einer „Freiheit“, erhielten wir jetzt eine Menge von Freiheiten; so die Theater-Freiheit, die Zug-Freiheit, die Wucher-Freiheit, und vor Allem — die Actien-Freiheit und die Börsen-Freiheit. Diese manchesterlichen Freiheiten stürzten wie ein Platzregen auf uns nieder, liessen uns gar nicht zur Besinnung kommen und haben uns arg in die Tinte geführt.

Die Schank-Freiheit vermehrte die Bierkneipen und Schnapsbuden in's Unglaubliche. Die Theater-Freiheit bescheerte uns eine Unzahl neuer Vorstadt-Bühnen und sogenannter „Tingeltangel“, wo der Blödsinn herrscht und die Zote blüht; brachte das ohnehin im starken Sinken begriffene Deutsche Theater vollends auf den Hund. Die Zug-Freiheit entvölkerte das platte Land, entführte der Landwirthschaft die Arbeitskräfte, und überschwemmte die grossen Städte, wo seitdem Rohheit und Unsicherheit, Unzucht und Verbrechen, Noth und Elend, Seuchen und Sterblichkeit einen mächtigen Aufschwung nahmen. Die Gewerbe-Freiheit schädigte das Handwerk und zerrieb den Handwerkerstand, indem sie Pfscherei und Stümperei begünstigte, indem sie den unreifen Gesellen oder Lehrling selbständig machte, dagegen den Meister zu einem Lohn- oder Fabrikarbeiter herabsinken liess. Die Wucherfreiheit privilegierte die „Halsabschneider“, Pfandleiher und Rückkaufshändler; jene Vampyre und Blutegel, welche sich auf Kosten des Leichtsinns und der Noth mästen, und ihre Opfer unter allen Schichten der Gesellschaft fordern. Die Actien-Freiheit endlich — die schlimmste von allen — inaugurierte die berüchtigte Gründer- und Schwindleraera, setzte die grosse Börsen-Organie in's Werk, wo man in der frechsten Weise das ganze Volk ausplünderte; und es folgte dann mit Nothwendigkeit die schwere Krisis, die seit Jahren Erwerb und Verkehr lähmt, und deren Ende noch gar nicht abzusehen ist.

Die „liberalen“ Gesetzgeber in unseren Parlamenten sind vorwiegend Manchesterleute, und sie arbeiten, in Verbindung mit der „liberalen“ Presse, hauptsächlich im Interesse des Capitals und der Börse. Die manchesterliche Gesetzgebung hat einen grossartigen Bankerott gemacht, und um denselben zu verdecken, namentlich um die Aufmerksamkeit von den furchtbaren Folgen des verbrecherischen Börsen- und Gründungsschwindels abzulenken, warf man sich mit Wuth auf den „Culturkampf“ und zittert jetzt, dass der „Culturkampf“ zu Ende gehen könnte.

Auch in der Regierung sitzen Manchesterleute, und die Regierung trägt die Mitschuld an der so unheilvollen wirthschaftlichen Gesetzgebung, die sie fast ausschliesslich den „Liberalen“ überlassen hat, denen sie nur hin und wieder schwachen Widerstand leistete. Noch nach dem „Grossen Krach“, schon mitten in der Krisis, wussten die „Liberalen“, unter Anführung der Herren Lasker und Bamberger, gegen den Willen des Finanzministers Camphausen, der sich zuerst sträubte und dessen Stellung in Frage kam — die Reichsbank durchzusetzen; diese gewaltige „Gründung“ zu Gunsten der Geld- und Börsenfürsten.

Unter den Regierungsmännern herrscht Zwiespalt und Rathlosigkeit. Minister Delbrück betonte im Reichstag ausdrücklich die Wirthschafts-Krise, die noch längere Zeit anhalten werde; Minister Camphausen wollte sie überhaupt nicht zugeben. Im Abgeordnetenhause äusserte Herr Camphausen: Ich bin der Ueberzeugung, dass die Lage unserer Arbeiter noch niemals so günstig war als sie es gegenwärtig ist. Der kranken Industrie empfahl er zur Heilung — die Herabsetzung der Arbeitslöhne. Als ob die Löhne nicht schon von selber, ununterbrochen sinken; als ob es nicht schon lange an Arbeit fehlt! Ein Beweis, wie unbekannt der Minister mit den thatsächlichen Verhältnissen ist! — Im Reichstag bemühte sich Herr Camphausen die Börse und die Gründer auf Kosten des Publikums zu entlasten: — „Das Publikum hat, verleitet durch Gewinnsucht, eine lange Zeit hindurch schwindelhaften Unternehmungen Vorschub geleistet. Die ganze Nation war von einem gewissen Schwindel mehr oder weniger erfasst. — „Heute überlässt sich das Publikum einem viel zu weit getriebenen Misstrauen. Heute werden die Capitalien zurückgehalten, während sich in einer Menge der solidesten Papiere die lohnendste Anlage dafür bietet.“ — In Folge dieser famosen Ministerrede versuchte die Berliner Börse Ende November eine Hausse in Scene zu setzen, die aber kläglich misslang.

Wiewol alle Zweige der Industrie, alle Geschäfte darniederliegen, Verkehr und Handel stocken, täglich neue Bankerotte ausbrechen, täglich mehr Arbeiter brotlos werden — leugnen die Manchesterleute — Herr Lasker voran — und die „liberale“ Presse doch jeden eigentlichen Nothstand; und sie bezeichnen diejenigen Blätter, welche gegen die manchesterliche Misswirthschaft auftreten und vor den Gefahren warnen, die daraus erwachsen — theils als „Scandalblätter“, theils als „Revolverpresse“.

Seit 1866 treiben wir wesentlich Social-Politik. Seit dem „Grossen Krach“ dreht sich die Weltgeschichte nicht mehr ausschliesslich um den Fürsten Bismarck. Zwar ist der Ruhm ein berauschendes Getränk, aber er macht nicht satt; Jedermann verlangt trotzdem und verlangt zuerst des Leibes Nahrung und Nothdurft. Die wirthschaftlichen „Freiheiten“ können nicht entschädigen für die wachsenden Steuern und Lasten, für die unnatürliche Theuerung der letzten Jahre, für die unbehaglichen und ungesunden Zustände, wie sie auf allen Gebieten hervortreten. Die manchesterliche Wirthschafts-Politik hat nur einer kleinen Minderheit, vornehmlich Finanzleuten und Speculanten, Vortheil gebracht; dem Volke hat sie tiefe Wunden geschlagen. Der Börsen- und Gründungsschwindel hat das Nationalvermögen um Milliarden gekürzt, allgemeine Missstimmung und Erbitterung erzeugt, und der Socialdemokratie Schaaren neuer Anhänger zugeführt.

Die Manchester-Politik ist gemein- und staatsgefährlich. Alle ehrlichen wohlmeinenden Leute müssen sie energisch bekämpfen und sich zu diesem Zwecke zusammenthun, gleichviel welcher Parteirichtung sie sonst angehören. Man kann auch bereits das Schauspiel wahrnehmen, wie Zeitschriften der heterogensten Tendenz, klerikale und demokratische, conservative und socialdemokratische, darunter auch jene angeblichen „Scandal-“ und „Revolverblätter“, sich die Hände reichen, und gegen die manchesterlichen „Liberalen“ und „Volkswirthe“ vorgehen, gegen die Ausbeutung des Volkes durch Börse, Schwindel und Wucher eifern. Noch ist die grosse Menge im Bann der „liberalen“ Presse, von der sie gegängelt und geschoren wird; noch sind Viele, gar Viele dem Capital und der Börse durch Eigennutz oder aus Furcht verbündet: noch bilden die ehrlichen herzhaften Leute ein Häuflein, aber ihre Zahl ist sichtlich im Wachsen begriffen, und sie haben die allernächste Zukunft.

Die nachfolgenden, zuerst in der „Gartenlaube“ veröffentlichten Artikel, woselbst sie December 1874 begannen, haben bereits ihre Geschichte.

Ich sah den ganzen Börsen- und Gründungsschwindel an mir vorüberziehen; ich verfolgte von Anfang an seine Symptome und seine Wirkungen; ich sammelte fortlaufend ein grosses Material von Zeitungen, Brochüren etc. Dass es ein Schwindel war, begriff ich sofort; aber erst allmählig erkannte ich seinen riesigen Umfang, seine furchtbare Gemeingefährlichkeit, die Frechheit und das Raffinement, womit er betrieben wurde, die Schamlosigkeit mit der fast die gesamte Presse ihn duldete, ihn beschönigte, die Feilheit, mit der sie ihm huldigte und ihm diente. Nur ganz vereinzelt erhob sich in der Presse oder in den Parlamenten eine anklagende oder warnende Stimme: sie wurde sofort übertönt, erstickt von dem lärmenden Chor der Gründer und Gründergenossen. August 1871 brachte die „Vossische Zeitung“ eine Reihe von Artikeln, in welchen der Abgeordnete Hoppe den Rumänier-Schwindel klar legte, der damals just eine neue Phase beschritt; aber die „Nationalzeitung“ trat diesen Artikeln sofort entgegen, und für den grossen „Doctor“ Strousberg ein. Am 12. December 1871 sprach Virchow im Abgeordnetenhaus: Ein hochgestellter Beamter nach dem andern geht in dem Gründungsschwindel unter! Ein schwaches „Hört!“ antwortete ihm, und die Sache war zu Ende.

Ein grosses Berliner Journal, dessen politische Mitarbeiter inzwischen fast sämmtlich ausgeschieden sind, leistete dem Börsen- und Gründungsschwindel mächtigeren Vorschub als alle sogenannten Börsenblätter zusammen. Jene Mitarbeiter, lauter Männer von gediegener Bildung und strenger Ehrenhaftigkeit, wie sie unter den Journalisten nicht mehr häufig sind, sahen dem schnöden Treiben mit blutendem Herzen zu; aber sie waren ohnmächtig. Auch der Chef-Redacteur war völlig unmächtig gegenüber dem Eigenthümer der Zeitung und dem Börsen-Redacteur, der sich in sein Departement gar nicht hineinreden liess, der seine Gehülfen selber auswählte und engagirte.

Einer meiner Bekannten gab 1872 eine Feuilleton-Correspondenz für Zeitungen heraus, welche u. A. auch von mir zwei Artikel brachte, die das Treiben an der Berliner Börse und die Machinationen der Gründer, übrigens sehr glimpflich, schilderten. Der Herausgeber war von diesen Skizzen erbaut, und meinte, sie müssten auch ganz besonders seinen Abonnenten zusagen. Aber mit welcher Enttäuschung meldete er mir, dass die meisten Zeitungen meine Artikel gar nicht abgedruckt hätten! Nur einige kleine Blätter nahmen sie auf.

Am 7. Februar 1873 liess endlich Herr Lasker im Abgeordnetenhaus seine „Enthüllungen“ los; und ich sah mit Erstaunen den rasenden Beifall, den sie in der Presse und im Publikum hervorriefen. Ich sah mit Erstaunen, wie im ganzen Hause Niemand aufstand und dem langathmigen Redner erwiederte: Warum sprichst Du von Strousberg und Consorten erst heute, wo sie längst abgethan sind? Warum sprichst Du nur von Dilettanten, wie Geheimrath Wagener, Fürst Putbus, Prinz Biron etc.; warum suchst Du die Gründer unter den Conservativen? Weisst Du denn nicht, dass die grossen professionellen Gründer vorwiegend Deinem Volke, den Kindern Israel, und Deiner eigenen Partei, den Nationalliberalen, angehören? Blick um Dich her: in Deiner nächsten Nähe, unter Deinen politischen Freunden sitzen die eigentlichen Gründer und Gründergenossen! — Niemand sprach so, Niemand fand eine Antwort. Es ist merkwürdig, wie arm die Conservativen an geschickten Federn und schlagfertigen Rednern sind.

Trotzdem sah auch ich in den „Enthüllungen“ Lasker's eine verdienstliche That, und ich habe dies in den nachfolgenden Artikeln (S. 240 ff.), ich habe es noch vor wenigen Monaten in der „Gartenlaube“ öffentlich ausgesprochen — allerdings, ohne dem grossen Manne Genüge thun zu können. Erst sein jüngstes Auftreten im Reichstag (S. 339 ff. u. 346), wo er, anstatt sein Versprechen einzulösen und auch gegen die „liberalen“ Gründer vorzugehen, die Conservativen von Neuem beschuldigte, hat mich erkennen lassen, dass seine „Enthüllungen“, wie schon mehrfach behauptet wurde, nur ein geschickter Coup, ein dreistes Manöver waren, um die Aufmerksamkeit von den Hauptgründern unter seinem Volke und unter seinen politischen Freunden abzulenken.

Im Mai 1873, bald nach den Lasker'schen „Enthüllungen“, entlud sich in Wien der „Grosse Krach“. In Berlin sah man mit pharisäischem Mitleid auf Wien herab; rief: So 'was kann bei uns nicht vorkommen; wir sind doch bessere Menschen! und setzte die Börsen-Orgie noch Monate lang fort. In Wien wie in Berlin glaubte man noch vor Ablauf des Jahres 1873 den „Krach“ völlig überwunden zu haben. Herr Max Wirth und Herr Joseph Neuwirth, zwei manchesterliche „Volkswirthe“, die beide eine grosse Börsen-Praxis haben, liessen jeder ein Buch erscheinen, das der Welt solchen Trost verkündete. Herr Max Wirth behandelte in seiner „Geschichte der Handelskrisen“ bereits die „Reconvalescenz“ der Krise; und Herr Joseph Neuwirth erklärte in seiner Schrift „Die Speculationskrisis von 1873“: Es ist „eine streng localisirte Börsen-Krisis und nichts weiter.“ „Eine eigentliche Handelskrisis“ existirt nicht. — Aber die „Reconvalescenz“ war eine fromme Täuschung; und die „Handelskrisis“ entwickelte sich in Oesterreich-Ungarn wie in Deutschland schärfer und schärfer.

Aber dort wie hier suchte die Presse die traurige Wahrheit zu vertuschen. Noch war über den heillosen Frevel und die zahllosen Frevler so gut wie nichts geschrieben, aber schon sprach man von einer „Krach-Literatur“, und versicherte, dass es an derselben über und über genug sei.

Die Presse schien mir nicht zugänglich. Aber vielleicht das Theater? — Februar 1874 vollendete ich ein Schauspiel, das den Gründungsschwindel behandelte, und das im Manuscript einem Dutzend Theater-Directoren vorgelegen hat. Alle versicherten, es sei ein bühnengerechtes spannendes Stück, voll Leben und Handlung; Etliche behaupteten, die Urbilder der verschiedenen Charaktere persönlich zu kennen. Ich habe keinen Grund anzunehmen, dass alle diese Männer mir blos geschmeichelt, mir nur etwas vorgeredet haben. Alle erklärten aber auch: eine Aufführung nicht riskiren zu können, weil sie es sonst verderben würden mit der Börse und mit der Judenschaft. Und doch ist blos Einer meiner Gründerhelden mosaïsch; der Andere bekennt sich zum Neuen Testament. — Herr Alexander Meyer sagte kürzlich in einer hiesigen Zeitschrift: Die Bühne lechzt nach dem modernen Gründer. Ei wirklich, lechzt sie? Herr Meyer könnte das wohl wissen; er war früher Feuilletonist und Kritiker, und ist jetzt Generalsecretär des Deutschen Handelstages, und er wohnt zu Berlin im Börsenpalais. Aber Herr Meyer scheint den Gründer als einen tragischen Helden zu betrachten. Das ist nun freilich nicht meine Ansicht. Mein Gründer ist ein Halunke; aber ein genialer und amüsanter Halunke. Ich glaube den Gründer idealisirt zu haben, denn im gewöhnlichen Leben ist er weder genial noch amüsant. — Ein Bühnenlenker redete mir zu, das Thema von der gemüthlichen Seite zu nehmen. Ich solle das Schauspiel zu einer Posse umarbeiten, den Gründer Couplets singen und Cancan tanzen lassen. Wiewol diese geistreiche Wendung der Wirklichkeit durchaus nicht widerspricht, so glaubte ich doch mich dazu nicht verstehen zu können. Mein Schauspiel erscheint nächstens im Druck, und werde ich dann seine weiteren Schicksale erzählen.

Nach diesen fehlgeschlagenen Versuchen wandte ich mich im August 1874 an die „Gartenlaube“, mit der ich seit acht Jahren ausser Verbindung gewesen, und bot ihr eine Reihe von Skizzen über den Börsen- und Gründungsschwindel an. Nebenbei bemerkt, habe ich sie diesem Blatt zuerst und allein angeboten. Die Gartenlaube ist eine Tribüne, auf der es zu reden lohnt; sie hat an 400,000 Abonnenten, und man spricht zu etwa 2 Millionen Leser. Auch ist der Herausgeber, Ernst Keil, ein Mann, der an sich glaubt, der da glaubt, dass er eine Mission habe; und diesem Glauben verdankt er seinen kolossalen Erfolg. Trotzdem proponirte ich Herrn Keil nur eine Art von Feuilletons, wobei ich die Namen der Objecte und der Personen fingiren wollte. Aber Herr Keil antwortete mir:

„Sollen die Artikel den beabsichtigten moralischen Eindruck resp. eine sittliche Empörung hinterlassen, so müssen dieselben, bei aller Lebendigkeit der Darstellung, eine einfache Gruppierung der frappirendsten Thatfachen enthalten, deren Authenticität von keiner Seite angreifbar sein dürfte. In der Gartenlaube suchen die Leser rücksichtslose Wahrheit u. s. w.“

Das war weit mehr als ich gehofft hatte. Doch bemerkte ich Herrn Keil in einer längern Unterredung, die zwischen uns stattfand und bei der ich ihm mein Programm entwickelte, dass „rücksichtslose Wahrheit“ etwas viel sei, und dass sie ihm leicht zu viel werden könne. Herr Keil gab das zu, und ich ging an's Werk. Abgemacht war, dass alle vierzehn Tage ein Artikel erscheinen, etwaige Streichungen, Aenderungen etc. bei der Correctur vereinbart, Reclamationen mir vorgelegt, und wie es selbstverständlich ist, nicht ohne meine Gegenbemerkungen abgedruckt werden sollten. Ich hätte die Aufsätze am liebsten anonym veröffentlicht, aber Herr Keil forderte als Garantie meinen Namen, und ich durfte mich dieser Forderung nicht entziehen.

Herr Keil konnte den ersten Artikel („Zur Einleitung“) nicht rasch genug erhalten; aber als er ihn hatte, liess er ihn fast drei Monate liegen. Der Aufsatz erschien ihm viel zu scharf. „Ich will belehren, aber nicht erbittern und beleidigen“, schrieb er mir; und in einem zweiten Briefe: dass er die Fortsetzungen „nach der ersten Probe zu fürchten habe“. Nun ist es sehr schwer, einen verbrecherischen Schwindel zu entlarven, die Schuldigen zu brandmarken, „sittliche Empörung“ zu hinterlassen, und doch nicht zu „erbittern“ und zu „beleidigen“. Aber dieser Widerspruch erklärt sich ganz einfach. Herr Keil hatte von dem ganzen Schwindel keine Ahnung, und er lernte ihn gleichfalls erst aus meinen Artikeln kennen. Er erschrak als ich Personen nannte, die eine grosse Stellung haben, oder Solche, zu denen er selber in Beziehungen stand; und er äusserte zu einem gemeinsamen Bekannten: er könne sich um meiner Artikel halben doch nicht mit alten Freunden und Mitarbeitern überwerfen. Es widerstrebt ihm, sowol Bekannte wie Gegner zu nennen. Er erschrak als ich an die Spitze der Gründer das Haus S. Bleichröder und die Disconto-Gesellschaft stellte; als ich unter den Gründerbanken die Deutsche Genossenschaftsbank von Soergel, Parrisius & Co. aufführte. War doch sein Freund, Herr Schulze-Delitzsch, Mitgründer und Aufsichtsrath dieser Bank; auch während der Schwindelperiode, wo unter „Aufsicht“ des Herrn Schulze die Bank ihr Actiencapital fortwährend erhöhte, immer wieder „junge Actien“ mit hohem Agio ausgab, und eine Reihe fauler Gründungen vollbrachte; wo Herr Schulze alljährlich eine erkleckliche Tantième bezogen hatte.

Nach vielem Hin- und Herschreiben erschien endlich December 1874 der erste Artikel, und fünf Wochen später der zweite. Beide Artikel, und auch die meisten andern, kamen übrigens ohne wesentliche Aenderungen zum Abdruck; und will ich hier gleich bemerken, dass Herr Keil mir insofern stets nachgab, als er nie einen Namen unterdrückt hat.

Da der zweite Artikel so lange verzog, schrieb ein ungeduldiger Leser: Wo bleiben die Fortsetzungen? Hat sich die „Gartenlaube“ etwa auch kaufen lassen? — Herr Keil ergriff diese passende Gelegenheit, um sein Herz zu erleichtern, und seine von der meinigen abweichende Meinung zu verlautbaren. Er glaubte an das durch die Presse, zu Gunsten der Schwindler, so eifrig colportirte Märchen von der „Spielsucht des Publikums“ und von der „Gewinnsucht der kleinen Leute“; und er gab diesem Aberglauben nun im „Briefkasten“ Ausdruck — ohne mich davon zu benachrichtigen, also gegen unsere ausdrückliche Abmachung. Wie man sich denken kann, musste diese Briefkasten-Erklärung als ein Desaveu meiner Artikel erscheinen; sie machte die Leser stutzig und gab den Gründern Aufwasser. Es hing an Einem Haar, und unsere Verbindung wäre gelöst gewesen. Da aber die Interessen gegenseitig waren, einigten wir uns wieder, und ich richtete an den Herausgeber der „Gartenlaube“ einen „Offenen Brief“ (S. 323 ff.), worin ich jenen Eindruck zu verwischen suchte, und jedes meiner Worte aufrecht hielt.

Alsbald befreundete sich Herr Keil mit meinen Artikeln — selbstverständlich machte auch ich ihm Concessionen — und er sprach sogar seine Verwunderung aus, dass die Presse von diesen Aufsätzen so gar keine Notiz nähme, sie nicht anerkennend und lobend erwähne. Ich antwortete ihm, dass dies von der Presse, die ich doch fortwährend als Mitschuldige des Schwindels kennzeichne, nicht gut zu verlangen sei. Auch unter dem Leserkreise der „Gartenlaube“ erweckten die Artikel nicht gleich die Theilnahme, welche Herr Keil erwartete. Andere Themata, wie z. B. die „Leipziger Puppen-Doctorin“, „Zimmer-Springbrunnen“ oder gar die blutschwitzende Louise Lateau, die in der „Gartenlaube“ wol ein halb Dutzend Mal tractirt wurde, trugen der Redaction stets eine Sündfluth von Briefen ein; während Briefe über meine Artikel in der ersten Zeit nur spärlich einliefen.

Trotzdem verursachten diese Aufsätze sofort ungemeines Aufsehen. Gleich der erste wirkte wie eine Brandrakete. In den betheiligten Kreisen begriff man sofort, dass es sich hier nicht um allgemeine Redensarten und verschämte Anspielungen handle, sondern dass ich entschlossen sei, dem Schwindel ernstlich zu Leibe zu gehen. Gleich nach dem ersten Artikel liess man mir melden: ich ruinire das Börsengeschäft vollends; liess man mir einen Antrag machen, auf den ich später zurückkomme. Fast täglich erhielt ich von nah und fern Besuche; von Leuten, die entweder für sich oder Andere besorgt waren, oder aber Andere einweichen wollten; die mich auszuforschen trachteten, mich für oder wider zu bestimmen versuchten. Ich darf wol bemerken, dass diese Leute, mit geringen Ausnahmen, dem auserwählten Volk angehörten. Auch fing das Publikum, wunderlich wie es ist, an, mich als einen neuen Börsen-Rathgeber zu betrachten. Mündlich und schriftlich kamen fortwährend Anfragen: welche Papiere wol zu verkaufen und welche zu kaufen (!) wären. Ich habe die zahlreichen Briefe nicht alle beantworten können, aber mündlich wie schriftlich gab ich stets die Antwort, dass ich über den An- oder Verkauf von Börsen-Effecten keinen Rath ertheile.

Man kann sich vorstellen, dass die Gründer und Gründergenossen das Mögliche aufboten, um die Redaction der „Gartenlaube“ zum Einstellen der Artikel zu bewegen. Aus allen Gegenden Deutschland's, ja aus England und Amerika, liefen Briefe ein, die sich gegen meine Aufsätze erklärten. Leider waren diese Briefe fast alle anonym, aber sie zeigen eine rührende Uebereinstimmung. Sie beginnen fast sämmtlich mit der naiven Frage: Was haben diese Artikel für einen Zweck? Und unmittelbar darauf antworten sie stets selber: Diese Artikel haben gar keinen Zweck! Sie kommen viel zu spät. Sie hätten vor Jahren, in der Gründungsperiode selber, erscheinen müssen; da hätten sie noch nützen, nämlich warnen können. Heute sind sie veraltet, sie enthalten nur längst und allgemein Bekanntes. Kein Mensch liest sie mehr. — —

Da diese Vorstellungen nichts fruchteten, ging man weiter

und schrieb von zwanzig Enden: Die Artikel thun dem Publikum grossen Schaden; sie entmuthigen es und schädigen es nur noch mehr; sie verschärfen die Krisis und arbeiten der Baisse und den Fixern in die Hände. — Ein Correspondent verstieg sich zu dem Ausspruch: „Diese Artikel kosten dem Publikum schon Millionen!“ — Andere hatten wieder andere Bedenken, z. B.: „Welchen praktischen Werth hat es, die Namen der Gründer zu nennen? Diese Leute kennt man, und der Tag der Abrechnung wird auch für sie kommen!“ — Besonders erwähnenswerth ist ein Brief aus Chicago. Der Schreiber meint: es sei lächerlich von dem Schwindel in Deutschland so viel Aufhebens zu machen: da solle man erst nach Amerika kommen. „O, beschränktes Deutschland“, ruft er aus, „wie lange wird es währen, bis Du auf derselben Stufe angelangt bist, auf dem sich dieses junge Land und seine Bewohner schon lange befinden!“ — Der Mann hat Recht. Wir sind in Deutschland noch nicht ganz so weit wie in Amerika; aber wir sind auf dem besten Wege, dahin zu kommen.

Ein anderer Brief erhebt sogar den Vorwurf, „die »Gartenlaube« habe dem gefährlichen Treiben der Gründer nicht schweigend zugesehen“. Wahrscheinlich soll damit auf gewisse Artikel über Strousberg, Quistorp und Hermann Geber beziehentlich über deren Unternehmungen, angespielt werden, welche vor Jahren in der „Gartenlaube“ erschienen sind. Aber Herr Keil hat gewiss im guten Glauben gehandelt; er hat wol nie mit Bewusstsein und Absicht für Jemanden Reclame gemacht. Jene Artikel wurden ihm von alten Mitarbeitern zugesandt, auf die er sich verlassen zu können meinte, die aber leider von Strousberg und Consorten gewonnen waren. Ein Redacteur kann unmöglich alle Themata selber auswählen; und ebenso findet er nicht immer für jedes Thema gleich einen Bearbeiter; er muss abwarten, bis ihm Offerten gemacht werden. Ich zweifle nicht mehr daran, dass Herr Keil auch schon früher, während der Gründungsperiode selber, Artikel gegen den Schwindel gebracht hätte — wiewol sie damals noch viel mehr Opposition, noch weit ärgere Machinationen erfahren haben würden — aber es hatte ihm eben Niemand Anerbietungen gemacht.

Was mich selber betrifft, so will ich jenen liebenswürdigen Correspondenten jetzt folgende Antwort geben:

Ich glaube nachgewiesen zu haben, dass es mir zu keiner Zeit an gutem Willen und an Muth gefehlt hat. Aber Artikel, wie ich sie jetzt geschrieben, waren früher kaum möglich. Erst nachdem der heillose Schwindel offen vor aller Augen liegt, und unter seinen grässlichen Folgen die ganze Welt leidet: erst jetzt können diese Artikel Glauben finden und ihre volle Wirkung üben. Ich bin der Erste gewesen, der es gewagt hat, die Dinge und die Personen beim Namen zu nennen, ohne Ansehn der Person und ohne Rücksicht auf die Parteien und die Regierung. Ich habe die Bahn gebrochen, und mein Vorgehen hat bereits mehrfache Nachahmung gefunden.

Meine Artikel sind historische Schilderungen. Man pflegt aber nicht schon die Geschichte des künftigen Jahres, auch nicht die des laufenden Jahres, sondern erst die des vergangenen Jahres zu schreiben. Bevor ich die Unthaten schilderte, mussten sie doch erst geschehen sein. Ich gebe eine historische Darstellung des Schwindels, des Krachs und der Krisis. Die Krisis ist leider noch lange nicht abgeschlossen, sondern wir befinden uns noch mitten darin; und sogar der Schwindel wird, wie spätere Artikel zeigen werden, noch munter fortgesetzt; z. B. bei den heute so beliebten Liquidationen oder gewaltsamen Entgründungen; oder indem die Herren Aufsichtsräthe und Directoren zahlreicher nicht lebensfähiger Banken und Industriegesellschaften auch noch den Rest des Capitals verpulvern. Meine Schilderungen dürften also doch vielen Actionären zum Nutzen gereichen, auch in dieser Hinsicht noch nicht zu spät kommen.

Im Grossen und Ganzen ist freilich nichts mehr zu „warren“, kaum noch etwas zu retten. Die meisten Industrie- und auch viele Bank-Actien sind eben gar nichts werth; und die Course sind nur nominell, in Wirklichkeit nicht mehr zu erreichen. Daher „schädige“ ich auch nicht, und bin überhaupt nicht im Stande, zu „schädigen“: meine Schilderungen können unmöglich den wirklichen innern Werth eines Papiers schmälern und kürzen. Auch habe ich nur solche Gesellschaften behandelt, deren Faulheit zweifellos und allbekannt ist; ich habe kein Papier „heruntergerissen“, wiewol viele Papiere noch viel

Glagau, Der Börsenschwindel.

b

zu hoch im Course stehen, und diesen Cours nur ganz künstlich behaupten. Auch ohne diese Artikel geht die Entwerthung der Börsen-Effecten unaufhaltsam fort; denn täglich enthüllen die Bilanzen der Actiengesellschaften die kolossalsten Verluste, herbeigeführt durch wahnsinnige Geschäftsleitung, oder durch grobe Diebstähle und Veruntreuungen. Meine Artikel vermögen das Publikum nicht mehr zu schädigen, weil das Publikum bereits strangulirt ist. Wie die Berichte sämmtlicher Zeitungen beweisen, hält sich das Publikum, gezwungener Massen, schon lange von der Börse fern; und es treiben hier ihr Wesen nur noch die Jobber oder Spieler, die schliesslich, wie in einem verfallenen Saale die Ratten, sich gegenseitig auffressen werden.

Von den zahlreichen Agitationen, die gegen meine Artikel versucht wurden, ist die folgende besonders interessant. Ein Reichstagsmitglied, das ich als mehrfachen Gründer bezeichnet hatte, und das ich hier A. nennen will, wandte sich an einen seiner Collegen, der B. heissen mag, und der mit Herrn Keil befreundet ist, und suchte dessen Vermittelung nach, um ferneren „Angriffen vorzubeugen“. Herr A. schrieb an Herrn B.: „Es dürfte ziemlich bekannt sein, „dass ich mich an industriellen Unternehmungen nicht betheiligt habe, um Schätze zu sammeln, sondern lediglich um mir zu ermöglichen, ohne Vermögensverluste meine parlamentarische Thätigkeit wahrzunehmen.“

Höre es, Deutsches Volk und merke es Dir! Dein Erwählter ist unter die Gründer gegangen, um „ohne Vermögensverluste“ als Gesetzgeber wirken zu können. — — — Und wie einträglich muss das „Gründen“ sein, wenn Herr A. nebst Familie in jedem Jahr etwa neun Monate „ohne Vermögensverluste“ in Berlin leben und hier einen grossen Haushalt mit Dienerschaft, Equipage etc. führen kann! In der That, ein sehr praktischer Volksvertreter!!

Herr B. schickte diese Reclamation an Herrn Keil und befürwortete sie folgendermassen: Schreiber dieses (A.) ist mir seit lange bekannt, „und möchte ich für seine ganz unbedingte Anständigkeit und Ehrenhaftigkeit einstehen, und bin für meinen Theil überzeugt, dass er in seiner besonderen Sache Recht hat. Er hat aber auch im Allgemeinen Recht; auf den Gründertaumel ist eine Gründerhatz gefolgt, die gleichfalls das Publikum benachtheiligt“. — —

Ich liess dem Fürsprecher durch Herrn Keil erwiedern, dass mir von einer „Gründerhatz“ leider noch nichts bekannt wäre, dass meine Schilderungen der allererste Versuch seien, den Schuldigen wenigstens moralisch beizukommen, und dass weder Herr B. noch sonst Jemand, auch selbst Herr Keil nicht, mich in diesem Unternehmen behindern sollten. Ich erlaubte mir, Herrn B., der auch bei einer „Entgründung“ mitwirkt, bemerklich machen zu lassen, dass sein warmes Eintreten für Herrn A. vielleicht etwas unvorsichtig sei; insofern er doch wissen müsse, dass die öffentliche Meinung es bereits für geboten halte, die Parlamente von den Gründern und Gründergenossen zu säubern, und diese Erkenntniss sich mehr und mehr auch in Parlamentskreisen selber Bahn breche.

Herr B. beehrte mich hierauf mit einem Briefe, worin er versicherte, dass er meine „Meinungen und Bestrebungen vollkommen theile“; und schien im Uebrigen geneigt, Herrn A. aufzugeben.

Im Laufe des Sommers wurden ferner mehrer Klagen, wegen angeblicher „Verleumdung“, gegen mich angestrengt. Da ich dieselben jedoch nur als Einschüchterungsversuche nahm und mich erbot, den Beweis der Wahrheit auch vor Gericht zu führen, wurden sie alsbald, und zwar ohne jedes Zuthun meinerseits, wieder zurückgezogen.

Die grösste Aufregung, eine ungemaine Erbitterung riefen meine Aufsätze unter der Judenschaft hervor. Und doch hatte ich weiter nichts gesagt als: Die Juden vermehren sich in Berlin heftig. Es sind durchgehends wohlhabende und reiche Leute (S. 148). Die schönsten Häuser und Villen in Berlin gehören den Juden (S. 102). Herr Keil, der, wie seine Briefe bekunden, jedes meiner Worte abwog, hatte diese Sätze nicht im mindesten beanstandet. Nun regnete es von allen Seiten Beschwerden und Vorstellungen, die wieder eine merkwürdige Uebereinstimmung in Worten und Wendungen bekunden. Man beklagte sich stets über „Intoleranz“ und „Inhumanität“, doppelt auffällig und unwürdig im „aufgeklärten 19. Jahrhundert“, „wo die Welt von Freigeistern regiert wird“. Man bezeichnete jene Sätze als gehässige Denunciationen; gleichviel, ob man

b*

ihre Richtigkeit bestritt oder zugab. „Es ist ja nun einmal Thatsache“, schreibt ein Anonymus, der sich „Ein Kämpfer für Recht und Wahrheit!“ unterzeichnet — „dass die Juden, trotz ihrer kleinen Anzahl, im Besitze des meisten Geldes sind. Sie haben sich durch Klugheit, Besonnenheit und grosse Erfahrung im Handel diese vielen Geldmittel zu verschaffen gewusst. — „Der liebe Gott weiss stets, wem er Gutes zu geben hat oder nicht, und hat er auch hier wiederum bewiesen, dass die richtigen Menschen mit Reichthum bedacht worden sind.“ —

Die Reclamationen kamen von Gebildeten und Ungebildeten, von Männern und — Frauen. Ein Fräulein M., „erste ordentliche Lehrerin an der jüdischen Gemeinde-Mädchenschule zu Berlin“, hat, um nachzuweisen, dass jene Sätze, die „besonders Hass und Verachtung gegen die Juden erregen“, „faktisch Unrichtiges“ enthalten, einen drei Bogen langen Brief geschrieben und eine Fülle statistischen Materials beigebracht, wodurch sie darthun will, dass die Juden in Berlin sich keineswegs so heftig vermehren, und die hiesige jüdische Gemeinde gar viele Arme, Kranke etc. zu unterhalten habe. Im Uebrigen meint sie: „Was Wunder, wenn das »auserwählte Volk«, dessen einziges Erbtheil der Handel war, durch Jahrhunderte der Verfolgung und Erniedrigung, allein und in Verbindung mit den Geschäftsfreunden christlichen Glaubens, sowie mit den Vertretern unserer höchsten Aristokratie (Lasker's „Enthüllungen“!), wiederum in die Anbetung des goldenen Kalbes verfiel!“

Verschiedene Correspondenten beschwerten sich über Ausdrücke wie „auserwähltes Volk“, „Kinder Israel“, „Nachkommen Abrahams“. Die Juden schämen sich also ihrer Geschichte und ihrer Vorfahren; was freilich begreiflich wird, wenn man bemerkt, wie sie sich überhaupt ihres Namens schämen. Sie wollen nicht mehr „Juden“ genannt werden; höchstens „jüdische Leut“. Sie verändern ihre Vornamen, machen aus Wolf — Wilhelm, aus Jacob — Jacques, aus Enoch — Eduard, aus Löb — Louis oder gar Luigi. Und ebenso verwandeln sie ihre Zunamen. Es ist erklärlich, wenn ein zarter Lyriker nicht Heymann Levi heissen mag, ein dramatischer Dichter auf dem Theaterzettel nicht Katzke Lubliner genannt werden will; aber sehr unnöthig erscheint es, dass auch Privat- und Geschäftsleute ihre Namen ändern und besonders gern französiren; z. B.

Mosse statt Moses, Veit statt Veitel, Salingré statt Zallinger, Cerf statt Hirsch etc.

Wie empfindlich die Juden sind und wie man, beim besten Willen, ihnen nicht genug thun kann, wird aber folgendes kleine, geradezu komische Vorkommniss lehren. Ich hatte geschrieben (Vgl. S. 104): „Die Gerechtigkeit verlangt zu vermerken, dass der Häuserschacher nicht ausschliesslich von Börsenrittern betrieben wurde.“ Herr Keil, von der edlen Absicht geleitet, die Schuld nicht allein auf das auserwählte Volk fallen zu lassen, schaltete hier ein: „von Börsenrittern und Israeliten“. Aber siehe da! Sofort meldete sich ein jüdischer Advocat aus Frankfurt a. M., erklärte diesen Zusatz für „unpassend und tactlos“ und verlangte energisch, die Gartenlaube solle sich nicht „zum Tummelplatz mittelalterlicher Vorurtheile missbrauchen lassen“. — „Intoleranz!“ „Inhumanität!!“ „Jahrhunderte der Verfolgung und Erniedrigung!!!“ „Mittelalterliche Vorurtheile!!!!“ Es ist, als ob die Juden auf solche Schlagworte dressirt werden. Wenn man Herrn Giskra und Consorten wegen der „Trinkgelder-Theorie“ zur Rede stellt, so werfen sie sich stets in die Brust und donnern: „Nieder mit den Jesuiten!“ Ebenso darf man nicht Juden als Gründer oder Wucherer bezeichnen, keine Anklage, keine Ausstellung gegen Juden erheben, ohne dass ganz Israel emporfährt und über „mittelalterliche Vorurtheile“ schreit. — Mir aber schien der Zusatz des Herrn Keil eine wesentliche Verbesserung, und so habe ich denselben auch in die Buchausgabe übernommen.

Die Presse war klug genug, auf meine Artikel nicht zu reagiren. Nur in wenigen Blättern wurden sie gelegentlich erwähnt. Ein kleiner Gründer wollte sich an Herrn Keil und mir durch einen Angriff rächen, aber sämtliche Leipziger Zeitungen verweigerten die Aufnahme des Inserats. Nur ein Berliner Localblatt, dessen Redacteur mit jenem Gründer befreundet zu sein scheint, liess sich zu einem humoristisch sein sollenden Feuilleton gegen mich herbei. Ebenso brachte die in Breslau erscheinende „Schlesische Presse“, welche einem Consortium jüdischer Financiers gehört, folgenden „Sprechsaal“:

„An gut redigirten und anständig geschriebenen Wochenschriften, welche der Unterhaltung und Belehrung der grossen Menge gewidmet sind, ist Deutschland nicht gerade reich zu

nennen. Zu den wenigen, welche es verdienten, freundliche Aufnahme in allen Kreisen und Schichten unseres Volkes zu finden, gehörte in erster Reihe die Gartenlaube. Wir sagen absichtlich „gehörte“, weil sie auf dem besten Wege ist, durch Herrn Otto Glagau einen guten Theil des an ihr gerühmten Vorzuges zu verlieren. Seit Monaten erscheint aus der Feder des genannten Schriftstellers eine Reihe von Artikeln, welche die Namen derjenigen Männer dem erstaunten Deutschland in's Gedächtniss zurückrufen sollen, die mit Glück und Geschick es verstanden haben, durch allerlei gewagte und kühne Operationen — „Gründungen“ genannt — sich kolossale Reichthümer zu verschaffen. Wir sind weit entfernt, das Unternehmen an sich zu missbilligen, ja wir halten es sogar für verdienstlich, die Gründungs-Millionäre hin und wieder daran zu erinnern, dass man die Quelle ihrer Reichthümer kennt und ihnen deshalb diejenige Achtung versagt, welche sonst im öffentlichen Leben jeder ehrliche und redliche Arbeiter findet. Die Art und Weise aber, in der die Gartenlaube ihr moralisches Bedürfniss befriedigt, verdient ernste Missbilligung. Es genügt ihr nicht, einzelne Personen an den Pranger zu stellen, nein, sie brandmarkt mit einem bei ihrer Geschäftsroutine eigentlich unverzeihlichen Leichtsinne ganze Klassen, die so unschuldig an den Verirrungen der Jahre 1871 und 72 sind, wie unsere Enkelkinder. Weil neben Fürsten, Herzögen und Grafen sich unter den professionellen Gründern eine Anzahl Juden und zwar nicht etwa in überwiegender Zahl befunden haben, inauguriert die Gartenlaube eine neue „Hep Hep“-Periode. Wie kömmt sie dazu, die 50,000 Juden Berlins für die Sünden einiger einzelner Glaubensgenossen mit verantwortlich zu machen? Warum richtet sie ihren beissenden Spott und ihre hetzenden Worte gegen diese vielen Tausende um der Sünden Einzelner willen? Herr Glagau müsste denn glauben, das Gründen sei ein jüdisches Dogma? Um gerecht zu sein, hätte er doch mindestens den hohen Gründungsadel und die liierten adligen und bürgerlichen Gefährten in protestantische, neu- und alt-katholische rubriciren müssen, vielleicht hätte er dann kostbares Material für die Statistiker geliefert. Herr Glagau ist aber auch so ungeschickt, zu vergessen, dass von den mehr als eine Million zählenden Einwohnern Berlins nur ein einziger

Mensch den Muth gehabt hat, die Sonde in die klaffende Wunde zu legen, und dass dieser eine Mann ein Jude gewesen ist, dass er mithin am wenigsten ein Recht hat, bei dieser Gelegenheit „hep hep“ zu rufen. Wenn irgend etwas confessionslos gewesen ist, so waren es die Gründungen. Christen und Juden haben in gleicher Weise gesündigt; das Christenthum hat die einen weder davor zurückgehalten, noch das Judenthum die Anderen dazu veranlasst. Es ist mehr als geschmacklos, in heutiger Zeit, die das ausgesprochene Bestreben hat, das trennende Moment zu beseitigen, das bisher in der Verschiedenheit der Glaubensbekenntnisse bestanden, auf mittelalterliche Velleitäten zu verfallen. Macht dies der Gartenlaube Spass, so wird sie bald empfinden, dass ein Theil ihrer bisherigen Leser diesen Geschmack nicht theilt. X.“

Man merke wohl: wieder „mittelalterliche Velleitäten“, und wieder Reclame für Lasker's „Enthüllungen“! Der „Gartenlaube“ war also, wie die „Deutsche Eisenbahn-Zeitung“ bemerkte, „die grosse jüdische Excommunication angedroht“; ich aber nöthigte, gestützt auf das Pressgesetz, die „Schlesische Presse“ nachstehende Berichtigung abzudrucken:

„Es ist nicht wahr, sondern eine geffissentliche Verdrehung, dass ich in meinen, seit December v. J. in der „Gartenlaube“ erscheinenden Artikeln „Der Börsen- und Gründungs-Schwindel in Berlin“ — Gründerthum und Judenthum irgendwie identificirt habe. Es ist nicht wahr, dass ich die jüdischen Gründer etwa schärfer behandelte als die christlichen, sondern ich that just das Gegentheil; wie dies jeder Artikel und in jedem Artikel eine Reihe von christlichen Namen beweisen. Ich vergass auch nicht den Gründungsadel, die adligen und hochadligen Genossen und Gehülfen der Gründer, sondern ich habe sie gleich im ersten Artikel und dann noch verschiedentlich sonder Schonung gekennzeichnet. Ich war endlich auch nicht so „ungeschickt“, Herrn Lasker's „Enthüllungen“ zu übersehen, sondern ich habe dieser „Enthüllungen“ gleich wieder im ersten Artikel gedacht, und ihre Bedeutung auf das richtige Maß zurückzuführen versucht.

Ich kann aber nicht dafür, dass — wie ich dies allerdings mit Zahlen nachweisen werde — von den Gründern und Börsianern gut 90 Procent Juden und höchstens 10 Procent Christen sind. Es ist eine arge Empfindlichkeit und Ueberhebung der Juden, dass sie, selbst in Verbindung mit Christen, keine Rüge vertragen können. Es ist ein alter verbrauchter Kunstgriff, dass die Juden bei jedem Angriff auf Glaubensgenossen — auch wenn dieser Angriff nicht das Mindeste mit der Religion zu thun hat — über mittelalterliche Intoleranz schreien, und den Angreifer zu denunciren suchen als einen Solchen, der ein neues „Hep! Hep!“ in Scene setzen wolle.“

Diese meine Berichtigung wurde von verschiedenen Blättern übernommen, u. A. von der katholischen „Germania“; welche damals eine Reihe von Artikeln gegen die Judenschaft veröffentlichte, und nun auch meine Anführung — gut 90 Procent der Gründer und Börsianer sind Juden — citirte.

Die Juden sind die wüthendsten „Culturkämpfer“ gewesen. Wenn nicht Tact und Anstand, so hätte sie schon Klugheit und Vorsicht — denn sie können nicht wissen, was ihnen bevorsteht — zurückhalten müssen, sich in den Streit zwischen Staatsregierung und Katholicismus zu mischen. Aber gerade die Juden schürten diesen bedauernswerthen Kampf aus Leibeskräften. Was Wunder, wenn die katholische „Germania“ endlich Revanche nahm und den Spiess umdrehte, indem sie die Auswüchse und Sünden des Judenthums entwickelte. Da schrieten die Juden Wehe und Zeter! Sie jammerten und erbosten sich ob der „Judenhetze“, ohne zu bedenken, dass sie Jahre lang eine frische fröhliche „Katholikenhetze“ betrieben haben. Der Rabbiner Philippon in Bonn, welcher die „Allgemeine Zeitung für das Judenthum“ herausgibt, woselbst er jeden Angriff auf die Judenschaft registriert, und insbesondere die „Judenhetze“ der „Germania“ verdammt, entblödete sich nicht, ein Brandunglück in Paderborn als die böswillige That von „Ultramontanen“ hinzustellen, und so den armen Abgebrannten die Liebesgaben zu kürzen; was eine öffentliche Erklärung und Widerlegung des Comité, bestehend aus Beamten und Einwohnern beider christlichen Confessionen, hervorrief.

Selbstverständlich secundirte den Juden gar treulich die „liberale“ Presse; und namentlich die „90 Procent“, aus denen man im Handumdrehen „60 Procent“ machte, wurden energisch in Abrede gestellt. Aber anstatt sich gegen mich und resp.

die „Gartenlaube“, als die eigentlichen Urheber jener Behauptung zu kehren, war man wieder so schlaue, uns Beide gänzlich aus dem Spiel zu lassen, und beschränkte sich auf ein Kreuzfeuer gegen die „Germania“. Ein Börsenblatt rechnete schnell aus, dass von den Berliner Gründungen 58½ Procent auf die Christen und nur 41½ Procent auf die Juden kämen. Man hatte sogar die Dreistigkeit, die heftige Vermehrung der Juden in Berlin, ihre starke Einwanderung und starke Fruchtbarkeit, schlankweg abzuleugnen, und sich dafür auf das „Berliner Städtische Jahrbuch“ zu berufen. Nun bestätigt aber gerade der neueste Jahrgang dieses Werkes meine desfallsigen Behauptungen und zeigt, wie sicher meine Schätzungen gewesen sind. Er widerlegt sowol die „erste ordentliche Lehrerin an der jüdischen Gemeinde-Mädchenschule“ wie die edle „Volkszeitung“ des Herrn Franz Duncker, welche sich jene famose Berechnung des Börsenblattes zu eigen gemacht hatte. Aus diesem Jahrbuche pro 1875 kann man auch (S. 141) ersehen, dass die hiesige jüdische Gemeinde nicht aus Verpflichtung, sondern freiwillig für ihre Armen, Waisen und Kranken sorgt. Erst ganz neuerdings, erst in Folge meiner Anführung, dass die Berliner Juden durchgehends wohlhabende und reiche Leute sind, hat die Judenschaft ihre Armen, um doch auch öffentliche Arme aufzeigen zu können, der Stadt überwiesen.

Meine andere, mir erst von der „Schlesischen Presse“ abgeköthigte Behauptung: 90 Procent der Gründer und Börsianer sind Juden — kann wol nicht im Ernst bestritten, braucht nicht noch besonders bewiesen zu werden. Nicht nur in Berlin, Wien, Frankfurt a. M., nicht nur in Deutschland und Oesterreich-Ungarn sind die Börsianer zu neun Zehntel Juden resp. getaufte Juden: auch an den Börsen von London und Paris dominiren die Juden; auch hier stockt „an den hohen jüdischen Festtagen“ das Geschäft. Ich stehe aber nicht an, auch zu behaupten: von den Gründungen der Schwindelperiode in Deutschland fallen gut 90 Procent auf die Juden; und ich werde dies später durch eine besondere Zusammenstellung belegen. Einstweilen verweise ich auf „Saling's Börsen-Papiere“ und auf die Schrift „Die Berliner Emissionshäuser und ihre Emissionen in den Jahren 1871 und 1872“. In beiden Büchern mag man einfach die jüdischen Firmen und ihre Gründungen zusammenzählen, und die Summe mit der Zahl der von christlichen Bankhäusern verfassten Gesellschaften vergleichen.

In Sachen der „90 Procent“ brachte die demokratische „Staatsbürgerzeitung“ einen Leitartikel „Das moderne Judenthum“, aus dem ich nur einige Sätze übernehmen will: „Die liberalen Blätter aller Schattirungen haben dem Judenthum allezeit eine Connivenz bewiesen, welche die ruhelose Kritik unserer Tage weder dem Königthum noch der Kirche, weder dem Adel noch der Klerisei, weder der Bourgeoisie noch dem Arbeiterstande gewährt. Dem jüdischen Talent ist heute dieselbe freie Bahn geöffnet wie dem christlichen. Leider zeigt aber das moderne Judenthum sehr wenig Sinn für seine Emanicipation, und betrachtet nach wie vor den rücksichtslosen Gelderwerb als einzigen Zweck seines Daseins. Es ist neuerdings ohne Widerspruch constatirt worden, dass 90 Procent unter den Jobbern und Gründern der Schwindelperiode aus Juden bestand, während ihre Gesamtzahl doch nur den 76. Theil der Bevölkerung ausmacht. Es ist doch nicht christlich-germanische Schuld, sondern freier Entschluss des Judenthums, dass es den Wucher in Generalpacht genommen hat. Von den Halsabschneidern der Aristokratie bis zu den Rückkaufshändlern, diesen Würgengeln der arbeitenden Classen, recrutiren sich die Wucherer durch ganz Deutschland fast nur aus Juden. — — „Der erste Schritt zur Besserung ist, jeden faulen Fleck rückhaltlos aufzudecken, unbekümmert um die Verdächtigung, als mittelalterlicher Hep-Hep-Schreier dargestellt zu werden, und ähnliche faule Witze. Es liegt in der Hand der Juden, aufzugehen im Volksganzen und redlich die harte Arbeit mit uns zu theilen. Beharren sie in ihrer Sonderstellung, so thun sie es auf eigene Gefahr. Und vor dieser Gefahr wollten wir warnen.“

Solche Stimmen sind aber noch selten. Nur wenige Blätter — darunter namentlich die, welche die „liberale“ Presse neuerdings als „Scandalblätter“ oder „Revolverpresse“ zu bezeichnen liebt — treten den Ausschreitungen und der Ueberhebung der Judenschaft entgegen. Sehr wahr äusserte der „Berliner Figaro“: „Das ist ja das Charakteristische unserer Zeit, dass fast Niemand es wagt, seine Ueberzeugung offen und ehrlich auszusprechen.“

Als im Sommer 1875 die officiöse „Provinzial-Correspondenz“ der Berliner Börse ihre Sünden vorritt, traten für die Angeklagte sofort die „liberalen“ Zeitungen in die Schranken; da zeigte es sich schlagend, dass fasst die gesammte Presse von der Börsen- und Handelswelt abhängig ist. Auch die biedere „Volkszeitung“ fehlte unter den Advocaten der Börse nicht. Zwar declamirt das „Organ für Jedermann“ zuweilen gegen das Gründerthum, d. h. es macht allgemeine Redensarten; zwar warf es bei Gründung der Bamberger'schen „Reichsbank“ der „Nationalzeitung“ „schamlose Berechnungen“ vor, bezeichnete es dieses Blatt als „ganz und gar versunken im Dienste der Jobberei und Geldmacherei“ — aber man braucht solche Scharmützel nicht so tragisch zu nehmen. „Nationalzeitung“ wie „Volkszeitung“ werden in der Hauptsache von Juden geschrieben; und Juden thun einander nicht Ueberlast, wissen sich immer wieder zu vereinigen. Herr Franz Duncker, der Verleger des „Organs für Jedermann“, ist zwar nicht selber Gründer, hat aber unter den Gründern einen sehr nahen Verwandten; und daher ist Vorsicht, sind Rücksichten geboten!

Die „Nationalzeitung“, dieseit dem Tode des ehrenwerthen Friedrich Zabel, hauptsächlich von dem Dioskurenpaar Lasker und Bamberger geleitet wird, steht jetzt ganz und gar zu Diensten der Börse. Herr Bamberger, der parlamentarische „Jongleur“ — so nannte ihn die „Vossische Zeitung“ — treibt hier ungenirt seine manchesterlichen Künste; wie er's denn neulich fertig brachte, sein eigenes Werk, die „Reichsbank“, der Abwechselung halber, etwas anzugreifen. Herr Bamberger, der Gründer der „Deutschen Bank“, der Erfinder der „Reichsbank“, dem selbst die „Volkszeitung“ „schamlose Berechnungen“ vorwarf, und den verschiedene Blätter beschuldigen, er habe, als Mitbesitzer oder Hauptactionär eines Nickelbergwerks, im Reichstag so eifrig für Einführung der Nickelmünzen plaidirt, die sich jetzt als sehr unpraktisch erweisen — Herr Ludwig Bamberger war so unvorsichtig, auf der Tribüne des Parlaments von Mitgliedern der „Revolverpresse“ zu sprechen, die in der Jahresversammlung des Vereins für Socialpolitik zu Eisenach erschienen wären und daselbst schutzzöllnerische Anträge gestellt hätten. Als nun der betreffende Antragsteller, Dr. Rudolf Meyer, Herrn Bamberger auf Pistolen forderte, wich dieser mannhaft zurück und bethenerte, Herrn Meyer gar nicht gemeint zu haben. Sein Organ aber, die „Nationalzeitung“, bezeichnete entrüstet die Herausforderung als ein Attentat auf die parlamentarische Redefreiheit, als die Einführung „amerikanischer Sitten“. „Findet sie Nachahmung“, ruft das jüdische Blatt aus: so würde man gut thun, Rowdies und Pistolenschützen in den Reichstag zu wählen, statt Männer, welche das öffentliche Wohl zu vertreten haben.“ Die Juden können eben Alles vertragen. nur keine Schiessgewehre.

Herr Ludwig Bamberger, und mit ihm die „liberale“ Presse, leiden an einer grossartigen Begriffsverwirrung, wenn sie solche Blätter, welche die manchesterliche Misswirthschaft enthüllen, die Ausplünderung des Volks durch Gründer und Börsianer verdammen — als „Revolverpresse“ bezeichnen. Zur Revolverpresse gehören vielmehr die Börsenblätter, welche gegen Geld und gute Worte den frevelhaften Schwindel unterstützt und gefördert haben, welche von den grossen Banquiers und Bankinstituten einen Jahressold von je Tausenden und Zehntausenden regelmässig bezogen und zum Theil noch beziehen; welche von jeder Gründung ihren Antheil, baar oder in Actien, erhielten, und wenn sie ihn nicht erhielten, wie echte Presspiraten vorgingen, so lange drohten und scandalirten, bis ihnen der Mund gestopft wurde. Zur Revolverpresse gehören die Blätter, welche für die Gründungen des Herrn Ludwig Bamberger die unverschämteste Reclame machten, und diesen Finanzkünstler verschiedentlich als Ersatzmann für den Finanzminister Camphausen empfahlen.

Doch ich will von meinen Artikeln erzählen. Die Zuschriften an die Redaction der „Gartenlaube“ wurden häufiger und heftiger. Eine solche Epistel, unterzeichnet: Fr. Wilh. Schmidt, erklärte meine Mittheilungen für lauter erstunkene Lügen, und behauptete namentlich, ich hätte die Einnahmen der „Nationalzeitung“ für Gründungs-Inserate viel zu hoch gegriffen. Eine Seite Annoncen koste, wenn das Inserat wiederholt werde, nicht 125, sondern nur 75 Thaler, und der grosse Modewaarenhändler Rudolf Hertzog, der wöchentlich mehre Mal inserire, zahle sogar noch weniger als 75 Thaler pro Seite.

Der Schreiber scheint in der Expedition der „Nationalzeitung“ ausserordentlich gut Bescheid zu wissen. — Andere schrieben: „Diese Artikel missfallen in vielen Kreisen“; oder: „Es wird erwartet, dass diese Artikel nicht fortgesetzt werden“. Man hatte die Anmassung, die Einstellung meiner Schilderungen kategorisch zu fordern, und nach Art der „Schlesischen Presse“ mit dem Abspringen von Abonnenten zu drohen.

Als bald verfiel man auch darauf, mir unlautere Motive unterzulegen und behauptete: ich wäre gedungen, um die Gründer und Gründergenossen an den Pranger zu stellen; ich würde dafür bezahlt. — Ach, meine Herren, das war sehr einfältig von Ihnen! Für „Enthüllungen“ giebt der Jude nichts! Aber umgekehrt, wird ein Schuh daraus. Ich hätte grosse Summen nehmen können, würde ich die Artikel nicht geschrieben oder doch abgebrochen haben.

Diese Leute meinen, Jedermann sei für Geld zu haben; sie können sich nichts Höheres vorstellen, als gekauft zu werden; und ich glaube, dass sie Den, der sich nicht kaufen lässt, sogar verachten. Nun denn, ich will mich dieser Verachtung preisgeben und hier bekennen, dass mir mancherlei Anträge gemacht worden sind. Gleich nach dem ersten Artikel sagte man mir: Du hast gewiss auch an der Börse verloren? Wie viel ist es? Es soll Dir erstattet werden! — Später liess man mich mehr als einmal fragen: Was kostet es, wenn Du diese oder jene Gesellschaft nicht nennst? Was kostet es, wenn Du gewisse Namen verschweigst? — Selbstverständlich sagte und fragte man so nicht direct, sondern man suchte durch Dritte mit mir zu unterhandeln. Einer der letzten Bestechungsversuche war so fein, so plausibel, dass er mir eine gewisse Bewunderung abnöthigte, und ich entschlossen bin, ihn gelegentlich zu bearbeiten.

Ich darf wol bemerken, dass diese Anträge mir ausschliesslich von jüdischen Leuten gemacht wurden. Ich habe, soweit es mich persönlich betrifft, keine Namen genannt; aber falls man mich provociren sollte, werde ich sie auch nennen. Ich weiss, dass zum Theil dieselben Personen, die mich in anonymen oder pseudonymen Zuschriften an die „Gartenlaube“ schmähten und verdächtigten, vor- oder nachher oder auch gleichzeitig mit mir unterhandelten.

Besonders die Juden fühlten sich durch meine Artikel getroffen. Noch ehe ich's ausgesprochen, dass hauptsächlich ihnen der Börsen- und Gründungsschwindel zur Last fällt, trieb sie ihr böses Gewissen, gegen mich zu agitiren. Erst in Folge der Anfeindungen und Machinationen, die meine Aufsätze erfuhren; um dieselben vollends zu rechtfertigen und noch besser zu begründen; zugleich aber auch, um zu zeigen, dass ich mich nicht einschüchtern lasse — habe ich jetzt bei der Buch-Ausgabe, in Betreff der Juden, verschiedene Zusätze gemacht, wie sie sich namentlich S. 148 ff. und in den Nachträgen (S. 342 ff.) finden.

Um ehrlichen Missverständnissen vorzubeugen, unehrlichen Verdächtigungen und Denunciationen zu begegnen, erkläre ich aber ausdrücklich, indem ich eine Redewendung des Abgeordneten Windthorst-Meppen variire: Ich will die Juden nicht umbringen oder abschlachten, sie auch nicht aus dem Lande vertreiben; ich will ihnen nichts nehmen von dem, was sie einmal besitzen — aber ich will sie revidiren, und zwar funditus revidiren. Nicht länger dürfen falsche Toleranz und Sentimentalität, leidige Schwäche und Furcht uns Christen abhalten, gegen die Auswüchse, Ausschreitungen und Anmaßungen der Judenschaft vorzugehen. Nicht länger dürfen wir's dulden, dass die Juden sich überall in den Vordergrund, an die Spitze drängen, überall die Führung, das grosse Wort an sich reissen. Sie schieben uns Christen stets bei Seite, sie drücken uns an die Wand, sie benehmen uns die Luft und den Athem. Sie führen thatsächlich die Herrschaft über uns; sie besitzen eine gefährliche Uebermacht und sie üben einen höchst unheilvollen Einfluss. Seit vielen Jahrhunderten ist es wieder zum ersten Mal, dass ein fremder, an Zahl so kleiner Stamm die grosse eigentliche Nation beherrscht. Die ganze Weltgeschichte kennt kein zweites Beispiel, dass ein heimatloses Volk, eine physisch wie psychisch entschieden degenerirte Race, blos durch List und Schlaueit, durch Wucher und Schacher, über den Erdkreis gebietet.

Von den Juden können wir lernen. Vom getauften Minister bis zum polnischen Schnorrer bilden sie eine einzige Kette; machen sie, fest geschlossen, bei jeder Gelegenheit Front gegen die Christen. Fürst Bismarck ist, wie seine zahlreichen Strafanträge lehren, sehr empfindlicher Natur und gewiss ein gewaltiger Mann. Aber Ihr dürft zehnmal eher den Reichskanzler beleidigen als den schäbigsten Juden. Seht einen Trödeljuden nur schief an, und sofort erschallt von Gumbinnen bis Lindau, von Meseritz bis Bamberg und Oppenheim der Ruf: Israel ist in Gefahr! Mendel Frenkel, in einem galizischen Nest wegen Betrugs oder Diebstahls eingesperrt, verlangt im Gefängniss koschere Kost, und da er sie nicht erhält, schreit die ganze europäische Presse über Justizmord!

Ein Jude sorgt und kämpft stets für den andern; sie machen ununterbrochen für einander die wüthendste Reclame. Ihre Schriftsteller und Künstler, ihre Wissenschaftler und Politiker sind in aller Leute Mund, paradiren täglich in den Zeitungen, werden mit Ehre und Lohn überschüttet. Hätte ein Christ die Lasker'schen „Enthüllungen“ gemacht, sie wären wenig beachtet, schnell vergessen worden. So aber hoben die Juden den kleinen Lasker auf ein Piedestal von der Höhe des Montblanc, priesen und feierten ihn als die Uneigennützigkeit und Tapferkeit in Person, machten aus ihm einen jüdischen Heiligen. Auch Herr Lasker lebt nicht von der Luft, sondern von einer Sinecure, die er beim Städtischen Pfandbriefamt inne hat. Und vorher, als er nur unbesoldeter Assessor war, bezog er von der „Nationalzeitung“ einen hübschen Redacteur-Gehalt. Ob er ihn noch bezieht, weiss ich nicht. Auch Eduard Lasker ist, ebensowenig wie die liebe Sonne, ohne Flecken. Ein solcher Fleck ist z. B. die Verbindung mit Herrn Pelckmann, der seinen Brotherrn, Geheimrath Wagener verrieth, um Lasker'n das Material zu den „Enthüllungen“ zu liefern, und der jetzt wegen Unterschlagung im Gefängnisse sitzt. Ein solcher Fleck ist auch Lasker's unbezähmbare Eitelkeit, die er freilich mit seinem ganzen Volke theilt. Unmittelbar nach den „Enthüllungen“ liess er die „Erlebnisse einer Mannesseele“ erscheinen, worin er seine zahlreichen Liebesabenteuer(!) erzählt, und von denen der Herausgeber, Berthold Auerbach sagt: „Gedrunge und knapp in der Form, edel und reif im Gehalt, werden diese Blätter, nach meiner Ueberzeugung, von dauerndem Werth in der deutschen Literatur sein.“ Trotzdem wurde die ganze Auflage zurückgekauft, mit 5 bis 8 Thaler pro Exemplar bezahlt, weil Herr Lasker merkte, dass er sich, und verschiedene Familien dazu, arg compromittirt hatte. In der Reichs-Justiz-Commission suchte Herr Lasker sich durch einen so wunderbaren Antrag bemerklich zu machen, dass er hinterher, „wegen Ueberbürdung mit Arbeiten“, seinen Austritt nehmen musste. Neuerdings ist er, ziemlich unbemerkt, wieder eingetreten.

Der „Kulturkampf“ werden Juden eingefundenes Fressen, und sie können davon nicht genug bekommen. Der „Kulturkampf“ soll den Börsen- und Gründungsschwindel vergessen lassen, über die schwere Krisis und den allgemeinen Nothstand täuschen. Wenn die Katholiken so klug wären, mit der Staatsregierung ihren Frieden zu machen — und es scheint jetzt, als ob die Geneigtheit dazu auf beiden Seiten vorhanden ist — würde man bald den gemeinsamen Feind erkennen; die wahren Reichsfeinde, welche den Ruf des Deutschen Volkes so arg geschädigt, den Glanz des jungen Reiches so schnell getrübt haben. Darum ist die „National-Zeitung“ voll Sorge und Unruhe, und sie ruft: Kein Ausgleich! Wir verlangen die unbedingte Unterwerfung der Klerikalen! Selbst das Wort „Frieden“ ist ihr anstössig, und sie schalt die „Provinzial-Correspondenz“, die es gebraucht hatte. Als man im Reichstag Miene machte, sich nach gewissen fragwürdigen Eisenbahn-Prioritäten zu erkundigen, die dem Reichsinvalidenfonds angeschmiert sind, drohte die „National-Zeitung“, dem Centrum wie einem kleinen Kinde, mit der „grossen und schreckhaft aussehenden schwarzen Mappe“ des Reichskanzlers, welche über die Katholiken neue Kirchengesetze ausschütten werde; und um solch unliebsame Erkundigungen möglichst zu beschwichtigen, um den „Scandal“ zu beschwören, begann sie ihrem gefürchteten Gegner, Herrn Windthorst zu schmeicheln, und sie schmeichelte sogar Herrn Bebel. Zu Anfang der Reichstagssession schwebte sie in grösster Angst, dass die Regierung sich von der Manchester-Politik lossagen werde; bis ein Artikel der „Provinzial-Correspondenz“ sie wieder aufathmen liess. „Es bleibt beim Alten!“ jubelte sie, und lobte begeistert plötzlich den „ernsten getragenen Stil“ des officiösen Organs. Aber die Strafrechtsnovelle brachte sie wieder in Verlegenheit, und sie wusste nicht, wie sie sich drehen und wenden sollte. Einerseits zog sie Fürst Bismarck, andererseits schämte sie sich doch vor der Nation, fürchtete sie die bevorstehenden neuen Wahlen. „Alle Strafrechtsparagraphe der Welt können den Schaden nicht wieder gut machen, wenn die Einigkeit zwischen Regierung und Reichstagsmehrheit in Frage gestellt wird!“ jammerte sie; und sie war dann auch wirklich wieder zu einem Compromiss bereit. Beim Jahresschlusse wirft sie sich in die Brust und declamirt: „Fürst Bismarck ist eine in sich geschlossene Persönlichkeit, und die Nationalliberalen sind noch viel unwandelbarer.“ (!!) Nun, wir werden sehen! Wir wollen abwarten, was die Nationalliberalen und die Manchesterleute, um sich am Ruder zu erhalten, noch für Sprünge vollführen werden, und was bei den nächsten Wahlen von ihnen übrig bleiben wird!

Selbstverständlich konnten die Drohungen der Juden auch Herrn Keil nicht einschüchtern. Allein er wurde doch schwieriger. Er liess Worte, wie „Schmu“, „koscher“ etc., obwol sie den Juden selber sehr geläufig sind, nicht mehr passiren; er strich, nachdem ich schon die Correctur gelesen, alle Anspielungen auf das Judenthum und mancherlei Pointen; und wenn ich mich darüber beschwerte und auf unsere Abmachung verwies, so sprach er von seinem „Gerechtigkeitsgefühl“ und von seinem „redactionellen Recht.“ Auch erschienen die Artikel sehr unregelmässig und in viel zu langen Pausen. Zahlreiche und häufig bogenlange Briefe wurden zwischen uns gewechselt; sie verdienen ebenfalls gedruckt zu werden, und sie würden in literarischen Kreisen nicht wenig interessiren.

Auch Herr Lasker fühlte sich durch meine Kritik seiner „Enthüllungen“ (S. 244) beschwert, und unter dem Vorwande zu reclamiren, liess er durch einen „Freund“ über sich eine breite Reclame ausgiessen (Vgl. S. 341); welche in der „Gartenlaube“, wieder ohne mein Wissen, erschien. Sie erregte selbst in „liberalen“ Kreisen Kopfschütteln, man wollte aus ihr folgern, dass die „Gartenlaube“ sich im vollen Rückzuge befinde, und einige Blätter erhoben, zu meinem aufrichtigen Bedauern, sogar den Vorwurf, die »Gartenlaube« sei „jämmerlich zu Kreuz gekrochen“. Ich hege diese Ansicht durchaus nicht; ich habe im Gegentheil Herrn Keil sofort mein Compliment gemacht, seinen Tact und sein Geschick gerühmt, dass er die plumpe Reclame ihrem vollen Umfange nach zum Abdruck brachte. Gewiss wollte er sie dem Urtheil der Leser überlassen; gewiss meinte er, dass sie sich selber richte.

Glagau, Der Börsenschwindel.

c

Ueberhaupt muss ich Herrn Keil meine grosse Anerkennung aussprechen; er hat sich um das Publikum sehr verdient gemacht. Kein anderes Blatt von Bedeutung hätte den Muth gehabt, diese Artikel zu bringen; kein anderes mir gestattet zu sagen, was ich hier gesagt habe. Allerdings kann die Gartenlaube auch viel mehr riskiren; ihre Verbreitung ist zu riesig und nicht leicht zu erschüttern. — Heute freilich, nachdem diese Artikel über ein Jahr erschienen, würden auch andere Journale die Fortsetzung bringen. Nach dem Vorgehen der „Gartenlaube“ begannen kleine wie grosse Zeitungen gleichfalls in „Enthüllungen“ zu machen; d. h. à la Lasker, mit der nöthigen Vor- und Rücksicht, und in der frommen Absicht, sich selber weiss zu waschen. Verschiedene grosse Zeitungen, die den Schwindel einst mit Begeisterung colportirt, und sich dabei fett und dick gefüttert haben, sitzen heute über den Schwindel strenge zu Gericht; und man konnte, z. B. in Breslau, Köln, Frankfurt a. M., das erbauliche Schauspiel beobachten, wie sie sich untereinander ihre Gründungssünden vorwarfen, sich gegenseitig „Spitzbuben!“ nannten.

Die jetzt gesammelten Artikel haben mich über ein Jahr beschäftigt, und fast ausschliesslich. Das Sichten des grossen Materials, die zahllosen Recherchen, der Briefwechsel mit Herrn Keil und mit dem Publikum kosteten viel Mühe und Arbeit. Bald begann auch das Publikum mitzuarbeiten; aus allen Schichten und Kreisen der Gesellschaft, selbst aus Parlaments- und Börsenkreisen gingen mir Beiträge und — Anerkennung zu. Selbst Börsenleute, selbst Juden sprachen mir ihren Beifall aus; und ebenso Männer der Wissenschaft — natürlich nicht manchesterliche „Volkswirthe“ — aber sowol Freihändler wie Schutzzöllner. Auch stehen meiner Auffassung und meinen Ausführungen verschiedene Fachschriftsteller zur Seite — ich nenne nur F. Perrot, Georg Hirth, Rudolf Meyer, F. Stöpel, Emil Richter — deren einschlägige Schriften ich später heranziehen werde.

Vielleicht ist es nicht überflüssig zu bemerken, dass ich mich weder zu den Conservativen noch zu den Socialdemokraten, weder zu den Ultramontanen noch zu den Particularisten zähle; dass ich mindestens so „liberal“ zu sein glaube, wie die National-liberalen und die Fortschrittsleute zusammen genommen. Diese

Artikel sind von keinem politischen oder confessionellen Parteistandpunkte geschrieben, sondern ohne Rücksicht auf die Parteien und ohne Ansehen der Person, ohne Animosität, ohne Jemanden zu schonen oder zu begünstigen. Selbst Personen, zu denen ich in Beziehung gestanden, habe ich verdienstermassen vermerkt. Der Regel nach sind dagegen nur solche Namen genannt, die in der Geschichte des Schwindels mehrfach vorkommen; Leute, die sich zufällig und nur einmal verlaufen, liess ich fast immer bei Seite.

Meine Artikel haben in der öffentlichen Meinung einen grossen Umschwung herbeigeführt: die Gründer und Gründergenossen sind moralisch bereits gerichtet. Und auch die Nemesis schreitet vor — freilich noch sehr langsam. Schon nahm sich mancher jener Elenden das Leben; neuerdings packt auch hin und wieder Einen der Staatsanwalt.

Wie ich wol nicht erst betonen darf, gehen diese Aufsätze weit hinaus über Jobber und Gründer, über Börse und Judenschaft. Sie richten sich gegen die Corruption in der Gesellschaft, die von oben bis unten mit unsaubern Elementen durchsetzt ist. Sie richten sich gegen die Corruption in der Presse, die im Grossen und Ganzen unendlich gesunken, eine feile Dirne geworden ist. Sie richten sich gegen die Corruption in den Parlamenten, die einer scharfen Säuberung bedürfen. Möge das Deutsche Volk sich bei den nächsten Wahlen vorsehen, möge es sich die Gründer und Gründergenossen wohl merken! Wenn Herr Lasker in Betreff seiner politischen Freunde, die da gegründet haben, zwischen soliden und unsoliden Gründungen, zwischen solider und unsolider Theilnahme daran, unterscheiden will, so ist das blosse Sophistik. Es giebt aus der Zeit der Schwindelperiode keine solide Gründung und keinen soliden Gründer oder Mitgründer. Wer beim Gründen geholfen, ist dafür auch bezahlt worden, und zwar stets auf Kosten der geschorenen Actionäre. Wer als Volksvertreter und Gesetzgeber wirken will, muss vor Allem reine Hände haben: die aber hat kein Gründer und kein Gründergehilfe!

Die Artikel, wie sie ursprünglich in der „Gartenlaube“ erschienen, sind jetzt wol um das Doppelte erweitert. Vieles, was aus räumlichen Gründen und anderen Rücksichten dort wegblieb, ist hier aufgenommen; Vieles ist neu hinzugekommen, und das Ganze bis in die allerjüngste Zeit fortgesetzt. Es liegt daher so ziemlich ein neues Buch vor.

Selbstverständlich ist aber das Thema noch nicht entfernt durch- und zu Ende geführt; noch bleibt Vieles abzuhandeln. In den folgenden Artikeln werde ich die Fabriken, Berg- und Hüttenwerke, die Banken und Eisenbahnen vorführen, und ausserdem namentlich illustriren: Die Generalversammlungen und die Verwaltungsräthe; Die Banquiers und das Publikum; Die Makler, die Bleistifte und das Börsenspiel; Die Presse im Dienste der Börse und der Gründer; Die nächsten Folgen des Schwindels; Die Ueberspeculation und der „Krach“; Die Geschäfts- und Arbeitskrisis; Die „Entgründungen“; Die Gründer im Parlament; Die Gründer vor Gericht; Das Haus S. Bleichröder und die Disconto-Gesellschaft; Der Reichsinvalidenfonds; Die Münzen- und Notenhetze; Die Reichsbank; Die Mängel und Schäden des Actienwesens; Die Börse auf ihre natürliche Bedeutung zurückgeführt.

Die Course anlangend, so sind dieselben während dieses Buch im Druck sich befand, noch viel tiefer gesunken. Die Hausse, Ausgangs November, verunglückte; dagegen haben die grossen Bankinstitute, um die Bilanzen günstiger abschliessen zu können, zum Jahreswechsel eine Courstreiberei durchgesetzt; und seit Neujahr sind den zahllosen Papieren, welche keine Dividende geben, die famosen „Börsenzinsen“, gewöhnlich 4 Procent, zugeschlagen. Dieselben bröckeln jedoch schnell wieder ab, und auch im Uebrigen wird das Sinken der Course wahrscheinlich noch lange fortgehen.

Berlin, Januar 1876.

Otto Glagau.

Zur Einleitung.

Speculation und Schwindel — Die „Krisen“ und die „Volkswirthe“ — Der „internationale“ Börsenverkehr — Fremde „Fonds“ und fremde „Lotterie-Anleihen“ — Baruch Hirsch Straussberg, genannt Dr. Strousberg — Herzog von Ujest, Herzog von Ratibor, Graf Lehndorff und die „Rumänier“ — Die Presse — Das Manchesterthum — Das neue Actiengesetz — Lasker und Miquel, Hammacher und Braun-Wiesbaden.

Speculation und Schwindel sind die beiden Mächte, die heute auf dem Thron der Welt sitzen, unter deren Herrschaft die civilisirte Menschheit seufzt und stöhnt, siecht und verkümmert. Wenn Speculation und Schwindel einen ausserordentlichen Fang gethan haben, wenn in ihrem Netze Hunderttausende und Millionen zappeln, wenn auf der ausgeplünderten und ausgesogenen Gesellschaft ein allgemeiner Nothstand lastet — dann spricht die moderne Volkswirtschaft von einer Krisis, die sie bald eine Handels- oder Geschäfts-, bald eine Geld- oder Wirthschafts-Krisis nennt. Solche Krisen kehren seit dem letzten Vierteljahrhundert immer häufiger, mit erschrecklicher Regelmässigkeit wieder, und die Herren „Volkswirthe“ scheinen sie schon als ein nothwendiges Uebel zu betrachten, indem sie dieselben als krankhafte Zeitströmungen erklären, nach Art eines klinischen Lehrers die „Diagnose“ der angeblichen Krankheit stellen, und die „therapeutischen Mittel“ zu ihrer Bewältigung abhandeln. Das heisst aber doch, die Begriffe verkehren, die Thatsachen verdrehen; es heisst, die Schuldigen unterschlagen, und dafür die armen bethörten Opfer anklagen wollen. Fürwahr, ein Hohn, wie er grausamer nicht zu denken ist!

Der jüngste Schwindel geschah 1871/72; er übertraf seine Vorgänger weitaus an Umfang und an Frechheit; und an den Wunden, die er geschlagen, blutet noch immer ganz Europa und auch Amerika. Die Veranlassung gab unter Anderem der glorreiche Krieg gegen Frankreich. Das Deutsche Volk, plötzlich geeint und mächtig, musste sein erwachendes Selbst- und Frohgefühl sofort theuer bezahlen. Die Dämonen des Schwindels stürzten darüber her und überrumpelten es in seiner Siegesfreude und nationalen Begeisterung. Die heiligsten Gefühle eines Volkes wurden von der Speculation und von dem Schwindel für ihre schnöden Umtriebe, für ihre verbrecherischen Zwecke ausgebeutet.

Freilich, der Boden war schon früher vorbereitet.

Schon seit 1866 begann das Börsentreiben, das bis dahin hauptsächlich in Paris blühte, sich auch nach Deutschland zu verpflanzen, und auch hier üppig emporzuwuchern. Die Berliner Börse überholte die Plätze von Hamburg und Frankfurt a. M. und fing an mit ihrer Schwester in Wien mächtig zu wetteifern. Der Börsen-Verkehr nahm, wie der Börsen-Jargon sich ausdrückt, einen internationalen Charakter an; das heisst, die Geldmächte aller Länder reichten einander die Hände zum ^{ausgesprochenen} schönen Bunde. Allerhand fremde „Fonds“, darunter die famosen „Italiener“, und die noch famoseren „Türken“; allerhand unsagbare „Lotterie-Anleihen“, z. B. Bari-, Bukarester-, Finnische-, Madrider-, Neuenburger-, Schwedische-, Venetianische-etc. Loose, wurden gleichzeitig an den Börsen eingeführt, und das Geld floss in einem Gewirr von Bächen und Kanälen ins Ausland ab. Hundert Banken und Bänkchen überschwemmten die Deutschen Staaten mit ihren Noten, und die Papiergeldwirthschaft bedrohte und schädigte das Publikum über die Maßen. Gewisse Effecten, wie die Actien der Oesterreichischen Credit-Anstalt, der Oesterreichischen Südbahn und der Oesterreichisch-Französischen Staatsbahn (kurzweg „Credit“, „Lombarden“ und „Franzosen“ genannt), wurden zu Spielpapieren an allen europäischen Börsen; und das sogenannte Differenz- oder Zeitgeschäft, wo man verkauft, was man gar nicht hat, und wo man kauft, was man nie beziehen will — bildete wie früher in Paris und Wien, nun auch in Berlin den eigentlichen Börsen-Verkehr, gegen welchen das Cassageschäft, das sind die wirklichen Käufe und Verkäufe, immer mehr in den Hintergrund trat.

Mancherlei Projektenmacher, Glücksjäger und Industrieritter kamen nach Berlin und excellirten hier wie kaum anderswo. Am Himmel der Speculation schoss ein neues Gestirn herauf, ein Komet mit riesigem unendlich langem Schweife, und der eigenthümlich schillernde und glitzernde Schein, den er verbreitete, verdunkelte bald alles sonstige Licht, namentlich auch das im Hirn seiner neuen Mitbürger. Dieser Komet nannte sich Strousberg; er war ein Sohn des auserwählten Volks und gebürtig aus dem Polnischen Ostpreussen, da wo Fuchs und Wolf sich Gute Nacht sagen. Seine Thaten und seine Erfolge harren noch ihres eigentlichen Sängers, aber sie waren so wunderbar, so fabelhaft, dass eifrige Jünger und ehrliche Schwärmer ihn den „Eisenbahn-König“ hiessen, ihn als einen „Cultur-Heros“ feierten. Wie das Leben aller

Heroen und Halbgötter ist auch die Geschichte Strousberg's ein — Mythos. Als zwölfjähriger Bocher wanderte Baruch Hirsch Straussberg nach England, und traf zwanzig Jahre später als Doctor Bethel Henry Strousberg in Berlin ein. Was er inzwischen getrieben? Wahrscheinlich alles Mögliche. Er selber lässt erzählen, dass er in der Fremde Commis, Reporter, Lehrer, Speculant, Rentier, Redacteur und Dichter (!) gewesen sei. Ohne Frage führte er ein wechselvolles abenteuerliches Leben, aber es wollte ihm nicht glücken; John Bull und Bruder Jonathan waren nicht dümmer wie er, und so kehrte er nach Deutschland zurück, wo er sein Genie endlich verwerthen konnte. Zunächst war er eine Art Agent oder Commissionär, bis er sich auf den Eisenbahnbau warf, indem er die „General-Entreprise“, oder wie der Abgeordnete Lasker so treffend sich ausdrückte, das „System Strousberg“ erfand. Er baute binnen wenigen Jahren wol ein Dutzend Eisenbahnen, und zwar in der originellsten Weise. Er baute mit fremdem Gelde, denn er selber hatte nur Schulden; und er baute im Uebrigen so schlecht wie nur möglich, und so theuer wie nur denkbar. Natürlich mussten dabei Millionen abfallen, nicht nur für ihn, sondern auch für seine Verbündeten und Helfershelfer. Bald schätzte man ihn einen 20 bis 50fachen Millionär, nannte ihn den modernen Crösus, einen zweiten Grafen Monte Cristo.

Sein Heraufkommen war rapid, aber doch nicht ohne Hindernisse und ohne Schwierigkeiten. Die Börse und die ganze Geschäftswelt betrachtete ihn mit grossem Misstrauen. Lange wies man seine Wechsel zurück, und er konnte sie nur mit ungeheuerem Damno (Verlust) unterbringen. Die von ihm geschaffenen Eisenbahn-Actien und Eisenbahn-Prioritäten fanden nur widerwillige Aufnahme, er musste sie förmlich verschleudern, er schlug sie zu jedem Preise los; aber er fabricirte immer wieder neue und in immer grösseren Massen. So machte er Geld, und mit dem Gelde fand sich alles Uebrige. Zwar lachte und spottete man über den verwegenen Abenteurer, über den dreisten plumpen Parvenu, aber seiner Einladung folgte doch die vornehmste Gesellschaft und schmauste und zechte mit ihm. Er besoldete Literaten aller Grade, er beschenkte Journalisten und setzte ihnen Pensionen aus, und so gewann er die Presse. Fortan konnte man in allen Zeitungen Anekdoten und Notizen über den grossen „Doctor“ lesen, über seinen luxuriösen Haushalt, über seine Freigebigkeit und Mildthätigkeit, über seine Projecte und Unternehmungen. Herr von Bismarck musste es sich gefallen lassen, in den pikanten Artikelchen der Localblätter neben Strousberg und neben der Lucca zu figuriren, und diese oder jene Zeitung warf allen Ernstes die Frage auf: wer denn grösser sei, der „eiserne Graf“ oder der „Eisenbahn-König“? Auch die Witzblätter behandelten den „Wunderdoctor“ in Wort und Bild, und diese Witze sollen ausserordentlich honorirt worden sein.

So wurde Strousberg zum Tagesgespräch, die grösste Berühmtheit Berlin's. An den Schaufenstern der Buch- und Kunsthandlungen erschien der mehr robuste als geistreiche Kopf des grossen „Doctors“, sowie eine „Biografische Charakteristik“ (buchstäblich!), geschrieben von einem Literaten, der sich einen Magyaren zu nennen liebt, und das ellenlange Verzeichniss seiner „Werke“ stets bei sich führt, wie im „Don Juan“ Leporello die Liste von den Liebschaften seines Herrn. Strousberg legte sich endlich auch noch eine eigene Zeitung bei, die „Post“; sie erforderte, wie man behauptet, einen Zuschuss von jährlich 40 bis 80,000 Thalern, hatte zu Mitarbeitern eine gar seltsame Ga-lerie von Charakteren und Capacitäten, leistete aber trotzdem kaum das Mittelmässigste.

Um seine „Geschäfte“ in's Werk zu setzen, um allerhand Connexionen zu gewinnen und dadurch von den Regierungen die Concessionen zu erlangen, hatte der „Wunderdoctor“ nur Eine Maxime, die ihn aber nie im Stich liess. Sie lautete: Ein goldner Schlüssel öffnet jede Thür, und ein mit Gold beladener Esel übersteigt jede Mauer. In jedem Bureau war Strousberg bekannt, in jeder Behörde bis zu den Ministerien hinauf hatte er seine Freunde und Gönner, die ihm Auskunft und Rath ertheilten, die seine Interessen mit Begeisterung verfochten. Verschiedene hohe Beamte mussten um seinetwillen ihren Abschied nehmen. „Der Mann, der Alles kauft“, lautete die Ueberschrift eines Artikels, den ein Localblatt, die Berliner „Tribüne“, dem grossen „Doctor“ widmete. In der That kaufte Strousberg Alles — das war sein offenes Geheimniss. Zu guter letzt kaufte er sich noch den hohen und höchsten Adel, Grafen und Herzoge, und zog mit ihnen nach Rumänien. Seine letzte Schöpfung waren ca. 65 Millionen Thaler $7\frac{1}{2}$ procentige Rumänische Eisenbahn-Obligationen. Dieselben kamen 1868 zum Course von 71 an die Börse und wurden hier unter „Ausländische Fonds“ notirt, während sie blos von Herrn Strousberg und seinen Genossen: Herzog von Ujest; Herzog von Ratibor und Graf Lehdorff „fundirt“ waren: — eine von den vielen Täuschungen, die die unglücklichen Käufer dieses Papiers erfahren mussten! Als Herr Strousberg und Consorten zu Neujahr 1871 die garantirten Zinsen nicht mehr zahlten, während der betreffende Eisenbahnbau selber liegen geblieben war, sanken die „Rumänier“ bis auf einen Cours von 40 herab, worauf sie durch Vermittelung Dritter in 5procentige Actien umgewandelt wurden. Wie viel die hochadligen „Mitconcessionäre“ bei diesem sauberen Geschäft verdient haben, ist nicht genau bekannt geworden; dem grossen „Doctor“ jedoch rechnete Herr J. Hoppe in der „Vossischen Zeitung“ (1871 No. 205) nach, dass er mindestens 10 Millionen Thaler in die Tasche gesteckt habe und über fast ebenso viel die Abrechnung schuldig geblieben sei. Mit den „Rumäniern“, die doch zu viel Gestank verbreiteten, trat der „Wunderdoctor“ einstweilen vom Schauplatz ab, und seine Hinterlassenschaft übernahmen die „Discontogesellschaft“ und das Haus S. Bleichröder, indem sie die betrogenen Gläubiger zu einer Actiengesellschaft vereinigten. Man verlangte, dass die Attentäter von ihrer Beute ca. 25 Millionen Thaler herausgeben sollten, aber Herr Strousberg bewilligte nur 6 Millionen, und man musste wohl oder übel damit zufrieden sein, denn der „fünfzigfache Millionär“ war inzwischen ein bettelarmer Mann geworden. All' seine Häuser, Paläste, Schlösser, Güter und sonstigen Liegenschaften hatte er an seine Frau abgetreten.

Seitdem kamen die „Schöpfungen“ des grossen „Doctors“ sehr in Verruf. Seine Eisenbahnen waren von wahrhaft frevelhafter Beschaffenheit, konnten entweder gar nicht in Betrieb gesetzt werden, oder verursachten doch bald mancherlei Unglücksfälle. Die meisten seiner Eisenbahnen werden in diesem Jahrhundert keine Dividende mehr abwerfen, die Unmasse der von ihm fabricirten Actien ist zum grössten Theile Maculatur. Wie viel blutige Thränen sind über diesen Mann geweint worden, wie viel Flüche und Verwünschungen haben sich auf sein Haupt ergossen, wie viel Jammer, Elend und Verzweiflung hat er zu verantworten!! Die unter dem Nimbus seiner hochadligen Genossen, mit allen Mitteln vertriebenen „Rumänier“ wurden zu einer wahren Landseuche, die Tausende von Existenzen gefressen hat. Gar mancher Besitzer von „Rumäniern“ legte Hand an sich, gar mancher wanderte in's Armen- oder in's Irrenhaus.

Und diesen Mann nannte die Presse und das von ihr geleitete Publikum einen „Wohlthäter der Menschheit“, einen „Culturheros“! — Und in gewissem Sinne war er wirklich ein Heros, nämlich eine Art von Herkules. Herkules der Hellene reinigte bekanntlich die Ställe des Königs Augias; Strousberg der Semite aber füllte und hinterliess uns einen solchen Stall, einen Augiasstall voll Corruption und Fäulniss. Er corrupirte die Presse, er corrupirte die Beamtenwelt und den Adel, er umging und höhnte die Gesetze, er schlug der Moral öffentlich in's Gesicht!! — — Und gegen diesen unseligen Menschen und sein verbrecherisches Treiben erhob sich keine Stimme, auch in unsern Parlamenten nicht, wiewol darin seit 1865 auch schon Herr Lasker sass. Alles blieb stumm und still! Erst Februar 1873, als Strousberg längst abgethan war, enthüllte und verdammt Herr Lasker das „System Strousberg“. Und hierin war ihm sogar die Presse zuvorgekommen. Nach dem Sturze Strousberg's ermannte sich auch die Presse, und wie eine losgelassene Meute fiel sie über den „Wunderdoctor“ her. Dieselben Zeitungen, die früher vor ihm gekrochen, traten ihn nun mit Füßen. Dasselbe Localblatt, die Berliner „Tribüne“, welche ihn einst unter dem Titel „Der Mann, der Alles kauft“ verherrlicht hatte, erklärte jetzt feierlich, wie sie sich nie mit Strousberg befasst, sondern ihn stets weit von sich gewiesen habe. — Ja, es geht nichts über Consequenz und über ein reines Gewissen!

Strousberg hat eine Schule hinterlassen, eine sehr zahlreiche Schule — und um dessentwillen haben wir uns so lange mit ihm aufgehalten. Manche seiner Jünger und Trabanten werden wir unter den Gründern der grossen Schwindelperiode finden, und sie haben sich ihres Meisters durchaus würdig bewiesen. Andererseits war wieder Strousberg nicht recht möglich ohne unsere moderne Volkswirthschaft, ohne die Herren des Laissez faire oder das Manchesterthum. Dieses, welches noch immer fast die ganze Presse hinter sich hat, die volkswirthschaftlichen Congresse erfüllt, und auch unsere Juristen wie Verwaltungsbeamte beeinflusst — kennt und lehrt als ersten und letzten Grundsatz: die freie Concurrenz, wonach der Staat sich in Handel und Industrie nicht einmischen darf, sondern die Dinge ruhig und ungestört ihren Gang gehen lassen soll. Namentlich verbieten die Manchesterleute dem Staat den Bau von Eisenbahnen, indem solcher allein der Privat-Concurrenz überlassen bleiben müsse. Dieser Lehre verdankt denn auch Herr Strousberg seine Carrière. Er concurrirte um eine Eisenbahn nach der andern, und er schlug bald alle Mitconcurrenten aus dem Felde. Graf Itzenplitz, der damalige Preussische Handelsminister, übrigens ein ehrlicher wohlmeinender, aber nicht entfernt scharfsinniger Mann, verhandelte sogar am liebsten mit Strousberg, der ihm Alles so bequem zurechtzulegen verstand, und liess sich von dem „System Strousberg“ dermafsen berücken, dass er mehr und mehr von Staatsbahnen absah und die einträglichsten Linien an Privatunternehmer vergab, allerdings unter dem Einfluss hoher und höchster Personen, auch wol vergeben musste.

Aber Strousberg, wie wenig er sich auch um Recht und Gesetz schor, sah sich doch von gewissen Schranken umgeben, die selbst ihm unübersteiglich blieben. Da thaten sich die Manchesterleute zusammen und lösten der „freien Concurrenz“ auch die letzte Fessel. Am 20. Mai 1870, während die Tage des Reichstags gezählt waren, und er deswegen mit verdoppelter Dampfkraft arbeitete, berieth man das Gesetz, welches die Actien-Gesellschaften fortan von jeder Genehmigung und Aufsicht des Staats befreien sollte.

Hei, wie ging Herr Miquel in's Zeug, und wie tapfer secundirten ihm Herr Hammacher und Herr Braun-Wiesbaden! Herr Miquel vergass sich sogar etwas stark, indem er dem Aufsichtsrath resp. Vorstand einer Actiengesellschaft gewisse Täuschungen und „Verschleierungen“ freigegeben wollte; worauf er sich von Herrn Lasker zur Besinnung gerufen sah. Nun, das Gesetz war in vier Tagen fix und fertig; dass es aber ein übereiltes, höchst mangelhaftes ist, dass es den jüngsten grossen Schwindel entschieden mitverschuldet hat und dringend einer Revision bedarf, haben hinterher auch Diejenigen zugestehen müssen, die da selber es gemacht haben. Am 27. Juni ward das neue Actiengesetz publicirt, und nun konnte der Hexensabbath losgehen; aber plötzlich brach der Krieg aus, und so musste man sich schon noch etwas gedulden.

II.

Der Tanz um das Goldene Kalb.

Der Feldzug gegen Frankreich und die Börse — Die 120 Millionen Anleihe des Norddeutschen Bundes — „Das Kapital hat kein Vaterland“ — Amerikanische Eisenbahn-Prioritäten — Lüttich-Limburg, Schweizer Union, Taminens-Landen — „Börsenzinsen“ — „Neue Werthe“ — Die fünf Milliarden — Die Gründungen in Berlin und die in Wien — Gründerfirmen und Gründerbanken — Gewerbebank H. Schuster u. Co. — Geheimrath Wagener — Lasker's „Enthüllungen“ — Eduard Mamroth und die Centralbank für Bauten — Preussische Boden-Credit-Actien-Bank — Landrath Jachmann, Richard Schweder und Wilhelm Paradies — Preussische Credit-Anstalt — Dannenberger'sche Kattunfabrik — Seine Excellenz Gustav von Bonin — Heinrich Quistorp — Westend und die Vereinsbank — Nur „commissionsweise“ Gründungen — „Bruder Grund-Ehrlich“.

Niemand — auch unsere lorbeergekrönten Feldherren nicht — Niemand ahnte und konnte ahnen die beispielloos schnellen und gewaltigen Erfolge, womit der Feldzug gegen Frankreich begann. Aber von vornherein war das Deutsche Volk voll Hoffnung und Vertrauen, und es zeigte eine Begeisterung und einen Opfermuth, die wahrlich an die Zeit der Befreiungskriege erinnerten. Ganz anders die Börse. Dank ihrem „internationalen“, das heisst vaterlandslosen Charakter, wusste die Börse sich vor Angst und Zweifel nicht zu lassen. Noch hatte der Kampf nicht einmal angefangen, da liess die Börse schon Consolidirte Preussische Staatsanleihe, also ein Papier, das nur mit dem Preussischen Staate selber fallen kann, und das heute mit ca. 105 notirt wird — bis auf 80 stürzen!! In Folge dieses Börsenfiebers wurden auch die in jedem Augenblick einlösbaren Noten der Preussischen Bank im Klein- wie im Grossverkehr vielfach zurückgewiesen, und das Silber- und Gold-Agio (Aufgeld) erstieg eine unsinnige Höhe.

Einmüthig bewilligte der Reichstag die Mittel zur Führung des Krieges, die 120 Millionen-Anleihe des Norddeutschen Bundes; und der Reichskanzler legte dieselbe zu dem sehr bescheidenen Course von 88 auf. Aber was geschah?! — Die Zeichnungen fielen höchst kläglich aus; an der Berliner Börse wurden kaum 3 Millionen gezeichnet. Die Börse traute dem Norddeutschen Bunde nicht; auch war den Börsen-Matadoren der Subscriptionspreis von 88 noch nicht niedrig genug, und überhaupt grollten sie dem Reichskanzler, dass er dem Preussischen Finanzminister, und nicht ihnen, das „Geschäft“ übertragen hatte. Die Herren fanden, dass nicht genug zu „verdienen“ sei, man intriguirte sogar gegen die Anleihe, und daher rührt der Misserfolg. Am 4. August lag die Anleihe zur Subscription auf; und am selben Tage erstürmte der Kronprinz von Preussen die Linien von Weissenburg. — Ach, wäre dieser glänzende Sieg doch schon bekannt gewesen, um wieviel „patriotischer“ hätte sich dann die Börse bewiesen! Gewiss, die Anleihe wäre voll gezeichnet; nein, zehnmal überzeichnet worden! Wie lüstern schielten die Herren jetzt nach dem noch unbegebenen Rest der Anleihe! Aber Herr Camphausen, der Finanzminister, sagte: Kuchen! und gab diesen Rest zu einem weit höhern Course der Seehandlung ab; die trotzdem ein gutes „Geschäft“ machte, denn, wie bekannt, ging die Norddeutsche Bundes-Anleihe bald über Pari (100).

„Das Capital hat kein Vaterland!“ — Dies ist die wahre Gesinnung, ja der offene Wahlspruch der Börse; und demgemäss handelte auch einer ihrer Angehörigen, der jüdische Banquier G in Berlin, indem er, noch während wir mit Frankreich im Kriege lagen, flott auf die Französische Anleihe zeichnete. Erst der Staatsanwalt und die Anklage auf Landesverrath konnten ihn zum Bewusstsein seiner Preussischen Staatsangehörigkeit bringen.

Es folgten die Siege von Wörth und Spicheren, es
Glagau, Der Börsenschwindel.

kam der Tag von Sedan — und nun war Niemand „patriotischer“, Niemand von Jubel so voll und so toll wie die Börse. Während unsere Soldaten den Feind vor sich her trieben, trieb die Börse die Course in die Höhe; während die Französischen Gefangenen Deutschland überschwemmt, überschwemmte die Börse den Markt mit ausländischen Papieren. Zunächst führte sie die Amerikanischen Eisenbahn-Prioritäten ein, immer eine nach der andern: die seitdem so berüchtigt gewordenen Alabama-Chattanooga, Oregon und California, Georgia Aid, Port Royal, Peninsular, Rockford Rock-Island etc. etc.; schliesslich 26 an der Zahl. Diese famosen „Prioritäten“ fanden in Amerika selber keine „Nehmer“, folglich musste Deutschland damit beglückt werden, wo sie in der Hauptsache auch wirklich untergebracht sind. Zum Course von 70 bis 90, namentlich in Berlin und in Frankfurt a. M., eingeführt, stehen sie heute durchschnittlich etwa 10 bis 20, weil sie fast alle keine Zinsen mehr zahlen; viele werden gar nicht mehr notirt, da sie völlig unverkäuflich sind, denn die betreffenden Bahnen haben Bankerott gemacht, oder sie liegen unvollendet in Ruinen da. Auf diesem Wege sind an hundert Millionen Thaler in's Ausland geflossen, und nicht viel weniger dem Deutschen Publikum aus der Tasche gestohlen worden. Aber die Lockpfeife der Börse klang auch gar so süß! Die „Prioritäten“ versprachen einen Zinsgenuss von 8 bis 12 Procent, sie konnten und mussten noch bedeutend im Course steigen; sie wurden dem Capitalisten als eine feste Anlage empfohlen, und von diesem sehr häufig mit den sogenannten Amerikanischen Bonds, den Schuldverschreibungen der Nordamerikanischen Union verwechselt; also für ein Staatspapier genommen, das sich inzwischen bewährt hatte.

Nach den Amerikanischen „Prioritäten“ debütierte die Börse mit einer Sorte von Actien, gegen welche selbst die Strousberg'schen Fabrikate solide genannt werden müssen. Es handelte sich um Eisenbahnen, von deren Existenz bisher Niemand in Deutschland eine Ahnung gehabt hatte; wie Lüttich-Limburg, Schweizer Union, Tamines-Landen. Schon der Einführungscours (18 bis 24) liess auf den eigentlichen Werth der Waare schliessen; aber eben dieser niedrige Cours verführte zum Kaufen. „Das Effect ist so billig, dass es steigen muss“! liessen die betheiligten Bankhäuser austrompeten; und auch der kleine Mann, auch Hausknechte und Wäscherinnen gaben ihre Sparpfennige für Schweizer Union und Tamines-Landen her. Dazu hatten die Papierchen noch einen besonderen Aufputz: Sie, die nie einen Heller Dividende gegeben haben, und nie einen geben werden, sie wurden trotzdem mit 4 Procent Zinsen gehandelt, und zwar dem vollen Nennwerth nach: 24 oder gar 18 Thaler wurden angeblich mit 4 Thalern, 100 Thaler also mit 16 bis 22 Procent verzinst. Das sind die sogenannten „Börsenzinsen“; natürlich eine blossе Fiction! Der glückliche Besitzer zahlt die enormen Zinsen an sich selber, aus seiner eigenen Tasche. Diese federleichten Actien wurden nun zu reinen Spielpapieren, auch in der Hand des Privatmannes; denn Jeder wollte an ihnen nur verdienen, die übermässigen Zinsen einstreichen, und ausserdem wo möglich noch am Course profitiren. Wirklich wurden Lüttich-Limburg und Schweizer Union bis auf 35 hinaufgetrieben, aber heute stehen sie ca. 10 und resp. 5; während Tamines-Landen glücklich bei 3, sage Drei! angelangt sind. Man sieht, die Börse kann Alles brauchen, und sie versteht's, in ihren Netzen Gross wie Klein einzufangen.

Trotz der Menge von fremden Effecten, die sämmtlich unter die Leute gebracht wurden, verspürte man doch empfindlichen Mangel; und um diesem abzuhefen, beschloss man, neue Papiere zu machen. Man schuf „neue Werthe“, man legte sich auf's Gründen.

Noch tobte der Krieg, da begannen schon die Gründungen emporzuschliessen; wenn auch noch schüchtern und scheu, wie die ersten Gräschen im März. Noch im Jahre 1870 erblickten, Dank dem eben fertig gewordenen Actiengesetz, in Preussen 34 neue Actien-Gesellschaften das Licht der Welt. Die meisten davon kamen natürlich auf Berlin, und fast alle fanden Eingang an der Berliner Börse. Doch dies war nur ein kleines Vorspiel. Das eigentliche Drama begann 1871, erreichte seinen Höhepunkt 1872, und fand den Abschluss erst in der zweiten Hälfte 1873, erst viele Monate nach dem Wiener „Krach“. Auch nach dem „Grossen Krach“ fuhr man in Berlin noch munter zu gründen fort. Und darum ist es nöthig, schon jetzt eine viel verbreitete und von mehreren Seiten eifrig genährte Ansicht zu berichtigen: als ob nämlich die Berliner Börse im Gründen hinter ihrer Wiener Schwester zurückgeblieben wäre. — Just das Gegentheil! In Berlin ist weit mehr gegründet, und dabei mindestens ebensoviel gesündigt worden als in Wien.

Kaum war der Friede geschlossen, als die Börse ihren Freudentanz begann, den verzückten rasenden

Tanz um das Goldene Kalb. Es tanzten die „grossen Häuser“ vor, es tanzten die andern „Häuser“ nach; und an die Meister und Lehrer schloss sich ein grosser tagtäglich wachsender Schwarm von Jüngern und Anhängern, darunter Leute jeden Standes und jeder — Religion. Man tanzte von früh bis spät, man tanzte mit Schreien und Jauchzen durch Monde und Jahre. Nur ein paar Mal brach der wüste Reigen jäh ab. So Ausgangs 1871, Frühling 1872, und Ende 1872. Die Tänzer erbleichten und erbeben plötzlich, sie hielten den Athem an und lauschten. Aber es blieb still, der Himmel schien noch immer blau, und so tanzte man weiter. Als nun im Mai 1873 das Ungewitter endlich in Wien losbrach, da wollte man in Berlin die grausen Donnerschläge nicht hören, die den ganzen Himmel überfluthenden und die Erde tief aufwühlenden Blitze nicht sehen, sondern man versuchte auch jetzt noch fortzutanzten. Aber der Boden wankte, die Tänzer stürzten nieder, und viele standen nicht mehr auf.

Die fünf Milliarden nebst Zinsen, welche Graf Bismarck, unter Assistenz des Herrn Gerson Bleichröder, von Thiers und Favre erstritt — betrachtete die Börse von vornherein als ihr Eigenthum, indem sie meinte, diese fabelhafte Summe müsse direct oder indirect ihr zufließen. Dazu verkündete sie einen unendlichen Aufschwung in Handel und Wandel, ein unendliches Steigen der Preise von Grund und Boden. Nach den Versicherungen der Börse und der mit ihr verbündeten „Volkswirthe“, waren wir Alle, vom Kaiser bis zum Bettler, plötzlich reich geworden, das Nationalvermögen hatte sich verzehnfacht, und um dieses kolossale Plus nicht brach liegen zu lassen, mussten damit neue Unternehmungen entriert, „neue Werthe“ geschaffen werden.

Und es geschah also. Während der beiden Jahre 1871 und 1872 wurden in Preussen etwa 780 Actien-Gesellschaften gegründet. — Um diese Zahl gehörig zu würdigen, muss man wissen, dass von 1790—1870, d. h. in 80 Jahren, zusammen nur ca. 300 solcher Gesellschaften entstanden sind. Während der beiden Jahre 1871 und 1872 kam also in Preussen durchschnittlich auf jeden Tag eine Gründung. — Diese 780 Actien-Gesellschaften wurden zum grössten Theil in Berlin gegründet, oder doch mitgegründet, und fast alle an der Berliner Börse eingeführt; während die Zahl der Gründungen und Emissionen in Oesterreich-Ungarn für denselben Zeitraum nur gegen 400 beträgt. Somit ist der Beweis geführt, dass die Gründungsepidemie in Berlin weit ärger gewüthet hat als in Wien.

Zu den Hauptgründern gehören in erster Reihe folgende Firmen: S. Bleichröder und Disconto-Gesellschaft; Berliner Handelsgesellschaft, G. Müller & Co. und H. C. Plaut; S. Abel jr., Jacob Landau, Julius Alexander, Delbrück, Leo & Co., F. W. Krause & Co., Platho & Wolff, Ries & Itzinger, Robert Thode & Co., A. Paderstein und Eduard Mamroth; Deutsche Genossenschafts-Bank (Soergel, Parrisius & Co.) und Norddeutsche Grund-Credit-Bank; Meyer Ball, Carl Coppel & Co., Meyer Cohn, Feig & Pincus, Hirschfeld & Wolff, Joseph Jaques, Moritz Löwe & Co. etc.

Diese Firmen vollbrachten einzeln oder in Gruppen vereint, die Kreuz und die Quer, mit- und durcheinander, die grössten und wuchtigsten Gründungen. S. Bleichröder und Disconto-Gesellschaft, die bekanntlich einen Weltruf und Verbindungen über die ganze Erde haben, gründeten häufig in Verbindung mit dem Hause Rothschild und der Oesterreichischen Credit-Anstalt, mit Wilhelm Behrens (L. Behrens & Söhne) in Hamburg, Wilhelm von Born in Dortmund, Mewissen und Freiherr Abraham von Oppenheim in Cöln etc.; und diese Gründungen erstrecken sich nicht nur über ganz Deutschland, sondern auch über Oesterreich-Ungarn, Russland, Schweiz, Italien, Frankreich etc. Bei der Centralbank für Handel und Industrie, die deshalb in Börsenkreisen auch die Bezeichnung „Repräsentationsbank“ erhielt, beteiligten sich gut ein Dutzend Bankhäuser und Bankinstitute in Berlin, Leipzig, Frankfurt a. M., Stuttgart, München, Wien, Pest, Hamburg, Mailand und Rom — und man könnte hiernach fast auf den Gedanken kommen, dass solche Gründung doch ein äusserst schwieriges und mühsames Werk ist. Berliner Gründer waren in der Regel auch in der Provinz überall mit thätig, wo sie in Verbindung mit den Eingebornen eine Unzahl von Gründungen, und darunter die bösesten, verübten. So namentlich in Stettin, Breslau, Görlitz, Grüneberg, Posen, Magdeburg, Hannover, Erfurt, Mühlhausen, Leipzig, Dresden und Chemnitz.

Ferner zeichneten sich durch die Menge der Gründungen folgende Banken aus, von denen merkwürdiger Weise die meisten soeben selber gegründet waren: Deutsche Union-Bank, Centralbank für Handel und Industrie, Berliner Bank, Berliner Bankverein, Berliner Wechsler-Bank, Deutsche Bank, Centralbank für Genossenschaften, Allgemeine Depositen-Bank etc. Sie haben alle schwer gesündigt und viel zu verantworten, aber sie waren noch lange nicht die schlimmsten. Als solche, als eigentliche Gründerbanken, die das Gründen gewerbsmässig und zum Theil fast ausschliesslich betrieben, kennt und nennt man in ganz Deutschland: Gewerbebank H. Schuster & Co., Centralbank für Bauten, Preussische Boden-Credit-Actien-Bank und Vereinsbank Quistorp. Der bessern Uebersicht halber wollen wir diese Gründerbanken schon jetzt skizziren.

Die Gewerbebank H. Schuster & Co. ist sehr berühmt geworden durch die Lasker'schen „Enthüllungen“ am 7. Februar 1873; weit berühmter, als sie es eigentlich verdient. Sie that sich 1864 mit einem baar eingezahlten Capital von 250,000 Thalern auf, ging aus conservativen Kreisen hervor und betonte als ihren Zweck „die Hebung des Credits von Handwerkern und Fabrikanten“. Gewiss ein plausibler Zweck; und ein Institut, das einem Bedürfniss entsprach! Zu den Gründern gehörte der frühere Chef-Redacteur der „Kreuzzeitung“, der damalige Justizrath Herr Wagener, später Wirklicher Geheimer Ober-Regierungsrath und vortragender Rath beim Staatsministerium. Die Bank scheint auch mehrere Jahre hindurch ein ganz solides Geschäft betrieben zu haben, bis sie dem Gründungsschwindel verfiel, und ihr Capital von ursprünglich $\frac{1}{4}$ Million rasch auf 6 Millionen Thaler erhöhte. Der persönlich haftende Gesellschafter, Herr Schuster, gründete mit zwei Aufsichtsräthen der Bank, den Herren Oder und Wagener, kurz vor Ausbruch des neuen Actien-Gesetzes, die famose Pommersche Centralbahn; deren Actien mit $102\frac{1}{2}$ an der Börse eingeführt, heute 0 stehen. Das überaus kunstvolle Gewebe dieser Gründung, bei welcher das Gesetz ein Dutzend Mal in der ergötzlichsten Weise umgangen ist, enthüllte, als die Krisis bereits heranzog, eben Herr Lasker. Der Fall „Schuster-Oder-Wagener“ machte, weil er der erste war, der zur öffentlichen Sprache kam, ein gewaltiges Aufsehen, und namentlich die Berufsgenossen der Attentäter, die Schaar der Gründer und ihre Helfershelfer, wussten sich vor Entrüstung und Abscheu nicht zu lassen. An der Börse aber witzelte man ganz laut: Herr Wagener verdiene sein Schicksal, weil er es so billig gemacht habe — um lumpige 40,000 Thaler, die er noch mit Oder und Schuster theilen müssen.

In der That war Herr Wagener ein blosser Dilettant, nicht werth, den eigentlichen Gründern die

Schuhriemen aufzulösen; und neben der Pommerschen Centralbahn hat die Gewerbebank Schuster noch eine ganze Reihe fauler Gründungen vollführt, über die man bisher kein Wort verlor. Da ist die Schlossbrauerei Schöneberg, da sind die Norddeutschen Eiswerke (vormals Bolle), die Chemnitzer Maschinenbau-Fabrik (vormals A. Münnich & Co.), und da ist der Bauverein Thiergarten-Westend, von der Börse gleich bei der Einführung „Sumpfund“ getauft — lauter Gesellschaften, deren unglückliche Actionäre heute über die Urheber Ach und Weh schreien. Dazu hatte die Gewerbebank H. Schuster & Co. über das ganze Land, vorzugsweise in den Mittel- und Kleinstädten, ein Netz von Filialen und Agenturen ausgeworfen, und in diesen Maschen fingen sich, angelockt durch das Aushängeschild „Gewerbebank“, ehrliche Land- und Handwerksleute, die ihr gutes Geld gegen buntbedrucktes Papier eintauschten, mit dem sie nun die Pfeife anbrennen können.

Eine der grössten Blasen; die aus dem Hexenkessel emporstieg, war die Centralbank für Bauten, die zum Verfasser Herrn Eduard Mamroth hat. Sie erwarb und verkaufte Häuser und Baustellen, baute und übernahm Bauausführungen, liess Baugelder und handelte mit Baumaterialien, und betrieb daneben „Bank- und Handelsgeschäfte jeder Art“. Aber daran nicht genug, sie legte sich auch auf's Gründen; sie gründete in Berlin und ausserhalb; sie gründete Eisenwerke und Eisengiessereien, eine Centralfactorie für Baumaterial, und nicht weniger als 4 Zweig-Bau-Gesellschaften: Ostend, Südend, City und Cottage. Nach zehnmonatlichem Bestehen vertheilte die Centralbank bereits eine Dividende von 43 Procent — wie das gemacht wird, werden wir später erfahren — und in Folge dessen ging der Cours im April 1873, kurz vor dem „Krach“, bis 420 hinauf. Von dieser wahnsinnigen Höhe stürzte er in den nächsten sechs Monaten bis unter 50.

Ein Gutsbesitzer hatte sein Gut verkauft und kam mit einem Baarvermögen von 250,000 Thalern nach Berlin, um hier als Rentier zu leben. Er liess sich überreden, sein Capital in Centralbank anzulegen, und kaufte zum Course von 400 für 80,000 Thaler Actien, die ihm also 320,000 Thaler kosteten. Den Rest mit 70,000 Thaler schoss der Banquier bereitwilligst zu, und behielt die Actien als Unterpfand in Verwahrung. Der Cours begann zu sinken und sank ohne Aufhören; der Banquier verlangte Deckung, und da diese nicht geleistet werden konnte, liess er die Actien im Wege der Execution an der Börse verkaufen. Der ehemalige Gutsbesitzer hatte in noch nicht einem halben Jahre sein ganzes Vermögen verloren, und war dem Banquier auch noch 20,000 Thaler schuldig. — So ging es mit der Centralbank für Bauten, aber mit den Tochtergesellschaften ging es noch schlechter. Ostend, im Frühjahr 1873 auf 118, notirt jetzt ca. 12; Südend damals 126, jetzt 4; und Cottage damals 96, heute 1, schreibe Eins. Wie schnell auch der Ruhm der Welt schwindet, noch schneller schwinden an der Börse die Course.

Die Preussische Boden-Credit-Actien-Bank besteht seit 1869 und hatte, ihrem Namen entsprechend, den Zweck: die Förderung des Real-Credits, besonders durch Gewährung und Vermittelung von Hypotheken. Speculationsgeschäfte waren ihr durch die Statuten ausdrücklich verboten. Als Director fungirte Herr Jachmann, Landrath ausser Dienst und Gemahl der bekannten Sängerin und späteren Schauspielerin Johanna Wagner. Die Bank war an der Börse ziemlich unbekannt, bis sich Herr Richard Schweder ihrer annahm. Dieser kam von der Disconto-Gesellschaft, wo er nur eine bescheidene Stellung bekleidet hatte, und wusste jetzt sein Talent dermafsen geltend zu machen, dass ihn Herr Jachmann zum Mitdirector erhob, ja bald vor ihm völlig in den Hintergrund trat. Herr Schweder wurde die Seele und das eigentliche Haupt der Preussischen Boden-Credit-Actien-Bank, und als die Gründungsperiode begann, ging sein Ehrgeiz darauf los, sich an der Disconto-Gesellschaft, die ihn nicht zu würdigen verstanden, zu rächen, ihr womöglich den Rang abzulaufen. Wenn ihm dies auch nicht ganz gelang, so ward er ihr doch ein furchtbarer Nebenbuhler. Er liess rasch hintereinander eine stattliche Zahl von Gründungen aufmarschiren, die alle an der Börse grossen Anklang fanden und ihn dort zu einem gesuchten vielumworbenen Manne machten. Wie ein Feldherr stand er an seinem Platze, neben ihm sein Adjutant, Herr Wilhelm (Wolf) Paradies; beide mit Bleistiften bewaffnet, und umdrängt, umfluthet von Hunderten, die an dem auf den Markt gebrachten neuen „Effect“ alle „betheiligt“ sein wollten, alle heissungrig nach Linden-Bauverein (heutiger Cours 17) oder nach Albertinenhütte (heute 6) oder nach Baltischen Waggonen (heute 0) schrieen. Daneben vermehrte Herr Schweder fortwährend das Capital der Bank, gab immer wieder neue Actien aus, mit immer höherem Agio, und diese Actien wurden zu einem Haupt-Spielpapier der Börsen-Jobber.

Plötzlich fiel es Herrn Schweder ein, dass solche Speculationsgeschäfte doch eigentlich gegen die Statuten der Bank verstießen; und um sein Gewissen zu entlasten, schuf er flugs eine andere Gründer-Bank, die Preussische Credit-Anstalt. Nun sah man das Schauspiel, beide Banken, Mutter und Tochter, zärtlich Arm in Arm wandeln und gleichzeitig, gemeinschaftlich oder jede für sich, rechts und links neue Gründungen ausstreuen. Dieses schöne Paar war noch weit enger zusammengewachsen, als die weiland so angestaunten siamesischen Zwillinge. Beide, Mutter und Tochter, hatten nur Einen Kopf, nämlich den Director Schweder, und beide hatten nur Eine rechte Hand, nämlich den Procuristen Paradies. Herr Schweder und Herr Paradies blieben die Mignons der Börsenritter, bis sie im Frühjahr 1873 ihr letztes Kind, die Dannenberger'sche oder eigentlich, Liebermann'sche Kattunfabrik, in die Welt setzten. Die Börse gerieth in Aufruhr, man umdrängte und verfolgte Herrn Paradies, aber diesmal nicht mit Bitten und Schmeicheleien, sondern mit Drohungen und Vorwürfen.

Man überschüttete ihn mit Verbal-Injurien und machte Miene, zu Real-Beleidigungen überzugehen. Da erhob Herr Wolf Paradies seine Rockschösse und entfloh. Er lief durch den langen Saal der Fonds-Börse und durch den langen Saal der Waaren-Börse in das Kündigungszimmer der letzteren, und rettete sich hier vor den Wuth schnaubenden Verfolgern, welche die „Stücke“, mit denen man sie bei „Dannenberger“ „betheiligt“ hatte, um jeden Preis wieder los werden wollten.

Der Dannenberger'sche, oder richtiger, Liebermann'sche Kattun, der in der Wäsche arg einlief und keine Spur von Farbe hielt, kostete der Preussischen Boden-Credit-Actien-Bank Ruf und Ansehen; und damit verlor sie auch jeden sittlichen Halt. Sie übertrug das ganze Sünden-Register und wälzte alle Verluste auf die Preussische Credit-Anstalt; sie wurde zu einer wahren Rabenmutter und trennte sich mit einem gewaltigen Schnitte von der Tochter, die seitdem ohne Kopf und ohne Hände, ein ungestalteter blutiger Rumpf, in einem dunkeln Winkel der Börse liegt. Herr Schweder zog sich, nicht ganz freiwillig, in's Privatleben zurück, und ihm blieb der Trost einer — — Million, die er, vorher ein armer Commis, in zwei bis drei Jahren verdient hatte. Mit seinem Rückzuge sanken die von ihm zu 280 hinaufgetriebenen Actien der Bank bis 55 und tiefer. Herr Paradies und Herr Jachmann folgten ihrem genialen Freunde bald nach, und auch sie gingen selbstverständlich nicht mit leeren Taschen. Zur Ehre des Herrn Jachmann sei's gesagt: er war dem ganzen Gründungstreiben fremd geblieben — denn er verstand nichts davon. Er hatte immer nur seinen Namen unterschrieben, und dafür, ausser dem festen Gehalt, eine Tantième bezogen, gegen welche das Jahreseinkommen, z. B. des Reichskanzlers, eine blosse Bagatelle ist.

Noch muss hervorgehoben werden, dass die Preussische Boden-Credit-Actien-Bank nicht blos, wie andere Actien-Gesellschaften, einen gewöhnlichen „Aufsichtsrath“, sondern ein — „Curatorium“ hat, das die Directoren in ihrer Thätigkeit controliren soll; dass also Herr Schweder seine statutenwidrigen Gründungen Jahrelang unter den Augen des hohen Curatoriums beging, und dass an der Spitze desselben stand und noch heute steht: Seine Excellenz der Wirkliche Geheime Rath und Staats-Minister a. D. Herr Gustav von Bonin, zugleich Mitglied des Preussischen Abgeordnetenhauses und Mitglied des Deutschen Reichstags. Ausserdem fungirt nach § 53 der Statuten bei dieser

Bank auch ein Staatscommissarius, der den Geschäftsbetrieb zu überwachen, aber wie es scheint, sich auch nicht veranlasst gesehen hat, den Schöpfungsdrang des Herrn Schweder irgendwie zu zügeln. Erst unter Leitung der gegenwärtigen Directoren ist das Institut zu seiner ursprünglichen Bestimmung und zu einer soliden Thätigkeit zurückgekehrt, und seitdem hat sich auch der Cours der Actien wieder um das Doppelte gehoben.

Herr Schweder war gross, aber Herr Quistorp war noch grösser. Erinnert jener an einen unverantwortlichen Premierminister, so ist dieser einem absoluten Monarchen zu vergleichen. Wie Napoleon Bonaparte, schuf auch Heinrich Quistorp Alles selber und allein, und gewissermassen Alles aus — Nichts. Nachdem er zunächst in seiner Vaterstadt Stettin, und wenn wir nicht irren, dann in England Schiffbruch gelitten, kam er ohne Mittel, ohne Bekanntschaften nach Berlin. Sein erster „Versuch“ war die Villen-Colonie „Westend“, belegen an der Chaussee nach Spandau, noch hinter Charlottenburg, auf einer kahlen, sterilen, allen Winden preisgegebenen Anhöhe. Hier steckte er Strassen ab, denen er die lieblichsten hochpoetischen Namen gab, wie: Ahorn-Allee, Akazien-

Allee, Platanen-Allee etc. und baute in jeder Allee ein oder gar zwei Häuser; zugleich aber auch ein~~en~~ Restaurant ersten Ranges, ein grossartiges Casino und eine Wasserkunst. Trotzalledem wollten sich keine Käufer, nicht einmal Miether finden, und die luftigen Villen, bei deren Anblick man einen leichten Rheumatismus verspürt, wurden Jahre lang nur von Quistorp und seinen Freunden bewohnt.

Anfang 1870 gründete die Westend-Gesellschaft Quistorp & Co. die Vereinsbank Quistorp & Co. in Charlottenburg. Diese patriarchalische Ackerbürgerstadt, wo der Berliner „Sommer wohnt“, sah sich plötzlich mit einer Bank beglückt, die hier jedoch schlechterdings nichts zu thun fand und deshalb bald nach Berlin wanderte. Damit beginnt Quistorp's eigentliche Wirksamkeit. Er hatte es verstanden, für sich zu werben; er hatte Gönner und Förderer bis in die höchsten Kreise hinauf gefunden. Die in Charlottenburg wohnende Königin Wittve, deren Frömmigkeit, Wohlthätigkeit und Gutmüthigkeit bekannt war, unterstützte ihn reichlich; auch andere Mitglieder der Königlichen Familie sollen ihm ansehnliche Summen vorgestreckt haben. Er wusste sich bei den Behörden, bei hochstehenden und einflussreichen Personen einzu-schmeicheln, und namentlich gelang es ihm, auch bei der Preussischen Bank Fuss zu fassen. Er warb gewisse „Volkswirthe“ und Literaten zu seinem Privatgebrauch an, und er bewog etliche Regierungsräthe, aus dem Staatsdienst in den seinigen überzutreten.

Hinter der Universität, in einem philosophischen Winkel, kurz zuvor „Hegelplatz“ getauft, baute er sich und der Bank ein stolzes Palais, und liess von hier aus in rastloser Aufeinanderfolge einige dreissig Gründungen und Emissionen in die Welt gehen —: Feilen-, Tabacks-, Papier-, Waggon-, Fass-, Werkzeug-, chemische, optische und andere Fabriken, Bau-, Fuhr-, Pferde-Eisenbahn-, Brauerei-, Dampfschiffs-, Bergbau- und Hütten-Gesellschaften, die zum Theil in Berlin, zum Theil über ganz Deutschland sassen. Quistorp betonte stets, dass die Vereinsbank die Gründungen nur „commissionsweise“ betreibe, also selber dabei nicht weiter betheiligt sei; und dass die jedesmaligen Verhältnisse von ihr genau geprüft würden, also eine unsolide Gründung gar nicht möglich wäre. Von jeder Neu-Gründung bezog die Vereinsbank Agio, so dass sie für 1871 nicht weniger als 15 Procent, 1872 sogar 19 Procent Dividende vertheilte. Alle die Gesellschaften wurden mit der Vereinsbank verknüpft, indem man den Actionären der letzteren immer ein Bezugsrecht auf die neue Emission einräumte, welches von jenen auch stets benutzt ward, so dass sich zuletzt ein industrieller Rattenkönig gebildet hatte, in dessen Mitte Herr Heinrich Quistorp sass.

Aber dieser Mann verstand's, sich dermaßen als „Biedermeier“ aufzuspielen, dass er nicht nur das Publikum, sondern sogar die Börse berückte. Die Börse, welche sonst Niemandem, nicht einmal sich selber traut, glaubte an — Quistorp. Während sie Herrn Schweder nur eine glückliche Hand nachrühmte, hielt sie Quistorp für den leibhaftigen Bruder Grund-Ehrlich. Die „Quistorp'schen Werthe“ fanden ein ganz besonderes Ansehen, eine ausserordentliche Zugkraft; sie wurden von den Banquiers in der besten Absicht ihren solidesten Kunden als „hochfeine“ Capital-Anlage empfohlen, und mit Vorliebe von dem schlichten Bürgersmanne genommen. Selbst nach dem „Grossen Krach“ behaupteten sie noch eine Zeit lang ihren Nimbus; und als endlich auch die Vereinsbank fiel, glaubte man in gewissen Kreisen das Ende der Welt gekommen.

Herr Heinrich Quistorp ist unter den Helden der Gründerperiode einer der merkwürdigsten, und wir werden noch öfter Gelegenheit haben, uns mit ihm zu beschäftigen.

III.

Gründer und Gründer-Praktiken.

Der Börse Henkerwitz — Erfinder und Gründer — Jagd auf Gründungsobjecte — Borsig lässt sich nicht gründen — Egells, Webers, Eckert, Freund, Schumann, Stobwasser, Dankberg, Schwendy etc. — Professionelle Gründer und Gründer-Cliquen — Der Gründungsprocess und die Gründungskomödien — Gründungscomité und Gesellschaftsvertrag — „Constituierende Generalversammlung“, „erste Actionäre“ und „erste Zeichner“ — Aufsichtsrath und Vorstand — Scheinzeichnungen — Die Theilung des Raubes — Das „Betriebscapital“ — Die „Pathen“ — „Lieber etwas mehr Capital!“ — Actien-Gesellschafts-Wirthschaft — Herr H. und das „artistische Unternehmen“ — Erstes, zweites, drittes und viertes Consortium — Mit Gewalt gegründet.

„Die Woche fängt gut an!“ sagte Jener. Er sagte so am Montag, und da wurde er aufgeknüpft. — Bekanntlich nennt man diese Art von Laune den Galgenhumor. Auch ein armer Sünder kann unter Umständen noch Humor zeigen, aber nie und nimmer der Henker. Der hat höchstens Witz. Und genau im selben Falle befindet sich die Börse. Auch ihren Angehörigen ist der Humor, als ein Product des Gemüths und des Herzens, versagt: aber dafür machen sie in Witz. Sie reißen Witze, die wie Scheidewasser schmecken und wie Höllenstein brennen. Als die Gründungen florirten, sang die Börse, während sie die Leimruthen legte, mit solchem Henkerwitz:

Erst kommt der Erfinder,
Dann kommen die Gründer oder die Schinder;
Beide brauchen sie Rinder,
Und wenn's gut geht, machen sie Kinder.

Die Rinder sind, mit Respect zu sagen — das liebe Publikum; während die Kinder hier den Vorgang andeuten, welchen sonst nur das Thierleben auf der untersten Stufe zeigt. Nach Art der ekelhaften Schmarotzerthierchen vermehrten sich auch die Gründer und die Gründungen mit reissender Schnelligkeit. Eine heute geborene Bank oder dergleichen gründete morgen schon lustig selber; oder sie „emittirte“ immer wieder „junge Actien“, sie kam aus dem „Jungen“ nicht heraus. Wir lassen einstweilen „Kinder“ und „Rinder“ bei Seite, und betrachten zunächst „Erfinder“ und „Gründer“.

Schon das obige Verslein verräth, dass Beide nicht immer dieselben, sondern häufig verschiedene Personen waren. Der „Erfinder“ hatte die „Idee“, der „Gründer“ übernahm die Ausführung. Jener war meistens ein Schlaukopf, dieser nicht selten ein blosser Taps.

Dafür wurde der „Erfinder“ oft mit einem Trinkgeld abgespeist, während der „Gründer“ eine Million für sich in Anspruch nahm. Der Erfinder wusste zu finden und zu erfinden: sein Auge sah lauter Gründungsobjecte, und wo er schlechterdings gar nichts sah, da half die Phantasie ihm aus. Die damals entstandene „Neue Börsenzeitung“ entwarf davon eine artige Schilderung, die etwa so lautete: Im einsamen Thal entdeckt der Gründer (Erfinder) einen verlassenen Schornstein, und aus dieser Ruine macht er flugs eine — Maschinenfabrik. Auf dem Berge sieht er eine Windmühle, ein altersschwaches Gehäuse mit lahmen Flügeln — und sofort ist ein Mühlen-Etablissement auf Actien fertig. Am Ufer eines Baches stolpert er über einen umgestülpten Kahn — und ein „Lloyd“, ein binnenländischer „Lloyd“ lässt seine Dampfer hin und her fliegen. Und wie beginnt die Geschichte jener Verblend-Ziegelei auf Actien? Es war einmal ein Thonlager u. s. w. Des Gründers Phantasie macht aus einem Zimmermann, der Balken ausschält, ein Lieferungsgeschäft für Baumaterial; aus dem verwegenen Knaben, der eine Rakete steigen lässt, eine chemische Fabrik; und — — nimmt Eure Wäscherinnen in Acht! Lasst sie nicht mehr allein über die

Strasse gehen, sonst macht sie der Gründer über Nacht zu einer Actien-Wäscherei.

Es wurde öffentlich und insgeheim, durch Zeitungs-inserate und unter der Hand nach Gründungsobjecten gesucht, es wurde förmlich Jagd gemacht auf schon bestehende Fabriken, Berg- und Hüttenwerke, Brauereien etc.; und natürlich in erster Reihe auf altrenommirte Etablissements. Der Inhaber einer bekannten grossen Färberei und „Garderobe-Reinigungsanstalt“ in Berlin erhielt so viele Anfragen und Anerbietungen, dass er seine ablehnende Antwort: er sei nicht geneigt, sich gründen zu lassen — bald nicht mehr geschrieben, sondern nur noch lithographirt versandte. Wol die härtesten Anfechtungen hatte Borsig, der „Locomotivenkönig“, zu bestehen. Man bot ihm verschiedentlich für seine grossartigen Werke geradezu fabelhafte Summen — bis 12 Millionen Thaler, wie eine Version lautet; und man würde ihm überhaupt jeden Preis gegeben haben, den er nur gefordert hätte; aber er war klug genug, um sich nicht verblenden zu lassen. Andere Fabrikherren dagegen zeigten sich weniger prude, und so verwandelten sich viele solide wohlberufene Privatgeschäfte in lauter faule und anrüchige oder doch zweifelhafte Actiengesellschaften;

z. B. Maschinenfabriken von Egells, Webers, Eckert und Freund, Porcellan-Manufactur von Schumann, Lampenfabrik von Stobwasser, Ofenfabrik von Dankberg, Kammgarn-Spinnerei von Schwendy, Wagenbauerei von Neuss, Tabackshandlung von Brunzlow & Sohn etc. etc.

Herr Egells verkaufte seine Etablissements sogar zweimal, zum zweiten Mal natürlich zu einem höhern Preise, worauf der erste Käufer oder das erste „Gründungs-Comité“ die Hülfe des Richters anrief. Durch solche Umwandlungen zeichneten sich wieder aus Herr Schweder von der Preussischen Boden-Credit-Actien-Bank und Herr Quistorp. Herr Schweder „gründete“ die Glasfabrik Albertinenhütte, die Maschinenanstalt Pellack, Schmidt & Co. in Hamburg, die Maschinenfabrik von Wöhlert, das Bergwerk Redenhütte, das Soolbad Salzungen etc. Herr Quistorp „gründete“ die chemische Fabrik von Schering, die Fabrik für Wasser- und Gasanlagen von Mattison & Brandt, die Feilenfabrik von Schaaf, die Papierfabrik Wolfswinkel, das Fuhrgeschäft von Gebrüder Besckow, die Brauerei von Scholtz in Breslau, das Tabacksgeschäft von Prätorius, die Schraubenfabrik von Ludewig, die Holzhandlung von Gebrüder Saran in Potsdam, die Brillenfabrik von Emil Busch in Rathenow, die Böttcherei von Wunderlich in Zwickau etc.

Alle diese Geschäfte wurden ihren Inhabern um Summen abgekauft, welche jene noch kurz vorher sich nicht hatten träumen lassen; und nun als Actien-Gesellschaften mit einem so riesigen Capital belastet, dass eine Rentabilität in Zukunft unmöglich war. Gewisse Verkäufer, wie Wöhlert u. A., liessen vor Freude über die ungeheure Kaufsumme, welche ihnen zugefallen, Beträge bis 50,000 Thaler und mehr unter ihre früheren Beamten und Arbeiter vertheilen. Verschiedenen dieser „gegründeten“ Fabrikherren war beim Essen der Appetit gewachsen; und um ihre Mufse ordentlich auszunutzen, gingen sie selber unter die Gründer, mit denen sie nun brav wetteiferten. So thaten z. B. Egells, Stobwasser, Schering, Schwendy etc.

Auch die Etablissements und Geschäfte zweiten und dritten Ranges kamen an die Reihe. Auch sie wurden entweder aufgesucht, oder sie suchten selber nach Gründern umher. Ihre Besitzer waren zuweilen verschuldet, oder sie standen gar schon auf der Kippe, oder sie trachteten doch, den günstigen Zeitpunkt wahrzunehmen. Sie traten mit einem Bankhause oder mit einem namhaften Gründer direct in Verbindung, oder sie übertrugen die Vermittelung einem Agenten, der sich nun von beiden Theilen eine erkleckliche Provision ausbedang. Wollte der Besitzer oder der Agent die Gründung selber in die Hand nehmen, so musste er Verbündete und Patrone gewinnen, die man an der Börse kannte und respectirte. Es mussten Namen angekauft werden, und diese waren nicht billig. So bot man dem Chef eines Bankhauses, wenn er den ihm vorgelegten Gründungsprospect mit unterzeichne, die runde Summe von 10,000 Thalern. Aber er entgegnete mit vornehmem Lächeln, dass seine Unterschrift für diesen Preis noch nicht zu haben sei.

Wie es Gründerbanken gab, so gab es auch eine ganze Anzahl von Personen, die das Gründen als Beruf erfassten, und dabei so gut fuhren, dass sie bald die öffentliche Aufmerksamkeit auf sich zogen. In einer Posse, die damals auf der Kroll'schen Bühne erschien, fragt der Vater seinen Sohn: „Was willst Du werden?“ „„Gründer!““ ruft der kleine Bursche, zum Entzücken des Publikums, das wüthend Beifall klatschte. — Von diesen professionellen Gründern hatten Manche ihr besonderes Fach. Der Eine gründete hauptsächlich Bauvereine, der Zweite Brauereien, der Dritte Banken, der Vierte Maschinenfabriken, der Fünfte Berg- und Hüttenwerke, und so fort. Die Mehrzahl freilich trieb ihre Kunst, sonder Auswahl und Beschränkung, auf allen möglichen Gebieten. Manche genossen den Ruf besonderer „Feinheit“ und „Gerissenheit“, oder sie hatten doch lauter Erfolge aufzuweisen, so dass man sich bei neuen Unternehmungen eifrig um sie bemühte, sie zum Gelingen der Gründung für unentbehrlich hielt. Andere wieder verstanden es, sich bald hier, bald dort einzudrängen; oder man liess sie zu, um ihnen den Mund zu stopfen, damit sie das Project nicht etwa befähden und schädigen möchten. Endlich bildeten die Gründer verschiedene Cliques; und innerhalb dieser Cliques sorgte der Eine stets für den Andern, dass der Andere nicht vergessen wurde.

Der Gründungsprocess selber war mehr oder weniger verzwickelt und weitläufig. Wir wollen ihn an einem Beispiel illustriren. Aus den zahllosen Gründungen jener Tage greifen wir Eine heraus, die wol als Muster der Gattung gelten darf, und verändern nur die Namen.

Fabrikbesitzer Flau und Gründer Bär sind durch einen Aufspürer oder Agenten einander zugeführt worden. Flau will seine Fabrik verkaufen, die einen reellen Werth von 250,000 Thaler haben mag. In Anbetracht der Zeitverhältnisse und der eigenthümlichen Umstände fordert und erhält er dafür aber 400,000 Thaler. Das heisst, er erhält sie einstweilen noch nicht. Er überlässt die Fabrik für diesen Preis dem Gründer Bär; mittelst eines sogenannten Schlusscheins, der in der Regel nur eine einseitige Verpflichtung enthält und die Gültigkeit des Abkommens auf einen gewissen Zeitraum beschränkt. Während der nächsten vier oder sechs Wochen steht die Fabrik für die genannte Summe zur Verfügung Bär's; Flau darf sie nicht anderweit veräussern; wol aber ist Bär befugt, von dem Vertrage, sobald es ihm beliebt, ohne jedes Reugeld zurückzutreten. Den Schlusschein in der Tasche, verständigt sich Bär mit seinen Kameraden und Geschäftsfreunden; die Rollen des Gründungscomité's, der ersten Zeichner, des Aufsichtsraths und Vorstandes werden vertheilt, und es beginnt jetzt, um dem Gesetz in der Form zu genügen, eine Reihe von Komödien.

Als „Gründungscomité“ treten Wolf und Fuchs auf. Sie schliessen eine offene Handelsgesellschaft, die sie etwa „Vulkan“ nennen, und verlautbaren vor einem Notar das Statut oder den Gesellschaftsvertrag. Als Gegenstand des Unternehmens geben sie den Erwerb einer Maschinenfabrik oder dergleichen an — der Zweck der Gesellschaft wird gern so unbestimmt und vieldeutig wie nur möglich gelassen, damit man hinterher aus ihr Jedes und Alles machen kann. Noch am selben Tage kaufen sodann Wolf und Fuchs die Maschinenfabrik von vormal's Flau. Sie erwerben sie von Bär für den soliden Preis von — Einer Million Thaler; nachdem sie vorhin im Statut das Actienkapital auf 1,200,000 Thaler festgesetzt haben. Der Ueberschuss von 200,000 Thaler soll als „Betriebscapital“ dienen, um der Fabrik noch einen höhern Aufschwung zu geben. Noch am selben Tage findet, wieder unter Zuziehung eines Notars, die erste sogenannte „constituirende Generalversammlung“ des „Vulkan“ statt. Es sind anwesend: Bär, Wolf und Fuchs, dazu noch Fröhlich und Selig, und Grün und Gelb; zusammen also 7 Personen.

Diese Sieben sind die ersten Actionäre des „Vulkan“, die „ersten Zeichner“, welche das Actiencapital von 1,200,000 Thaler aufbringen; das heisst, wie man sehen wird, blos auf dem Papier. Bär zeichnet 300,000 Thaler, Wolf und Fuchs je 200,000 Thaler, Fröhlich und Selig je 150,000 Thaler, und Grün und Gelb je 100,000 Thaler. Macht zusammen wie oben. Die

7 Actionäre und ersten Zeichner genehmigen einstimmig das ihnen vorgelegte Gesellschaftsstatut, und ebenso einstimmig genehmigen sie den Erwerb der Fabrik von vormals Flau für 1,000,000 Thaler; sowie die Zahlung dieser Summe an Bär. Darauf wählen diese Sieben den „Aufsichtsrath“ der Gesellschaft, der nach dem Gesetz aus mindestens drei Personen bestehen muss. Es werden mit grosser Majorität Fröhlich und Selig zu Mitgliedern, und Wolf zum Präsidenten des Aufsichtsraths gewählt. Mit derselben überwältigenden Majorität wird Bär zum ersten Director des „Vulkan“ und Fuchs zu seinem Stellvertreter ernannt. Die fünf Würdenträger nehmen an dem langen Tische des Vorstandes Platz, und auf den Bänken der Actionäre sitzen nur noch — — Grün und Gelb. Der amtirende Notar aber hat den Verlauf der Generalversammlung protocollirt und gehörig überwacht; er hat die Versammlungen mit seinem juristischen Rathe unterstützt, und namentlich darauf gesehen, dass die verschiedenen Genehmigungen, Versicherungen und Wahlhandlungen in vorschriftsmässiger Form geschahen.

Nach diesem öffentlichen Schauspiel, zu dem freilich nur die Acteure, keine unbetheiligten Zuschauer zugelassen werden, macht man das Weitere hinter den

Coulissen ab; und zwar so heimlich, dass es noch kein Staatsanwalt und kein Richter hat erforschen und erweisen können. Indem Flau nicht direct, sondern zunächst an Bär, und dieser wieder an das Gründungs-Comité verkauft, ist eine Mittelsperson gewonnen, und so dem Gesetz eine Nase gedreht; denn „es ist ein unanfechtbarer Rechtsgrundsatz, dass Jeder verkaufen und kaufen darf, zu welchem Preise er wolle, und dass es auch Niemanden etwas angeht, was der Verkäufer mit der Kaufsumme mache“.

Die gesammten 1,200,000 Thaler Actien werden dem Bankhause Gebrüder Israel, das gleichfalls zu den Gründern gehört, aber von den officiellen Verhandlungen sich fern gehalten hat, zum Vertriebe übergeben. Die Zeichnungen der sogenannten ersten Zeichner sind blosse Scheinzeichnungen; Gebrüder Israel schiessen die zehn Procent des Grundcapitals vor, die nach dem Gesetz mindestens eingezahlt werden müssen, und darauf geschieht die Eintragung des „Vulkan“ in das Handelsregister. Binnen einigen Wochen oder Monaten ist es den Gebrüdern Israel gelungen, die Actien zum Theil über, zum Theil unter Pari (100) abzusetzen, das heisst, dem Publikum anzuschmieren. Sie bringen von dem Erlös ihre Provision in Abzug, welche etwa $16\frac{2}{3}$ Procent oder 200,000 Thaler beträgt, und führen den Rest von 1,000,000 Thaler an den Director des „Vulkan“, Herrn Bär, ab, welcher nun die Theilung des Raubes vornimmt.

Grün und Gelb sind blosse Statisten gewesen und erhalten jeder 10,000 Thaler, zusammen also 20,000 Thlr.

Fröhlich und Selig haben grössere Ansprüche, weil sie höhere Summen zeichneten und ausserdem als Aufsichtsräthe fungiren; auf sie entfallen je 20,000 oder zusammen 40,000 „

Wolf und Fuchs endlich sind die beiden Intimusse von Bär, mit denen er stets zusammengeht, und die ihn nächstens bei Gründungen, wo Einer von ihnen die Hauptrolle spielt, in gleicher Weise zuziehen und „betheiligen“. In Anbetracht dessen, in Erwägung ihrer Zeichnungen und mit Rücksicht auf ihre einflussreichen Stellungen als Präsident des Auf-

| | | |
|------------------------------------|-----------|--------------|
| | Transport | 60,000 Thlr. |
| sichtsraths und resp. stellvertre- | | |
| tender Director erhalten Wolf | | |
| und Fuchs je 50,000 oder zu- | | |
| sammen | 100,000 | „ |
| Bär zahlt also seinen Verbündeten | 160,000 | Thlr. |
| und da er von Gebrüder Israel | 1,000,000 | „ |
| empfangen, bleiben noch . . | 840,000 | Thlr. |
| Hierin stecken die Kaufsumme für | | |
| Flau mit 400,000 Thlr. und das | | |
| „Betriebscapital“ mit 200,000 = | 600,000 | „ |
| so dass Bär selber etwa . . . | 240,000 | Thlr. |

profitiren würde.

Es ist jedoch sicher anzunehmen, dass er auch mit Flau ein geheimes Abkommen getroffen hat, und an diesen nicht 400,000 Thaler voll, sondern höchstens 350,000 Thaler zahlt. Aehnlich verhält es sich mit dem „Betriebscapital“ von 200,000 Thaler, dessen Schicksal ganz in den Händen des Directors Bär und seines Stellvertreters Fuchs ruht, und das in der Regel schon im ersten Geschäftsjahr der neuen Gesellschaft wegzuschmelzen pflegt, wie der Schnee im April. Was Wunder, wenn die mit 100 an der Börse eingeführten

Actien des „Vulkan“ schnell auf ein Sechstel des Nennwerths sinken?! Was Wunder, wenn nach einem Jahre der „Vulkan“ bereits um seine Existenz ringt, zu einer Anleihe schreiten muss, oder in Concurs geräth, und die Actionäre auch nicht einen Heller mehr retten?!!

Der Leser aber darf überzeugt sein, dass diese Vorgänge und diese Zahlen keinem blossen Phantasiegebilde entnommen sind, sondern auf Thatsachen beruhen, die sich hundertmal wiederholt haben, und bei dem Gründungstreiben überhaupt die Regel bildeten. Jene Summen sind durchaus nicht übertrieben, sondern die Gründer haben in vielen Fällen noch weit grössere Beuteantheile davongetragen; ja es ist, namentlich bei Banken und Bergwerken, mehrfach vorgekommen, dass überhaupt gar kein oder doch nur ein eingebildetes, in Wahrheit völlig werthloses Gründungsobject vorhanden war, das aber trotzdem die Actionäre mit Millionen bezahlt haben.

Man gestatte uns noch einen Augenblick zum „Vulkan“ zurückzukehren, um daran einige Erläuterungen zu knüpfen. Herr Bär konnte die Gründung nicht allein vollführen, er bedurfte dazu der anderen Personen als seiner Gehülfen. Um die Posse der „constituirenden Generalversammlung“ in Scene zu setzen, um den obligaten „Aufsichtsrath“ und „Vorstand“ wählen zu können, sind 5 bis 10 Schauspieler nöthig. Dieses müssen Leute von Vermögen oder Credit sein, sonst vertreibt kein namhaftes Bankhaus die Actien, sonst findet das „Effect“ an der Börse keinen Anklang und überhaupt keine Aufnahme.

Selbstverständlich giebt sich nun aber zu solchen Diensten Niemand umsonst, Niemand aus blosser Gefälligkeit her — am wenigsten ein Geldmann; sondern wer beim Gründen hilft, verlangt auch seinen Antheil. Und mit Recht. Denn jeder Mitgründer trägt eine moralische, wie eine gesetzliche Verantwortlichkeit, die ihm Geld und Freiheit kosten kann, Achtung und Ehre meistens gekostet hat; und wenn er als „erster Zeichner“ auftritt, übernimmt er auch ein Risiko. Selbst wo er nur zum Schein gezeichnet, wo z. B. das angeworbene Bankhaus für ihn die Einzahlung leistet, bleibt er demselben doch verhaftet, falls die Gründung verunglückt, oder die Actien nicht abgesetzt werden. Daher sind alle die Personen, welche je beim Gründen irgendwie Pathen standen, dafür auch bezahlt worden, und in der Regel überreichlich. Auch pflegten sich die „ersten Zeichner“, gleichviel ob wirkliche oder nur Scheinzeichner, ausserdem noch gewisse einträgliche Vorrechte nach der Zukunft hin zu wahren, z. B. für den Fall der Ausgabe neuer Actien.

Verkaufte der Besitzer direct, oder unternahm er selber die Gründung, so hatte er natürlich seine Helfershelfer abzufinden, und stellte demgemäss die Verkaufssumme oder das Actiencapital so hoch als nur irgend angänglich. „Lieber etwas mehr Capital!“ war fast überall die Losung; und die Vorstände gewisser Actiengesellschaften, die nachher in Concurs geriethen, oder zur Liquidation (Auflösung) schreiten mussten, suchten sich mit der Behauptung zu entschuldigen: das Actiencapital sei zu klein gewesen! Man that's in der Regel nicht unter einer Million, da man sonst nicht die Gründungsspesen herausschlug, und weil es sonst auch nicht recht lohnte, damit an die Börse zu kommen.

Weil man blos „gründete“ um zu gründen, musste man die Leitung der Fabrik oder der Bank etc. oft in den Händen des Verkäufers lassen. So heisst es in dem Prospect der Märkisch-Schlesischen Maschinenbau- und Hütten-Actien-Gesellschaft, vormals F. A. Egells: „Die Mitwirkung der früheren Besitzer ist für das neue Unternehmen gesichert“. Und in der Ankündigung der so berüchtigt gewordenen Thüringer Actien-Gesellschaft für Fabrikation von Eisenbahn-Material, Erfurt-Gotha — eingeführt durch die Bankhäuser Rauff & Knorr und S. Frenkel, die beide noch eine Reihe ähnlicher Gründungen leisteten — liest man: „Der bisherige Chef der Fabrik in Erfurt, Herr Julius Unger, eine technische Autorität für Eisenconstructions, ist für die Oberleitung des neuen Unternehmens gewonnen, dem damit die Erfahrungen und Verbindungen des alten zu Gute kommen“. Der Verkäufer oder Vorbesitzer, der nicht selten der eigentliche Gründer war, liess sich auch in vielen Fällen zum Präsidenten des Aufsichtsraths oder zum Director der neuen Actiengesellschaft ernennen. Als solcher bezog er dann einen Ministergehalt und eine vielleicht noch höhere Tantième, und verfuhr im Uebrigen nach Willkür und Belieben. Entweder er that gar nichts und liess die Dinge gehen, wie sie wollten; oder er that zu viel, begann zu bauen und zu vergrössern, schaffte die theuersten Maschinen an, experimentirte in der kostspieligsten Weise und verschwendete in Materialien und Löhnen — lauter Dinge, vor denen er sich früher wol gehütet hatte.

Um bei einer Gründung vorsichtig und sicher zu gehen, um sich gegen Verluste und Rückschläge zu decken, und um das Risiko möglichst zu theilen — bildete man wol auch nicht bloß ein Consortium (Genossenschaft), sondern mehrere hintereinander. Der interessanteste Fall dieser Art ist der folgende.

Herr H., ein von Statur nur kleiner, aber in Geschäften sehr gewandter und darin auch stets äusserst glücklicher Mann, verband sich im November 1871 mit guten Bekannten zur Gründung eines „artistischen“ Unternehmens. Nachdem die Zeichnungen geschehen, verkaufte das erste Consortium die Actien an ein zweites Consortium zum Course von 75, worauf sie ein drittes Consortium zum Course von 85 übernahm und sie einem vierten Consortium zum Course von 93 überliess. Dieses endlich brachte die Actien an die Börse zum Course von — — 110, und schlug sie zu diesem Preise auch wirklich los. Der Leser schüttelt verwundert den Kopf. Aber er wird sich erst recht wundern, wenn er hört, dass der kleine geschickte muntere Herr H. allen vier Consortien angehörte. In der That, Herr H. trat viermal hintereinander, zugleich als Verkäufer und als Käufer, als „Geber“ und als „Nehmer“ auf, und verdiente natürlich jedesmal doppelt, nach rückwärts wie nach vorwärts hin.

Und wir sind noch nicht zu Ende. Zeigt dieser sich beständig steigende Consortial-Gewinn von dem Genie des kleinen Mannes, so war die eigentliche Gründung doch noch genialer. Es handelte sich um ein sehr bekanntes, sehr verbreitetes Journal. Der Eigenthümer, Herr Sch., wollte sich, wie Borsig, keineswegs gründen lassen; er sträubte sich dagegen mit Händen und Füßen. Half ihm aber nichts — er wurde gewaltsam gegründet. Der kleine H. bot ihm Preis auf Preis, einen immer anständiger als den andern; und da Sch. keine Raison annahm, besann sich H. nicht lange und kündigte flugs ein Concurrrenzblatt an. Er kündigte es nicht blos an, sondern er liess auch ein paar Nummern erscheinen, und gleichzeitig entführte er seinem Gegner die ganze Redaction und die ganze Expedition, indem er das gesammte Personal beider bis zum Laufburschen herab zum Uebertritt bewog und in seine eigenen Dienste nahm. Selbstverständlich war damit des Andern Trotz gebrochen, er capitulirte schleunigst, er verstand sich zum Verkauf und empfing von H. 400,000 oder 500,000 Thaler — wir wissen es nicht genau. Wir wissen aber, dass das Grundcapital der neuen Actiengesellschaft etwa noch einmal so viel — 850,000 Thaler betrug, dass die Actien mit 110 an die Börse kamen und hier guten Abgang fanden.

Trotzdem war die Gründung eigentlich keine un-solide; nein! sie ist vielleicht mit die solideste der ganzen
Periode; denn die Gesellschaft hat seit drei Jahren
10 $\frac{1}{2}$ bis 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ Procent Dividende vertheilt, und ihre Actien stehen selbst heute, wo die Börse an der galop-pirenden Schwindsucht darniederliegt und die Mehrzahl
aller Effecten am Course fast neun Zehntel eingebüsst hat, über 100. Die Moral von der Geschichte aber mag der Leser sich selber sagen.

IV.

Die „Prospecte“.

Wie die Zeitungen anschwellen — Annoncen-Fluth und Annoncen-Ebbe — Poetische Prospecte — Altenburger Zuckerfabrik — „Rentabilitäts-Berechnungen“ (Flora, Berlin-Charlottenburger Bauverein, Maschinenfabrik Egells, Eilenburger Kattun, Joseph Beer selige Wittwe, Oderwerke, Remscheider Stahl) — „Märkische Todtengräberei“ — Herr Jean Fränkel und seine Thaten — Der junge Koch im koschern Restaurant Ritzewoller — Herr Robert Baumann und seine Werke — Berliner Nordbahn, Thüringer Bankverein, Deutsche Buchhändlerbank — Herrn Baumann's „deutscher Stil“ und Commerzienrath Meyer Cohn — „Garantirte Dividenden“ — Herr Leuffgen, Albertinenhütte und Marezzo-Marmor — Aachener Tuch, Stralsunder Mühlen, Harkort's Brückenbau, Brauerei Hasenhaide — Die Spener'sche Zeitung unter Herrn Wehrenpfennig — Sudenburger Maschinenfabrik — Insertionsunkosten — „Nachdruck wird nicht honorirt“ — „Dies Kind, kein Engel ist so rein“ — Der „Vulkan“ des Herrn Leopold Hadra.

In den Jahren 1871 und 1872 sah man die Berliner und auch die grösseren Provinzial-Zeitungen so unförmlich anschwellen, wie etwa eine Person, die an der Wassersucht leidet. Nicht den politischen Theil oder das Feuilleton — die vielmehr merklich zusammenschrumpften — wol aber die Börsenabtheilung und die Annoncen. Zeitungen, wie die Nationale und die Vossische, glichen in jeder Nummer einem dicken Actenstück, brachten täglich ein 5 bis 10 Bogen Beilagen, die von oben bis unten nur mit Inseraten bedeckt waren; und zwar in der Hauptsache mit solchen, die Gründungen und Emissionen verkündigten. Jede Nummer brachte ein paar „Prospecte“; und jeder „Prospect“ nahm eine oder ein paar Folio-Seiten ein, indem er in Druckerschwärze und in weissen Zwischenräumen wahrhaft schwelgte, in der denkbar fettesten Schrift und in riesigen zollhohen Buchstaben sich präsentirte.

Das war eine fette Zeit für die Zeitungen, und sie verstanden's, das Fett abzuschöpfen. Sie liessen die Annoncenspalten schmaler und schmaler werden, und erhöhten trotzdem die Insertionsgebühr in raschen Sprüngen um das Doppelte und Dreifache. Grosse Blätter mögen damals für Inserate 2 bis 5000 Thaler täglich eingesäckelt haben. Aber der „Grosse Krach“ hat auch die Einnahmen der Zeitungen stark beschnitten. Statt der goldnen Inseratenfluth von damals ist heute die kläglichste Ebbe eingetreten; es werden nicht mehr so viel Hunderte eingenommen, wie früher Tausende.

Die „Prospecte“ waren Entbindungs-Anzeigen. Eine neue Gründung war vollbracht, eine neue Actiengesellschaft hatte das Licht der Welt erblickt; und das liebe Publikum wurde zur Gevatterschaft eingeladen. „Prospect“ heisst bekanntlich zunächst: Anblick, Aussicht, Fernsicht; und deshalb ist das Wort sehr glücklich gewählt, überaus bezeichnend. Die „Prospecte“ können nicht besser verglichen werden als mit den Guckkastenbildern, wie man sie auf Kirchmessen und Jahrmärkten zeigt. Man guckt in den Kasten und glaubt ein herrliches Schloss zu sehen, oder ein Bergwerk in vollem Betriebe, oder eine paradiesische Landschaft; aber in Wahrheit ist es nur eine grobe dicke Farbenkleckerei. In der ersten Zeit der Gründungen freilich waren die Prospecte nicht solch plumpe, sondern eine feinere, mehr künstlerische Arbeit; so dass sie sich zuweilen wie ein farbiges Feuilleton oder gar wie ein schwungvolles Gedicht lasen.

Man höre z. B. den Prospect der Ersten Altenburger Zuckerfabrik, Kohlenabbau und Landwirtschaftlichen Industrie-Gesellschaft: „Zu den gesegnetsten Fluren des deutschen Vaterlandes gehört der Ostkreis des Herzogthums Sachsen-Altenburg. Die vorzügliche Fruchtbarkeit seines Bodens ist allgemein anerkannt. Aber er birgt auch die werthvollsten unterirdischen Reichthümer — ein Braunkohlenlager von seltner Mächtigkeit, das für diese Gegend eine industrielle Entwicklung in Aussicht stellt, welche nur der weckenden und fördernden Hand wartet, um rasch eine dauernde Blüthe zu erlangen. — „In Mitten dieses Bezirkes liegt das Rittergut Zechau, unter diesen reichen Geländen die Krone der dortigen Landgüter u. s. w.“

Der verlockenden Schilderung des Gründungsobjects folgte dann stets eine noch hinreissendere „Rentabilitäts-Berechnung“. Den Actionären wurde ein Gewinn verheissen, der den Edelmuth der Gründer in das hellste Licht stellte, und es fast unbegreiflich erscheinen liess, wie sie solch kostbares hocheinträgliches Object überhaupt weggeben konnten! Allermindestens wurde eine Verzinsung von 10 Procent in Aussicht gestellt; aber in der Regel weit mehr.

Das Vergnügungs-Etablissement Flora in Charlottenburg rechnete 12 Procent Dividende heraus: trotzdem ist der Cours nur noch ca. 12. Berlin-Charlottenburger Bauverein, eine Schöpfung des Herrn Richard Schweder, versprach nicht blos eine derartige Dividende, sondern stellte schon im „Prospect“ einen Gewinn von 13 Procent als vollendete Thatsache hin, weshalb die Actien auch zum Course von 110 aufgelegt wurden: — merkwürdigerweise ist dieser aber auch inzwischen bis ca. 15 gesunken. Maschinen-fabrik von vormals Egells versprach in den ungünstigsten Jahren 15 Procent, sonst mehr: — zeitiger Cours ca. 20. Kattun-Manufactur von vormals Schwerdtfeger in Eilenburg wies $17\frac{1}{2}$ Procent als frag- und zweifellos nach: — Cours ca. 40 Brief; d. h. mit 40 angeboten, aber nicht los zu werden. Bei vielen andern Gesellschaften ist das Missverhältniss noch weit grösser; wir wollen nur einige anführen:

Joseph Beer selige Wittwe in Liegnitz versprach für die Schlesische Wollwaaren-Fabrik, welche „aus dem vorigen Jahrhundert datirt“, „eines Weltruhms geniesst“ und ein Waarenhaus besitzt, dessen „sehr ausgedehnte Räume von Einem Punkte aus übersehen werden können“ — 15 bis 20 Procent Dividende. Zeitiger Cours ca. 20.

Herr Naumann, Herzoglicher Domainenpächter, rechnete für die Altenburger Zuckerfabrik einen Gewinn von 113,000 Thaler jährlich heraus; und zwar gleich auf einen Zeitraum von 120 Jahren. Cours 0 (Null). Die Gesellschaft ist bankerott.

Herr Jean Fränkel verhiess für die Märkische Torfgräberei, mittelst welcher er Berlin mit billigem Brennmaterial versorgen wollte — 15 Procent Dividende. Letzter Cours 2 Brief.

Freiherr von Werthern versprach für die von ihm verkauften Vereinigten Oderwerke eine Dividende von 19 Procent. Cours — 0. Die Gesellschaft ist bankerott.

Remscheider Stahlwerke von vormalis Arntz & Co., mit 101 $\frac{1}{2}$ an die Börse gebracht, liessen eine Dividende von über 30 Procent erwarten. Cours — 0. Die Gesellschaft ist bankerott.

Um dies erschreckliche Missverhältniss einigermaßen aufzuklären, wollen wir uns zu ein paar Bemerkungen verstehen. — Altenburger Zuckerfabrik, den Actionären mit 700,000 Thaler überwiesen, kam im December 1874 unter den Hammer des Subhastationsrichters. Das Meistgebot war 212,000 Thaler, ging aber auch nur von Hypothekengläubigern aus, die so ihre Forderung retten wollten. In einem zweiten Termin wurden gar nur 179,000 Thaler geboten, und musste für diesen Preis die „Krone der reichen Gelände“ sammt den grossen „unterirdischen Reichthümern“ weggegeben werden. Die Actionäre haben natürlich Alles verloren. Vereinigte Oderwerke bestanden in einem Lehmstich mit Ziegelei, welche der Gesellschaft 162,000 Thaler kosteten. Märkische Torfgräberei, von der Börse, welche eine sehr feine Nase hat, als-bald „Märkische Todtengräberei“ benamst — war blos eine Torfwiese, und noch dazu eine sehr fragwürdige, welche Herr Jean Fränkel den Actionären mit 210,000 Thaler in Rechnung stellte. Diese Summe war so haarsträubend, dass selbst der Vorbesitzer darob erschrak — wiewol auch er die Torfwiese gewiss nicht billig abgegeben hatte — und in einem verschämten anonymen Inserat das auf „Märkische Todtengräberei“ begierige Publikum höflichst einlud, sich nach der Moritzstrasse 5, parterre links, bemühen zu wollen, wo man ihm über die Gründung reinen Wein einschenken werde.

Herr Jean Fränkel aber, obgleich er nur zu den Gründern zweiter oder gar dritter Classe gehört, verdient etwas näher in's Auge gefasst zu werden. Er ist nämlich ein Mann von Charakter und Consequenz. Andere seiner Berufsgenossen haben, sei es aus Laune, sei es aus Versehen, mitunter eine mehr oder minder lebensfähige Gesellschaft in die Welt gesetzt. Das aber that Herr Jean Fränkel, gleichsam des Princip wegen, nie. Unter den faulen Gründungen der Schwindelperiode sind die von ihm begangenen mit die faulsten. Sie stinken sämmtlich zum Himmel. Selbst die Börse, die in solchen Dingen nicht wählerisch, nicht ekel ist, kann die Gründungsleichen des Herrn Jean Fränkel nicht handeln, ohne dass ihr eine Gänsehaut über den Rücken läuft.

Neben der „Märkischen Todtengräberei“ sind noch zu nennen: die schon erwähnte Flora, an der sich Viele versündigten, und die auch Herr Jean Fränkel sehr geschwächt hat; ferner Berliner Weissbierbrauerei, vormals Gericke — Cours ca. 20; Charlottenburger Baugesellschaft, unter Mitwirkung des Bürgermeisters von Charlottenburg, Herrn Bullrich, verübt — Cours ca. 5; und Nieder-Schönhausener Baugesellschaft, die gar nicht mehr notirt wird. Der Besitz dieser Gesellschaft besteht aus einem Sandplatz, der ihr für 230,000 Thaler aufgehalst wurde. Während der Verkäufer des Torfbruchs von Skaby nur anonym protestirte, erhoben die Bauern von Schönhausen ein lautes zorniges Protestgeschrei; aber Herr Jean Fränkel kehrte sich ebensowenig an das eine wie an das andere. Und warum auch? Was die Vorbesitzer gegen ihn trieb, war sicher nicht Mitleid mit den betrogenen Actionären, sondern das Verlangen, auf den Attentäter eine Pression zu üben; zu versuchen, ob sich nicht nachträglich noch etwas aus ihm heraus schlagen liesse.

Aber Eins verargen wir Herrn Jean Fränkel. Das ist sein Verhalten gegen den Koch von Ritzewoller. In dem koschern Restaurant Ritzewoller pflegte Herr Jean Fränkel nach vollbrachter Arbeit seine Gründungs-Diners zu geben, mit seinen Verbündeten zu tafeln. Der Koch des Hauses war, trotzdem er wenig über Zwanzig zählte, in seiner Kunst ein Meister; und auch der Champagner von Ritzewoller suchte seines Gleichen. Der Koch verlor leider seine Stelle, und da liess er sich's einfallen, im Namen des Herrn Jean Fränkel, den er wohl kannte, einen Zettel zu schreiben und von Ritzewoller sechs Flaschen Champagner — vom Besten — zu verlangen. Er erhielt sie und trank sie aus. Als bald kam die Fälschung an den Tag; natürlich durch die Schuld des Herrn Jean Fränkel, der die ihm vorgelegte Rechnung nicht bezahlen wollte; sondern es kalt mit ansah, dass man den jungen Koch der Justiz überlieferte und ihn nach der Strenge des Gesetzes verurtheilte. Bei Gott, das war nicht schön von Herrn Jean Fränkel! Wie? Einen armen Teufel wegen sechs Flaschen Champagner in's Zuchthaus schicken zu lassen, wenn man selber Flora, Berliner Weissbier, Charlottenburger Baugesellschaft und „Märkische Todtengräberei“ auf dem Gewissen hat?!

Da wir einmal von oberfaulen Gründungen sprechen, so verlangt die Gerechtigkeit, dass wir hier auch Herrn Robert Baumann einschalten. Allerdings rangirt er etwas höher als Herr Jean Fränkel, denn er hat etwa dreimal soviel als dieser gegründet, und darunter auch einige erträgliche Sachen; z. B. Berliner Bank, Bank für Rheinland und Westphalen, Hessische Bank, Hessische Brauerei und Zeitzer Eisengiesserei. Auch Egells'sche Maschinenfabrik wollen wir ihm hingehen lassen. Aber ganz und gar nicht zu entschuldigenden sind: Allgemeine Deutsche Handelsgesellschaft — Cours ca. 8; Berliner Nord-Eisenbahn — Cours 0; und vor Allem nicht der so entsetzliche Thüringer Bankverein in Erfurt, dessen Directoren Heinrich Moos und Selmar Uhley bekanntlich durchbrannten, und dann im „Kladderadatsch“, unter Beifügung ihrer Portraits, steckbrieflich verfolgt wurden. Auch an der Deutschen Buchhändlerbank war Herr Robert Baumann mit thätig; eine Gründung, die, obgleich hier als Geburtshelfer solch berühmte „Volkswirthe“ wie Julius Faucher und Karl Braun-Wiesbaden fungirten, dennoch todt zur Welt kam.

Endlich ist Herr Robert Baumann auch der wahre Urheber der Altenburger Zuckerfabrik, nur dass der hochpoetische Prospect nicht von ihm selber herrührt. Nach der „Stilprobe“ zu urtheilen, die einst die „Neue Börsen-Zeitung“ von ihm veröffentlichte, und worin er sich gegen gewisse Anschuldigungen in Sachen Berliner Bank und Nordbahn zu rechtfertigen versuchte, scheint er nicht gerade ein „Held der Feder“ zu sein. Um seine Gründungssünden in etwas wieder wett zu machen, vielleicht auch nur, um die Aufmerksamkeit von ihnen abzulenken, paradierte er mit dem „Invalidendank“, gab und sammelte er ostensibel zu patriotischen und wohlthätigen Zwecken, suchte er mit der Aristokratie anzuknüpfen. Dessenungeachtet blieb er titel- und ordenlos, was uns billig Wunder nimmt. Wenn z. B. Herr Meyer Cohn, auch ein vielgewandter Gründer, Commerzienrath wurde; warum denn Herr Robert Baumann nicht?! Sollte ihn daran blos sein „deutscher Stil“ verhindert haben? —

Nach dieser Abschweifung zu Gunsten der Herren Jean Fränkel und Robert Baumann, kehren wir zu den „Prospecten“ zurück. In zahlreichen Fällen wurde eine Dividende nicht nur verheissen und ausgerechnet, sondern von den Vorbesitzern resp. Gründern auch „garantirt“. Herr Leuffgen versprach für die von ihm verkaufte Glasfabrik Albertinenhütte bei Char-

lottenburg eine Verzinsung von 16 Procent auf fünf Jahre; trotzdem ist der Cours bis auf 6 zurückgegangen. Es ist dies, nebenbei bemerkt, derselbe Herr Leuffgen, der auch Director der Deutschen Marezzo-Marmor-Gesellschaft war, und diese rasch dem Concourse zuführte, indem er das ganze Actiencapital wie ein Taschenspieler verschwinden liess; ein Kunststück, das der Concurrs-Verwalter den „reinen Einbruch“ nannte.*)

Die Herren Schöller und van Alpen garantirten der Aachener Tuchfabrik gleichfalls 10 Procent Dividende für die ersten fünf Jahre; in Folge dessen wurden die Actien mit 105 aufgelegt, sind aber schon lange nicht mehr auf dem Courszettel zu finden. Die Versprechungen des „Prospect“ erwiesen sich als grober Schwindel, Niemand wollte die Coupons einlösen, und die schriftliche Garantieerklärung der Herren Schöller und van Alpen hat der „Vorsitzende des Aufsichtsraths“, Commerzienrath Robert Schöller in Düren, der Vater des Mit-Vorbesitzers der Fabrik, „nach sich genommen“. Die Gesellschaft schloss ihr erstes und einziges Geschäftsjahr mit einer Unterbilanz

*) Vgl. Berliner „Tribüne“ No. 84, vom 26. Juni 1874.

von 108,000 Thalern und trat dann in Liquidation (Auflösung).

Aehnliche Zinsgarantien leisteten: Herr Hermann Lehl für die Dampfmühlen-Gesellschaft in Stralsund; Joseph Beer selige Wittwe in Liegnitz für die Schlesische Wollwaaren-Fabrik; Herr Johann Caspar Harkort für die Gesellschaft für Eisenindustrie und Brückenbau in Duisburg; lauter Actien, deren Coursstand seit Jahren jeder Zinsgarantie Hohn spricht. Der schreiendste Fall ist jedoch Bergbrauerei Hasenhaide in Berlin; mit 8 Procent Dividende „garantirt“, ist der Cours etwa 1 Brief. —

Entweder war die Zinsgarantie auch nur ein Versprechen, das man auf sich beruhen liess; oder wenn die Verkäufer wirklich die betreffende Summe sicher stellten, gehörte diese schon zu den Gründungsunkosten, steckte sie eben im Actiencapital, so dass sie thatsächlich von den Actionären selber aufgebracht wurde, und es sich wieder um eine blosse Augenverblendniss handelte.

Dass die „Prospecte“, hinsichtlich der Rentabilitätsberechnung wie des Erwerbspreises, also in den beiden wesentlichen Punkten, fast regelmässig arge Täuschungen und grobe Unwahrheiten enthielten, sprach

lottenburg eine Verzinsung von 16 Procent auf fünf Jahre; trotzdem ist der Cours bis auf 6 zurückgegangen. Es ist dies, nebenbei bemerkt, derselbe Herr Leuffgen, der auch Director der Deutschen Marezzo-Marmor-Gesellschaft war, und diese rasch dem Concourse zuführte, indem er das ganze Actiencapital wie ein Taschenspieler verschwinden liess; ein Kunststück, das der Concur-Verwalter den „reinen Einbruch“ nannte.*)

Die Herren Schöller und van Alpen garantirten der Aachener, Tuchfabrik gleichfalls 10 Procent Dividende für die ersten fünf Jahre; in Folge dessen wurden die Actien mit 105 aufgelegt, sind aber schon lange nicht mehr auf dem Courszettel zu finden. Die Versprechungen des „Prospect“ erwiesen sich als grober Schwindel, Niemand wollte die Coupons einlösen, und die schriftliche Garantieerklärung der Herren Schöller und van Alpen hat der „Vorsitzende des Aufsichtsraths“, Commerzienrath Robert Schöller in Düren, der Vater des Mit-Vorbesitzers der Fabrik, „nach sich genommen“. Die Gesellschaft schloss ihr erstes und einziges Geschäftsjahr mit einer Unterbilanz

*) Vgl. Berliner „Tribüne“ No. 84, vom 26. Juni 1874.

von 108,000 Thalern und trat dann in Liquidation (Auflösung).

Aehnliche Zinsgarantien leisteten: Herr Hermann Lehl für die Dampfmühlen-Gesellschaft in Stralsund; Joseph Beer selige Wittwe in Liegnitz für die Schlesische Wollwaaren-Fabrik; Herr Johann Caspar Harkort für die Gesellschaft für Eisenindustrie und Brückenbau in Duisburg; lauter Actien, deren Coursstand seit Jahren jeder Zinsgarantie Hohn spricht. Der schreiendste Fall ist jedoch Bergbrauerei Hasenhaide in Berlin; mit 8 Procent Dividende „garantirt“, ist der Cours etwa 1 Brief. —

Entweder war die Zinsgarantie auch nur ein Versprechen, das man auf sich beruhen liess; oder wenn die Verkäufer wirklich die betreffende Summe sicher stellten, gehörte diese schon zu den Gründungskosten, steckte sie eben im Actiencapital, so dass sie thatsächlich von den Actionären selber aufgebracht wurde, und es sich wieder um eine blosse Augenverblendniss handelte.

Dass die „Prospecte“, hinsichtlich der Rentabilitätsberechnung wie des Erwerbspreises, also in den beiden wesentlichen Punkten, fast regelmässig arge Täuschungen und grobe Unwahrheiten enthielten, sprach die „Spener'sche Zeitung“ in ihrer Börsen-Rückschau vom 31. December 1872 offen aus. Es war dies um so verdienstlicher als das Blatt damals, von Herrn Wehrenpfennig redigirt, der Preussischen Boden-Credit-Actien-Bank angehörte, an deren Spitze Herr Richard Schweder stand — der Gründer par excellence. Leider wird das Verdienst der genannten Zeitung dadurch etwas geschmälert, dass sie jene freimüthige Aeusserung so spät that, als der Gründungsschwindel bereits so gut wie zu Ende war.

Die „Prospecte“, gewöhnlich unter juristischem Beirath entstanden, sind mit einer wahren Meisterschaft abgefasst. Sie versprechen Alles, und verpflichten zu Nichts. Nur höchst selten haben die Gründer sich im „Prospect“ eine Blösse gegeben, auf Grund des Prospects zur Rechenschaft gezogen werden können; und noch seltener haben die betrogenen Actionäre wirklich etwas zurückerhalten. Nur Ein nennenswerthes Beispiel schwebt uns vor. Es ist der Fall der Sudenburger Maschinenfabrik, vormals F. A. Klusemann in Magdeburg, wo die Uriane einen Theil ihres Raubes — 350,000 Thaler — factisch herausgaben, aber trotzdem dem Staatsanwalt verfielen.

Der „Prospect“ wurde in etwa 20 bis 50 Zeitungen

gerückt; und zwar nicht Ein mal, sondern mehrere Mal. Bloss die Veröffentlichung des „Prospects“ und sonstige Insertionskosten machten eine Ausgabe bis 10,000 Thaler und mehr nöthig; woraus man entnehmen kann, dass die Gründungsspesen nicht klein waren. In erster Reihe erhielten das Inserat sämmtliche Börsenblätter, die damals wie Pilze emporschossen; sodann die grossen politischen Zeitungen und auch wol verbreitete Localblätter. Es handelte sich um die grösstmögliche Publicität; es handelte sich aber auch um Unterstützung, wenigstens um Schonung. Deshalb wurden auch solche Blätter bedacht, die keinen besondern Leserkreis hatten, aber doch irgendwie zu fürchten waren.

Alle Blätter, gross wie klein, lechzten nach Gründungs- und Emissions-Anzeigen; die kleinern bewarben sich darum oder druckten sie unaufgefordert ab und schickten Belag nebst Rechnung ein, die in der Regel auch bezahlt wurde, denn man verstreute ja das Geld. Erst als die Schwindelperiode zu Ende ging, ward man sparsamer; und da findet sich denn unter den Inseraten der für die meisten Leser gewiss räthselhafte Vermerk: „Nachdruck wird nicht honorirt!“ Blätter, die mit den Anzeigen nicht „betheiligt“ wurden, erhoben wol ein Geschrei, griffen die Gründung versteckt oder offen an. So that z. B., gegenüber dem im vorigen Capitel erwähnten „artistischen Unternehmen“, eine eben entstandene Börsen-Zeitung. Sie enthüllte die Courstreiberei mittelst der verschiedenen Consortien, welche die Actien nacheinander übernahmen, bis sie endlich 10 Procent über Pari (100) an die Börse kamen. Das war ein Wink für die Gründer. Sie holten das Versäumte nach, und nun brachte dasselbe Börsenblatt eine sehr günstige Besprechung, empfahl das „artistische Unternehmen“ als durchaus solid und höchst rentabel.

Das blosse Inserat genügte nicht; die Gründung musste auch im redactionellen Theil erwähnt, der „Prospect“ hier theilweise übernommen oder umschrieben werden. Kleinere Blätter besorgten das schon um des Inserats willen; die grössern aber nur gegen besonderes Honorar, und dieses betrug in der Regel weit mehr als die Insertionsgebühr. Ohne Rücksicht auf das Inserat wurde in den tonangebenden Börsenzeitungen manche Gründung erbarmungslos heruntergerissen; und erst hinterher, nachdem sie sich ihrer Schuldigkeit bewusst geworden, zu Gnaden angenommen. So hatte, um Ein Beispiel für hundert anzuführen, ein sehr bekanntes Börsenblatt zunächst Berliner Weissbier, vormals Gericke, nach Gebühr verarbeitet; aber ein paar Tage später legte es dieser Tochter des Herrn Jean Fränkel, diesem Monstrum, die Hände segnend auf das Haupt und sprach mit dem Grafen von Savern:

Dies Kind, kein Engel ist so rein, Lasst's Eurer Huld empfohlen sein!

Weit geschickter verfuhr in solchen Fällen die „Neue Börsen-Zeitung“, ja nicht ohne Humor und Schalkhaftigkeit. So schrieb sie: „Wir finden in verschiedenen Blättern eine Aufzählung der Leistungen der Maschinenfabrik Berliner Vulkan. Wir können es uns um so mehr versagen auf die Einzelheiten näher einzugehen, als denselben durch die übereinstimmende Reproduction in den übrigen Blättern eine mehr als hinreichende Publicität gegeben ist. Unsere Aufgabe dürfen wir als erfüllt betrachten, wenn wir darauf hinweisen, dass die Leistungen der Fabrik für uns die Verzinsung des nur 450,000 Thaler betragenden Actien-capitals ausser Zweifel stellen.“

Nur 450,000 Thaler! (Wobei übrigens die Hypotheken mit 215,000 Thaler vergessen.) Fürwahr eine Kleinigkeit! Und auch mit der „guten Verzinsung“ hatte die „Neue Börsen-Zeitung“ Recht. Im „ersten Geschäftsjahr“ vertheilte der von Herrn Leopold Hadra aus der von Michalkowski'schen Fabrik componirte „Vulkan“ wirklich 7 Procent Dividende, seitdem aber keinen Heller mehr. Deshalb notirt ihn die Börse nur noch ca. 12; und wir fürchten, dass er selbst auf dieser Höhe sich nicht halten, sondern noch tiefer, viel tiefer sinken wird.

V.

„Subscription“ und „Einführung“.

Hinter und vor den Coullissen — Alles blosser Hocuspocus — „Kolossal überzeichnet“ — Subscriptions-Humbig — „Repartitionen“ und „Reductionen“ — Wöhler'sche Maschinenfabrik — Königs- und Laurahütte — Herr von Kardorff-Wabnitz — Der „Berliner Börsen-Courier“ tritt für das Publikum ein — Itzig Meyer & Co. und die Erste Deutsche General-Leimstiederei — Die Consortial-Verschworrenen — Die „Nante's“ — Die Abrechnung — Nochmals der Dannenberger'sche Kattun — Die „Fixer“ und die „Schwänze“ — Producten- und Handelsbank — Die Agiotage oder der Conrswechsler — Louise Tiefbau, Dortmunder Union — Rothschild, Bleichröder, Jacob Landau etc. — Deutsche Reichs- und Continental-Eisenbahnbaugesellschaft — Hanseemann und Miquel — Provinzial-Disconto-Gesellschaft — $2 \times 2 = 6$ und $2 \times 2 = 3$.

Wieviel Stadien hat nicht erst ein Friedens- oder Allianzvertrag zu durchlaufen; wie viel Conferenzen und Verhandlungen sind vorher nöthig! Welche Mühe kostet nicht das Einstudiren eines Schauspiels; wieviel Vorbereitungen und Zurüstungen sind nothwendig, bevor es wirklich zur Aufführung kommt! Welche Kämpfe finden selbst zwischen Mitarbeiter und Redacteur, oft wegen eines einzigen Journal-Artikels statt! Von alledem erfährt das Publikum so gut wie nichts; was ihm geboten wird, sind vollendete Thatsachen, fertige Producte.

Mit den Gründungen verhielt es sich noch ganz anders. Hier geschah alles Wesentliche und Wirkliche hinter den Coulissen; Alles war bereits abgekartet und eingefädelt, und was an die Oeffentlichkeit trat, war blosser Hocuspocus; allein darauf berechnet, die Menge zu verblenden und einzufangen.

Mit dem „Prospect“, welcher von der glücklich erfolgten Gründung Kunde gab, die neue Actiengesellschaft in den rösigsten Farben malte und den Actionären Gewinn über Gewinn verhiess — war die Einladung zur Subscription verbunden. An dem und dem Tage und an den und den Orten wurde das Actiencapital, ganz oder theilweise, zur Zeichnung aufgelegt, dem Publikum zum Pari-Course (100) oder darüber, angeboten. Und nun herbei, Ihr guten Leute, die Ihr Geld im Beutel habt und Willens seid, es sicher und mit Vortheil anzulegen! Versäumt ja die Stunde nicht, sie bedeutet Euer Glück, und sie kehrt nicht wieder!!

Und sie kamen in hellen Haufen, sie versperreten die Strasse, sie belagerten das Haus; und als die Thüren sich endlich öffneten, quoll der Strom herein, und in einem Augenblick waren die ausliegenden Bogen mit Unterschriften bedeckt. Der Eine zeichnete 100 Thaler, der Andere 500, der Dritte 1000, der Vierte 3000, der Fünfte 10,000 Thaler. „Drei-, fünfmal überzeichnet!“ — „Kolossal überzeichnet!!“ meldeten noch am selben Abend die Zeitungen im Chor. „Die Zeichnungen müssen erheblich reducirt werden!!!“

War aber in der Regel Alles blosser Hocuspocus! Nichts weiter als ein von den Gründern in Scene gesetztes Spektakelstück! Jene Leute, welche sich an der Zeichnungsstelle drängen und stossen, sind Commis und Ausläufer von verbündeten oder befreundeten Geschäftshäusern, oder gemiethete Dienstmänner, welche man heute in Paletot und Cylinder gesteckt hat; und zu ihnen gesellen sich Müssiggänger und Neugierige. Hin und wieder verirrt sich auch wol ein Privatmann; getäuscht von dem Treiben, zeichnet er eine Summe, und erhält sie, trotz aller „Reductionen“, unvermeidlich und — voll.

Die „Neue Börsen-Zeitung“, die sich überhaupt des Publikums gegen die Börsianer ritterlich annahm, beleuchtete den „Subscriptions-Humbug“, wie sie ihn nannte, wiederholt, und kritisirte ihn scharf. Sie tadelte namentlich die Discontogesellschaft, welche in zwei Glagan, Der Börsenschwindel.

6

Fällen, bei Gelegenheit der Ungarischen Eisenbahn-Anleihe und der Aachener Disconto-Gesellschaft, den Subscribenten „die Thüren blos der Formalität wegen geöffnet hatte, um sie dann gleich wieder zu schliessen.“ Aber etliche herzhaftere Leute, fügte das Blatt hinzu, hätten sich nicht wie Narren heimschicken lassen, wären so energisch aufgetreten, dass man ihnen noch ein „Pöstchen aus dem Privatschatz“ abgelassen.

War aber auch wieder Hocuspocus! Blosser Reclame für die beiden Papiere, um den Cours zu treiben und das Publikum lecker zu machen! — Der Privatmann betheiligte sich nicht wol schon an den Subscriptionen, und wenn er's dennoch that, zeichnete er nicht selber, sondern liess durch seinen Banquier zeichnen. Die Banquiers aber hatten es nicht nöthig, sich an der Zeichnungsstelle zu drängen; sie gaben ihre Ordres einfach schriftlich und vorher mittelst der Post auf.

Wirkliche Ueberzeichnungen kamen nur ausnahmsweise vor, und dann geschahen sie von Börsen-Speculanten, welche ohne Rücksicht auf die Gründung selber, deren eigentlichen Werth sie ebensowenig wie das grosse Publikum kannten und zu beurtheilen vermochten, ein besonderes Vertrauen hatten zu der „starken“ und „glücklichen“ Hand der Gründer. Aber von jeder neuen Gesellschaft mussten die Zeitungen eine „sehr erhebliche“ oder gar eine „kolossale“ Ueberzeichnung vermelden, und laut besonderer Bekanntmachung wurde dann stets eine „Repartition“ vorgenommen.

Eisenwerk Marienhütte bei Kotzenau; vormals Schlittgen und Haase, aufgelegt bei der Gewerbebank H. Schuster; und Vereins-Brauerei Berliner Gastwirth, aufgelegt von Bercht & Swoboda — konnten beide nur Zeichnungen bis 5000 Thaler voll berücksichtigen, höhere Beiträge mussten auf 25 Procent reducirt werden. — Heutiger Cours 50 und resp. 12! Bank für Sprit- und Productenhandel, vormals Gebrüder Wrede, aufgelegt bei der Centralbank für Handel und Industrie, war leider nur im Stande, Summen bis 1000 Thaler zu acceptiren, höhere Beträge mussten sich eine Reduction von 40 Procent gefallen lassen. — Heutiger Cours 60. Immer waren die Gründer so edel, in erster Reihe die kleinen Zeichnungen zu berücksichtigen, den sonnenklaren Profit zunächst den minder wohlhabenden Leuten zu gönnen.

Inmitten dieser regelmässigen „Ueberzeichnungen“ und obligaten „Reductionen“ musste es umsomehr auffallen, als plötzlich Herr Richard Schweder von der Preussischen Boden-Creditactien-Bank dem Publikum einen „nicht subscribirten Rest“ F. Wöhlert'scher Maschinenbau-Actien von 750,000 Thaler nachträglich offerirte und freundlichst zu „Nachanmeldungen“ einlud. Obgleich man sich mitten in der Schwindelperiode befand, machte diese Gründung, eingeleitet von Hermann Geber, und dargeboten von den Herren Karl Coppel, Karl Braun-Wiesbaden, Stadtrath Pohle, Geheimen Commerzienrath F. W. Krause, bald hernach geadelt, und Gustav Markwald, Schwiegervater des genialen Directors Schweder — doch ein rauschendes Fiasko.

Das Actiencapital betrug die Kleinigkeit von $3\frac{1}{4}$ Million Thaler, und gewisse Vorgänge hinter den Coullissen waren ruchbar geworden. Als das „erste Geschäftsjahr“ zu Ende ging, erschien in „Saling's Börsenblatt“ ein „Eingesandt“, welches constatirte, dass die Gesellschaft, die im „Prospect“ 120 Locomotiven alljährlich versprochen, wirklich geliefert habe 40, und überhaupt fertig stellen könne höchstens 50. Auch wurde bemerkt, „dass die Verwaltung einen recht starken Frost und Schneefall herbeisehne“, weil dann die Aufnahme der Inventur über das im Freien herumliegende Material unmöglich sei. Diesem „Eingesandt“ ist nirgends widersprochen; wol aber erzählte man sich laut, dass der Vorbesitzer, Commerzienrath Wöhlert, an der neuen Actiengesellschaftswirthschaft seine offene Schadenfreude habe und sie mit beissenden Witzen begleite.

Keine Gründung machte grösseres Furore als Vereinigte Königs- und Laurahütte. Laut Bekanntmachung erhielten die Zeichner von 200 bis 2000 Thaler eine Actie à 200 Thaler, von 2200 bis 8000 Thaler zwei Actien, die höheren Summen nur fünf Procent. Hier mag thatsächlich eine Ueberzeichnung stattgefunden haben. Die Gesellschaft vertheilte 1871 bis 1874 — $12\frac{1}{4}$, 29, 20 und 10 Procent Dividende. Die Actien wurden an der Börse ein wildes Spielpapier, und der Cours stieg unaufhörlich bis zum Wiener Krach, wo er etwa 270 stand. Aber was für „Hände“ waren auch hier thätig, und was für „Hände“ halten die Gesellschaft noch heute, wo der Cours bis 60 gesunken ist, über Wasser! Wir nennen nur: Gerson Bleichröder, inzwischen geadelt; Wilhelm Behrens und Baron von Westenholz in Hamburg; Jakob Landau, Heinrich Heimann und Justizrath Friedensburg in Breslau; Geheime-räthe Krienes und von Carnall; Graf von Hatzfeld-Wildenburg und Altenburgischer Minister von Gerstenberg, Fabrikbesitzer a. D. Carl Egells, Geh. Commerzienrath Louis Ravené und Herr W. von Kardorff-Wabnitz, Mitglied des Preussischen Abgeordnetenhauses und des Deutschen Reichstags; ein Hauptredner der freiconservativen Partei, eine Autorität in allen Finanz- und volkswirtschaftlichen Fragen, sowie auf dem Gebiete der Gründungen. Hut ab vor diesen „Händen“!

Auf die „Subscription“ folgte die Einführung an der Börse. In vielen Fällen, namentlich als der Schwindel in üppigster Blüthe stand, und die Börse jedes Papier, ohne es weiter zu prüfen, willig aufnahm, sah man von „Prospect“ und „Subscription“ ganz ab und brachte die neuen Actien gleich zu Markt. Ein paar Tage vorher erschien im redactionellen Theil der Zeitungen eine ziemlich gleichlautende Notiz, welche die Gründung kurz skizzirte, bestens empfahl, und der Welt verkündete, dass am nächsten Dienstag das grosse Haus Itzig Meyer & Co. mit den Actien der „Ersten Deutschen General-Leimsiederei“ debutiren werde.

Unterm 10. Februar 1873, also wie der Schwindel bereits stark zu Ende ging, brachte der „Berliner Börsen-Courier“ einen Artikel, worin er die beiden

Verfahren „Subscription“ und „Einführung“ gegen einander abwog und die blosse „Einführung“ als „nicht reell“ bezeichnete. Wenn schon, so ungefähr führte er aus, der „Prospect“ gemeinhin keinen Glauben verdiene, und auch die „Subscription“ eine etwas undurchsichtige Operation bleibe, so böten beide doch dem Publikum immer einen gewissen Anhalt, während die „Einführung“ den Gründern Gelegenheit gebe, selbst „ein gänzlichcs Fiasco zu cachiren“. Der „Börsen-Courier“ forderte daher, namentlich die „ersten Häuser“ auf, „sich dieses unberechtigten Modus der «Einführung» möglichst bald zu entschlagen“, oder doch wenigstens vorher, „durch Publication eines detaillirten Prospects; ihrer Pflicht gegen das Privatcapital“ zu genügen.

Wieder der reine blanke Hocuspocus! Für das Publikum hatten „Subscription“ wie „Einführung“ genau dieselbe Bedeutung. Beides waren Schauspiele, die die Gründer mit ihren Helfershelfern aufführten, um dadurch die Menge erst aufmerksam zu machen und zum Kaufen der neuen Actien zu verlocken. Alle solche Enthüllungen und Ausplaudereien der Börsenblätter, solche Schutzreden für das arme liebe Publikum und solcher Apell an die Respectabilität der „ersten Häuser“ sind weiter nichts als: „Sand in die Augen!“ Ja, meistens ist damit noch eine geschickte Reclame für irgend ein „erstes Haus“ und dessen neueste „Operation“ verbunden, und es werden unter der Maske sittlicher Entrüstung blos wieder neue Sprenkel gelegt.

Wir kommen jetzt zur „Einführung“.

Itzig Meyer & Co., welche die Actien der „Ersten Deutschen General-Leimsiederei“ vertreiben sollen, haben sich zunächst mit einem „Consortium“ umgeben. Die Mitglieder desselben sind nicht zu verwechseln mit den „ersten Zeichnern“, welche, wie man weiss, in der Regel blos zum Schein gezeichnet haben. Nein, dieses Consortium ist ganz ernsthaft gemeint; es ist für Itzig Meyer & Co. eine Art Rückversicherung, wie sie Lebens- und Feuerversicherungs-Gesellschaften eingehen, um sich ihrerseits wieder den Rücken zu decken und das grosse Risiko zu vertheilen. Solch Consortium besteht aus 10, 20, 30 oder mehr Personen, die sich aus Banquiers, Maklern, Spéculanten und andern Börsianern zusammensetzen. Sie übernehmen die Actien der „Ersten Deutschen General-Leimsiederei“, in Posten von 5000, 10,000 20,000 oder gar 100,000 Thalern, zu einem bestimmten Course, welcher der Consortialcours heisst und im vorliegenden Falle etwa 70 betragen mag. • Zu diesem Preise dürfen Itzig Meyer & Co. von ihren Consortial-Verschworenen nöthigenfalls die Abnahme der Actien verlangen, brauchen aber, wenn sie nicht wollen, dafür kein Stück zu liefern, und geben vorläufig auch kein Stück aus den Händen.

Der Erfolg der „Einführung“ hängt zunächst davon ab, ob auch der richtige Zeitpunkt gewählt ist. Die überaus nervöse und sensitive Börse muss sich bei guter Laune befinden; sie darf nicht etwa „verstimmt“ oder „matt“ oder gar „flau“ sein; sonst wird die „Einführung“ besser aufgeschoben, oder sie fällt in's Wasser.

Der bewusste Dienstag kommt, und die Börse hat ein vortreffliches Aussehen. „Ganz Israel strahlet und glänzet vor Lust.“ Der grosse Augenblick ist da, und der Chef oder der Bevollmächtigte des hochrenommirten Hauses Itzig Meyer & Co. tritt auf, umgeben von den Consortial-Verschworenen, die sein Gefolge bilden — wie jener Schwarm von Clienten, mit welchen Pompejus oder Julius Cäsar auf dem Forum erschienen. Auch für „Volk“ ist gesorgt: Das Volk oder den „Mob“ bilden die Jobber der untersten Classe, welche von der Hand in den Mund leben, und sich mitunter durch fettglänzende Röcke und zerrissene Hosen bemerklich machen. Sie sind die öffentlichen Ausrufer, und sie heissen, in Erinnerung an die ausgestorbenen Berliner Eckensteher, die Nante's der Börse.

Die allgemeine Aufmerksamkeit richtet sich jetzt auf Itzig Meyer & Co., das ganze Geschäft pausirt eine Weile, und mit grossem Geräusch gehen die Actien der „Ersten Deutschen General-Leimsiederei“ in Scene. Der Einführungscours ist mit Rücksicht auf das „grosse Haus“ Itzig Meyer & Co. 108½; bloß Pari (100) würde seinem Ansehen nicht recht entsprechen. „Leimsiederei“ wird heftig begehrt und fast ebenso heftig gekauft. Aber von wem? Einstweilen nur von den Consortial-Verschworenen, ihren Freunden, Anhängern und Agenten. Ein dicker Nante mit ausserordentlich entwickelter Nase schreit: „Ich nehme «Leim» mit 109!“ — „„Leim mit 109!!“““ brüllt der Janhagel ihm nach.

Jedermann im Saale weiss, dass die Nante's weder „Leim“ wollen, noch „Leim“ bekommen, dass sie nur von Itzig Meyer & Co. mit ein paar Stücken „betheiligt“ sind, und dafür ihre Ausrufer-Dienste thun. Niemand im Saale lässt sich durch die armen Kerle täuschen, aber ihr Geschrei macht doch Effect und hallt in den Börsenberichten der Zeitungen wieder. Sie nützen zwar nicht viel, aber sie könnten gegen das Papier schreien und doch Schaden anrichten; darum sind sie angeworben, und sie dünken den Gründern ebenso nöthig und unentbehrlich, wie einem grossen Schauspieler oder einer berühmten Sängerin die — Claqueurs.

Der Cours von „Leim“ geht heute bis auf 112, morgen ist er vielleicht schon 115 und übermorgen 120. Die Consortial-Verschworenen kaufen und lassen kaufen zu diesen Coursen, daher der Makler sie notiren muss; und wenn es auch nur Schein-Käufe sind: der Makler erhält trotzdem seine Courtage oder Gebühr. Allmählig finden sich wirkliche Käufer, nach und nach wird, durch Zeitungsberichte und Empfehlungen der Banquiers, das Publikum herangezogen, und nun schwankt der Cours von „Leim“ zwischen 125 und 105, bis die Actien glücklich untergebracht sind; wo er dann sofort oder doch sehr bald einen jähen Sturz bis 90, 80, 70 oder gar 60 zu erleiden pflegt. Ausser den unglücklichen Actionären kümmert sich fortan kein Mensch mehr um „Leim“.

Itzig Meyer & Co. aber rechnen mit den Consortial-Verschworenen ab. Der Mittel-Cours, zu welchem die

Actien durchschnittlich „begeben“ sind, stellt sich auf 115 Procent.

Davon ab:

Courtage an die Makler, Bonificationen
an die Banquiers, Douceurs, Gratificationen und andere Spesen, zu-sammen ca. 15 „

Bleiben 100 Procent.

Der Cours, zu welchem die Consortial-Verschworenen „Leim“ übernahmen, war 70 „

Mithin haben sie verdient 30 Procent;
was bei einem Pöstchen von 5000 oder 10,000 Thalern schon ein hübsches Sümfmchen ausmacht, und bei einem Posten von 50,000 oder gar 100,000 Thalern
eine sehr anständige Summe.

Auch die Nante's halten ihren Schmaus. Der dicke
Chorführer ist mit 10 Stück Actien à 200 Thaler „betheiligt“, so dass er 600 Thaler einstreicht; wäh-rend den Andern nur je 5 Stück zugeschrieben sind, auf jeden von ihnen also ein Consortialgewinn von 300 Thaler entfällt. Davon fristen die armen Schlucker nun wieder eine Zeit lang ihr Leben; aber es giebt

unter ihnen auch feine anschlägige Köpfe, und Einer oder der Andere arbeitet sich wol rasch empor und spielt bald an der Börse eine Rolle.

Wie schon gesagt, werden den Consortial-Verschworenen selber keine Stücke ausgehändigt. Itzig Meyer & Co., die den Cours halten, und daher alles Material, was etwa angeboten wird, wieder aufnehmen, könnten sonst leicht in die Lage kommen, „Leim“ von ihren eigenen Helfershelfern zu hohem Course zurückkaufen zu müssen. Werden die Actien aber nicht abgesetzt, dann sind die Verschworenen verpflichtet, die gezeichneten Posten zu dem verabredeten Consortialcours zu beziehen; was sie natürlich nicht gern und in der Regel nicht gutwillig thun.

Ein solcher Fall ereignete sich u. A. bei Gründung der Dannenberger'schen oder eigentlich Liebermann'schen Kattunfabrik. Herr Richard Schweder, der den „Krach“ wol schon in den Gliedern verspürte, hatte die „Einführung“ der Actien verzögert und verzögert, bis er endlich ganz plötzlich damit herausrückte. Er machte ein gründliches Fiasco, und sein Adjutant, Herr Wolf Paradies, musste es ausbaden. Die Consortial-Verschworenen, die bei so vielen Gründungen mit Herrn Schweder Hand in Hand gegangen waren und jedesmal so hübsch verdient hatten, wiesen jetzt „Kattun“ mit Entrüstung und Abscheu zurück; und als es zum Processe kam, gab der Richter, in Erwägung der eigenthümlichen Umstände, ihnen Recht, und die Preussische Boden-Credit-Actien-Bank musste den ganzen „Kattun“ für sich behalten.

Allerdings war die „Einführung“, ohne „Subscription“ und ohne „Prospect“, ein bequemerer und kürzeres Verfahren; aber es gehörten dazu auch starke und kraftvolle „Hände“, zumal der Einführungscours fast regelmässig nicht unbedeutend über Pari (100) gesetzt wurde; was dann sofort die Schweisshunde der Börse, die Fixer, herbeilockte — jene ehrlichen Leute, welche ein Geschäft daraus machen, auf das Fallen der Course zu speculiren und die Course unter Aufbietung jedes Mittels herunterzureissen; wofür sie freilich zuweilen arg bluten müssen. Des bessern Verständnisses wegen folge hier ein Beispiel.

Die Actien der Producten- und Handelsbank — eine Schöpfung, zu der auch Wiener Gründer extra nach Berlin gekommen waren — wurden mit 116 eingeführt. Weil aber diese Actien nicht voll, sondern nur mit 40 Procent eingezahlt waren, betrug der Einführungscours thatsächlich 140. Gewiss eine kolossale Unverschämtheit, da die Bank noch gar nichts gethan hatte, noch nicht einmal eingerichtet war! So dachten auch die Fixer, und sie begannen die Actien zu werfen, ein Pöstchen nach dem andern in blanco zu verkaufen; das heisst, ohne es zu haben. Aber sie hatten die Rechnung ohne den Wirth gemacht. Die Gründer hielten fest, nahmen die Blanco-Abgaben bereitwilligst auf und drückten den Fixern Zoll um Zoll die Gurgel zu. Als der Ultimo, der letzte Tag im Monat und damit der Zeitpunkt der Lieferung kam, mussten die Fixer sich mit einem Verlust von 7 Procent „decken“, und die Gründer, als die alleinigen Besitzer des Materials, hätten ihnen eine noch weit höhere Busse dictiren können. — Solche Strangulirung nennt man an der Börse eine Schwänze.

Der Einführungsmodus war das beste Mittelchen für die Agiotage oder den Courswucher, welcher sich nicht wesentlich von der sogenannten Halsabschneiderei unterscheidet. Herr Richard Schweder führte noch im Januar 1873 die Actien der Kohlenzeche Louise Tiefbau mit 115 ein; während heute der Cours ca. 30 steht. Die famose Dortmunder Union, gegründet von den Herren Miquel und von Hanse-mann in Berlin, Wilhelm von Born in Dortmund, Baron Abraham von Oppenheim in Cöln, Baron Rothschild in Frankfurt a. M. etc. — erschien an der Börse mit 110, wurde dann bis 228 hinaufgetrieben und steht jetzt ca. — 12!!!

Wie die „grossen Häuser“ die wichtigsten Gründungen vollführten, so waren sie auch die eigentlichen Meister des Agiotage-Spiels, bei dem sie Millionen einstrichen. Rothschild, Bleichröder, Jakob Landau und Wilhelm Behrens in Hamburg, denen sich wieder Herr von Kärdorff und Graf Hatzfeld zugesellten, componirten die Deutsche Reichs- und Continental-Eisenbahnbau-Gesellschaft, mit einem Grundcapital von 10 Millionen Thaler. Die 40procentigen Interimsscheine wurden mit 55 bis 65 Thalern untergebracht, während sie heute etwa mit 12 Thalern bezahlt werden!!

Das Stärkste aber leistete doch wieder die Disconto-Gesellschaft mit den Herren von Hanseemann und Miquel an der Spitze. Wenn der schlichte Menschenverstand darauf schwört, dass $2 \times 2 = 4$ ist, so bewies die Disconto-Gesellschaft, dass an der Börse eine höhere Rechenkunst gilt, dass hier 2×2 sowohl 6 wie 3 sein kann, je nach Umständen und Zeitverhältnissen.

Wie die Preussische Boden-Credit-Actien-Bank sich eine Filiale in der -berühmtesten Preussischen Credit-Anstalt zulegte, so schuf auch die Disconto-Gesellschaft ein Tochter-Institut — die seitdem ebenso anrühmte Provinzial-Disconto-Gesellschaft, mit einem Grundcapital von 10 Millionen Thaler. Die Actien, worauf 40 Procent eingezahlt, kamen an die Börse mit ca. 125, und gingen bei solcher Einzahlung bis etwa 150. Von diesem Cours wurden die fehlenden 60 Procent abgezogen, und somit 40 Thaler mit 65 bis 90 Thaler bezahlt!! Damals waren nach der Rechnung der Disconto-Gesellschaft $2 \times 2 = 6$. — Inzwischen sind auf die Actien noch 20 Procent nachgezahlt, aber trotzdem werden sie gegenwärtig nur mit ca. 70 notirt. Von diesem Cours gehen ab die fehlenden 40 Procent, und es werden demnach 60 Thaler mit etwa 30 Thalern bezahlt!! Das aber bedeutet, dass bei der Disconto-Gesellschaft 2×2 heute nur 3 ist, oder genauer besehen, noch viel weniger; denn die Course von ehemals und jetzt verhalten sich wie 225 zu 50!!!

Glagau, Der Börsenschwindel.

7

VI.

Häuserschacher und Baustellenwucher.

Die „Wohnungsfrage“ und die „Wohnungsnoth“ — Enormes Steigen der Miethen — Heimliche Proletarier — Wie die Börsianer wohnen — Der Berliner wandert aus — Das Geheimrathsviertel — Die Verschuldung des Grundbesitzes — Häuser wie Effecten gehandelt — Der Selbstmörder — Aristokratische Schacherer — Die Gründer bemächtigen sich der „Wohnungsfrage“ — Bauvereine, Baugesellschaften und Baubanken — Wien wird wieder von Berlin übertrumpft — Berlin dreimal grösser als London — Massenhafte Einwanderung — Die „Barackia“ — „Baustellen mit Baugeld“ — Karthago und Lichterfelde — „Bauzinsen“ — Der Staatsanwalt ohnmächtig — Dividenden und Course — Interessante Scherzspiele — Der „Krach“ beseitigt die „Wohnungsnoth“ — 40 Millionen Thaler liegen brach.

Die „Wohnungsfrage“ steht in Berlin schon lange auf der Tagesordnung; aber die allgemeine „Wohnungsnoth“ begann erst nach dem Deutsch-französischen Kriege, zugleich mit der Schwindelperiode, und sie ist zum grossen Theil das Werk der Börsianer und Gründer.

1867 standen hier Wohnungen leer ca. 8600

1868 „ „ „ „ - „ 6100

1869 „ „ „ „ „ 3500

| | | |
|------|-----------------------------|----------|
| 1870 | standen hier Wohnungen leer | ca. 1800 |
| 1871 | „ „ „ „ „ | 2000 |
| 1872 | „ „ „ „ „ | 1100 |
| 1873 | „ „ „ „ „ | 800 |

Die 1100 im Jahre 1872 leeren Wohnungen waren jedoch, entweder aus Ursachen eines Neu- oder Umbaus, gar nicht zu vermieten, oder aber es wurden dafür zu übertriebene Preise verlangt, und sie gehörten fast ausschliesslich zu den grösseren Miethsgelassen, von vier und mehr Zimmern. Thatsächlich fehlte es am 1. April 1872 an ca. 500 kleinen Wohnungen; hunderte von ordentlichen Familien, die bis dahin ihre Miethe regelmässig gezahlt hatten, lagen plötzlich obdachlos umher, kampirten vor den Thoren, auf freien Plätzen oder in Rohbauten, Ställen etc.

Bis zur Schwindelperiode erforderte in Berlin die Miethe etwa ein Sechstel des Einkommens. Auch schon ein unverhältnissmässig hoher Procentsatz, der von ungesunden Verhältnissen zeigt! Aber 1871, 1872 und auch noch 1873 stiegen die Miethen fast von Quartal zu Quartal, in zwei bis drei Jahren um das Doppelte und Dreifache. Der Miethzins verschlang jetzt durchschnittlich ein Viertel, ja nicht selten ein Drittel der Gesamteinnahme. Er nöthigte die Fa-milien zur grösstmöglichen Einschränkung auf allen andern Gebieten; und er erzeugte namentlich unter den sogenannten „gebildeten“ Ständen, die kein eigenes Vermögen besitzen, sondern nur von ihrem Gehalt oder Jahreseinkommen leben, ein heimliches Proletariat.

Mit dem Börsen- und Gründungsschwindel schmolz die Zahl der kleinen billigen Wohnungen zusehends, und es vermehrten sich erstaunlich die grossen kostbaren Miethsräume. Quartiere im Preise von 2000 bis 5000 Thalern jährlich waren bis dahin noch selten gewesen; jetzt wurden sie häufig. Eine Unmasse von Banken und Actiengesellschaften etablirte sich und verschwendete in Lokalitäten, mit denen sie prahlten und lockten. Ein Heer von Directoren und Verwaltungsräthen, Banquiers und Maklern, Procuristen und Agenten wuchs empor, die sich alle elegant oder gar luxuriös einrichteten. Den Gründern und Börsianern war keine Wohnung zu theuer; sie überboten sich in den Preisen, sie verdrängten die bisherigen Insassen und trieben die Miethen systematisch in die Höhe. Sie hatten es ja dazu; sie wollten repräsentiren und geniessen, sie wollten glauben machen an den befruchtenden Segen der Französischen Milliarden, an den allgemeinen Wohlstand, an die ungeheure Vermehrung des Nationalvermögens. Die Gründer und Börsianer setzten sich in den schönsten Strassen fest, nahmen die vornehmsten Quartiere in Beschlag; viele von diesen Leuten zahlten an Miethe 6000 bis 20,000 Thaler jährlich!

Die unaufhörliche Steigerung, die völlige Verschiebung der Miethspreise liess die Bevölkerung beständig umherziehen und nöthigte einen grossen Theil zur Auswanderung. Tausende von Arbeitern, Handwerkern Beamten etc. konnten das Wohnen in Berlin nicht mehr erschwingen, und liessen sich auf den Dörfern, im meilenweiten Umkreise nieder. Auch die „gebildeten“ Stände wurden weiter und weiter in die Vorstädte, bis an die Grenzen des Weichbildes und darüber hinaus gedrängt. Das sogenannte Geheimraths-viertel führt seinen Namen nicht mehr mit Recht; der Geheimrath ist hier selten geworden, oder er findet sich nur noch drei Treppen hoch, und statt seiner sitzen in der Beletage — Banquiers und Börsianer. Ebenso ist es den Gelehrten, Künstlern und Schriftstellern ergangen, die früher das „Westend“, vor dem Potsdamer Thor, erfüllten; auch sie haben sich vor den Herren von der Börse weiter und weiter, höher und höher zurückziehen müssen.

Selbstredend stieg mit den Miethen auch der Werth der Häuser und der Begehr nach ihnen. Ein Haus in Berlin war bis dahin ein ziemlich zweifelhafter Besitz. Gar viele Bauunternehmer und Bauspeculanten der vierziger, fünfziger und auch noch der sechsziger Jahre hatten ihr menschenfreundliches Bemühen, die „Wohnungsfrage“ zu lösen, hart büssen müssen, indem sie ihre kurze Laufbahn gewöhnlich in „Möser's Ruh“, in dem damaligen Schuldgefängniss beschlossen. Auf allen Häusern lasteten grosse Hypotheken, der Grundbesitz in Berlin war mit vier Fünftel des Werths verschuldet. Reiche und vornehme Familien pflegten lieber zur Miethe zu wohnen. — Das änderte sich nun mit einem Schlage. Privat- und Geschäftsleute kauften plötzlich um die Wette Häuser; um der ewigen Miethssteigerung zu entgehen, um nicht etwa ausgemietet zu werden. Banken und Actiengesellschaften, Banquiers und andere Geldleute erstanden in „bester“ Gegend die „feinsten“ Häuser. Seitdem befinden sich die stolzesten Paläste im Innern der Stadt, und die herrlichsten Villen rings um den Thiergarten im Besitz der Kinder des auserwählten Volks, in den Händen der Börsianer und Gründer.

Sobald das eigene Bedürfniss befriedigt war, begann

die Speculation, der Schwindel. Man kaufte Häuser, nicht um sie zu behalten, sondern um sie so schnell wie möglich mit Profit wieder loszuschlagen. Ein und dasselbe Haus wanderte an Einem Tage, an Einem Abend durch sämtliche Stämme Israels, durch zwölf und mehr Hände, und jede „Hand“ verdiente dabei, ein Fünf-, Zehn-, Zwanzig- und auch wol Fünfzigtausend Thaler. An und ausserhalb der Börse wurden Grundstücke wie Effecten verhandelt, wurden die „Schlussscheine“ von Häusern mit immer höherem Aufgeld bezahlt. Die Preise erreichten eine fabelhafte Höhe, standen bald in keinem Verhältniss mehr zu dem Miethserträgniss und zu dem eigentlichen Werthe der Baulichkeiten; jeder Mafsstab ging verloren, ganz willkürliche Schätzungen gewannen die Oberhand, es blühte der Schacher.

Jeder Hausbesitzer wurde belagert, mit Angeboten bestürmt, und wusste nicht mehr, was er fordern sollte. Manche erhöhten ihre Forderung von Tag zu Tag; und wenn die verwegenste Forderung endlich bewilligt oder, wie es schon vorkam, noch gar überboten wurde — wagten sie doch nicht loszuschlagen; aus Furcht, sie könnten sich übereilen, sich Schaden zufügen. Einer dieser Unglücklichen, der nach einander 120,000 Thaler, 150,000 und 200,000 Thaler verlangt hatte, verkaufte schliesslich für 250,000 Thaler, wodurch ihm ein baarer Gewinn von 180,000 Thaler zufiel. Als aber vierzehn Tage später sein ehemaliges Haus von einer Bank für 400,000 Thaler erstanden ward, übermannte ihn die Verzweiflung und er — knüpfte sich auf.

Die Gerechtigkeit verlangt zu vermerken, dass der Häuserschacher nicht ausschliesslich von Juden und Börsenrittern betrieben wurde, sondern auch von andern Leuten, z. B. von Mitgliedern der Aristokratie, die ja überhaupt der Börse und den Gründern eine Reihe höchst gelehriger Schüler und sehr bereitwilliger Gehülfen lieferte. Verschiedene hochadlige Herren verschmähten es nicht, gleichfalls „in Häusern zu machen“. So meldete die „Neue Börsen-Zeitung“ unterm 2. December 1871: Ein bekannter schlesischer Magnat hat durch Häuser-Speculationen in Berlin in wenigen Monaten an 300,000 Thaler verdient. „Der genannte Herr, der seine Operationen meist in Verbindung mit einer Dame von hocharistokratischem Namen unternimmt, hat ausserdem eine Anzahl Grundstücke an sich gebracht, deren Verkauf mit Gewinnbeträgen in gleicher Höhe so gut wie gesichert ist.“

Aber nicht genug an dem tollen Häuserschacher: es begann nun auch noch der Wucher mit Baustellen. Aus den Speculanten wurden — Gründer, und ihre ersten Schöpfungen entsprachen anscheinend einem allgemein empfundenen Bedürfnisse. Die Gründer bemächtigten sich der „Wohnungsfrage“, sie erklärten, der „Wohnungsnoth“ abhelfen zu wollen, und gründeten zu diesem Zwecke Actiengesellschaften über Actiengesellschaften. Sie kauften Häuser und Grundstücke in der Stadt und legten sie nieder; sie kauften öffentliche Gärten und Etablissements und verwandelten sie in Bauplätze; sie kauften die Kartoffeläcker und Gemüsfelder in den Vorstädten, die Wiesen, Sümpfe und Sandschollen vor den Thoren, die Weiden und Ländereien der benachbarten Dörfer, und steckten überall Häuserzeilen und Strassenviertel ab. Aus den Gärtnern der Vorstädte, aus den Bauern der Umgegend wurden grosse Capitalisten, die nicht recht wussten, was sie mit ihrem Gelde anfangen sollten und es bald der Börse zutrugen. Im zweimeiligen Umkreise von Berlin gab es plötzlich keine Aecker und Felder mehr — nur noch Baustellen und Baugründe. Vor den Thoren wurde die Quadratruthe mit 50 bis 500, in der Stadt mit 1000 bis 10,000 Thalern bezahlt. Das aber bedeutete die ungeheure Vermehrung des Nationalvermögens!

Die Menge der Bauvereine, Baugesellschaften und Baubanken war bald so gross, dass es an Namen für sie gebrach, dass selbst Börsenleute sich in dem Labyrinth dieser Namen nicht mehr zurecht finden konnten. Man höre:

Nord-End, Ost-End, Süd-End, West-End (Quistorp), Thiergarten, Thiergarten-Westend, Hofjäger, Unter den Linden, Passage, Centralstrasse, City, Königstadt, Friedrichshain, Schönhausener, Nieder-Schönhausener, Tempelhofer, Belle-Alliance, Wilhelmshöhe, Landerwerb, Land und Baugesellschaft Lichterfelde, Lichterfelder, Cottage, Charlottenburger, Berlin-Charlottenburger, Johannisthal, Woltersdorf, Potsdam, Westend-Potsdam, Berolina, Berliner Neustadt, Mittelwohnungen, Immobilien, Berlin-Hamburger Immobilien, Union;

Berliner-Bauvereinsbank (Wäsemann), Berlinische Bank für Bauten, Berliner Häuserbaugenossenschaft, Allgemeine Häuserbaugesellschaft, Gesellschaft für Bauausführungen, Deutscher Centralbauverein (Quistorp), Deutsch-Holländischer Bau-Verein, Deutsche Baugesellschaft, Deutschlands Baubeförderungs-Verein, Preussische Baugesellschaft, Preussische Baubank, Märkische

Baubank, Provinzial-Baubank, Provinzialbank für Bauten und Handel, Allgemeine Bau- und Handelsbank, Centralbank für Bauten, Metropole, Immobilienbank, Hypothekar-Credit- und Baubank, Nord-Baubank, Residenz-Baubank, Union-Baubank, Imperial-Baubank.

Das sind aber entfernt noch nicht alle! — Die „Neue Freie Presse“ theilte im Frühjahr 1875 mit, dass in Wien 43 Bau- und Baumaterialien-Gesellschaften „domiliciren“; und die „National-Zeitung“ beeilte sich die Notiz ihren Lesern wiederzugeben. Als ob diese Zahl in Berlin etwa nicht erreicht wäre! — Nicht nur erreicht, sondern sehr übertroffen. In Berlin „domilicirten“ gut 80 solcher Gesellschaften, von denen sich heute eine Reihe in Liquidation oder in Concurs befinden. Die Zahl der Bau- und Baumaterialien-Gesellschaften aber in Nord- und Mitteldeutschland, die zum grössten Theil an der Berliner Börse gehandelt wurden, betrug weit über 100.

Hätten die Gründer ihre Bauprojecte durchgeführt, wäre der Bedarf an Wohnungen für Zeit und Ewigkeit gedeckt gewesen. Der kürzlich verstorbene Statistiker Schwabe hat berechnet, dass die in Aussicht gestellten Neubauten für eine Bevölkerung von neun Millionen zureichen würden, dass mit ihnen Berlin zu einer Riesenstadt anwachsen müsste, noch dreimal grösser als das heutige London. Aber von all den zahllosen Baugesellschaften bauten in Wirklichkeit nur wenige, äusserst wenige; und sie bauten Häuser und Villen für die wohlhabenden Classen, oder sie machten aus kleinen Wohnungen lauter grosse. Erst mit den Baugesellschaften begann der Wohnungsjammer, namentlich für die untern Stände.

Dazu kam ein ausserordentlich starker Zuzug, eine massenhafte Einwanderung. Die neue Freizügigkeit, der ihre Urheber, die Manchesterleute, alsbald gegenüberstanden wie der Zauberlehrling bei Goethe dem Zauberbesen, überfluthete Berlin; und der Gründungsschwindel lockte Schaaren von Leuten aus den Provinzen in die Hauptstadt, die alle hier ein Eldorado zu finden wähnten. Aber sie fanden häufig genug kein Obdach, oder sie machten Andere obdachlos und trieben sie hinaus.

Da trug sich etwas höchst Bedenkliches zu. Wie einst im alten Rom die Plebejer, unter dem Druck der Patricier, die Stadt verliessen und sich auf dem heiligen Berg festsetzten, so zogen Hunderte von Handwerkern und Arbeitern aus Berlin und schlugen vor den Thoren, unter freiem Himmel ihr Lager auf. Auf dem Tempelhofer Felde entstand die Barackenstadt; und Viele hausten in alten Eisenbahnwagen, unter den Drehscheiben der Bahnhöfe und unter den Viaducten der Verbindungsbahn. Wie zu einem Schauspiele wallfahrten die Berliner hinaus, und die Zeitungen schilderten in farbigen, launigen Feuilletons die „Barackia“. — Das aber geschah, während der Milliardenstrom sich über Deutschland ergoss, und die Gründer und ihre Helfershelfer den allgemeinen Wohlstand, die ungeheure Vermehrung des Nationalvermögens predigten. Die Regierung empfand den bitteren Hohn, und hob die Baracken auf.

Weitaus die Mehrzahl der Baugesellschaften baute nicht und beabsichtigte auch gar nicht zu bauen. Sie entwarfen Baupläne, steckten Strassen, Strassen-Viertel und Marktplätze ab, chaussirten und legten Trottoirs, parcellirten und „schlachteten Baustellen aus“. Um Käufer anzulocken, hielt man „Baustellen mit Baugeld“ feil; d. h. die Baugesellschaft, die häufig zugleich eine „Baubank“ war, schoss das Geld zum Bauen vor, und stundete wol auch noch die Kaufsumme für den Bauplatz, theilweise oder gänzlich. Trotzdem blieben die Baulustigen vereinzelt; und die da bauten, fanden in der Regel nicht ihre Rechnung.

Als im Sommer 1874 die Villen-Colonie Lichterfelde ein gemeinsames Fest beging, erhob sich einer der Theilnehmer zu einer Tischrede. Eine klassische Reminiscenz aus Tertia überkam ihn, und er sprach die geflügelten Worte: Als die verwittwete Frau Dido Karthago anlegte, zerschnitt sie bekanntlich das Fell eines Stiers in lauter dünne Riemen. Wenn aber heute eine Colonie gegründet wird, so braucht man mehr als Einen Ochsen, so sind dazu viele Ochsen nöthig. Meine Herrschaften, ich bin einer der Ersten, die hier gebaut haben! — — —

Um ihre Actien unterzubringen, warfen die Baugesellschaften Bauzinsen aus — das ist wieder eine Art der famosen „Börsenzinsen“. „Während der Bauzeit“ sollten die Actionäre 4, 5, oder gar 6 Procent Zinsen erhalten; und viele Baugesellschaften zahlten Jahre lang Bauzinsen — ohne je zu bauen. Selbstverständlich staken die „Bauzinsen“ schon in dem so hoch wie möglich gegriffenen Actien-Capital, und die Actionäre bezahlten sie thatsächlich wieder selber, aus der eigenen Tasche. Dieses Verfahren ist aber nicht nur eine Taschenspielererei, sondern auch gesetzwidrig. Das Actiengesetz vom 11. Juni 1870 besagt in Artikel 217 ausdrücklich: „Zinsen von bestimmter Höhe dürfen für die Actionäre nicht bedungen noch ausgezahlt werden“. „Bauzinsen“ sind im Grunde genommen „eine theilweise Zurückzahlung“ des Actien Capitals, die Artikel 248 verbietet. Die Gründer aber rechtfertigten ihre Machinationen durch den Nachsatz zu Artikel 217, der allerdings so lautet: „Jedoch können für den im Gesellschaftsvertrage angegebenen Zeitraum, welchen die Vorbereitung des Unternehmens bis zum Anfange des vollen Betriebes erfordert, den Actionären Zinsen von bestimmter Höhe bedungen werden.“

Gestützt auf diesen Nachsatz, zahlten die Baugesellschaften, die nie bauten, „Bauzinsen“; und der Staatsanwalt scheint sich diesem Nachsatz gegenüber ohnmächtig gefühlt zu haben. Ein Beweis von dem Werth des neuen Actiengesetzes; ein Beweis von seiner flüchtigen Redaction, seiner mangelhaften zweideutigen Fassung; ein Beweis, wie dringend es auch jetzt noch, wo die Kinder freilich in den Brunnen gefallen sind, einer Revision bedarf!

Eine Reihe von Baugesellschaften und Baubanken vertheilte auch Dividenden, und zwar solch hohe Dividenden, dass man's, im Hinblick auf den heutigen Coursstand kaum glauben möchte. Wir geben zur bessern Uebersicht folgendes Tableau:

Vertheilte an Dividende Proc.
Kleinstiger Cours
circa Gegenwärtiger
Cours circa

Centralbank für Bauten. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Eduard Mam-roth, Heinrich Bergmann, Ferd. Oppenheim, Leo Wollenberg, Dr. Stort, Geh. Admiralitätsrath Wandel
Ende 1874 wurden 3778 Stück Actien III. Emission im Nennwerthe von 377,800 Thalern, wegen rückständiger Einzahlung der letzten Rate (30 Procent), für verfallen erklärt!

Ostend. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Ed. Mamroth, Maurermeister August Siecke, Heinrich Bergmann, Emil Rosenfeld, Hugo Mamroth, Re-
dacteur Alexander Hoffers, Stadtverordneter Dr. Carl Erich Südend. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Ed. Mamroth, Heinrich Berg-mann, Samuel Heinrich Ellon, Georg Neumann, David Tobias, Robert Peters, Wilh. Gumpertz
Landerwerb und Bauverein. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: David Born, Albert Kämpf, Hermann Simon, Baumeister Hermann Hähnel . . .
Land- und Baugesellschaft Lichterfelde. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe:
J. A. W. Carstenn, Carl Coppel, Gustav Markwald, General Freiherr
Ed. v. Steinäcker, Landrath Leo von dem Knesebeck; Otto von Kahlden; Johann Langhans, Julius Rohde und Senator Gustav Godeffroy in Hamburg
Lichterfelder Bau-Verein. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Johannes Otzen

43 — 420 — 25

11 — 120 — 12

15³/₈ — 125 — 4

40 — 200 — 15

25 — 155 — 18

| | |
|--|---|
| (J. A. W. Carstenn), Carl Coppel, Gustav Markwald, Paul Munk,
Julius Rohde, Martin Levy, Georg Beer. Directoren: David Born,
August Siecke | 9 — 126 — 12 |
| Berliner Bauvereins-Bank. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Hermann Geber,
R. A. Seelig, Ries & Itzinger, J. Ball, J. A. Gilka, Max. Mossner,
Gustav Thölde, Baurath Wäsemann | 11 — 110 — 30 |
| Berlin-Charlottenburger Bauverein. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: J. A.
W. Carstenn, Carl Coppel, Gustav Markwald, Paul Munk, Georg
Beer, Richard Schweder, Julius Rohde, Baumeister W. Böckmann,
Geometer Otto Busse. Directoren: Julius Wolff und Baumeister Wilh.
Hugo Hanke | 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ — 115 — 15 |
| Birkenwerder. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Aron Hirsch Heymann, Georg Beer, Paul Munk, Oscar Krause, Ziegeleibesitzer Wilh. Borg-feldt, Wilh. Kremser. — Baumeister Walter Kyllmann. Director:
Franz Pernet | 11 — 115 — 10 |
| Thiergarten. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Paul Munk, Georg Beer,
Hermann Reimann, Consul Schillow, Richard Schweder, Kammerherr
von Prillwitz, Meyer Cohn etc. | 20 — 140 — 3 |
| Königstadt. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Richard Schweder, Georg
Beer, Joseph Dorn, Dr. Emil Lehmann, Carl Coppel, Gustav Mark-wald, Theodor Henoch | 14 — 115 — 18
17 — 225 — 3
15 — 165 — 1 |
| Westend (Quistorp) | |
| Deutscher Centralbauverein (Quistorp) | |
| Nordend. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: A. Lilienhain, Dr. Max Mattner,
Carl Böhm, Rechtsanwalt Lorek. Director und später Liquidator: Hugo
Vetter | 22 — 140 — 0 |

Glagaz, Der Börsenschwindel.

Wenn der Leser die Course von ehemals und heute vergleicht und bemerkt, dass die letzteren zum Theil tief unter den früher gezahlten Dividenden stehen, so wird er staunend ausrufen: Wie ist's nur möglich?! — Den Gründern war eben alles möglich. Sie machten künstlich Dividenden, als Lockspeise; entweder um die meist noch unbegebenen Actien an den Mann zu bringen, oder um das Actiencapital zu vermehren und „junge Actien“ zu emittiren. Befand sich das Gros der Actien noch in den Händen der Gründer, so zahlten sie die Dividende einfach an sich selber — ein Scherzspiel, das ihnen wenig kostete. Oder aber sie schossen die Dividende aus dem Erlös der verkauften Actien zusammen, sie opferten einen Theil der Beute, um neue zu machen. Die ersten Käufer der ausgeschlachteten Baustellen waren in der Regel die Gründer selber, und sie blieben nicht selten die einzigen Käufer. Sie zahlten ohne zu feilschen, die höchsten Preise; denn sie bezahlten im besten Fall mit den von ihnen fabricirten Actien.

In keinem Falle war die Dividende ernstlich verdient, und sie konnte es nicht sein. Auch wo es der Gesellschaft gelang, eine Reihe von Parcellen wirklich zu verkaufen, blieb sie doch immer im Besitz des allergrössten Theils der Ländereien. Diese aber hatten schon die Gründer weit über ihren wahren Werth bezahlt, und noch weit höher standen sie zu Buch, noch weit mehr kosteten sie den Actionären. Eine Dividende durfte daher eigentlich nicht eher gegeben werden, bis der ganze Complex veräussert worden; und die aus dem Erlöse weniger Parcellen construirten unnatürlich hohen Dividenden sind in Wahrheit wieder eine theilweise Zurückzahlung des Capitals, eine unerlaubte strafbare Manipulation. „Es darf nur dasjenige unter die Actionäre vertheilt werden, was sich als reiner Ueberschuss über die volle Einlage ergibt“ — heisst es in Artikel 217 des Actiengesetzes. Wo aber konnte von einem „reinen Ueberschuss“ die Rede sein, wenn die Gesellschaften durchschnittlich etwa neun Zehntel der ausgeschlachteten Parcellen auf dem Halse behielten, und wenn diese Parcellen heute als „Baustellen“ überhaupt unverkäuflich sind!

Die Thaten und Schicksale der zahllosen Baugesellschaften und die Wunden, die sie dem Publikum geschlagen, das Unheil, was sie in finanzieller und volkswirtschaftlicher Hinsicht angerichtet haben, soll im nächsten Capitel geschildert werden. Es sei nur noch bemerkt, dass mit dem Gründungsschwindel auch die „Wohnungsnoth“ aufgehört hat. In Berlin wie in Wien war die „Wohnungsnoth“ nur ein künstliches Product. Seit dem „Krach“ fallen in beiden Städten die Miethen bedeutend, haben Wien und Berlin wieder Ueberfluss an Wohnungen, besonders an grösseren und mittleren. Während in Berlin 1873 nur ca. 800 Miethgelasse leer standen, standen Anfang 1875 bereits leer über 4000, sollen gegenwärtig schon an 9000 leer stehen. Dieselben würden ein Bau-Anlage-Capital von ca. 40 Millionen Thaler repräsentiren, das nun zinslahm liegt.

VII. Baugeschichten.

„Benedek!“ und „Gründer!“ — Die Wölfe in Schafskleidern — Herr David Bern, der kleine „Volkswirth“ — 40 Procent Dividende — Die Idylle Friedenau — Lichterfelder Bauverein — „Abschreibungen“ — J. A. W. Carstenn — Land- und Baugesellschaft Lichterfelde — „Das Grundcapital wird nicht an den Markt gebracht“ — Berlin-Charlottenburger Bauverein — Die „Kaiserstrasse“ — Die Gründer geadelt — Talmi-Adel — Westend, „Schloss Ruhwald“ und die „einzig grosse Avenue“ — Das „Arbeitsmodell der Wasserwerke“ — Heinrich Quistorp's Bülletins — „Tantiëmen“ und „Provisionen“ — Deutscher Central-Bauverein — Die Verknötung und das Monstre-Verfahren — „Volkswirth“ Dr. Eduard Wiss — Westend-Berlin — Quistorp accordirt — Die Gründungs-Ruine — Kolonisirende Baugesellschaften — „Die Wolff! Hie Muncckel!“ — Die Kolonisation bewährt sich nicht — Oberfaule Baugesellschaften — Dr. Max Mattner, genannt Baron Mattner von Bibra — Hundert Millionen Thaler verpufft — Der Segen der Bauvereine — Die Besteuerung der Baustellen wird nicht beliebt — Der „Häuserkrach“.

Nicht nur die Bücher und die Menschen, auch die Worte und die Namen haben ihre Schicksale. Nach dem Kriege von 1866 wurde in Berliner Kreisen der Zuruf: „Benedek!“ zu einem Schimpfwort; und ebenso gilt heute die Bezeichnung „Gründer!“, bereits als eine Beleidigung, welche der Injurienrichter ahndet. Niemand will sich noch Gründer nennen lassen, Niemand ein Gründer gewesen sein. Aber ursprünglich war es anders. Die Gründer, bürgerliche wie adlige, Börsianer wie Private, traten mit ihrem vollen Namen, mit allen Titeln und Würden auf; frei und selbstbewusst traten sie vor das Publikum und gaben sich als die Förderer des Gemeinwohls, als die Wohlthäter der Gesellschaft. In dieser Eigenschaft wurden sie von der Presse gefeiert; und umstrahlt von diesem Nimbus, fanden sie bei dem Volke Glauben. Es waren wieder einmal, wie vor 1800 Jahren, die „falschen Propheten“, die „Wölfe in Schafskleidern“; und wie die Wölfe frassen sie unter der Herde!

Auf dem Programm der Gründer stand obenan: Abhülfe der Wohnungsnoth; und mit die ersten Gründungen waren, höchst ehrbar — „gemeinnützige Baugesellschaften“.

Den Reigen eröffnete Herr David Born, ein kleiner „Volkswirth“. 1871, im wunderschönen Monat Mai, erliess er einen Aufruf: „Ein Grossgrundbesitzer hat mir ein Areal von 40 Morgen zu einem sehr billigen Preise zur Verfügung gestellt. Aber nur einer Baugesellschaft will der Besitzer den billigen Preis und ausserdem günstige Bedingungen stellen; dagegen stellt er die Anforderung, dass keine Fabriken, keine hochstöckigen Miethshäuser und Proletarierwoh-nungen gebaut werden dürfen.“ Herr David Born forderte namentlich Beamte, Pensionäre, Lehrer, Künstler, Literaten etc. auf, sich mit ihm zu vereinigen, „um gemeinschaftlich Wohnhäuser und die dazu passenden Gärten vermittelst einer Summe zu erwerben, welche die jetzt zu zahlende jährliche Miethe nicht übersteigt“.

Das klang verlockend genug, und schnell kam eine Gesellschaft zu Stande, welche sich „Landerwerb und Bauverein auf Actien“ nannte. Sie begann ihre Thätigkeit mit dem bescheidenen Capital von 10,000 Thalern, und vertheilte nach sechs Monaten bereits die kolossale Dividende von — 40 Procent. Das heisst: pro rata, nach Verhältniss des Zeitraums und der nur theilweisen Einzahlung; thatsächlich erhielt jede Actie 4 Thaler. Nun wurde das Capital rasch auf 400,000 Thaler erhöht, und ungleich grössere Terrains zugekauft. Im nächsten Jahr vertheilte man an Dividende noch $8\frac{1}{2}$ Procent, wieder pro rata; und diese Dividende floss zur Hälfte aus den Zinsen des eigenen, noch nicht verausgabten Capitals. 1873 und 1874 gab es keine Dividende mehr. Auch dies anscheinend so solid begonnene Unternehmen artete in Speculation und Schwindel aus.

Die heutige Colonie Friedenau (welch idyllischer Name!) besteht in der Hauptsache noch aus „Baustellen“ und aus etwa 60 bewohnten Häusern. Von diesen befinden sich wieder die wenigsten in eigentlichen Privathänden, resp. werden die wenigsten von den eigenen Besitzern regelmässig (Sommers wie Winters) bewohnt; die meisten Häuser enthalten Miethswohnungen und gehören Speculanten und Börsianern. Die noch unverkauften ausgedehnten „Bauländereien“ sind von der Gesellschaft als Aecker oder Weiden verpachtet; die mit Hülfe der ersten Dividende von 40 Procent bis 200 hinaufgetriebenen Actien stehen heute ca. 15.

Herr David Born, welcher seit jener Gründung sich „Director“ nennt, schied schon im ersten Geschäftsjahr, nach Vertheilung der grandiosen Dividenden, aus; oder aber er wurde ausgeschieden vom Aufsichtsrath, dem er, wie es scheint, unbequem ward, da er gegen gewisse Verletzungen des Statuts opponirte. Er „dirigirte“ nun eine in der Nachbarschaft entstandene neue Baugesellschaft, den „Lichterfelder Bauverein“. Dieser brachte es nur bis auf 9 Procent Dividende, und die mit 90 Thalern eingezahlten Actien, die einst 126 standen, gelten heute ca. 12. Die Bilanz für 1874 schliesst mit einem Verlust von 328,000 Thalern (!), entstanden durch „Abschreibungen“. Man hat nämlich gefunden, dass der Preis, mit welchem die Ländereien zu Buch stehen, dem heutigen Werth nicht mehr entspricht, und deshalb die Taxe um ein Drittel herabgesetzt. Wer weiss, was die „Bauländereien“ im künftigen Jahr werth, welche neue „Abschreibungen“ dann nöthig sein werden! Glücklicherweise belasten die Gesellschaft keine Hypotheken mehr, und so muss für die Actionäre doch immer eine Kleinigkeit übrig bleiben.

Der edle „Grossgrundbesitzer“, welcher Herrn David Born und Genossen mit Bauterrain unter die Arme griff, war Herr J. A. W. Carstenn in Lichterfelde; und er hatte solcher Anfälle von Edelmuth noch verschiedene. So lieferte er einem dritten, in derselben Gegend entstandenen Verein, der „Land- und Bau-gesellschaft Lichterfelde“ gleichfalls ein ausgedehntes Areal und liess es sich sehr anständig bezahlen. Daneben bedang er sich als Trinkgeld noch 10 Procent vom Reingewinn, der 1872 an 400,000 Thaler, also für ihn gegen 40,000 Thaler ergab. Die Actionäre erhielten 25 Procent Dividende, und hätten 69 Procent erhalten können, die sie auch verlangten und einklagten; doch das Gericht wies sie ab. 1873 betrug die Dividende nur 5 Procent, 1874 bereits 0. Die Actien, einst 155, stehen heute ca. 18. Das Terrain ist mit 500,000 Thalern belastet, und während der Bauverein Lichterfelde „Abschreibungen“ vornimmt, stellt sich bei der Baugesellschaft Lichterfelde der Buchpreis der Quadratruthe mit jedem Jahr noch höher.

Dies kostbare Terrain umzirkelt die im Bau begriffene Central-Cadetten-Anstalt, zu welcher der Regierung den Grund und Boden einst auch Herr J. A. W. Carstenn, und wenn wir nicht irren, gratis hergegeben hatte. Als er nun die Land- und Baugesellschaft Lichterfelde“ gründete, meldete die „National-Zeitung“ in ihrer Abend-Ausgabe vom 18. December 1871: „Seine Majestät der Kaiser hat sich in einem Schreiben sehr anerkennend über den Plan ausgesprochen. Der General à la suite des Kaisers, Freiherr von Steinäcker, wurde zum Vorsitzenden des Verwaltungsraths gewählt, und eine Stelle für ein von Seiten des Kriegsministers zu delegirendes Mitglied offen gehalten.“ — Aber noch mehr! Dieselbe „National-Zeitung“ bemerkte zum Schluss: „Das Grundcapital wird nicht an den Markt gebracht werden.“ — Diese Reclame sollte das Publikum lecker machen, und sie erreichte auch vollständig ihren Zweck. Die Actien gingen unter der Hand gut ab und hoch über Pari (100).

Bei gewissen Leuten steigert sich mit dem Essen der Appetit; und so gründete Herr Carstenn denn noch, in Verbindung mit Richard Schweder, Paul Munk, Gustav Markwald, Georg Beer und einigen Andern, den „Berlin-Charlottenburger Bau-Verein“; dessen Actien im Februar 1873 mit 110 an die Börse kamen. Diesen Aufschlag rechtfertigte der „Prospect“, indem er pro 1872 eine Dividende von nahe 13 Procent feststellte, welche aber nur den Gründern zu Gute kommen konnte, denn Actionäre waren noch gar nicht vorhanden, und nachdem man sie eingefangen hatte, gab es keine Dividende mehr.

Der „Berlin-Charlottenburger Bauverein“ resp. Herr J. A. W. Carstenn hat Grossartiges geleistet — im Abstecken von Strassen und Plätzen. Eine unabsehbare Riesenstrasse zieht sich von Steglitz bis Charlottenburg. Sie heisst die Kaiserstrasse, ist über eine halbe Meile lang, breit und prächtig — nur fehlen ihr noch die Häuser, und die Baugründe sind einstweilen hier, wie in dem Gewirr der Quer- und Nebengassen, als Viehweide verpachtet. Auch die beiden „Baubureaux“ in Berlin und Wilmersdorf sind geschlossen; trotzdem hat die „Verwaltung“ im letzten Jahr über 11,000 Thaler Unkosten verursacht! Ein Räthsel, das nur „Aufsichtsrath“ und „Direction“ zu lösen vermögen. Aber Beide verbergen sich jetzt wie Adam und Eva nach dem Sündenfall.

Herr J. A. W. Carstenn hatte sich als Bauspeculant schon in Hamburg und Umgegend versucht, und liess sich nach 1866 in Lichterfelde bei Berlin nieder; einem kahlen sonnenverbrannten Dorfe, aus dem er, vermöge seines ebenso rastlosen wie kühnen Eifers, eine Villen-Colonie mit zwei Bahnhöfen zu machen wusste. Es war ein Mann von Scharfblick und Combination; er witterte, dass die Hauptstadt des Norddeutschen Bundes wachsen und sich ausdehnen müsse; er begann ringsum Berlin zu colonisiren, er trieb die Baustellen-Ausschlachtereien und den Baustellen-Handel en gros. Bei diesem Geschäft gewann er Millionen, und mit den Millionen überfiel ihn ein anderes Gelüste. Er hatte mit Generalen und Baronen gegründet, und der Umgang mit der Aristokratie ist ansteckend. Er hatte sich die Regierung wegen der neuen Kadettenhäuser verpflichtet, und so konnte es ihm nicht fehlen. Eines Abends ging er noch als J. A. W. Carstenn zu Bette, und am Morgen stand er auf als Herr von Carstenn-Lichterfelde.

Im Alterthum wurden die Gründer — siehe: Herakles, Kekrops, Theseus, Kadmos — unter die Götter versetzt; heute werden sie — siehe: Bleichröder, Hansemann, F. W. Krause, J. A. W. Carstenn — in den Adelstand erhoben. Andere Gründer, welche dies nicht durchsetzen konnten, machten aus der Noth eine Tugend und kauften sich — einen adligen Vater. Sie suchten und fanden einen freidenkenden aber sonst pauvren Edelmann, der sie, gewöhnlich gegen Zahlung einer mässigen Jahresrente, adoptirte, ihnen seinen Namen lieh. Auch dieser Talmi-Adel wird von der Gesellschaft respectirt und bewundert.

Von der riesigen „Kaiserstrasse“ des Herrn Carstenn führt's über oder um Charlottenburg nach dem luftigen Plateau „Westend“, zu Herrn Heinrich Quistorp. „Westend“, eine künstliche unwirthliche Schöpfung, war der „erste Versuch“ Quistorp's, mit dem er im Jahre 1868 debutirte, aber ziemlich abfiel. Erst in der Schwindelperiode konnten Beide durchschlagen. Herr Quistorp vertheilte pro 1871 plötzlich 16 Procent Dividende, und vermehrte das Actiencapital, das bis dahin, wenn wir nicht irren, nur 100,000 Thaler betrug, mit einem Schlage um 1,100,000 Thaler. Die neuen Actien wurden zu dem bescheidenen Course von 150 (!) ausgegeben, und dann bis ca. 225 getrieben.

Von Herrn von Schäfer-Voit ward ein grosses „Bauterrain“ von 450 Morgen zugekauft und „Neu-Westend“ benamst, sowie das am Spandauer Bock belegene „Schloss Ruhwald nebst Park“. Herr Quistorp, der sich jetzt mit einem Stabe von Literaten, „Volkswirthen“ und Naturwissenschaftlern umgab, liess durch diese „Westend“ als die natürlichste, gesündeste und anmuthigste Colonie von der Welt anpreisen. „Schloss Ruhwald“ ward bereits als die künftige Residenz eines Preussischen Prinzen bezeichnet; und von diesem Schlosse bis zum Schlosse in Berlin eine fortlaufende Strasse in Aussicht gestellt — „die schönste und einzig grosse Avenue“, gegen welche die Kaiserstrasse des Herrn von Carstenn ein blosses Kind blieb, denn die Entfernung beträgt gut fünf Viertel Meilen.

Nach der Versicherung der Zeitungen, bot man für die Bauparcellen auf „Neu-Westend“ schon fünf mal mehr als sie der Gesellschaft kosteten; und viele Kauflustige waren angeblich von Herrn Quistorp abgewiesen, da sie sich nicht verpflichten wollten, auch gleich mit dem Bau von Villen vorzugehen. Zum Neujahrstage 1873 ward das Publikum nach „Westend“ geladen, um hier das „Arbeitsmodell der Wasserwerke“ in Augenschein zu nehmen — gegen ein Entrée von 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ Silbergroschen. Daneben wurden weitere Bau-terrains übernommen, bei Tempelhof, Köpenick, Potsdam, Breslau, Thale a. H., Magdeburg, Danzig, Stettin, Frankfurt a. M.; und von der Westend-Gesellschaft für eigene Rechnung oder „commissionsweise“ „parcellirt“.

Ungleich manchem Gründer, der mit der Grammatik auf gespanntem Fuss lebt, schreibt Herr Quistorp einen „gebildeten Stil“, ist er ein pompöser Schriftsteller. Wie Napoleon Bonaparte, mit dem wir ihn schon früher in Parallele stellten, veröffentlichte auch Heinrich Quistorp über seine Thaten und Erfolge regelmässige Bülletins, die als charakteristische Beiträge zur Zeitgeschichte wol verdienten, gesammelt zu werden. Vor uns liegt der Jahresbericht vom 14. Januar 1873, in welchem Herr Quistorp den Actionären von Westend — neun Monate vor dem Concurs der Gesellschaft — noch goldene Berge verspricht.

Fast noch interessanter ist die Bilanz pro 1872, die der Aufsichtsrath, unterzeichnet von den Regierungsräthen a. D. A. Bühling und W. Jungermann und Kaufmann A. Reinicke, publicirt. Nach dieser Aufstellung erhielten die Actionäre 17 Procent Dividende oder zusammen 204,000 Thaler; der Aufsichtsrath 15 Procent Tantième oder 43,200 Thaler — ein hübsches Douceur für eine nur nominelle Mühewaltung; die beiden Gesellschafter: Quistorp und Scheibler gleichfalls 15 Procent Tantième oder 43,200 Thaler. Ausserdem hat sich der „erste Gesellschafter“ Quistorp an „Provisionen“ für Verkäufe von Bauparcellen noch 33,786 Thaler berechnet. Man sieht: Aufsichtsrath und Gesellschafter beanspruchten circa zwei Fünftel des Reingewinns, während auf die Gesamtheit der Actionäre wenig mehr als drei Fünftel entfiel; und Quistorp allein bezog ein Sechstel des Ganzen, in einem Jahre von einer einzigen Gesellschaft über 55,000 Thaler.

Aber der geniale Gründer hatte an „Westend“ nicht genug — er schuf noch eine zweite „Baugesellschaft“. Unmittelbar nachdem Herr Quistorp das Capital von „Westend“ um 1,100,000 Thaler vermehrt hatte, gründete er den „Deutschen Central-Bau-Verein“, für den er gleichfalls eine Actiensumme von 1,200,000 Thalern in Anspruch nahm. Dieser war ehemals eine „Genossenschaft“ gewesen, aber wie Quistorp im „Prospect“ sich ausdrückte, das „Experiment eines humanen Princip“ geblieben; und wurde nun in eine Actiengesellschaft umgewandelt. Der „Deutsche Centralbauverein“ sollte nicht Villen, sondern kleine und mittlere Wohnungen bauen; und ausserdem einem schreienden Bedürfniss abhelfen, nämlich „die baulichen Ausführungen der Westend-Gesellschaft gegen eine der Sache entsprechende Provision mitleiten“; während die Westend-Gesellschaft wieder seine, des Deutschen Centralbauvereins, Bauterrains „commissionsweise parcelliren“ und von den ihm übertragenen Bauten eine „entsprechende Rückprovision“ beziehen sollte.

Man merkt, wie erfinderisch Herr Quistorp war, um den eigentlichen Zweck seiner Gründungen festzustellen, und wie innig er die verschiedenen Gesellschaften mit einander verknötete — eine Verknötung, die später immer eine Gesellschaft nach der andern in den Concurs riss, und ein Monstre-Verfahren herbeiführte, bei dem sowol dem Concursrichter wie dem Massenverwalter Jahre lang die Haare zu Berg standen. Bei beiden Baugesellschaften hatte Quistorp dieselben Verbündeten und Gehülfen: ausser den schon Genannten noch die Herren Stadtrath Holtz, Apotheker H. Augustin, Dr. med. Eduard Wiss u. A.

Der „Volkswirth“ Wiss hatte kurz vorher im Feuilleton der „National-Zeitung“ einen Bandwurm von Artikeln über Wohnungsnoth, Wohnungsreform etc. losgelassen, die alle in dem Satze gipfelten: das einzige Rettungsmittel sei die Colonisation. Zum Dank für diese Reclame machte ihn Quistorp zum „Vorsitzenden des Aufsichtsraths“, und nun ging der „Deutsche Centralbauverein“ in's Zeug mit Ankäufen, Parcellirungen und Bauausführungen. Das erste Geschäftsjahr schloss am 1. Juli 1873 mit einer Dividende von 15 Procent, aber nur 10 Procent kamen zur Auszahlung; während „Aufsichtsrath“ und „Direction“ das Ihrige natürlich voll eingestrichen haben werden.

Im Juli 1873, mitten im „Krach“, rückte Herr Quistorp noch mit dem Antrage heraus, „das Actien-capital successive auf vier Millionen Thaler zu erhöhen“; was auch beschlossen ward. Aber es blieb beim Beschlusse. Schon nach drei Monaten brach der „Deutsche Centralbauverein“ zusammen, mit einer Million Unterbilanz. Die Grundstücke, welche mit mehreren Millionen zu Buch standen, sind bei der gerichtlichen Taxe auf ein Fünftel oder noch tiefer herabgesetzt. Die Masse wird kaum die Schulden decken — über $2\frac{1}{2}$ Millionen Thaler; die Actionäre haben Alles verloren.

Doch Herr Quistorp ist nicht ausser Fassung zu setzen. Mitten im Concourse, gründete er eine neue Gesellschaft: Westend-Berlin. Wieder eine Illustration zum Actiengesetz. Inzwischen arbeitete er auf einen Accord hin, und gewaßn dafür die Mehrzahl der Gläubiger. Allein das Berliner Stadtgericht verweigerte die Bestätigung des Accords — ein Fall, der sich höchst selten ereignet. Der Gerichtshof versagte die Bestätigung wegen der eigenthümlichen Manipulationen des Gemeinschuldners, „aus Gründen der öffentlichen Ordnung“. Herr Quistorp hatte z. B. Grundstücke erstanden, und sie zunächst der „Westend-Gesellschaft“, und dann wieder Namens dieser, dem „Deutschen Centralbauverein“ verkauft, jedesmal natürlich zu höherm Preise. Der Accord wurde versagt, aber Herr Quistorp rief die höhere Instanz an; und hingerissen von der Beredsamkeit des Herrn Rechtsanwalt Munckel, stiess das Kammergericht den Beschluss des ersten Richters um. Herr Quistorp accor dirt jetzt, und vielleicht hat dieser Mann seine Rolle noch lange nicht ausgespielt.

Einstweilen aber macht „Westend“ mit seinen zum Theil leeren Wohnungen, mit seinen zum Theil unfertigen, in Folge des Krachs mitten im Bau liegen gebliebenen Häusern den Eindruck eines verlassenen oder ausgestorbenen Orts; gewährt diese Schöpfung des Herrn Quistorp das klassische Bild einer Gründungs-Ruine. Die Commune Charlottenburg, von der die „Villen-Colonie“ sich einst mit Gewalt losreissen wollte, hatte der entarteten Tochter das Gas abgeschnitten, und es lagerte dort oben dicke unheimliche Finsterniss — bis die Polizei kam und befahl: „Es werde Licht!“

Unter dem Aushängeschild, zu colonisiren, für die untern und mittlern Stände billige Wohnungen herstellen zu wollen, etablirten sich noch zahlreiche Bau-gesellschaften, von denen wir einige hier folgen lassen: Mittelwohnungen, bei Weissensee, $\frac{1}{2}$ Meile vor dem Thor. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Traugott Busse (A. Busse & Co.), Geh. Admiralitätsrath Dr. Gäbler, Fabrikbesitzer G. Schöpplenberg, Justizrath Ahlemann, Kaufleute Carl Gäbler und Albert Stursberg. Pro 1873 ward auf gebaute, aber noch nicht verkaufte Häuser eine künstliche Dividende von 2 Procent vertheilt. Pro 1874 nichts. Ein grosser Theil der Wohnungen ist unvermietet geblieben. Die mit 80 Thlr. eingezahlte Actie gilt etwa 12. Johannisthal, 1 Meile vor der Stadt. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Norddeutsche Grundercreditbank, Geh.

Admiralitätsrath Dr. Gäbler, Baumeister Conrad Paul Jonas, Justizrath Ahlemann, Rentier Ernst Ahlemann. Vertheilte pro 1873 eine Dividende von 5 Procent. Die mit $102\frac{1}{2}$ aufgelegten Actien sollen sich grösstentheils noch in erster Hand befinden, und werden heute mit ca. 10 notirt.

Berlin-Tempelhof. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Max Löwenfeld, Hirschfeld & Co., Adolf Graef, Otto Dahms, Joh. Gottlieb Maecker, Carl August Arndt, Heinrich Reh. Letzterer ist der vielgenannte Verfasser der famosen „Societätsbrauerei“, deren Actien ca. 3 stehen. Berlin-Tempelhof zahlte für das „erste Geschäftsjahr“ $7\frac{1}{2}$ Procent „Bauzinsen“, und wird zur Zeit mit ca. 5 Brief notirt. Ein Darlehn von 15,000 Thaler soll der Gesellschaft 10,000 Thaler Damno (Verlust) gekostet haben.

Belle-Alliance. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Hermann Geber, Ferd. Jaques, Julius Samelson, Walter Bauendahl. Justizrath Hinschius, Baumeister Gustav Knoblauch, Rittmeister Otto von Kahlden, Maurermeister Carl Koch. Die Actien wurden mit 103 aufgelegt, bezogen bis zum 1. Juli 1875 sechs Procent „Bauzinsen“, und stehen deshalb einstweilen noch ca. 30 Brief.

Friedrichshain. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Dr. Otto Hübner und Dr. Wilhelm Abegg, Stadtverordnete Romstädt und Ullstein, Stadtbaurath Gerstenberg, Banquiers Gebrüder Guttentag, Julius Samelson, Hugo Fuchs, Eduard Mende und Martin Meyer. Die mit 103 aufgelegten Actien werden bei Verkäufen zum Nennwerth in Zahlung genommen, und stehen aus diesem Grunde noch ca. 40. Pro 1874 ward endlich eine Dividende von 2 Procent vertheilt, die aber auch ganz künstlicher Natur ist.

Deutsch-Holländischer Bauverein. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Wertheim & Gompertz in Amsterdam, Rittergutsbesitzer Klau, Dr. Otto Hübner, Director Sulzer, Geh. Oberfinanzrath A. Geim, Martin Frege, Justizrath Gustav Wolff, Rechtsanwalt Munckel, Dr. Eduard Wiss. Für das von Gutsbesitzer Klau zusammengekaufte „Bauterrain“ wurde die Kleinigkeit von 5 Millionen Thaler bezahlt. Nach einer 1873 erschienenen Brochüre, sollen die Gründer $3\frac{1}{2}$ Millionen Thaler verdient haben. Wir glauben aber, dass es mehr gewesen ist. In der Generalversammlung am 23. März d. J. zeigte sich der Aufsichtsrath in zwei Heerlager gespalten, angeführt von den Herren Justizrath Wolff und Rechtsanwalt Munckel, die einander scharf bekriegten. „Hie Wolff! Hie Munckel!“ scholl es wild durcheinander; und der Gutsbesitzer Klau, der sich noch im Besitz von 1,900,000 Actien befand, kam hart in's Gedränge. Die vorgelegte Bilanz, welche mit 126,000 Thaler Verlust abschliesst (wir schätzen ihn höher!), wurde nicht genehmigt, und dem Aufsichtsrath keine Decharge ertheilt. — Später haben sich die Parteien geeinigt, und Herr Klau gab die Hälfte seiner Actien im Nennwerthe von 950,000 Thalern „bedingungslos“ zurück. — Cours ca. 10.

Wie schon mehrfach betont, bauten die Baugesellschaften nur dem Namen nach; und zu bauen, war auch nie ihre eigentliche Absicht. Sie gründeten und handelten mit Baustellen. Seit dem „Krach“ liegt dieser Schacher darnieder, und wir hoffen, für immer. Nur eine unverhältnissmässig geringe Anzahl von Wohnungen ist hergestellt, und diese Wohnungen sind nicht billig, sondern theuer. An und für sich theuer, wegen der grossen Selbstkosten; und doppelt theuer mit Rücksicht auf die entfernte Lage. Die „Colonisation“, für welche so viel Reclame gemacht wurde, hat keinen Anklang gefunden, hat sich überhaupt nicht als Bedürfniss erwiesen. Selbst wenn die Communication bestünde, die nicht besteht — Pferde- und Locomotivbahnen — wäre das Wohnen in so weiter Entfernung für die arbeitenden Classen zu zeitraubend und zu kostspielig. Es thut aber auch gar nicht noth, es bietet sich in der Stadt selber noch zureichendes Unterkommen. Von den zahllosen Baugesellschaften befinden sich schon viele in Concurs oder in Liquidation, und die andern werden allmählig nachfolgen. Lebensfähig dürften nur äusserst wenige sein.

Unter den Schöpfungen der Schwindelperiode sind mit die schwindelhaftesten die Baugesellschaften. Es ist schwer zu sagen, welches die faulsten sind; und der Raum gestattet nicht einmal, alle die anzuführen, welche als oberfaul gelten oder als solche bereits zusammengebrochen sind. Wir wollen zum Schluss nur noch einige nennen:

Thiergarten-Westend, gegründet von Hermann Geber, R. A. Seelig, Gewerbebank H. Schuster & Co. Cours ca. 3.

Hofjäger. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Hermann Geber, R. A. Seelig, Julius Alexander, Rittergutsbesitzer Jul. Ludwig Meyer, Baumeister

Nicolaus Becker, Adolf Martini, Hermann Ephraim, Justizrath Hinschius. Cours ca. 10.

Charlottenburg, gegründet von Jean Fränkel, Dr. Martin Ebers, Assessor Plewe, Regierungsrath Bühling, Directoren Dittmann und Lestmann, Carl Sachs etc. Mit 105 an der Börse eingeführt; heute ca. 5.

Nieder-Schönhausen. Gründer Jean Fränkel, Max David, Weissbier-Director E. Gericke, Assessor Plewe, Michael Simonsohn, Dr. jur. Ernst Rellstab etc. Von dem Actiencapital mit 230,000 Thaler wurden 100,000 Thaler „reducirt“, d. h., gemeuchelt. Mit 102 an der Börse eingeführt — heute?

Residenz-Baubank, gegründet von Robert Herbig, Carl Dankberg, Emil Tschepke, Baumeister Wuttke und Heinrich Enders, Freiherr Otto von Schleinitz. 3000 Interimsscheine à 40 Thaler, zusammen also 120,000 Thaler, verfielen wegen rückständiger Einzahlung. Die Besitzer trugen lieber diesen Verlust, als dass sie die restirenden 60 Thaler nachschossen, denn die Vollactie von 100 Thalern stand — 10 Brief. Heute?

Allgemeine Bau- und Handelsbank. Von dem Actiencapital wurde über ein Drittel, ca. 362,000 Thaler, wegen nicht rechtzeitig geleisteter Einzahlung für verfallen erklärt. Auch hier ergaben sich die Interessenten freiwillig in ihren Verlust. Der 40procentige Interimsschein kam durch das Bankhaus Wilh. Borchert jun. an die Börse zum Course von 106; heute steht die Vollactie ca. 12.

Nordend, einst 140; heute 0.

Immobilienbank. Cours?

Der Verfasser dieser drei Baugesellschaften ist Dr. Max Mattner, welcher sich seitdem Baron Mattner von Bibra nennt, und auf der Villa Marietta in Pankow residirt.

Nordbaubank, an der Börse „Mordbaubank“ genannt.

Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Banquier Carl Aulig, Maurermeister Franz Ströhmer, Dr. Heinrich Ebeling, Rechtsanwalt Meyn etc. Der Cours, im März 1873 bis auf 209 getrieben, ist heute 0. Die Generalversammlung beschloss, eine Untersuchungscommission einzusetzen. Das Gericht lehnte die Einleitung des Concurres ab, weil es an Masse fehlt.

Westend-Potsdam-Baubank, gegründet von demselben Aulig und Genossen. Cours 0. Das Bureau ist geschlossen, das Mobiliar wurde gerichtlich abgepfändet. Aufsichtsrath Aulig und Director Fischer sind spurlos verschwunden.

Die in Berlin ansässigen und an hiesiger Börse gehandelten Bau- und Baumaterialien-Gesellschaften haben zusammen ein Actiencapital von, schlechtgerechnet, hundert Millionen Thaler in Anspruch genommen, welches zum weitaus grössten Theil nun verpufft, für die Actionäre verloren ist. Dazu kommt das Agio (bis 150!), mit welchem die Actien eingeführt wurden; die Courssteigerung (bis 400!!), die sie in der ersten Zeit erfuhren. Die Baugesellschaften, welche mit Hypotheken belastet sind, müssen alle untergehen, denn in der Regel übersteigen die Hypotheken weit den eigentlichen Werth des „Bauterrains“. Diese Hypotheken befinden sich noch vielfach in den Händen der Gründer, welchen also das gegründete Object wieder anheim fallen wird; und schliesslich werden die „Bauländereien“ von den ehemaligen Besitzern, den Gärtnern und Bauern, um ein Billiges zurückgekauft werden. Binnen wenigen Jahren werden die im zweimeiligen Umkreise von Berlin abgesteckten Strassen und Plätze spurlos verschwunden sein; über die „Kaiserstrasse“ wird wieder der Pflug gehen, und auf dem „Bismarck-“ oder „Moltke-Platz“ wird der Schäfer wieder seine Hammel weiden! Aber wie viel Ernten sind inzwischen verloren gegangen, welche Kräfte haben seither gefeiert! — Das ist der volkswirtschaftliche Segen der Baugesellschaften und der Gründungen überhaupt.

Die Baugesellschaften haben der „Wohnungsnoth“ nicht gesteuert, sondern dieselbe erst künstlich erzeugt. Professor Gneist traf dem Nagel auf den Kopf, als er auf dem socialpolitischen Congress zu Eisenach äusserte: Soll die Wohnungsnoth sich heben, so müssen erst sämtliche Actienbauvereine zu Grunde gehen. — Die theuern, systematisch gesteigerten Miethen sind mit ein Hauptgrund für den Rückgang der Berliner Universität. Mit in Folge der „Wohnungsnoth“ sind Hunderte von Studierenden nach Leipzig und andern Orten übergesiedelt. Am liebsten hätten die Gründer auch die „Lunge von Berlin“, den Thiergarten, „parcellirt“. Aber ringsum haben sie eine Reihe von schattigen Gartenlocalen, an denen es in dieser Gegend nun völlig mangelt, wie Moritzhof, Albrechtshof, Hofjäger, Birkenwäldchen, thatsächlich in sandige „Baustellen“ umgewandelt. Um dem Unwesen Einhalt zu thun, wurde von verschiedenen Seiten eine Besteuerung der Baustellen vor-geschlagen; allein sie fand bei den „Volkswirthen“ ebensowenig Anklang, wie die Börsensteuer, welche die Regierung seit Jahren plante, aber erst in der letzten Reichstags-Session einzubringen wagte.

Der Baustellenwucher hat seine Früchte bereits getragen, und der Häuserschacher wird vielleicht noch schlimmere bescheeren. Während der Schwindelperiode hat in Berlin gut die Hälfte der Hausbesitzer gewechselt, über 8000. Die neuen Wirthe haben fast alle zu theuer gekauft oder zu theuer gebaut, als dass sie das gegenwärtige Fallen der Miethen verschmerzen könnten. Der hiesige Grundbesitz, schon vor dem Schwindel mit vier Fünftel des Werths verschuldet, ist jetzt weit höher belastet. Nach den Aufstellungen des Stadtgerichts wurden an Hypotheken mehr eingetragen als gelöscht

im Jahre 1869 9 Millionen Thaler

„ „ 1870 10 „ „

„ „ 1871 20 „ „

„ „ 1872 79 „ „

Diese neuen Hypotheken sind meistens Restkaufgelder, die im Laufe der nächsten Jahre fällig werden; und deshalb prophezeien verschiedene Stimmen einen „Häuserkrach“.

VIII.

„Berlin wird Weltstadt“.

Etwas über „geflügelte Worte“ — Graf Renard fragt, und Excellenz Delbrück antwortet — Hermann Geber — Von einem gewissen — Fiscus — „Industriegebäude“ und Benth-Strasse — Centralstrassen-Gesellschaft — Das Berliner „Palais royal“ — Der „Stadtpark“ mit 72,000 Flammen — Herr Paul Munk und seine Carrière — Berliner Juden — Actienbauverein „Passage“ — Die „Kaiser-Galerie“ — Wie sich die Gründer an den Kaiser und die Prinzen drängen — „Meinhardt's Hôtel“, eine blutige Nachgründung — Die „Passage“ will sich nicht rentiren — Eine General-Versammlung — Das Weinlager der „Aufsichtsräthe“ — $\frac{1}{2}$ Procent Dividende — Castan's „Panoptikum“ — Die „Abendbörse“ und der tapfere Jacob Rosenstock — In der Passage spukt es — Lindenbauverein — Die neue „Prachtstrasse“ — Wieder Seine Excellenz Gustav von Bonin — Paul Munk steckt 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ Millionen ein — Was und wem er davon abgibt — Die Familie Cohn-Heymann-Markwald-Schweder-Reimann-Schillow — Richard Schweder „betheiligt“ seinen Onkel — Was die Gründer erdichten und was die Zeitungen colportiren — Lindenbauverein droht mit Einsturz — Die Presse ergreift ein menschliches Rühren, und auch der Staatsanwalt rührt sich — Die Gründer gehen frei aus — Woran Berlin laborirt — Die Presse schlägt für den „Stadtpark“ den Tamtam — Hermann Geber's jüngste Projecte — Der Kaiserhof — Der hochpoetische Director des Berlin-Charlottenburger Bauverein. — Mene Thekel.

„Berlin wird Weltstadt!“ — Dies „geflügelte Wort“ — um hier, zwar nicht mit Vater Homer, aber doch mit Herrn Georg Büchmann zu reden — läuft schon seit 1848 und länger. Es ward meist im ironischen Sinne gebraucht, um die Mängel und Schattenseiten der Grossstadt anzudeuten, die in vielen Stücken hart-näckig eine Kleinstadt blieb. Berlin konnte mit Paris oder gar London keinen Vergleich aushalten; auch gegen Wien stand es zurück, und selbst Städte wie Hamburg oder Dresden wurden ihm oft als Vorbild empfohlen. Erst nach dem Kriege von 1866, als sich mit dem reissenden Anwachsen die Auswüchse, Beschwerlichkeiten und Gefahren der norddeutschen Metropole fühlbar machten, fing man an, mehr im Ernste zu sprechen und nicht ohne Seufzen: „Berlin wird Weltstadt!“

Aber nicht lange, und das Wort wurde lebhaft aufgenommen, mit voller Emphase, mit begeistertem Pathos wiederholt, wie eine Parole ausgegeben und eifrig verbreitet. „Berlin muss Weltstadt werden!“ riefen die Gründer im lauten Chor, und voll stürmischer Hast gingen sie an's Werk.

Einige von ihnen — und zwar gleich die bedeutendsten — traten schon vor dem Deutsch-französischen Kriege auf die Bühne. Sie warteten nicht einmal das neue Actiengesetz ab; aber sie wussten von ihren Freunden, den Manchesterleuten, dass es unterwegs war; und sie schnitten ihre Gründungen im voraus darnach zu. Am 8. März 1870 erhob sich im Norddeutschen Reichstage der edle Graf Renard und fragte die Regierung: Wie steht's? (Nämlich mit dem Freigeben der Actiengesellschaften.) Ihm antwortete Herr Delbrück, der Vice-Bismarck, indem er bedächtig sich eine Prise zu Gemüth führte: Wir sind schon dabei! — Die Gründer wurden mit dem Actiengesetz überrascht, wie bei der Weihnachtsbescheerung die Kinder, welche ihren Eltern einen Wunschzettel eingereicht haben.

Zu den Geistern, welche die Zeit sofort begriffen und sie gründlich, oder eigentlich „gründerlich“ auszubeuten verstanden, gehört in erster Reihe — Hermann Geber. Er steht ebenbürtig neben Heinrich Quistorp und J. A. W. Carstenn; und etwas hinter ihm steht — Herr Paul Munk.

Hermann Geber, ein schwarzlockiger Versicherungskünstler, verwandelte sich kurz vor der Wiedergeburt des Deutschen Reichs in den farbenschillernden Falter eines Grossindustriellen und General-Speculanten. Er ist ebenso reich an „Ideen“ wie Quistorp, nur ist er darin weit glücklicher. Während Quistorp heute, gezwungener Mafsen, auf seinen Lorbeeren ruht, beglückt Geber noch immer das dankbare Berlin mit seinen Schöpfungen.

Hermann Geber begann damit, dass er die ver-lassene Kaserne des Kaiser-Franz-Regiments in der Kommandantenstrasse ankaufte, von einem gewissen — Fiscus. Fiscus ist ein alter wunderlicher Herr, der es z. B. liebt, möglichst billig zu verkaufen und möglichst theuer einzukaufen. Er verkauft oft, was er selber höchst nöthig braucht, und was er dann hinterher zehnmal theurer wieder anschaffen muss. Er hat verschiedene kostbare Grundstücke in Berlin den Gründern überlassen, wofür er sich heute in grosser Verlegenheit befindet. So findet er in der Stadt selber keinen Platz mehr für das neue Criminal-Gerichtsbäude, und muss es — sehr bequem für das Publikum — draussen nach Moabit verlegen.

Also Geber kaufte von Fiscus, mit dem er öfter Geschäfte macht, die alte Franz-Kaserne, die inzwischen das Ansehen einer Räuberhöhle angenommen hatte, und schuf daraus das sogenannte „Industriegebäude“, welches an dreissig Läden und zahlreiche Comtoirs und andere Geschäftslocalitäten enthält. Dazu erstand er noch, zum Theil in Verbindung mit Herrn Eduard Stahlschmidt, eine Anzahl benachbarter Grundstücke, legte sie nieder und erbaute die heutige Beuth-Strasse, die in der Hauptsache gleichfalls aus lauter Läden und allerhand Geschäftsräumen besteht.

Im Februar 1870 schloss Hermann Geber mit Banquier Ferdinand Jaques, Commerzienrath Hermann Egells, Geh. Commerzienrath Moritz Plaut, Banquier Hermann Rauff und Justizrath Dr. Franz Hinschius — später sämmtlich hervorragende Gründer — eine „Societät“, die „sobald als möglich in eine Actiengesellschaft umgewandelt“ werden sollte. Nachdem das Actiengesetz Hals über Kopf fabricirt war, entstand noch während des Krieges, im September 1870, die Berliner Central-Strassen-Actien-Gesellschaft, welche jene Grundstücke erworben hatte. Herr Geber profitirte als Verkäufer eine Summe, die er, in übergrosser Bescheidenheit, gelegentlich mit ca. 250,000 Thaler bezeichnen liess; und ward selbstverständlich „Director“ der Gesellschaft, liess sich auch noch zwei „Specialdirectoren“, Hermann Leubuscher und Bernhard Maywald, unterstellen.

Das Actiencapital, ursprünglich 1,200,000 Thaler, ward fortwährend erhöht und schliesslich auf — vier Millionen (!) gebracht. 1872, am 30. April, bekanntlich dem Narrentage, „creirte“ man gleichzeitig $1\frac{1}{2}$ Million „junger“ Actien („I. Emission“) und $1\frac{1}{2}$ Million „neuer“ Actien („II. Emission“). Zwischen der Dorotheen-, Friedrichs- und Georgenstrasse ward ein „zweites Industrie-Gebäude“ in Aussicht genommen — das „Berliner Palais Royal“; und zu diesem Zwecke eine Reihe von Grundstücken, darunter wieder fünf vom Director Geber (!), zu mehr als hohen Preisen angekauft. Ohne diese Nachgründung hätten die Actionäre vielleicht nur die Hälfte verloren, während sie jetzt etwa zwei Drittel eingebüsst haben. Die Actien, im April 1872 ca. 125, stehen heute ca. 35; wiewol die der „II. Emission“ noch bis zum 1. Juli 1876 fünf Procent „Bauzinsen“, also aus dem eigenen Säckel, erhalten.

Der Häuser-Complex II blieb bestehen wie er war, denn inzwischen ging der Gründungsschwindel zu Ende, und damit ging auch die Baulust aus. Die Grundstücke wurden „bestens“ vermietet, rentirten sich indess selbstverständlich nicht. Da hatte Herr Geber, der sich neuerdings bewogen fand, einen Theil von Complex II zurückzunehmen, wieder eine geniale Idee. Er etablierte zwischen diesen Häusern den „Stadtpark“, und pflanzte, statt der Bäume und Sträucher, hier 72,000 (!!!) Gasflammen an. Wir kommen auf dieses Meerwunder, das die Presse mit einstimmigem Hosianna begrüßte, noch zurück. Wir verlassen einstweilen Herrn Geber und wenden uns zu Herrn Munk.

Paul Munk stammt, wie so viele seiner Glaubens-genossen, die hier ihr Glück machten, aus dem Posenschen. Seit 1866 ist fast das halbe Grossherzogthum Posen nach Berlin eingewandert, ist die Zahl der hiesigen Juden von 20,000 bis 50,000 gestiegen. Die Kinder Israel vermehren sich in Berlin ebenso heftig

wie einst in Aegypten, und es sind durchgehends
wohlhabende und reiche Leute; wirklich arme Juden kommen hier nicht vor. *) Das Klima von Berlin, wie-wol es ihm sehr an Ozon mangelt, bekommt den Nach-

*) Natürlich will das sagen: es giebt unter der Berliner Judenschaft kein eigentliches Proletariat. Dagegen fehlt es selbstverständlich nicht an Wittwen und Waisen, Altersschwachen, Arbeitsunfähigen und Kranken. Für diese hat die reiche Judengemeinde in reichlicher Weise gesorgt; es bestehen eine Menge von wohlthätigen Anstalten, Stiftungen und Vereinen.
Auch tauchen an den „hohen jüdischen Festtagen“ regelmässig Schaaren jüdischer Bettler auf. Das sind aber nicht einheimische, sondern Polnische Juden, die es wahrscheinlich gar nicht nöthig haben; die bei ihren hiesigen Glaubensgenossen
nur Gastrollen geben, und stets ein gutes Geschäft machen.
Juden dagegen, die in Berlin Handel treiben — und das thut
noch immer die grosse, übergrosse Mehrzahl — kommen hier
überraschend schnell zu Geld und Besitz, zu Wohlstand und Reichthum, zu Einfluss und Macht. Gar viele, die vor wenigen Jahren mit dem Packen auf dem Rücken, in dünnem Röckchen
und geflickten Hosen einzogen, haben heute einen hocheleganten Laden oder ein grosses Comtoir, sind Hausbesitzer, Wahlmänner
und Stadtverordnete, halten Equipage und Dienerschaft, führen in den Versammlungen das grosse Wort und geben in der Gesellschaft den Ton an.

kommen Abraham's ausserordentlich*); und wenn man ihren 1800jährigen Schmerz stillen, und sie heute in das Land zurückführen wollte, darinnen Milch und Honig fliesst — sie würden sich schönstens bedanken!)

*) Die Ehen der Juden zeichnen sich durch starke Fruchtbarkeit aus; wogegen todtegeborene Kinder bei ihnen verhältnissmässig weit seltener sind als bei den anderen Confessionen. Ebenso ist die Sterblichkeit unter den Juden, bei Kindern wie bei Erwachsenen, eine viel geringere, und sie erreichen durchschnittlich ein weit höheres, und überhaupt das höchste Alter. Vgl. „Berliner Städtisches Jahrbuch“, 1875, S. 12 ff. und S. 139 ff.

) Die Juden brauchen nicht mehr nach Asien zu wandern: — sie haben ihr Kanaan schon in Europa gefunden, und dieses Kanaan ist Deutschland und speciell Preussen. — „Wo ist hier die «Jerusalem Strasse»?“ fragte in Berlin ein fremder Jude einen hiesigen. „„Wo ist sie hier nicht?!““ antwortete grinsend der Andere. — In der That ist Berlin für die Juden Neu-Jerusalem geworden, das sie gegenwärtig mit keinem Ort der Welt vertauschen möchten. Auch nicht mehr mit Wien, wo sie schon weit früher die Herrschaft führten, und wo sie freilich noch immer herrschen. Bis zum Jahre 1866 besaßen die Juden in Berlin nur Eine Synagoge — jetzt sind es schon vier. Kürzlich ist „unter des Allmächtigen Beistand“ die vierte, vor dem Potsdamer Thor, in der vornehmsten Stadtgegend errichtet. Ausserdem bestehen zwei kleine Synagogen für die Reformjuden und für Adass Israel; und an den „hohen jüdischen Festtagen“ wird, weil die Tempel nicht zureichen, wol noch an fünfzehn weitem Orten „Gottesdienst mit Predigt“ gehalten. An „den hohen jüdischen Festtagen“ ist die Börse still und leer, sind in vielen Strassen sämmtliche Läden geschlossen. Viele Zweige des Handels befinden sich fast ausschliesslich in jüdischen Händen. Die reichsten Leute in Als Herr Paul Munk vor etwa acht Jahren in Berlin einzog, sollen, wie die Fama behauptet, fünf Thaler für ihn eine unerschwingliche Summe gewesen sein: — seit 1873 bewohnte er die Beletage des Eckhauses Unter den Linden und am Pariser Platz. Er wohnte hier zusammen mit zwei Herzogen; der Herzog von Sagan wohnte neben ihm, und der Herzog von Ujest über ihm. Er wohnte bei seinem Freunde Pincuss zur Miethe, besitzt aber selber in „feinster“

Berlin sind Juden, und Juden treiben hier den grössten Aufwand und Luxus, weit grösseren als die Aristokratie und der Hof. Hauptsächlich Juden füllen die Theater, Concerte, Opernhausbälle, Vorlesungen etc. Sonntags, wo die Juden unfreiwillig feiern, ist in manchem Theater kaum eine Christenseele zu entdecken. In allen Comités, in allen Vereinen sitzen und präsidiren Juden. In der Stadtverordneten-Versammlung sind sie unverhältnissmässig stark vertreten, behaupten sie schon ein bedenkliches Uebergewicht. Die Wahlen zum Abgeordnetenhouse und zum Reichstage werden vorwiegend von Juden gemacht. In keiner andern Stadt finden sich unter den Docenten an der Universität, unter den Lehrern an den höhern Schulen, unter den Advocaten und Aerzten, namentlich unter den Literaten und Journalisten so viel Juden, wie in Berlin. 1874 fanden hier 26 Judentaufen statt; dagegen traten 4 Christen zum Judenthum über, und diese machten sicher das bessere Geschäft. — Es giebt in Berlin 15,000 Juden, sagte einst der Schulrath Wantrup, aber sie vollführen ein Spectakel als ob es ein paar Hunderttausend wären. — Als Wantrup dies sagte, waren es erst 15,000 Juden — nun sind es schon 50,000. Gott sei uns armen Christen gnädig!

Stadtgegend mehrere Häuser, von denen er eins, nachdem es fürstlich eingerichtet worden, kürzlich bezogen hat; und er besitzt auch mehrere Villen vor den Thoren. Im Uebrigen ist er sicher ein doppelter Millionär.

Herr Munk, ein Mann von gewandtem einnehmendem Wesen, ward zuerst viel in den Bureaux der Intendanturen, Ministerien und anderer Behörden gesehen, wo er stets etwas zu kaufen oder zu verkaufen wünschte. Dann wurde er „Director“ der am Kreuzberg belegenen Villen-Colonie Wilhelmshöhe, die aber damals noch keinen rechten Anklang fand. Herr Munk bot die neuen Villen lange wie sauer Bier aus. Doch mit der Gründer-Aera begann sein Stern zu leuchten.

Unmittelbar nachdem Herr Geber die „Centralstrassen-Societät“ gebildet hatte, „gründete“ Herr Munk, im März 1870, den Actienbau-Verein Passage. Die „Passage“, in vieler Hinsicht ein Seitenstück zur „Centralstrasse“, ist eine glasbedachte Verbindung zwischen den Linden und der Behren- und Friedrichstrasse, erfüllt mit Läden, Restaurationen, Concert- und andern Sälen. Herrn Munk's Verbündete waren: die Banquiers Meyer Cohn, Aron Hirsch Heymann, Salomon Gotthold Heymann, Maximilian Heymann, Kaufleute

Fr. Wilh. Besckow, Ernst Theodor Besckow, Hermann Reimann, Fabrikbesitzer Carl Egells, Rentier Georg Beer, Commerzienrath Gustav Stobwasser, Justizrath Drews, Kammerherr Louis von Prillwitz. Auch hier wurden die nöthigen Grundstücke zu enormen Preisen erworben, und die Gründer machten einen hübschen Schmu. Erster Director ward wieder der eigentliche Attentäter, Paul Munk; bis ihn, noch vor Vollendung des Baues, Herr Stobwasser ablöste.

1873, am 22 März, am Geburtstage des Kaisers, ward die „Passage“ eröffnet, und dem Monarchen zu Ehren „Kaiser-Galerie“ genannt. Zwei Tage vorher erschien auf Einladung des „Aufsichtsraths“ der ganze Hof. Kammerherr von Prillwitz machte die Honneurs. Die Gründer und ihre Damen wurden dem Kaiser, der Kaiserin, den Prinzen und Prinzessinnen vorgestellt. Bilse concertirte; es folgte das Souper und ein Ball. Auch die Vertreter der Presse erhielten eine kalte Collation. Jeder der 8 oder 9 „Aufsichtsräthe“ hatte zu dem Feste 800 Thaler beigesteuert.

Das ist eben das Empörende, dass die Gründer — und nicht bloß hier — es wagten, sich an die ersten Personen des Reichs zu drängen, um so ihre unlautern Zwecke zu verhüllen oder gar noch zu glorificiren. Hätten der Kaiser, die Kaiserin und die Prinzen eine Ahnung gehabt von dem schwindelhaften Charakter dieser Gründung: sie würden selbstverständlich nie einen Fuss hierher gesetzt, jenen Leuten nie einen Blick geschenkt haben.

Wie „Centralstrasse“, so hatte auch „Passage“ eine noch blutigere Nachgründung im Gefolge. Die Gründer hatten privatim, zu ganz anderem Zwecke, „Meinhardt's Hôtel“, Unter den Linden 32, angekauft, und es weit über den Werth, mit 500,000 Thalern bezahlt. Als die Conjectur umschlug, wussten sie nicht mehr, was sie damit anfangen sollten, fassten sich aber schnell und halsten das Grundstück der „Passage“-Gesellschaft auf, der sie es mit einem kleinen Aufgelde von etwa 137,000 Thalern in Rechnung stellten. Dieses Taschenspielerstückchen kam in der nächsten General-Versammlung zur Sprache; etliche wirkliche Actionäre erlaubten sich zu murren, aber sie wurden kurz und bündig zur Ruhe verwiesen, nämlich von den „Strohmännern“, welche die Gründer engagirt hatten, überstimmt. Der Ankauf von „Meinhardt's Hôtel“ ward mit imposanter Majorität genehmigt.

Noch vor Vollendung des Baues, noch vor dem

„Krach“ wurden jene Dinge ruchbar, und auf der „Passage“ ruhte von vorne herein ein Fluch. Nur mit Noth gelang es die Läden zu vermieten, nachdem man die zuerst in Aussicht genommenen Miethen bedeutend herabgesetzt hatte. Die Concerte verunglückten, die Festsäle blieben leer, die grossen Restaurants in den obern Etagen fanden bald keinen Pächter mehr, und die durch alle Stockwerke gehenden „Banklocalitäten“ in der Behren-Strasse konnten überhaupt nicht vermietet werden. Man verwandelte diese Räume in ein Hôtel von 60 Zimmern, aber man suchte vergebens nach einem Pächter. Auch für „Meinhardt's Hôtel“ fand sich Niemand, der den verlangten Pachtzins von 28,000 Thalern zahlen wollte, und so sah die Gesellschaft sich genöthigt, die Bewirthschaftung selber zu übernehmen, wobei sie indess keine Seide spinnt. Nach der Bilanz von 1874 beträgt der „Saldo-Ertrag“ von „Meinhardt's Hôtel“ noch nicht 1 Procent des Anlage-Capitals.

In dem kostbaren Säulensaale der „Kaiser-Galerie“ nahmen am 22. April 1875 die Actionäre die magere Bilanz und den trostlosen Geschäftsbericht entgegen. Der grosse Restaurant in der zweiten Etage ist nach dem Erdgeschoss verlegt; da sich aber auch hier kein Pächter fand, übernahm die Bewirthschaftung ein Consortium, bei welchem sich die Passage-Gesellschaft zu Dreiviertel betheiligen musste. Wenn wir die unklare Bilanz und die ebenso unklaren Notizen der Zeitungen recht verstehen, hat die Gesellschaft bei dieser „Betheiligung“ pro 1873 — 18,750 Thaler, pro 1874 — 25,000 Thaler eingebuttert; auch von den früheren Pächtern das Inventarium und ein grosses Weinlager übernehmen müssen. Eine andere Version behauptet wieder, das Weinlager sei eigentlich eine Privat-Angelegenheit gewisser Herren Aufsichtsräthe, und diese hätten sich inzwischen auch bereit finden lassen, es der Gesellschaft abzunehmen.

Genug, der Bericht verstimmte tief, und die zahlreiche Versammlung, welcher Herr Commerzienrath Stobwasser präsidirte, zeigte sich sehr ungeberdig.

Da erhob sich am grünen Tische einer der Würdenträger und erklärte mit edlem Freimuth, dass die Opponenten sich dem Aufsichtsrath gegenüber in einer Minderheit wie 1 zu 6 befänden; also sich doch nicht unnütz echauffiren möchten. Der gute Rath wirkte, und die Gemüther beruhigten sich. Zum ersten Mal sollte eine Dividende vertheilt werden; dafür betrug sie aber auch — $\frac{1}{2}$ Procent. Es ereignete sich hier der ungeheuerliche Fall, dass die Actionäre die Dividende zurückwiesen, und das halbe Procent zu Abschreibungen verwendet wissen wollten, die auch der „Passage“ ausserordentlich wohl thun würden. Aber sie drangen nicht durch, denn das Statut der Gesellschaft überlässt in weiser Voraussicht die Bestimmung und Vertheilung der Dividende dem Aufsichtsrath allein. Die General-Versammlung hat nicht mit zu reden, und so empfing denn jede Actie ganze 15 Silbergroschen.

Einst wurde das Papier mit ca. 140 bezahlt, heute notirt es die Börse mit ca. 15. Das Actiencapital beträgt 2,000,000 Thaler, wozu noch 1,366,000 Thaler Hypotheken und Obligationen kommen — 221,000 Thaler Prioritäten waren nicht mehr unterzubringen! Gegen „Passage“ gehalten, ist selbst „Centralstrasse“ eine „höchst solide Gründung“.

Wenn wir durch die Passage gehen, sehen wir sie stets von Menschen angefüllt; aber nur selten erblicken wir in den zahlreichen Läden einen Käufer. Von jeher machten alle diese Läden schlechte Geschäfte; und man sagt, dass hier der Berliner überhaupt nicht kaufe, nur der Fremde. Den meisten Zuspruch hat noch Castan's „Panoptikum“, ein sehr mässiges Wachsfigurencabinet, wo stets der Räuber oder der Mörder paradirt, der Berlin gerade mit seinem Ruhm erfüllt.

In der „Kaiser-Galerie“ versammelte sich im Herbst 1874 die Winkelbörse, die früher ein paar Häuser weiter, an der Conditorei von Kranzler tagte, bis sie von der Polizei vertrieben ward. An einem Abende hatten in der „Passage“ Posto gefasst: Rosenfeld, Rosenhain, Rosenberg, Rosenthal, Rosenbach, Rosenbusch, Rosenblatt, Rosenstiel, Rosenstock etc. etc.; und sie jobberten so heftig, dass sie den Verkehr hemmten, und der Hausinspector sie auffordern liess, sich ein wenig zu zerstreuen. Das nahm Jacob Rosenstock gewaltig übel; der kriegerische Geist seiner Ahnen, der Makkabäer, kam über ihn und er versetzte dem Abgesandten einen wuchtigen Schlag in's Gesicht. Da eilten die andern Hausbediensteten und aus dem Restaurant die Kellner herbei, und es entspann sich zwischen ihnen und den Jobbern eine blutige Schlacht. Der tapfere Rosenstock ward übermannt, vor Gericht gestellt und wegen „grobe Unfugs“ in Strafe und Kosten verurtheilt. Er appellirte jedoch und wurde in zweiter Instanz freigesprochen, weil der Kläger den Strafantrag zu spät gestellt hatte.

Wenn wir durch die „Passage“ gehen, lesen wir am Schwarzen Brett, dass die grossen Festsäle, die grossen Restaurants in der obern Etage und das Hôtel von 60 Zimmern in der Behrenstrasse noch immer zu vermieden sind. Auch der Restaurant im Erdgeschoss hat erst im letzten Sommer einen ständigen Pächter gefunden; bis dahin war er einem Kellner überlassen, der das Wagniss jedesmal nur auf vier Wochen übernahm. Die grossen kostbaren Räume in den obern Stockwerken stehen sämtlich leer, und des Nachts gehen hier die gemordeten Actionäre um und ringen wimmernd die Hände.

In Bezug auf Umfang und Verhältnisse, Stil und Ausführung bietet die „Passage“ nichts Besonderes, kann sie sich nicht entfernt mit der schönen grossartigen Galeria Vittorio Emanuele in Mailand messen. Ja, die ganze Anlage ist, genauer besehen, verfehlt; die Räume sind höchst unpraktisch verwerthet.

Der Leser irrt, wenn er „Passage“ etwa für das Non plus ultra einer Gründung hält. „Passage“ ist allerdings böse, aber noch weit böser ist der zwei Jahre später geborne Actionbau-Verein Unter den Linden; und beide Kinder haben zum Vater denselben Herrn Paul Munk. „Lindenbauverein“ wurde an der Börse wie im Publikum ein „geflügeltes Wort“, „Lindenbauverein“ wurde der Refrain vieler Theater-Couplets, und mit der Geschichte vom „Lindenbau-Verein“ scheuchte man die Kinder zu Bett.

Parallel mit der Passage, und nur zwei Häuser weiter; sollte eine neue Verbindung zwischen den Linden und der Behrenstrasse durchbrochen, und diesmal eine wirkliche Strasse angelegt werden; eine „Prachtstrasse“, wieder Laden an Laden, dazu mit einem Theater und einem „Riesenhôtel“. Die Gründer resp. ersten Zeichner waren ausser Paul Munk: Banquier Emil Heymann, Rentier Georg Beer, Kaufmann Gustav Markwald, Banquier Edmund Helfft, Commerzienrath und Aeltester der Kaufmannschaft Wilhelm Herz, Consul Friedrich Schillow und Seine Excellenz der Staatsminister a. D. Gustav von Bonin, Mitglied des Preussischen Abgeordnetenhauses und des Deutschen Reichstags.

Diese acht Herren constituirten sich unter dem Vorsitz der Excellenz von Bonin als „Lindenbau-Verein“ und kauften sieben Grundstücke an, resp. genehmigten sie den Ankauf. Vier der Grundstücke wurden angekauft von Paul Munk, der sie erst kurz vorher erworben hatte. Die Häuser Behrenstrasse 57 und 56 überliess Munk der Gesellschaft mit einem

Aufgelde von je 150,000 Thaler, zusammen also — — 300,000 Thaler; die Häuser Unter den Linden 17 und 18 mit einem Aufgelde von — — — 1,150,000 Thaler.

Unter den Linden 17 und 18 sind gewissermaßen historische Häuser. Hier hatte Strousberg der Grosse seine Bureaux, hier wurde seine Zeitung, „Die Post“, fabricirt. Munk, der zu Strousberg in vielfachen Beziehungen stand und ein Schüler und Jünger des „Culturhelden“ genannt werden darf, hatte die beiden Grundstücke von diesem während des Krieges für 600,000 Thaler erstanden, und verkaufte sie jetzt dem „Lindenbauverein“ für — — 1,750,000 Thaler!! Munk erhielt also zusammen ein Aufgeld von — — — — 1,450,000 Thaler!!!

Aber selbstverständlich musste er davon seinen Verbündeten abgeben. So cedirte er später von dem Kaufgelderreste: 85,000 Thaler an Banquier Meyer Cohn, 85,000 Thaler an Banquier Aron Hirsch Heymann, 85,000 Thaler an Kaufmann Hermann Reimann und 55,000 Thaler an Commerzienrath Hermann Egells — bis auf Letzteren, lauter alte Genossen von der „Passage“ her.

Diese Cessionen deuten gewisse, ziemlich durchsichtige Coulissen-Geheimnisse an; und ganz klar ist, dass die Gründung, so zu sagen, in der Familie vor sich ging. Meyer Cohn nämlich ist der Compagnon und Schwager von Emil Heymann. Aron Hirsch Heymann ist der Vater von Emil Heymann. Gustav Markwald ist der Schwiegervater des gleich zu erwähnenden genialen Directors Schweder. Hermann Reimann ist, wie wir hörten, ein Verwandter von Consul Schillow etc.

Die Actien, im Betrage von 2,400,000 Thaler, wurden ohne Prospect, durch die Preussische Boden-Credit-Actienbank an der Börse „eingeführt“, und durch die geschickten Hände der Herren Richard Schweder und Wolf Paradies glücklich abgesetzt. Von den Vorgängen zwischen Munk und Genossen, von der kolossalen Gründer-Beute, hatte Niemand eine Ahnung, weder im Publikum noch an der Börse. Selbst Börsenleute, selbst gewiegte Makler und Banquiers hielten das Papier für gut und nahmen es in Posten (grossen Summen) auf. Schweder kannte kein Erbarmen, er betheiligte mit den Actien Christen wie Juden, die besten Freunde und die eigenen Verwandten. Wir haben selber einen betrogenen Oheim über den grausamen Neffen jammern hören. — Für den Vertrieb der Actien berechnete die Preussische Bodencredit-Actienbank sich die Kleinigkeit von 400,000 Thaler.

In den Zeitungen liessen die Gründer verbreiten, wie sehr das Project „an Allerhöchster Stelle interesse“, wie erbaut davon die Staats- und die städtischen Behörden seien; während sich hinterher herausstellte, dass die Behörden sich gegen den Durchbruch, als eine unnütze und unschöne Unterbrechung der Linden, erklärt hatten. Fortwährend wurde auf den Einfluss des Herrn von Bonin „bei Hofe“ hingewiesen; einen Einfluss, der nicht im Mindesten bestand. Nur bei dem Kronprinzen fand Herr von Bonin zuweilen Zutritt.

Nach dem Kronprinzen wurde die neue „Prachtstrasse“, die nie gebaut werden sollte, sondern nur auf den zahlreichen eleganten Zeichnungen des Hofbauraths Klingenberg existirt, bereits Friedrich-Wilhelm-Strasse genannt, und unter diesem Namen auch die Actien dem Publikum empfohlen. Die „National-Zeitung“ und die alte „Börsen-Zeitung“ meldeten im redactionellen Theil übereinstimmend: Der Bauverein Unter den Linden hat mehrere Parcellen sehr vortheilhaft verkauft. Für ein Eckgrundstück sind 9000 Thaler pro Quadratruthe bezahlt worden. — Dieser Preis würde nur den Selbstkosten entsprochen haben, aber thatsächlich ist nie ein Fuss breit verkauft worden.

Die öffentliche Strasse wurde nicht genehmigt, und der „Aufsichtsrath“ beschloss, eine Privatstrasse zu bauen. Aber da kam der „Krach“, und man liess die Häuser stehen. Die zum 1. April 1873 sämmtlich gekündigten Geschäfts- und Wohnräume blieben lange leer und sind erst im letzten Jahre wieder vollständig vermietet worden; natürlich zu sehr herabgesetzten Preisen. Die Strousberg'schen Häuser Unter den Linden 17 und 18, welche den Actionären $1\frac{3}{4}$ Millionen Thaler (!!) kosten, sind eigentlich bloß Baustellen, alte Ruinen, die im Sommer 1873 einzustürzen drohten und im Keller gestützt werden mussten. Die sieben Grundstücke stehen mit 3,462,000 Thaler (!!!) zu Buch; die Actien notiren etwa 15.

„Lindenbau-Verein“ war eine so mörderische Gründung, dass sie selbst den Unwillen professioneller Gründer erregte, selbst die Börse empörte und selbst einen Theil der Presse in Bewegung setzte. Verschiedene Localblätter geisselten Herrn Munk und Genossen, und forderten sie auf, von dem Raube doch wenigstens Etwas herauszugeben. Eine Anzahl von Actionären trat zusammen, um die Schuldigen zu verfolgen; aber, wie sich's später herausstellte, waren nicht wenige dieser verbündeten Actionäre selber hartgesottene schwerbelastete Gründer, die zum Theil sich bald zurückzogen, zum Theil sich mit Paul Munk und Complicen zu vergleichen gedachten. Etliche sollen auch wirklich eine Abfindung erhalten haben. In Folge der Denunciation schritt der Staatsanwalt ein, die Attentäter wurden vorgeladen und eine Menge von Zeugen verhört. Die Voruntersuchung zog sich durch acht Monate, hatte aber nicht den geringsten Erfolg. Herr Tessendorf, der Erste Staatsanwalt, hat zu den Acten ein längeres Gutachten gegeben, worin er ausführt, dass die Gründer moralisch unbedingt zu verurtheilen sind, criminal-gesetzlich aber leider nicht zu fassen wären. Die Rathskammer des Berliner Stadtgerichts war derselben Ansicht und verfügte die Einstellung des Verfahrens. Einer der Gründer stand, weil er Landwehr-Officier ist, auch noch vor dem Militärgericht, und die Acten gingen bis an den Kaiser — doch das Resultat blieb dasselbe.

Centralstrasse, Passage, Lindenuverein — um

hier nur diese zu nennen: so wurde Berlin Weltstadt! Centralstrasse und Passage, rufen die Gründer, sind doch unbedingt eine Verschönerung der Stadt, gereichen Berlin zur Zierde! — Mag sein. Aber sind sie es wohl werth, dass darum Tausende ausgeplündert, um ihr Vermögen, ihre Sparpfennige beraubt und theilweise an den Bettelstab gebracht werden mussten? — Nein, und hundertmal nein! Zum Teufel mit solchen Verschönerungen!!

Centralstrasse wie Passage haben eine Menge neuer Läden geschaffen, an denen Berlin ohnedies Ueberfluss hat. In Berlin herrscht, Dank dem so stark vertretenen jüdischen Element, ein bedenklicher Schachergeist; jeder zehnte Mensch, gleichviel ob Mann oder Weib, ob Erwachsener oder Kind, ist hier Händler; in jedem Hause, selbst in den äussersten Vorstädten, giebt es einen oder mehrere Läden. Weitaus die Mehrzahl dieser Ladeninhaber, meistens Kleinhändler, arbeiten nur für die Miethe, vertheuern nur die Privatwohnungen; gut die Hälfte dieser Läden kann ohne Schaden geschlossen werden, ja es wäre für die Bevölkerung ein Segen!

Und nun erst Lindenbau-Verein und Centralstrasse, Häuser-Complex II! Aus purer Verlegenheit zaubert

Herr Geber den „Stadtpark“ hin, der bei Tageslicht (ohne die 72,000 Gasflammen!!!) besehen, ein — Biergarten ist. Die Vertreter der Presse werden eingeladen und erhalten eine kalte Collation. Herr Geber winkt, und sämtliche Blätter, gross und klein, schlagen den Tamtam!

In der „National-Zeitung“ giebt eine glänzende Schilderung vom „Stadtpark“ Herr X, und macht den Lesern ein X für ein U. In der „Vossischen“ stimmt L. P., der malerische Feuilletonist, einen Dithyrambus auf Herrn Geber an. — Wenn Heinrich Heine sich rühmte, er habe 100,000 Citate jährlich auszugeben, so verbraucht L. P. in jedem Jahr einige Millionen Gänsefüsschen. „Nacht muss es sein, dass Hauschner's Sterne strahlen!“ ruft L. P. begeistert aus. Die Actiengesellschaft für Gas- und Wasseranlagen, vormals Schäfer und Hauschner, hat im „Stadtpark“ die 72,000 Flammen angesteckt. Nun will es der boshafte Zufall, dass in derselben Nummer der „Vossischen“, in derselben Beilage Schäfer und Hauschner — auch eine sehr traurige Gründung; verfasst von den Herren Adolf Salomon, Ferd. Meyer (Oppenheim & Co.), Carl Kiesel (Bein & Co.), Buchhändler Dr. Julius Friedländer;

und gegenwärtiger Cours ca. 15 — die Liquidation (Auflösung) ankündigen.

Also „Hauschner's Sterne“ strahlen eigentlich nicht mehr — und auch die 72,000 Flammen im „Stadtpark“ sind schon wieder erloschen. Herr Geber gedenkt den „Stadtpark“ in einen „Wintergarten“ zu verwandeln, und daneben ein Theater und ein Hôtel zu erbauen. Er rechnet auf die „Stadtbahn“, die hier vorbeiführen, und auf den „Centralbahnhof“, der in unmittelbarer Nähe emporsteigen soll. Möge Herr Geber sich nicht wieder verspeculiren, wie bei dem „Berliner Palais Royal“, und möge er hübsch mit seinem eigenen Gelde speculiren!

Ein Gründerwerk, das gleichfalls Berlin zur Weltstadt machen sollte, aber kaum vollendet, zum grossen Theile schon wieder vernichtet wurde — ist der Kaiserhof. Ein echtes Gründerwerk nach Ursprung, Ausführung und Schicksal!

Um seine Geschichte zu erzählen, müssen wir etwas ausholen. Seine Abstammung ist ebenso complicirt wie die Geschlechtstafel der Patriarchen, von denen es im 5. Capitel der Genesis heisst: Adam war 130 Jahre alt und zeugte einen Sohn und hiess ihn Seth. Seth war 105 Jahre alt und zeugte Enos. Enos war 90 Jahre alt und zeugte Kenan u. s. w.

Im Frühjahr 1870 entstand die Deutsche Bank. Selbige zeugte, 2 Jahre alt, die Deutsche Baugesellschaft und die Gesellschaft für Bauausführungen; und zeugte dann wieder mit diesen, ihren beiden leiblichen, eben gebornen Töchtern die Berliner Hôtel-Gesellschaft oder den Kaiserhof. Der Kaiserhof ging also aus einer Verbindung hervor, welche die Römer Incest nannten; und die Gesetzbücher aller civilisirten Völker mit schweren Strafen bedrohen.

Die Deutsche Bank wurde gegründet von: Commerzienrath Adalbert Delbrück, E. J. Meyer, Baron Eduard von der Heydt, Generalconsul Baron Victor von Magnus, Consul und ehemaliges Reichstagsmitglied Gustav Müller, Reichstagsmitglied Dr. Ludwig Bamberger u. A. Diese Herren bewiesen sich als klassische Gründer, indem sie, bei Vermehrung des Grundcapitals, sich die Uebernahme sämmtlicher neuen Actien zum Pari-Course (100) vorbehielten, und dieses hocheinträgliche Privileg zweimal ausübten. Sie übernahmen die zweite Emission von 5 Millionen Thaler

und überliessen sie den Actionären zum Course von 110; profitirten also 10 Procent oder 500,000 Thaler. Sie übernahmen auch die Hälfte der dritten Emission, die gleichfalls 5 Millionen Thaler betrug, und überliessen, in nicht ganz freiwilliger Grossmuth, die andere Hälfte den Actionären zum Course von 104. Zu den Aufsichtsräthen der Deutschen Bank, deren Actien zur Zeit ca. 75 stehen, gehört das Reichstagsmitglied Dr. Friedrich Kapp; und Erster Director ist das Reichstagsmitglied Assessor a. D. Georg Siemens.

Commerzienrath Adalbert Delbrück und Baron von der Heydt gründeten nun wieder mit E. J. Meyer, Benoit Oppenheim, Ad. Levien, Berthold Bensemann u. A. die Deutsche Baugesellschaft — ehemaliger Cours 120, jetzt ca. 15; sowie mit Benoit Oppenheim, Gustav Markwald, Baumeister Hennicke, Rechtsanwalt Winterfeldt u. A. die Gesellschaft für Bauausführungen — Cours noch ca. 65; und endlich mit Berthold Bensemann, Georg Siemens, Gustav Kutter, Oberbürgermeister a. D. Kieschke, Stadtrath a. D. Risch etc. die Berliner Hôtelgesellschaft. Herr Adalbert Delbrück und Freiherr Eduard von der Heydt sind bei allen vier Gesellschaften die Matadore.

Was der Lindenbau-Verein seinen Actionären blos

auf Papier malte, that die Berliner Hôtel-Gesellschaft in Wirklichkeit. Sie errichtete am Ziethen- und Wilhelmsplatz ein Riesen- und „Muster-Hôtel“, „wie es bisher nur in Paris und Newyork bestand“; einen Gasthof von 262 Fremdenzimmern, mit „Luftschachten“, „Fahrstuhl“ und „Sonnenbrenner“; ein Wunder von Comfort, Eleganz und Luxus. — So liess sich jubelnd die Presse vernehmen, und eine ungemeine Reclame ging der Eröffnung voraus.

Das Hôtel erhielt den stolzen Namen „Kaiserhof“, und die Strasse, welche es im Süden begrenzt, ward „Delbrückstrasse“ getauft — nicht nach dem „Gründer“ Delbrück, sondern nach seinem Vetter, dem Minister. Seine Excellenz haben jedoch diese Ehre etwas bedenklich gefunden und sie hinterher Sich verboten. In Folge dessen wird die neue Strasse nun „Kaiserhofstrasse“ heissen.

Auch hier wussten die Gründer den Kaiser zu einem Besuche zu bewegen, und der Kaiser selber probirte den „Fahrstuhl“. Dann wurde das „Riesenhôtel“ durch einen Riesenschmaus eingeweiht, an welchem 250 Personen Theil nahmen, die Vertreter der Behörden, der Wissenschaften und Künste, der Kaufmannschaft und der Presse. Herr Madai, der Polizeipräsident, trank „auf das Gedeihen des grossartigen Unternehmens, dem Seine Majestät Selber, wie der Kaiserliche Besuch bekundet habe, ein aufmerksames Interesse widme“.

Wir entnehmen diesen Toast dem Berichte der „National-Zeitung“, geschrieben von dem Director des „Berlin-Charlottenburger Bauverein“, der in seinen Mussestunden zugleich auch ein gewandter Dichter und ein glänzender Feuilletonist ist, und von dem Festschmause, mit Hülfe von Shakespeare, Goethe und Schiller, eine hochpoetische Schilderung lieferte. Man höre ihn selber: Vor jedem Gedeck waren neun verschiedene Weingläser aufgestellt. „Alle Gläser erklangen. An den schlanken Kelch, mit perlendem Schaum gefüllt, stiess der mächtige grüne Rheinwein-Römer, Burgunder und Mosel begrüsst sich, und der Chablis in der breiten flachen Schale klang an den funkelnden Bordeaux im schön geschliffenen Kry stallglase.“ Selbstverständlich nöthigt solche Bewirthung zu Dankbarkeit und Erkenntlichkeit.

Mit Pauken und Drommeten ging der Kaiserhof in Scene, und gleich in den ersten Tagen war er überfüllt — wenn auch nicht ausschliesslich von Fremden und Reisenden. Am 1. October wurde er eröffnet — und schon am 10. musste er wieder geschlossen werden. Die Gäste und die Bediensteten verliessen das „Musterhôtél“ in wilder Flucht, im abenteuerlichsten Aufzuge; und aus den Fenstern flogen auf die Strasse Betten, Kleider, Wäsche, Teppiche, Gardinen etc.

Am 10. October, einem Sonntage, meldete der Telegraph: Gross Feuer im Kaiserhof! An allen vier Ecken stand der Dachstuhl des Hauses plötzlich in hohen Flammen. Wie und wann der Brand entstanden, ist dunkel geblieben, ist gar räthselhaft, hat zu bösen Gerüchten Veranlassung gegeben. Verschiedene Stimmen behaupten, das Feuer habe schon tagelang vorher im Verborgenen gefressen; und sie wollen daraus das mächtige Umsichgreifen der Flammen, die reissend schnelle Verheerung erklären. Andererseits rügten Leute von Fach öffentlich: der Bau sei ziemlich leichtfertig aufgeführt, und verstosse in mehr als einer Hinsicht gegen die baupolizeilichen Vorschriften. Der Minister des Innern, welcher dem Brande beiwohnte, bemerkte selber, dass dem kolossalen Gebäude die vorgeschriebene Einfahrt fehle, und soll darüber sein Befremden ausgedrückt haben. Auch in der Stadtverordneten-Versammlung wurde wegen der Bauart des Hôtels eine Interpellation gestellt. Thatsache ist, dass die so bewährte muthige Feuerwehr diesem Brande gegenüber wenig auszurichten vermochte.

Wieder erhob seine Stimme im Feuilleton der „National-Zeitung“ der hochpoetische Director des Berlin-Charlottenburger Bauvereins — diesmal ein trauernder klagender Jeremias. Und wie er meinte, müssten mit ihm auch seine Mitbürger trauern und klagen. „Ich gehe gewiss nicht fehl, sagt er, wenn ich behaupte, der Kaiserhof ist den Berlinern schon ein wenig an's Herz gewachsen.“ — Nun, er hat nicht so Unrecht. Zwar das Gründerwerk als solches ist den Berlinern ziemlich gleichgültig geblieben, aber der Brand keineswegs: denn sie haben den Schaden zu tragen, den Gründern ihren Verlust zu ersetzen! Erst wenige Tage vorher war die Versicherungs-Police bei der städtischen Feuercasse perfect geworden, und diese Casse beruht auf Gegenseitigkeit der Versicherten.

Der Kaiserhof ist nach der letzten Bilanz mit einem Actiencapital von 2,000,000 Thaler und 500,000 Thaler Hypotheken belastet; und es dürfte sehr fragwürdig sein, ob er sich bei dieser Belastung überhaupt rentiren kann. Die Actien sind, so viel wir wissen, nicht an die Börse gebracht; sie sollen sich noch in den Händen der Herren Adalbert Delbrück, Eduard von der Heydt und Genossen befinden, und sie mögen den Besitzern wol Kopfschmerzen bereiten. Das Hôtel ist nur theilweise zerstört und wird wieder hergestellt werden; aber der Brand giebt doch zu denken, erscheint wie ein Mene Thekel, wie der Zorn des Himmels ob solcher Gründerwerke!

Kaiserhof und Kaiser-Galerie (Passage) fordern durch ihr Schicksal, durch ihre Beschaffenheit zu einer Vergleichung heraus. Der Kaiserhof ist kaum fertig, da trifft ihn eine Feuersbrunst, und sie enthüllt die Mängel und Sünden des Baus. Die Kaiser-Galerie kann nur mühsam und nur theilweise vermietet werden; die grossen kostbaren Räume in der Beletage stehen Jahre lang leer. Vor wenig Monaten wurde endlich der Fürstensaal wieder benutzt, indem hier ein Concert stattfand. Da löst sich von der Deckenwölbung ein 10 Pfund schweres Mauerstück und stürzt mitten unter die Zuhörer. — Sind solche Machwerke, solche Gründerfabrikate es wol werth, nach dem Deutschen Kaiser genannt zu werden? — —

IX.

Die „grosse Zelt“ und die „grossen Dinge“.

Was „das Gefühl der Deutschen Nationalität und des Weltstüters erdachte“ — Berliner Droschken — Heinrich Quistep und der Central-Bazar für Fuhrwesen — Der grosse Droschkenkutscher-Strike. — Die Centralbank für Genossenschaften und die Gesellschaft für öffentliches Fuhrwesen — Wie man das Actiencapital „reducirt“ — Thierquälerei und Seelenwanderung — Droschken „erster Classe“ — Möbeltransport, Spediteur-Verein und Transportgesellschaft — Grosse Pferdebahn — Nethleidende Pferdebahnen — Admiralsgartenbad — Flora — Von den drei Polizeipräsidenten — Fürst Putbus, J. A. W. Carstenn und Ludwig Ebers — Der Gründungsbraten lockt die Adler an — Banquiers als Aerzte — Frau Lucca singt in der Flora — Der Dachstuhl stürzt ein — Eine kalte Collation — Das „Rosenparterre“ — Was die Flora den Actionären kostet — Man verweigert die Decharge — Der „Präsident des Aufsichtsraths“ als Bierschänker — Wie sich die Börsianer unterhalten — Grausame Absichten und traurige Aussichten — Die Lotterrie des Herrn Jean Fränkel — Flora's Schicksal — Lauter faule Früchte.

Nicht nur, dass die Gründer während ihrer Thätigkeit von der Presse in jeder Weise unterstützt und gefeiert wurden: selbst heute, wo ihr Treiben gerichtet ist, und ihre Werke zum Himmel schreien, selbst heute finden sie hie und da noch muthige Vertheidiger und begeisterte Lobredner. So lasen wir neulich in einem Berliner Blatte folgende Verherrlichung:

„Trotz aller Uebergriffe und Auswüchse, die alle grossen Zeiten mit sich bringen, war es doch eine erhebende Sache, als sich endlich das Capital der Industrie zuwandte, als endlich das Gefühl der Deutschen Nationalität und des Weltstädtlers grosse Dinge erdachte und in solcher Weise ausführte, dass sie bestehen werden für lange Zeit.“

Dieses Dictum soll jetzt unser Thema bilden. Wir wollen reden von der „grossen Zeit“ und von den „grossen Dingen“, die „das Gefühl der Deutschen Nationalität und des Weltstädtlers erdachte“; wir wollen betrachten eine Reihe von Gründerwerken, die ausschliesslich den Interessen des Publikums dienen sollten, und zunächst auch allgemein angesehen und begrüsst wurden als verdienstliche Thaten und gemeinnützige Schöpfungen; und wir wollen untersuchen, ob diese „grossen Dinge“ „bestehen werden für lange Zeit“, oder ob sie nicht bereits schon wieder verfallen und zerbröckeln, sich vor unsern Augen auflösen in eitel Dunst.

Ein chronisches Uebel, an dem Berlin seit Menschengedenken leidet, und das sich auch dem Fremden sofort fühlbar macht, sind die mangelhaften Verkehrsmittel im Innern der Stadt, ist namentlich das alt-ehrwürdige Institut der Droschke. Wagen, Pferd und Kutscher ringen mit einander um den Preis. Der Wagen ist ein unförmlicher enger unsaubrer Marterkasten, das Pferd ist ein lebensmüder Invalide, der Kutscher ist der geborne Feind des Fahrgastes, mit dem er fast regelmässig Händel anbindet. Da hatten die Gründer ein Einsehen und sprachen: Diese Droschke ist der Hauptstadt des Deutschen Reiches nicht würdig, und überdies ist sie nicht einmal in genügender Anzahl vorhanden. Auf, lasst uns ein Gefährte schaffen, das der Kaiserstadt zur Ehre und dem Publikum zur Wollust gereiche!

Heinrich Quistorp, alle Zeit voran, verwandelte im Juni 1872, mit Hülfe des Banquiers Moritz Goldstein und des Betriebsdirectors Julius Lestmann, das Fuhrgeschäft der Gebrüder Ernst und Wilhelm Beskow in eine Actiengesellschaft und nannte sie — höre es und staune, Europa! — Central-Bazar für Fuhrwesen. Dieses Fuhrgeschäft nebst Firma (!) kostete den Actionären ca. 550,000 Thaler. Trotzdem wurden die Actien wie eine Gunst gegeben und empfangen: auf 5 Actien der Vereinsbank Quistorp gewährte man 1 Actie des Central-Bazar. Mit 105 kam das Papier an die Börse, heute steht es ca. 20.

Allein Quistorp und der Central-Bazar, die es Beide mit ihren Versprechungen nicht zu genau nahmen, machten die Droschken nicht besser, eher schlechter und theurer. Die Droschkenkutscher, welche gleichfalls den Geist der „grossen Zeit“ verspürten, und die Gründer immer fetter und schwerer werden sahen, erhöhten täglich die Taxe und die Trinkgelder, und verfuhrten mit dem Publikum nach dem Wahlspruch der Französischen Könige: Car tel est notre plaisir. Die Polizei liess ein neues Reglement erscheinen, und die Droschkenkutscher antworteten mit einer Revolution.

Am 1. März 1873 stiegen an 3000 Rosselenker vom Bocke und gingen, wie der Berliner sagt, „zu Muttern“, setzten sich auf die Ofenbank und überliessen sich den Freuden der Häuslichkeit und der Familie, indem sie ihre Kinder im Striken unterrietheten, und in den Busen der unschuldigen Kleinen glühenden Hass ergossen gegen Madai, den neuen Polizeipräsidenten. Verschiedene Tage war Berlin ohne Droschken, und an allen Strassenecken hörte man Rufen und Jammern. Ein grosser Theil der Feiernden suchte das Angenehme mit dem Nützlichen zu verbinden, und meldete sich zur Verbüssung der Polizeistrafen, von denen der Berliner Droschkenkutscher jeder Zeit ein halb Dutzend auf dem Kerbholz hat. In jenen Tagen waren die Gefängnisse mit strikenden Rosselenkern vollgestopft, die hinter ihren Gitterfenstern hohnlachend auf die in Schaaren vorbeipilgernden Fussgänger blickten.

Da traten als rettende Engel wieder die Gründer auf. Inmitten des Droschkenstrike erliessen die Herren Gustav Thölde, Carl Stöter, Ferd. Strahl, Directoren der „Centralbank für Genossenschaften“, Kaufmann Gustav Röhl, Director Wilh. Horn und Rechtsanwalt Ewald Hecker den Prospect der Actiengesellschaft für öffentliches Fuhrwesen, worin sie erklärten: „Eine radicale Reform ist auf dem Wege der polizeilichen Intervention nicht erreichbar; hierzu bedarf es anderer Mittel. Es muss der Betrieb des öffentlichen Fuhrwesens in die Hände der Gross-Industrie gelegt werden, die allein befähigt ist, wirklich bedeutende Resultate zu erzielen.“

Der Prospect verhiess 1200 neue Droschken und forderte dafür ein Actiencapital von — zwei Millionen Thaler, d. h. viermal mehr als „Central-Bazar“. Da man an Dividende mindestens $15\frac{1}{2}$ Procent herausrechnete, „mit Sicherheit“ aber „einen weit höheren Ertrag“ erwartete, war es nur in der Ordnung, wenn der 40procentige Interimsschein mit 50 aufgelegt wurde, was einem Course von 125 entspricht. Leider hat sich die Rentabilitäts-Berechnung als nichtig erwiesen. Zu einer Dividende kam es nicht, vielmehr schloss das erste Geschäftsjahr mit einem Deficit von 73,000 Thaler. Aber der „Aufsichtsrath“ weiss sich zu helfen. Um die Unterbilanz aus der Welt zu schaffen, beschloss er, die Actien zusammenzulegen und so das Capital zu „reduciren“ — ein nach dem „Krach“ sehr beliebtes und in der That auch ganz probates Verfahren. Es wird einfach so und so vielen Actien der Hals umgedreht. Trotz dieser sinnreichen Manipulation gilt der einst mit 50 bezahlte Interimsschein nur noch ca. 10.

Die Gesellschaft eröffnete ihren Betrieb erst im Juni 1873, kam also für den Strike viel zu spät; und statt der verheissenen 1200 Droschken, stellte sie etwa 200, die sie zu hohen Preisen angeschafft hatte, und die sie nun auch zu hohen Preisen wieder vermieten wollte. Die Pächter fanden ihre Rechnung nicht, kündigten in Masse oder sie fahren die Pferde erbarmungslos zu Schanden. Abgesehen von den grossen Verlusten, die dadurch die Gesellschaft erleidet — jeder Kutscher bestellt nur eine Caution von 25 Thalern

— müsste hier der Verein gegen Thierquälerei einschreiten, und die Herren Aufsichtsräthe sollten sich einmal die Lehre von der Seelenwanderung erklären lassen!

Auf den Strike und das Droschkenwesen überhaupt hatte weder Quistorp's „Central-Bazar“ noch Thölde's „Oeffentliches Fuhrwesen“ den geringsten Einfluss. Zwischen den Droschkenkutschern und dem Polizeipräsidenten kam ein Friedensvertrag zu Stande; der Tarif wurde bedeutend erhöht, und im Uebrigen blieb Alles beim Alten. Die „grosse Zeit“ der Gründungen hat nur die Zahl der Droschken etwas vermehrt, hingegen ihre Beschaffenheit keineswegs gebessert. Auch die Droschken „erster Classe“, die schon früher bestanden, sind inzwischen stark auf den Hund gekommen, unterscheiden sich in Betreff des Angespanss kaum noch von denen „zweiter Classe“. Die Pferde sind ebenso miserabel, und erwecken in dem Fahrgast dieselben bösen Ahnungen.

Verwandte und ganz ähnliche Gründungen sind: Actiengesellschaft für Möbel-Transport und -Aufbewahrung. Ging gleichfalls aus einem Fuhrgeschäft hervor, das den Actionären mit 220,000 Thalern berechnet wurde. Emissionshaus: Moritz Ed. Meyer. Heutiger Cours ca. 20.

Berliner Spediteur-Verein. Actiencapital 550,000 Thaler. Emissionshaus: Alwin Philipp. Sechs Spediteure: Rosenberg & Löwe; Borchardt & Sachs; Herm. Cohn & Co.; Arnheim, Isaac & Co.; Moreau Vallette; R. Bergemann & Co. — warfen ihre Geschäfte zusammen, und liessen sie sich, d. h. blos die Kundschaft, mit 400,000 Thaler bezahlen. Das eingebrachte Inventar wurde besonders vergütet, und aus der Reihe der Verkäufer mehrere Directoren mit hohem Gehalt und Tantième angestellt. $16\frac{1}{2}$ Procent Dividende wurden versprochen, und 6 Procent für die drei ersten Geschäftsjahre garantirt, auch bisher bezahlt, indem die früheren Inhaber die nöthigen Zuschüsse leisteten. Cours noch ca. 30.

Allgemeine Transport-Gesellschaft. Actien-Capital nur 60,000 Thaler. Näheres unter „Nachträge“. Cours?

Ausser den Droschken hat Berlin den Omnibus und die Pferdebahn nach Charlottenburg; neuerdings auch die Grosse Pferdebahn mit einer Anzahl von Linien ausserhalb und innerhalb der Stadt. Omnibus und Charlottenburger Pferdebahn sind Actiengesellschaften, die schon aus der Zeit vor der Schwindelperiode datiren und daher menschliche Gründungen. Bis 1870 rangen sie auch um ihre Existenz; mit dem Anwachsen und steigenden Verkehr der Hauptstadt haben sie sich, trotz mancher Mängel, ziemlich gut entwickelt und in den letzten Jahren hohe Dividenden vertheilt.

Die Grosse Berliner Pferdebahn konstituirte sich im November 1871, eröffnete die erste Linie im Juli 1873, und schreitet seitdem ununterbrochen und ziemlich rasch vor. Die ersten Zeichner waren: Banquier Joseph Pincuss, Dr. Martin Ebers, Assessor a. D. Plewe, Consul Herm. Kreismann, Director Gustav Dittmann und Dr. Georg Kurs. Schon die Namen dieser Herren, die sämmtlich noch bei verschiedenen andern Gesellschaften theiligt sind, bürgen dafür, dass es keine billige Gründung war. Das Actiencapital ist neuerdings auf 3 Millionen Thaler erhöht worden. Dennoch gehört die Berliner Grosse Pferdebahn zu den wenigen Schöpfungen der Gründungsperiode, die einem wirklichen Bedürfniss entsprachen und die eine Zukunft haben. Wiewol die Dividende pro 1874 nur $4\frac{3}{4}$ Procent betrug, und solch hohe Dividenden wie bei der Charlottenburger Pferdebahn, aus mehrfachen Gründen nicht zu erwarten sind — notirt das Papier ca. 115.

Daneben gebar die „grosse Zeit“ aber noch andere Pferde-Eisenbahn-Gesellschaften, die sich nicht besonders lebensfähig erwiesen haben:

Continental-Pferdebahn, mit Linien in Dresden und Hannover. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Ingenieur Arnold von Etlinger, Fabrikbesitzer Gustav Schöpplenberg und Carl Egells, Banquiers Michael Julius Levinstein, Paul Gravenstein, Volkmar & Bendix, J. Mamroth, Julius Grel-ling, Alfred Wolff (M. Schie Nachfolger in Dresden.) Cours ca. 25.

Grosse Internationale Pferdebahn, mit Linien wo? Gründer: Hermann Geber, Eduard Stahl-schmidt, Hermann Leubuscher, Stadtrath Carl Harnecker, Kaufmann Bernhard Maywald, Banquier Ferd. Jaques. Cours?

Deutsche Pferdebahn, mit Linien in Elberfeld-Barmen und Danzig-Oliva. Gründer: Heinrich Quistorp, Regierungsrath a. D. Albert Bühling, Ingenieur Johannes Büsing. Die Gesellschaft gerieth in Concurs; die Bahnen kamen unter den Hammer, fanden jedoch keinen Bieter; und erst nach Aufhebung des Concurses gelang es Herrn Quistorp, sie los zu werden.

Die Gründer, immer besorgt für das Gemeinwohl, und daneben auch bedacht auf den Comfort ihrer Mitbürger, legten ferner noch zwei ganz besondere Eier: Admiralsgartenbad und Flora.

Im September 1872 verbanden sich die Herren Kreisgerichtsrath a. D. und Banquier Rudolf Parisius („Deutsche Genossenschaftsbank“), Bureau-Chef Rudolf Bensemman, Baumeister Walter Kyllmann, Dr. med. Wilhelm Engmann, Dr. Alexander Jürgens und Dr. Bodinus, Director des Zoologischen Gartens — zur Errichtung einer eleganten Bade-Anstalt mitten in der Stadt, auf der Friedrich-Strasse. Das Grundstück hat die Gesellschaft sehr theuer erworben, und noch theurer hat sich der Bau gestellt. Das ursprünglich ausgeworfene Capital von 600,000 Thaler (500,000 Thaler Actien und 100,000 Thaler Hypothek) war gewiss hoch bemessen; trotzdem ist es um ca. 90,000 Thaler überschritten, und neuerdings wurde wieder ein „Betriebsfonds“ von 40,000 Thaler gefordert.

Die Einnahmen im „Admiralsgartenbad“ betrugen vom 1. Januar bis 1. Juni 1875 ca. 12,500 Thaler, die Ausgaben ca. 11,000 Thaler, was also einen überaus winzigen Reingewinn ergibt. Wenn die Einnahmen nicht ganz bedeutend wachsen, was aber schwer-lich zu erwarten ist*), kann bei der ausserordentlichen Belastung der Anstalt auf eine angemessene Dividende nicht gerechnet werden. Das Papier notirte in der letzten Zeit 17 Brief.

Noch trüber und grauer sind die Aussichten für die Actionäre der Flora, die eine lange ununterbrochene Leidensgeschichte hat.

Der im Sommer 1871 veröffentlichte Prospect enthält folgendes: Es soll ein der Kaiserstadt würdiges grossartiges Vergnügungsllocal mit Sommer- und Wintergarten, Palmenhaus etc. errichtet werden. Zu diesem Zwecke ist in Charlottenburg der prächtige von Eckardtstein'sche Park nebst Schloss angekauft worden. Rentabilität mindestens 12 Procent, und freier Eintritt für die Actionäre resp. deren Familien. Unterzeichnet: Fürst von Putbus, Polizeipräsident von Wurbmb, Hofgarten-Director Jühlke, Director Noodt, Geheimer Commerzienrath F. W. Krause, Consul H. Kreismann, Legationsrath Freiherr von Steffens, Rittergutsbesitzer Ludwig Ebers, Assessor a. D. G. A. Plewe.

Dieser Prospect wurde nicht nur durch die Zeitungen veröffentlicht, sondern couvertirt und über Stadt

*) Bis zum 1. November wurden ca. 29,000 Thlr. eingenommen.

und Land versandt, den Leuten in's Haus geschickt. — Ein wohl zu beachtender Beitrag zur Unterbringung der Actien! Personen, die an ein Börsenpapier nie gedacht hatten, wie Pensionäre, allein-stehende Frauen etc., kauften jetzt Flora-Actien wegen des freien Eintritts in das Vergnügungslocal und wegen der stolzen Unterschriften, die der Prospect trug.

Möglich, dass Einige der Herren als Mitgründer keinen pecuniären Nutzen zogen, dass sie nur um der Sache willen beitraten und an die Sache glaubten; aber immerhin ist es zu bedauern, dass sie ihre Namen hergaben, und dadurch Tausende täuschen und schädigen halfen. *) Mit Recht brachte Ludolf Parisius die Angelegenheit im Abgeordnetenhaus zur Sprache. Er tadelte, dass Herr von Wurmb, der Polizeipräsident von Berlin zum Gründungscomité der „Flora“ gehöre; dass Herr von Brandt, der Polizeipräsident von Hannover, im Verwaltungsrath der beiden Vergnügungslocale „Tivoli“ und „Bella Vista“ sitze; und Herr von Gerhard, der Polizeipräsident von Magdeburg, als Auf-

*) Oeconomierath Noodt, Director des landwirthschaftlichen Clubs in Berlin, protestirte gegen den Ankauf der Eckardtstein'schen Grundstücke und trat dann, wie er öffentlich bekannt machte, aus dem Gründungscomité.

sichtsrath einer Bade- und Wasch-Anstalt fungire. Graf zu Eulenburg, der Minister des Innern, hat denn auch die drei Herren Polizeipräsidenten zum Austreten veranlasst.

Wie bei der „Berliner Nordbahn“, so hat man auch bei der Flora das ganze Odium auf den Fürsten Putbus zu wälzen gewusst. Die eigentliche Schuld des Fürsten aber besteht darin, dass er bei der Flora und verschiedenen Eisenbahn-Concessionen sich vorschreiben liess, dass er sich mit Gründern und Börsianern einliess, denen er in keiner Weise gewachsen war, für die er die goldenen Aepfel nur herunterholte. Die eigentlichen Urheber der Flora sind Herr J. A. W. Carstenn und Rittergütsbesitzer Ludwig Ebers, welche das Parkgrundstück wieder vorgekauft hatten, und es der Gesellschaft zu dem kolossalen Preise von 500,000 Thalern — die Quadratruthe Gartenland über 100 Thaler! — aufhalsten.

Von besonderem Interesse ist das Verzeichniss der Personen, welche am 26. September 1871 die General-Versammlung „der in Gründung begriffenen Actiengesellschaft Flora“ bildeten. Wir finden darunter:
- Vereinsbank Quistorp, Banquier Jean Fränkel, Weissbier-Director Emil Gericke, Max Meyer

(Louis Pollack), Rentier Moritz Eisner, Dr. Ludwig Eisner, „Volkswirth“ David Born, „Volkswirth“ Dr. Ed. Wiss, Hofapotheker Holtz, Dr. Albert Jausel, Kaufmann Josef Jausel, Dr. Martin Ebers, Rechtsanwalt Franz Lorek, Baumeister Johannes Otzen, Justizrath Julius Ahlemann etc. — Es war einer der ersten Gründungsbraten, und von allen Seiten kamen die, wir wollen sagen — Adler herbei.

Als ärztliche Banquiers behandelten die von Geburt an sieche Flora nach und nebeneinander: Robert Thode & Co., Heinrich Quistorp, Julius Grel-ling und wohl zu merken! Herr Jean Fränkel, dessen Methode und dessen Honorar-Rechnung in der letzten General-Versammlung grossen Anstoss erregte. Herr Jean Fränkel, der, wie mancher Gründer, in seinen Verhältnissen etwas zurückgekommen sein soll, nährt sich jetzt so ziemlich von der Flora.

Der Lucca-Cultus, hauptsächlich betrieben von Juden und Börsianern, stand 1871/72 noch in einer Nachblüthe. Das verwöhnte Theaterprinzesschen, er-bost über die ihrer Collegin Mallinger gespendeten Beifallsbezeugungen, erlaubte sich auf offener Scene dem Publikum das Wort „Ungezogenheiten!“ in's Ge-sicht zu werfen; und dasselbe Publikum beklatschte

diese Unverschämtheit. Damals wurde die Reclame verbreitet: Die göttliche Primadonna werde sich herbeilassen, in der Flora regelmässig zu singen; und so das Local eine ausserordentliche Anziehungskraft üben. Erster Director wurde Herr von Rhaden, der Gemahl der Lucca, und neben ihm fungirte Dr. Martin Ebers. Erster Cassirer ward Dr. Albert Jausel, später an Stelle von David Born, Director des „Landerwerb- und Bauverein“.

Der Bau des Etablissements schleppte sich ungebührlich lange hin, stockte mehrfach, da die Mittel ausgingen, und verschlang unglaubliche Summen. Wahrscheinlich in Folge des schlechten Materials und der mangelhaften Arbeit, stürzte im März 1873 — im selben Monat, als die Droschkenkutscher strikten — der Dachstuhl des Grossen Saales ein; und sollen die unglücklichen Actionäre den ohnehin beträchtlichen Schaden noch doppelt haben bezahlen müssen. Zum Frühjahr 1873 hatte man die Eröffnung des Locals verheissen, aber erst im Mai 1874 fand sie theilweise statt, waren die ersten Garten-Anlagen fertig. Die Presse war zu einer kalten Collation geladen, und etliche ihre Vertreter versetzten sich, wie ein Localblatt ausplauderte, in stürmische Begeisterung. Im

November 1874 wurde der grossartig angelegte Concertsaal eingeweiht, aber vollendet ist er heute noch nicht. Das ganze Etablissement ist noch unfertig, und überhaupt unsolide aufgeführt. Ueberall, wo man schärfer hinblickt, Flick- und Stückwerk, Lücken und schäbige Surrogate. Die Hauptsache, der Park mit den alten hohen Bäumen war vorhanden; im Uebrigen hat der Obergärtner, Herr Glatt, geschaffen, was er konnte. Das „Rosenparterre“ erntete allgemeinen Beifall. Ludwig Pietsch hat es in der „Vossischen“ auf Mahnung einer jungen schönen Frau schwungvoll besungen; und in der „Nationalen“ erzählte von ihm ein orientalisches Märchen der hochpoetische Director des „Berlin-Charlottenburger Bauverein“.

Die Flora, im Prospect auf 1,130,000 Thaler veranschlagt, kostet den Actionären bereits über 2 Millionen. Die Prioritäts-Anleihen und die gekündigten Hypotheken konnten nur mit ungeheuren Verlusten angeschafft resp. neubesorgt werden. Dazu fehlt es der Gesellschaft nicht nur immer wieder an „Betriebsfonds“ — sie befindet sich auch ewig in Wechselverlegenheiten. Der Executor ist ihr Hausfreund, und eine Version behauptet, dass man ihr im Winter 1874/75 das Gas und das Wasser abgeschnitten habe; ja, dass man ihr bereits die Palmen (!) abgepfändet hatte. Auch der Vorstand wechselt beständig, und ein Director folgt rasch dem andern.

Der Generalversammlung am 29. April 1875 präsidirte Herr Julius Pickardt, ein vielfacher und böserartiger Gründer. Die vorgelegte Bilanz schloss mit einem Verlust von über 300,000 Thalern. Die ganze Buchführung erschien verdächtig; Posten im Betrage von 73,000 Thaler waren völlig unbelegt. Es entwickelte sich „die denkbar stürmischste Debatte“. Die Directoren geriethen einander in die Haare, Herr Dr. med. Jacobius kam hart in die Enge, und die Actionäre verweigerten die Decharge. Es wurde eine „Revisions-Commission“ beliebt, und in dieselbe verschiedene — Gründer gewählt. Ihr Bericht steht noch aus.

Auch sonst herrscht die tollste Misswirthschaft. „Aufsichtsrath“ und „Vorstand“ sind häufig zugleich Gläubiger der Flora, besitzen Wechsel auf dieselbe, oder haben sich Inventariestücke verpfänden lassen. Die nöthigsten Utensilien sind zum Theil entliehen und kosten eine horrende Miethe. Auch die Restauration gab lange zu klagen, bis der Inhaber an einem schönen Junitage auf die Strasse flog; gerade als die in Charlottenburg tagenden Irrenärzte bei ihm zu diniren gedachten. Sein Nachfolger ist binnen wenigen Monaten bankrott geworden, aber nicht gerade durch seine Schuld. Man hatte ihm nur die Küche überlassen, nicht die Getränke; weder die Weine noch das Bier. Trotzdem musste er das ganze Heer der Kellner halten und lohnen. Das Bier schänkt für eigene Rechnung der — „Präsident des Aufsichtsraths“, Herr Julius Pickardt, da er zufällig auch Generalpächter der Gratweil'schen Bierhallen im Geber'schen Industriegebäude ist.

Im Sommer 1875 hatte die Flora ein paar Wochen ziemlich guten Zuspruch, indem von hier aus ein Französischer Luftschiffer seine Gondelfahrten unternahm. Mit ihm stiegen wiederholt ein paar Börsianer auf — um, wie der Volkswitz bemerkte, ihr Geschäft wieder etwas in die Höhe zu bringen. Vielleicht aus Mangel an Beschäftigung, oder auch, weil sie noch immer der Haber sticht, verfallen die Börsianer jetzt auf allerlei Allotria. So gaben sie neulich eine öffentliche Theater-Vorstellung, und namentlich ein noch jugendlicher Gründer machte seine Sache höchst effectvoll. Die Kinder Israel sind eitel genug, Alles können zu wollen, und sie können auch fast Alles, d. h. nachahmen, copiren, ausbeuten, verwerthen. Originalität, Erfindungsgabe und wirkliche Schöpferkraft sind ihnen versagt. Das Einzige, was sie selber erfunden und aus eigenem Vermögen geschaffen haben, sind die Gründungen.

Die 6procentigen Prioritäts-Obligationen der Flora notiren, weil die Zinsen mehr als unsicher sind und Ostern thatsächlich nicht gezahlt wurden, nur noch ca. 20. Die Actien stehen etwa 10; an heitern Tagen, wenn das Etablissement einigermaßen besucht ist, pflegen sie um ein viertel oder gar um ein halbes Procent zu steigen. Trotzdem hat der „Aufsichtsrath“ schon verschiedentlich geplant, den Actionären auch noch das letzte Vergnügen, den freien Eintritt zu nehmen. Das aber wäre grausam, zumal dieses Vergnügen ohnehin nicht mehr lange dauern kann, bald genug von selber aufhören muss!

Dank gewissen Connexionen und Einflüssen, hat die Regierung, zur allgemeinen Ueberraschung, der Flora-Gesellschaft eine Lotterie im Betrage von 250,000 Thalern verstatet. Fürwahr, ein ebenso unverdientes wie nutzloses Geschenk, das der Flora wenig helfen wird, mit dem sich die Gründer nur wieder die Hände waschen werden! „Generaldebiteur“ der Loose, die das Stück Einen Thaler kosten, und von denen „jedes gewinnen muss“, ist natürlich Herr Jean Fränkel; und à Conto der Lotterie kündigte dieser Finanzkünstler nun die nachträgliche Einlösung der am 1. April 1875 fällig gewesenenen Zinscoupons an; ohne dass deshalb die Prioritäten im Course steigen, denn das Publikum traut der Verzinsung nicht und hat, durch Erfahrung gewitzigt, einen heiligen Respect vor Allem, was von Jean Fränkel kommt.

Die Lotterie wird der Flora nicht mehr helfen wie die Luftfahrten der Börsianer. Auch die allergrösste Theilnahme des Publikums kann sie, bei einer Passivlast von über zwei Millionen Thaler, nicht wieder auf die Beine bringen. Sie wird dem Schicksal des Concurres ebenso sicher verfallen, wie ihr Restaurateur. Arme unglückliche Flora! Nie ist ein Weib, und dazu noch eine Göttin, so misshandelt, so schamlos ausgeplündert und bestohlen worden!

„Central-Bazar“ und „Oeffentliches Fuhrwesen“, „Möbel-Transport“ und „Spediteur-Verein“, „Deutsche“, „Continental-“ und „Grosse Internationale Pferdebahn“, „Admiralsgartenbad“ und „Flora“ — das sind die Früchte der „grossen Zeit“, und wie Jedermann sehen kann, lauter faule Früchte. Darum fragen wir: Wo sind die „grossen Dinge“!? — —

X.

Die Culturkämpfer.

Werin der Unterschied zwischen den antiken und den modernen Gründern besteht — Deutsche Baugesellschaft — Die Markthallen — Was das „Abwarten besserer Zeiten“ kostet — Deutsche Eisenbahn-Baugesellschaft — Eine Speisekarte für Actionäre — Die Manchesterleute schreien nach Staatshilfe — Berliner Stadtbahn — A fonds perdus — Herr Miquel giebt den Ausschlag — Pommer'sche Centralbahn und Berliner Nordbahn, von Herrn Kieschke und Herrn Eugen Richter bekämpft — „Veranschlag“ und „verlängfter Kosten-Entwurf“ — Deutsche Reichs- und Continental-Eisenbahn-Baugesellschaft — Posen-Creutzburg — Herr von Kardorff contrahirt mit sich selber — Jacob Landau's Dreieinigkeit — Das „Finanz-Consortium“ — Herr von Kardorff predigt gegen den Gründungsschwindel — Wie die „grossen Häuser“ in den Parlamenten vertreten sind — Warum die Seehandlung fallen muss — Erdmannsdorfer Spinnerei und die Königlichen Leihämter — Die verfloßene Preussische Bank und die neue „Reichsbank“ des Herrn Ludwig Bamberger — Herr von Kardorff schwimmt „gegen den Strom“.

Wir haben Alle gehört von den Helden der sagenhaften Vorzeit und von ihren Grossthaten im Dienste der Menschheit. Sie verjagten die Räuber, erlegten wilde Thiere und schreckliche Ungeheuer, rotteten Sümpfe und Wälder aus und machten sie urbar, gründeten Städte, Staaten und Colonien, errichteten Tempel und vereinigten die Stämme und Völker durch Einsetzung von gemeinsamen Festspielen. Sie rangen und kämpften für die Cultur, für die Civilisation, und so wurden sie die Lieblinge der Menschen und der Götter; die Menschen erwiesen ihnen göttliche Verehrung, und die Götter machten sie zu ihres Gleichen, verliehen ihnen Unsterblichkeit und ewige Jugend. — Wir kennen auch aus der Griechischen und Römischen Geschichte die Männer, die sich bei Mit- und Nachwelt grosse Ehre, hohen Ruhm erwarben, indem sie Theater, Gymnasien und öffentliche Bäder anlegten, Strassen und Häfen, Kanäle und Brücken, Wasserleitungen und Kloaken erbauten; indem sie Werke schufen, deren Ueberreste noch heute, nach Verlauf von Jahrtausenden, Bewunderung und Staunen erregen.

Solche Culturkämpfer und Helden der Civilisation traten auch neuerdings in Deutschland auf, und unter mächtigen Trompeten- und erderschütternden Posaunenstössen verkündigten sie ihre Pläne und Absichten. Sie wollten die Städte ausbauen und verschönern, die Bedürfnisse und Ansprüche ihrer Mitbürger in jeder Hinsicht befriedigen; sie versprachen gute und billige Wohnungen, allerhand verbesserte Einrichtungen, neue Eisenbahnen, Häfen etc.; sie verhiessen eine reiche Blüthe von Handel und Wandel, einen mächtigen Auf-schwung der gesammten Cultur und der allgemeinen Wohlfahrt.

So wiederholt sich Alles in der Weltgeschichte, und jede Zeit hat ihre grossen Söhne. Nun besteht aber doch zwischen den antiken und den modernen Culturkämpfern ein kleiner Unterschied. Jene erhielten Lohn und Ehre hinterher, erst nach vollbrachter Arbeit; diese waren so vorsichtig, beides gleich vorweg zu nehmen. Jene schufen aus eigenen Mitteln, auf eigene Kosten; diese hatten ihre Hände sofort in den Taschen des Publikums und beutelten dasselbe gründlich aus. Jene verrichteten wirkliche Thaten; diese belassen es meist bei Versprechungen. Jene schufen Werke, die sie noch Jahrhunderte überlebten; diese brachten es in der Regel nur zu Anfängen und Ansätzen, ihre Schöpfungen wurden gar nicht fertig, oder sie liegen schon wieder in Ruinen, in Trümmern und Schutt.

Die Culturkämpfer von heute sind die Gründer; und in diese Kategorie gehören vorzugsweise die Verfasser folgender Gesellschaften, die sich mit einem ebenso grossartigen wie allgemein und unbestimmt gehaltenen Programm einführten, kolossale Summen beanspruchten und zum Theil auch erhielten, aber von den überschwenglichen Verheissungen so gut wie nichts erfüllten, entweder völlig scheiterten und zerschellten, oder doch gegenwärtig gar kläglich auf dem Trocknen sitzen:

Deutsche Baugesellschaft. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Commerzienrath Adalbert Delbrück, Berthold Bensemman und Ad. Levien (Berliner Bankverein), Stadtverordneter Johann Georg Halske, Baron Eduard von der Heydt, Benoit Oppenheim (R. Oppenheim & Sohn), Fr. Meyer (E. J. Meyer), Dr. Mitscha und Ad. Schenk (Wiener Bankverein), Graf Othenio Lichnowsky in Wien. Directoren: Oberbürgermeister a. D. Kieschke und Stadtrath a. D. Risch. Actiencapital 6 Millionen Thaler, mit 70 Procent Einzahlung. März 1872 wurde der 40procentige Interimsschein durch Delbrück, Leo & Co. an die Börse gebracht und mit 48 Thalern bezahlt; heute gilt der 70procentige Interimsschein ca. 15 Thaler. Der ursprüngliche Cours verhält sich also zu dem jetzigen wie 120 zu 21 $\frac{1}{2}$.

Deutsche Eisenbahn-Baugesellschaft. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Reichstagsmitglied Dr. juris Fr. Hammacher in Essen; Consul und ehemaliges Reichstagsmitglied Gustav Müller; Abgeordneter Stadtrath a. D. Adolf Hagen und Director Julius

Weissenburger (Deutsche Unionbank); Theodor Henoch, Carl Coppel; Heinrich Fromberg (Schlesischer Bankverein); Mitteldeutsche Creditbank; Julius Schiff (Gebrüder Schiff); früheres Reichstagsmitglied Edgar Ross in Hamburg; Friedrich Grillo in Essen, Julius May, Kurt Klotz und Gebrüder Sulzbach in Frankfurt a. M.; Internationale Bank und Norddeutsche Bank in Hamburg etc. Directoren: Wirklicher Geh. Ober-Regierungsrath Hartwich, Eisenbahndirector Windthorst und Bau-rath Mellin. Actiencapital 6,138,000 Thaler. Die Actien, gleichzeitig an den Börsen zu Berlin, Breslau, Hamburg und Frankfurt a. M. eingeführt, und bis 120 getrieben, stehen heute ca. 10.

Nicht zu verwechseln mit dieser Gründung ist die Deutsche Eisenbahn-Baugesellschaft zu Frankfurt a. M.; am 13. September 1871 in die Welt gesetzt von den Baronen Rafael von Erlanger, Ludwig von Erlanger und Simon Moritz von Bethmann, den Herren Franz Borgnis, Zacharias Königswarter, Isaak Königswarter und Regierungsrath Fr. Wiesenbach — über deren Thaten schon lange nichts verlautet.

Deutsche Reichs- und Continental-Eisenbahn-

Baugesellschaft. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Baron Carl von Rothschild in Frankfurt; Geh. Commerzienrath Gerson von Bleichröder, Commerzienrath Ritter von Schwabach, Commerzienrath Jacob Landau und Banquier Wilhelm Ledermann in Berlin; Wilhelm Behrens (L. Behrens & Söhne) in Hamburg; Assessor Paul Gaspardt Friedenthal (Breslauer Discontobank); Ritter Theodor von Hornbostl und Ritter Moritz von Goldschmidt in Wien; Rechtsanwalt Hermann Makower; Reichstagsmitglied, Rittergutsbesitzer von Kardorff-Wabnitz; Geh. Legationsrath Graf Hatzfeld-Wildenburg, Kammerherr Baron von Rosenberg, Generaldirector Richter in Berlin. Vorstand: Regierungsbauräthe Adolf Schweitzer und Wilhelm Schultze und Regierungs-Assessor Leo Poschmann. Grundcapital 10 Millionen Thaler, worauf 40 Procent eingezahlt. Der 40procentige Interimsschein, zunächst mit 55 bis 65 Thalern bezahlt, notirt heute ca. 10 Thaler; was also einem Coursverhältniss von 160 zu 25 entspricht.

Baugesellschaft für Eisenbahn-Unternehmungen, F. Plessner & Co. Gründer: Banquier Jacob Löb Eltzbacher in Cöln, Geh. Commerzien-räthe Albert Borsig und Paul Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, Commerzienrath Adalbert Delbrück, Banquiers Ferd. Güterbock und Julius Alexander, Baumeister Carl David Schultze und Ferd. Plessner, Bank-Agent Theodor Hertel, Landrath Ernst Otto Schubarth, Justizrath John Simson, Geh. Oberbau-rath a. D. Eduard Koch in Magdeburg. Actien-capital schliesslich $4\frac{1}{2}$ Millionen Thaler. Die Gesellschaft ist bankerott. Die einst bis 180 getriebenen Actien sind völlig werthlos; und ist es ein wahrer Unfug, dass sie trotzdem von der Börse noch immer notirt werden.

General-Baubank. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Baron Oscar von Reinach und Baron Ludwig von Erlanger in Frankfurt a. M.; Commerzienrath Victor Ludwig Wrede, Banquiers Paul Gravenstein und Adolf Abel, Carl Schlesinger (Ostdeutsche Bank), Geh. Regierungs- und Bau-rath a. D. von Derschau, Regierungs- und Baurath Friedrich Keil, Baumeister Heinrich Meske, Josef Herborn und Carl Fischer, Gerichts-Assessor a. D. Hermann Löwenfeld etc. Actiencapital 3 Millionen Thaler, mit 40 Procent Einzahlung. Die Gesellschaft befindet sich in Liquidation.

Imperial-Grunderwerb- und Bauvereins-Bank.

Gründer: Ephraim Aren in Stettin, Emil Landé, Gabriel Landsberger, Carl Görke, Carl Brüning, Alexander Lodomez, Rentier Gottfried Fromm, Verlagsbuchhändler Albert Cohn, Weinhändler Ferdinand Wutsdorff, Dr. Eduard Krause, Banquier Dr. Hermann Grünfeldt in Dresden, Bauunternehmer Friedrich Klinitz in Charlottenburg, Banquier Joh. Gottfried Schulz in Schwerin, Joh. Ed. Langhans in Hamburg, Rittergutsbesitzer Heinrich Hermann etc. Directoren: Banquier Emil Loeckel, Stadtrath a. D. Theodor Risch. Die Gesellschaft kam erst nach dem „Krach“ und nach langen Wehen zu Stande, kaufte eine Reihe von Grundstücken und suchte sie mit eigenen Actien zu bezahlen, was auch vielfach glückte. Dem Unternehmen begegnete, wie „Saling's Börsenpapiere“ Theil IV, 4. Auflage, bemerken, von vorne herein wenig Vertrauen und nach ein paar Monaten drohte es bereits zusammenzubrechen. Verschiedene Grundstücke wurden subhastirt. Actiencapital nicht weniger als 19 Millionen Thaler!! Cours? — Gegen Rittergutsbesitzer Hermann schwebte ein Untersuchungsverfahren, das aber auch im Sande verlaufen zu sein scheint.

Cuxhavener Eisenbahn-, Dampfschiff- und Hafen-Actien-Gesellschaft. Gründer resp. erste Zeichner: Baron Victor von Magnus, Geh. Commerzienrath Paul Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, Reichstagsmitglied Dr. Braun-Wiesbaden, Dr. Julius Faucher, Stadtrath Albert Löwe, Geh. Regierungsrath Dr. Esse, Corvetten-Capitain z. D. Olberg, Gustav Kutter in Berlin; A. N. Zacharias, Rob. M. Sloman, J. E. Langhans (J. Greve & Co.), G. W. Reye und Reichstagsmitglied Gustav Adolf Schön in Hamburg; J. H. Hagenah in Stade etc. Actiencapital 20 Millionen Thaler, wovon zunächst 8 Millionen emittirt wurden. Die Actien sollten bis zur Vollendung des mehr als grossartigen Unternehmens 6 Procent „Bauzinsen“ geniessen. Cours?

Gleichzeitig mit dieser Gesellschaft und im innigen Anschluss an dieselbe entstand die Cuxhavener Immobilien-Gesellschaft, und waren hier die Verfasser, ausser den schon genannten Jürgen Heinrich Hagenah, G. A. Schön, Joh. Ed. Langhans — die Herren Charles Ernst David, R. A. Seelig und Eduard Stahlschmidt (Hermann Geber). Grund-Capital 1,200,000

Thaler. In Betreff des Courses kann man in „Saling's Börsenpapieren“ lesen: „Es ist wiederholt der Versuch gemacht worden, die Actionen in den Börsen-Berichten als „gehandelt“ auftreten zu lassen.“ — — —

Alle diese Gründungen hatten auf ihre Fahne mit riesengrossen Lettern den Culturkampf geschrieben; und wir wollen nun berichten von ihren Kämpfen und Erfolgen, von ihren Leiden und Schicksalen.

Die Deutsche Baugesellschaft*) war bei der Gründung, wie dies aus den Mittheilungen an die Börsenblätter hervorgeht, über ihren eigentlichen Zweck sich nicht recht klar, und verfolgte dann gleichzeitig eine Menge von Projecten. Sie wollte die Ackerstrasse und die Marienstrasse durchlegen, und legte auch wirklich die Vossstrasse nach dem Thiergarten durch. Sie „betheiligte“ sich bei verschiedenen Bauunternehmungen und Terrain-Speculationen in Berlin und ausserhalb, und half zwei andere Baugesellschaften gründen: die „Hôtel-Gesellschaft“*) und die „Action-Gesellschaft für Bauausführungen“. Sie gedachte endlich — und das war die Hauptsache — in Berlin zwölf bedeckte

*) Vgl. S. 169 ff.

Markthallen zu erbauen, als Ersatz für die auf öffentlichen Plätzen stattfindenden Wochenmärkte.

Die Idee war nicht neu, sondern bereits einmal gescheitert. Schon im Jahre 1867 erhielt Berlin durch Strousberg eine Markthalle am Schiffbauerdamm, aber das Vergnügen dauerte nur sieben Monate, und endigte dann aus Mangel an Theilnahme, wegen Abneigung des Publikums wie der Verkäufer. Ein Kunstreiter pachtete später die pensionirte Markthalle und verwandelte sie in einen Circus. Trotz dieser üblen Erfahrung wollte die Deutsche Baugesellschaft zwölf neue Markthallen errichten; und der Magistrat, der seit Herrn Oberbürgermeister Hobrecht sehr zu Experimenten und kostspieligen Neuerungen neigt, war flink dabei; ja er war sogar bereit, sich an der neuen Markthallen-Actien-Gesellschaft mit einem Zehntel des Capitals zu betheiligen. Auch der Polizei-Präsident, Herr von Wurmb, hatte seine Zustimmung gegeben; aber dessen Nachfolger, Herr von Madai, erhob Bedenken. Er fürchtete, und mit Recht, dass solche Ueberlassung der Marktstätten an eine Privatgesellschaft führen könne zur Monopolisirung des Marktverkehrs, zur Verdrängung der Producenten durch Zwischenhändler, und so zur Vertheuerung sämmtlicher Lebensmittel. Das Ministerium legte schliesslich sein Veto ein, und das Markthallen-Project fiel, zur Freude und höchst wahrscheinlich auch zum Gewinne des Publikums.

Die Deutsche Baugesellschaft aber stand mit einer Menge von aufgekauften Grundstücken da, und der inzwischen eingetretene „Krach“ verleidete ihr auch die Lust zu allen andern Unternehmungen. „Sie wartet bessere Zeiten ab“, und beschränkt sich, wie der „Lindenbauverein“, auf das Vermiethen der zahlreichen Häuser. Leider ist dieses Abwarten und Sichbeschränken für die Actionäre recht kostspielig. Wiewol die Deutsche Baugesellschaft seit zwei Jahren feiert, hat sie doch an Handlungsunkosten pro 1873 — 42,000 Thaler, pro 1874 — 30,000 Thaler, davon an Gehältern 21,888 Thaler und resp. 15,820 Thaler verausgabt. Die „Generalversammlung“ hat diese erstaunlichen Handlungsunkosten, diese splendiden Gehälter und die aus wenigen summarischen Posten bestehende geheimnissvolle Bilanz — der Grundbesitz ist einfach mit 5,791,000 Thaler angegeben — sonder Anstand genehmigt: denn 50 Actien geben erst Eine Stimme.

Noch viel kläglicher steht da, noch weit ärger verspeculirt hat sich die Deutsche Eisenbahn-

Baugesellschaft. Nach ihrer Ansicht litt das Deutsche Eisenbahnnetz an vielen Lücken; und sie ging nun daran, diese Lücken auszufüllen. Ihre Unternehmungen waren bald so zahlreich und so mannigfach, dass das ursprüngliche Capital von 5 Millionen Thaler weitaus nicht zureichte. Man beschloss, dasselbe auf 20 Millionen zu erhöhen; aber nur noch 138,000 Thaler fanden Abnahme, und weitere 1,000,000 Thaler wurden an ein Consortium verkauft.

Im Uebrigen erzielte die Gesellschaft, nach dem letzten Geschäftsbericht, folgende Resultate: 1) Von dem Bau der-Holländisch-Westfälischen Eisenbahn trat sie zurück mit einem Verlust von 126,000 Thaler. 2) Das Project der Niederrheinisch-Westfälischen Kohlenrevierbahn liess sie fallen mit einem Schaden von 145,000 Thaler. 3) Bei dem Bau der Unstrutbahn (Naumburg-Artern) verlor sie 160,000 Thaler. 4) Bei der Concession für die Lemförde-Bergheimer Bahn büsste sie ein 263,000 Thaler und wahrscheinlich auch die bestellte Caution mit 300,000 Thaler. 5) Das Project der Berliner Südwestbahn kostete ihr 105,000 Thaler. 6) Der beabsichtigte Betrieb der Touage auf der Oder, der gleichfalls verunglückte, liess ihr auf dem Halse zwei Tauer-Dampfer und ein 6 Meilen langes Drahtseil.

7) Ausserdem besitzt sie eine Menge sehr theuer erworbener Grundstücke in Berlin, Charlottenburg, Dortmund, Essen etc., die zu Buch stehen mit $11\frac{1}{2}$ Millionen Thaler (!!) und hypothekarisch belastet sind mit $6\frac{1}{2}$ Millionen Thaler (!!!). Arme betrogene Actionäre, was sagt Ihr zu dieser Speisekarte?! — Selbstverständlich legte der Wirkliche Geheime Ober-Regierungsrath Hartwich die Direction, die er, wie damals die Blätter meldeten, mit specieller Erlaubniss des Reichskanzlers übernommen hatte, nach solchen Erfolgen nieder.

Der Deutschen Baugesellschaft wollte der Magistrat bei dem Markthallen-Project zu Hülfe kommen, aber die Regierung litt es nicht: der Deutschen Eisenbahn-Baugesellschaft dagegen sprang die Regierung, auf den Schmerzensschrei der Herren Hammacher und Genossen, selber bei. Während die Manchesterleute sonst gegen jede „Staatshülfe“ zetern, bettelten sie hier um Staatshülfe, und der Staat erbarmte sich ihrer.

Die Deutsche Eisenbahn-Baugesellschaft vermochte die projectirte Südwestbahn nicht zu bauen, und sie musste auch auf den Bau der Berliner Stadtbahn verzichten, für welche sie eben eine Masse von Grundstücken in der theuersten Zeit erworben hatte. Auf ihr Betreiben bildete sich nun zum Zweck der „Stadtbahn“ eine besondere Actiengesellschaft mit einem Grundcapital von 16 Millionen Thaler, welcher auch die Regierung mit 7 Millionen beitrug. Von den restlichen 9 Millionen zeichneten 5 Millionen die Berlin-Potsdam-Magdeburger, die Magdeburg-Halberstädter und die Berlin-Hamburger Bahn, und 4 Millionen die Deutsche Eisenbahn-Baugesellschaft, welcher die neue Stadtbahn-Gesellschaft jetzt einen Theil der Grundstücke in Berlin und Charlottenburg zu einem Preise, „zehn Procent unter dem Buchwerth“, abnahm; das bedeutet hier, zu einem unverantwortlich hohen Preise, der den wirklichen Werth der Grundstücke vielleicht um das Doppelte übersteigt. Dieses „Geschäft“ war der eigentliche Kern der Association; bei welcher merkwürdigerweise auch die Herren Consul Gustav Müller und Banquier Julius Schiff — zwei be-mooste Gründer — figuriren.

Als die Vorlage an das Abgeordnetenhaus kam, stiess sie hier auf scharfen Widerspruch, und der Handelsminister gerieth merklich in Verlegenheit. von Kirchmann, Hoppe, Lasker und Virchow traten nach einander in die Schranken und führten Folgendes aus: Die Vorlage habe hauptsächlich den Zweck, einer bankerotten Gesellschaft zu Hülfe zu kommen; und die Regierung setze sich dem Vorwurf aus, dass sie Geld habe für verunglückte Speculanten, aber nicht für nothleidende Arbeiter. Weil bereits die Verbindungsbahn bestehe, sei die neue Stadtbahn gar kein Bedürfniss, und überdies erfülle sie nicht entfernt den eigentlichen Zweck, da sie kein Netz, nur eine Linie bilde. Sie werde und könne sich nie rentiren, und die sieben Millionen, welche der Staat beisteuere, seien vorweg à fonds perdus zu schreiben.

So schlagend diese Einwände auch waren, sie fruchteten nichts. Herr Miquel, der Verbündete der Disconto-Gesellschaft und der Führer des Hauses, gab sein „Urtheil“ dahin ab: Die Gelegenheit ist günstig, und wenn der Staat sie versäumt, kann das Unternehmen später nicht allein das Doppelte, nein, das Zehnfache kosten. — Nach Herrn Miquel war also nicht ein Fallen, sondern noch ein Steigen der Grundstücke in und um Berlin zu erwarten! — Mit grosser Majorität, nur gegen die Stimmen der vier Opponenten, wurde die Vorlage genehmigt.

Weit ungnädiger, weit härter bewiesen sich Handelsminister und Abgeordnetenhaus, als es sich um Uebernahme der durch die Lasker'schen „Enthüllungen“ in so üblen Ruf gekommenen Pommerschen Centralbahn und Berliner Nordbahn handelte. Hier glaubte man auf die Actionäre, die Alles verloren haben, nicht die geringste Rücksicht nehmen zu dürfen; hier wurden die bestellten Cautionen ohne Erbarmen eingezogen. Herr Kieschke, der Mitgründer des Kaiserhofs und der Vater des Markthallenprojects, declamirte gegen „Staats-hülfe“ und gegen Schädigung des Nationalvermögens. Herr Eugen Richter, der gefeierte Finanzgelehrte des Hauses, der aber — was billig auffallen muss — bisher noch nie ein Wort gegen das Treiben der Gründer und Börsianer hatte; der im Gegentheil diesen Leuten bei Gründung der Bamberger'schen „Reichsbank“ auch seinerseits hülfreiche Hand leistete — Herr Eugen Richter sang jetzt das alte abgeleierte Lied vom Geheimrath Wagener und vom Fürsten Putbus, als ob er aus dem Heer der Gründer nur diese beiden Dilettanten kenne.

Hier waren nicht 7 Millionen, sondern nur $2\frac{3}{4}$ Millionen verlangt, und dazu für ein Object, das, wie Herr von Benda bemerkte, einen ungleich höhern Bauwerth und mindestens den gleichen Abbruchswerth repräsentirt; hier handelte es sich um keinen fragwürdigen Neubau, sondern um Vollendung zweier Bahnen, von denen die nach Neu-Brandenburg und Stralsund fruchtbare Kreise durchschneidet, und jedenfalls ein langjähriges Bedürfniss ist. Dennoch wäre die Vorlage kaum durchgegangen, hätte man nicht gewusst, dass hinter ihr der entschiedene Wille des Fürsten Bismarck und resp. des Kaisers stehe.

Kommen wir noch einmal auf die Deutsche Eisenbahn-Baugesellschaft zurück, so hat ihr die Unterstützung der Regierung nicht viel geholfen. Auch nach Abtretung der nöthigen Grundstücke an die Stadtbahn, bleibt ihr noch immer ein grosser kostspieliger Besitz, ein wahrer Ballast, der ihr den Athem benimmt, der sie früher oder später erdrücken wird. Und in Betreff der „Stadtbahn“ selber ist die Prophezeiung des Abgeordneten von Kirchmann nur zu schnell eingetroffen. Noch ist nicht einmal endgültig die Linie gezogen, und schon überschreitet der „vorläufige Kostentwurf“ den ursprünglichen Anschlag um $2\frac{1}{2}$ Millionen Thaler. Der wirkliche Bau aber wird, wie Sachverständige versichern, sich noch weit höher stellen, und der Staat kann sich auf einen hübschen Zuschuss gefasst machen.

Die Deutsche Reichs- und Continental-Eisenbahn-Baugesellschaft hat sich, trotz der ellenlangen Firma, nur mit zwei Bahnen versucht:

Weimar-Gera und Posen-Creutzburg; und beide Versuche waren nicht glücklich. Ausserdem erwarb sie, was jedenfalls sehr überflüssig war, die Königin Marienhütte zu Kainsdorf bei Zwickau, welche den Actionären gut $2\frac{3}{4}$ Millionen Thaler kostet, und pro 1874 einen Reingewinn von etwa $\frac{3}{4}$ Procent (!) gebracht hat. Die Gesellschaft vertheilte regelmässig Dividenden, wiewol ihre Einnahmen hauptsächlich in Zinsen der disponiblen Fonds, also des eigenen Capitals bestanden: pro 1873 — 8 Procent, sowie dem „Aufsichtsrath“ 49,000 Thaler Tantième (!); pro 1874 — 4 Procent.

Posen-Creutzburg ist eine Bahn, über deren Berechtigung und Erspriesslichkeit starke Zweifel herrschen. Sie läuft mit ihren 27 Meilen neben der Russischen Grenze hin, berührt lauter kleine Orte und verkürzt den alten Schienenweg über Breslau um ein sehr Geringes. Posen-Creutzburg gehört zu den Bahnen, mit welchen sich in Folge der Lasker'schen „Enthüllungen“ die Special-Untersuchungs-Commission befasste; und der sonst sehr zahme Bericht findet hier doch mancherlei ausser aller Ordnung.

Herr von Kardorff-Wabnitz ist Gründer und Aufsichtsrath der Bahn, und zugleich Gründer und

Aufsichtsrath der Deutschen Reichs- und Continental-Eisenbahn-Baugesellschaft, welche die Bahn baut. Die Baugesellschaft wurde überhaupt nur zum Zwecke der Bahn gegründet, und erhielt den Bau in General-Entreprise. Man überliess ihr das gesammte Actien-capital im Nennwerthe von 12 Millionen Thaler; aus dem Erlös sollte sie sich bezahlt machen, und ausserdem an die Actionäre bis zum 1. Juli 1875 fünf Procent „Bauzinsen“ gewähren. Als Dritter in diesem schönen Bunde existirt noch das Finanzconsortium, ein Verein von Bankhäusern (S. Bleichröder, Jacob Landau etc.), welche die Actien zum Course von 73 (also mit 27 Procent Abzug) versilberten, und die Auszahlung der „Bauzinsen“ übernahmen; letzteres gegen die kleine Vergütung von 650,000 Thaler!

Zwischen den drei Consortien wurden die Kreuz und die Quer verschiedene Verträge, allgemeine und separate, officiële und geheime, geschlossen, und sie bewilligten einander die Kreuz und die Quer eine Reihe erklecklicher „Provisionen“ oder Trinkgelder. Herr von Kardorff war als Gründer und Aufsichtsrath der Bahn und zugleich als Gründer und Aufsichtsrath der Baugesellschaft mehrere Mal in der interessanten Lage, mit sich selber zu contrahiren. Diese Doppelstellung wurde vom Königlichen Eisenbahn-Commissariat für „unzulässig“ erachtet, worüber Herr von Kardorff sich beschwerte; indess hielt auch der Handelsminister die Entscheidung „aufrecht“. Und Herr von Kardorff wird wieder noch in Schatten gestellt von dem Commerzienrath Jacob Landau, welcher sonder Verlegenheit in allen drei Consortien sass, zugleich dem Aufsichtsrath der Bahn, der Baugesellschaft und dem Finanzcomité angehörte, also bei jedem Vertrage dreimal in Einer Person fungirte!

Das „Finanzconsortium“ hat natürlich den grössten Schnitt gemacht; ausser der Provision für Auszahlung der „Bauzinsen“ mit 650,000 Thaler, verdiente es bei Versilberung der Actien durchschnittlich 4 bis 5 Procent, das heisst nochmals 5 bis 600,000 Thaler. Von wirklichen Einzahlungen auf die Actien ist, bis auf die Zeichnungen der betreffenden Kreise, welche die Bahn durchschneidet — und diese Zeichnungen betragen etwa ein Zehntel des Grundcapitals — nicht die Rede gewesen; und die Generalversammlung der Actionäre wie der Handelsrichter wurden auf Grund des famosen Actiengesetzes in bester Form getäuscht.

Wie erstaunlich war es nun, Herrn von Kardorff am 10. Juni 1875 im Abgeordnetenhaus zu hören, wie er plötzlich die Regierung anklagte, sie habe das Gründungstreiben und die Ueberspeculation begünstigt. Dieser Vorwurf ist neuerdings von den Gründern mehrfach erhoben, natürlich um sich in etwas zu reinigen; aber er ist doch nicht so ganz ohne. Herr von Kardorff wies auf die traurige Lage unserer Industrie hin, welche die Wirthschafts-Politik der Regierung mitverschulde; er bemerkte ganz richtig, dass die gegenwärtige Krisis noch im Steigen begriffen sei, und seine Rede gipfelte in den denkwürdigen Worten: Ich hielt es für nothwendig, vor dem Lande zu erklären, dass wenigstens einige Leute sich um diese Fragen bekümmern. (Allgemeine Bewegung!)

Herr von Kardorff kehrte sich namentlich gegen den Finanzminister Camphausen, den er „zum Theil als den intellectuellen Urheber unserer wirthschaftlichen Verirrungen“ betrachte. Auf Veranlassung des Finanzministers hatte die Seehandlung im Jahre 1872, während des Gründungsschwindels, der Disconto-Gesellschaft aus den Beständen des Staatsschatzes drei Millionen Thaler gegen $2\frac{3}{4}$ Procent Zinsen und ohne Unterlage geliehen. Allerdings ein starkes Stück, das sogar die Oberrechnungskammer bemängelte, und das nun Herrn von Kardorff zu seiner Philippika reizte. Er bezeichnete die Existenz der Seehandlung als eine verfassungswidrige; er warf ihr vor, dass sie Geschäfte mache, die eines Staatsinstituts unwürdig seien, dass sie jede Bankpolitik gefährde und den Geldverkehr überhaupt durchkreuze. Er verkündigte für die nächste Session einen Antrag auf Aufhebung der Seehandlung.

Im Parlament wie im Publikum schüttelte man die Köpfe und fragte: was bedeutet das? — Nun es bedeutet, dass die grosse Discontogesellschaft und das grosse Haus S. Bleichröder, die sonst immer so hübsch mit einander gehen, sich irgendwie veruneinigt haben; oder doch, dass jenes riesige Darlehn, gegen so geringen Zinsfuss und ohne jede Sicherheit, den Neid und die Eifersucht von S. Bleichröder erweckt hat. Beide grossen Häuser haben im Reichstag wie im Landtag ihren Vertreter; die Discontogesellschaft hat ihren Miquel, und S. Bleichröder hat seinen von Kardorff.

Jene Philippika bedeutet, dass die Seehandlung den grossen Financiers ein Dorn im Auge ist, und dass sie allernächstens aus der Welt geschafft werden soll, nachdem sie in den letzten Jahren schon verschiedentlich beschnitten wurde. „Der Staat darf nicht Industrie noch Handel treiben“, ist die ewige Predigt der Manchesterleute; und sie haben ein Staats-Institut nach dem andern zu beseitigen gewusst. Die Seehandlung musste die Erdmannsdorfer Spinnerei verkaufen, welche dann Robert Thode & Co. und Richard Schweder in eine Gründung verwandelten, deren Actien heute ca. 20 notiren. Die Seehandlung muss auch die bisher Königlichen Leihämter in Berlin aufgeben, damit der kleine Mann den Vampyren der Pfandleiher und Rückkaufswucherer völlig überliefert werde.*)

*) Die Königlichen Leihämter sollten der Stadt Berlin überlassen werden, aber der Magistrat hat sich wiederholt gegen die Uebernahme erklärt. Der Hochweise Magistrat betrachtet die Sache einfach als „Geschäft“, und wiewol sonst nichts weniger als sparsam und wirthschaftlich, findet er dieses „Geschäft“ nicht „rentabel“ genug. Er leugnet sogar, dass ein Bedürfniss vorliegt, meint vielmehr, dass die Leihämter nur der Lüderlichkeit und Vergnügungssucht der untern Classen Vorschub leisten. — — Die „Väter der Stadt“ scheinen nicht zu wissen, dass der Arme in der Regel nach dem Leihhaus wandert, um sich und seiner Familie das Leben zu fristen, ja auch wol, um den Steuererheber zu befriedigen. Zu allen Zeiten ist das Leihhaus die Bank und fast die einzige Zuflucht der kleinen Leute; aber gegenwärtig, wo ein allgemeiner Nothstand herrscht und immer bedrohlicher anwächst, werden die Leihämter auch bereits von den Mittelclassen stark angegangen.

Die Stadtverordneten traten dem Beschlusse des Magistrats bei. Nur 22 Stimmen waren für Uebernahme der Leihämter, 43 dagegen. Zur Majorität gehörten eine Schaar von Juden, Gründern und Gründergenossen, sowie die beiden Abgeordneten Virchow und Richter. Herr Eugen Richter, der grosse Volkstribun, that gelassen den Ausspruch: die Leihämter dienen vorzugsweise

Nachdem die Preussische Bank, die theilweise ein Staatsinstitut war, glücklich in die „Reichsbank“ umgewandelt worden, die eine reine Actiengesellschaft ist; nachdem die „Meistbetheiligten“ der Preussischen Bank — das sind die grossen Financiers, die Matadore der Börsianer und Gründer — mit Hülfe der Herren Ludwig Bamberger und Genossen glücklich zu „Reichsbank-Antheilseignern“ erhoben sind, und damit jede Concurrenz todt gemacht ist, soll nun auch das dem Leichtsinn. Dagegen plaidirte er im Reichstag für die Eisenbahn-Gesellschaften, denen er zu Lasten des Postfiscus ein artiges Geschenk zuwenden wollte; worauf der General-Postmeister ihm entrüstet zurief: Das Reichsfass soll wieder einmal angezapft werden! Herr Richter meinte: wenn nicht Reichsfass, dann Publikum; und schien nicht abgeneigt, selbst eine Erhöhung der Portotaxen zu bewilligen. Aus diesen Vorgängen wollen „Staatsbürger-Zeitung“ und andere Blätter den Schluss ziehen, dass Herr Richter sich zu sehr für das Klein- wie für das Grosswucherthum begeistere; und drohen, wenn er diese Leidenschaft nicht zügele, ihn kalt zu stellen.

Gegen den Beschluss von Magistrat und Stadtverordneten, also für Uebernahme der Leibämter haben sich die meisten Bezirksvereine erklärt, und sich dadurch in der öffentlichen Meinung wieder etwas rehabilitirt. Auch die „Vossische“ und andere Zeitungen traten, zu Gunsten der armen Leute, warm für Erhaltung der Leibämter ein. Gegen dieselben, als „unvolkswirthschaftlich“, eiferten u. A. die „Tribüne“ und die „Volkszeitung“ des Herrn Franz Duncker, das echt demokratische „Organ für Jedermann“; dessen Redakteur, Herr Sachse, in öffentlichen Vorträgen ebenso entschieden die Börsensteuer bekämpfte.

letzte Bankinstitut fallen, welches der Preussische Staat noch besitzt — die Seehandlung.

Herr von Kardorff, ein vielseitiger Charakter, ist aus einem Saulus jüngst ein Paulus geworden; hat seinen Freunden, den Manchesterleuten, in Form einer Brochüre den Absagebrief geschrieben. Das Schriftchen ist, wie eine Zeitungsreclame meldet, „gegen den radicalen Freihandel gerichtet, welcher wol Speditoren und reichen Zwischenhändlern Vorthelle in die Hände spielt, in seinen Consequenzen aber zu den ungünstigsten Handelsbilanzen, dem Ruine zahlreicher einheimischer Industriezweige und dadurch zur Verarmung eines grossen Theiles des Arbeiterstandes führen muss“. — Herr von Kardorff hat diese menschenfreundliche Brochüre höchst pathetisch „Gegen den Strom!“ genannt; aber wir glauben nicht, dass der Verfasser, sonst ein so praktischer Mann, im Ernst gegen den Strom schwimmen wollte. Nein, er merkt, dass von Varzin her ein anderer Wind weht; er meint, dass die Manchesterleute in der Regierung, namentlich die Herren Camphausen, Delbrück und Michaelis zu wackeln anfangen, und darum nimmt Herr von Kardorff mit Grazie seinen Rückzug — denn ein leckes Schiff verlassen die Ratten.

XI.

Noch die Culturkämpfer.

Was ist die „General-Entreprise“? — Strousberg und seine Jünger — Ferdinand Plessner und Landrath Schubarth — Ein klassischer Bankerott — „Pfandgläubiger“ und Gründerverdienste — Rechtsanwalt Krönig und Baumeister Gotthelmer accordiren — Herr Lasker inquirirt Herrn Plessner — Ferdinand Plessner „verrechnet“ sich und geht unter die Schriftsteller — Was er seinen Gläubigern bietet — Berlin-Dresdener Eisenbahn — General-Baubank — 2500 Thaler Trinkgeld und 27 Groschen Dividende — Herr Gerichts-Assessor a. D. Hermann Löwenfeld — Elbinger Eisenbahnbedarf — Geheimrath Moritz Simon und Frau Strousberg — Eisenbahngesellschaft Erfurt-Hof-Eger — Herr Löwenfeld antwortet Herrn Lasker — Gründer-Dialektik und Gründer-Moral — Lasker's Reden und der „Krach“ — Herr Ludwig Bamberger legt sich auf's Weissagen — Die „Volkswirthe“ halten Lasker an den Rockschössen zurück — Die Gründer und Gründergenossen im Parlament — Lasker's Diplomatie und seine „verehrten Freunde“ — Die Hölle lacht — Hoher Cours der Ehrlichkeit — Warum soll Lasker nicht Minister werden? — Excellenz Delbrück überrascht den Reichstag mit einem Witz — Herr von Kardorff warnt vor „Popularitätshascherei“, nennt die Börse den „Magen im staatlichen Organismus“, und vergleicht Lasker mit Robespierre — Herr Sonnemann klagt an, Herr von Bennigsen entschuldigt sich, und Lasker erklärt den Gründern von Neuem den Krieg. — Die Bahn Harburg-Stade und Dr. Braun-Wiesbaden — Cuxhavener Eisenbahn-, Dampfschiff- und Hafen-Actiengesellschaft — Jürgen Heinrich Hagenah, der „General-Entrepreneur“ — Cuxhavener Immobilien-Gesellschaft — Der Hamburger Staatsanwalt und seine Collegen in Preussen — „Verschleierungen“ — Ein Präjudiz des Preussischen Obertribunals — Was die „Schöpfungen“ der Culturkämpfer eigentlich zu bedeuten haben.

„General-Entreprise“ und „in Regie bauen“ sind Gegensätze. Eine Bahn wird „in Regie“ gebaut, wenn sie die betreffende Gesellschaft selber und mit baarem Gelde baut. Bei der „General-Entreprise“ dagegen wird nicht nur die ganze Ausführung des Baus, sondern auch das Beschaffen des Bahnkörpers, der Ankauf der Terrains einem General-Unternehmer überlassen, und die Gesellschaft bezahlt ihn mit Papier, mit ihren Actien, die er nun verwerthen mag. Er kann sie nur verwerthen an der Börse, mit Hülfe von Banken und Bankhäusern, die sie ihm entweder lombardiren (beleihen), oder zu einem bestimmten Course, natürlich stets unter Pari (100), abnehmen, und dann das Publikum damit beglücken. Der General-Unternehmer erleidet bei Versilberung der Actien einen Verlust, der sich auf 20, 30, ja 50 und mehr Procent stellt; ferner muss er die Gründer der Bahn abfinden, denen er Trinkgelder, „Provisionen“ geheissen, von Hunderttausenden oder gar Millionen zahlt; und endlich hat er den Actionären Jahre lang „Bauzinsen“ zu gewähren.

Selbstverständlich wird mit Rücksicht auf diese Ausfälle und Abzüge das Actiencapital möglichst hoch gegriffen, so hoch als die Staatsregierung es nur gestattet. Die Gründer dingen und feilschen förmlich mit der Regierung, und wissen sie durch eine Menge von Piffen und Kniffen regelmässig zu täuschen; oder sie setzen eine nachträgliche Erhöhung des Actienapi-tals durch. Eine Bahn, die in „General-Entreprise“ gegeben wird, kostet den Actionären gewöhnlich noch einmal so viel als eine solche, die „in Regie“ gebaut wird; und ihre Ausführung ist weit unsolider. Der General-Unternehmer sucht bei den Materialien wie bei den Arbeiten nach Möglichkeit zu sparen; und da er seine Agenten, Lieferanten, Handwerker etc., wenigstens zum Theil, auch mit Actien bezahlt, stellen diese die höchsten Preise und leisten dafür das Allernothdürftigste.

Die „General-Entreprise“, wie man sieht, ein ebenso unreelles wie unmoralisches Verfahren, wurde von Strousberg erfunden; oder eigentlich, da sie in England und Frankreich schon früher bestand, von ihm nach Deutschland verpflanzt. Strousberg war lange Jahre der Günstling des Preussischen Handelsministers, des arglosen Grafen Itzenplitz. Als dieser aber das wahre Wesen der „General-Entreprise“ endlich errieth, wurde der „Eisenbahnkönig“ ihm unangenehm; und es ist nun fast komisch zu sehen, wie der Minister bei spätern Eisenbahn-Concessionen sich den grossen „Doctor“ ausdrücklich verbittet; wie aber trotzdem auch dann noch hinterher fast immer wieder Strousberg oder doch die „General-Entreprise“ zum Vorschein kommen.

Denn im Laufe der Zeit hatte sich das „System Strousberg“ zu einer Schule ausgebildet, und der „Culturheros“ fand Nachahmer und Concurrenten.

Ein solcher Generalunternehmer war auch der Baumeister Ferdinand Plessner; der im Wege der „General-Entreprise“ eine Reihe von Bahnen baute; sich im März 1870 von Löb Eltzbacher, Mendelssohn-Bar-
tholdy, Albert Borsig, Adalbert Delbrück, Ferdinand Güterbock, Julius Alexander, Theodor Hertel und Genossen in eine „Commanditgesellschaft auf Actien“ verwandeln liess, und damit den Titel „Bau-Director“ annahm. Das Unternehmen galt für solide und vielverheissend, die Actien stiegen bis 180, wurden von den Banquiers in gutem Glauben ihren Kunden empfohlen, und vom Publikum mit Vorliebe genommen. Man erhöhte das Actiencapital von ursprünglich $1\frac{1}{2}$ auf 3
und dann auf $4\frac{1}{2}$ Millionen Thaler, und vertheilte
in den Jahren 1870 bis 1872 — 5, 11 und resp.
14 Procent Dividende. Nach dieser Glanzperiode schied der zweite Gesellschafter, Landrath a. D. Schubarth aus*), und es traten für ihn ein Rechtsanwalt Krönig

*) Landrath Schubarth trat als Director zur Rheinischen Baugesellschaft in Cöln über, von der auch nur Trübes zu melden ist. Dieselbe wurde im März 1872 aus der Taufe

Glagau, Der Börsenschwindel.

aus Herford und Baumeister Gottheiner. Mit den Dividenden war es vorbei, und im Januar 1875 musste der Conkurs eröffnet werden.

Die Activa der Masse betragen ca. $\frac{1}{2}$ Million, die Passiva ca. $9\frac{1}{2}$ Millionen Thaler. Von den Passivis oder Schulden sind aber durch Pfänder gedeckt ca. 4 Millionen Thaler, und zu den glücklichen Pfandgläubigern gehören auch die Mitgründer Men-gehoben von: A. & L. Camphausen, Advocat-Anwalt Robert Esser II, Justizrath Herbertz, von Kauffmann-Asser, Director E. Königs (Schaaffhausen'scher Bankverein), W. Rautenstrauch & Co., Heinrich Stein in Cöln; Consul G. Gebhard in Elberfeld, Commerzienrath A. Heimendahl in Crefeld; Generaldirector M. Neuenburg in Kalk; Oberbaurath Schmidt in Wien und Stadtrath a. D. Abgeordneten Adolf Hagen (Deutsche Unionbank) in Berlin. Der Prospect versprach Alles, und der Vorstand leistete Vieles. Man kaufte zu den höchsten Preisen Häuser und Grundstücke in Cöln, Coblenz, Aachen, Barmen, Solingen, Brüssel, Kissingen, Chemnitz, Berlin etc. etc. Man machte in Bergwerken, Marmorgruben und Steinbrüchen; man „betheiligte“ sich an Terraingeschäften und allerhand Speculationen, bei denen etliche der Herren Aufsichtsräthe persönlich interessirt sein sollen; man übernahm faule Actien und machte Schulden. Der Schaaffhausen'sche Bankverein, welcher zu den Gründern gehörte, wurde Gläubiger der Gesellschaft und kündigte ein Guthaben von 200,000 Thaler. Das Actien-capital von 3 Millionen Thaler wurde mit 40 Procent Einzahlung zum Course von 108 (oder eigentlich 120) aufgelegt, wobei die Gründer von vorne herein baare 240,000 Thaler einstrichen. Zur Zeit notirt der einst mit 48 Thalern bezogene Interimsschein 2 oder 1 Brief! — —

delssohn & Co., Delbrück, Leo & Co. Die andern Gläubiger haben etwa 10 Procent, unter Umständen auch nur $3\frac{1}{2}$ Procent zu erwarten. Der Concur ist wahrscheinlich viel zu spät angemeldet; jedenfalls hätte die Gesellschaft liquidiren müssen, und sie ist zu diesem Schritt auch schon vor Jahr und Tag, sowol von Gläubigern wie von Actionären gedrängt worden. Die im Mai 1874 veröffentlichte Bilanz ergab noch einen Vermögensrest von 45 Procent! Nun ist das Actien-capital von $4\frac{1}{2}$ Millionen Thaler verschwunden; die Actien sind Maculatur, aber wie schon erwähnt, werden sie an der Börse noch immer gehandelt.

In einer hiesigen Börsenzeitung erschien ein Inserat, welches an die Gründer Mendelssohn, Delbrück, Borsig etc. die Frage richtete, ob sie es der Ehre halber nicht für geboten erachteten, jetzt nach Ausbruch des Concurses, folgende von der Gesellschaft bezogene Posten zurückzuerstatten: a) ihren Gründergewinn, b) die bei der zweiten Emission zu 120 eingesteckten 20 Procent Agio, c) das Agio bei der dritten Emission, d) die pro 1872 eingesteckten 88,000 Thaler Gratification an Verwaltungsrath und Direction. — Antwort ist nicht erfolgt.

Wie man doch irren kann! Herr Ferdinand Pless-

ner galt für einen wohlhabenden, wenn nicht für einen reichen Mann; aber der zugleich über sein Privatvermögen verhängte Concurs ergab auch hier ein grosses Deficit. Sein Haus in der Wilhelmstrasse ist werth 211,000 Thaler und mit 250,000 Thaler Hypotheken belastet! In der Privatmasse der beiden andern Gesellschafter Krönig und Gottheiner „liegt nichts“. Dennoch waren diese beiden Herren so nobel, ein Accordverfahren zu beantragen und den Gläubigern je ein Zehntel Procent zu bieten. Herr Krönig hat sich schnell gefasst und sich wieder als Rechtsanwalt anstellen lassen; und ebenso kehren viele andere Beamte, die zu den Gründern und Börsianern übertreten waren, jetzt nach dem Krach eilfertigst in den Staatsdienst zurück, wo sie wol besser zu entbehren wären.

Es liegt eine wunderbare Ironie in dem Umstande, dass von der Special-Commission zur Untersuchung des Eisenbahnconcessionswesens auch Herr Plessner als Sachverständiger vernommen ward, und dass Lasker, welcher die Untersuchung fast ausschliesslich führte, an diesem Manne seinen ganzen Scharfsinn übte. Herr Plessner äusserte gelegentlich, dass er als Privatunternehmer dreimal so viel verdient habe wie als Gesellschafter. Herr Plessner war auf die Finanzleute, welche ihm die Actien versilbern, gar nicht gut zu sprechen; aber er sah keine Möglichkeit, sich von ihnen zu emancipiren — es wäre denn die Ausgabe der Actien unter Pari (100); was das Gesetz bekanntlich verbietet. Selbstverständlich hielt er die „General-Entreprise“ für unentbehrlich, und er hielt sie auch für praktisch und vortrefflich. Nach seiner Ansicht bauen die Privatgesellschaften billiger als der Staat, wenn auch etwas einfacher und dürftiger; aber darum nicht viel unsolider. — —

Nach dem „Krach“ fing Herr Plessner an, sich fast überall und immer zu „verrechnen“. Er verrechnete sich bei Erfurt-Hof-Eger, bei Oels-Gnesen, Altenburg-Zeitz und bei vielen anderen Bahnen. Die an Zahlungsstatt übernommenen Actien sanken fortwährend im Course und waren zum Theil gar nicht mehr zu versilbern. Ein Vertrag nach dem andern musste mit schmerzlichen Opfern gelöst werden; grosse Posten Actien mussten zurückgeliefert und hohe Cautionen im Stich gelassen werden. Die Jahre des Börsen- und Gründungsschwindels hatten die „General-Entreprise“ gross gezogen wie den Kürbis des Propheten Jona — wir beziehen, wenn wir von der Börse sprechen, unsere Gleichnisse gern aus dem Alten Testament — aber der „Krach“ stach ihr in's Haupt und liess sie in einer einzigen Nacht verdorren.

Auch Herr Ferdinand Plessner hat sich durch das Schicksal des Bankerotts nicht beugen lassen. Während des Concurses bezog er eine „Competenz“ von fünf Thalern täglich, und hielt nun „unverfroren“ Vorträge, schrieb Brochüren etc. So schrieb er: „Noch ein Wort zur Anregung des Baues der Localbahnen und Einrichtung eines billigen Eisenbahnbetriebes“ — worin er den Regierungen und dem Publikum gute Lehren ertheilt; und die Presse, eingedenk ihrer früheren Beziehungen zu dem „General-Entrepreneur“, empfahl das Schriftchen als „sachlich“ und „pikant“. In der That muss die gute Laune des Concursifex bewundert werden, und es ist mehr als „pikant“, wenn er z. B.

äussert: — — Es giebt „Bahnen, die alle 2 bis 3 Meilen Entfernung eine sogenannte grössere Station haben, mit 10, 15 oder überhaupt soviel Minuten Aufenthalt, als der Zugführer «Bierlieb» braucht, um mit den spendablen Reiseonkeln die usancemässigen Töpfchen zu trinken, während die Passagiere inzwischen Zeit haben, selbst der hartnäckigsten Verstopfung Meister zu werden.“ — —

Auch Herr Ferdinand Plessner war geneigt zu accordiren, und bot seinen Gläubigern — $\frac{2}{3}$ Procent; was höchst grossmüthig genannt werden muss, denn in der Masse liegen nur $\frac{1}{6}$ Procent, und seine Privat- und Gesellschafts-Schulden betragen zusammen an 10 Millionen Thaler. — — —

Zu den Bahnen, gegen welche der Abgeordnete Lasker seine Angriffe richtete, gehört auch Berlin-Dresden; und die Special-Untersuchungscommission hat sich auch mit ihr beschäftigt. Sie wurde 1872 von folgenden Herren gegründet: H. C. Plaut, Adolf Abel (S. Abel jr.), Paul Gravenstein, Victor Ludwig Wrede, Max Sabersky, Commerzienrath Feodor Zschille in Grossenhain, Geh. Oberregierungsrath und Eisenbahndirector Ludwig Heise, Geh. Hofrath Robert Dohme, Buchhändler Ferdinand Schneider, Sächsischer Legationsrath Wolf Hugo von Lindenau, Ritterschaftsdirector Leo von dem Knesebeck auf Jühnsdorf, Landrath Prinz Handjery. Nach mehrfachen Verhandlungen über die Höhe des Grundcapitals, setzte der Handelsminister dasselbe auf $10\frac{1}{2}$ Millionen Thaler fest und verwarf ausdrücklich die „General-Entreprise“. Die Gründer gelobten „in Selbstregie“ zu bauen, und übertrugen die Ausführung an die Gesellschaft der „vereinigten Bauunternehmer“. Bald kam es jedoch zu Differenzen, und der Vertrag wurde gelöst. Die „vereinigten Bauunternehmer“ und auch noch andere Personen erhielten Abfindungen, zusammen etwa 350,000 Thaler; und der Uebertritt des Geheimraths Heise von der Rechten Oder-Ufer-Bahn zur Berlin-Dresdener kostete gleichfalls 50,000 Thaler.

Nun wurde die General-Bau-Bank gegründet, zum Theil von denselben Personen, wie Adolf Abel, Paul Gravenstein, Victor Ludwig Wrede — und dieser der Bau übertragen. Die Gründer contrahirten wieder mit sich selber, nämlich als Eisenbahn- und zugleich als Baugesellschaft; und ausserdem bildeten sie drittens das „Finanzconsortium“, welches die Actien versilberte. Sie übernahmen die Stammactien im Nennwerthe von $5\frac{1}{4}$ Millionen Thaler zum Course von 70 und schlugen sie los mit ca. 82; sie übernahmen die Stammprioritätsactien in gleichem Betrage zum Course von 83 und boten sie aus mit 90, sollen aber mit diesen sitzen geblieben sein. Landrath Prinz Handjery wurde mit 350,000 Thalern „betheiligt“, und erzielte, wie er bei seiner Vernehmung gestand, einen Gewinn „von 20,000 bis 30,000 Thaler“. — Die Summe scheint ihm zu unbedeutend gewesen zu sein, als dass er sie genau im Gedächtniss behalten; und er verfügte später darüber zu Gunsten des Kreises Teltow.

Berlin-Dresden ist 1875 eröffnet, und man darf sie im Interesse des Publikums begrüßen, denn sie macht der Berlin-Anhalter, die sich bis dahin allmächtig dünkte und aller Klagen und Beschwerden spottete, eine heilsame Concurrrenz. Ob aber auch die neue Bahn mit der nöthigen Solidität erbaut und der Betrieb zureichend organisirt ist, darüber lauten die Stimmen verschieden; jedenfalls befindet sich die Gesellschaft schon lange in finanziellen Verlegenheiten, und sie unternimmt jetzt eine Anleihe von $4\frac{1}{2}$ Millionen Thaler. Die Stamm-Actien stehen etwa 20.

Ausser Berlin-Dresden erbaute die General-Bau-Bank nur noch die Militärbahn von Berlin über Zossen nach Spremberg. Wie sie dabei gefahren, ist schwer zu ersehen. Nach der Bilanz pro 1873 bestanden ihre Einnahmen hauptsächlich in einem „Zinsenüberschuss“, aus welchem sie $3\frac{1}{2}$ Procent Dividende und dem Aufsichtsrath 2500 Thaler Tantième zahlte. Bei solch kleiner Dividende ist das „Trinkgeld“ für den Aufsichtsrath ziemlich befremdend; und nach einem Zeitungsbericht zu schliessen, hat es auch Reclamationen veranlasst und ist theilweise zurückerstattet worden. Pro 1874 wurden $1\frac{1}{8}$ Procent Dividende gegeben, entfielen auf jede Actie ganze 27 Silbergroschen; und in der Generalversammlung am 5. Februar 1875, wo 17 Actionäre 2700 Stimmen vertraten — jeder Actionär durchschnittlich 158 Stimmen — beschloss man die Liquidation der Gesellschaft und erwählte zum Liquidator Herrn Löwenfeld.

Herr Gerichts-Assessor a. D. Hermann Löwenfeld ist seit der Gründungsepoche eine vielgeschäftige und vielgewandte Persönlichkeit, und neuerdings namentlich bei Entgründungen thätig. Er ist Director der wieder von den Herren H. C. Plaut, Paul Gravenstein und Victor Ludwig Wrede gegründeten Centralbank für Industrie und Handel, Mitgründer und jetzt Liquidator der General-Bau-Bank, Mitgründer der Baugesellschaft Berliner Neustadt, Aufsichtsrath der Berlin-Dresdener Bahn, Liquidator der Bahn Erfurt-Hof-Eger, früherer Aufsichtsrath der 1875 an Entkräftung verschiedenen Elbinger Actiengesellschaft für Fabrikation von Eisenbahn-Material etc. etc. Bei allen diesen Gesellschaften macht er in den Generalversammlungen bald den Vorsitzenden, bald den Antragsteller oder Referenten; hält Reden oder besorgt diplomatische Missionen.

So erschien Herr Löwenfeld in Elbing, woselbst

unter den Hammer kamen die Grundstücke und Fabrikanlagen jener bankerotten Gesellschaft, welche einst
H. C. Plaut, Paul Gravenstein, Oberbürgermeister
a. D. Philipps etc. durch Umwandlung der Firma Hambruch, Vollbaum & Co. gegründet hatten. Die Fabrik, die in der Bilanz pro 1873 noch zu Buch stand mit
ca. 1,500,000 Thaler, wurde einem der Gläubiger, dem
Geh. Commerzienrath Moriz Simon aus Königsberg, für 320,000 Thaler, also für ein Fünftel, zugeschlagen;
und Herr Löwenfeld, der frühere Aufsichtsath, gab
jetzt als Gläubiger ein noch geringeres Gebot ab.
Augenscheinlich hatten die Herren Bieter sich verständigt, und der Concurs-Verwalter wollte auch zunächst gegen den Zuschlag protestiren, liess sich jedoch beschwichtigen. So erhalten die andern Gläubiger ca.
20 Procent ihrer Forderungen, während die Actionäre
natürlich wieder Alles verloren haben. — Herr Simon,
der bekannte Königsberger Gründer, dem der Bankerott
des dortigen Banquier Jacob eine mehrwöchentliche Gefängnisstrafe eintrug, welche die Gnade des Kaisers
in eine hohe Geldbusse umwandelte — trat die erstandene Fabrik dem grossen „Doctor“ Strousberg ab;
und dieser liess sie, wahrscheinlich aus Vorsicht, näm-lich in Erwartung seines neuen Sturzes, auf den Namen

seiner Gattin schreiben. Frau Strousberg ist die nominelle Besitzerin, aber Herr Simon hat bereits die gerichtliche Sequestration der Fabrik beantragt, und dieselbe wird vermuthlich nächstens wieder verauctionirt werden.

Wir kehren zu Herrn Löwenfeld zurück. Dieser Börsen-Diplomat erschien auch zu Erfurt in der Generalversammlung, welche die Liquidation der wieder von H. C. Plaut, Paul Gravenstein, Ludwig von Erlanger in Frankfurt gegründeten Eisenbahn-Gesellschaft Erfurt-Hof-Eger beschloss, und liess hier eine längere in vieler Hinsicht hochinteressante Rede vom Stapel.

Diese Rede ist — man sollte es nicht glauben — wesentlich gegen Lasker gerichtet. Eduard Lasker erhob im Februar 1873 von der Tribüne des Preussischen Abgeordnetenhauses seine Anklage gegen die Gründer; und im Juni 1874 antwortete ihm auf einer Generalversammlung von Actionären, Namens der Gründer, Hermann Löwenfeld. Lasker's Rede wurde von der gesammten Presse wiedergegeben, in vielen Separat-abdrücken verbreitet; Herr Löwenfeld liess seinen Speech in den Zeitungen als Inserat erscheinen, was ihm resp. seinen Freunden ein hübsches Stück Geld gekostet hat. Aber diese Rede ist ein charakteristisches Zeichen der Zeit, und sie verdient in den weitesten Kreisen bekannt zu werden. Sie übertrifft durch elegante Form weit die Lasker'sche, und sie ist ein Meisterstück von Dialektik — wir meinen, Dialektik im Sinne einer gewissen Griechischen Philosophenschule.

Herr Löwenfeld erklärt, das Verfahren bei Eisenbahn-Gründungen, welches Lasker so heftig verurtheilt, also die „General-Entreprise“, die „Provisionen“ oder „Trinkgelder“ der Gründer und Financiers — seien die nothwendige Folge des Actiengesetzes vom 11. Juni 1870. „Lasker“, sagt Löwenfeld, „stellt seine hohen Ansprüche ohne eine Spur der Beschämung, die den Urhebern jenes Gesetzes wohl anstehen würde. Denn wenn Missstände vorliegen, so trifft das Gesetz die Schuld, nicht aber Diejenigen, welche es auf die ihnen bequemste Weise handhaben.“ — — Gegen diesen Ausspruch und gegen diese Logik lässt sich leider nicht viel einwenden. Allerdings ist das Actiengesetz, wie wir schon öfter nachgewiesen haben, völlig verfehlt; es bietet den Uebertretern tausend Maschen zum Durchschlüpfen, es leitet zum Uebertreten förmlich an. „Gesetzlich erlaubt ist, was gesetzlich nicht verboten ist“, folgert Herr Löwenfeld und will damit sagen:

Ein Gründer braucht sich nur um das Strafgesetz zu kümmern; die Moral geht ihn nichts an. — Allerdings gehört Lasker mit zu den Gesetzgebern; aber er war doch der Einzige, der gegen das Gesetz Bedenken erhob und die kannibalschen Gelüste der Herren Hammacher, Braun, Miquel und anderer „Volkswirthe“ etwas zu zügeln suchte.

Nach Herrn Löwenfeld haben Lasker's „Enthüllungen“ den ganzen „Krach“ und speciell auch das Fiasco der Bahn Erfurt-Hof-Eger verschuldet, „dem wirthschaftlichen Leben des Volkes für viele Jahre eine tiefe Wunde geschlagen“. — Man sieht, wie geschickt Herr Löwenfeld Ursache und Wirkung verwechselt. Was thatsächlich die Gründer und die Gründungen vollführten, sollen Lasker und seine Rede gethan haben. Nein, Herr Löwenfeld! Ohne Gründer und ohne Schwindel kein „Krach“; und auch ohne Lasker's Rede — so sicher, wie die Nacht dem Tage folgt — der Krach!! Lasker ist an dem „Krach“ so unschuldig wie ein neugeborenen Kind, und seine Rede hat den „Krach“ nicht einmal schneller zum Ausbruch kommen lassen; wie wir das leicht beweisen können.

Schon im December 1872 verspürten die Börsen den Krach in allen Gliedern, schon damals suchten die Gründer und Börsianer ihren Raub in Sicherheit zu bringen. Ein grosser Berliner Banquier, der eine lange Reihe von Gründungen auf dem Gewissen hat, schloss bereits Ende 1872 sein ganzes Geschäft; und ein anderer professioneller Gründer, Mitverfasser des blutigen Lindenbauvereins schrieb — der betreffende Brief liegt uns vor — an einen unglücklichen Actionär: Die Zeit scheint mir bedenklich; ich kaufe nichts mehr. — Mit dem Jahre 1873 brach, wie Herr Löwenfeld selber anführt, auf dem Geldmarkt eine grosse „Deroute“ aus; und gleichzeitig ging der Abgeordnete Ludwig Bamberger, früher Banquier in Paris, unter die Propheten und weissagte: Die Börse ist jetzt bei den Bergwerken, und die Bergwerke sind, wie meine Erfahrungen lehren, stets der letzte Act des Dramas. Wir nähern uns der Katastrophe. — Lasker ist ein intimer Freund Bamberger's, und als er im Februar 1873 seine Rede hielt, ahnte gewiss auch er, dass der Krach heranziehe.

Auch hat man ihm ja vorgeworfen, dass er seine Anklage viel zu spät, erst post festum erhoben; und dieser Vorwurf liegt nahe. Lasker's Rede, etwa ein Jahr früher gehalten, mitten in den Gründungsschwindel geschleudert, hätte diesen vielleicht unterbrochen, ihn gelähmt und abgekürzt. Und thatsächlich wollte Lasker schon weit früher vorgehen. Schon am 17. April 1872 machte er im Reichstag gelegentlich aufmerksam „auf die betrügerischen Grundsätze bei den Gründungen der Gegenwart“; bedauerte, dass das Actiengesetz so arg gemissbraucht werde und sprach die Hoffnung aus, das Haus werde sich mit dieser Calamität noch in der laufenden Session befassen. Schon damals, mitten im Gründungstreiben, beabsichtigte Lasker, bestimmte Anträge gegen den verbrecherischen Schwindel zu stellen; aber das Preussische Abgeordnetenhaus wie der Deutsche Reichstag wimmeln von Manchesterleuten und „Volkswirthen“, und diese hielten Lasker an den Rockschössen zurück.

Seine spätern „Enthüllungen“ boten, wie Herr Löwenfeld ganz richtig bemerkt, weder der Börse noch der Regierung etwas Neues. Trotzdem sind und bleiben sie eine That und ein Verdienst. Als Lasker sich am 7. Februar 1873 erhob, sassen um ihn, dicht gedrängt, die Gründer und Gründergenossen. Während er seine stundenlange Rede redete und, um sich anzufeuern, ein Glas Wasser nach dem andern trank, schwitzten jene Blut, ihre Lippen verfärbten sich und ihre Augen suchten den Boden. Während sie nach Athem rangen, schrieten sie „Hört! Hört!“ und „Bravo, Bravo!“; und als er geendet, schlichen sie an ihn heran, drückten ihm krampfhaft die Hände und überschütteten ihn mit Glückwünschen.

Lasker's „Enthüllungen“ waren freilich nur mangelhaft und einseitig. Sie behandeln einige wenige Eisenbahn-Gründungen untergeordneter Art, und seine Angriffe richteten sich ausschliesslich gegen ein paar conservative Gründer, gegen blosser Dilettanten, die sich von professionellen Gründern haben vorseiben lassen. Man hat sein Auftreten sogar eine edle Dreistigkeit genannt, insofern er doch wissen musste, dass die groben grossen Gründer hauptsächlich zu seinen Glaubensgenossen gehören, und die Verbündeten und Gehülfen derselben vorwiegend unter den liberalen Parlamentsmitgliedern sitzen.

Allein Lasker hat den Stein doch immer in's Rollen gebracht. Er hatte Rücksichten zu nehmen; darum war sein Vorgehen ein diplomatisches. Er exemplifizierte das Gründungsunwesen an einem Vertrage zwischen Finanzcomité und Baucomité, welchen gewisse Personen zum Theil mit sich selber abgeschlossen hatten, und sagte dann: Ich sehe in diesem Saale Niemanden, den ich bei dem Vertrage mit den Finanzfirmen in Verbindung wüsste; — — — „ich spreche nicht von andern dabei mitspielenden Personen“, fügte er vorsichtig und nicht ohne Doppelsinn hinzu. Nun sass im Saale der Abgeordnete, der als Mitglied der Baugesellschaft von dem Finanzcomité eine „Provision“ bezogen hatte, und zugleich als Aufsichtsrath der zu erbauenden Bahn fungirte; und dieser sehr ehrenwerthe Abgeordnete stellte, nachdem Lasker seine Rede geschlossen hatte, den Antrag auf Vertagung der Sitzung.

Ferner sprach Lasker von einem „verehrten Freund“, den man mit Unrecht als Gründer bezeichne, und für den er jederzeit eintreten werde. Ob Lasker noch heute dazu bereit ist, wissen wir nicht; wir wissen aber, dass ihn mehrere „verehrte Freunde“ später in arge Verlegenheit brachten. Von verschiedenen Wahlkreisen ergingen an ihn Anfragen über solche Candidaten zum Abgeordnetenhaus, denen man Theilnahme an Gründungen zur Last legte; und er lehnte die specielle Beantwortung öffentlich ab. Nur in Betreff des Herrn Adolf Hagen, Stadtrath a. D. und Director der Deutschen Unionbank, liess er sich zu einer für diesen ziemlich günstigen Erklärung herbei, stiess aber damit auf vielfachen Widerspruch.

Lasker's „Enthüllungen“ sollten das öffentliche Bewusstsein wecken und der Regierung das Gewissen schärfen; darum fanden sie im ganzen Lande so lauten Wiederhall und so ausserordentlichen Beifall. Herr Löwenfeld freilich erklärt diesen, wie er meint, sehr unverdienten Beifall in seiner Weise. Er sagt: „Man sah nicht den kolossalen Vorthail, den das Capital über die Industrie brachte“ (Wer lacht da?!) „Man sah nicht den enormen Vorthail, den die neuen Banken dem Handel und dem Gewerbe zuführten“ (Hohngelächter der Hölle!!) „Man sah nur eine enorme Speculationssucht und den übermässigen Gewinn der Gründer. So entwickelte sich ein Hass der Aermeren gegen die Reichen, und Lasker gab diesem glühenden Hass einen beredten Ausdruck.“ — Nach Herrn Löwenfeld war das Deutsche Volk noch nicht „gebildet“ genug, um sich sonder Murren von Gründern und Börsianern das Blut abzapfen zu lassen.

Es ist eine alte Geschichte, dass man Eigenschaften, die man selber besitzt, bei Andern wenig schätzt, dagegen über die Maassen bewundert, was man entbehrt. So urtheilt auch Herr Löwenfeld, der selber ein Genie ist, über Lasker: „Die Staatsklugheit und praktische Verwendbarkeit der Ideen dieses Mannes stehen bei weitem nicht auf einem so hohen Niveau wie die Sittlichkeit seiner Gesinnungen und seines ganzen Charakters.“ — Herr Löwenfeld und seine Freunde können es gar nicht begreifen, dass der Abgeordnete Lasker, so ungleich vielen seiner Collegen, sich von den Gründern und Börsianern nicht kaufen liess, dass er reine Hände behalten hat. O Gott, dass es bei uns ehrlichen Deutschen so weit kommen konnte! Wie gewaltig hoch ist neuerdings bei uns im Preise die Ehrlichkeit gestiegen!!

Allerdings, Lasker war um Geld nicht feil — weil er eben andere Absichten hat. Und warum auch nicht? Sollte Herr Lasker einen Ministersessel nicht eben so gut ausfüllen, wie Herr Achenbach oder Herr Friedenthal?!

Im Reichstag behandelte Lasker am 4. April 1873 nochmals in einer Rede die Gründungen überhaupt, ihre wesentlichsten Piffe und Kniffe und ihre grobe Gemeingefährlichkeit, wobei er die Mitschuld der Regierung und des Parlaments nicht leugnete; nannte aber diesmal leider keine Namen.

Klassisch war die Antwort, welche er von Seiten der Regierung erhielt. Der Präsident des Reichskanzleramts, Herr Delbrück, sonst ein so trockener Ge-schäftsman, antwortete mit einem Witzchen. Er versprach „Abhülfe der Uebelstände so weit als thunlich“; meinte aber: „Es liegt ausserhalb der Macht einer jeden Gesetzgebung, Leute, die nun einmal ihr Geld los sein wollen, daran zu hindern.“ Herr Delbrück, der sich, nebst seinem Adlatus, dem früheren Mitredacteur der „National-Zeitung“, jetzigen Geheimrath Otto Michaelis, gleichfalls zum Manchesterthum bekennt, goss also über die ausgeplünderten Actionäre, deren Zahl doch Legion ist und die fast das gesammte Publikum begreifen, noch die Schale des Hohns aus — und die im Reichstag sitzenden „Volkswirthe“ und Gründer belohnten das von Seiner Excellenz so plötzlich geleistete Bonmot mit wiehernder Heiterkeit.

Einer derselben, auf den Lasker in seinen beiden Reden wiederholt anspielte, der als Aufsichtsrath verschiedener Gesellschaften verschiedentlich mit sich selber contrahirt, und dafür jedesmal ein erkleckliches Trinkgeld empfangen hatte, fühlte sich durch die spassige Antwort des Ministers Delbrück zu einem Fechterstückchen ermuthigt. Herr von Kardorff — warum sollen wir ihn nicht nennen? — trug damals im Abgeordnetenhouse auf Vertagung der Sitzung an:

heute im Reichstag verlangte er frisch und frei die Besprechung der Lasker'schen Interpellation. Ja — man wird es nicht für möglich halten — er hatte diese Interpellation selbst mit unterschrieben, und er rühmte sich dessen! Vielleicht, dass Lasker Herrn von Kardorff um seine Unterschrift anging, um diesem ein Bein zu stellen; vielleicht auch, dass Herr von Kardorff die Interpellation aus eigenem Antrieb unterzeichnete, um seinerseits Herrn Lasker ein Bein zu stellen.

Dem sei, wie ihm wolle: Herr von Kardorff, in vielen Sätteln gerecht, that einen Ausfall gegen Lasker, indem er die Befürchtung aussprach, dieser könne durch seine Interpellation in den Verdacht „einer etwas leichten Popularitätshascherei“ gerathen; denn jeder Angriff auf das Börsentreiben sei ausserordentlich populär, besonders „in allen Arbeiterkreisen, die von socialistischen und communistischen Ideen inficirt sind“. Herr von Kardorff, der sich, wenn er gerade nichts Einträglicheres zu thun hat, noch zuweilen der alten Klassiker erinnert, kam auf die Fabel des Agrippa Menenius, von der Empörung der Glieder gegen den Magen, zu sprechen; und verglich nun seinerseits sehr geistreich die Börse als den Magen im staatlichen Organismus, über den das ausgeplünderte Publikum sehr mit Unrecht sich beklage. Sodann that er einen Sprung aus dem alten Rom in die Französische Revolution, und verglich Herrn Lasker mit — Robespierre. Lasker sei, wie Robespierre, ein Idealist, und sein Idealismus verführe auch ihn zum Blutdurst; Lasker sei ein Robespierre der Tugend, insofern er die Börse mit Gewalt moralisch machen wolle. Das könne aber nur die — Schule und die Kirche. (Statt Kirche, hätte der fromme Philosoph wol Synagoge sagen müssen). Die Hauptschuld an dem ganzen Schwindel sah Herr von Kardorff in dem „Goldzufluss der Französischen Milliarden“; und schliesslich betheuerte er wehmüthig, dass die Coursgeinnste der Financiers und die Trinkgelder der Aufsichtsräthe nur „sehr mässig“ seien, und diesen Biedermännern wohl zu gönnen wären, da sie doch immer auch ein Risiko zu tragen hätten.

Auch Herr Sonnemann nahm das Wort, sprach aber mehr im Sinne Lasker's. Er machte eine Reihe von faulen Gründungen namhaft und äusserte dann: „Die Presse hat auch nicht überall ihre Schuldigkeit gethan.“ — Herr Sonnemann muss das wol wissen, denn er selber ist Besitzer der „Frankfurter Zeitung“. Wie prächtig es diese Leute doch verstehen, sich stets nach beiden Seiten zu decken! — Auch Herr Sonnemann konnte nicht umhin das Publikum anzuklagen, dass es an dem Schwindel „nicht den kleinsten Theil der Schuld“ trage: — „Ich könnte Ihnen hunderte von Briefen vorlegen von Seiten der Capitalisten und Speculanten, die gewissen Blättern einen Vorwurf machen, dass sie nicht alle neue Actienunternehmungen anpreisen und dass sie sich nicht gewissermaßen zu Advocaten des Gründerthums machen.“ — Herr Sonnemann versteht also unter „Publikum“ auch Speculanten — das heisst doch, berufsmässige Spieler und Börsianer, welche die Course treiben wollen; und die er mit ehrlichen Privatleuten, mit ernstlichen Actionären ganz ungenirt in Einen Topf wirft. Auch so ein Taschenspieler-Coup!

Der Bericht der Specialcommission zur Untersuchung des Eisenbahn-Concessions-Wesens kam im Herbst 1873 an das Abgeordnetenhaus „zur weitem gefälligen Veranlassung“ — blieb jedoch seither ganz unbenutzt liegen. Zu seiner Rechtfertigung erklärte der Präsident des Abgeordnetenhauses, Herr von Bennigsen — der leider auch in die faule Gründungsgeschichte der Hannover-Altenbecker Bahn verwickelt ist — später einmal: Er habe ausdrücklich angefragt, ob und wann Herr Lasker jenen Bericht zur Discussion gestellt wissen wolle; aber eine ablehnende Antwort erhalten. Erst wieder am 25. Januar 1875, als man die Bamberger'sche Reichsbank berieth, erklärte Lasker, dass er „dem Gründungsschwindel den Krieg bis auf's Messer ankündige“; und wie Herr von Diest-Daber veröffentlichte, hat er diesem mit Mund und Hand gelobt, nunmehr auch gegen die „liberalen Gründer“ vorzugehen. Leider erkrankte Lasker gleich darauf; aber inzwischen ist er genesen, und so hoffen wir, dass er in der neuen Parlaments-Session seine Versprechungen einlösen wird.

Den Beschluss der Culturkämpfer sollen die beiden Cuxhavener Gesellschaften machen.

Am 5. Februar 1872 kam im Preussischen Abgeordnetenhaus ein Gesetzentwurf zur Berathung, welcher den Bau verschiedener Bahnen aus Staatsmitteln forderte. Unter Anderem handelte es sich um die Linie Harburg-Stade, die schon die frühere Hannover'sche Regierung im Jahre 1866, kurz vor Ausbruch des Krieges, beschlossen hatte, und die jetzt Preussen mit einem Aufwande von 3,300,000 Thaler ausführen wollte. Zu diesem Paragraphen stellte der Abgeordnete Braun-Wiesbaden das von vielen andern „Volkswirthen“ unterstützte Amendement: die Bahn

Harburg-Stade einer Privatgesellschaft zu übertragen, falls diese Gesellschaft die Linie bis Cuxhaven weiterführe und dort einen Hafen errichte. — Ein kuriozes Amendement, aber man befand sich in der Gründerzeit und nahm es ohne jedweden Einspruch an.

Bald darauf wurde die Cuxhavener Eisenbahn-Dampfschiff- und Hafen-Actiengesellschaft geboren, und zum Erstaunen naiver Leute trat Herr Braun-Wiesbaden als Mitgründer hervor und ward sogar Director der neuen Gesellschaft. Man versprach eine Bahn von Harburg über Stade und Cuxhaven nach Geestemünde, sowie den Bau eines stets offenen Seehafens in Cuxhaven mit grossartigen Dampfschiffsverbindungen; und forderte dafür die Bagatelle von 20 Millionen Thaler. Der Prospect war so bescheiden, das Unternehmen mit das grossartigste des Jahrhunderts zu nennen, und verschiedene Brochüren rechneten eine Rentabilität heraus, dass dem Leser die Augen thränten. *) Solch masslose Marktschreierei fiel selbst

) Für das Unternehmen warb auch eifrig und wurde in Tausenden von Exemplaren über die Provinz Hannover ausgestreut die aus der Held-Daubitz'schen „Staatsbürger-Zeitung“ entstandene „Berliner Bürger-Zeitung“, welche einem Consortium gehört, an dessen Spitze Buchhändler Daniel Collin, Regierungsrath a. D. Stadtverordneter Beutner und Abgeord-in der Gründungsperiode auf, und namentlich die Hamburger Presse machte sich darüber lustig.) Von den 20 Millionen Thaler wurden vorderhand 8 Millionen emittirt, aber nur $\frac{3}{4}$ Millionen gezeichnet, und viele Zeichner liessen ihre 40procentigen Interimsscheine im Stich, da sie keine Nachzahlung riskiren wollten.

Die Gesellschaft suchte überall nach Geld umher, und fand es nur tropfenweise. Die Arbeiten wurden spät in Angriff genommen und kamen nie recht in Gang. Abgesehen von beträchtlichen Summen für Presserzeugnisse und technische Vorarbeiten, abgesehen von hohen Verwaltungsunkosten — die Directoren Braun-Wiesbaden und Charles Ernst David sollen glänzende Gehälter bezogen haben — ist bisher verausgabt, das will hier bedeuten, verzettelt: 1) für den Hafen 1,300,000 Thaler. 2) für den Eisenbahnbau neter Braun-Wiesbaden stehen. Als dieses Consortium das Blatt übernahm, schied Dr. Alexis Schmidt, einst Chef-Redacteur der alten „Spener'schen Zeitung“, die auch dem Gründungsschwindel zum Opfer fiel, aus der „Staatsbürgerzeitung“, die er eine Weile geleitet hatte, und machte solches öffentlich bekannt.

*) Die Gründer hatten bereits eine Partei im Hamburger Senat gewonnen, und dieser war bereit, der Gesellschaft eine Subvention von 60,000 Thaler jährlich auf 20 Jahre (!) zu gewähren; aber unter dem Einfluss der Presse, versagte die Hamburger Bürgerschaft ihre Genehmigung.

1,100,000 Thaler. 3) an Cautionen 610,000 Thaler. Der Posten zu 2 ist an den Mitgründer Jürgen Heinrich Hagenah in Stade gezahlt, welchem die Linie Stade-Cuxhaven in „General-Entreprise“ gegeben war. Wegen mangelhafter und verspäteter Ausführung wurde ihm der Vertrag gekündigt, und das Gericht verurtheilte ihn, an die Gesellschaft ca. 400,000 Thaler herauszuzahlen.

Die Cautionen sind verfallen, da Hafen und Eisenbahnen nicht bis Neujahr 1876 fertig gestellt wurden; und es fragt sich: was nun? Entweder das grösste Werk des 19. Jahrhunderts bleibt ein Schutthaufen, oder die Regierungen von Preussen und Hamburg müssen den Ausbau in die Hand nehmen. Aufrichtiges Bedauern verdienen nur die Bewohner der Landschaft Bremen, welche um die Bahn Harburg-Stade seit fast einem Vierteljahrhundert petitioniren, und nun die feste Verheissung ihres Wunsches schon zweimal vereitelt sehen mussten.

Die Mitgründer Hagenah, Schön, Langhans, sowie Director David componirten auch noch in Verbindung mit R. A. Seelig und Eduard Stahlschmidt (Hermann Geber) die Cuxhavener Immobilien-gesellschaft, eine Filiale der vorigen; um in den

neuen Weltstädten Cuxhafen und Ritzebüttel Geschäftshäuser, Hôtels etc. zu errichten. Zu diesem Zwecke liess Herr Hagenah, der General-Entrepreneur der Bahn Stade-Cuxhaven, einige Parcellen zu dem enormen Preise von 549,000 Thaler ankaufen, und überantwortete sie für 1,530,000 Thaler, also mit einer Million Aufschlag, an Eduard Stahlschmidt (Hermann Geber), der sie nun wieder der plötzlich aus den Coulissen tretenden Immobiliengesellschaft überliess.

Herr Greve, bis dahin Commis bei Hagenah und ein junger Mensch von 25 Jahren, hatte den ersten Ankauf vermittelt und ward jetzt Director der neuen Gesellschaft. Als solcher veröffentlichte er in der Hamburger „Börsenhalle“ die Bilanz pro 1872, in welcher zu lesen stand: „An Immobilien-Conto, Kaufpreis — 1,530,000 Thaler.“ — Da ereilte ihn die Nemesis in Gestalt der Staatsanwaltschaft.

Was kein Staatsanwalt in Preussen fertig bekommen hat, vollbrachte der Oberstaatsanwalt in Hamburg, Dr. Mittelstädt, und wir bezeigen ihm hiermit unsern Respect. Trotz des famosen Actiengesetzes, ja auf Grund desselben erhob er gegen Director Greve die Anklage wegen „Verschleierung des Vermögensstandes der Gesellschaft“, durch Aufstellung einer unwahren Bilanz. *) Der wirkliche Kaufpreis der Parzellen war ja nur 549,000 Thaler gewesen — nicht 1,530,000 Thaler, mit welchen man sie den Actionären berechnete.

*) Inzwischen haben wir auch in Preussen einen solchen Prozess erlebt. Der Staatsanwalt Angern in Magdeburg beantragte die Untersuchung gegen die Gründer der Sudenburger Maschinenfabrik. Angeklagt waren: Kaufmann Simon Levy in Berlin; Kauflente Julius Levy, Meyer Samuel Meyer, Gustav Sommergut, Fabrikbesitzer Aug. Klusemann, Directoren Otto Henniges, Adolf Oelkers, Ingenieur Stromberg in Magdeburg; und Banquier Gustav Plaut (H. C. Plaut) in Leipzig. Die Fabrik, reell etwa 225,000 Thaler werth, wurde von den Gründern mit 600,000 Thalern bezahlt — aber nicht baar, sondern zum grossen Theil in Actien — und der Gesellschaft mit 800,000 Thaler überwiesen. Als von den betrogenen Actionären Einige energisch vorgingen, gaben die furchtsamen Gründer Actien im Nennwerthe von 350,000 Thaler heraus — der ziemlich gewaltsam gegründete Vorbesitzer Klusemann allein an 200,000 Thaler. Nur Herr Gustav Plaut verstand sich zu Nichts. Trotzdem denunciirten andere Actionäre, und die Anklage lautete auf Betrug und Verschleierung des Vermögensstandes.

Den Angeklagten stand eine Schaar Advocaten zur Seite, von denen — was gewiss charakteristisch ist — mehrere selber Gründer und Gründergenossen sind; und der Hauptentlastungszeuge, Geheime Commerzienrath Emil Stephan, ist sogar ein grober Gründer. Justizrath Lesse aus Berlin „verurtheilte das Denunciationswesen der Actionäre, das leicht auf diese zurückfallen könne“ (!). Justizrath Karsten aus Berlin bezeichnete die Forderungen und Drohungen der Actionäre, gegenüber den Gründern, als „Erpressung“ (!!). Rechtsanwalt Träger, früher in Cölleda, erachtet den Ruf seines Clienten Gustav Plaut über allen Zweifel erhaben! Herr Albert Träger,

Was kein Gerichtshof, weder in Deutschland noch in Oesterreich, bisher glaubte ahnden zu können: die

auch als zarter Dichter bekannt, und neben Hermann Löwenfeld, Liquidator der entgründeten Eisenbahngesellschaft Erfurt-Hof-Eger, that den hochpoetischen Ausspruch: „Dem Gründungsschwindel ist die Gründerhatz gefolgt.“ (!!) „Die geschäftsmässigen Lärmacher kaufen die gefallenen Papiere auf, um durch unberechtigte Forderungen den Cours zu treiben, und dann die Verfolgung der Gründer anderen Lärmachern zu überlassen.“ — —

Der Gerichtshof fand die Angeklagten des Betruges nicht schuldig, und verurtheilte nur Julius Levy, Meyer, Henniges, Klusemann, Oelkers und Stromberg wegen „Verschleierung“ zu einer Geldbusse von 500 resp. 100 Thalern. Simon Levy, Gustav Sommergut und Gustav Plaut gingen ganz frei aus.

Der Gerichtshof hielt die Kriterien des Betruges für vorhanden; meinte aber, dass es an einem Betrogenen fehle (!). Das Publikum im Allgemeinen könne nicht dafür angesehen werden (!) — Wenn ein Quacksalber sich „Arzt“ nennt, wenn Jemand zum Spielen in einer ausländischen Lotterie einladet, wird er kurzweg verurtheilt, ohne dass man erst nach einem „Betrogenen“ fragt. — Die Actien der Sudenburger Maschinenfabrik sind über das ganze Land verbreitet, und unter den zahlreichen Actionären fehlt es gewiss nicht an „Betrogenen“.

Zwar hat der Staatsanwalt gegen das freisprechende Urtheil appellirt und, wie verlautet, die Vernehmung der ersten Zeichner beantragt. Die ersten Zeichner aber sind wieder die Gründer selber und ihre Verbündeten. Das grosse Publikum zeichnet überhaupt nicht Actien, sondern lässt sie erst später durch die Banquiers an der Börse kaufen. Wie es scheint, sind Staatsanwälte wie Richter in die Gründungskomödien und das Börsentreiben leider noch immer zu wenig eingeweiht.

Umtriebe der Gründer — wir meinen nämlich grosse professionelle Gründer, nicht kleine dilettantenhafte Gründlinge, die allerdings hie und da abgefasst wurden — that kurz und gut das Hamburger Strafgericht. Es verurtheilte den Director Greve zu einem Monat Gefängniss, und das Oberappellationsgericht in Lübeck hat diese Sentenz einfach bestätigt. Ja, es giebt noch Richter in — Hamburg und Lübeck!*)

Noch meldeten verschiedene Blätter: der Angeklagte Meyer Samuel Meyer in Magdeburg sei ein Bruder des berühmten Redacteurs der „New-Yorker Handelszeitung“, dem das Deutsche Publikum die oberfaulen Prioritäten Amerikanischer Eisenbahnen verdankt, für welche dieser Mann in seinem Journal eine betrügerische Reclame machte.

*) Als der Prozess Ofenheim in Wien einen so beklagenswerthen Ausgang nahm, schrieb die Berliner „Nationalzeitung“, die dem Gründungsschwindel in Deutschland Vorschub geleistet hat, wie kaum ein anderes Blatt:

„Die Freisprechung Ofenheim's ist für den Oesterreichischen Staat eine der schwersten Niederlagen, ein moralisches Königgrätz, und vielleicht um so schwerer, je weniger man sich darüber wundert. Die Geschworenen mögen, wenn nicht schlimmere Triebfedern mitwirken, sich gescheut haben, einen Mann zu verurtheilen, der bei Lichte besehen, zahllose Complicen hat, und dessen Verurtheilung eine ganze Reihe von Verfolgungen hätte nach sich ziehen sollen.“ — — —

Was sagt die „Nationalzeitung“ nun zu der Freisprechung der Sudenburger Gründer? — Gar nichts! Und auch in der übrigen Presse haben wir vergebens nach irgend einem Worte gesucht. Alles blieb stumm und still! Auch bei uns haben eben Levy und Meyer „zahllose Complicen“ — noch viel, viel mehr als Ofenheim in Oesterreich!!

Leider vermochte die Strafe nicht die eigentlichen Attentäter, die Gründer zu erreichen: sie traf nur deren Werkzeug, den jungen Director Greve, der sich nun von einer durch Stroh Männer gebildeten Generalversammlung als Märtyrer feiern liess. Mit Recht konnten Greve und sein Vertheidiger behaupten, solche „Verschleierungen“ seien bei den Actiengesellschaften von 1871/72 gäng und gebe, solch falsche Bilanzen wären in Deutschland hunderte und tausende publicirt. Hier war sogar noch eine Zwischenperson: Eduard Stahlschmidt (Hermann Geber) eingeschoben, was man häufig nicht einmal für nöthig gehalten hat; z. B. bei dem „Lindenbauverein“, wo Herr Paul Munk ruhig an sich selber, an sich als Mitgründer verkaufte, und ebenfalls für das Dreifache.

Aber auch die Ansichten der Richter wechseln, und das Preussische Obertribunal hat bereits entschieden, dass der von den Gründern verschwiegene Profit als Betrug angesehen werden soll. Nun denke man sich einmal, dass dieses Präjudiz zur allgemeinen Anwendung käme — was für ein Schauspiel würden wir dann erleben! Wir würden plötzlich auf der Armen-sünderbank sehen Tausende von reichen und vornehmen Gründern; und in den Gefängnissen würden als blosse Nummern figuriren und in grauen oder gestreiften Drillich umhergehen: Zeitungsschreiber und Zeitungsbesitzer, „Volkswirthe“ und Parlaments-Mitglieder, Geheimräthe und Excellenzen, Edelleute und Grafen, geadelte Börsianer und baronisirte Financiers. O, das wäre ein Schauspiel für Menschen und Götter! — — —

In Summa muss von den modernen Culturkämpfern gesagt werden, dass sie, wie alle grossen Geister, ihrer Zeit sehr vorseilten, jedes Bedürfniss weit hinter sich zurückliessen, und argen Ueberfluss schufen, wo überhaupt gar kein Mangel vorhanden war.

XII.

„Dividendenjauche“.

Ein Geschichtswerk nach koscheren Quellen — Allerlei Calamitäten und Wehen — Die Biere früher und jetzt — Eine Vorgründung — Biernoth — Die Gründer lösen die „Bierfrage“ — Hermann Geber gründet Hermann Gratweil — Armand Knoblauch lässt sich gründen — Nicht zu böse, ziemlich böse, entschieden böse und sehr böse Actien-Brauereien — G. Patzenhofer und Paul Potocky-Nelken — Gründungs-Recept — Tivoli — Friedrichshain — Böhmisches Brauhaus — Unionsbrauerei — Schultheiss — Ahrens — Bock — Adler, Königstadt und Schlossbrauerei Schöneberg — Nachtstücke — Die Societätsbrauerei von Heinrich Reh — Bergbrauerei Hasenhalde — Tantiemen — Die Brauereien treten vom Christenthum zum Judenthum über — Bier „zweiter Classe“ — Zu viel „Nelken“ — „Kühle Blonde“ und „Strippe“ — Strike der Gastwirthe — Publikum trägt die Unkosten — Die Trinkgelder der Kellner und die der Gründer — Vereinsbrauerei — Herr Hugo Nehrlich — Weissbier-Gründungen — Julius Pickardt und Carl Landré — Jean Fränkel, H. A. Bolle und Emil Gericke — Die Gründer entdecken die Wittwe Fischer — Berliner Brauhaus — Potsdamer, Werder und Oranienburger Brauerei — Hauptmann Hermann Geber und seine Gesellen — Die Gründer in der Provinz — Publikum und Presse — Eine Abhandlung von Herrn Richard Rösicke — Erhöhung der Braumalzsteuer — „Steuerjauche“.

Zu Rostock ist ein Büchlein erschienen, betitelt „Der grosse Schwindel und der grosse Krach“. Ein originelles ergötzliches Büchlein! Es ist nämlich eine humoristisch-satirische Geschichte der Schwindelperiode, bloß zusammengestellt aus Citaten der Berliner Witzblätter: „Kladderadatsch“, „Wespen“ und „Ulz“; also ein Geschichtswerk, das auf unantastbaren, koscheren Quellen beruht. Im Gegensatz zu der übrigen Presse, haben „Kladderadatsch“ und Genossen den Schwindel als solchen gekennzeichnet, und mit ihren Witzen begleitet. Aber eben diese Witze und Schnurren halfen vielleicht täuschen über den blutigen Ernst des Schwindels, liessen den verbrecherischen Frevel, der an dem ganzen Volke verübt wurde, nicht recht zum Bewusstsein kommen. Während wir die auf Kosten der Gründer und Börsianer gerissenen Witze und Spässe belachten, merkten wir nicht, dass dieselben Gründer und Börsianer auch uns die Taschen leerten, auch uns bis auf's Hemde auszogen.

Die allgemeine Ausplünderung der Gesellschaft vollzog sich allmählig und fast unmerklich, im Laufe von Jahren; aber als unmittelbare Folgen des Schwindels zeigten sich sofort allerlei Calamitäten und Wehen. Hand in Hand mit der Wohnungsnoth, ging die Vertheuerung und Verschlechterung der Lebensmittel. Alle Lebensmittel und alle Waaren wurden nicht nur theurer, sondern auch schlechter, zugleich geringer an Quantität und an Qualität; oder sie erlitten gar eine grobe und nicht selten gesundheitsgefährliche Verfälschung. Das Publikum wurde nicht bloß übertheuert, dreimal betrogen: man beeinträchtigte und verleidete ihm auch den Genuss, man verkümmerte ihm des Leibes Nahrung und Nothdurft. Besonders geschah dies mit einem Artikel, der neben dem Brode, im täglichen Haushalt eine Hauptrolle spielt.

In ganz Deutschland steigert sich seit länger als dreissig Jahren der Bier-Consum, ist namentlich das sogenannte „Bairisch“ zu einem Nahrungsmittel für alle Classen geworden. Bis 1870 war es durchweg ein reines gehaltvolles Getränk; mit dem Gründungsschwindel verlor es sofort und reissend an Geschmack und an Güte; und wenn es sich auch nach dem „Krach“ wieder etwas verbessert hat, so giebt es doch immer noch viel zu klagen.

In Berlin wurde ehemals ein gutes, ja vortreffliches „Bairisch“ verschänkt. Eine Reihe hiesiger Brauereien, wie die von Schwendy, Lipps, Ahrens, Wagner, Patzenhofer, lieferten ein Fabrikat, das in Stadt und Provinz einen wohlverdienten Ruf genoss. Auch das „Actien-Bier“ von Tivoli hatte zahlreiche Liebhaber. Tivoli, 1857 begründet (nicht „gegründet“), war lange die einzige Actienbrauerei. Erst 1869 trat Friedrichshain, vormals Lipps, hinzu — eine blosse Umwandlung; schon eine Vorgründung, besorgt von Banquier Rauff, Justizrath Hinschius, Commerzienrath Gilka und Genossen.

Die hiesigen Brauereien vermochten den Bedarf nicht entfernt zu decken; in jedem Sommer zeigte sich Biernoth; das ganze Jahr hindurch wurden von nah und fern, aus der Umgegend und aus ganz Deutschland gewöhnliche Lagerbiere und „echte“ Biere eingeführt. — Hier lag ein wirkliches (nicht blos, wie bei den Wohnungen, ein scheinbares und künstlich gesteigertes) Bedürfniss vor; und es konnte den Gründern nicht entgehen. Zugleich mit der „Wohnungsfrage“ nahmen die Gründer auch die „Bierfrage“ in die Hand, und lösten sie nach ihrer Weise.

Noch vor Ausbruch des Actiengesetzes, und natürlich in Voraussicht desselben, wurden im Frühjahr 1870 zwei Brauereien in „Commanditgesellschaften auf Action“ — damals die bequemere, weil leichter erreichbare Form — verwandelt:

Unions-Brauerei, früher Gratweil; und Böhmisches Brauhaus, dem Gerichts-Assessor a. D. Knoblauch gehörig.

Hermann Geber, auch hier wieder der Erste auf dem Platz, „gründete“, in Verbindung mit den Banquiers Julius Guttentag und Georg Sackur und dem

Rechtsanwalt Hecker — seinen Freund Hermann Gratweil; der sich alsbald selber zu einem flotten Gründer entwickelte, beziehentlich bei verschiedenen, eigentlich Geber'schen Gründungen hilfreiche Hand leistete.

Armand Knoblauch liess sich „gründen“ von F. W. Krause & Co., Commerzienrath Viktor Ludwig Wrede, Gustav Gravenstein, Fabrikbesitzer Gustav Schöpplenberg und Justizrath Ahlemann.

Am 11. Juni 1870 explodirte das Actiengesetz, und nun kamen die übrigen Brauereien an die Reihe; eine nach der andern wurde „gegründet“. Wir classificiren sie, wie folgt:

Nicht zu böse Gründungen:

Friedrichshöhe, vormals Patzenhofer. Verfasser:

Banquier Anton Emil Wolff (Hirschfeld & Wolff), Banquier Paul Heimann (Marcus Nelken & Sohn), Generalconsul Ascher Salinger (Gebr. Arons) etc.
Cours ca. 90.

Schultheiss. Verfasser: Commerzienrath Wilhelm

Herz, Consul und ehemaliges Reichstagsmitglied
Gustav Müller, Consul Georg Marchand, Commerzienrath Benjamin Liebermann, Oscar Hainauer, Julius Schiff, Adolf Roesicke, Richard
Rösicke. Cours noch ca. 100.

Ziemlich böse Gründungen:

Bock, früher G. Hopf. Gründer: Commerzienrath Meyer Cohn, Julius Alexander, Dr. Otto Hübner, Fabrikant Hermann Reimann etc. Cours ca. 50.

Moabit, früher Moritz Ahrens. Gründer: Josef Pincuss (Feig & Pincuss), Bernhard Friedheim, Carl Deibel, Julius Grelling (Gebrüder Grelling). Aufsichtsräthe resp. erste „Revisoren“: Regierungsrath a. D. Albert Bühling, Dr. Georg Kurs, Dr. Hermann Rasche, Aron Aumann. Cours ca. 40.

Entschieden böse Gründungen:

Schöneberg, vormals Heinrich Schlegel. Gründer: Hermann Schuster, Gustav Löwenberg, Aron Aumann, Carl Coppel, Ludwig Max Goldberger, Adolf Martini, Fabrikbesitzer Emil Moritz Rathenau. Cours ca. 30.

Adler, vormals G. Schwendy. Gründer: Hugo Wolff, Hermann Frenkel, Director Spielhagen, Stadtrath Pohle etc. Cours ca. 20.

Königstadt, vormals Busse & d'Heureuse. Gründer resp. Aufsichtsräthe: Alwin Soergel (Deutsche Genossenschaftsbank von Soergel, Parrisius & Co.), Johann Kämpf in Halle (Halle'scher Bankverein), Anton

Securius, Julius Busse, Louis Feig, Heinrich Boofs, Arnold Wittkowski, Reichstagsmitglied Stadtrath Hausmann in Brandenburg etc. Cours ca. 20.

Sehr böse Gründungen:

Societätsbrauerei; gegründet von Heinrich Reh, Carl August Arndt und Johann Gottlieb Maecker; welche auch die berühmte Tempelhofer Baugesellschaft in die Welt setzten. Cours ca. 3.

Hasenhaide, früher C. Kelch. Gründer: Julius Samelson, Julius Pickardt, Felix Mamroth, Julius Hahlo, Joseph Neisser, Gustav Noah, Director Gustav Hartmann, General-Director Julius Müller etc. Director und später Liquidator: Albert Neisser. Cours $\frac{1}{2}$.

Von all' diesen „Gründungen“ war wol die anständigste „Friedrichshöhe“. Nach Saling's Börsenhandbuch geschah sie „mit einem sehr bescheidenen Aufschlag“. Dies war aber nicht die Schuld der Gründer, sondern die des Vorbesitzers, G. Patzenhofer, der seine Hand darüber hielt. Der ehrliche dicke Patzenhofer behielt auch die Leitung der Brauerei bis zu seinem, im Jahre 1874 erfolgten Tode, und unter ihm behaupteten Friedrichshöhe von allen Bier-Actien den höchsten Stand. Erst hinterher, unter der Direction von F. Goldschmidt und Paul Potocky-Nelken, fiel mit der Dividende auch der Cours, und die Actien nehmen nicht mehr die erste, sondern nur noch die vierte oder fünfte Stelle ein. Unter Patzenhofer betrugen die Dividenden 1870—73 durchschnittlich 10 Procent; nach seinem Tode gab es pro 1874 nur noch 8 Procent, und das Jahr 1875 warf sogar nur 5 Procent ab.

Wie es bei den Bier-Gründungen sonst, für gewöhnlich zugegangen ist, hat ein Herr Bötzwow verrathen, der sich 1871 von der Vereinigung der Brauereibesitzer trennte, und damals Folgendes erzählte:

Man hatte ihm für seine Brauerei, um dieselbe zu „gründen“, die enorme Summe von 300,000 Thaler geboten. Der Commissionair, der das Geschäft vermittelte, beanspruchte für sich die Kleinigkeit von 25,000 Thaler; der eigentliche Leiter oder Hauptgründer verlangte 50,000 Thaler, die Banquiers oder das Börsen-Consortium forderten 200,000 Thaler; so dass ein Actien-capital von 600,000 Thalern ausgeworfen werden sollte. — Herr Bötzwow hatte den Muth, abzulehnen; aber viele seiner Collegen warfen sich den Gründern mit Wollust in die Arme.

Alle jene Bier-Gründungen — auch die, deren

Actionen noch hoch im Course stehen — waren sehr theuer; alle sind heute mit einem zu grossen Capitale belastet. Auch Tivoli und Friedrichshain, die schon von 1857 und resp. 1869 datiren, haben sich in der Schwindelperiode mit neuen Emissionen und neuen Anleihen übernommen.

Das Grundcapital von Tivoli betrug bis 1870 — 1,000,000 Thaler; seitdem hat es sich, mit Hülfe der Herren Gerson von Bleichröder und Ferd. Jaques, und einschliesslich der Hypotheken, bis auf 2,600,000 Thaler vermehrt. 1871 ward ein zweites Brauerei-Etablissement zugekauft, und generös bezahlt. Es liegt in Fürstenwalde (!) und der Verkäufer war Herr August Zimmermann, der erste Director von Tivoli!! Die höchsten Dividenden warf die Gesellschaft vor dem Schwindel und vor der Capitalsüberlastung ab: 1868 — 11 Procent und 1869 — 12½ Procent; während die Dividende pro 1874 nur noch 6¼ Procent betrug. Der höchste Coursstand war gleichfalls vor dem Schwindel = 145; dagegen ist er heute bis auf ca. 90 gesunken. Der zeitige Reservefond verdankt seine Existenz hauptsächlich dem Agio, mit dem die „jungen Actionen“ unter die Leute gebracht wurden.

Ebenso hat Friedrichshain oder Lipps das Actien-

capital von 300,000 auf 600,000 Thaler vermehrt, und dazu 356,000 Thaler Hypotheken aufgenommen. Cours noch ca. 95. — Böhmisches Brauhaus liess der I. Emission von 600,000 Thalern, 1873 eine II. von 200,000 Thalern, und 1874 die III. von 300,000 Thalern folgen; doch fand diese keinen Anklang mehr, und musste von Armand Knoblauch selber übernommen werden. Neben dem Actiencapital von zusammen 1,100,000 Thalern stehen noch 500,000 Thaler Hypotheken. Trotzdem notiren die Actien über 100, und ist ihr Cours gegenwärtig unter den Brauerei-Gesellschaften der höchste. — Unionsbrauerei von Gratweil und Geber hat ein Actiencapital von 1,000,000 Thaler und 332,000 Thaler Hypotheken. Der Cours, einst bis 140 getrieben, ist auf ca. 65 zurückgegangen.

Schultheiss trägt an Grundcapital nur 500,000 Thaler und 232,000 Thaler Hypotheken; Moabit oder Ahrens dagegen 850,000 Thaler resp. 258,000 Thaler; der Bock 825,000 Thaler resp. 300,000 Thaler. Moabit wollte noch 150,000 Thaler Actien mehr machen, der Bock sogar noch 225,000 Thaler; aber Börse und Publikum versagten. Die kostspielige Wirthschaft in Moabit reizte einen der Beamten zu einem ansehnlichen Unterschleife; und dem Bock kostete die „Betheili-gung“ an dem verunglückten Restaurant in der Paul Munk'schen „Passage“, woselbst er ein ziemlich dünnes Getränk unter der Devise „Passage-Bier“ verschänken liess, im Jahre 1873 — 12,500 Thaler und pro 1874 — 25,000 Thaler. Dazu gingen im letzten Jahre Production und Ertrag erheblich zurück, und die angefangenen Bauten blieben aus Mangel an Geld liegen.

• Schlossbrauerei Schöneberg, Adler und Königstadt gehören schon zu den grausamen Gründungen; wie dies freilich nur dem Charakter der Verfasser entspricht, die sich durch eine Reihe, zum Theil noch schlimmerer Werke fast unsterblich gemacht haben. Hermann Schuster's Schlossbrauerei ist einschliesslich der Hypotheken mit 820,000 Thaler, Hermann Frenkel's und Hugo Wolff's Adler mit 1,000,000 Thaler, Alwin Sörgel's Königstadt mit 1,200,000 Thaler belastet; und Königstadt gedachte Ende 1872 noch „400,000 bis 600,000 Thaler neue Actien“ auszugeben, was aber nicht mehr gelang.

Schlossbrauerei Schöneberg wurde von dem Vorbesitzer Heinrich Schlegel „dirigirt“, bis ihm, Januar 1874, in stürmischer Generalversammlung die Actionäre, statt der Decharge, ein zorniges Misstrauensvotum ertheilten. Adler hatte die alte mangelhafte

Brauerei von G. Schwendy übermässig bezahlen müssen, stak von vorn herein in Finanznöthen und kam aus solchen nicht mehr heraus. 1873 wurden 3 Procent Dividende vertheilt. 1874 nur $1\frac{1}{2}$ Procent; 1875 ergab keine Dividende, weil durch Unachtsamkeit an 2000 Tonnen Bier vollständig verloren gingen. Eine hübsche Illustration zur Actiengesellschafts-Wirthschaft!

Königstadt wurde von dem Vor-Mitbesitzer, Julius Busse, geleitet, und hatte unter „groben Fehlern des Braumeisters“ zu leiden. Für das Geschäftsjahr 1871, welches aber nur 4 Monate umfasste, kam eine Dividende von 10 Procent zur Vertheilung, die eigentlich gar nicht verdient, sondern ein verschämtes Geschenk der Vorbesitzer war; und wurden in Folge dessen die Actien bis auf 120 getrieben. Ebenso griff 1873 der „Vorstand“ in die Tasche, holte 20,000 Thaler heraus, und vertheilte unter die Actionäre $2\frac{1}{2}$ Procent. 1874 gab es gar nur $1\frac{1}{4}$ Procent Dividende. Der Herr Director Julius Busse schob die Schuld den „hohen Gerstenpreisen“ in die Schuhe, und vertröstete die Actionäre auf das Fallen der Gerste — was von der Versammlung „befriedigend“ aufgenommen wurde. Doch jene Vertröstung und diese Befriedigung sind zu Wasser geworden. Pro 1875 ist die Dividende — 0, und das Jahr schliesst, wie die „National-Zeitung“ zartsinnig meldete, mit einer „kleinen Unterbilanz“, die „auf kostspielige technische Verbesserungen zurückgeführt werden muss“.

Auf der schiefen Ebene der Gründungen geht es ohne Halt abwärts, tiefer und tiefer. Ein Gründer übertrumpft immer noch den anderen; in vielen Fällen haben sie das gegründete Objekt sich nicht nur zwei-, drei-, fünf-, zehnmal über den Werth bezahlen lassen, sondern allmählig auch das ganze Actiencapital escamotirt; ja die Gesellschaft noch mit grossen Schulden belastet, nicht nur die Actionäre um Alles gebracht, sondern auch noch die Gläubiger betrogen. Freilich sind die „Gläubiger“ oft nur fingirt, oder doch die heimlichen Verbündeten der Gründer, resp. der Herren „Directoren“ und Aufsichtsräthe“.

Wahre Nachtstücke von Gründungen sind die Societäts-Brauerei und die Bergbrauerei Hasenhaide.

Herr Heinrich Reh „gründete“ sich selber, seine eigene, noch gar nicht fertige Brauerei, die er Societäts-Brauerei nannte und nach und nach mit 800,000 Thalern belastete. Den Actien und Hypotheken liess er noch 6procentige „Prioritäts-Obligationen“ folgen, die wahrscheinlich noch tiefer stehen als die der „Flora“, schon lange gar nicht mehr notirt werden. Wie mit den „Prioritäten“ der Flora, so handelte auch mit den Prioritäten des Herrn Heinrich Reh — der geniale Finanzkünstler Jean Fränkel: denn schöne Seelen finden sich, und wo es eine besonders faule Gründung giebt, ist in der Regel auch Herr Jean Fränkel dabei.

Heinrich Reh warf pro 1873 eine Dividende von ganzen drei Procent aus; bekam aber gleich darauf Gewissensbisse und zahlte die grandiose Dividende lieber nicht aus, sondern trug sie in die Bilanz als „unerhoben“ (!) ein. Die Generalversammlung von 1874 setzte er auf den heiligen Christabend. Nicht, dass er den Actionären eine angenehme Weihnachtsbescheerung zu machen gedachte: nein, er rechnete darauf, dass ihnen die Stunde ungelegen sein und dass sie dieselbe verpassen würden. Aber in den Zeitungen erschienen menschenfreundliche Merkzeichen und Fingerweise, und die Actionäre meldeten sich so zahlreich, dass Herr Reh schliesslich Viele abwies und ihnen die Eintrittskarte verweigerte. Auch war er so vorsichtig, die „Vertreter der Presse“ auszuschliessen, das will hier sagen, die Abgesandten der Börsenblätter — woraus wir ihm übrigens nicht den geringsten Vorwurf machen wollen, denn diese Leute sind sehr überflüssig, und sie verfolgen nicht die Interessen des Publikums, sondern nur die der Börse.

Trotz aller Vorsichtsmassregeln war die Versammlung zahlreich, und sie nahm einen sehr aufrührerischen Verlauf. Von allen Seiten erhoben sich Klagen, Vorwürfe, Anschuldigungen und Drohungen; aber Herr Reh stand da wie im brandenden Meer der Fels. Er leugnete nicht einmal, er gab fast Alles zu, er liess die empörten Actionäre schreien und toben bis sie müde wurden, und dann schloss er ruhig und würdig die Sitzung. Seiner Pflicht gemäss; veröffentlichte er auch wieder die Bilanz, ohne sie aber, wie es Gebrauch ist, von einem Revisor bescheinigen zu lassen. Herr Heinrich Reh weiss sich über solche Formen hinwegzusetzen; und in Wahrheit ist bei den Bilanzen der Actien-Gesellschaften der „Revisor“ eine blosse Form.

Der Bergbauerei Hasenhaide hatte der frühere Besitzer C. Kelch für das erste Jahr eine Dividende von 8 Procent garantirt, und er bezahlte sie auch. Die Gesellschaft erwarb das Etablissement für den kolossalen Preis von Einer Million und schritt dann noch zu kostspieligen Ankäufen und Bauten. Die Bilanz pro 1874 schloss mit einem Verluste von 96,000

Thalern; thatsächlich war aber bereits das ganze Actien-Capital und noch mehr verloren. Man musste liquidiren, und die Firma Benoni Kaskel erstand die Brauerei für 555,000 Thaler; welche Summe noch nicht einmal die Forderungen der Gläubiger deckt. Die Actien sind völlig werthlos; trotzdem werden sie an der Börse noch immer mit $\frac{1}{2}$ notirt und flott gehandelt.

Nicht nur, dass die Actien-Brauereien theuer „gegründet“ sind — auch ihr Umbau und Ausbau, ihre Vergrößerung und Erweiterung, die in manchen Fällen das Maß überschritt, fällt gerade in die theuerste Zeit. Sie kauften Terrains, Grundstücke und Maschinen zu den höchsten Preisen, sie haben überaus kostspielig gebaut. Seitdem sind Gebäude und Baugründe im Werthe sehr gesunken, die Löhne und die Preise der Materialien rapid gefallen.

Ferner ist auch die Verwaltung der Actien-Brauereien, wie die jeder Actien-Gesellschaft überhaupt, sehr theuer. Hoch sind die Gehälter und Löhne, unverhältnissmässig hoch sind die Tantiemen, welche „Vorstand“ und „Aufsichtsrath“ beziehen. Diese Tantiemen verhalten sich nicht selten zu der Dividende, welche auf die Gesammtheit der Actionäre entfällt, wie 1 zu 5. Böhmisches Brauhaus zahlte an die Actionäre 85,000

Thaler, an Vorstand und Aufsichtsrath 15,000 Thaler; Friedrichshain 45,000 Thaler und resp. 9000 Thaler; Unionsbrauerei 62,000 Thaler und resp. 10,000 Thaler; Schultheiss 50,000 Thaler und resp. 11,000 Thaler; Tivoli 125,000 Thaler und (bei nur $6\frac{1}{4}$ Procent Dividende!) 21,000 Thaler. Solch riesige Tantiemen waren vor dem Gründungsschwindel unerhört. Und selbst bei den Gesellschaften, die nur eine klägliche Dividende abwerfen, scheuen sich die Herren Directoren und Aufsichtsräthe nicht, eine erkleckliche Tantieme einzustreichen. So erhielten sie bei Moabit (4 Procent Dividende) 4000 Thaler; bei der Bockbrauerei ($4\frac{1}{3}$ Procent Dividende) 5800 Thaler; und sogar bei Adler ($1\frac{1}{2}$ Procent Dividende) 1775 Thaler!!

Die Gründer beschränkten sich darauf, Privat-Brauereien in Actiengesellschaften umzuwandeln. Die christlichen Brauereibesitzer wurden fast durchweg von Juden „gegründet“, und die Brauereien traten vom Christenthum zum Judenthum über. Aber dieser Religionswechsel bekam dem Gebräu sehr schlecht. Unter dem jüdischen Regime wurde das Bier sofort trübe und missfarbig, dünn und wässrig, matt und fade, übel-schmeckend und widerlich. Was von manchen Brauereien fabricirt, an vielen Orten verschänkt wurde, war fast ungeniessbar, war oft geradezu Gift. Um die Bier-Actien unterzubringen, warf man hohe Dividenden aus; und um, bei der ungeheuren Belastung und der kostspieligen verschwenderischen Wirthschaft überhaupt Dividenden erzielen zu können, producirte man ein Getränk, dem das Volk mit vollem Recht und höchst treffend den Namen „Dividendenjauche“ beilegte.

Unter diesem widerlichen Gesöff, das den Durst nicht stillte, und doch auch wieder nicht reizte, mancherlei Unbequemlichkeiten und sogar Unpässlichkeiten erzeugte, litten Publikum und Gastwirthe gleichmässig. Man trank es nur mit Unbehagen und Widerstreben, und man trank natürlich weit weniger als sonst. Selbst leidenschaftliche Biertrinker bezwangen und kasteieten sich.

Alle Biere, auch die, welche die noch übrig gebliebenen Privatbrauereien herstellten, wurden schlechter. Das früher so beliebte „Actienbier“ von Tivoli verlor schnell seinen Ruf; und „Actienbier“ wurde nur noch im verächtlichen Sinne gebraucht, wo man nicht „Dividendenjauche“ sagen wollte. Alle Actienbrauereien lieferten ein miserables Getränk, das miserabelste aber diejenigen Gesellschaften, welche sich später als faule und oberfaule Gründungen erwiesen, wie Schlossbrauerei Schöneberg, Adler, Societätsbrauerei und Hasenhaide. Im besten Falle wurde ein Gebräu fabricirt, das früher als „Bier zweiter Klasse“ galt, und das, die Tonne einen oder ein paar Thaler billiger, in gewissen Tanzlocalen und Vergnügungsetablissemments verschänkt worden war.

Nur Eine Ausnahme ist zu vermerken. Der alte brave Patzenhofer liess sich zu dem Schwindel der „Dividendenjauche“ nicht herab. Auch in der Gründerperiode behauptete „Patzenhofer“, wiewol jetzt ebenfalls „Actien-Bier“, seinen alten Geschmack und Gehalt. Selbstverständlich war es sehr begehrt und konnte der Nachfrage nicht genügen. — Erst nach Patzenhofer's Tode verlor es allmählig; und in der letzten Zeit hat es, zugleich mit den Dividenden, sich entschieden verschlechtert. Es enthält, wie der Volkswitz, unter Anspielung auf den Namen des neuen Directors behauptet, zu viel „Nelken“.

Aber nicht genug an der Dividendenjauche — die edlen Fabrikanten beschlossen, den Preis für dieses köstliche Nass auch noch zu erhöhen. Ihnen vorauf gingen freilich die Weissbierbrauer.

In Berlin wird noch immer viel Weissbier getrunken; auch bei der jüngeren Generation hat das „Bairisch“ die „kühle Blonde“ nicht verdrängen können. Weissbier ist ein moussirendes; in heissen Sommertagen ganz probates, nur in Cholerazeiten etwas gefährliches Getränk. Um es überhaupt trinken zu können, muss man mindestens zehn Jahre in Berlin gelebt haben. Um es mit Geschmack zu trinken, muss man in Berlin geboren sein. Dem Fremden, dem Anfänger erscheint es wie Lehmwasser, und es schmeckt ihm auch nicht besser. Dem geborenen Berliner dagegen dünkt es Champagner; als gewitzter und vorsichtiger Mann vergisst er aber doch nicht, auf die „kühle Blonde“ stets eine „Strippe“, das ist den landesüblichen Gilka oder Kümmel zu setzen.

October 1871 traten die Weissbierbrauer zusammen, und erklärten, die „übliche Rabatt-Tonne“ nicht mehr gewähren zu wollen. Als bald versammelten sich im grossen Saale des Handwerkervereins die Weissbier-Schänker und Weissbier-Verleger*), sprachen ihre moralische Entrüstung aus und verpflichteten sich auf Ehrenwort zu einem gemeinsamen Strike. Nach einigen schwachen Versuchen mussten die Brauer sich wieder zu der hergebrachten „Rabatt-Tonne“ verstehen.

*) Wer in Berlin mit Bier in Flaschen oder Kruken handelt, heisst „Bier-Verleger“; und es giebt hier auch „Milch- und Sahne-Verleger“ oder „Milch- und Sahne-Büreaux“.

Durch diesen Ausgang nicht belehrt, verbündeten sich jetzt die Actienbrauereien, und verlangten für die Tonne „Bairisch“, statt 7 Thaler, von Neujahr 1872 ab — $7\frac{1}{2}$ Thaler. Auch hier gaben den Anstoss die fragwürdigsten Gründungen, wie Moabit, Schöneberg, Adler; und bald schlossen sich ihnen die anderen Gesellschaften an. Alle verschworen sich, nicht billiger zu liefern, und erliessen an die Schankwirthe einen drohenden Ukas. Aber diese handelten ebenso geschlossen und noch energischer. Sie wiesen das „menschenentwürdigende“ Circular, wie sie den Ukas nannten, weit von sich, verpflichteten sich zu Conventionalstrafen, gründeten eine Strike-Casse und bezogen ihr Bier aus Privatbrauereien oder von auswärts.

Beide Theile legten den Casus dem Publikum vor; denn beide Theile versicherten, nur die Interessen des Publikums zu vertreten, dem die Brauer nur vorzügliches Bier liefern, das die Wirthe durchaus gegen Uebertheuerung schützen wollten. Die Brauer behaupteten, dass die Wirthe an jeder Tonne 100 Procent profitiren — was die Wirthe sonder Zögern zugaben. Dagegen bemerkten diese, dass die Brauer ihrerseits an jeder Tonne gleichfalls 100 Procent verdienen — was die Brauer nicht leugnen konnten. Publikus schien von beiden „Enthüllungen“ nicht überrascht zu sein, und sah dem Kampfe gleichmüthig zu. Die Brauer waren die Klügsten, denn sie gaben nach. Einer nach dem andern vergass seinen Schwur und lieferte zum alten Preise; während sie sich gegenseitig des Wortbruchs und des Meineids anklagten.

Die Wirthe hatten gewonnen, aber nun gingen sie gegen das Publikum vor.

Dank unsern Manchesterleuten und der allein seligmachenden Manchester-Doctrin von der „freien Concurrenz“, existiren in den Restaurationen keine geachteten Gläser und Flaschen, kümmert sich um Quantität und Qualität der verschänkten Getränke kein Gesetz, keine Aufsichtsbehörde. Ursprünglich hatten die sogenannten Bier-Seidel den Inhalt eines halben Quarts und wurden bis zum Rande, ohne Spritzschaum, gefüllt. Allmählig verkleinerten sich die Gläser; die Fabriken legten sich förmlich darauf, Vexirseidel zu machen, mit zolldickem Boden, fingerdicken Wänden und nach oben spitz zulaufend. Das war schon vor der Gründerzeit, aber nun wurde es noch weit ärger. Die Wirthe liessen die Gläser immer winziger werden.

bis sie in vielen Localen zu einem halben Seidel zusammenschrumpften, das man dem Gaste präsentirt, zu zwei Drittel Bier und zu einem Drittel Spritzschaum.

Die Tonne Bier kostet dem Wirth 7 Thaler, und bringt ihm, in ordentlichen Seideln verschänkt, 14 bis 16 Thaler. Bei solchen Miniatur-Gläsern aber schlägt er 18 bis 20 Thaler heraus. Und auch damit begnügten sich die Herren noch nicht; viele von ihnen erhöhten die Preise jetzt um 33 bis 66 Procent. Während man früher für ein ausgewachsenes Seidel guten Bieres 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ Groschen zahlte, musste man jetzt für ein Zwerg-Seidelchen „Dividendenjauche“, das der Brauerei höchstens 3 Pfennige, dem Wirth vielleicht 6 Pfennige kostete — 2 und auch 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ Groschen blechen.

Dazu kommt noch das Trinkgeld an den Kellner. Die Kellner erhalten vom Wirth gar keinen oder doch einen erbärmlichen Lohn, und sind daher auf den Wohlthätigkeitssinn der Gäste angewiesen. Vor dem Schwindel waren die Trinkgelder facultativ, wie die allgemeine Wehrpflicht; jetzt wurden sie obligatorisch, wie die Civilehe. Ehemals dankten die Kellner schon für einen halben Groschen; nun thaten sie es auch für einen ganzen noch nicht. — Nebenbei bemerkt, über-nahmen von den Kellnern die Gründer und Gründergehülfen die Lehre von den Trinkgeldern, und bildeten sie zu einem System aus, das statt der Groschen, Tausende und Hunderttausende von Gulden und Thalern setzt.

Um neuen Ausschreitungen der Actienbrauereien vorzubeugen, um dem Publikum etwas Besseres zu bieten, als die ekle „Dividendenjauche“, trat eine Anzahl von Restaurateuren zusammen, lauter politisch und oratorisch ausgebildete Männer, die sich offenbar zu etwas Höherem berufen fühlten, und gründeten, unter Führung des Bankhauses Bercht & Swoboda, eine eigene Brauerei, die Vereinsbrauerei Berliner Gastwirthe. Das war auf diesem Gebiete die einzige wirkliche Neu-Schöpfung der Gründer; aber dafür ist sie auch darnach.

Am 15. April 1872 legte man den Grundstein der Vereinsbrauerei, und Abends gab's einen grossen Ball, wo gemüthlich mit einander Gründer und Actionäre tanzten. So verlustirt sich die Katze mit den Mäusen, eh' sie sie frisst; so spielen mit einander Wölfe und Lämmer. Hätten die Actionäre ahnen können, was ihnen bevorstand: das Tanzen und Jubiliren würde ihnen vergangen sein.

„Der rühmlichst bekannte Ingenieur, Herr Nehrlich, Chef des grossen Ingenieur-Bureaus von Nehrlich & Ellissen in Frankfurt a. M.“ wurde „für das Unternehmen gewonnen“; und derselbe Herr Nehrlich fungirte auch zeitweise als „Vorsitzender des Aufsichtsraths“. Herr Hugo Nehrlich baute „mustergültig“, aber überraschend theuer, und reichte hinterher auch noch eine „Nachrechnung“ über „Extralieferungen“ ein, die den Actionären fast Thränen entpresste. Die Vereinsbrauerei ist mit $1\frac{3}{4}$ Millionen Thaler belastet; daraus erklärt sich der Cours der Actien mit ca. 10. Die Vereinsbrauerei producirte noch dünneres und schwächeres Bier als ihre Colleginnen; und sie ist in jeder Hinsicht ein würdiges Seitenstück zu der Societätsbrauerei des Herrn Heinrich Reh. Die Geschichte dieser beiden Gründungen studirt jetzt der Staatsanwalt; aber wir fürchten, es wird dabei wieder nichts herauskommen.

Die 14 Bairisch-Bierbrauereien auf Actien tragen, einschliesslich der Hypotheken, eine Capitalslast von 17 Millionen Thaler — gewiss eine gefährliche Ueberbürdung. Die Gesamtproduction betrug 1874 circa 800,000 Tonnen; welche Leistung gegenüber jener Summe, nur mässig genannt werden kann. Die Durch-schnitts-Rente war im selben Jahre nur $4\frac{1}{2}$ Procent; 6 Brauereien zahlten über 5 Procent, 8 unter 5 Procent Dividende; Hasenhaide, Societäts- und Vereinsbrauerei — 0. Wenn Friedrichshain 9, Schultheiss 10 und Böhmisches Brauhaus gleichfalls 10 Procent Dividende gaben, trotz der grossen Belastung und trotz der kostspieligen Wirthschaft, so sieht man, wie hoch-einträglich das Braugeschäft ist.

Neben „Bairisch“ machten die Gründer auch in der „kühlen Blonden“. Sie „gründeten“ die drei Weissbierbrauereien von Carl Landré, Emil Gericke und H. A. Bolle.

Landré wurde verfasst von Samelson & Sackur, Hirschfeld & Wolff, Meyer Heymann, Moritz Heilmann, Julius Pickardt, Hermann Gratweil etc. Man versprach 12 Procent Dividende und zahlte pro 1873 — $4\frac{1}{2}$, pro 1874 — 6 Procent. Cours ca. 80, Landré ist noch verzeihlich, aber bössartig sind wieder Gericke und Bolle, denn sie entstanden beide unter den Händen des Herrn — Jean Fränkel.

Bei Bolle waren ausserdem thätig: Regierungs-Assessor a. D. Plewe, Salo Pincuss, Leopold Friedmann, Carl Sachs etc. Director H. Metzkow wurde Juli 1874 seines Amts enthoben. Die letzte Bilanz schloss mit einem Verlust von 20,000 Thaler.

Cours ca. 20.

Bei Gericke hatte Herr Jean Fränkel folgende Gehülfen: Moritz Ed. Meyer, Max David, Moritz Eisner, Dr. med. Ludwig Eisner, Gastwirthe Peter Link und Ernst Radtke, Dr. juris Rellstab, Wilhelm Salamonski, Dr. Martin Ebers, Hauptmann Ludwig Ebers, Assessor Plewe. Als „erste Zeichner“ fungiren auch noch die Redacteurs Theodor Cossmann, Carl Krafft und Alexander Hoffers, sowie ein Studiosus (!), dessen Namen wir, in Erwägung seiner Jugend, und da wir ihm in den Annalen der Gründungen nicht weiter begegnet sind, verschweigen wollen.

Gericke war eine ganz unbedeutende Brauerei, die den Actionären 210,000 Thaler kostete. Im Prospect wurden 18 Procent Dividende versprochen, und pro 1871 — 12 Procent gegeben — aber nur für das Geschäftsjahr von vier Wochen! Herr Jean Fränkel zahlte pro Actie Einen Thaler aus; in den beiden letzten Jahren nichts mehr. Dafür genossen die Actionäre den Ruhm, dass ihre Direction bei der Weltausstellung in Wien eine Bude aufstellte und dasselbst „Berliner Weissbier“ verschänkte. Der Vorbesitzer, Emil Gericke, der Herrn Jean Fränkel bei verschiedenen Gründungen assistirte, leitete die Brauerei bis April 1874. Nach seinem Ausscheiden hob sich der Cours, der inzwischen bis ca. 15 gesunken, wieder etwas, und steht jetzt ungefähr 25.

Nachdem die Gründer von Bairisch- und Weissbier-Brauereien „gegründet“ hatten, was sich irgend gründen liess, schauten sie scharf aus, und entdeckten in einer abgelegenen Strasse eine Wittwe Fischer, die in stiller Zurückgezogenheit von der Welt und unbekümmert um die Fortschritte der Cultur, in patriarchalischer Weise ein patriarchalisches Getränk braute — das heute nur noch in unterirdischen Gemächern krenzenzte und nur noch von Kindern und alten Weibern begehrte „Braun- und Bitter-Bier“. Ueber diese unschuldige Wittwe stürzten sich: Benno Beer, Hermann Leubuscher, Max Gerschel, Gustav Loth, Julius Pickardt und Hofrath Moritz Alberts, und nöthigten sie, sich flugs in eine Actiengesellschaft verwandeln zu lassen, die sie mit dem pompösen Namen Berliner Brauhaus belegten. Die Bitter-Bier-Brauerei wurde den Actionären mit 390,000 Thaler berechnet, und war wirklich eine bittere Gründung. Inzwischen hat man liquidirt, und die Liquidation ergab ganze $2\frac{1}{2}$ Procent.

Selbstverständlich beschränkten sich die Berliner Gründer nicht auf Berlin; sie suchten auch die Provinzen, das ganze grosse Deutsche Vaterland sorgfältig ab.

In der nächsten Umgegend entstanden:

Potsdamer Brauerei, vormals W. Höne. Gründer: Louis Bamberger, Jean Fränkel, Salomon Kann, Isaak Wiener, Assessor a. D. Plewe etc. Cours ca. 15.

Brauerei Werder bei Potsdam, vormals F. W. Hoffmann; vorgekauft von Joseph Julius Seelig und Siegfried Geber. Gründer: Julius Pickardt, Leopold Krautheim, Fritz Ramme etc. Cours ca. 5.

Brauerei Oranienburg, vormals Heinrich Wisotzki; an die Berliner Börse gebracht durch die Makler A. Borchardt und Paul Busse. Gründer: Julius Pickardt, Julius Joseph, Bernhard Bonwitt, Louis Gratweil, Alfred Glasenfeld, Emil Treitel, Moritz Treitel, Louis Blumenthal in Oranienburg. Cours 10 Brief.

Wie man sieht, kehren dieselben Personen häufig wieder, treten bei den verschiedensten Gründungen auf. In sehr intimen Beziehungen stehen zu einander und gründeten oft Hand in Hand: Hermann Geber (gewissermafsen der Häuptling, der aber gern hinter den Cou-lissen bleibt), Siegfried Geber, Reinhold Alexander Seelig, Joseph Julius Seelig, Eduard Stahlschmidt, Hermann Leubuschër, Julius Pickardt, Hermann Gratweil, Louis Gratweil, Moritz Bonwitt, Bernhard Bonwitt, Bernhard Maywald, Alwin Philipp, Justizrath Hinschius (kürzlich zum Geheimrath ernannt); Julius Müller, Generaldirector der Wöhlert'schen Maschinenfabrik; Julius Schweitzer, Börsen-Redacteur der „National Zeitung“ etc.

Hermann Gratweil „gründete“ in Verbindung
mit Samelson & Sackur, David Liepmann in Berlin, Gebr. Alexander, Ludwig Heyne, Oppenheim &
Schweitzer in Breslau — die dortige Brauerei Wiesner; und in Verbindung mit Seelig und Ferdinand Strahl (Centralbank für Genossenschaften) die Brauerei
von Herberz & Co. in Dortmund; die beide den Actionären viel Schmerzen bereiteten.*) Louis Gratweil „gründete“ die Brauerei Schloss Oranienburg;
und mit Kaufmann und Gustav Bendix die Grätzer

*) In Sachen der Dortmunder Brauerei von vormal's Her-berz & Co. wurde von den Actionären eine „Untersuchungs-Commission“ gewählt, und liessen sich demnächst die Gründer resp. Vorbesitzer bewegen, eine Summe von 100,000 oder 200,000 Thaler herauszugeben.

Brauerei im Posen'schen; eine Gesellschaft, die 16 Procent Dividende versprach, aber gleich bei der Geburt verunglückte, indem zwei angebliche Mitgründer die Unterzeichnung des Prospects öffentlich bestritten.

Die Kieler Actien-Brauerei, vormal's Consul C. Scheibel, ward von der Gruppe Geber-Stahlschmidt gegründet; die Mecklenburgische Actien-Brauerei in Schwerin, vormal's Schall & Schwenke, von F. E. Schreiber Söhne in Berlin und G. J. Schulz in Schwerin; die Schlesische Actienbrauerei, vormal's Carl Scholtz in Breslau, von Heinrich Quistorp; die Hessische Brauerei in Cassel von Robert Baumann (Berliner Bank). Die Stettiner Brauerei wurde zur Zeichnung aufgelegt von S. Abel jr.; die Nürnberger Brauerei, vormal's Heinrich Henninger, von Samelson & Sackur; die Gumbinner Brauerei von Meyer Cohn; die Actien-Brauerei zu Gohlis von Emil Ebeling; die Geraer Actien-Brauerei von Moritz Löwe & Co.; die Görlitzer Brauerei von F. Martin Magnus etc. etc.

Was auswärts nicht Berliner Gründer thaten, thaten Gründer in der Provinz. In jeder Stadt, in jedem Städtchen erstanden Actienbrauereien. Von diesen in der Provinz „gegründeten“ Actienbrauereien sind inzwischen eine lange Reihe in Liquidation getreten oder in Concurs gerathen. Viele kamen unter den Hammer des Auctionators, und gingen für ein Spottgeld in Privathände über, Aller Orten klagte und schalt man über „Dividendenjauche“. Merkwürdigerweise fanden diese lauten Klagen in der Presse nicht den geringsten Wiederhall. Die Presse, die sich als Organ der öffentlichen Meinung, als Vertreterin der allgemeinen Interessen gerberdet, war und blieb ein stummer Hund. Sie hatte auch kein Wort für das Treiben der Bäcker, welche die Backwaaren klein bis zur mikroskopischen Grenze werden liessen, und den Preis des kleinsten Gebäcks rasch auf das Doppelte und Dreifache erhöhten. Sie sah es ruhig mit an, wie die Fleischer und Höker, Gewürzer und Händler aller Art die Maß- und Gewichtsordnung benutzten, um namentlich die kleinen Leute in der unverantwortlichsten Weise zu kürzen und zu betrügen. Unsere Zeitungen werden nicht sowohl für als gegen das Publikum geschrieben, das sie nicht warnen, nicht schützen, das sie vielmehr täuschen und plündern helfen.*)

*) Mit dem Fortschreiten der Krisis, mit dem Wachsen

Erst neuerdings, wo das Uebel schon nicht mehr so crass auftritt, las man in einigen Zeitschriften Aufsätze über Verschlechterung und Verfälschung des Biers, und auch im Reichstag kam die Sache zur Sprache. Da geriethen die Brauer in Harnisch, wiesen die Beschuldigung mit Entrüstung zurück und drohten mit gerichtlichen Strafanträgen.

Herr Richard Roesicke, der „gegründete“ Mitvorbesitzer und jetzige Director der Schultheiss'schen Brauerei, erliess als Inserat eine lange Abhandlung, worin er nachzuweisen sucht, dass die Brauer nur wenig Malzsurrogate und gar keine Hopfensurrogate verwenden. Indess muss er doch zugeben: „dass die Biere nicht mehr so stark gebraut und nicht mehr so lange gelagert werden, wie früher“. Das aber sind, wie Jedermann begreifen kann, zwei wesentliche Mängel, die allein schon die Verschlechterung des Biers erklären. Herr Roesicke meint zwar: die Fortschritte in der Brauereikunst, die Verwerthung des Dampfes, die Vervollkommnung der Maschinen etc.

des Npthstandes haben endlich einige Berliner Blätter sich auf ihre Pflicht besonnen, und gegen die unverschämten Preise der Fleischer, Bäcker etc. für das Publikum Partei genommen. So thaten namentlich die „Vossische“, die „Staatsbürger-Zeitung“ und der „Figaro“ oder die „Neue Freie Zeitung“.

Doch das ist eitel Dunst! Unsere Zunge lehrt uns, trotz Herrn Roesicke, dass die Biere entschieden an Gehalt und Geschmack verloren haben, dass sie lange nicht mehr das sind, was sie vor dem Gründungsschwindel waren.

Und die Regierung thut ein Uebriges. Anstatt die Brauweise und den Ausschank des Biers unter Controle zu stellen, legte sie ein Gesetz vor: die Erhöhung der Braumalzsteuer. Wahrscheinlich, um die Börsensteuer annehmbarer zu machen, die sie seit Jahren plante, aber bisher nicht einzubringen wagte, sollte das Bier nun doppelt besteuert werden. Nach Aufhebung der Schlacht- und Mahlsteuer, nachdem die Wissenschaft jede Besteuerung der eigentlichen Lebensbedürfnisse für verwerflich erklärt hat — gewiss ein wunderbares Project, das da zeugt, von dem rathlosen Hin- und Herschwanken, von dem verzweifelten Experimentiren unserer manchesterlichen Steuerpolitiker. Die Brauer protestirten gegen die Erhöhung der Braumalzsteuer. Sie erblicken darin eine „neue Schädigung“ des Brauergewerbes, das „ohnehin durch die hohen Preise der Rohmaterialien, sowie durch die in der Gründungsperiode entstandene grosse Concurrenz mit einem sehr geringen Nutzen zu arbeiten genöthigt ist“. — —

Nun, die Herren Brauer würden sich schon zu salviren wissen. Entweder sie erhöhen die Preise, oder sie fabriciren „Steuerjauche“; oder sie thun auch Beides! Das Publikum würde den Schaden spüren, das Publikum würde die Steuer zahlen müssen; und
zwar nicht einfach, sondern doppelt und dreifach.

XIII.

An der Berliner Börse.

Prinzessin Mumpitz — Vorbörse — Coullisse und Zeitgeschäfte — Hausse- und Baisse-Partei — Das Börsenspiel und seine „Combinationen“ — Ultimo — „Internationale“ und „locale“ Spielpapiere — Börsen-Jargon — Am Drehkreuz — Auf der Galerie — Die Meininger und die Börsianer — 500 Cohn's — Die Garderobe — Im Börsensaal — „Geschäftsstille“ — „Verleidete“ Makler und „Pfuschmakler“ — Die Maklerbarren — „Provision“ und „Courtage“ — Das „Lombardenviertel“ und die Schlacht vor Troja — Course heruntergeschrieben — Kleine Jobber und grosse Faiseurs — Des Teufels Ernte — „Wissenschaftliche“ Rechtfertigung des Börsenspiels durch Dr. Otto Michaelis — Differenzgeschäfte und Börsensteuer — „Unser Verkehr“ — „Am Moritzplatz“ — Comment suspendu — Sinnreicher Ulk — Die „Berichterstatte der Presse“ und ihre Adjutanten — Herr Julius Schweitzer, Herr Killisch von Horn, Herr Davidsohn und Herr Treuherz — Die „verleideten“ Makler ziehen sich zurück — Limitirt, unlimitirt und fest — Mittelcours — Homo sum: humani nihil a me alienum puto — Die Börse wird ausgeläutet — Abendbörse, Winkelbörse und Sonntagsbörse.

Eilf Uhr Vormittag.

Wir befinden uns Ecke der Burg- und Neuen Friedrichstrasse. Wir stehen vor dem Tempel des Gotts Merkur oder der Göttin Fortuna — wie man will. Die Börsianer selber nennen das mächtige prächttige Haus etwas unehrerbietig, aber mit anerkennenswerther Unbefangenheit und Offenheit, den Palast der Prinzessin — Mumpitz; welches Wort ungefähr soviel wie — Schwindel bedeutet.

Noch sind die dreizehn Thüren (eine ominöse Zahl!), welche in das Vestibül führen, geschlossen, aber schon kauern und lungern davor Zeitungsjungen, Apfelsinenmädchen, Dienstmänner etc. Die von dorischen Säulen getragene Vorhalle füllt sich alsbald mit Börsenleuten, welche sofort an's „Geschäft“ gehen.

Schon um 11 Uhr beginnt hier draussen die Vorbörse. Sie wird officiell nicht anerkannt, man legt ihr bloß einen Privat-Charakter bei; aber sie kümmert sich nicht darum, sie hat trotzdem ihre volle Bedeutung. Schon hier wird eifrig gehandelt, ununterbrochen Cours auf Cours gemacht; schon hier treffen telegraphische Depeschen von der Wiener Vorbörse ein; schon hier entscheidet sich häufig, ob die Börse „fest“ oder „matt“, „animirt“ oder „lustlos“ wird, ob eine „Hausse“ oder eine „Baisse“ heranzieht, oder gar der Teufel los ist — eine „Panique“ droht, welche die Course procentweise stürzen läßt.

Die Herren, welche so früh versammelt sind, gehören der Coulisse an. Es sind im engern Sinne, die Speculanten der Börse. Sie handeln nicht per comp- tant: Zug um Zug, und Geld gegen Waare; sondern sie machen lauter Zeitgeschäfte, die erst später, nach Tagen oder Wochen, regulirt werden. Sie kaufen und verkaufen ohne Geld, nur auf Credit; sie verkaufen Papiere, die sie gar nicht haben, und sie kaufen Effecten, die sie nie abzunehmen gedenken. *)

Die Coulissee zerfällt in zwei Lager, in die Hausse- und in die Baisse-Partei. Jene speculirt auf das Steigen; diese, auch Contremine genannt, auf das Fallen der Papiere. Man kauft: auf fixe Lieferung, auf tägliche Lieferung, auf fixe und tägliche Lieferung, auf Ankündigung; man schliesst Prämiengeschäfte, indem man Vorprämien oder Rückprämien auswirft, man macht eine Stellage, man kauft oder verkauft mit 3 oder gar 7 mal Noch; man prolongirt das Geschäft, nimmt die Papiere in Kost, und erhält dafür Report, oder entleiht Stücke (Effecten) und zahlt dafür Deport. — Die Zeitgeschäfte sind von so mannigfacher Art, wie die Thiere in der Arche Noah's. Wir könnten Bogen darüber schreiben, und der nicht eingeweihte Leser

*) Vgl. S. 4.

würde uns doch nicht verstehen. Die berühmten Mysterien zu Eleusis waren gar nichts dagegen.*)

Am Ultimo, dem letzten Tage des Monats, werden die Geschäfte oder eigentlich, Wetten regulirt, wird Gewinnst und Verlust ausgeglichen, werden die Differenzen bezahlt. Wer nicht zahlen kann oder nicht zahlen will, bleibt von der Börse fort und zieht sich für einige Zeit in's Privatleben zurück.

Die Papiere, in denen die Coullisse vorzugsweise handelt, und die doch viele Speculanten Zeit ihres Lebens nie zu Gesicht bekommen, heissen Speculations-Effecten oder Spielpapiere. Obenan stehen die sogenannten internationalen Spielpapiere, welche an den verschiedensten Börsen, nicht nur in Berlin, sondern auch in Wien, Frankfurt a. M., Hamburg, Paris, London gehandelt werden. Die vornehmsten sind: die Actien der Oesterreichischen Südbahn, der Oesterreichisch-Französischen Staatsbahn und der Oesterreichischen Credit-Anstalt. Die Börse, welche die Kürze liebt und die Worte spart, nennt diese drei Papiere einfach „Lombarden“, „Franzosen“ und „Credit“.*) Neben den internationalen giebt es auch locale Spielpapiere, von denen gegenwärtig den ersten Rang behaupten: die Actien der Berliner Disconto-Gesellschaft, die Actien der Vereinigten Königs- und Laurahütte bei Beuthen in Oberschlesien, und die Actien der Union, Gesellschaft für Bergbau, Eisen- und Stahl-Industrie in Dortmund. Sie sind kurzweg „Disconto“, „Laura“ und „Union“ getauft.

*) Herr James Moser hat ein Buch verfasst: „Die Lehre von den Zeitgeschäften“. Er entwickelt dieselben zugleich nach „synthetischer“ und „analytischer“ Methode, in „mathematischer“ und „nicht mathematischer“ Form. Nach ihm ergiebt das Prämien-, Stell- und Nochgeschäft nicht weniger denn 51 „Combinationen“!

„Lombarden“ setzen an der Vorbörse — wir reden jetzt den poetischen Börsen-Jargon — mit 182 ein, steigen auf 183—183 $\frac{1}{2}$, gehen auf 182 $\frac{1}{2}$ zurück und schliessen mit 183 $\frac{1}{8}$. „Franzosen“ kommen zu 490 aus Wien matt, behaupten sich hier aber ziemlich. Auch „Credit“, mit 318,50 von auswärts gemeldet, zieht etwas an. — „Disconto“ wird mit 109 stark angeboten. Auch „Laura“ muss nachgeben: 60—59 $\frac{1}{4}$. „Union“ ist fast gar nicht gefragt, und schliesst flau mit 7,60.

Zehn Minuten vor Zwölf.

Die Thüren werden geöffnet, die „Vorbörse“ löst sich auf, von allen Seiten strömen die Jünger Merkur's herbei.

*) Vgl. S. 3.

Sie kommen zu Fuss und zu Wagen, in Droschken zweiter und erster Classe; auch in eigenen, oft kostbaren Equipagen, mit galonirten Kutschern und Bedienten. Es kommen die „jungen Leute“ (Commis), die Boten und Ausläufer; es kommen die Makler, Agenten und Banquiers; es kommen die „Häuser“ und die „grossen Häuser“.

Alles drängt und fluthet in das Vestibül, wo ein Portier und zwei Controleure Wache halten — drei stattliche Figuren in schmucker Uniform und, wie alle Bedienstete und Unterbeamten, christlich-germanischer Abkunft. Links geht es zur Fonds- oder Geldbörse, rechts zur Producten- und Waarenbörse. Hier ist der Zuspruch verhältnissmässig schwach, dort stark und massenhaft. Eine mächtige Thür, in Form eines mit grünem Tuche ausgeschlagenen Drehkreuzes, das man geschickt und behutsam benutzen muss, bildet den Zugang. Bei jeder Umdrehung werden wol ein Viertel-hundert Personen befördert, und zwar im Geschwindigkeitsschritt. Trotzdem schlüpft so leicht Keiner durch. Der Controleur kennt Jeden, und wen er nicht kennt, den hält er an, fragt nach der „Karte“ oder nach dem „Hause“, und führt den Unberechtigten höflich am Kragen wieder hinaus.

Wir sind nicht Mitglied der Kaufmannschaft, wir haben keine Eintrittskarte gelöst; also steigen wir auf die Galerie, wo der Zugang ohne Weiteres für Jedermann, auch für Damen, freisteht. Unten, im Börsensaal selber werden, mit Ausnahme der Heben am Büffet, nur Männer gelitten.

Wir befinden uns in dem grössten geschlossenen Raume Berlins. Der Börsensaal ist beispielsweise dreimal so gross als der früher vielbewunderte Königssaal bei Kroll; und fasst über 5000 Personen. Er ist grossartig und prächtig, vielleicht etwas überladen. Doch entspricht dies ja dem Geschmack des auserwählten Volks; und auch der Erbauer Hitzig, der Sohn des bekannten Criminalisten und Begründers des „Neuen Pitaval“, ist orientalischer Abkunft. Polirte, aus einem Stück bestehende Säulen von schlesischem Granit, 128 an der Zahl, tragen in zwei Reihen übereinandergestellt, eine umlaufende Galerie. Die 65 Fuss hohe gewölbte Decke ist ebenso wie der getäfelte Fussboden von kunstreicher Arbeit. Eine offene Arkade, über welcher eine nach beiden Seiten hin sichtbare Uhr mit doppeltem Zifferblatt angebracht ist, theilt den Saal in zwei Hälften: die nördliche gehört der Geld-, die südliche der Getreidebörse, und beide sind von den Sitzreihen der Handelsfirmen durchzogen.

Zwölf Uhr.

Der Saal ist gefüllt, die officiële „Börse“ hat begonnen. Wir blicken auf ein Meer von Köpfen, theils voll von meist dunkeln blanken oder wolligen Locken, theils gelichtet und kahl und erglänzend wie silberner Mondschein. Unten sind Tausende von Lippen in Bewegung; man spricht, man ruft, man schreit — aber wir verstehen kein Wort. Nur ein Murren, ein Murmeln klingt herauf, und schlägt gegen die Wände und schlägt bis zur Decke. Was ist dagegen das Gemurmel, welches wir beim Gastspiel der Meininger, im „Fiesco“ hörten; das künstliche Gemurmel des aufgeregten Volks! Ein schwaches, fragwürdiges Summen. Hier dagegen haben wir Natur und Kraft, hier redet Israel in begeisterten Zungen, in den unnachahmlichen eigenartigen Kehlhauchen und Gaumenlauten. Es rauscht wie der Wald vor dem ausbrechenden Gewitter, es braust wie die See nach dem Sturm.

Wir starren hinab und suchen nach einem bekannten Gesicht. Plötzlich entdecken wir Herrn Cohn; und der Zufall will, dass auch er uns bemerkt. Er grüsst und nickt, er lächelt und winkt, und wir eilen hinab. Es leben in Berlin ca. 500 mehr oder weniger ausgewachsene Männer, die sich Cohn oder Kohn schreiben; aber fast alle mosaischen Glaubens sind und fast alle für den Handel schwärmen. Gut die Hälfte der Cohn's geht täglich an die Börse, und zu diesen gehört auch unser Freund Cohn. Seinen Vornamen nennen wir nicht, denn wir wissen ihn nicht.

Herr Cohn ist „corporirt“, d. h. Mitglied der Kaufmannschaft. Er hat das Recht, Fremde einzuführen; er erwartet uns am Drehkreuz, reicht uns seinen Arm, und wir spazieren durch die geräumige Garderobe, wo leider seit dem „Krach“ häufig Regenschirme, Hüte und Paletots verschwinden, in den Börsensaal.

Der Eintritt ist nur von den Seiten. Die beiden Längswände sind von je dreizehn Thüren durchbrochen, welche mit den Thüren des Vestibüls correspondiren. Die nach der Vorhalle hin werden nie geöffnet, weil sonst die ganze Börse vor Zug aufliegen würde; wohl aber die gegenüberliegenden, welche in einen Säulenhof führen, wo man im Sommer Luft schöpft.

Die Börse ist lange nicht mehr so besucht wie in den Jahren 1871—73. Trotzdem herrscht noch immer Gedränge, staut und stopft sich zuweilen die Menge, und wir müssen uns dann mit Armen und Schultern Bahn brechen. Täglich melden die Zeitungen eine grössere und grössere „Geschäftsstille“, die „kaum noch überboten werden könne“. Aber dem Fremden wird das Leben und Treiben auch heute noch imponiren. Mindestens neun Zehntel der Anwesenden stammen aus dem gelobten Lande. „An den hohen jüdischen Festtagen“, wie es in den Berichten heisst, ist die Börse leer und verödet.

Auf erhöhten Plätzen, umgeben von Schranken, sitzen die Makler, welche die Geschäfte zwischen Käufer und Verkäufer vermitteln. Sie erhalten ihre Aufträge vor und während der Börse von den Banquiers und von den Speculanten, verkehren also nicht mit dem Publikum selber, und fertigen über die abgeschlossenen Geschäfte Schlusszettel, Schlussnoten oder blosse Notizen aus. Banquiers und Speculanten handeln aber auch ohne Makler, direct mit einander. Es giebt amtlich angestellte oder vereidete Makler und unvereidete oder Pfuschkakler. Zwischen beiden besteht kein besonderer Unterschied; und vermitteln die Pfuschkakler nicht selten mehr Geschäfte als die vereideten Makler. An der Fondsbörse bilden allein die Makler mit ihren Gehülfen ein Corps von mehren Hundert Personen; während die Zahl der andern Besucher: Banquiers mit ihren Commis, Speculanten, Private etc. durchschnittlich gegen 2000 beträgt.

An einer Maklerbarre werden Staatspapiere, Pfand- und Rentenbriefe, Wechsel und Geldsorten, Hypotheken-Certificate und Lotterie-Anleihen gehandelt; an der andern Eisenbahnpapiere, an der dritten Bank-, an der vierten Industrie- und Versicherungs-Actien. Ist das Geschäft lebhaft, sind die Maklerschranken wie vollgepfropft, und jede Barre von einem drei- bis zehnfachen Gürtel umlagert. Auf den Fussspitzen stehend und sich fast die Hälse ausreckend, wirft man sich Fragen und Antworten zu, handelt man über die Köpfe von sechs Vordermännern hinweg: Köln-Mindener oder Rheinische Eisenbahn-Actien, Darmstädter Bank und Meininger Credit, Harpener Bergbau und Bochumer Gussstahl. Die Gesamtzahl der Papiere, welche an der Berliner Börse Cours haben, ist auch gegen 2000.

Die Banquiers erhalten von ihren Kunden eine Provision, welche $\frac{1}{8}$ bis $\frac{1}{4}$ pro Cent vom Nennwerth der gekauften oder verkauften Effecten beträgt. Die Makler erhalten von den Banquiers und Speculanten eine Courtage, vom Käufer wie Verkäufer gewöhnlich $\frac{1}{2}$, also zusammen 1 pro Mille. Erscheint namentlich die letztere Gebühr nur klein, so haben doch verschiedene Makler, als das Geschäft noch blühte, durchschnittlich mehre Hundert Thaler Courtage an Einem Tage eingestrichen; woraus man entnehmen kann, wie riesig der Umsatz gewesen ist. Selbst heute giebt es noch Makler, welche durch Vermittelung von Zeitgeschäften eine tägliche Einnahme von ca. 50 Thalern erzielen. Viele ihrer Collegen dagegen, besonders die, welche in Industriesachen handeln, machen gegenwärtig sehr schlechte Geschäfte.

Trotz der „miserablen Zeiten“, trotz der „drückenden Geschäftsstille“ herrscht in einem Theile des Saals, in der südwestlichen Ecke, stets arges Gedränge und wildes Getümmel. Es ist das Lombarden-Viertel, es ist das Reich der Coullisse und der Pfuschkakler. Hier werden nur Zeitgeschäfte gemacht, hier werden nur Spielpapiere zu festen Coursen gehandelt. Im Vergleich zu diesem Schauspiel ist das sonstige Treiben der Börse still und matt zu nennen. Hier wird eine Schlacht geschlagen, hier tobt ein Kampf wie einst vor Troja, mit lautem Rufen im Streit. Man stürzt hin und her, man springt auf die Sitze, man steht einander fast auf den Köpfen. „Wer kauft Credit?“ — „Wer hat Credit?“ — „Ich nehme Franzosen mit $6\frac{1}{4}$!“ — „Ich gebe Lombarden mit $2\frac{1}{2}$!“ (Der Kürze wegen werden im Laufe des Geschäfts bloß die Einer und Bruchtheile gerufen, während man die Zehner und Hunderte als bekannt voraussetzt.) „Wie steht Credit?“ — „Was gelten Lombarden?“ — „Ich brauche Credit bis $7\frac{5}{8}$!“ — So schallt es wild durcheinander. Wild und ununterbrochen. Die Rufer im Streit, welche das Notizbuch und den Bleistift in der Hand, wie besessen hin und herspringen, sind die Pfuschkakler; und ihr Dienst ist wirklich anstrengend. Die meisten leiden an ewiger Heiserkeit; einige sehen bedenklich schlagflüssig aus; manche verlieren binnen ein paar Jahren völlig die Stimme und müssen dann nothgedrungen ihren Abschied nehmen.

„Rumänier (Rumänische Eisenbahnactien) zu $25\frac{1}{2}$!“ ruft ein dünnes Männchen mit schriller Stimme; und er plappert es in Einem fort, ohne den Athem anzuhalten. Mit $25\frac{1}{2}$ bietet er Rumänier aus. Herr Cohn, der sich noch immer an unserer Seite befindet, macht plötzlich gegen das Männchen eine Wendung und spricht: „50,000 (Thaler) von Ihnen!“ Nun braucht der Andere bloß zu antworten: „An Sie!“ und das Geschäft wäre rechtsgültig abgeschlossen.

Aber nein, er blickt Herrn Cohn nur grinsend in's Gesicht, und versetzt mit dem selben breiten Grinsen: „Reden Sie doch keinen Stuss!“ Herr Cohn lächelt gleichfalls, murmelt mit offenbarem Wohlwollen: „Alter Spitzbube!“ und geht weiter. Das Männchen aber nimmt seinen Ruf wieder auf, und Herr Cohn erklärt uns dieses Räthsel, indem er bemerkt: „Der Alte braucht selber Rumänier, darum schreit er sie herunter.“ — „Credit! Ich kaufe Credit!! Ich nehme 50 (Stück) Credit mit $7\frac{1}{2}$!!!“ brüllt ein grosser Mann, ebenso schön anzusehen wie Thersites, und mit einem ebenso melodischen Organ ausgerüstet. „„Ich gebe sie franco (ohne) Courtage!““ bemerkt ein modischer Jüngling. „Mit! Sonst verdiene ich nichts!“ brummt Thersites. „„Franco!““ wiederholt der Modische. Thersites besinnt sich noch einen Augenblick, dann kritzelt er in sein Taschenbuch, spricht: „Gemacht!“ und stürzt sich wieder in die Schlacht.

Unter der Coullisse ist jedes Alter, vom Milchbart bis zum Greise, vertreten, und sie recrutirt sich aus den verschiedensten Ständen. Hier ist Mancher, der „seinen Beruf verfehlt“ hat, manche „catilinarische Existenz“; manches „confiscirte“ Gesicht, dem wir nicht gern bei Nacht oder im tiefen Walde begegnen möchten.

Viele sind noch Neulinge, andere erfahrene bemooste Häupter. Die gewöhnlichen Coulissiers beschränken sich in ihren Abschlüssen auf mässige Summen, und spielen thatsächlich um das tägliche Brod. Die da selbständig vorgehen, und grössere Operationen unternehmen, heissen Faiseurs; aber augenblicklich fehlt es an solchen sehr.

Dort sitzt ein kleines Kerlchen, gelb wie eine Quitte, mit klugen stechenden Augen. Er sitzt wie ein bevorrechteter Stammgast unmittelbar vor dem Makler, dem er fortwährend Aufträge ertheilt, und den er fast allein beschäftigt. Seine Glaubensgenossen, die Baissiers, sehen mit Bewunderung zu ihm — nicht hinauf, dazu ist er zu klein — aber doch hinunter, und richten sich nach ihm wie die Heerde nach dem Leithammel. Herr Levi — so heisst er — wenn wir nicht irren — verkauft ein 50 Stück Credit und ein 100 Stück Lombarden nach dem andern. Aber er verkauft nicht blos: er kauft auch wieder; er kauft fast ebenso oft — um sich zu „decken“, wie es in der Börsensprache heisst. Der Cours steigt und fällt wie die Meereswoge; Herr Levi hat sich „gedeckt“ und „fixt“ von Neuem darauf los. Er glaubt an die Baisse, und in diesem Glauben scheint sich auch der allergrösste Theil der Börse zu befinden.

Die Mehrzahl der Jobber, wie die blossen Spieler genannt werden, hält nicht lange Stich, sondern verschwindet etwa binnen Jahres-, ja häufig schon nach Monatsfrist; und sie werden nur dann vermisst, wenn sie, was sich nicht zu selten trifft, die Differenzen schuldig geblieben sind. Wie man behauptet, sollen die Haussiers besser als die Baissiers oder Fixer gedeihen, aber genauer besehen, spinnen die Jobber überhaupt keine Seide. Sie bereichern nur die Banquiers und die Makler, und die kleinen Speculanten werden fast regelmässig von den grossen aufgefressen. Nur selten versteht es Einer, sich zur rechten Zeit mit seinem Gewinnst zurückzuziehen; häufig verliert er ihn wieder und das Doppelte und Dreifache dazu. Sicher ist, dass hier viele Familien ruinirt werden, und der Teufel hier eine reiche Ernte hält.

Gegen das Spiel an der Börse sind alle Hazardspiele blosse Kindereien, waren sogar die aufgehobenen sogenannten „Spielhöllen“ unschuldig zu nennen. In Homburg oder Baden-Baden konnte man doch nur so viel verlieren, als man gerade bei sich hatte. Beim „Differenzeln“ an der Börse weiss man nie, wieviel man verliert, kann man in einer Stunde mehr verlieren, als man überhaupt besitzt. Das Börsenspiel ist so halbrecherisch und gemeingefährlich, dass es die Regierungen nimmermehr dulden sollten. Trotzdem hat es unter den manchesterlichen „Volkswirthen“ seine „wissenschaftlichen“ Vertheidiger, seine begeisterten Lobredner gefunden. Herr Dr. Otto Michaelis, „correspondirendes Mitglied der kaiserlichen Akademie der Wissenschaften in St. Petersburg“, vortragender Rath im Reichskanzler-Amt und die rechte Hand von Excellenz Delbrück, hat einen Aufsatz geleistet: „Die wirthschaftliche Rolle des Speculationshandels“*), worin er nachweist, dass auch das reine Differenz- oder Spielgeschäft durchaus berechtigt, ja erspriesslich ist, indem es Handel und Verkehr „regulirt“, Umschläge ausgleicht und Stockungen beseitigt; indem es den Interessen des Publikums dient, „einen Theil der unvermeidlichen Verluste von den Privatinhabern auf die Börse abwälzt“. — — Die Börsenspieler, und namentlich die Fixer, welche die Course gewaltsam herunterreissen, sind also eben solche Wohlthäter der Gesellschaft, wie die Gründer!

Allerdings gelten die Zeit- oder Differenzgeschäfte

*) „Volkswirtschaftliche Schriften“ von Otto Michaelis, Bd. 2, Berlin 1873.

nicht für ganz reinlich und zweifelsohne; sie werden nicht im amtlichen Theil des Courszettels, sondern in einem Nachtrage notirt, und hauptsächlich durch Pfuschkakler vermittelt; der Börsenvorstand ignorirt sie gewissermaßen und duldet sie anscheinend nur. Dessenungeachtet beherrschen sie die ganze Börse, geben sie täglich Stimmung und Haltung derselben an, setzen sie Hausse oder Baisse auch für alle übrigen Papiere in Scene. Schon früher überwog bedeutend das Zeitgeschäft*); aber seit dem „Krach“ ist dies noch weit, weit mehr der Fall. Das Cassageschäft tritt fast gänzlich zurück, und den ganzen Monat hindurch richtet sich das Denken und Sinnen, Fürchten und Hoffen der Börse hauptsächlich auf den Ultimo und die Ultimoregulirung. — Die Börsensteuer würde hauptsächlich die Spielgeschäfte oder Wetten treffen, aber ebendeshalb ist sie den „Volkswirthen“ ein Gräuel, wird sie von ihnen als „unvolkswirtschaftlich“ bekämpft, als den Verkehr beengend und hemmend.

Ein Uhr.

Das Geschäft hat seine Höhe erreicht. Durch das Gewühl und Gedränge winden sich fortwährend die

*) Vgl. S. 4.

Boten des in einem Nebenzimmer befindlichen Telegraphen-Bureaus, und alsbald ist der Fussboden mit Couverts bedeckt. Der Empfänger wagt das Telegramm nur ein Viertel auseinander zu falten, und liest es dicht vor dem Gesicht, damit ein Nachbar rechts oder links nicht mit hineingucke. Will Einer dem Andern etwas allein sagen, so packt er ihn beim Kopf und flüstert ihm in's Ohr. In gleicher Weise verkehren auch die Ausläufer und die „jungen Leute“ mit ihren Chefs, denen sie Meldungen abstatten, oder von welchen sie Befehle erhalten.

Die „Häuser“ und die „grossen Häuser“ sitzen in stolzer Zurückgezogenheit auf ihren Plätzen, tauschen dann und wann eine Bemerkung aus, beobachten ruhig, und winken ihre Angestellten heran, denen sie zuweilen nur Ein Wort sagen oder mit den Augen ein Zeichen machen, worauf gewöhnlich irgendwo eine Bewegung entsteht, gewisse Effecten in „Posten“ (grossen Summen) gekauft oder verkauft werden; bald so heimlich als möglich, bald, um Aufsehen zu erregen, mit absichtlichem Geräusch.

In der Ecke neben dem Büffet, am sogenannten Moritzplatz, werden die „Schundpapiere“, z. B. federleichte Eisenbahnen, wie Rhein-Nahe, Lüttich-Limburg, Schweizer Union, Tamines-Landen*), auf Zeit, oder eigentlich auf Stunde gehandelt. Hier hat eine armselige Sorte von Pfuschkaklern Posto gefasst, die von Stunde zu Stunde um eine Kleinigkeit speculiren, die sich untereinander 1 bis 2 Thaler abnehmen, und bei einem Verlust von 5 Thalern „ausbleiben“.

Während die Beamten, denen „die Erhaltung und Handhabung der äusseren Ruhe, der Ordnung und des Anstandes obliegt“, fernab von dem lärmenden Treiben ein verstohlenes Mittagsschläfchen halten, belegen sich im „Lombardenviertel“ ein paar erhitzte Jobber mit den schwersten Ehrenkränkungen, und sie gehen gar oft zu Mauschellen über. Im „Lombardenviertel“ herrscht comment suspendu; Verbal- und Realinjurien werden als selbstverständlich gegeben und empfangen; sie kommen zu häufig vor, als dass man deswegen klagen, als dass man deshalb sich beleidigt fühlen sollte.

Ist man gerade unbeschäftigt, so macht man „Ulke“. Der Eine heftet dem Andern Papierschnitzel an den Rockkragen, steckt ihm garstige Dinge in die Taschen, schlägt ihm den Hut über die Augen; und was der-gleichen sinnreiche Scherze mehr sind. Am beliebtesten ist das sogenannte „Tippen“, welches namentlich gegen Fremde zur Anwendung kommt. Der umhergaffende Fremdling wird plötzlich ohne Aufhören angestossen, gezupft, geschoben und angerannt, ohne dass er im Gedränge die Attentäter entdecken kann. Doch hat es sich schon mehr als Einmal zugetragen, dass ein biederer vierschrotiger Provinziale, der nicht Spass verstand, aus der Schaar der ihn umzingelnden Judenjünglinge ein halb Dutzend herausgriff, und alle Sechs mit Einer Handbewegung zu Boden schlug. Gerathen sich Zwei in die Haare, so ertönt der Ruf „Kreis!“ Man schliesst die Kämpfer in einen Kreis, um ihnen freien Raum zu gönnen, um sie den Augen der Beamten zu entziehen, und begleitet das Schauspiel mit anfeuernden Zurufen. Hat sich Jemand besonders missliebig gemacht, so wird er unter allgemeinem Schreien und Toben exmittirt, von einem lärmenden Haufen buchstäblich zur Thür hinausgedrängt.

*) Vgl. S. 19.

Von Zeit zu Zeit gehen die „Berichterstatter der Presse“ durch den Saal, um über den Stand der Geschäfte Erkundigungen einzuziehen. Diese Herren, fast durchweg orientalischer Abkunft, und in der Regel ehemalige Commis, nahmen früher unter den Journalisten nur einen bescheidenen Rang ein; wogegen sie während der Gründerperiode bei ihren Blättern eine Hauptrolle spielten, und an der Börse mit mehreren Adjutanten aufzogen, unter denen die Coursnotirung der verschiedenen Fonds und Actien vertheilt ist. Diese Adjutanten pflegten nebenbei ein wenig selber zu differenzeln, und dasselbe thaten auch wol die Herren Ausläufer und Cassenboten der Banken und Banquiers, denn Gelegenheit macht — Jobber.

Die „Berichterstatter“, einige dreissig an der Zahl, werden von den Börsenleuten mit grosser Aufmerksamkeit behandelt, und man bewarb sich, namentlich in der Gründungsperiode, eifrig um ihre Gunst. Da ist Herr Julius Schweitzer, unter seinen Collegen der Senior. Er hat das Börsenreporterthum in Berlin erst erfunden; nachdem er, wenn wir nicht irren, vorher in Breslau als Banquier verunglückt war. Vor 25 Jahren erschien er an der hiesigen Börse plötzlich als Berichterstatter, und seit 25 Jahren berichtet er für die „Nationalzeitung“. Am 20. April 1875 beging er sein Jubiläum und empfing eine Fülle von Auszeichnungen. Kaufmannschaft und Börsencommissariat überreichten ihm eine Adresse; und er hat es um sie wohl verdient. Von allen Seiten kamen Adressen und Deputationen. Sogar das „Statistische Bureau“ der Stadt gratulirte — wir wissen freilich nicht, mit welchem Rechte. Herr Schweitzer ist in der Loge Royal-York Meister vom Stuhl, und seit vielen Jahren Cassirer der „Berliner Presse“. Auch hat sich der gefeierte treffliche Mann ein kostbares Haus vor dem Potsdamer Thore zugelegt; und er gab die Veranlassung zu dem Federkrieg, der zwischen Herrn von Diest-Daber und der „National-Zeitung“ entbrannte und noch immer nicht beendet ist.

Da ist Herr H. Killisch, der einst am Busen seines Freundes Hermann Geber lehnte und klagend fragte: Was werden wir essen? Was werden wir trinken? Wovon werden wir uns kleiden? — Jetzt ist er Eigenthümer der „Berliner Börsen-Zeitung“, die ihn schon lange zum Millionär gemacht hat; und er nennt sich von Horn — nach einem nothleidenden Edelmann, den er grossmüthig an Vaters Statt angenommen hat. Trotzdem bezieht er noch immer selber die Börse, wo er amtlich und auch privatim beschäftigt ist; schreibt er noch immer selber den Börsenbericht, aus dem man entnehmen kann, ob der Verfasser gerade à la hausse oder à la baisse engagirt ist. Er hat durch Erfolg und Verdienst alle seine Collegen überflügelt, und doch ist er nicht einmal semitischer, sondern bloß germanischer Abkunft. Aber eben deswegen hat er auch viele Feinde und Neider; und als er neulich für die viel angegriffene Disconto-Gesellschaft etwas stark in's Zeug ging, und dabei in seiner Zeitung das Wort „Juden!“ fallen liess, wurde er, als er am nächsten Tage an der Börse erschien, von der empörten Israelitengemeinde mit wüthendem Gemauschel empfangen, und sofort rückwärts concentrirt, Schritt für Schritt hinausgedrängt.

Da ist ferner Herr Georg Davidsohn, früher Sonntags-Feuilletonist des Herrn Killisch, bis er seinem Meister den Dienst kündigte und ihm Concurrrenz machte. Er gründete den „Börsen-Courier“ und sah sich alsbald im Besitz eines Stadthauses und eines Landgutes. Doch soll er kein objectiver Beobachter des grossen Börsenschwindels geblieben sein, sondern sich selber arg verspeculirt haben. Herr Davidsohn ist nebenbei Schöngest. Er hat im Salon einer Dame von der hohen Aristokratie Zutritt, und ficht mit ihr für den musikalischen Messias, Richard Wagner, gegen seine eigenen Glaubensgenossen.

Da ist auch Herr J. Treuherz. Zunächst Redacteur der Theodor Heymann'schen „Bank- und

Handels-Zeitung“, schuf er 1871 die „Neue Börsen-Zeitung“, und erfand für seine Abonnenten, die an Actien litten, das geistreiche Frage- und Antwortspiel, das manchen Fragesüchtigen sehr in die Fichten geführt hat. Herr Treuherz ist unter seinen Collegen wahrscheinlich der gebildetste, ein Mann von akademischer Bildung; aber, wie das so zu gehen pflegt, nicht gerade der reichste von ihnen. Im Gegentheil scheint er weniger als Jene vor und hinter sich gebracht zu haben, woran gewiss nicht Mangel an gutem Willen schuld ist.

Ausser den eigentlichen Börsenblättern, die während des Gründungsschwindels wie Pilze emporschossen, aber seit dem Krach sich wieder etwas verringert haben — sind an der Börse auch sämmtliche politische Zeitungen, grössere wie kleinere, und sogar die unpolitischen Local- und Klatschblätter repräsentirt, und diesen Repräsentanten nebst Gehülfen ein eigenes Zimmer, neben dem Telegraphen-Bureau, angewiesen.

Zwei Uhr.

Die Börse ist officiell zu Ende. Die „Häuser“ und die „grossen Häuser“ haben sich schon vorher entfernt; jetzt leert sich allmählig der Saal. Die ver-eideten Makler ziehen sich zurück, um die Course festzustellen. Jeder Makler handelt nur in bestimmten Effecten; und jedes Papier wird von zwei, drei und mehr Maklern gehandelt, welche den Cours gemeinschaftlich machen, indem sie die erhaltenen Aufträge zu An- und Verkäufen gegen einander abwägen. Diese Aufträge sind theils:

- 1) Unlimitirt, d. h. „bestens“ auszuführen; so billig als möglich anzuschaffen, bezüglich so hoch wie möglich zu veräußern.
- 2) Limitirt, d. h. begrenzt; nicht höher zu kaufen, bezüglich nicht billiger zu verkaufen, als der Auftraggeber den Preis gesetzt hat.
- 3) Fest, d. h. im Laufe des Geschäfts zu dem gerade geltenden Preise zu kaufen, bezüglich zu verkaufen.

Die festen und unlimitirten Aufträge gehen vor, und werden ausgeführt, sobald genügendes Material, bezüglich noch Käufer am Markte sind. Die limitirten Aufträge sind bedingungsweise gegeben, sie stehen den andern nach, und können nur vollzogen werden, falls sich der festgesetzte Preis erzielen lässt.

Unter Abwägung der verschiedenen Aufträge einerseits, des vorhandenen Materials und bezüglich der vorhandenen Käufer andererseits, ermitteln die Makler gemeinschaftlich für jedes Papier den sogenannten Mittelcours, welcher nun für die limitirten wie für die unlimitirten (aber nicht für die festen) Ordres zur Ausführung kommt, und der auch in den amtlichen Courszettel aufgenommen wird. Selbstverständlich fällt der Cours, je mehr Waare am Markte ist, und er steigt, wenn die Käufer überwiegen.

Indess sind auch die „vereideten“ Makler nur Menschen, und so passirt ihnen manches Menschliche. Sie machen nicht selten Course, die das Erstaunen, ja den Aufschrei des Publikums wie der Börse hervorrufen. Besonders kommt dies bei unlimitirten Ordres vor. Ein Papier, das z. B. seit Wochen 60 steht, kann plötzlich, wenn es durchaus verkauft werden soll, nur 50 oder gar 45 notiren, während es morgen schon wieder den alten Cours erreicht und fortan consequent behauptet. Ein Effect, das unbedingt angeschafft werden soll, ist plötzlich 10 bis 15 Procent theurer, aber schon morgen wieder zum gewöhnlichen Preise zu haben. Die Makler kaufen und verkaufen auch für eigene Rechnung, machen selber Geschäfte; wiewol ihnen selbstverständlich solches ausdrücklich verboten ist. Der „Krach“ hat auch aus den Reihen der „vereideten“ Makler verschiedene Opfer gefordert, Diesen bankerott werden lassen, Jenen in den Tod getrieben. Ebenso ordnungs- und gesetzwidrig ist, dass die Makler nicht immer selber fungiren, sondern häufig durch ihre Gehülfen, blosse Commis, die Geschäfte abschliessen und die Course feststellen lassen.

Nach Rückkehr der Makler werden die vereinbarten Mittelcourse an den verschiedenen Schranken ausgehängt, und von den Reportern der Zeitungen abgeschrieben. Inzwischen geht der Handel im „Lombardenviertel“ mit ungeschwächten Kräften fort.

Halb Drei.

Es werden die letzten Speculations-Course notirt. Der Portier läutet die Börse förmlich aus. Er treibt mit der Glocke die Jobber vor sich her, und hinter ihm dringen Weiber mit Besen und Schaufeln ein, um den Saal zu reinigen.

Während der Gründerzeit währte die Börse bis 3 Uhr, und die Mittelcourse wurden erst um 2¹/₂, ja um 2³/₄ veröffentlicht, was den Herren „Berichterstatlern der Presse“ häufig zu klagen gab, denn der Courszettel konnte nur mit Mühe und Noth noch in die Abendzeitung aufgenommen werden.

Als der Börsenschwindel auf der Höhe stand, dachte man daran, wie in Wien und Frankfurt a. M., auch in Berlin noch eine Abendbörse einzuführen, also den ganzen geschlagenen Tag zu handeln. Aber die Makler und die Banquiers, die ohnedies auf ihren Comtoiren bis tief in die Nacht sassen, protestirten, und das Project wurde amtlich fallen gelassen. Dagegen bildeten die unersättlichen Jobber eine Privat- oder Winkelbörse, die sie irgendwo auf der Strasse, bald hier bald dort, abhielten; doch wurden sie bei ihrem Differenzeln häufig durch die Polizei gestört. *) Auch die Sonntagsbörse hat keinen amtlichen Charakter und tagt in einem gemietheten Local, aber sie wird von allen Schichten der Börsianer besucht, und pausirt nur während der Sommermonate.

*) Vgl. S. 157.

XIV.

Anhang.

An

Herrn Ernst Keil,
Herausgeber der „Gartenlaube“
in .

Leipzig.

Berlin, April 1875. *)

Sehr geehrter Herr,

Sie erweisen mir die Ehre, meine Artikel „Der Börsen- und Gründungsschwindel in Berlin“ in Nr. 5 Ihres geschätzten Blattes einer Kritik, vom Standpunkte der Redaction, zu unterziehen, und dabei einen Punkt zu bemängeln. Ich weiss natürlich, dass Sie das aus Pflicht- und Billigkeitsgefühl, im Interesse der Sache thun, die Sie nicht einseitig, nicht parteiisch

*) Abgedruckt in No. 20 der „Gartenlaube“, Jahrgang 1875.

behandelt wissen möchten; ich glaube deshalb Ihrem Wunsche zu entsprechen, wenn ich meine Entgegnung gleichfalls an dieser Stelle abgebe. Ich habe diese Entgegnung absichtlich verzögert, um inzwischen noch einige Artikel mehr erscheinen zu lassen, und mir so die Antwort zu erleichtern.

Sie fechten den ersten, einleitenden Artikel namentlich in diesem Satz an:

„Die nationale Begeisterung, die heiligsten Gefühle eines Volkes wurden von der Speculation und von dem Schwindel für ihre schnöden Umtriebe, für ihre verbrecherischen Zwecke ausgebeutet.“

Sie bezweifeln das und fragen: „Was haben die «heiligen Gefühle» mit Strousberg'schen und Quistorp'schen Actien zu thun?“ —

Darauf muss ich nun antworten: Viel, sehr viel, geehrter Herr; nicht weniger denn Alles. Ohne den grossartigen Aufschwung, den Preussen und Deutschland genommen, wären Strousberg und Quistorp bei uns gar nicht möglich gewesen, wären ihre „Gründungen“ nie zu Stande gekommen, wären ihre Actien nimmer an den Mann gebracht worden. Erst die Siegesfreude, die nationale Begeisterung, das so mächtig erwachende Selbstbewusstsein des Deutschen Volks, seine heiligsten

Gefühle — Sie sehen, ich halte jedes Wort aufrecht — mussten angerufen, mussten ausgebeutet werden, um all' die zahllosen Actienunternehmungen verwirklichen, um den ganzen Börsen- und Gründungsschwindel in Scene setzen zu können. Allerdings haben nur Wenige aus reiner Begeisterung, aus blossem Patriotismus gezeichnet und gekauft, aber Alle thaten es doch zunächst, weil sie die Unternehmungen für solide und rentabel, für gemeinnützig und einem wirklichen Bedürfnisse entsprechend hielten. Ausserdem entstand im Publikum der Wahn, dem politischen Aufschwunge müsse eine ebenso reiche Blüthe der materiellen Wohlfahrt auf dem Fusse folgen, der Wohlstand sei plötzlich ein allgemeiner geworden. Freilich ein Irrthum, ein schwerer Irrthum! Lehrt doch die Geschichte, dass nach jedem Kriege, wo die Arbeit feiert, wo Handel und Wandel stocken, wo Zehntausende von Jünglingen und Männern Leben oder Gesundheit einbüssen, und Zehntausende zu Wittwen und Waisen werden — dass nach jedem grossen Kriege naturgemäss eine Reaction, ein empfindlicher Rückschlag eintritt. Aber das Publikum, wurde eben getäuscht, unter fortwährendem Hinweis auf die Französischen Milliarden, von denen es selber doch so gut wie nichts bekam; es wurde durch diese und andere Vorspiegelungen getäuscht und bethört von den Gründern und Börsenrittern, und von den mit ihnen verbündeten „Volkswirthen“ und Zeitungen.

Nachdem nun die Gründungen verübt waren und die allgemeine Ausplünderung sich vollzogen hatte — gleich nach dem Wiener „Krach“, wurde von der dortigen Presse, die, wie der Prozess Offenheim bewiesen hat, fast durchweg im Solde der Börse steht, die Parole ausgegeben: „Wir haben Alle gesündigt. Die Börse und die Gründer haben geschwindelt, das Publikum aber hat gespielt und dadurch den Schwindel unterstützt. Wir sind Alle mit einander schuldig. Darum bedecken wir die Geschichte mit Schweigen und suchen wir sie zu vergessen!“ — Diese famose Parole wurde auch in Deutschland begierig aufgenommen und in allen Tonarten variirt. Ja, man ging hier noch weiter und begann das Publikum geradezu anzuklagen, ihm Vorwürfe zu machen wegen seiner „Spielsucht“; ihm in's Gesicht zu schleudern, dass es seiner „Spielsucht“ zum Opfer gefallen, und ihm daher nur Recht geschehen sei. Diese Moral- und Strafpredigten wurden von denselben Leuten gehalten, die dem Publikum soeben das Fell über die Ohren gezogen hatten — von den Gründern und ihren Helfershelfern. So predigten die Wölfe und die Füchse den Schafen. Ist das nicht überaus rührend und erbaulich?!!

Durch solch freche Verdreherei der Begriffe und Thatsachen, geehrter Herr, entstand das Märchen von der „Spielsucht“ des Publikums überhaupt und von der „Gewinnsucht“ der „kleinen Leute“ insbesondere. Die Spiel- und Gewinnsucht hat sich im Verlauf des Schwindels allerdings gezeigt, aber doch nur theilweise, nicht entfernt allgemein; und jedenfalls war sie ursprünglich nicht vorhanden, sondern sie wurde von den Gründern und Börsianern erst künstlich erzeugt, mit unzähligen Mitteln fortwährend genährt. Die „kleinen Leute“ namentlich, und selbst die gewöhnlichen Bürgerclassen, hatten bis 1870 von der ganzen Börse nur eine schwache Ahnung; sie kannten Actien kaum dem Namen nach, und der Courszettel war ihnen eine Tafel mit Hieroglyphen. Sie verwahrten ihre Ersparnisse im alten Strumpf; sie gaben ihr Geld auf die Sparkasse oder auf Grundstücke — bis der Gründungsschwindel auch sie aufblicken liess, auch sie in seinen Strudel zog,

Jedes Blatt und jedes Blättchen legte sich einen Courszettel zu, errichtete eine ständige Rubrik für Börsennachrichten, brachte im Inseraten- wie im redactionellen Theil täglich Reclamen für neue Gründungen und neue Actien. Es entstand plötzlich eine neue Classe von Reisenden, der „Börsenreisende für Stadt und Land“, welcher von Haus zu Haus ging, in die Keller und in die Dachkammern stieg und seine — Actien anbot. Die Börse hatte überall, im kleinsten Städtchen und im abgeschiedensten Dörfchen ihre Agenten, welche dem Handwerker, dem Bauern dieses oder jenes Börsenpapier aufredeten, indem sie ihm Himmel und Erde versprachen, und ihn gläubig, ihn sicher machten durch die Unterschriften, durch die stolzen vornehmen oder doch wohlaccreditirten Namen, welche die Actie trug. Was Wunder, wenn die schlichten, ehrlichen Leute sich verlocken liessen und durch kleine Gewinne vollends geködert, allmählig ihre ganze Habe der Börse in den Rachen warfen! Ich denke nicht daran, ihnen die „patriotische Märtyrerkrone“ aufzusetzen, wohl aber meine und behaupte ich: sie verdienen, als die Verführten, nur Bedauern und Entschuldigung; während die ganze Schuld, die unbedingte Verurtheilung — wenigstens vor dem Richterstuhle der Moral, denn gesetzlich sind sie nicht zu fassen gewesen — die Verführer trifft.

Im Uebrigen, verehrter Herr, haben die „kleinen Leute“ allein den Kohl nicht fett gemacht. Dazu gehörten auch noch die Wohlhabenden und Reichen, alle Classen und Stände ohne Unterschied. Das ganze Volk ist durch den Börsen- und Gründungsschwindel in Mitleidenschaft gezogen; unter zehn Personen sind immer neun, direct oder indirect, ausgeplündert oder doch geschädigt worden. Die Netze, welche die Börse auswarf, waren so zahlreich und so mannigfaltig, die Lockspeisen so raffinirt, dass sie Alles miteinander eingefangen hat: Arm und Reich, Gebildet und Ungebildet, Gescheit und Einfältig, Jung und Alt, Mann und — — Weib!

Das, verehrter Herr, sollen eben meine Artikel nachweisen, und ich schmeichle mir sogar, die bisher erschienenen haben es zum Theil schon bewiesen.

Mit dem Ausdruck meiner Hochschätzung

Ihr ergebener

Otto Glagau.

XV.

Nachträge.

Zu S. 12. Strousberg. Nachdem der „Culturheros“ seine Rolle in Deutschland ausgespielt hatte, setzte er dieselbe noch fort in Belgien, Russland, Oesterreich-Ungarn, Frankreich etc. Aber sein Credit hatte zu stark gelitten und konnte sich nie wieder recht erholen. October 1875 wurde Strousberg in Moskau eingesperrt, woselbst er der dortigen „Commerz-Leihbank“, mit Hülfe ihres jüdischen Directors, Landau, und zweier andern Juden, Manczyk und Schlesinger — 7 Millionen Rubel abgeschwindelt hatte. Ueber sein Vermögen ward zugleich in Prag und in Berlin der Concurs eröffnet; und haben die nicht bevorrechteten und nicht durch Pfandstücke gedeckten Gläubiger so gut wie gar keine Aussichten, auch nicht auf die kleinste Quote. Sämmtliche Cassen waren geleert, und die grossen Liegenschaften Strousberg's in Preussen, Böhmen und Polen sind über ihren Werth mit Hypotheken belastet.

Der neue Durchfall des Wunderdoctors setzte für ihn noch einmal die Presse in Bewegung: denn — alte Liebe rostet nicht! Die Zeitungen besprachen ihn wie einen tragischen Helden. In einem Wiener Blatt erschien ein Feuilleton: „König Strousberg's Glück und Ende“; das nun die Runde durch viele Journale machte. Die Berliner „National-Zeitung“ entlehnte angeblich der „Moskauer Zeitung“ eine Schilderung von dem Tageslauf des grossen Gefangenen, worin es u. A. heisst: „Er steht Morgens schon um 8 Uhr auf, trinkt seinen Thee und liest dann ernste (!) wissenschaftliche (!) Bücher.“ — — „Die Kleidung Strousberg's ist überaus einfach.“ — — (Also ohne Zobel und Hermelin, ohne Diamanten und ohne alle Orden!) — Berliner, Prager und Wiener Blätter verkündeten: Man werde Preussischer wie Oesterreichischer Seits auf diplomatischem Wege von Russland Strousberg's Freilassung verlangen; und sobald dieselbe, wie nicht zu bezweifeln, erfolge, werde der geniale Mann sich rasch wieder aufhelfen. Auch auf die bekannte Sentimentalität der Deutschen wurde stark speculirt, und gar rührsam erzählt, wie Frau Strousberg — übrigens in allen Berichten, als ob es sich um eine Dame aus der höchsten Gesellschaft handelte, stets die „Gemahlin“ Strousberg's genannt — wie Frau Strousberg mit ihren Töchtern sich geflüchtet; wie sie ihre bisherige Residenz, das „altcechische Königsschloss“ zu Zbirow bei Prag verlassen, ohne Geld und ohne alle Mittel; wie sie von ihrem Sachwalter 450 Gulden zur Reise entliehen habe.

Frau Strousberg, die keinen Heller in die Ehe gebracht, ist aber nominelle Besitzerin der Elbinger Fabrik für Eisenbahn-Material*), sowie einer andern Waggon-Fabrik in Böhmen. Sie hat vor und nach der Katastrophe für ihren „Gemahl“ verschiedene Bürgschaften übernommen, z. B. der Moskauer „Commerz-Leihbank“ die Summe von 4 Millionen garantirt; sie hat, wie der gleichfalls verhaftete Director Landau erklärte, „ein Vermögen von 3 Millionen und gar keine Schulden“. Strousberg ist so vorsichtig gewesen, die Seinigen für jeden Fall sicher zu stellen. Sein Sohn ist Inhaber der ersten Hypothek auf den Siegener Eisensteingruben, im Betrage von 150,000 Thaler; und auch seiner „Gemahlin“ eignen mehrer solcher Hypotheken.

Nach den Versicherungen der Presse befand sich der grosse „Doctor“ zu Moskau nur in „Schuldhaft“, und er wurde von dem Untersuchungsrichter nur als „Zeuge“ vernommen; von welcher Vernehmung er jedesmal „sehr nachdenklich“

*) Vgl. S. 236.

zurückkam. Das „Neue Berliner Tageblatt“ meldete zuerst: Strousberg sitzt in Untersuchungs-Haft; was dann endlich auch die „National-Zeitung“ eingestehen musste. Doch brachte dieses ehrenwerthe Blatt, zu dem der „Wunderdoctor“ noch immer Beziehungen zu haben scheint, sofort die Beschwerdeschrift, welche ein Moskauer Advocat für den Angeschuldigten gefertigt hatte, und worin nachzuweisen versucht wird: Strousberg's Gefangenschaft sei durchaus ungesetzlich, eine „Machtüberschreitung gegenüber einem des Schutzes beraubten Ausländer“. —

Auch in Preussen schwebte 1871 gegen den „Eisenbahnkönig“ ein Untersuchungsverfahren, aus dem er jedoch siegreich hervorging. In Russland hingegen macht man ihm den Prozess wegen vierfachen Verbrechens des gemeinen Betruges. Darum fragt die „Deutsche Eisenbahn-Zeitung“ sehr witzig: „Konnte der Mann nicht in civilisirten Ländern bleiben?“ — —

Der „Berliner Börsen-Courier“ des Herrn Georg Davidsohn forderte energisch, die Preussische Regierung solle für Strousberg interveniren; und Madame Strousberg hatte, wie die „National-Zeitung“ meldete, eine Audienz beim Reichskanzler.

Zu S. 30. Centralbank für Bauten. Diese Gründerbank verfasste auch ein halb Dutzend Banken in Süddeutschland, die jedoch keine Beschäftigung fanden und alsbald liquidirten. Im Uebrigen stehe hier noch ein Geschichtchen, das wir directer Mittheilung verdanken:

Ein Baumeister aus Ostpreussen wurde der Centralbank durch den Schwiegervater des Gründers und ersten Directors Heinrich Bergmann zugetrieben. Er gab seine Anstellung auf und trat in den Dienst der Gesellschaft, bei der er 5000 Thaler, sein ganzes Vermögen deponirte. Nach ein paar Monaten rief ihn ein Krankheitsfall zu seiner Familie, die noch in der Heimat geblieben. Er reiste mit Urlaub, war aber kaum bei den Seinigen, als er von der Gesellschaft ein Schreiben erhielt, das ihn ohne Weiteres verabschiedete. So verlor er seine Stellung; und binnen Jahresfrist verlor er auch seine Ersparnisse, die 5000 Thaler, welche Herr Bergmann, wider den Willen des Armen, zum Ankauf „junger“ Centralbank-Actien verwendet hatte. Ja, nicht genug daran: die edle Gesellschaft verklagte ihn auch noch wegen 4000 Thaler, die er ihr, angeblich auf jene Effecten, die sie von ihm im Depot hielt, und die er nie zu sehen bekam, schuldig geworden war.

Zu S. 65. Märkische Torfgräberei. Herr Jean Fränkel hat „liquidirt“ und an die Actionäre ca. 2 Procent herausgezahlt.

Zu S. 72. Aachener Tuchfabrik. Das Etablissement, welches December 1872 ein Actiencapital von 430,000 Thaler beansprucht hatte, wurde October 1875 im Wege der Auction für — 40,000 Thaler losgeschlagen. Für diesen Preis erstand es der „Meistbetheiligte der Gesellschaft“, der frühere „Präsident des Aufsichtsraths“ und Vater des Mit-Vorbesitzers — der Commerzienrath Schöller; wie es scheint, jetzt in Frankfurt a. M.

Zu S. 113. Birkenwerder. Der Director dieser Gesellschaft, Herr Franz Pernet, fungirte auch noch als „Aufsichtsrath“ der „Passage“ (Cours ca. 15), sowie als „Vorsitzender des Aufsichtsraths“ der Ofenfabrik von vormalis Gustav Dankberg (Cours ca. 12). Birkenwerder, Passage und Dankberg sind Gründungen des Herrn Aron Hirsch Heymann, resp. des Bankhauses A. H. Heymann u. Co., zu welchem Herr Franz Pernet in mancherlei Beziehungen steht.

Zu S. 113. Nordend. Eisenbahn-Ingenieur Carl Stiller, als Aufsichtsrath dieser Gesellschaft genannt, bemerkt: Dr. Max Mattner machte mir den Antrag, von Nordend-Actien 1000 Thaler baar zu nehmen, und die baulichen Arbeiten der Gesellschaft zu leiten. Ich ging darauf ein und parcellirte, gegen drei Thaler pro Parcellen, ca. 67 Morgen Bauterrain. Mit dem An- und Verkauf der Grundstücke habe ich nie etwas zu thun gehabt, auch nicht den geringsten Gründergewinn bezogen. Für die Solidität der Gesellschaft schien mir Rechtsanwalt Lorek, der Vorsitzende des Aufsichtsraths, Bürge genug. Derselbe acceptirte meinen Rücktritt „aus Gesellschaftsrücksichten“ nicht früher, als bis meine deponirten 1000 Thaler Actien ca. 7 standen, wodurch ich einen grossen Verlust erlitten habe.

Zu S. 113. Thiergarten-Bauverein. Als „erster Zeichner“ ist namentlich noch zu merken: Emil Heymann; dessen Schwager und Compagnon Meyer Cohn (S. „Passage“ und „Lindenbauverein“) als „Aufsichtsrath cooptirt“ ward. Nachdem die Actien der Gesellschaft bis ca. 3 gesunken, liquidirte man, und ernannte zum Liquidator Herrn Dr. juris Emil Lehmann, der früher, neben Richard Schweder, als Director der „Preussischen Boden-Credit-Actien-Bank“ fungirte. Der Thiergarten-Bauverein wandte sich, wahrscheinlich durch Vermittelung des Mitgründers, Kammerherrn Louis von Prillwitz (Siehe gleichfalls „Passage“) an den Kaiser um verschiedene Subventionen; und ist ihm auch, zum Zwecke der von ihm erbauten Brücke über den Schiffahrts-Canal, ein „Allerhöchstes Gnadengeschenk“ im Werthe von 7000 Thalern zu Theil geworden.

Zu S. 113. Bauverein Königstadt. Als „Aufsichtsräthe“ fungirten noch: Geh. Commerzienrath Emil Stephan, „Redacteur“ Franz Grunert, Kammerherr von Prillwitz, Baumeister Julius Hennicke; als „Directoren“ u. A.: der Mitgründer Joseph Dorn und Hofbaurath Ernst Klingenberg (Siehe „Lindenbauverein“).

Zu S. 124. J. A. W. Carstenn. Dieser edle „Grossgrundbesitzer“ gründete auch noch die Baugesellschaft „Berlin-Hamburger Immobilien“. Ausser seinem Factotum, dem Baumeister Johannes Otzen, sind als Mitgründer genannt: Geometer Otto Busse in Charlottenburg, Kaufleute Julius Rohde, Johannes Wesselhöft und Wilhelm Vorwerk, und Senator Godeffroy in Hamburg.

Zu S. 116 und 140. „Wohnungsnoth“. Die „Wohnungsnoth“ hat sich völlig in ihr Gegentheil verkehrt. Man schätzte die Zahl der Ende 1875 in Berlin leer stehenden Quartiere bereits auf 9000. Fast an jedem Hause sieht man wieder Vermietungs-Zettel aushängen; vor den Thoren sind halbe Strassen unbewohnt. Namentlich stehen leer grössere Wohnungen im Preise von 500 Thalern und darüber; sowie eine Menge von kostbaren Läden, öffentlichen Localen und Geschäftsräumen aller Art. Die Zeitschrift der Baugewerksmeister beklagt die Ueberproduction im Baufache, welche das Werk ist von speculativen Unternehmern im Bunde mit schwachfüssigen Baubanken. Jene gewinnen dadurch eine Existenz, diese suchen ihre Terrains los zu werden; und die so entstehenden Neubauten werden mit Hypotheken überlastet. Ein Zusammenbruch, ein „Häuserkrach“ scheint unvermeidlich, und er ist vielleicht näher als man denkt.

Die Bevölkerung Berlins, welche „rechnungsmässig“ bereits im August die Zahl von einer Million „ansehnlich überschritten“ haben sollte, scheint nach der Zählung vom 1. December in Wahrheit nur ca. 960,000 Seelen zu umfassen. Man hat sich also „ansehnlich“ verrechnet. Das macht: der Zuzug fällt und der Abzug steigt. In Folge des Schwindels ist Berlin gegenwärtig fast die theuerste Stadt in Europa; theurer als Wien, Paris und London. Ebenso fällt, aus Gründen der überfüllten ungesunden Wohnungen, das Uebergewicht der Geburten über die Todesfälle, und es steigt erschrecklich die Gesamt-Sterblichkeit.

Auch in der Provinz enthüllt sich der Bauschwindel. Aus Düsseldorf schrieb man: Hier stehen im neuen Stadttheil 150 Häuser leer. Auf ein Haus in schönster Lage, welches zu 20,000 Thaler taxirt war, sind nur 2000 Thaler geboten.

Zu S. 131 und 184. Quistorp. In Folge des Accords ist der Concurs sowol über die Westend-Gesellschaft wie über die Vereinsbank und den Deutschen Central-Bauverein aufgehoben, und alle drei sind in Liquidation getreten. Herr Quistorp, der Unsterbliche, plant schon wieder „grosse Dinge“. Es ist ihm gelungen, die Deutsche Pferde-Eisenbahn in Elberfeld-Barmen an eine Englische Gesellschaft zu verkaufen; und nun bewirbt er sich, wie wir hören, mit seinen alten treuen Kameraden, Regierungsrath a. D. Bühling und Ingenieur Büsing, um eine ähnliche Concession für Breslau, die ihm auch, und zwar unter den günstigsten Bedingungen, in Aussicht stehen soll. Dazu erliess er einen „Aufruf“: die Actionäre der alten Gesellschaften mögen sich bei ihm melden; er beabsichtige ihnen „Propositionen“ zu stellen. Von diesen „Propositionen“ denkt die „Deutsche Börsen- und Handels-Zeitung“ sehr gering, und sie meint, der „Aufruf“ bezwecke weiter nichts als eine Courstreiberei der Actien.

Zu S. 158 u. 174. Passage. Die Anschläge am Schwarzen Brett sind, wahrscheinlich in Folge des Artikels in der „Gartenlaube“, entfernt, aber die Festsäle, das Hôtel etc., noch immer unvermietet; und soll Hermann Geber, der Erfindungsreiche, nunmehr die Sache in die Hand nehmen. — Im Kaisersaal der Passage wurde wieder ein Concert versucht, und wiederum geschah ein Unglück. Während man „Die Sandmännchen“ vortrug, erfolgte ein Krach, und der ganze Chor versank. Das Podium war unter ihm zusammengebrochen!! — —

Zu S. 172 bis 174. Kaiserhof. Die Actien sind durch sogenannte „Consortialbriefe“, von Delbrück, Leo & Co. bei ihren Geschäftsfreunden und Kunden untergebracht. Einer derselben, der mit 10,000 Thaler „betheiligt“ worden, bat neulich dringend, ihm die Actien, gleichviel zu welchem Course, wieder abzunehmen und schrieb: „Ich müsste, wenn Sie mir gar kein Gebot machen, annehmen, dass Sie selbst das Papier für ganz werthlos halten.“ — Delbrück, Leo & Co. scheinen allerdings dieser Ansicht zu sein, denn sie lehnten entschieden ab und bemerkten, dass sie von diesen Actien ohnehin einen zu grossen Vorrath hätten. Das „Wiener Fremdenblatt“ behauptete, die Hôtelgesellschaft sei bereits bankrott, und der Aufsichtsrath beschloss, dieserhalb die Verleumdungsklage anzustellen.

Der Brand des Kaiserhofs kostet der auf Gegenseitigkeit beruhenden städtischen Feuer-Societät — 180,000 Thaler. Nach Verlauf von Monaten wurde die in der Stadtverordnetenversammlung, wegen der mangelhaften polizeiwidrigen Bauart des Kolosses, gestellte Interpellation endlich beantwortet, aber in sehr unbefriedigender Weise; und das Hôtel wird einfach reparirt.

Zu S. 181. Möbel-Transport. Gustav Borchardt und Albert Meyer kauften das Fuhrgeschäft von A. Schäfer, und „gründeten“ es in Verbindung mit Moritz Eduard Meyer, Carl Jacob, Simon Schüler, Isidor Kadisch und Ferdinand Vogts. Actien-

Capital 250,000 Thaler, und ausserdem 100,000 Thaler Hypotheken!! „Director“ wurde der Vorkäufer Albert Meyer; und als Aufsichtsräthe fungirten noch: Rechnungsrath Rudolf Müller, Rentier Robert Macks und Rechtsanwalt Ewald Hecker, vor welchem bei Gründung der Gesellschaft das Statut verlautbart war.

Zu S. 182. Allgemeine Transport-Gesellschaft. Gründer: Cornelis Hoogendyk zu Antwerpen, Adolf Charlier-Memmingen zu Burtscheid, Eugen Charlier und Commerzienrath Leopold Scheibler zu Aachen, Friedrich William Hintze, Alwin Philipp, Henry Valette. Als Aufsichtsräthe fungirten noch die Gründer des „Spediteur-Verein“: Commissionsrath Rudolf Bergemann, Julius Isaac, Emil Steinbrück, Hermann Cohn etc.

Zu S. 192 u. 194. Flora. Von der „Revisions-Commission“, welche die Missethaten der verflossenen Directoren untersuchen sollte, ist nichts weiter zu hören gewesen. Wahrscheinlich hat man die schmutzige Geschichte hinter den Coullissen geordnet, denn — ein Gründer hackt dem andern nicht die Augen aus, Dagegen soll nun doch von den armen, ohne Aufhören betrogenen und geplünderten Actionären an Concert- und Ausstellungstagen ein Entrée erhoben werden.

Herr Jean Fränkel wusste mit den Lotterie-Loosen der „Flora“ den Kaiser von Deutschland, den König von Baiern, und neuerdings auch die Officiere der Armee und Marine zu „betheiligen“ — natürlich „lediglich im Interesse der Erhaltung des Etablissements, als grösstes Garten-Kunst-Institut des Deutschen Reiches“ (!!) — wie die Zeitungen im redactionellen Theil austrompeteten.

Zu S. 213. Berliner Stadtbahn. Der „vorläufige Kosten-Entwurf“ überschreitet den „ursprünglichen Anschlag“ bereits um 4 Millionen. Aus den „ursprünglichen“ 16 Millionen sind also „vorläufig“ schon — 20 Millionen Thaler geworden. Aber voraussichtlich ist es daran noch lange nicht genug. Die Zuschüttung des Königsgraben, die Anlegung neuer Strassen wird noch manche Summe erfordern; und die Gesellschaft arbeitet mit aller Macht, um sowol den Staat wie die Stadt bei diesen Unkosten zu „betheiligen“. Magistrat und Stadtverordnete sind auch wieder nicht abgeneigt, obwol man beim Stadtsäckel schon ziemlich auf den Boden gekommen ist. An die Rentabilität der Stadtbahn glaubt kein Mensch mehr, am allerwenigsten die Gründer. Die Berlin-Potsdam-Magdeburger, die Magdeburg-Halberstädter und die Berlin-Hamburger Eisenbahngesellschaft, welche von dem Grundcapital zusammen 5 Millionen zeichneten, sollen diese Unvorsichtigkeit jetzt bitter bereuen, und die Stadtbahn gern dem Staat allein überlassen wollen; indess scheint die Regierung dazu denn doch keine Lust zu haben.

Zu S. 220. Reichsbank. In den „Centralausschuss“, wie der Aufsichtsrath der Bamberger'schen „Reichsbank“ heisst, und der aus 15 Mitgliedern und 15 Stellvertretern besteht, sind vorwiegend Juden und Gründer-Matadore gewählt, von denen weit aus die meisten in Berlin sitzen. Baiern und Württemberg sind gar nicht vertreten, was in Süddeutschland mit Recht Missstimmung erregt.

Zu S. 256. Gründerprozesse. Wieder ist ein „Gründling“ verurtheilt: Consul Philipp Overlack; wegen der Cölner Bierbrauerei zu Nippes, zu einem Jahr Gefängniss. — Ein jüdischer Banquier äusserte dazu: „Es ist 'n Christ. Uns're Leut' sind nicht zu kriegen; sie haben's zu fein gemacht!“

Zu S. 311. Börsensteuer. In der „Volkswirtschaftlichen Gesellschaft“ zu Berlin, welcher Herr Braun-Wiesbaden präsidiert, erklärte Herr Wackernagel, „Volkswirth“ und Mitredacteur der „Nationalzeitung“: Die Börsensteuer würde „den kleinen Capitalisten, darunter Hausknechte und Dienstmädchen, stärker treffen als den reichen Geldmann“. — Ach, biederer Herr Wackernagel, wo sind die Zeiten hin, da „Hausknechte und Dienstmädchen“ noch Börsen-Effecten kauften! Auch „Hausknechte und Dienstmädchen“ sind inzwischen klüger geworden, und geben ihr Geld lieber auf die Sparkasse. Nachdem die Börse bankrott geworden ist, füllen sich wieder die Sparkassen; aber daraus darf man bei Leibe nicht mit Herrn Lasker und Consorten schliessen, dass die schwere wirthschaftliche Krisis, dass der allgemeine Nothstand nur eine Fabel böswilliger Krakeeler ist, die dem Gründer-, Jobber- und Manchesterthum eine hochverrätherische Opposition machen.

Zu S. 313. „Ul^k“ an der Berliner Börse. Die Scandalscenen werden immer häufiger, und arteten neuerdings in wilde Tumulte aus. Ein Jobber, der ein falsches Insolvenz-Gerücht ausgesprengt hatte, wurde von dem Chef der betroffenen Firma, einem reichen Gründer, derb abgeprügelt und von der gesammten Börse gelyncht. Ein anderer Gründer und grosser Haussier, Oscar Hainauer, bearbeitete einen kleinen Baissier, Henry Salomon, mit einem sogenannten „Schlagring“. Beide kämpften mit einer Tapferkeit, die bei semitischen Leuten fast unnatürlich erscheint, und Jeder trug schwere Wunden davon; beide Theile erhielten Succurs, und es entspann sich zwischen Hausiers und Baissiers eine allgemeine blutige Schlägerei, welche endlich das Einschreiten der Schutzmannschaft nöthig machte. Das Aeltesten-Collegium beschloss, ein Exempel zu statuiren und verhing über die Duellanten das höchste Strafmaass, verwies Beide für drei Monate von der Börse! — — Gewiss eine harte grausame Strafe, die jedoch in der Regel umgangen wird. Die Excludirten erscheinen oben auf der Zuschauer-Galerie und handeln von hier aus, mit Fingern und Händen, durch Zeichen und Geberden, auf telegraphischem Wege in den Saal hinab.

Die „Vossische Zeitung“ meint: Das Renommé der „Börse ist bereits allzusehr geschädigt“; und selbst Herr Julius Schweitzer von der „National-Zeitung“ liess in einem seiner Wochenberichte den Ausspruch fallen: „Die Berliner Börse hat nicht allein an ihrer Grösse, sondern auch an ihrem Rufe einen schweren Verlust erlitten“. — —

Zu S. 241, 244 u. 249. Lasker's „Enthüllungen“. Herr Lasker hat unseren Erwartungen und den zahlreichen Aufforderungen, die an ihn ergangen sind, leider nicht entsprochen. In der Reichstagssitzung vom 20. November 1875, in welcher er sich mit den Manchesterleuten in der Regierung „wieder eins“ erklärte, und speciell mit dem Finanzminister, Herrn

Camphausen, den Jom Hachipurim oder das Versöhnungsfest feierte — versuchte er die wirthschaftliche Krisis und den allgemeinen Nothstand überhaupt zu leugnen; versuchte er's, die Schuld für den Gründungsschwindel und seine verheerenden Folgen in erster Reihe den Conservativen und Freiconservativen zuzuschieben. Herr von Kardorff, auf dessen Brochüre „Gegen den Strom“ (S. 221) Lasker merklich anspielte, fühlte sich mit Recht getroffen, und vor Wuth zitternd, wollte er sich rechtfertigen, aber der Präsident schnitt diese Rechtfertigung als überflüssig ab: und Herr Lasker beeilte sich zu versichern, dass er nicht entfernt Herrn von Kardorff gemeint habe. — Dagegen äusserte er gegen die Conservativen direct: „War es nicht die liberale Partei (Lasker!), welche nachgewiesen hat, dass von allen Seiten, insbesondere auch in conservativen Kreisen und ganz ausserordentlich, in dieser Ueberspeculation gesündigt ist? Haben Sie vergessen, wer die Genossen Strousberg's waren? Haben Sie vergessen, durch welches System der leichtsinnige und schwindelhafte Eisenbahnbau begünstigt worden ist?“

Herr Lasker kam also wieder auf seine „Enthüllungen“ zurück, und schien zu meinen, dass nichts weiter zu „enthüllen“ sei. Sehr treffend, aber in der Form viel zu milde, entgegnete ihm in der nächsten Sitzung Freiherr von Maltzahn-Gültz: „Ich will der Partei des Herrn Lasker das Zeugniss nicht vorenthalten, dass, nachdem diese üblen Folgen eingetreten waren, sie die erste gewesen ist, welche den Muth gehabt hat, gegen die eigene Mitschuld die Augen zu verschliessen, und unter den Reihen der politischen Gegner mit einem grossen Aufwande sittlicher Entrüstung die Schuldigen hervorzusuchen und an den Pranger zu stellen.“

Wir haben gleich zu Anfang dieser Schrift (S. 8 u. 9) die hochadligen Genossen Strousberg's in der schärfsten Weise verurtheilt; aber wir müssen jetzt für diese Herren doch hervorheben, dass sich Strousberg an sie gedrängt, dass er sie verlockt hat, und dass sie, moralisch wie materiell, bereits hart büssen müssen. Die „liberale“ Presse hat nicht aufgehört, sie zu kreuzigen; und sie müssen jetzt, nachdem Strousberg bankrott geworden, für eine sehr hohe Summe aufkommen, welche sie der Rumänischen Eisenbahn-Gesellschaft resp. der Disconto-Gesellschaft mit garantirt haben. Sie werden vielleicht Alles, was sie je profitirt haben, wieder herausgeben müssen.

Im Uebrigen weiss Lasker so gut wie wir — muss er's wissen — dass sich an dem Gründungsschwindel die Conservativen wie die Ultramontanen gerade am wenigsten betheiligt haben; dass am schwersten compromittirt sind die National-liberalen; während die Freiconservativen und die Fortschrittsleute etwa in der Mitte stehen. Die Hauptgründer gehören dem auserwählten Volke an, sind Lasker's Glaubensgenossen, und die Hauptverbündeten derselben sind seine politischen Freunde: Miquel, Hammacher, Braun, Bamberger, Hagen etc. Herr Lasker hat nicht den Muth gehabt, sein Versprechen, auch gegen die „liberalen“ Gründer vorzugehen, einzulösen; vielmehr hat er's im offenen Reichstage, Angesichts der Nation, versucht, die Thatsachen zu verschieben und zu verdunkeln; ein Verfahren, das jeder parlamentarischen Bezeichnung spottet.

Herr Lasker hat auch gegen unsere Kritik seiner „Ent-hüllungen“ (S. 244) reclamirt. In No. 48 der „Gartenlaube“ behauptet ein Freund von ihm: „Ein abenteuerliches Speculiren auf einen «Ministersessel» hat Lasker'n jederzeit gänzlich fern gelegen“. Indess scheint Herr Lasker doch nicht abgeneigt, denn unmittelbar darauf schreibt er, oder vielmehr, lässt er schreiben — was aber hier wol so ziemlich dasselbe ist: „Wer kann vorher sagen, ob ihn (Lasker) und manchen Andern (!) nicht einmal ein schwieriger Moment, eine ernste Wendung im Vaterlande auf einen hohen Verwaltungsposten berufen wird? Träte aber eine solche Forderung an ihn heran, so würde er bei dem strengen Gedankenernst (!), bei der Idealität und bescheidenen Selbstlosigkeit seines genügsamen und uneigennütigen Wesens (!!), das auf sich nehmen wie eine schwere Pflicht, der er sich nicht entziehen dürfe, der er mit ausdauernder Hingebung seine ihm so lieb gewordene Unabhängigkeit und den letzten Tropfen seiner Kraft zu opfern habe.“ (!!!) Es ist dies derselbe „Stil“ wie bei den „Enthüllungen“ am 7. Februar 1873, wo Lasker u. A. äusserte: „Ich will gestehen, dass ich von dem Tage ab, an welchem ich auf Grund sehr glaubhafter Mittheilungen Namen und Personen hier genannt, viele der allerschlimmsten Tage meines Lebens zugebracht habe. (!) — — „Dass mir ein solches Geschäft nicht sonderlich zusagt, werden Sie mir Alle glauben. (!) — — „Ich habe keine Freude daran, mit Anschuldigungen vorzugehen; ich wünsche allein, dass die Schäden des Landes hier verhandelt werden, dass man nicht von Mund zu Mund sich die schlimmsten Dinge erzählt, und die Volksvertretung nimmt keine Notiz davon.“ (!!!) — — —

Genug, wir glauben, eben auf Grund jener Reclamation, die sonst sehr überflüssig wäre, und überhaupt etwas gewaltsam erscheint, annehmen zu dürfen: Herr Lasker ist vorkommenden Falls durchaus nicht abgeneigt; und von seinen politischen Freunden gewiss „manch Anderer“ auch nicht. Der „Berliner Börsen-Courier“ des Herrn Georg Davidsohn hat, als eventuellen Nachfolger des Herrn Camphausen, bereits Herrn Ludwig Bamberger vorgeschlagen; und für den Fall, das Fürst Bismarck eines schönen Tages seine Drohung wahr machen und zurücktreten sollte, circulirt unter den vereinigten „Liberalen“ folgende Ministerliste, die wir aber selbstverständlich ohne jede Gewähr wiedergeben:

Auswärtiges: von Bennigsen; Inneres: von Kardorff; Justiz: Miquel; Finanzen: Bamberger; Handel: Hammacher; Verkehr (Post, Telegraphie, Eisenbahnen): H. B. Oppenheim; Gewerbe: Max Hirsch; Cultus: Friedenthal; Krieg: Lasker; Marine: Braun-Wiesbaden; Landwirthschaft: Sonnemann; Elsass-Lothringen: Adolf Hagen; Kanzler (von Bismarck selber empfohlen): Eugen Richter.

Zu S. 148 ff. Juden. Es leben gegenwärtig in Preussen ca. 500,000 Juden, im übrigen Deutschland ca. 200,000, zusammen an $\frac{3}{4}$ Million. Dagegen in Deutsch-Oesterreich nur 200,000, in Frankreich 80,000, in Grossbritannien 50,000, in

in Italien 40,000, in Dänemark 5000, in Schweden 1000. Zu den $\frac{3}{4}$ Million Juden in Deutschland kommen noch die getauften Juden und die Abkömmlinge jüdischer Vorfahren, die gleichfalls eine grosse Zahl bilden, und die mit den eigentlichen Israeliten eng zusammenhalten, sich von diesen nicht wesentlich unterscheiden. Das Bischen Wasser thut's nicht; es handelt sich weniger um den Glauben als um die Race, die sich durch Generationen nicht verwischt, die oft noch bei den Ur- enkeln frappant hervorbricht. Auch findet eine ununterbrochene und immer stärkere Einwanderung von Juden aus Russland und Polen, aus Galizien und Ungarn nach Deutschland statt.

Ist die Zahl der Juden bei uns schon sehr gross, so ist die Macht, die sie hier ausüben, eine noch ungleich grössere, eine wahre Uebermacht und drückende Herrschaft. Weitaus der grösste Theil der Presse befindet sich in ihren Händen; es giebt fast keine Zeitung, keine Zeitschrift, in deren Redaction sich nicht ein Jude eingeschmuggelt hätte. In der gesammten Presse wird rastlos für die Interessen des Judenthums gekämpft, rastlos für das Volk Israel agitirt. Auch wo man Juden anscheinend tadelt und verspottet, wird thatsächlich, z. B. in den jüdischen Witzblättern, stets für sie Reclame gemacht. Wer etwas gegen die Juden spricht oder schreibt, wird entweder sein Lebelang verlästert und verfolgt, oder — todtgeschwiegen; ist fortan geächtet und verfehmt. Wer dagegen in die Dienste der Judenschaft tritt, für sie arbeitet, kann auf reichen Lohn und schnelle Carrière rechnen. Auch drängen sich die Juden an jedes auftauchende Talent, an jede Berühmtheit und suchen sie für sich zu gewinnen.

Ueber die Bühnen dürfen nur edelmüthige hochherzige Juden schreiten; Ausbunde von Tugend und Vortrefflichkeit, wie sie in Wirklichkeit ganz unmöglich sind. Wie oft im Berliner Schauspielhaus auch Lessing's „Nathan“ gegeben wird: die Vorstellung ist stets überfüllt. Neuerdings hatte man hier das veraltete unnatürliche Stück „Der Jude“ von Cumberland wieder vorgesucht und brachte es an mehreren Theatern gleichzeitig zur Aufführung. Aus dem Shakespeare'schen Wucherjuden Shylock haben Dawison und andere jüdische Schauspieler einen tragischen Helden gemacht. Juden dagegen, die der Dichter nach dem Leben zeichnet, nennt die jüdische Kritik „Theaterjuden“, und das Stück ist von vorn herein gerichtet.

Durch Schrift und Wort, namentlich auch in den Handwerker-, Bezirks- und ähnlichen Vereinen haben die Juden seit langer Zeit in „Bildung“ und „Aufklärung“ gemacht, die Volksmassen zu bearbeiten und zu drillen, die öffentliche Meinung für sich zu gewinnen gewusst. In der Presse wie in den Vereinen wird noch immer die äusserste Toleranz gegen die Juden gepredigt. Aber diese Toleranz-Predigten sind der reine Schwindel, denn die Juden herrschen und regieren. Es handelt sich schon lange nicht mehr um die Emancipation der Juden, sondern um die Emancipation von den Juden. Lebte Lessing heute und lebte er heute in Berlin, er würde sich hüten, den „Nathan“ zu schreiben.

Je mehr die Macht der Juden wächst, desto höher steigen ihre Ansprüche; und diese Ansprüche werden nachgerade maßlos. Der jetzige Cultusminister, Herr Falk, thut viel für die Juden; er hat z. B. jüdischen Gelehrten zum Zwecke specifisch jüdischer Studien Subventionen aus Staatsmitteln gewährt. Aber er thut ihnen noch lange nicht genug. Ein Jude, der zum Inspector einer christlichen Gemeindeschule gewählt wurde, hat selbstverständlich nicht die Bestätigung gefunden; was die Presse sehr übel vermerkte. An verschiedenen Elementar-, Mittel- und Secundärschulen, in Berlin wie auswärts, wird bereits den jüdischen Schülern besonderer Religionsunterricht ertheilt. Aber damit nicht zufrieden, verlangten die Juden in Nakel von dem Director des dortigen simultanen Progymnasiums, er solle in den Andachten bei Anfang und Schluss der Woche nicht den Namen Jesu nennen, oder diese Andachten ausserhalb der eigentlichen Schulzeit legen. Der Moniteur der Juden, die Berliner „National-Zeitung“ brachte darüber verschiedene Artikel; und augenscheinlich ist das Streben der Juden auf Entchristlichung der Schule und des ganzen Staats gerichtet

... wogegen sie selber an ihren verjährten Ceremonialgebräuchen zäh festhängen, sich selber im Gemeinwesen fort und fort als besondere Kaste halten.

Aber mit der Uebermacht, welche die Juden erringen, mit den grossen Reichthümern, welche sie zusammenraffen, kann man auch merken, wie sie mehr und mehr dem Materialismus und der Corruption verfallen. Für Poesie und Literatur, Kunst und Wissenschaft hat der Durchschnitts-Jude weder Sinn noch Verständniss. Er liebt überladene Pracht und in die Augen fallenden Luxus; er schätzt das Vergnügen um so höher, je kostspieliger es ist; und hauptsächlich ihm sind die horrenden Preis-Steigerungen der letzten Jahre zu danken. Die in Berlin sich so breit machende Prostitution, die auf hiesigen Theatern blühenden Possenzoten und aus dem Französischen übertragenen Ehebruchsdramen und Demimondestücke werden wesentlich von den Juden begünstigt und gefördert; wie denn auch frivole Bücher, obscöne Bilder ihren Hauptabsatz unter Juden finden. Vorzugsweise aus Juden recrutiren sich die Wucherer und „Halsabschneider“, die Kuppler und Hehler, die Polizeispione und politischen Denuncianten. Betrügerischer Bankerott, Wechsel- und Depeschen-Fälschung, grosse Cassendiebstähle und Unterschlagungen aller Art sind Verbrechen, deren sich in den letzten Jahren besonders Juden schuldig machten. Viele jüdische Börsianer nahmen sich das Leben, und neuerdings standen auch nicht selten Juden unter der Anklage des Raubes und des Mordes. Sehr häufig erschienen sie als Anstifter von Misse- und Unthaten; und bei zahlreichen Criminalfällen, welche die Gerichte beschäftigten, bei vielen Schurkereien und Niederträchtigkeiten, welche die Gesellschaft in Aufregung versetzten, konnte man fast regelmässig fragen: Wie heisst der Jude? — Doch werden alle solche Geschichten in der Regel unterdrückt, von der Presse nur obenhin berührt, oder völlig mit Stillschweigen übergangen, und besonders die „National-Zeitung“ leistet hierin Grosses.

Zu S. 293. Braustener. Die Erhöhung der Braumalzsteuer ist glücklich beseitigt. Dafür ist aber auch, wie dies freilich von der „liberalen“ Majorität des Reichstags nicht anders zu erwarten war, die Börsensteuer verworfen. Sogar Herr Lasker sprach jetzt gegen dieselbe: „Von der Börsensteuer erkläre ich offen, dass sie nicht allein die Finanz-Einnahmen des Reiches zu erhöhen dient, sondern dass ein Gebot gerechter Ausgleichung sie früher oder später nothwendig macht. Diese Steuer darf aber nicht für sich allein auftreten, sondern nur unter Würdigung der gesammten Stempelsteuer. (Wer lacht da?)

Zu S. 241 bis 249. Nochmals Lasker's „Enthüllungen“. Herr Lasker hat selber begriffen, dass seine neue Bezeichnung der Conservativen, (S. 340 und 341) höchst unklug, dass sie ein grober Fehler war. Am 18. December 1875 nahm er im Reichstag das Wort, um „offen zu bekennen“, wie dies „besser unterblieben wäre“. Herr Lasker widerrief in bester Form, aber die „liberale“ Presse war gleich bei der Hand, um seine Entschuldigung zu escamotiren; und namentlich sein Leiborgan, die von ihm selber mitgeleitete „National-Zeitung“ äusserte am nächsten Tage: Lasker habe in jener Erklärung „sich grossmüthig abwehrend verhalten“!!!

Register.

(Die Ziffern bezeichnen die Seiten.)

A.
Aachener Discontogesellschaft 82.
Aachener Tuchfabrik 72. 333.
Abegg, Wilhelm, Dr. 134.
Abel, Adolf (S. Abel jun.) 24. 202. 231. 232. 289.
Abendbörse 157. 322.
„Abfindungen“ 164. 232.
Abgeordnetenhaus 210 ff. 240. 245. 248/49.
„Abschreibungen“ 121/22. 156.
Actienbrauereien, diverse 261 ff.
„Actien-Capital“ 49. 56. 73. 80. 84.
Actien-Gesellschaften 21. 23. 34. 43 ff. 100. 102. 105. 257.
Actien-Gesetz 13 ff. 21. 27. 110 ff. 131. 143 ff. 216. 237. 240. 253. 262/63.
Actionäre, die ersten 49. 123.
Actionäre, die betrogenen, gemordeten 54. 68. 73. 74. 91. 110. 130. 153. 158. 164. 212. 245. 273. 283. 288. 337.
Adel und Aristokratie 8. 11. 71. 104. 125. 150. 258.
Adler, Bierbrauerei, vormals G. Schwendy 264. 269. 275. 277. 279.
Admiralsgartenbad 185. 186.

Agio, Agiotage, Aufgeld 16. 32. 37. 95 ff. 139. 153. 160. 227. 253. 265.
Ahlemann, Justizrath 132. 133. 189. 263.
Ahlemann, Rentier 133.
Albertinenhütte, Glasfabrik 31. 44. 71.
Alberts, Moritz, Hofrath 286.
Albrechtshof 140.
Alexander, Gebrüder in Breslau 288.
Alexander, Julius 24. 136. 202. 225. 239. 264.
Allgemeine Bau- und Handelsbank 107. 138.
Allgemeine Depositenbank 26.
Allgemeine Deutsche Handelsgesellschaft 70.
Allgemeine Häuserbaugesellschaft 106.
Allgemeine Transport-Gesellschaft 182. 337.
„Allgemeiner Wohlstand“ 109. 339.
Altenerburger Zuckerfabrik 63. 65. 66. 70.
Amerikanische Eisenbahn-Prioritäten 18. 256.
„An den hohen jüdischen Festtagen“ 149. 303.

Anleihe des Norddeutschen Bundes 16.
 Annoncen und Inserate 61. 62.
 75. 76.
 Aren, Ephraim in Stettin 203.
 Arndt, Carl August 133. 265.
 Arnheim, Isaac & Co. 182.
 „Artistisches Unternehmen“ 58.
 76.
 Auflösung (Liquidation) 56. 73.
 107. 136. 167. 234. 286. 290.
 Aufsichtsrath und Aufsichtsräthe 14. 34. 48. 50. 52. 55.
 124. 128. 130. 134. 155. 156.
 192. 193. 214. 271. 274. 283.
 Augustin, H., Apotheker 129.
 Aulig, Carl 138. 139.
 Aumann, Aron 264.
 Ausländische Fonds 8. 9. 18. 20.
 Ausrufer an der Börse 90. 305 ff.
 Auswanderung in die Umgegend von Berlin 101.
 „Avenue“, „die schönste und einzig grosse“ 126.

B.

Baisse, Baissiers 295 ff. 308.
 Ball, J. 113.
 Ball, Meyer 24.
 Baltische Waggonfabrik 31.
 Bamberger, Louis 287.
 Bamberger, Ludwig, Reichstagsmitglied und „Volkswirth“ 168. 220. 239. 341. 342.
 Bamberger'sche „Reichsbank“ 212. 249. 338.
 Bank für Rheinland und Westphalen 70.
 Bank für Sprit- und Productenhandel 83.
 Bank- und Handelszeitung 317.
 Banquiers 29. 38. 82. 88. 91.
 100. 102.
 Barackenstadt („Barackia“) in Berlin 109.

Baubanken, Baugesellschaften, Bauvereine, Bauschwindel 106 ff. 118. 124. 135 ff. 334.
 Bauendahl, Walter 133.
 Baugesellschaft für Eisenbahn-Unternehmungen, F. Plessner & Co. 201. 225 ff.
 Bauländereien, Baustellen, Baustellenwucher 105. 114. 120 ff.
 134. 139 ff.
 Baumann, Robert 70. 71. 289.
 „Baustellen mit Baugeld“ 109.
 „Bauzinsen“ 110 ff. 133. 147.
 215. 216. 223.
 Becker, Nicolaus, Baumeister 137.
 Beer, Benno 286.
 Beer, Georg 113. 123. 152. 159.
 239.
 Beer, Josephselige Wittwe 65. 73.
 Behrens, Wilhelm in Hamburg (L. Behrens & Söhne) 24. 85.
 96. 201.
 Bein & Co. 166.
 Belle-Alliance, Baugesellschaft 106. 133.
 Bendix, Gustav 288.
 von Bennigsen, Präsident des Abgeordnetenhauses 248. 342.
 Bensemann, Berthold 169. 199.
 Bensemann, Rudolf 185.
 Bercht & Swoboda 83. 282.
 Bergbrauerei Hasenhaide, früher C. Kelch 73. 265. 271. 723.
 277. 284.
 Bergemann, R. & Co. 182. 337.
 Bergmann, Heinrich 112. 332.
 Bergwerke 54. 239.
 Berliner Bank 25. 70. 71. 289.
 Berlinische Bank für Bauten 106.
 Berliner Bankverein 25. 199.
 Berliner Bauvereinsbank 106.
 113.
 Berliner Bockbierbrauerei, früher G. Hopf 264. 268. 275.

- Berliner Börsen-Courier (Georg Davidsohn) 86 ff. 317. 232. 342.
- Berliner Börsenzeitung (H. Kilisch) 162. 316.
- Berliner Brauhaus (Bitterbier-Brauerei) 286.
- Berliner Bürgerzeitung 250.
- Berlin-Charlottenburger Bauverein 64. 106. 113. 123. 171. 173. 191.
- Berlin-Dresdener Eisenbahn 231 ff.
- Berlin-Hamburger Immobilien 334.
- Berliner Handelsgesellschaft 24.
- Berliner Häuserbaugenossenschaft 106.
- Berliner Hôtel-Gesellschaft („Kaiserhof“) 168 ff. 336.
- Berliner Juden 102. 148 ff.
- Berliner Neustadt, Baugesellschaft 106. 234.
- Berliner Nord-Eisenbahn 70. 71. 188. 212.
- Berliner „Palais Royal“ (Hermann Geber) 147. 167.
- Berliner Spediteur-Verein 182. 337.
- Berliner Stadtbahn 167. 209. 211. 213. 337.
- Berliner „Stadtpark“ (Hermann Geber) 147. 166. 167.
- Berliner Stadtverordnete 150. 219. 220. 338.
- Berlin-Tempelhofer Baugesellschaft 133.
- Berliner Vulkan 77. 78.
- Berliner Wechslerbank 25.
- Berliner Weissbierbrauerei, vormals Gericke 68. 76. 77. 284. 285.
- „Berlin wird Weltstadt“ 142 ff. 167.
- Berolina, Baugesellschaft 106.
- Besckow, Gebrüder, Fuhrgeschäft 44. 177.
- Besckow, Ernst Theodor 152.
- Besckow, Fr. Wilh. 152.
- Besteuerung der „Baustellen“ 140.
- „Betheiligungen“ („betheiligt“) 25. 31. 33. 52. 75. 90 ff. 226.
- von Bethmann, Baron, Simon Moritz in Frankfurt a./M. 200.
- „Betriebscapital“ 49. 53.
- Bierfrage, Biernoth 262. 276 ff. 291.
- Bilanzen 127. 154. 155. 207. 227. 233. 235. 253. 254. 257. 271 ff. 285.
- Birkenwerder, Baugesellschaft 113. 333.
- „Bismarck-Platz“ 140.
- Blanco-Abgaben (in blanco verkaufen) 95. 305 ff.
- von Bleichröder, Gerson (S. Bleichröder) 9. 22. 24. 85. 96. 125. 201. 215. 218. 267.
- Blumenthal, Louis in Oranienburg 287.
- Bodinus, Director des Zoologischen Gartens 185.
- Böckmann, W., Baumeister 113.
- Böhm, Carl 113.
- Böhmisches Brauhaus 262. 268. 274. 284.
- Börsen-Blätter 75 ff. 86 ff. 162. 315 ff.
- Börsen-Execution 30.
- Börsen-Fieber 16.
- Börsen-Jargon 3. 294 ff.
- Börsen-Matadore 16. 220. 338.
- „Börsen-Reisende für Stadt und Land“ 328.
- Börsen-Reporter 314 ff.
- Börsen-Spiel 305 ff.
- Börsen-Steuer 141. 220. 292. 311. 338. 346.

Börsen-Treiben 3. 18. 255. 295 ff.
339.
Börsen-Witz 27. 28. 40. 41.
313 ff.
„Börsen-Zinsen“ 20.
Börsianer 98 ff. 118. 120. 189.
193. 239. 260. 295 ff.
Bolle, Norddeutsche Eiswerke
28.
Bolle, Weissbierbrauerei 284.
„Bonificationen“ 92.
von Bonin, Gustav, Excellenz
und Abgeordneter 34. 159. 162.
Bonwitt, Bernhard 287. 288.
Bonwitt, Moritz 288.
Booss, Heinrich 265.
Borchardt, Gustav 336.
Borchardt & Sachs 182.
Borchert, Wilhelm jun. 138.
Borgfeldt, Wilhelm, Ziegelei-besitzer 113.
Borgnis, Franz in Frankfurt a/M.
200.
Born, David, „Volkswirth“ 112.
113. 118 ff. 189. 190.
von Born, Wilhelm in Dortmund
24. 95.
Borsig, Albert, Geh. Commer-zienrath 43. 59. 202. 225.
227.
von Brandt, Polizei-Präsident in Hannover 187.
Brillenfabrik von Emil Busch
in Rathenow 45.
Brauereien, Brauerei-Gründun-
gen 28. 44. 68. 73. 261 ff.
289.
Braun-Wiesbaden, Abgeordneter
und „Volkswirth“ 14. 70. 84.
204. 238. 249 ff. 338. 341. 342.
Brausteuern 292. 293. 346.
„Bruder Grundehrlich“ 38.
Brüning, Carl 203.
Brunzlow & Sohn, Tabakshand-
lung 44.

Bühling, Albert, Regierungsrath
a. D. 127. 137. 184. 264. 335.
Büsing, Johannes, Ingenieur
184. 335.
Bullrich, Bürgermeister in Char-
lottenburg 68.
Busse, Otto, Geometer in Char-
lottenburg 113. 334.
Busse, Traugott (A. Busse & Co.) 132.

C.

Camphausen, Finanzminister 16.
17. 217. 221. 340. 342.
Camphausen, A. & L., in Cöln
226.
Candidaten zum Abgeordneten-
haus 242.
„Capital hat kein Vaterland“ 17.
von Carnall, Geh. Rath 85.
Carstenn, J. A. W. (von Carstenn-Lichterfelde) 112. 113.
121 ff. 144. 188. 334.
Cautionen verfallen 208. 212. 252.
Centralbank für Bauten 26. 28 ff.
107. 112. 332.
Centralbank für Genossenschaf-
ten 25. 179. 288.
Centralbank für Handel und
Industrie 25. 83. 234.
Central-Bazar für Fuhrwesen (Gebr. Besckow) 177 ff.
Central-Cadetten-Anstalt 122.
124.
Centralfactorei für Baumaterial
29.
Centralstrasse, Baugesellschaft
106. 145 ff. 153. 164 ff.
Cessionen (Theilung der Beute)
161.
Charlier, Eugen in Aachen 337.
Charlier-Memminger, Adolf in Burtscheid. 337.
Charlottenburger Baugesell-
schaft 68. 106. 137.

Chemische Fabrik von Schering 44.
 Chemnitzer Maschinenbau-Fabrik (A. Münnich & Co.) 28.
 Claqueurs an der Börse 91.
 City, Baugesellschaft 29. 106.
 Cohn, Albert, Verlagsbuchhändler 203.
 Cohn, Hermann & Co. 182. 337.
 Cohn, Meyer, Commerzienrath 24. 71. 113. 151. 160. 161. 264. 289. 334.
 Concourse 54. 56. 72. 107. 129. 131. 136. 138. 226 ff. 290.
 Connexionen 8. 36.
 Coppel, Carl (Carl Coppel & Co.) 24. 84. 112. 113. 200. 264.
 Consortium, Consortial-Verschworne 58. 59. 76. 88. 232.
 „Constituierende Generalversammlung“ 49 ff.
 Corruption der Juden 345.
 Cossmann, Theodor, Redacteur 285.
 Cottage, Baugesellschaft 29. 30. 106.
 Coulisse 295 ff.
 Couliissen, Vorgänge hinter den 51. 80. 84. 161. 164.
 Courstreiberei, Courswucher 18. 19. 76. 82. 95. 139.
 „Cultur-Heros“, Culturkämpfer“ 4. 11. 160. 196 ff. 330.
 „Curatorium“ der Preussischen Boden-Credit-Actien-Bank 34.
 Cuxhavener Eisenbahn-Gesellschaft 204. 250.
 Cuxhavener Immobilien-Gesellschaft 204. 252 ff.

D.

Dahms, Otto 133.
 Dampfmühlen-Gesellschaft in Stralsund 73.
 Dankberg, Carl 137.

Dankberg, Ofenfabrik 44.
 Dannenberger'sche (Liebermann'sche) Kattunfabrik 32 ff. 93.
 David, Charles Ernst 204. 251. 252.
 David, Max 137. 285.
 Davidsohn, Georg, Börsen-Redacteur 317. 332. 342.
 „Decken“ 95. 308.
 Deibel, Carl 264.
 Delbrück, Minister 144. 170. 221. 244. 245.
 Delbrück, Adalbert, Commerzienrath (Delbrück, Leo & Co.) 168. 169. 173. 199. 202. 225. 336.
 „Delbrückstrasse“ 170.
 von Derschau, Geh. Regierungs- und Baurath a. D. 202.
 Deutsche Bank 25. 168. 169.
 Deutsche Baugesellschaft 106. 168. 169. 199. 205 ff.
 Deutsche Buchhändlerbank 70.
 Deutsche Eisenbahnbau-Gesellschaft 199. 207 ff. 213.
 Deutsche Eisenbahnbau-Gesellschaft zu Frankfurt a. M. 200.
 Deutsche Genössenschaftsbank (Sörgel, Parrisius & Co.) 24. 185. 264.
 Deutsche Marezzo-Marmor-Gesellschaft 72.
 Deutsche Pferde-Eisenbahn 184. 335.
 Deutsche Reichs- und Continental-Eisenbahnbau-Gesellschaft 96. 200. 213.
 Deutsche Unionbank 25. 226.
 Deutscher Centralbauverein (Quistorp) 106. 113. 128 ff. 335.
 Deutsch-Holländischer Bauverein 106. 134.
 Deutschland's Baubeförderungs-Verein 106.

Dialektik der Gründer 237.
 „Differenz-Geschäfte“ 4. 296 ff.
 Director, der hochpoetische des Berlin-Charlottenburger Bau-vereins 171. 173. 191.
 Disconto-Gesellschaft 9. 24. 81.
 96. 97. 217. 218. 317.
 Dittmann, Director 137. 183.
 Dividenden, künstliche 114. 115.
 132. 134.
 „Dividendenjauche“ 276 ff. 290.
 Dohme, Robert, Geh. Hofrath
 231.
 Dorn, Joseph 113. 334.
 Dortmunder Union 95. 298.
 Drews, Justizrath 152.
 Droschken 177 ff.

E.

Ebeling, Emil 289.
 Ebeling, Heinrich, Dr. 138.
 Ebers, Ludwig, Hauptmann u.
 Rittergutsbesitzer 186. 188.
 285.
 Ebers, Martin, Dr. 137. 183.
 189. 190. 285.
 Eckert, Maschinenfabrik 44.
 Edelmuth der Gründer 64. 83.
 118.
 Egells, Maschinenfabrik 44. 65.
 70.
 Egells, Hermann, Commerzien-
 rath 44. 45. 146. 160.
 Egells, Carl, Fabrikbesitzer
 a. D. 86. 152. 184.
 Einführungscourse 19. 90. 94.
 Einwanderung von Juden 148 ff.
 343.
 Eisner, Ludwig, Dr. 189. 285.
 Eisner, Moritz 189. 285.
 Elbinger Fabrik für Eisenbahn-
 material 234. 331.
 Ellon, Samuel Heinrich 112.
 Eltzbacher, Jacob Löb in Cöln
 201. 225.

Emancipation von den Juden
 344.
 Enders, Heinrich 137.
 Engmann, Wilhelm, Dr. med.
 185.
 Entgründungen 234.
 „Enthüllungen“ siehe Lasker.
 Enthüllungen der Brauer und
 Gastwirthe 279. 280.
 Ephraim, Hermann 137.
 Erdmannsdorfer Spinnerei 219.
 Erfurt-Hof-Eger Eisenbahn 229.
 234. 236. 238. 255.
 Erich, Carl, Dr. und Stadtverordneter 112.
 von Erlanger, Baron, Ludwig
 in Frankf. a./M. 200. 202. 236.
 von Erlanger, Baron, Rafael
 in Frankf. a./M. 200.
 „Erpressung“ 254.
 „Erste Zeichner“ 48. 49. 51.
 55. 58. 88. 255. 285.
 „Es fehlt an einem Betrogenen“
 255.
 Esse, Dr., Geh. Regierungs-Rath
 204.
 Esser II, Robert, Advocat-Anwalt
 in Cöln 226.
 von Etlinger, Arnold, Ingenieur 184.
 Execution an der Börse 30.
 „Experiment eines humanen Principis“ (Quistorp) 129.

F.

Faiseurs 308.
 Faucher, Julius, Dr. 70. 204.
 Feig, Louis 265.
 Feig & Pincuss 24.
 Feilenfabrik von Schaaf 44.
 „Feuer im Kaiserhof!“ 172.
 Fischer, Director 139.
 Fischer, Carl, Baumeister 202.
 „Fiscus“ 145.
 „Fixer“ 94 ff. 309.

„Flora“ 64. 68. 185 ff. 193.
194. 337.
Flora-Lotterie 194. 337.
Fränkel, Jean 65 ff. 77. 137.
188. 189. 195. 272. 284 ff.
333. 337.
Frage- und Antwortspiel 318.
Frege, Martin 134.
„Freie Concurrenz“ 12. 13. 280.
Freizügigkeit 108.
Frenkel, S. 57.
Frenkel, Hermann 264. 269.
Freund, Maschinenfabrik 44.
Friedenau, Villen-Colonie 120.
Friedensburg, Justizrath in Breslau 85.
Friedenthal, Paul Gaspardt (Breslauer Discontobank) 201.
Friedheim, Bernhard 264.
Friedländer, Julius, Dr., Buch-
händler 166.
Friedmann, Leopold 284.
Friedrichshain, Baugesellschaft
106. 113. 134.
Friedrichshain, Bierbrauerei 261.
267. 275. 284.
Friedrichshöhe, Bierbrauerei 263.
265.
Fromberg, Heinrich (Schlesi-scher Bankverein) 200.
Fromm, Gottfried 203.
Fuchs, Hugo 134.

G.

Gäbler, Geh. Admiralitätsrath
132. 133.
Gäbler, Carl 132.
„Garantien“ der Gründer 71 ff.
273.
Gastrollen der polnischen Juden 148.
Geber, Hermann 84. 113. 133.
136. 144 ff. 166. 167. 184.
204. 252. 253. 257. 262. 287.
316. 336.

Glagau, Der Börsenschwindel.

Geber, Siegfried 287. 288.
Gebhard, G., Consul in Elberfeld 226.
„Gegen den Strom“ (von Kardorff) 221. 340.
Geim, A., Geh. Ober-Finanz-
rath 134.
General-Baubank 202. 232. 233.
General-Entreprise 5. 215. 222 ff.
229 ff. 237. 252.
„Général-Versammlung“ 49. 50.
54. 134. 153. 156. 207. 216.
257. 272.
v. Gerhard, Polizei-Präsident in Magdeburg 187.
Gericke, Emil, Weissbier-Director 137. 188. 284. 285.
Gerschel, Max 286.
Gerstenberg, Stadtbaurath 134.
von Gerstenberg, Altenburgi-scher Minister 85.
Geschäftsstille 303. 305.
Gesellschaft für Bauausführun-
gen 106. 168. 169. 205.
Gesellschaft für Eisenindustrie
und Brückenbau (Joh. Caspar Harkort in Duisburg) 73.
Gewerbebank H. Schuster & Co.
26 ff. 83. 136.
Gilka, J. A. Commerzienrath
113. 262.
Glasenfeld, Alfred 287.
Godeffroy, Gustav, Senator in Hamburg 112. 334.
Goldberger, Ludwig Max 264.
von Goldschmidt, Ritter, Moritz,
in Wien 201.
Goldschmidt, F. 266.
Goldstein, Moritz 177.
Görke, Carl 203.
Gottheiner, Baumeister 226.
228.
Graef, Adolf 133.
Gratweil, Hermann 263. 284.
288.

Gratweil, Louis 287. 288.
 Grätzer Brauerei 288.
 Gravenstein, Gustav 263.
 Gravenstein, Paul 184. 202.
 231.
 Grelling, Julius (Gebr. Grelling)
 184. 189. 264.
 Greve, Director in Cuxhaven
 253. 256. 257.
 Greve, J. & Co. in Hamburg
 204.
 Grillo, Friedrich in Essen 200.
 Gründerbanken 26 ff. 46. 54.
 Gründercliquen 47.
 Gründerdilettanten, „Gründ-
 linge“ 212. 241. 256. 338.
 Gründerspesen, Gründungsunkosten 56. 75. 92.
 Gründerwerke 167. 173. 174.
 176.
 Gründungen in Preussen 23.
 Gründungen in Oesterreich-Ungarn 24.
 Gründungs-Comödien 48 ff. 255.
 Gründungs-Objecte 42. 43. 54. 64.
 Grünfeldt, Hermann, Dr., Ban-
 quier in Dresden 203.
 Grundstückschacher an d. Börse
 103 ff.
 Grünert, Franz, „Redacteur“
 334.
 Güterbock, Ferd, 202. 225.
 Gumpertz, Wilh. 112.
 Guttentag, Julius (Gebrüder Guttentag) 184. 262.

H.

Hadra, Leopold 77. 78.
 Hähnel, Hermann, Baumeister
 112.
 „Häuser“ und „grosse Häuser“
 22. 87. 299. 312. 318.
 Häuserkrach 141. 335.
 Häuserschacher 103 ff.
 Hagen, Adolf, Stadtrath a. D.,

Abgeordneter 199. 226. 242.
 341. 342.
 Hagenah, J. H. in Stade 204.
 252. 253.
 Hahlo, Julius 265.
 Hainauer, Oskar 263. 339.
 Halle'scher Bankverein 264.
 Halsabschneider 95. 345.
 Halske, Johann Georg, Stadtverordneter 199.
 Hammacher, Abgeordneter und „Volkswirth“ 14. 199. 209.
 238. 341. 342.
 Handjery, Prinz, Landrath
 331 ff.
 Hannover-Altenbecker Eisen-
 bahn 248.
 von Hanseemann, Adolf, Geh.
 Commerzienrath (Disconto-gesellschaft) 95. 96. 125.
 Harburg-Stade, Eisenbahnlinie 249.
 Harkort, Johann Caspar 73.
 Harnecker, Carl, Stadtrath 184.
 Hartmann, Gustav 265.
 Hartwich, Wirkl. Geh. Ob.-Reg.-
 Rath 200. 209.
 von Hatzfeld-Wildenburg, Graf.
 Geh. Leg.-Rath 85. 96. 201.
 Hausmann, Stadtrath in Brandenburg, Reichstagsmitglied 265.
 „Hauschner's Sterne“ 166. 167.
 Hausse, Haussiers 296 ff.
 Hecker, Ewald, Rechts-Anwalt
 179. 263. 337.
 Heilmann, Moritz 284.
 Heilmann, Heinrich in Breslau
 85.
 Heilmann, Paul (Marcus Nelken & Sohn) 263.
 Heimendahl, A., Commerzien-
 rath in Crefeld 226.
 Heise, Ludwig, Geh. Ober-Reg.-
 Rath 231. 232.

Helfft, Edmund 159.
 Hennicke, Baumeister 169. 334.
 Henniges, Otto in Magdeburg 254.
 Henoch, Theodor 113. 200.
 Herbertz, Justizrath in Cöln 226.
 Herberz'sche Brauerei in Dortmund 288.
 Herbig, Robert 137.
 Herborn, Joseph, Baumeister 202.
 Hermann, Heinrich, Rittergutsbesitzer 203.
 Hertel, Theodor 202. 225.
 Herz, Wilh., Commerzienrath u. Aeltester der Kaufmannschaft 159. 263.
 Hessische Bank 70.
 Hessische Brauerei 70.
 von der Heydt, Eduard, Baron 168. 169. 173. 174. 199.
 Heymann, Aron Hirsch 113. 151. 160. 161. 333.
 Heymann, Emil 159. 161. 333.
 Heymann, Maximilian 151.
 Heymann, Meyer 284.
 Heymann, Salomon Gotthold 151.
 Heyne, Ludwig in Breslau 288.
 „Hie Wolff! Hie Munckel!“ 135.
 Hinschius, Franz, Geh. Justizrath 133. 137. 146. 262. 288.
 Hirschfeld & Co. 133.
 Hirschfeld & Wolff 24. 263. 284.
 Hoffers, Alexander, Redacteur 112. 285.
 Hofjäger, Baugesellsch. 106. 136.
 Holländisch-Westfälische Eisenbahn 208.
 Holtz, Stadtrath in Charlottenburg 129.
 Holzhandlung von Gebr. Saran 44.
 Horn, Wilh. 179.
 von Hornbostl, Ritter, Theodor in Wien 201.
 Hübner, Otto, Dr., „Volkswirth“ 134. 264.

Hypothekar-, Credit- und Bank 107.
 Hypotheken 102. 139. 141. 228. 267 ff. 283. 330. 335.

J.

Jachmann, Landrath a. D. 30. 34.
 Jacob, Banquier in Königsberg in Pr. 235.
 Jacobius, Alex., Dr. med., (Flora) 192. 337.
 Jagd nach Gründungsobjecten 42. 43.
 Jaques, Ferd. (Joseph Jaques) 24. 133. 146. 184. 267.
 Jausel, Albert, Dr. 190.
 Jausel, Joseph 189.
 Jobber 32. 89. 157. 309 ff. 313 ff. 322. 339.
 Johannisthal, Baugesellschaft 106. 132.
 Jom Hachipurim 340.
 Jonas, Baumeister 133.
 Joseph, Julius 287.
 Juden 102. 104. 148. ff. 165. 189. 193. 219. 275. 317 ff. 338. 342 ff.
 Jüdische Bettler 148.
 Jühlke, Hofgarten-Director 186.
 Jürgens, Alexander, Dr. 185.
 „Junge Actien“ 32. 41. 114. 146. 267. 269.
 Jungermann, Regierungsrath a. D. 127.
 Immobilienbank 107.
 Imperial-Grunderwerb- und Bauvereinsbank 203.
 Incest 168.
 „Interimsscheine“ 96. 137. 138. 251.
 Internationale Bank in Hamburg 200.
 „Internationaler Charakter“ der Börse 3. 15. 17.
 Isaac, Julius 337.

K.

Kämpf, Albert 112.
 Kämpf, Johann (Halle'scher Bankverein) 264.
 von Kahlden, Otto, Rittmeister 112. 133.
 „Kaiser-Galerie“ (Passage) 106. 151. 157 ff. 164. 174. 336.
 „Kaiserhof“ 167 ff. 336.
 „Kaiserstrasse“ 123. 125. 139.
 Kammgarnspinn. von Schwendy 44.
 Kampf vor Troja 305.
 Kann, Salomon 287.
 Kapp, Friedrich, Dr., Reichstagsmitglied 169.
 von Kardorff-Wabnitz, Abgeordneter und „Volkswirth“ 86. 96. 201. 214 ff. 221. 245. 246. 340. 342.
 Karsten, Rechts-Anwalt 254.
 Kaskel, Benoni 274.
 Kattunfabrik von vormals Schwertfeger in Eilenburg 65. von Kauffmann-Asserin in Cöln 226.
 Keil, Friedrich, Baurath 202.
 Kellner und Gründer 281.
 Kieschke, Oberbürgermeister a. D. und Abgeordneter 169. 199. 212.
 Kiesel, Karl (Bein. & Co.) 196.
 Killisch, H. (Berliner Börsen-Zeitung) 316. 317.
 Klau, Rittergutsbesitzer 134. 135.
 Klimitz, Friedrich, Bauunternehmerin in Charlottenburg 203.
 Klingenberg, Ernst, Hofbaurath 162. 334.
 Klotz, Kurt in Frankf. a/M. 200. von dem Knesebeck, Leo, Landrath und Ritterschaftsdirector 112. 231.
 Knoblauch, Armand, Gerichts-Assessor a. D. 262. 263. 268.

Knoblauch, Gustav, Baumeister 133.
 Koch, Eduard, Geheimer Oberbaurath a. D. in Magdeburg 202.
 Koch, Carl, Maurermeister 133.
 Königs, E., Director in Cöln (Schaaffhausen'scher Bankverein) 226.
 Königstadt, Baugesellschaft 106. 113. 334.
 Königstadt, Bierbrauerei (früher d'Heureuse & Busse) 264. 269. 270.
 Königswarter, Isaac in Frankfurt a. M. 200.
 Königswarter, Zacharias in Frankfurt a. M. 200.
 „Koschere“ Quellen 259.
 „Krach“ 21. 29. 38. 62. 85. 93. 116. 130. 131. 135. 154. 162. 180. 207. 228 ff. 238. 311. 318. 326.
 Krafft, Carl, Redacteur 285.
 von Krause, Geh. Commerzienrath (F. W. Krause & Co.) 24. 84. 125. 186. 263.
 Krause, Eduard, Dr. 203.
 Krause, Oskar 113.
 Krautheim, Leopold 287.
 Kreismann, Hermann, Consul 183. 186.
 Kremser, Director 113.
 Krienes, Wirkl. Geh. Kriegsrath a. D. 85.
 „Krisen“ 1.
 Krönig, Rechtsanwalt in Herford 225. 228.
 Kurs, Georg, Dr. 183. 204.
 Kyllmann, Walter, Baumeister 113. 185.

L.

Lampenfabrik von Stobwasser 44.
 Landau, Jakob, Commerzienrath 24. 85. 96. 201. 215. 216.

- Landé, Emil 203.
 Landerwerb und Bauverein 106.
 112. 119. 190.
 Land- u. Baugesellschaft Lichterfelde 106. 112. 121. 122.
 Landré, Weissbierbrauerei 284.
 Landsberger, Gabriel 203.
 Langhans, Joh. Ed. in Hamburg 112. 203. 204. 252.
 Lasker, Eduard, Abgeordneter und „Volkswirth“ 5. 11. 14. 210. 228. 231. 236 ff. 248. 249. 338. 340.
 Lasker's „Enthüllungen“ 11. 26. 27. 211. 214. 238. 240 ff. 339 ff. 346.
 Lasker's „verehrte Freunde“ 242. 341.
 Ledermann, Wilh. 201.
 Lehl, Hermann 13.
 Lehmann, Emil, Dr. 113. 334.
 Lehnendorf, Graf 9.
 Leihämter 219. 220.
 Lemförde-Bergheimer Bahn 208.
 Lesse, Justizrath 254.
 Lestmann, Julius 137. 177.
 Letzter Act des Dramas 239.
 Leubuscher, Hermann 146. 184. 286. 288.
 Leuffgen in Charlottenburg 71 ff.
 Levien, Ad. (Berliner Bankverein) 169. 199.
 Levinstein, Michael Julius, Banquier und „Volkswirth“ 184.
 Levy, Julius, in Magdeburg 254.
 Levy, Martin 113.
 Levy, Simon 254.
 „Liberale“ Gründer 249. 341 ff.
 „Liberale“ Parlaments-Mitglieder 241. 341 ff.
 Lichnowsky, Graf, Othenio in Wien 199.
 Lichterfelder Bauverein 106. 112. 113. 120.
 Liebermann, Benjamin, Geh. Commerzienrath 32 ff. 93. 263.
 Liepmann, David 288.
 Lilienhain, A. 113.
 Lindenbauverein 31. 106. 158 ff. 169. 239. 257.
 von Lindenau, Wolf Hugo, Sächsischer Leg.-Rath 231.
 Link, Peter, Gastwirth 285.
 Lockspeisen 329.
 Lodomez, Alexander 203.
 Loeckel, Emil 203.
 Löwe, Albert, Stadtrath 204.
 Löwe, Moritz & Co. 24. 289.
 Löwenberg, Gustav 264.
 Löwenfeld, Hermann, Gerichts-Assessor a. D. 202. 234 ff. 240. 243 ff. 255.
 Löwenfeld, Max 133. 193.
 Lombardenviertel 305. 313. 321.
 Lorek, Rechts-Anwalt 113. 189. 333.
 Loth, Gustav 286.
 Louise Tiefbau, Kohlenzeche 95.
 Ludewig, Schraubenfabrik 44.
 Lüttich-Limbürg, Eisenbahn-Actien 19.
 Luftfahrten der Börsianer 193 ff.

M.
 Mäcker, Joh. Gottlieb 133. 265.
 Märchen, von der Presse erzählt 326. 327.
 Märkische Baubank 106.
 Märkische Torfgräberei 65 ff. 333.
 Magistrat, Berliner 206. 209. 219. 220. 338.
 Magnus, F. Martin 289.
 von Magnus, Baron, Victor, General-Consul 168. 204.
 Makler, Makler-Unwesen 88. 91. 100. 303 ff. 318 ff.
 Makower, Hermann, Rechts-anwalt 201.

- Mamroth, Eduard 24. 28 ff. 112.
Mamroth, Felix 265.
Mamroth, Hugo 112.
Mamroth, J. 184.
Manchesterleute, Manchesterthum 12. 13. 108. 143. 209. 219. 221. 240. 245. 280. 292. 339. s. auch „Volkswirthe“, moderne Volkswirtschaft.
Marchand, Georg, Consul 263.
Marienhütte bei Kotzenau, vormals Schlittgen & Haase 83.
Marienhütte bei Zwickau 214.
Markthallen 206.
Markwald, Gustav 84. 112. 113. 123. 159. 161. 169.
Martini, Adolf 137. 264.
Matadore der Börse und der Gründer 16. 24. 220. 338.
Mattison & Brandt, Wasser- und Gasanlagen 44.
Mattner, Max, Dr. (Baron Mattner v. Bibra) 113. 138. 333.
May, Julius, in Frankfurt a. M. 200.
Maywald, Bernhard 146. 184. 288.
Mecklenburgische Actienbrauerei in Schwerin 289.
Meinhardt's Hotel 153. 154.
„Meister vom Stuhl“ (Julius Schweitzer) 316.
Mellin, Baurath 200.
Mende, Eduard 134.
Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, Paul, Geh. Commerzienrath 202. 204. 225 ff.
Mene Thekel 174.
Meske, Heinrich, Baumeister 202.
Metzkow, H., Weissbier-Director 284.
Mewissen in Köln 24.
Meyer, Albert 336. 337.
Meyer, E. J. 168. 169. 199.
Meyer, Ferd. (Oppenheim & Co.) 166.
Meyer, Julius Ludwig, Rittergutsbesitzer 136.
Meyer, Martin 134.
Meyer, Max (Louis Pollack) 188. 189.
Meyer, Meyer Samuel in Magdeburg 254. 256.
Meyer, Moritz Ed. 181. 285.
Meyn, Rechts-Anwalt und Stadtverordneter 138.
Michaelis, Otto, Geheimer Rath und „Volkswirth“ 221. 245. 310.
Miethen, Miethzins in Berlin 99 ff. 116. 141. 154. 165. 334.
Milliardensegen 22. 100. 109. 247. 275. 325.
Ministerliste der vereinigten „Liberalen“ 342.
Miquel, Abgeordneter u. „Volkswirth“ 14. 95. 96. 211. 218. 238. 341. 342.
„Mittelcours“ 91. 320.
Mitteldeutsche Creditbank 200.
Mittelwohnungen, Baugesellschaft 106. 132.
Moabit, Bierbrauerei (früher Ahrens) 264. 268. 275. 279.
Möbel-Transport und -Aufbewahrung, Actiengesellschaft 181. 336.
Moniteur der Juden s. National-Zeitung.
Moos, Heinrich 70.
„Mordbaubank“ s. Nordbaubank.
Mossner, Max 113.
Müller, Gustav, Consul (G. Müller & Co.) 24. 168. 199. 210. 263.
Müller, Julius, „Generaldirector“ der Wöhlert'schen Fabrik 265. 288.

Munckel, Rechts-Anwalt 131.
134. 135.
Munk, Paul 113. 123. 144. 147 ff.
158 ff. 257. 269.

N.

„Nachdruck wird nicht hono-rirt!“ 75.
Nachgründungen 147. 153.
Nähmaschinenfabrik von Pollack, Schmidt & Co. 44.
Nante's der Börse 90 ff.
National-Zeitung 61. 107. 122.
130. 162. 166. 171. 173. 191.
256. 288. 315. 316. 330. 332.
338. 344. 345. 346.
Naumann, herzoglicher Domainenpächter 64.
Nehrlich, Hugo 283.
Neisser, Albert 265.
Neisser, Josef 265.
Nelken, Markus & Sohn 263.
Neue (junge) Actien 32. 41. 114.
146. 267. 269.
Neue Börsenzeitung (J. Treuherz) 42. 71. 77. 81. 104.
318.
Neuenburg, M. Generaldirector
in Kalk 226.
„Neue Werthe“ 21. 23.
Neu-Jerusalem 149.
Neumann, Georg 112.
Neu-Yorker Handelszeitung 256.
Neuss, Wagenbauerei 44.
Niederrheinisch - Westfälische
Kohlenrevierbahn 208.
Nieder-Schönhausener Baue-
gesellschaft 68. 106. 137.
Noah, Gustav 265.
Nord - Baubank („Mord - Baubank“) 107. 138.
Norddeutsche Bank in Hamburg 200.
Norddeutsche Eiswerke, vormals
Bolle 28.

Norddeutsche Grundcreditbank
24. 132.
Nordend, Baugesellschaft 106.
113. 138. 333.
Notare 48. 49. 50.

O.

„Ochsen“ 110. s. auch „Rinder“.
Oder, Banquier 27.
Oderwerke, vereinigte 66.
Oeffentliches Fuhrwesen, Actien-
Gesellschaft 179.
Oelkers, Adolf in Magdeburg
254.
Oels - Gnesener Eisenbahn (F.
Plessner) 229.
Oesterreichische Credit-Anstalt
24.
Ofenfabrik von Dankberg 44.
Ofenheim, Prozess 256. 326.
Olberg, Corvetten-Capitain z. D.
204.
Oppenheim, Benoit (R. Oppenheim & Sohn) 169. 199.
Oppenheim, Ferd. 112.
von Oppenheim, Abraham, Baron
in Köln 24. 96.
Oppenheim & Co. 166.
Oppenheim & Schweitzer in Bres-
lau 288.
Oranienburger Schloss-Brauerei
287. 288.
Ostend, Baugesellschaft 29. 30.
106. 112.
Otzen, Johannes, Baumeister 112.
189. 334.

P.

Paderstein, A. 24.
Papierfabrik Wolfswinkel 44.
Paradies, Wolf 31 ff. 93. 161.
Parrisius, Rudolf, Kreisgerichts-rath a. D. (Deutsche Genossen-schaftsbank) 185. 264.

- Passage (Kaiser-Galerie) 106.
 151ff. 157ff. 164. 174. 269. 336.
 „Pathen“ (Gründergehilfen) 55.
 Pernet, Franz 113. 333.
 Peters, Robert 112.
 Pfandgläubiger 226.
 Pferdebahnen 182ff. 335.
 „Pflicht gegen das Privatcapital“ 87.
 Pfuschmakler 303. 305. 306. 311.
 313.
 Philipp, Alwin 182. 288. 337.
 Philipps, Oberbürgermeister a.
 D. in Elbing 235.
 Pickardt, Julius 192. 193. 265.
 284. 286. 287. 288.
 Pincuss, Joseph (Feig & Pincuss)
 24. 150. 183. 264.
 Pincuss, Salo 284.
 Platho & Wolff 24.
 Plaut, Gustav in Leipzig (H. C.
 Plaut) 254.
 Plaut, H. C. 24. 231. 234ff.
 Plaut, Moritz, Geh. Commerzien-rath (H. C. Plaut) 146.
 Plessner, Ferd., „Baudirector“
 202. 225ff.
 Plewe, G. A., Regierungsassessor
 a.D. 137. 183. 186. 284. 285. 287.
 Poetische „Prospekte“ 63. 71.
 Pohle, Stadtrath 84. 264.
 Pollack, Louis 189.
 Pollack, Schmidt & Co, Nähmaschinenfabrik 44.
 Pommersche Centralbahn 27. 28.
 212.
 Porzellan-Manufactur von Schumann 44.
 Poschmann, Leo, Regierungs-
 Assessor 201.
 Posen-Creutzburg, Eisenbahn
 214ff.
 Potocky-Nelken, Paul 266.
 Potsdamer Brauerei (W. Höne)
 287.
 Prämiengeschäfte 296ff. s. auch Differenzgeschäfte, Zeitge-schäfte, Wetten, Ultimo.
 Prätorius, Tabacksgeschäft 44.
 Presse 6. 11. 12. 75. 118. 147.
 152. 163. 166. 170. 175. 190.
 247. 251. 256. 260. 272. 285.
 290. 330ff. 340ff. 344ff. s. auch Reclame, Zeitungen.
 Preussische Baubank 106.
 Preussische Baugesellschaft 106.
 Preussische Boden-Credit-Acti-
 en-Bank 26. 30ff. 44. 74. 83.
 97. 161. 162.
 Preussische Credit-Anstalt 32ff.
 97.
 v. Prillwitz, Louis, Kammerherr
 113. 152. 334.
 Prinzessin Mumpitz 295ff.
 Producten- und Handelsbank
 94. 95.
 Professionelle und klassische
 Gründer 24ff. 46. 163. 168.
 241. 341.
 Proletariat, heimliches 100.
 „Prospect“ 46. 62ff. 71. 73ff.
 80. 84. 86ff. 94. 123. 129
 179. 250. 285.
 Prostitution 345.
 Provinzial - Disconto - Gesell-
 schaft 97.
 „Provision“ 46. 51. 128. 215ff.
 223. 237. 242. 247. 281. s. auch Tantiemen, Trinkgeld.
 „Publicität“ 75. 77. s. auch Presse, Reclame, Zeitungen.
 Putbus, Fürst zu 186. 188.

Q.

- Quistorp, Heinrich 35ff. 44. 106.
 113. 125. 127ff. 144. 177.
 184. 189. 289. 324. 335.
 Quistorp, Vereinsbank 26. 36.
 177. 188. 335.
 „Quistorp'sche Werthe“ 38. 324.

R.

Radtke, Ernst, Gastwirth 285.
 Ramme, Fritz 287.
 Rasche, Hermann, Dr. 264.
 Rathenau, Emil Moritz 264.
 von Ratibor, Herzog 9 ff. 341.
 Rattenkönig 38.
 Rauff, Hermann (Rauff & Knorr)
 57. 146. 261.
 Rautenstrauch, W. & C. in Köln
 226.
 Ravené, Louis, Geh. Commer-
 zienrath 86.
 Rechenkunst der Börse 96.
 Reclamen 122. 130. 135. 166.
 170. 256. 328. 343. s. a. Presse, Zeitungen, 'Publicität.
 Redenhütte, Bergwerk 44.
 „Reduction des Actien Capitals“
 137. 180.
 Reduction, Repartition der Zeichnungen 81. 83.
 Reh, Heinrich 133. 265. 271 ff.
 Reichsbank 220. 249. 338.
 Reichstag 13. 34. 143. 240 ff.
 244. 246 ff.
 Reimann, Hermann, Fabrikbe-
 sitzer 113. 152. 160. 161. 264.
 von Reinach, Baron, Oscar in Frankfurt a. M. 202.
 Reinicke, A. 128.
 Religionswechsel der Brauereien
 275.
 Rellstab, Ernst, Dr. 137. 285.
 Remscheider Stahlwerke (vormals Arntz & Co.) 66.
 Renard, Graf 143.
 „Rentabilitäts-Berechnung“ 64.
 73. 180. 250.
 Reporter an der Börse 315. 321.
 „Repräsentationsbank“ 25.
 Residenz-Baubank 107. 137.
 Reye, G. W. in Hamburg 204.
 Rheinische Baugesellschaft in Cöln 225. 226.

Richter, General-Director 201.
 Richter, Eugen, Abgeordneter
 und „Volkswirth“ 212. 219.
 220. 342.
 Ries & Itzinger 25. 113.
 „Rinder“ 41. s. auch „Ochsen“.
 Risch, Theodor, Stadtrath a. D.
 169. 199. 203.
 Röhl, Gustav 179.
 Roesicke, Adolf 263.
 Roesicke, Richard 263. 291.
 292.
 Rohde, Julius in Hamburg 112.
 113. 334.
 Romstädt, Stadtverordneter,
 jetzt Stadtrath 134.
 von Rosenberg, Baron, Kammer-
 herr 201.
 Rosenberg & Löwe 182.
 Rosenfeld, Emil 112.
 Rosenstock, Jacob 157.
 Ross, Edgar, in Hamburg 200.
 von Rothschild, Baron in Frankfurt a. M. 24. 96. 201.
 Rufer im Streit s. Pfuschmakler.
 Rumänier, Rumänische Eisenbahngesellschaft 8 ff. 341.

S.

Sabersky, Max 231.
 Sachs, Carl 137. 284.
 Sackur, Georg (Samelson &
 Sackur) 262. 284. 288. 289.
 Salamonski, Wilhelm 285.
 Salinger, Ascher, Generalconsul (Gebrüder Arons) 263.
 Salomon, Adolf 166.
 Salzungen, Soolbad 44.
 Samelson, Julius (Samelson & Sackur) 133. 134. 265. 284.
 288. 289.
 Sand in die Augen! 87. s. auch „Enthüllungen“.
 Saran, Gebrüder in Potsdam,
 Holzgeschäft 44.

- Schaaf, Feilenfabrik 44.
 Schaaffhausen'scher Bankverein in Köln 226.
 Schacher 103 ff. 135. 141. 165. s. auch Wucher, Wucherer, Vampyre.
 Schäfer & Hauschner, Gas- und Wasser-Anlagen 166. 167.
 Schauspiel für Menschen und Götter 258.
 Scheibler, F. in Charlottenburg 128.
 Scheinkäufe 91. 114.
 Scheinzeichner, Scheinzeichnungen 51. 55. 81 ff.
 Schenk, Adolf (Wiener Bankverein) 199.
 Schering, Chemische Fabrik 44.
 Schering, Commerzienrath 45.
 Scherzspiele 114.
 Schiefe Ebene der Gründungen 271.
 Schiff, Julius (Gebrüder Schiff) 200. 210. 263.
 Schillow, Friedrich, Consul 113. 159. 161.
 Schlegel, Heinrich, Bier-Director 264. 269.
 von Schleinitz, Baron, Otto 137.
 Schlesinger, Carl, Ostdeutsche Bank 202.
 Schlesische Actien-Brauerei, früher Carl Scholtz in Breslau 44. 289.
 Schlesische Wollwaaren-Fabrik, Joseph Beer selige Wittwe 65. 73.
 Schlittgen & Haase 83.
 Schlossbrauerei Schöneberg 28. 264. 269. 279.
 „Schlusscheine“ 48. 103.
 Schmidt, Oberbaurath in Wien 226.
 „Schmu“ 152. 153. 160. 161. 163. 164. 242. 253.
 Schneider, Ferdinand, Buchhändler 231.
 Schöller & van Alpen, Tuchfabrik in Aachen 72. 333.
 Schöller, Robert, Commerzienrath in Düren 72. 333.
 Schön, Gustav Adolph in Hamburg, ehemalig. Reichstagsmitglied 204. 252.
 Schönhausener Baugesellschaft 106.
 Schöpplenberg, Gustav, Fabrikbesitzer 132. 184. 263.
 Schreiber, F. E. Söhne 289.
 Schubarth, Ernst Otto, Landrath a. D. 202. 225.
 Schueler, Simon 336.
 Schumann, Porcellan-Manufactur 44.
 Schultheiss, Brauerei 263. 268. 275. 284. 291.
 Schultze, David, Baumeister 202.
 Schultze, Wilhelm, Baurath 201..
 Schulz, Joh. Gottfried in Schwerin 203. 289.
 Schuster, Hermann (Gewerbank H. Schuster & Co.) 26 ff. 83. 136. 264. 269.
 „Schuster-Oder-Wagener“ 27. von Schwabach, Ritter, 201.
 „Schwänze“ 95.
 Schweder, Richard 30 ff. 33 ff. 38. 44. 64. 74. 83. 84. 95. 113. 123. 161. 219.
 Schweissshunde s. Fixer, Schweitzer, Adolf, Baurath 201.
 Schweitzer, Julius, Börsen-Redacteur d. „National-Zeitung“ 288. 315. 316. 339.
 Schweizer Union, Eisenbahn-Actien 19 ff.
 Schwendy, G., Brauerei 45. 261. 264. 270. 277. 279.
 Schwendy, Kamnugarnspinnerei 44.

- Schwerdtfeger, Kattunfabrik in Eilenburg 65.
 Securius, Anton 265.
 Seelig, Josef Julius 287. 288.
 Seelig, Reinhold Alexander 113. 136. 204. 252. 288.
 Segen der Französischen Milliarden 100. 325.
 Siamesische Zwillinge 32.
 Siecke, August, Maurermeister 112. 113.
 Siemens, Georg, Bankdirector und Abgeordneter 169.
 Simon, Hermann 112.
 Simon, Moritz, Geh. Commerzienrath in Königsberg i. Pr. 235. 236.
 Simonsohn, Michael 137.
 Sloman, Rob. M. in Hamburg 204.
 Societätsbrauerei 133. 265. 271 ff. 277. 284.
 Sörgel, Alwin (Deutsche Genossenschaftsbank) 24. 185. 264. 269.
 Sommergut, Gustav in Magdeburg 254 ff.
 Sonnemann, Zeitungsbesitzer in Frankfurt a. M. und Abgeordneter 247. 248. 342.
 Speisekarte für Actionäre 209.
 „Spesen“ 61 ff. 75 ff. 92.
 Spielhagen, Director 264.
 Spielhölle 309 ff.
 Spielpapiere 4. 20. 32. 85. 297 ff. 305.
 „Spielsucht“ des Publikums s. Märchen.
 Strike der Droschkenkutscher 178 ff.
 Strike der Gastwirthe 278 ff.
 Staatsanwalt 17. 51. 74. 111. 164. 253 ff. 283.
 Stadtbahn 167. 209 ff. 213. 337 ff.
 Stadtpark (Hermann Geber) 147. 166. 167.
 Stadtverordnete, Berliner 148. 150. 219. 220. 338.
 Stahlschmidt, Eduard 145. 184. 204. 252. 253. 257. 288. 289.
 von Steffens, Baron, Legationsrath 186.
 Stein, Heinrich in Köln 226.
 von Steinäcker, Ed., Baron, General 112. 122.
 Stephan, Emil, Geh. Commerzienrath 254. 334.
 Stettiner Brauerei 289.
 Stobwasser, Lampenfabrik 44.
 Stobwasser, Gustav, Commerzienrath 45. 152. 155.
 Stöter, Carl 179.
 Stort, Dr. 112.
 Strahl, Ferdinand 179. 288.
 Straussberg, Baruch Hirsch, genannt Dr. Strousberg 4 ff. 160. 206. 224. 235. 324. 330 ff. 340. 341.
 Ströhmer, Franz, Maurermeister 138.
 Strohmänner 153. 257.
 Stursberg, Albert 132.
 „Subscription“ 16. 17. 79 ff. 86. 87. 94.
 Sudenburger Maschinenfabrik 74. 254 ff.
 Südend 29. 30. 106. 113.
 „Sumpfind“ (Hermann Geber) 28. 136.
 Sulzbach, Gebrüder in Frankfurt a. M. 200.
 Sulzer, Director 134.
 Synagoge 149. 247.
 System Strousberg, Schule Strousberg, Jünger Straussberg's 5 ff. 11. 12. 13. 224. 225 ff.
 T.
 Tabacksfabrik von Brunzlow & Sohn 44.

Tabacksfabrik von Prätorius 44.
 Talmi-Adel 125. 138. 316.
 Tamines-Landen, Eisenbahn-Actien 19.
 Tamtam der Presse 166.
 Tantiemen 34. 57. 128. 214.
 274. 275. s. auch Provisionen,
 Trinkgelder.
 Tanz um das goldene Kalb 22.
 Taschenspielerai 110. 153. 248.
 Tempelhofer Baugesellschaft
 106. 265.
 Teufels Ernte 309.
 Thiergarten-Bauverein 106. 113.
 333. 334.
 Thiergarten-Westend, Bauge-sellschaft 28. 136.
 Thode, Robert & Co. 24. 189. 219.
 Thölde, Gustav 113. 179.
 Thüringer Bankverein 70.
 Thüringer Eisenbahnbedarf 57.
 „Tippen“ 314.
 Tivoli, Bierbrauerei 261. 267. 272.
 Tobias, David 112.
 „Touage auf der Oder“ 208.
 Transport-Gesellschaft, Allgemeine 182.
 Treitel, Emil 287.
 Treitel, Moritz 287.
 Tribüne in Berlin 8. 12. 220.
 Trinkgelder 121. 178. 215. 223.
 233. 237. 245. 247. 281 ff. s.
 auch Tantiemen, Provisionen.
 Treuherz, J. (Neue Börsen-Zeitung) 317. 318.
 Tschepke, Emil 137.

U.

Uhley, Selmar 70.
 von Ujest, Herzog 9. 341.
 „Ulke“ an der Berliner Börse
 313. 314. 339.
 Ullstein, Stadtverordneter 134.
 Ultimo, Ultimogulirung 95.
 297. 311. s. auch Differenz-

geschäfte, Zeitgeschäfte, Wetten.
 Ungarische Eisenbahn-Anleihe
 82.
 Unger, Julius in Erfurt 57.
 Union-Baubank 107.
 Union, Baugesellschaft 106.
 Unions-Brauerei 262. 268. 275.
 Unstrutbahn (Naumburg-Artern) 208.
 Unterbilanz 72. 130. 135. 180.
 Unter den Linden, Bauge-sellschaft 31. 106. 158 ff. 169.
 239. 257.
 Untersuchungs-Verfahren 138.
 164. 172. 192. 203. 248. 215.
 228. 254 ff. 283. 336. 337.

V.

Valette, Moreau 182. 337.
 Vampyre 219.
 Vereinigte Königs- und Laura-hütte 85.
 Vereinigte Oderwerke 66.
 Vereinsbank Quistorp 26. 36 ff.
 177. 188. 335.
 Vereinsbrauerei der Berliner
 Gastwirth 83. 282 ff.
 Vertheuerung, Verschlechte-
 rung, Verfälschung der Lebens-
 mittel 260. 291.
 Verfall der Actien 112. 137. 138.
 „Vermehrung des National-Vermögens“ 23. 100. 101. 106.
 109.
 „Verschleierungen“ 14. 253 ff.
 257.
 Versilberung der Actien 216. 223.
 Versöhnungsfest s. Jom Hachi-purim.
 Vetter, Hugo 113.
 Viehweide 120. 123. 140.
 Villen, Villen-Colonien 35. 108.
 126. 129. 151.
 Vogts, Ferdinand 336.

Volkmar & Bendix 184.
„Volkswirthe“, moderne Volkswirtschaft 1. 2. 12. 23. 37. 70. 118. 126. 130. 141. 189. 238. 240. 245. 249. 280. 310. 311. 326. 338. 339. s. auch Manchesterleute, Manchesterthum.

Volkswirthschaftlicher Segen der Baugesellschaften 140.

Volkszeitung 220.

Vorbesitzer der Gründungsobjecte und Vorkäufer 45. 56. 57. 67. 68. 71. 72. 85. 131. 153. 159. 188. 253. 287. 337.

Vorbörse 295.

Vorwerk, Wilhelm in Hamburg 334.

W.

Wäsemann, Baurath 106. 113.

Wagenbauerei von Neuss 44.

Wagener, Geheimer Rath 26 ff.

Wahlen zum Abgeordnetenhaus, zum Reichstage und zur Berliner Stadtverordnetenversammlung 150.

Wandel, Geh. Admiralitätsrath 112.

Webers, Maschinenfabrik 44.

Wehrenpfennig, Abgeordn. 74.

Weimar-Gera, Eisenbahn 214.

Weissbier, Weissbierbrauereien 277. 278. 284 ff.

Weissenburger, Julius (Deutsche Unionbank) 200.

Werder'sche Brauerei (bei Potsdam) 287.

Wertheim & Gompertz in Amsterdam 134.

von Werthern, Baron 66.

Wesselhöft, Johannes in Hamburg 334.

Westend (Quistorp), Baugesellschaft 35. 106. 113. 125 ff. 129. 335.

Westend-Berlin 131.

Westend-Potsdam-Baubank 106. 138.

von Westenholz, Baron in Hamburg 85.

Wetten 297. 311. s. auch Differenzgeschäfte, Zeitgeschäfte, Ultimo.

„Wie heisst der Jude?“ 345.

Wiener, Isaac 287.

Wiesenbach, Fr., Regierungsrath 200.

Wiesner'sche Brauerei in Breslau 288.

Windthorst, Eisenbahn-Director 200.

Winkelbörse 157. 322.

Winterfeldt, Rechtsanwalt 169.

Wiss, Eduard, Dr. med. und „Volkswirth“ 129. 130. 134. 189.

Wittkowski, Arnold 265.

Witzblätter, jüdische 7. 259. 343.

Wöhlert, F., Commerzienrath 45. 85.

Wöhlert'sche Maschinenfabrik 44. 84.

Wohnungsfrage, „Wohnungsnoth“ 98 ff. 116. 118. 130. 135. 140. 260. 334. 335.

Wölfe in Schafskleidern 118.

Wölfe und Füchse 327.

Wolff, Alfred (M. Schie Nachfolger in Dresden) 184.

Wolff, Anton Emil (Hirschfeld & Wolff) 263.

Wolff, Gustav, Justizrath 134. 135.

Wolff, Hugo 264. 269.

Wolfswinkel, Papierfabrik 44.

Wollenberg, Leo 112.

Woltersdorf, Baugesellschaft 106.

Wrede, Gebrüder 83.

Wrede, Victor Ludwig, Commerzienrath 202. 231 ff. 263.
 Wucher, Wucherer 105. 219. 220. 345.
 Wunderlich, Böttcherei 45.
 von Wurmb, Polizei-Präsident 186. 187. 206.
 Wutsdorff, Ferd., Weinhändler 203.
 Wuttke, Baumeister 137.

Z.

Zacharias, A. N. in Hamburg 204.
 Zeichnungen, Ueberzeichnungen, „erste Zeichner“, Scheinzeichner 48. 49. 51. 55. 58. 80. 81. 85. 88.

„Zeitgeschäfte“ 4. 296 ff. 309. 310. 311. s. auch Differenzgeschäfte, Wetten, Ultimo.
 Zeitungen 6. 61. 62. 74. 75. 81 ff. 86. 91. 109. 126. 155. 162. 290. 326. s. auch Presse, Reclame.
 Zeitzer Eisengiesserei 70.
 Zimmermann, August, Bier-Director 267.
 Zschille, Feodor, Commerzienrath in Grossenhain 231.
 „Zusammenlegen“, Meucheln der Actien 137. 180.
 Zuzug (Einwanderung) in Berlin 108. 335. s. auch Wohnungsfrage, „Wohnungsnoth“.

Inhaltsverzeichnis.

| | Seite |
|---|-------|
| Vorrede | V |
| I. Zur Einleitung | 1 |
| II. Der Tanz um das Goldene Kalb | 15 |
| III. Gründer und Gründer-Praktiken | 40 |
| IV. Die „Prospecte“ | 61 |
| V. „Subscription“ und „Einführung“ | 79 |
| VI. Häuserschacher und Baustellenwucher | 98 |
| VII. Baugeschichten | 117 |
| VIII. „Berlin wird Weltstadt“ | 142 |
| IX. Die „grosse Zeit“ und die „grossen Dinge“ | 175 |
| X. Die Culturkämpfer | 196 |
| XI. Noch die Culturkämpfer | 222 |
| XII. „Dividendenjauche“ | 259 |
| XIII. An der Berliner Börse | 294 |
| XIV. Anhang | 323 |
| XV. Nachträge | 330 |
| Register | 347 |

Leipzig. Druck von Grunne & Trömel.

Verlag von E. Bidder in Leipzig.

Der Culturkampf in Preussen

und

seine Bedenken.

Von

J. H. v. Kirchmann,

Mitglied des deutschen Reichstags und des preuss. Abgeordnetenhauses.

— Dritte unveränderte Auflage. —

Preis geh. 75 Pf.

Das ungeheuere Aufsehen, welches die Kirchmann'sche Schrift bei ihrem Erscheinen erregte, ist vor allem der leidenschaftslosen Objectivität zuzuschreiben, mit welcher der Verfasser, ein hervorragendes Mitglied der Fortschrittspartei und auch als philosophischer Schriftsteller in den weitesten Kreisen bekannt, die kirchenpolitischen Gesetze und deren Handhabung seiner Kritik unterzieht, wobei dann die schweren Gefahren, welche für unser Vaterland aus dem sogenannten „Culturkampf“ im Falle der Fortdauer des eingeschlagenen Systems erwachsen müssen, mit beredten Worten geweissagt werden. Was der Verfasser über die Nothwendigkeit der Ergänzung des Prinzips der Freiheit durch das Prinzip der Autorität sagt, gehört wohl zu dem Besten, was über diesen Punkt je geschrieben worden ist.

Leipzig. Druck von Grimme & Trömel.

